OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER --- DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO

VOLUME 20

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 10, 1919

NUMBER 2

Former President Roosevelt Is Dead

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt died in his sleep early January 6 at his home on Sagamore Hill in the village of Oyster Bay, Long Island. Death is believed to have been due to rheumatism which affected his heart.

The colonel suffered a severe attack of rheumatism and a cold on New Year's day, but none believed that his illness would likely prove fatal. The former president sat up most of Sunday and retired at 11 o'clock that night. About 4 a. m. Mrs. Roosevelt, who was the only member of the family at Oyster Bay, went to her husband's room and found that he had died during the night.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Jan. 8.—The body of Theodore Roosevelt was laid at rest today.

It was committed to earth at 1:45 p. m. in a family cemetery plot overlooking Long Island sound.

The morning's snowstorm gave way to brilliant sunshine as the automobile cortege started from Sagamore Hill to the church. Thousands of persons viewed the procession.

New York, Jan. 8.—While the whole nation was mourning the passing of former President Roosevelt, this city, in which he was born and to whose citizens he was perhaps most personally familiar, paid tribute today to his memory as his body was being laid at rest in Oyster Bay. Old Priests' chimes began the funeral toll and as the sound was wafted upon the air, the bell in the cupola of New York's historic city hall merged its mournful cadence with that of Trinity and hundreds of other churches in the upper and lower reaches of Manhattan—a last token of affection for all that was mortal of a great American.

Precisely at 1:59 p. m. and until 2 o'clock, for one minute, virtually every phase of industry in Greater New York stopped, including the wires of the Associated Press.

The roar of subway, electric and surface cars ceased and the hum of marts of trade was hushed. In the morning, 800,000 public school children held special exercises in the class rooms, in which the life of Col. Roosevelt and the ideals of Americanism, for which he stood, were made the subject. In the afternoon schools closed as a mark of respect.

ROOSEVELT'S ACTIVE LIFE

Colonel Roosevelt's political career covered a period of a third of a century, and was the most active and spectacular of any figure in American history. In 1882, 1883 and 1884 he was a member of the New York state assembly. This service was followed by two years' ranching, hunting and literary pursuits in North Dakota. It was here he laid the foundation for his series of books "The Winning of the West." He was the republican candidate for mayor of New York in 1896, but was defeated. President Harrison appointed him a member of the United States civil service commission in 1889, and President Cleveland continued him in that office until he resigned in 1896 to become New York's police commissioner.

In 1897 he was named assistant secretary of the navy by President McKinley. A year later

Sgt. Reilly Writes

Luxemburg, Luxembourg, Nov. 27. Dear Dad:

Well, I guess the big thing is about over, and we have been transferred into the third army, which is called the army of occupation to march through Germany. There are certainly some wonderful sights to see here. This was a neutral country, but the Germans controlled everything here, railroads, shops, etc. We came from St. Mihiel to this place. The 89th division did some excellent work in both the St. Mihiel and Argonne drives.

This is certainly a funny language composed of French and German mixed, mostly Dutch though.

We handle all the prisoners of war. I certainly saw a sight to-night. There was a train load of prisoners from all nations come in, and our military police took charge of them and marched them down to where the Red Cross were going to feed them. They were certainly a starved, ragged, looking bunch, and certainly happy to be loose.

Well, I am going to stop; will write from next place I stop. I suppose you will get this about Xmas. Hoping it won't be many Xmas until I am home.

Love to all of you.

Your loving son,
SGT. A. M. REILLY,
Co. D. 3rd Army M. P.

Bethburg, Germany, Dec. 5, 1918. Dear Folks:

Am still on my way towards the Rhine. This is a small German town, about 5000 inhabitants.

The people have treated us wonderful, considering everything. We are billeted in a private home, and there are 3 German soldiers that were discharged 8 days ago. I was very much amused at them last night. We were up stairs getting ready for bed, and these two soldiers sent for us, and we went down, and they had an old style Zephyr and were playing it and singing for us. They played the time America for us, and we asked them to play the Vact and Rhine; after that their mother made us a cup of hot tea, and brought out some German cookies not like our cookies, but tasted pretty good because we hadn't had any in a long time.

Was just down to the K. C. and they issued me this paper and a piece of chocolate and two cigarettes. These people go wild over a piece of American chocolate, or soap. Soap is a very scarce article about 5 marks a bar.

I suppose Xmas will be past by the time you get this; will be thinking of you all.

Love and Merry Xmas to you all.

SGT. A. M. REILLY,
Co. D. 3rd Army M. P.

Killed in a Mine

Roy E. Coolidge was killed Tuesday in the shaft of the American mine at Nogal. He was working in the shaft and heavy timbers were being lowered. A timber struck his head, crushing it against the wall. He lived only a short time after the accident.

Mr. Coolidge recently came here from the north and entered the employ of the Parsons Mining company. He impressed all those who made his acquaintance as a courteous, refined gentleman, and his tragic death caused great regret among such acquaintances.

Respond To The Relief Of Those Who Stood In The Path Of The War Demon

"Let Your Light So Shine"

On this page is printed the proclamation of Governor Larrazolo in behalf of the work for the relief of the peoples of Armenia and Syria, peoples that have suffered the most dreadful straits that war brings because they stood in the path of the monster. Promptly supporting the national and state movement, Lincoln county's committee has been organized, with Ed C. Monroe, of Carrizozo, as chairman, preparing to make the sure and quick finish of its task which has characterized the efforts of our county people in all they have undertaken during the dire four years.

Edward Everett Young, executive secretary and committee director of the American Committee for Relief in the Far East, was in Carrizozo Monday and selected the committee for the purpose of raising Lincoln county's quota for the relief of the millions who are starving in Western Asia. Mr. Young resides in the northern part of the state, is one of New Mexico's best citizens, and gladly responded when called upon by Col. R. E. Twitchell and L. A. Hughes to direct this work over the state. This work has the approval of President Wilson and the national committee is composed of America's foremost men.

The administrative expenses of the committee are met privately enabling it to devote to distinctly relief work 100 cents on the dollar. Lincoln county's quota in the raising of the relief fund undertaken by the state is comparatively small and should be reached within a very short time.

The drive begins on January 12, continuing a week to January 19. The local committee, composed of members who reside in the various districts of the county, will solicit these funds.

Following are the members of Lincoln county's committee:

Ed C. Monroe, Carrizozo, chairman; C. A. Perkins, Rev. R. H. Lewelling, Jno. A. Haley, George L. Ulrich, H. S. Campbell, Ed Dickey and M. B. Paden, of Carrizozo; Wayne Van Schoyck of White Oaks, George Titsworth of Capitan, Charles F. Gray of Oscura, J. T. Hoad of Encinoso, and M. C. Porter of Corona.

Boone—White

A very pretty home wedding occurred Saturday morning when Rev. R. H. Lewelling pronounced the words that made Elton D. Boone and Miss Bessie White man and wife. Only the family were present to witness the nuptials at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe N. White.

The ceremony was attended with a tinge of the military, the groom, who had but recently been discharged from the army, wearing his uniform, as did also the best man, Marvin Burton, a cousin of the groom, the latter wearing his regulation navy dress. The bride wore a beautiful gown, her graduation dress.

The happy pair left on the first train for El Paso for a short honeymoon, returning yesterday. They will occupy the White cottage on Walnut street, soon to be vacated by the White family.

The News joins their friends in best wishes.

H. A. Lindley Dies

Al Lindley, notice of whose illness was given in these columns, died recently in a hospital in France. He had about recovered from an attack of what was thought to be cancer of the stomach, when pneumonia developed, causing death.

This soldier left here in September, 1917, and soon thereafter was in France. The record, so far as we have been able to ascertain, is that he made a magnificent soldier, as those who have known him for many years in Lincoln county knew he would.

All who knew jolly, big-hearted Al Lindley are saddened by the news of his death. A sister, Mrs. Lloyd Hubert, with whom the entire county sympathizes, lives in Lincoln.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

TO THE PEOPLE OF NEW MEXICO:

Whereas, Through the inhuman practices of the Germans and the Turks during the war nearly 4,000,000 Christians and Jews are homeless and on the verge of starvation in the near east; and

Whereas, No government aid is available at this time, and assistance must be given at once through the generosity of individuals; and

Whereas, The American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, duly and properly organized throughout the nation and with representatives of the highest integrity in the State of New Mexico, has dedicated itself to the task of raising $30,000,000 for the relief of these stricken peoples; and

Whereas, The quota fixed for New Mexico is $35,000, justly and equally apportioned among the several counties, as the minimum sum to be subscribed by the people of this sovereign state;

Now Therefore, I, O. A. Larrazolo, Governor of the State of New Mexico, do officially recognize this effort as one worthy of the support of all our citizens, and urge all loyal New Mexicans to subscribe as generously as they may be able to do, thereby maintaining the record for patriotism and liberality which has been made by our beloved state during the whole of the war period.

Done at the Executive Office this the 4th day of January, 1919.

Witness my hand and the Great Seal of the State of New Mexico.

[Seal]
Attested:
MANUEL MARTINEZ, Secretary of State.

Aged Citizen Dies

Alfred C. Bragg died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. N. Kennedy, at the family home in Highland Addition, Saturday, January 4. Funeral services were held at the family residence at 2:00 p. m. Monday and the remains interred in White Oaks cemetery beside the wife, who died thirteen years ago and a daughter.

The following children survive: Mrs. L. A. Moore, Llano, Texas; Mrs. J. W. Sutherland and Mrs. Margaret Johnson, Clifton, Arizona; Mrs. W. N. Kennedy, Carrizozo; George T. Bragg, Miami, Arizona, and James C. Bragg, Tyrone, N. M.

The deceased was a veteran of the civil war, was born in Alabama September 19, 1829, and was thus in his ninetieth year. He came to Lincoln county and settled in Texas Park, near White Oaks, in 1888, and lived there until nine years ago, when he came to Carrizozo and had since continuously made his home with his daughter, Mrs. W. N. Kennedy.

He was a quiet, unassuming gentleman of the old school, a loyal, faithful citizen, and during his long residence in Lincoln county gained and held the respect of all. His long career has ended, but in passing to his reward he has left an example for rectitude and right living that will be a beacon light to guide the footsteps of those who came after him.

Lincoln State Bank Elects Officers

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Lincoln State bank held in the office of the bank on the 4th of January, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: J. B. French, president; H. S. Campbell, vice president; O. T. Nye, cashier; and E. D. Boone, assistant cashier.

Mr. Nye will take over his duties as cashier on the first of February.

Soldiers Home

More soldiers arrived this week from the various camps. Lt. E. M. Brickley, who was at the Kelley training field, came in Sunday. Private Arthur Hoffman arrived Friday night from Camp Pike, Arkansas. Lt. T. C. Fitzpatrick, who had been recently assigned to duty at Camp Logan, near Houston, Texas, came home Tuesday.

Dance at Shulda's

A delightful dance was given at the Shulda home Monday night. Mrs. Shulda's brother, recently from the naval service, was visiting the family, and a good number of friends assembled to greet him and enjoy the hospitality graciously extended by the Shuldass.

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to all those of our friends who so kindly gave us their assistance and sympathy in our sad bereavement, the death of our beloved father and grandfather. We also wish to thank them for the beautiful floral offering.

MRS. KENNEDY AND FAMILY,
MR. AND MRS. W. J. FETTER.

Ralph M. Treat, of White Oaks, has accepted the position of deputy district clerk under George C. Clements, and came down this week to assume his duties.

A Step Along Progress Is Funston Highway

What promises to be one of the most interesting and far-reaching highway meetings that has been held in the Southwest is the one scheduled to be held at Hutchinson, Kansas, on January 20, when the Funston-Fort Bliss Military Highway Association will hold its first convention. Now that the war has been concluded and the country is preparing to again operate upon a peace basis, work should begin immediately on the building and completion of the great highways of the country, both those already partly built and those contemplated, that will connect the more important points of the United States.

At a meeting of agricultural editors, which was held recently at Washington, one of the more important matters stressed by Secretary of Agriculture D. F. Houston was the future attitude of the government toward the building of good roads in this country. That the government intends to enlarge upon its present road-building program is beyond question, and it behooves the section to be traversed by the Funston-Fort Bliss Military Highway to see that the matter is brought properly before the authorities and as much federal assistance as possible procured for this highway, connecting Kansas City, Camp Funston and Fort Riley, which is the geographical center of the United States, and through Carrizozo to Fort Bliss at El Paso, Texas, which is the natural gateway to Old Mexico.

Excellent speakers will appear on the program at the Hutchinson meeting and great results will be accomplished if the proper effort is expended. Remember the date and arrange to be at Hutchinson on Monday, January 20, 1919.

Commercial Club Meeting

President Ira O. Wetmore of the Carrizozo Commercial Club called a meeting Tuesday afternoon to discuss some road matters. The president gave a resume of the Camp Funston-Fort Bliss highway meeting at Tucuman last month, and informed the club of what each county through which the proposed highway is to pass is expected to do.

One of the first things required was that each county put up $50 to defray the initial expenses. This was met by appropriation from the club's treasury, and the amount sent to the treasurer of the highway association.

It was also determined to send two representatives to the Camp Funston-Fort Bliss Highway association meeting at Hutchinson, Kansas, on the 20th inst. The selection of the two representatives was deferred, pending a subsequent meeting.

Committees were named to solicit funds to bear the expenses of the delegation, Oscura, Carrizozo, Ancho and Corona to be asked to bear this cost. It is thought this particular cost will amount to $130.

This proposed highway is a very important one and everyone interested in a road that will connect us with the north and south, and at the same time link us up with a number of other important routes, should give it every aid.

Why Don't You Say "Hello" First?

By REV. CHARLES STELZLE, in the Illinois State Journal

Somebody said to you today:
"How are you, Jim?"—or whatever your name may be.
And you replied:
"Pretty well, thank you!"—
And you thought that you had fulfilled all the requirements of polite society.
But—why didn't you ask about the health of your friend and neighbor who had greeted you?
Like this: "Pretty well, thank you—how are you?"
Sometimes you've gone through the day perfectly miserable because somebody didn't say "Hello" to you.
Of course, your friend's mind may have been troubled or his eyes fastened upon something which required all his attention, or there may have been a dozen perfectly good reasons why he didn't say "Hello!"
But—why didn't you say "Hello" to him?
Perhaps somebody does not say "Hello" to you out of pure cussedness—they simply don't want to. They are just built that way.
But you can't imagine how unhappy such people are. In most cases they'd give anything to be different.
Now you can help them. It may be hard for you to do so—but try it! Say "Hello" anyway, if it chokes you!
When you've thought about your friend's failure to greet you—perhaps you've thought, a bit scornfully:
"I'm as good as he is."
Well—why didn't you prove it—and not wait for him to make the first polite advance?
Just because you're like most of the rest of us—we expect more from others than we're ready to give ourselves, or we've developed a false modesty which prevents our taking our rightful places among friends and neighbors.
Anyway—why should your friends inquire about your health—and why should they greet you with a hearty "hello"—when you usually wait for them to do it first?
Suppose you try the other way—just for a day—forget about yourself—become really interested in your neighbors and friends—and don't give them the chance to say "Hello" first.
What a day you'll have!
I'd like to hear about it.

Fishing, a Patriotic Sport That Should Be Encouraged: What Fish Are in Your Lake?

The millions of Americans who have always lived inland know the delicate flavor of the fresh water catch, but we are likely to slight this cheap, nutritious food, either because it is not always on sale in our markets or because so many menus and recipes we follow in our cooking call for lobster, halibut or some other ocean product.

If fish from our own communities are not on the market plentifully, let's go fishing for them ourselves. There is no season of the year when some kind of fish cannot be caught easily. Do not turn up your nose at your little boy's catch, because the fish are small and hard to clean. Little perch are delicious, even if they do require some extra time in preparation.

Encourage fishing as a patriotic sport in your neighborhood. Inquire about the fish in your community. Are bass, trout, pickerel, carp, perch or just plain "suckers" plentiful in your lakes and runs? The equipment necessary to catch any of these fresh water fish is simple and inexpensive. A hook and line and a bamboo pole have been the means of catching hundreds of pounds of fish.

Friday is not the only fish day. Two more days a week are not too often for you to serve the inexpensive, meat-saving food. Baked, boiled, or fried fresh fish are always delicious. To vary the meals a trifle, make different kinds of sauces to serve with your fish.

Babylon's Walls Set in Mortar Mixed With Oil

Oil was known in a number of places in very ancient times, the walls of Babylon having been, we are told, set in mortar mixed with a heavy crude oil from wells near the Euphrates, and it would not be beyond the realms of imagination to suggest that the streets of Nineveh may have had their dusts laid by a coating of oil of an asphaltum base just as in many of our cities today. Those wise old observers, Strabo and Herodotus, did not overlook so interesting a theme as natural oil, and give accounts of its existence though not, perhaps, of its inflammable nature.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Manufacture of Paper Was Japanese Industry 592-629.

The manufacture of paper was an important industry in Japan as far back as the time of the Emperor Suika, A. D. 592-629, the art having been introduced from China. It is said that paper was introduced into Europe from Egypt, but in China the industry may have been as old as in Egypt, and the art may have traveled from China to Europe through India and Persia, passing from Spain to Italy and France, special improvements being introduced in its manufacture by the Dutch and the French.

Walking on Water.

Decidedly novel is a new outfit for walking on the water, which is shown in Popular Mechanics Magazine. It is a combination of a balloon and a set of floats. The small gas bag used has a lifting capacity almost sufficient to raise an adult from the ground and it is attached by ropes to a belt worn about the waist.

May Take Land Needed.

Under an act of congress of July 2, 1917, the government may condemn and take possession of or may purchase any tract of land in the United States, wherever situated, that may be needed for military purposes.

Mothers' Cook Book

Some perfect day I shall not need
To bend my brow o'er baffling tasks;
Some perfect day my soul shall read
The meaning hid 'neath clouding masks;
Some perfect day I shall attain
The dim ideal my spirit asks.

Goodies for the Family.

Small cakes and cookies are especially in favor during the holiday time. The following will be most welcome as giving variety:

Sweet Hearts.

Beat one cupful of butter substitute with two cupfuls of sugar until light; add four eggs well beaten, one-half teaspoonful of rose flavoring and one-half teaspoonful of vanilla. Sift three cupfuls of flour, a pinch of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder; add to the first mixture, beating vigorously. Bake in small heart-shaped pans and cover with delicate pink-tinted frosting.

Date Nut Cakes.

Separate the whites and yolks of three eggs; beat the yolks with one cupful of sifted granulated sugar until thick and light; add one-half cupful of pecan meats and one-half cupful of stoned, chopped dates; then add one cupful of flour, a pinch of salt and a teaspoonful of baking powder sifted together. Fold in the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth and drop by spoonfuls into very small pans, which have been greased and dusted with fine sugar. Bake about eight minutes and turn out of the tin at once when they come from the oven.

Holly Wreaths.

Cream a half cupful of butter substitute with two-thirds of a cupful of sugar; when light and creamy add the yolks of two eggs and the white of one; sift one and one-fourth cupfuls of flour with a pinch of salt, a teaspoonful of baking powder and one-fourth of a cupful of nutmeg; mix with the first mixture, alternating with one-fourth of a cupful of milk. Roll out the dough and cut into rings with the doughnut cutter. Brush with the white of egg and sprinkle with pistachio nuts, blanched and chopped, and put a few red candies in groups of two or three to simulate berries. Bake a light brown in a moderate oven.

Glories.

Beat four tablespoonfuls of sweet fat with one cupful of sugar until creamy; add one egg, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted with two and one-half cupfuls of flour; add one cupful of milk and mix. Roll in small balls and fry in deep fat. When cool roll in boiled frosting, then in chopped nuts and raisins.

Nellie Maxwell

Marquis d'Argenson Founded the Municipal Police System

The first man to organize a municipal police system along modern lines was the Marquis d'Argenson, who died in Paris 197 years ago. D'Argenson was a native of Venice and first achieved fame in that republic, where he was a state secret agent. In 1697 he went to France and became the head of the police department in Paris. Coming of a high family, he was considered to have degraded himself by accepting this post, but he soon raised the office to his own level. The gendarmes of Paris were made into a highly efficient force, and D'Argenson also formed a body of secret agents, such as would now be called detectives. Later he laid the foundation for the French secret service and sent spies to all countries with which France might become involved in war. The system of international espionage he inaugurated was perfected by Karl Stueber, who organized the Prussian secret service and sent thousands of his men into Austria and France prior to Prussia's wars against those countries.

SCIENCE NOTES

Synthetic milk is being produced from peanuts by European chemists.
A mixture of two or more honeys always is darker than any of the original ones.
Holland's mines are now producing coal at a rate of about 2,900,000 tons a year.

A sewing tray that fits an arm of a hunchroom chair securely has been patented.
Sweden has areas of peat deposits that are estimated to cover nearly 9,000,000 acres.

Barristers' Wigs in Use More Than 200 Years Ago

Barristers' wigs first came into vogue about 200 years ago. Up to the end of the seventeenth century judges and sergeants at law alone had any distinctive dress. Under Queen Anne the queen's counselor adopted the court dress and silk gown which made up the mourning of the period, together with the full-bottomed wig then usually worn by all persons of position.

Speed of the Pulse.

The pulse beat of infants is 120 per minute, of men, 70, and of women, about 75.

GOOD ROADS

PROPER DRAINAGE FOR ROAD

Side Ditches Should Be Ample Large,
With Sufficient Fall to Carry Off Water Rapidly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The only reason for crowning a road surface is to enable it to shed water, and unless effective means are provided for disposing of the water after it is drained off the surface crowning will be of very little, if any, advantage. The side ditches should be ample large and should have sufficient fall to carry the water away as rapidly as it enters them, and they should have outlets at all convenient points. Cross drains or culverts should be constructed wherever it is desirable to transfer drainage water across the road, and they should usually be provided with end or wing walls for protecting the slopes of the embankment. When the material composing the roadbed is likely to be springy, a system of longitudinal underdrainage may be found necessary to secure proper drainage. In constructing a road, of any type whatever, it should be constantly borne in mind that adequate and continually effective drainage is absolutely necessary if the road is to be maintained in good condition.

SAGEBRUSH USED FOR ROADS

Despised Weed Is Now Declared to Be Best Building Material in Western States.

Nobody loves the sagebrush, yet somebody is always trying to uplift it. This is a difficult task since its antecedents are so bad. Nevada, complained a long time because she was called the "Sagebrush state," hunters hated the plant because of the bitter flavor it imparted to the grouse; prospectors, settlers, stockmen despised it because it encumbered the earth. It was fit only for rattlesnakes to coil in and strike or for coyotes to blend their tawny skins into vanishment.

Not long ago an Oregon man cried, "Eureka!" He said that sagebrush was the best road-building material in the West, says New York Sun. Now Idaho claims in the despised weed a source of great wealth and the solution of the problem of potato shortage: "The average acre produces three tons of sagebrush at a cost of $25. The sagebrush burned in the kiln gives from 25 to 30 per cent potato. The supply is inexhaustible."
The Idaho poet, who called for a festival "to lift the curse from the plant we know so well and should love," may now consider himself even with those who feared and refused to foregather with him.

OUTLOOK DUBIOUS FOR AUTO

Roads Cannot Stand Wear and Tear
They Are Being Subjected To
by Heavy Trucks.

With the shortage of labor for road making and the more general use of the roads for heavy hauling, it is likely that the roads as they exist will not be able to withstand the hard usage, and the outlook is dubious for the automobile. Many industrial companies are making use of fleets of trucks to deliver their goods, instead of subjecting themselves to the uncertainties of the railroad service and the wear and tear on the roads thus made use of is more than they can take care of. This, more than ever, makes it evident that there should be some very decided reforms made in the matter of road building. The makeshift repairs which have heretofore been made are not now sufficient, and all new road building work should be made on the most substantial lines.—Chicago Journal.

Dependence on Good Roads.

Every farmer should feel his dependence upon good roads. Whether or not one lives on a public highway he should take an interest in the nearest one to his farm or the road he must use to market his farm, orchard and garden products.

Roads Not Properly Built.

To say that the roads are bad because motortrucks have been passing over them is simply a confession that the roads are not properly built and maintained.

Low Meat Prices vs. High Cattle Prices

If the farmer cannot get enough for his live stock, he raises less, and the packer gets less raw material.

If the consumer has to pay too much for his meat, he eats less of it, and the packer finds his market decreased.

The packer wants the producer to get enough to make live-stock raising profitable, and he wants the price of meat so low that everyone will eat it.

But all he can do, and what he would have to do in any case to stay in business, is to keep down the cost of processing the farmer's stock into meat so that the consumer pays for the meat and by-products only a little more than the farmer gets for his animals.

For example, last year Swift & Company paid for its cattle about 90 per cent of what it got for meat and by-products (such as hides, tallow, oils, etc.)

If cattle from the farm were turned miraculously into meat in the hands of retailers (without going through the expense of dressing, shipping and marketing), the farmer would get only about 1 1/8 cents per pound more for his cattle, or consumers would pay only about 2 1/4 cents per pound less for their beef!

Out of this cent or two per pound, Swift & Company pays for the operation of extensive plants, pays freight on meats, operates refrigerator cars, maintains branch houses, and in most cases, delivers to retailers all over the United States. The profit amounts to only a fraction of a cent, and a part of this profit goes to build more plants, to give better service, and to increase the company's usefulness to the country.

Swift & Company, U. S. A.

Everything Gone.

At a friend's dinner table little Harold was told to wait as there was no room for him. Spying a dish of chicken he whispered: "Mother, there might be an chicken left. His mother replied: 'Of course there will. They will leave some for mamma's.'"

Later a man reached for the last piece of chicken and Harold cried out: "Mother, Mr. Smith took mamma's and all."

If you wish beautiful, clear white clothes, use Red Cross Bag Blue. At all good grocers. Adv.

Keeping the Faith.

A man returning from Philadelphia told of a ragged newsboy who, after his papers were all sold, still stood near Independence hall lustily shouting the news of Germany's surrender. "I'm just a dolt," what the Liberty bell would do if it could," explained the little patriot.

Core plumes, headache, bad breath by taking May Apple. Also, Jalap rolled into a tiny sugar pill called Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Adv.

Making Things Worse.

It was at a party. He slipped up and tweaked her ear. She turned her head.

"Beg pardon," he stammered. "I thought it was my wife."

"It is quite all right," the lady replied.

"You see," he went on, "we sometimes get the wrong sow by the ear—"

And that was about all for him.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

KILL POULTRY LICE—SAVE FEED.

One Method of Saving Valuable Chicken Feed. Give the Fowls a Dust Bath With Sodium Fluoride and Rid Them of Lice and Mites.

ERADICATE LICE FROM HEN FLOCK

Tons of Valuable Feed in Form of Energy and Body Food Consumed by Pests.

SODIUM FLUORIDE IN FAVOR

Following Moulting Insects Are Usually Reduced in Number but If Not All Destroyed They Multiply Fast in Winter.

Tons of valuable chicken feed which poultrymen give to their fowls is wasted. Although it is eaten by the birds, it does not go to produce eggs or meat. It is consumed, in the form of energy or body food, by millions of lice which work unseen, in many cases, to the poultrymen. Feed is too high and meat too scarce to permit this waste to go on. To keep birds healthy, to utilize to the fullest extent all of the available feed, and to produce winter eggs, it is necessary to get rid of lice.

Investigations of the bureau of entomology of the United States department of agriculture show that over 90 per cent of the flocks of this country are lousy. Many of these are so lousy that they are maintained at a loss. Others have some lice—even a few are too many and should not be tolerated—and the owners do not know it or are indifferent to their presence.

Late fall is the best time to eradicate lice from the flock. At this season chickens are largely matured and the flock is reduced in size for winter through culling out undesirable birds. At this season, too, poultry are confined in the poultry house more than they have been during the spring and summer seasons, and the lice have a greater opportunity to carry on their work of destruction. Following moulting the lice are usually reduced in numbers, but if they are not all destroyed they multiply greatly during the winter. This causes reduced egg production, loss in flesh and lowered vitality. Lice also have been found to gnaw the feathers to such an extent that protection from the cold of winter is greatly reduced. The plumage of show birds is also damaged by them.

Complete Destruction Possible.

The complete eradication of all lice from a flock is easy and inexpensive. Douse or dip every fowl once with sodium fluoride and the lice are banished if lousy chickens are not introduced. About twelve small pinches of sodium fluoride are sufficient for each fowl if placed in the feathers next to the skin. Each different part of the bird should be treated, that is, the head, neck, back, breast, below vent, wings and tail. This so-called "pinch" method of application is advised for small flocks. For flocks of 25 or more the dipping method is the best. Choose a warm, sunny day for dipping. Place from seven to ten gallons of lukewarm water in a tub and add three level tablespoons of sodium fluoride for each gallon. The fowls are held by the wings with one hand and lowered beneath the water except the head. With the other hand the feathers should be ruffled to permit the dip to enter them. Duck the head completely under once or twice, followed by raising the head and neck feathers with the fingers.

No Injury to Fowls.

There is absolutely no injury to fowls by treatment with sodium fluoride, and by dipping, as outlined above, the feathers are not wet very much and the birds dry quickly. This is very different from the case in dipping fowls in croscote compounds and other dips which have commonly been used.

Sodium fluoride is now carried by most of the wholesale druggists throughout the country, and certain large mail-order houses quote it in their catalogues. The price ranges from 25 cents to 40 cents a pound, according to locality. One pound will treat 100 hens by the "pinch" method, and the amount of material used in dipping is considerably less. The bureau of entomology of the United States department of agriculture has found that with a convenient method of catching the chickens 100 fowls can be dipped in about 25 minutes with four men working. The dipping method is somewhat slower and there is a slight danger of missing certain portions of the chicken through carelessness and thus allowing a few lice to escape destruction.

POULTRY SUGGESTIONS

Every commercial breeder, every farmer, every back-yard poultry raiser, is urged to keep these aims steadily in view:

1. Keep better poultry. Standard-bred poultry improves the quality and increases production.
2. Select healthy, vigorous breeders to produce strong chicks.
3. Hatch early to produce fall and winter layers.
4. Preserve eggs when cheap for home use.
5. Produce infertile eggs, except for hatching.
6. Cull the flocks to eliminate unprofitable producers.
7. Keep a small back-yard flock to supply the family table.
8. Grow as much poultry feed as possible.
9. Eat more poultry and eggs to conserve the meat supply.

A Patriotic Hen.

The following extract from the report of a county home demonstration agent in Mississippi shows the kind of prize-winning poultry the Southern club girls are adding to their flocks:

"There are all kinds of hens like these in all kinds of people. Some do their part well and others fail totally, but at Pineville, just north of Fox Christian, there is one hen that has made such a record for herself and her family that she is entitled to be classed as a patriotic hen, and we give her history so that it may serve as an inspiration to other members of the feathered family that have laid down on their job."

"This hen is owned by Miss Wilhemina Hawkins, a club member, and is one of her state prize winners of the Barred Rock variety. Her name is June M. and she was one year old on April 11, 1918. She had laid 124 eggs to that date. When she was six months and five days old she had laid 14 eggs, 11 of which were set, and all hatched, bringing out ten pullets and one cockerel. One of these pullets laid her first egg when she was four months and five days old. She has laid every day since. It is a race now between the mother and daughter for breaking the record in egg production, for while the old hen has done wonderfully well, her daughter has nearly two months' start on her at the beginning of laying age, and at the rate the latter is going she is evidently endeavoring to push her patriotic mother down in the honor roll."

Farming is a Business.

Large numbers of farmers have more money invested in their business than the business men in their county seat town have invested in their stores. Farmers are slowly coming to realize the truth of this comparison and that farming is a business, in connection with which business methods must be used.

GIVE CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS AT ONCE IF BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour-bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

Tom the Talker

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Associates who underestimated the actual ability of Tom Brattle said that the only reason why he had forged ahead from the past of least of all office boys in the sales department of the Universal Chopping Bowl company to the post of head of that department was no; because of any superior knowledge of the psychology of people who wanted to buy chopping bowls wholesale or because of any personal magnetism, but because his tongue wagged like a woman's. Tom Brattle had the knack of talking fast and furious, but then Tom was one son among five daughters in a family that consisted of five or six maiden aunts and a grandmother and great-aunt and—well, Tom had learned that if he wanted to make himself heard to the end the only thing was to talk fast and leave no chinks in the conversational structure. If he did some one else would get a wedge in. And Tom had also noticed in those days when he filled the ink wells and bought sandwiches from the delicatessen for the "boss," Mr. Dawson, on busy days, that the salesmen who got the largest orders for chopping bowls from customers who came into the office were those who kept the possible buyer from raising any objection to the brand of chopping bowls that the Universal put out.

The Universal sales department, like every other department in every other concern, felt the effect of the increased demand for women to take the place of enlisted men, and the only solution seemed to be, when matters were at their worst, to enlist recruits from the number of wives and sisters and relatives of the well-to-do members of the concern who could not normally be gainfully employed. Tom's sisters were employed and so were his aunts, but when he wanted to get a new girl for the switchboard in the sales department he made his wants known to the heads of the concern, and the very recently acquired wife of one of the sons of the president of the concern was suggested as a candidate. She had caught the fever of general usefulness, and having no business asset but a pleasing voice, had been promised the first vacancy as telephone operator, which happened to be in Tom's department.

And this suited Tom immensely. Because Tom had a theory that a telephone operator was one of the most important personalities about any office, especially a sales office. She did more talking than any of the other girls employed, and talking, in Tom's estimation, was an important thing. And the girls in his office had rather looked down upon the post of telephone operator. When the regular girl for that job was on vacations or off at lunch they handled the wires condescendingly. To them it was a matter of minor consequence. So when the daughter-in-law of the president of the concern was coming to manage the switchboard, Tom felt that this would put a new light on the job of switchboard operating. It would lend it tone and show the girls just how important it was.

Then the morning that the young Mrs. Dawson was coming, Mr. Dawson phoned in to say that Mrs. Dawson had backed out. She had found that it would interfere with her "at home." She hadn't realized that she would have to be there every day, and so—

Then Tom began to talk, and he talked fast and furiously, even though he was talking to the son of the president, and having hung up the receiver he sent to an agency for a telephone operator of the best type. He offered to pay her more than even he felt telephone operators were worth, because he felt now that having assured the stenographers and other girls in the office that so important a personage as Mrs. Dawson was going to take the job, he could not retreat so far as to get the usual run of a half-hearted, listless girl for the work.

Tom seldom encountered deception, but this time it was necessary; so when he found a pleasing young woman in businesslike apparel waiting to see him in the outer office, and she began by saying that she believed they wanted a telephone operator, Tom let her get no further, but told her on the spot, in an undertone, that she looked as if she would do, but that she would have to bluff it out as the daughter of the president and consent to be called Miss Dawson, and conduct herself as nearly as it was possible for her to do, as the daughter of the president of a chopping bowl concern would conduct herself.

"But you see—" began the applicant.

"That is quite all right," Tom rattled on. "You're an intelligent young woman, and you can manage; and none of these girls know anything about the family of Mr. Dawson. So it is settled, and if you'll please take off your hat and coat at once, I'll have your name put on the payroll immediately."

"But I was going to say—"

"If you don't understand this heard one of the girls will show you," Tom anticipated. "It isn't that they don't know how," he explained, "it's that they don't think it's worth while. That's why I wanted them to think that we had one of the Dawsons on the job. Tell them, if they ask, that Mrs. Dawson decided not to come, but that you came instead." And Tom hurried back to his office, bent on talking a flowing line of enthusiasm concerning the merits of the Dawson chopping bowls into his dictaphone. No stenographer could keep up with him.

Now, temperamentally Tom was not a fast talker. It was an acquired habit, and his idea of a happy home to go to after working hours was a home where there were not five sisters and aunts and things, and where one could talk as slowly or as little as one chose. It was because he had so often thought how restful such a home would be that he began to think about matrimony, and with matrimony on his mind and so thoroughly delighted a young woman as the new telephone operator in one's office, no one with Tom's preference for round blue eyes and smooth brown hair and a gentle, persuasive feminine voice could long stay out of love. But though Tom could talk chopping bowls and other business matters fluently enough, when it came to telling this young lady of his state of mind and heart his linguistic talents forsook him. But he went on dreaming and even priced household furniture and consulted a real estate agent or so regarding small apartments.

Sometimes he got some small consolation in telling other people what a wonderful telephone operator he had, and expounding his theory that it paid to have a really first-class girl on that end of the work. He even told the president's son, Mr. Dawson, of this theory.

"But you know," began Mr. Dawson, "that young woman didn't come from the agency; you see—"

"She didn't come from the agency?"

"No," said Dawson; "you didn't give me a chance to explain, and you didn't give her a chance, either. You see, Mrs. Dawson—"

Tom swallowed hard, and it seemed as if the sun went into a temporary eclipse. "I congratulate you on a rare treasure," he gulped. "She is wonderful."

"She has a high opinion of you, too," said Mr. Dawson, and somehow Tom thought this was an especially inappropriate remark. He didn't want to be thought well of by the woman he had loved in vain. He would rather have her detest him, now that he knew she was married.

"We'd like to have you come to dinner some time—make up a little family party," said young Dawson, and somehow the conversation closed here, and Tom went back to his office to talk chopping bowls to his dictaphone, but the words would not come. In fact for days and even weeks Tom lost his power of gab, and sales went down and business began to slump. He was working his ingenuity overtime trying to think of a way to get the charming Mrs. Dawson out of his office. Instead of seeming like a nice, straightforward, round, blue-eyed girl as she had seemed, she was a vampire in disguise to him now, and every time she beamed on him as he came and went, he imagined cruel thoughts lurking beneath the sweet charm of the smile.

"Billy wants me to get you to come home for dinner some time with us," she said to him one day. "You have been so cross lately I wouldn't ask you. Only we were such good friends to begin with before you knew I was a Dawson, and I don't approve of letting misunderstandings creep up between friends in that way."

And poor Tom accepted for dinner that very night and the blue-eyed young woman telephoned home to some one named Nora—the cook, of course—that she would bring him home for dinner and please have mushrooms and beefsteak, for she had heard him say once that he liked them. When 5:30 came and it was time to go Tom waited for young Bill Dawson.

"Won't your husband call for us here?" he said, and then as the blue eyes drew up in a pucker of questioning—"Yes, Mr. Bill Dawson, your husband—"

"Why, Bill's my brother," said the girl, and though it was late on a dull afternoon, the sun came out of a cloud and the whole world was suffused with happiness for Tom.

"You see, you didn't give me a chance to explain. Nora, Bill's wife, backed out, and I took the job instead. I came that day to ask if I'd do, but you didn't give me a chance to say a word." She looked him frankly out of those round eyes. "Tom, you've been so kind and miserable lately," and she actually took his hand in her two and he had to hold on to the desk with the other to keep from floating into the seventh heaven. "Tom, has it been because you thought I was married—has it been because you cared?"

And Tom, the man with the tongue that was hung in the middle, couldn't do more than gasp a meager "yes."

How It Came About.

"The worst winter I remember was when we were besieged," said the old soldier. "We had only one bite a day for two weeks and that was horse-flesh."

"I remember," said Pat O'Brien, his companion, "living for a month on one bite, and that was cut of my leg."

"You old cannibal! Do you expect me to believe that?" roared the soldier.

THE MAKING OF A FAMOUS MEDICINE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Is Prepared For Woman's Use.

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attends the making of this great medicine for women's ills.

Over 350,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs.

Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterile bottles.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which we are continually publishing attest to its virtue.

Residents of Desolate Pitcairn Island Get Mail and Supplies From the United States.

Thanks to the kindly impulses of Col. George Moran, manager of the United States and Australasia Steamship company and of the steamship Austrian of that line, Bounty Bay, Pitcairn Island, received its first regular mail delivery from the United States, says Christian Science Monitor.

More than that, the vessel named took on a cargo of clothing, tools, merchandise for the comfort and advancement of perhaps the most isolated insular population on the face of the globe. Many things will be embraced in the cargo with which the islanders are wholly unacquainted, but nothing will be discharged that is likely to injure them morally. It may serve to shed some light on the simple life of the descendants of John Adams to say that among the merchandise is a stock of candles, and that these articles are expected to revolutionize the lighting system of Pitcairn, which is based on home-made wicks placed in shells filled with coconut oil. The history of Pitcairn island is at once a tale of bold adventure, mutiny, tragedy, comedy, and social experiment, all rolled into one. No possible human condition has seemed more attractive to many people endowed with imagination than that of being cast upon a lone island and forced to make one's way against every possible obstacle. It is the infatigable possibilities of the situation that for centuries have made tales of shipwreck fascinating to millions; that have made the story of Robinson Crusoe a classic, and that enchain to this hour the interest of young people and adults in stories of the sea.

Very Much So.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Captain Roosevelt is dead and the nation mourns his passing. For more than thirty years he had been active in public life and had a wider acquaintance than perhaps the strongest personal following of any man in American history. Whatever he did he did with sturdiness and promptness, whether it was chasing the wild beast in Africa, running a ranch in Dakota, following the fortunes of a soldier of guiding the ship of state.

Born of a distinguished and aristocratic family, yet he was one of the most approachable men, as the lowliest in the land testify. Personal contact created friends for him and, regardless of political views, those friends honored and admired him.

He was a man of strong opinions and as a result he made staunch friends and bitter enemies. But above all political differences—which, of necessity exist in a government like ours—his sturdy Americanism, his unyielding patriotism endeared him to the hearts of his countrymen, and in the trying period just passed his pen and his voice were always for true Americanism, without taint and without comfort to our enemies at home and abroad. Many Americans, naturally, differed with his manner and method, but none questioned his patriotism; and it was thus he gained a still stronger hold on his countrymen.

As citizen, soldier, statesman and patriot his name will loom large in American history.

The Work That Is Yet To Be Done

A casual glance at the headlines in the newspapers these days, followed by a little reflection, is sufficient to show the need of Red Cross work in the years of the new peace, says the Red Cross Bulletin. The magnitude of the situation which faces the armies of mercy would be staggering if the senses of mankind had not been more or less numbed by the succession of shocks that four years of carnage have supplied.

With the return of reason to something like normal the idea is growing that a world made safe for democracy must also be made safe from physical misery and distress, to the limit of human power. The health of the world suddenly has taken on an importance with the peace of the world. The whole habitable globe still is suffering from an epidemic that is claiming a toll comparable with the casualties of the greatest war. Relief for the suffering from all causes—war and plague, and disaster of all sorts—must continue to be one of the main things to occupy the attention of civilization in the coming years.

The war has been a great training school. And its lessons have been two-fold with respect to the relief side of the equation. Such wonders as have been accomplished in the name of mercy, while brightness was wreaking its vengeance on the earth, have shown the unlimited possibilities of humanitarian effort along whatever line directed. That is one lesson. The other is the duty of mankind to give more systematic attention than ever before to the welfare of its fellows. These lessons have formed the underlying inspiration for the American Red Cross movement for universal membership, which has had its grand initiation in the Christmas Roll Call of last December.

As far as the Red Cross organ-

Returning Soldiers Merit
A "Practical" Welcome

W. P. Robinson, associate director of the Bureau of Military Relief, has sent the following to all chapters in the Mountain division.

"We are today in receipt of a letter from the Bureau of Camp Service at Washington headquarters, in which they ask that all attention be given to men who are returning from overseas, and who may be in need of some help from the Red Cross, in the way of clothing or other comforts. The letter is as follows:

"We are hearing from many sources at the high regard and even affection which the enlisted men and officers of the American Expeditionary Forces express for the Red Cross. We also hear that many soldiers, returning from overseas lack clothing and other comforts, which for some reason have not been provided for them. The Red Cross organization in this country must live up to the high reputation made by the foreign organization, and it will meet with the approval of this office for the division offices to adopt a liberal attitude in providing for the requirements of returned men."

"We will thank you very much indeed to cooperate with the division office in this matter, and render all assistance."

ization is concerned, no time is being lost during the war-peace transition period in preparing for the obvious permanent needs of the future.

There is in prospect a development of the Red Cross movement throughout the world on even broader lines than the war developed, ready for any future emergency, as well as equipped to carry on the work already inherited.

Building Material

We have just been informed that no permit from any Government official is now necessary to make farm improvements not to exceed $10,000.00 as decided by the War Industries Board on Nov. 10th.

This also applies to buildings in towns and cities; therefore farmers, ranchmen and others can now make such improvements as desired up to this amount, unhindered.

This practically puts us back to where we were before the war.

We have a huge stock of building material. Let the wheels of commerce roll over more.

Nine Years' Taxes and Where Money Is Used

According to figures compiled by the Taxpayers' Association of New Mexico the amounts following show the assessed valuation of the property in this state for nine years to be as follows:

1910	878,313,136
1911	60,048,881
1912	72,457,454
1913	84,086,513
1914	89,203,939
1915	316,969,448
1916	330,315,568
1917	358,502,026
1918	380,000,000

The amount for the last year being approximated. Previous to 1915, it should be remembered, the valuations were on about one-third basis.

The state levies for the years 1912-1918, not including county, school district and municipal levies, were as follows:

1912	.0135	1916	.00365
1913	.0136	1917	.0034
1914	.0136	1918	.00325
1915	.00395

These levies do not include special state levies on livestock.

The amounts expended with these state levies for the years 1912-1918 were as follows:

1912	$978,175.63
1913	1,143,576.64
1914	1,034,765.69
1915	1,248,474.32
1916	1,298,651.82
1917	1,935,910.94
1918	1,995,000.00

The figure for the last year being a conservative estimate.

The total amounts levied, 1910-1918, for state, county, school district and municipal levies were as follows:

1910	$3,407,430.00
1911 (estimate)	3,500,000.00
1912	3,595,748.75

Rush Garments

All individual members of the Lincoln County Chapter, A. R. G., all branches and individual members thereof, are earnestly requested to have all finished refugee garments in the chapter work room, Carrizozo, by January 25.

This is a rush order and to be serviceable the finished garments must be in Denver by February 1. We feel that the women of Lincoln county will make good on this urgency call, but the chapter is anxious that every member shall know the immediate and pending necessity.

1913	4,389,848.95
1914	5,990,759.61
1915	4,239,865.75
1916	4,376,749.26
1917	6,254,655.09
1918 (estimated)	6,796,154.81

Of the $6,254,655.09 levied in 1917, $414,402.97 was levied for municipalities, that is for general city purposes and for interest and sinking funds, or 5 per cent of the total; $1,091,560.95 for general county purposes, or 17.5 per cent of the total including interest and sinking fund levies, but not including roads and schools; $79,983.83 or 1.15 per cent, for county special funds; $780,277.14, or 12.5 per cent, for general state purposes including interest and sinking fund levies, but not including roads, schools and educational institutions or war purposes; $144,454.37, or 2.3 per cent, for war purposes; $2,815,597.98, or 45 per cent, for schools and educational purposes including county, school district and state levies and state appropriations for educational institutions; $982,550.69 for roads, including county and state levies. These same proportions apply approximately for the years 1916 and 1918.

The foregoing figures apply to taxes only and do not include receipts from other sources, which would indicate considerably larger revenues. These figures, however, measure the tax burdens for the years given.

Additional compilations are in preparation to complete a ten year record.

A. H. Hilton Killed

The many old friends of A. H. Hilton were shocked when they learned that he had met death in an automobile accident near San Marcial the third of this month. Mr. Hilton was almost as well known in Lincoln county as in Socorro county, where he had lived for more than a third of a century. He was always a great friend of Lincoln county and interested himself in everything that would advance its interests. Peace to his ashes.

All repair work guaranteed at Western Garage.

Government to Auction Many Horses and Mules

From January 14 to 28 the Remount Depot at Fort Bliss, Texas, will sell at public auction 1200 head of army horses and mules. The sale includes cavalry horses, artillery horses, draft mules and pack mules, and a certain per cent of each class will be offered for sale each day for the period named.

These animals are all sound and serviceable and fit for army use and are to be sold because they are in excess of the number that will be required after demobilization. No condemned stock is to be sold at these sales. Halter and shank will be included with each animal.

For further information communicate with Major D. M. Speed, Remount Depot, Fort Bliss, Tex.

The foregoing figures apply to taxes only and do not include receipts from other sources, which would indicate considerably larger revenues. These figures, however, measure the tax burdens for the years given.

Additional compilations are in preparation to complete a ten year record.

Lands Opened For Filing January 21

Under date of January 6th notice has been issued by the officers of the Roswell land office that there has been received in that office, for filing, the approved plats of the official survey of the following townships:

Township 4 South of Range 13 East.
Township 5 South of Range 11 East.
Township 5 South of Range 13 East.
Township 6 South of Range 17 East.
Township 8 South of Range 9 East.
Township 9 South of Range 14 East; N. M. P. M.

The said plats will be officially filed at 9 o'clock a. m. February 10, 1919, at which time the land in said townships will become subject to entry.

Applications to enter or select land in said townships, when accompanied by the required fees and commissions, will be accepted by the land office on and after January 21, 1919, but all such applications received before the time of filing said plats will be held and considered as if filed simultaneously with those presented at the hour of filing said plats.

The notification that the lands are to be opened to entry is made by Register Emmett Patton and Receiver W. G. Cowan, of the Roswell land office.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

"You knew where Mrs. Green was in the middle of the afternoon," raged Bopp, turning on me. "and you didn't tell me, but let me tramp my feet off looking for her? Here I am, dying of weariness and lack of sleep, when a word might have saved me."

Kent stroled in.

"Ray, Mr. Bopp," he said curiously, "will you tell me one thing?"

"Why, certainly."

"How did you ever come to find that shelf on the cliff where you were sleeping all the afternoon? I passed you a dozen times, and I'd never have seen you at all if I hadn't heard you snore."

Vida came in carrying a pair of shoes, a coat, a pair of trousers and a hat.

"He's gone," she said briefly. "As soon as he saw me coming he dived into the lake and swam off rapidly. He looked back from time to time."

"He was afraid you would swim after him," I explained. "Are you in the market for old clothes?" I indicated her burden.

"No; these are his. He left them on the bank, and I thought I might as well bring them in. I suppose he will be killed."

"Who?" asked Lucile and Bopp.

"Mr. Clair," Vida answered. "He is trying to reach the mainland by swimming."

"Oh, the brave fellow!" Lucile exclaimed. "He is risking his life to get supplies to us. To think that I didn't like him very well at first!"

I explained gently that if Mr. Clair ever reached the shore, which was very doubtful, he would probably never think of us again.

"I wish I knew where Tootles is," worried Lucile.

"She must be in the house," Vida said.

"I've looked everywhere," Lucile declared despondently.

"But she is such a little doggie," Vida insisted. "Is there an unfinished part of the house in the attic where she might get in under the floor or between the inner and outer walls?"

"Why, yes, there's an attic," admitted Lucile, encouraged.

We all mounted the stairs.

"I'll whistle," Lucile said, "and then we'll be just as quiet as possible. If she's here she'll answer me."

"Answer you? Can she whistle, too?" asked Jim, the frying pan engineer.

"No, of course not. When I whistle, she's alive she'll whine and bark."

"Shut up, Jim," said Lucile, and she commanded Captain Perkins. "I never knew but one girl who could whistle good, and after a dentist pulled one of her front teeth she couldn't any more."

"Sh!" Vida said, laying a hand on the seadog's arm.

After a pause Jim asked, "Why don't she whistle?"

"She's tryin' to," explained the captain, who correctly interpreted the faint hissing sound came from Lucile's puckered lips.

CHAPTER XII.
"Oh, My Poor Tootles."

"MAYBE if you tried again," said the captain to Lucile. "The pup might hear you. You didn't whistle very loud the first time."

Lucile whistled again with a considerably more audible result. We all listened.

There was a faint whine and a short, sharp, but distant bark. I presume that I was the most surprised person in the party.

"There she is!" Vida declared. "I thought maybe she was up here."

"But that doesn't sound like Tootles," Lucile objected.

"It must be," Bopp announced this masterpiece of logic. "There isn't any other dog in the house, is there? Probably her voice sounds different far off."

"And probably she is penned in somewhere and frightened. That might make her sound different." Ah! Why did I have that idea, and why, having it, did I not conceal it in one of the recesses of my brain instead of voicing it to all?

"Oh, my poor Tootles," Lucile began picturing her pet suffocating. "Maybe she is dying or dead already."

"Whistle again," directed the captain.

Lucile made several ineffectual attempts, but failed. "I can't," she declared. "I have to cry."

"Let me call her," I interposed. "She knows me."

As a boy I used to be able to make considerable racket by blowing on two fingers held at the proper angle in my mouth. I tried it with gratifying results. I must have been heard on the mainland.

The reply was immediate—short, snappy barks, still a long way off, but very reassuring as to vigor and delight.

"She's right under us!" Lucile cried.

"No, over by the window. I should say," argued Vida.

"Poor darling, she has forgotten how she got into the place, and she thinks some one is keeping her cooped up on purpose. Please, Monty, keep on whistling. She does recognize you, and she'll know that help is coming. We must take up the floor."

In her excitement and time of need she had turned to me and not to Bopp. I didn't know how Tootles, whom I had last seen dashing up the bench amid a cloud of sand, could possibly have managed to get under the attic floor, but Lucile had called me Monty, and reason dismounted from her throne, and I whistled blithely, piercingly, joyfully, coaxingly, and whenever I paused the barking rewarded me.

"Tear up the floor," Lucile ordered. "We can't let her stay there any longer."

"Hain't we better see if she won't come out by herself?" the captain asked tentatively. "It seems a shame to tear up that there plankin'."

"Not for Tootles," Lucile replied. "What do I care for an old attic floor when my Tootles is in danger? She ain't stay there another minute if I can help it." She tried to pry up a board with her finger nails.

"Wait," I requested. "Let me do this scientifically."

I wrenched a leg from an old arm-chair which had already suffered the amputation of one of its extremities and with that as a lever pried up one of the flooring boards at the ends which extended loose over the floor beams. As the plank came up amid a cloud of dust Lucile gave me a look such as must have rewarded Launcelot from the grandstand after he ran a curtain pole through a cast iron white hoop.

We assembled around the hole I had made. No Tootles in sight.

"Whistle," Lucile commanded me. I obeyed.

Joyful barks, but nothing more.

"Take up some more boards," Lucile might have been saying. "Wait until you see the whites of their eyes" or "Don't give up the ship."

"Hain't we better wait?" Captain Perkins was an earnest advocate of the Fabian policy.

"No."

I took up another board and yet another, stopping to whistle each time, without apparently getting any nearer. "She's there somewhere," declared Tootles' foster mother, panted, but still determined. "Keep on until you find her."

I had taken up all but half a dozen of the boards when my foot slipped from the cross floor beam on which I was working and struck the lath which was nailed on the other side.

The lath offered but slight resistance. The plaster was even more fragile, and I went through rather hastily, clutching wildly at nothing in particular. My last recollection was of Lucile's horror-stricken face as she saw me sinking from sight, like the villain in "Lorna Doone."

My next conscious remembrance was of sitting flat in the middle of a bed, the springs of which were gently bouncing me up and down after the fashion of a net into which a trapeze performer had dropped from the top of the tent. Above was a hole in the ceiling, around me were chunks of plaster and splinters of lath, and sitting in a chair by the window was Jim, his mouth open, emitting a series of short, sharp yelps.

Lucile, Vida, Bopp, Kent and the captain made a ring of faces around the hole in the ceiling.

"Stop barking, you darn fool!" shouted the captain after a moment devoted to startled surprise by all concerned.

"Aye, aye, sir!" replied Jim, saluting.

"Then it wasn't Tootles at all," Lucile was overwhelmed by grief that was all the more poignant because it had been held off so long by hope.

"You have to admit that Jim is as all around bright young fellow," declared the captain proudly. "It ain't often you can find a marine engineer who can cook and do as good an imitation of a dog as that."

I Went Through Rather Hastily.

"But why," I fixed the captain with a malevolent eye—"why did he imitate a dog at this particular moment? What is the cause of this character study of a canine under a floor? Why not a dog-out in the yard chasing his tail or a Newfoundland pup having an argument with a dilapidated shoe?"

"Why, this was a little idea of my own," stated Captain Perkins modestly. "When I see Miss Green was going to be all broke up if nothing answered when she whistled I told Jim there to go downstairs and pretend to be the pup, just so she'd feel better."

"What I want to know, Mr. Blainey," Jim asked, with a brightly inquiring eye, "is how did you know just where that bed was?"

"I know where I saw that dog last," exclaimed Kent as one inspired.

"Where?" Lucile turned to him.

"He was outdoors hittin' the breeze this afternoon."

"Outdoors? She isn't allowed out. What was she doing?"

"She was vamping up the beach, and Mr. Blainey was running after her."

Guilt seeks out the criminal and fastens her brand upon him publicly. Policemen are but jailers. Detectives are only men who let nature do their work for them.

There was a nasty staccato laugh. I did not need to look to know that it was Bopp.

"Mr. Kent seems to have a very observant mind," he said.

Lucile looked at me reproachfully. "Is this true?" she asked.

"Yes," George Washington could have done no more.

"You didn't catch her?"

"No."

Nothing more was to be said. I had been tried, convicted and sentenced.

The telephone rang. Lucile went to answer it. The rest of us followed more at our leisure. When we had arrived downstairs Lucile was talking to some one over the wire, evidently her mother.

"I'm glad you're all right," she was saying, "and that you have had something to eat. Don't feel badly about breaking the fast. No one blames you a bit. That's all right. We would, too, if we could."

A pause, during which she listened, a frown gathering on her face.

"Don't you worry, mother. We're all right—all except Tootles. She is lost. What's the matter? You saw some one outside in the moonlight? A man with whiskers? Nonsense. No one lives here at this time of year. Everybody left in September. Just go to bed and don't think about such things."

THE HENNERY.

"Cock-a-doodle-do," said Mr. Rooster. "I am glad I don't belong to a hennery."

"What in the world is a hennery?" asked Mrs. White Hen.

"Cock-a-doodle-do, cock-a-doodle-do," said Mr. Rooster again. "Well, that is the biggest joke I ever heard in all my life."

"It's quite the funniest question, and it's quite the biggest joke. In fact I could go on saying it was the biggest joke I had ever heard for ever and ever so long and I wouldn't make any mistake in saying so."

"You wouldn't be making the joke any bigger by saying so," remarked Mrs. White Hen.

"Maybe not," said Mr. Rooster, "but I wouldn't be making it any smaller. Jokes don't grow smaller."

"Oh, don't they?" chuckled Mrs. White Hen. "Of course they do! A joke will sometimes sound quite funny the first time it is heard, less funny the second time and not at all funny the third time."

"Oh, indeed?" said Mr. Rooster. He was quite the biggest rooster which could be seen anywhere, and if he had said he was the biggest rooster instead of talking about the biggest joke not a creature would have spoken.

"Yes," said Mrs. White Hen, "some jokes are very stupid after they have been told more than once, and again there is a joke, once in a great while, which can be thought about and thought about and still considered funny."

"That's the kind this is," said Mr. Rooster, and he laughed once again.

"Then you'd better tell it to me," said Mrs. White Hen.

"I do believe I will," said Mr. Rooster. "Please promise me that it won't hurt your feelings."

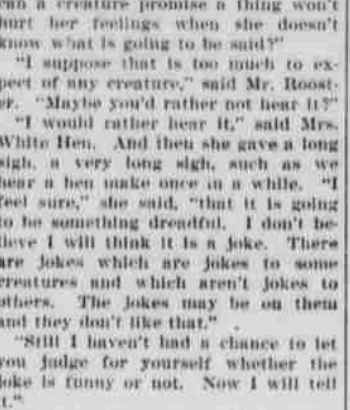

"I promise," said Mrs. White Hen, "that I won't scold you if it does. How can a creature promise a thing won't hurt her feelings when she doesn't know what is going to be said?"

"I suppose that is too much to expect of any creature," said Mr. Rooster. "Maybe you'd rather not hear it?"

"I would rather hear it," said Mrs. White Hen. And then she gave a long sigh, a very long sigh, such as we hear a hen make once in a while. "I feel sure," she said, "that it is going to be something dreadful. I don't believe I will think it is a joke. There are jokes which are jokes to some creatures and which aren't jokes to others. The jokes may be on them and they don't like that."

"Still I haven't had a chance to let you judge for yourself whether the joke is funny or not. Now I will tell it."

"Go ahead," chuckled Mrs. White Hen. And by this time all the roosters and all the hens and all the chickens of the hennery had stopped to listen to Mr. Rooster's joke.

"Well," said Mr. Rooster, "a hennery is a place for hens. And I wouldn't like to belong to a hennery."

"What's the joke in that?" asked Mrs. White Hen. "I consider it a very rude speech and not in the least funny."

"I don't mean to be rude," said Mr. Rooster. "For I think all the Mrs. Hens are quite charming and I am always glad to pull up worms for them and give them goodies to eat. No one can say I'm not a nice, polite rooster."

"That is so," agreed Mrs. White Hen.

"What I meant was that I wouldn't like to be without some of my rooster friends. No Mr. Rooster would like to be without other rooster playmates, any more than a boy would like to be without other boy playmates."

"Now that I see it your way I understand you didn't mean to be rude," said Mrs. White Hen. "But what was the joke? Where was it hidden?"

"Oh, the joke was that you didn't know what a hennery was and you are a hen!" said Mr. Rooster.

"Well, that was quite funny," said Mrs. White Hen.

"That's about all I think of it now," said Mr. Rooster. "For it is as you say, a joke is not so much of a joke when thought about too much as a rule. But I didn't mean to be rude and I so hoped you would not misunderstand me."

"I'm not angry, nor am I hurt," chuckled Mrs. White Hen pleasantly.

Be a Treat for Him.

Horrified Old Lady—Tut, tut, little boy; what in the world would your father say if he heard you use such language?

Little Boy—Gosh, he'd be tickled to death, lady. He's as deaf as a post.

THE REASON.

It seemed that when Rastus and Sam died they took different routes; so when the latter got to heaven he called Rastus on the phone.

"Rastus," he said, "how ya' like it down there?"

"Oh, boy! Dis here am some place," replied Rastus. "All we has ter do is wear a red suit wid horns, an' every now an' den shovel some coal on de fire. We don't work no more dan two hours out ob de twenty-four down here. But tell me, Sam, how is it with you up yonder?"

"Mah goodness! We has to git up at fo' o'clock in de mawnin' an' githah in de stahs; den we has to haul in de moon and hang out de sun. Den we has ter roll de clouds aroun' all day long."

"But, Sam, how come it y' has ter work so hard?"

"Well, to tell de truf, Rastus, we's kin' o' short on help up here."

A Diplomat.

Miss Strongarm—I'll show you you can't fire me that way even if I do spell a few words wrong an' get bailed up in my notes sometimes.

Mr. Lattinlock—My dear lady, you have the wrong idea. I am releasing you merely because I have a very jealous wife and she won't allow me to have a beautiful stenographer in my office.

A Drawback.

Dusty—Let's go to South America. Coconuts and bananas tuh he had all over 'er place for nothin'.

Musty—Do yuh have tuh pick 'em?

Dusty—Sure.

Musty—Huh! I know there'd be some catch in it.

"And I took as much trouble. If you don't eat it I'll cry my eyes out."

"All right. Whatever I do, I can't escape blubber."

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

A small bottle of "Danderine" makes hair thick, glossy and wavy.

Removes all dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—it costs but a few cents—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes, but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp, and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty nice soft hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this. Adv.

Had Two Mouths to Feed.

Richard Butler Glaesner, New York essayist and critic at the Players' club:

"Poetry is delightful. But poets are so poorly paid. I know a rich man who has a beautiful golden-haired stenographer. The girl said to her employer the other day:

"I am going to get married, sir. And I am going to marry a poet."

"Dear me," said the wealthy man. "Then you will leave us, eh?"

"No, sir," she replied. "I shall not leave you, but I shall need more pay."

To be trusted is often a greater compliment than to be loved.

Your Labor Counts—every ounce of work you do helps some soldier! This war was fought as truly in the household and in the workshop as it was in the trenches.

Some of our American women are borne down physically and mentally, by the weaknesses of their sex. They suffer from backache, dragging sensation, bearing-down pains, very nervous and pain in top of head. If they ask their neighbors they will be told to take a Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce's which has been so well and favorably known for the past half century.

Weak women should try it now. Don't wait! Today is the day to begin. This temperance tonic and nerve will bring vim, vigor and vitality. Send Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 10c for trial pkg. tablets.

Fluffy, Cute—"I advise all women who dread motherhood to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took two bottles of the 'Prescription' before my baby girl came and I was sick only a short time. Then before my boy arrived I took three bottles each of the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and I got along fine again."

"When I wish any advice I write Dr. Pierce, and always receive a reply shortly."

"I highly recommend Dr. Pierce's medicine to all suffering women. I hope these few lines will encourage many to give these medicines a fair trial. I have induced one of my friends to do so and she was greatly pleased with the result."

GOOD NEWS

Lady in Texas Tells How She Regained and Keeps Her Health.

Every household should have it and all the time a dependable remedy with which to fight catarrh and other ailments.

The experience of Mrs. M. E. Berkley, No. 1522 27th St., Galveston, Tex., is not unique, but her letter does carry a vigorous "safety first" suggestion to every American home: "I wish to tell you of the good Peruna has been to me. I have used it five years and have never found it other than satisfactory as a remedy for colds, catarrh, indigestion and many other ailments. I am never without Peruna."

Coughs, colds, catarrh, grip and influenza cannot safely be neglected. Any disease due to catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining, whether of the nasal passages, throat, lungs, stomach, bowels, kidneys, bladder or other organs, is to be feared. Catarrh is always a menace to the general health and on account of its prevalence must be fought and fought hard all the time.

Thousands place their entire dependence upon the well-known time-tried remedy, Peruna. Dr. Hartmann began selling Peruna for catarrh forty-five years ago. Try Peruna first and avoid possible disappointment and expense.

Tablet or liquid form. Sold everywhere.

Acid-Stomach Ruins Health of Millions

Besides those painful attacks of indigestion, that awful bloated, lumpy feeling after eating and downright stomach misery that you who have experienced it know so well; besides disgusting belching, food-repelling, sour stomach and distressing heartburn—besides all this, ACID-STOMACH undermines the health and saps the strength of millions.

If you don't get rid of those stomach miseries there is no telling where your stomach troubles will end, for it is a well known scientific fact that many serious ailments have their start in an acid-stomach.

Start now—this very day to get rid of your stomach miseries—take EATONIC—the wonderful remedy that absorbs the excess acid from the stomach and brings INSTANT relief. You simply have no idea how much better, stronger and brighter you feel at once. It drives out all the gas and bloating, puts an immediate stop to belching and heartburn, ends stomach suffering and makes it cool, sweet, comfortable and strong.

There can be no further excuse for you to allow acid-stomach to wreck your health—pile up misery upon misery until you get to the point where you feel down and out and that life has lost all its joys. Remember, just as acid-stomach ruins teeth, so acid-stomach ruins health.

Take EATONIC. It's good, just like a bit of candy and makes the stomach feel fine. You can then eat the things you like and, what is more, every mouthful you eat will count in creating power and energy. You'll feel so much better—have punch and pep—the power and will to do things and get results, and your stomach misery will be gone.

Take our advice. Get a big box of EATONIC from your druggist today. It costs so little. If it fails to remove your stomach distress, he will refund your money. That is guaranteed, you are to be satisfied or money refunded.

FEED BONES OF SERBS TO DOGS

Cold-Blooded Butchery by Bulgarians Without Parallel in History.

LEADERS ARE SLAUGHTERED

Attempt to Exterminate National Spirit of Serbia by Killing Off All Thought Capable of Maintaining It.

WARD PRICE

In the Chicago Tribune.

Vranja, Serbia.—Here is a story of cold-blooded butchery perhaps without equal even in this war. It is the tale of a deliberate, systematic effort by the Bulgarians extending over three months to exterminate the national spirit of Serbia by killing everyone in the parts of the country they occupied whom they thought capable of maintaining it.

I have gathered the facts from many different sources and the information and evidence establish Bulgarian guilt beyond all doubt.

After installing Bulgarian mayors, bishops, tax collectors and military police the Bulgarians arrested in every town and village all the men who belonged to what may be called the intellectual class. They chose parliamentary deputies, judges, teachers, lawyers, priests and employers of labor, formed them into gangs and marched them away.

3,000 Sent to Slaughter.

Men numbering at least 3,000 from the towns and villages of the Vranja region alone were taken in detachments of about fifty at a time to a place which the Bulgarians chose as their slaughter house, and there every night one party after another from December, 1915, to March, 1916, had their throats cut or were stabbed to death.

One village whose name the Bulgarians have made terrible is a small place called Sarduliza, 20 miles northwest of Vranja, near the Bulgarian frontier. I went there and saw the bones, the graves and surviving relatives of 2,500 victims of Bulgarian savagery who there met their end.

They were locked up in houses which I saw, and then at night marched down a gully tied four or five together with ropes, they were stabbed or bayoneted to death and buried where they lay by local gypsies collected for the work by the Bulgarians. Graves of hundreds of them were

GRAVESWELL MARKED

French Guard Last Resting Places of Yanks.

Americans Will Have No Difficulty in Finding Graves of Relatives.

Paris.—Americans will have no trouble in finding the graves of relatives who fell on the field of battle in France, after they obtain from the graves registry bureau the location of the internment.

The French are taking excellent care of the last resting places of Americans. Crosses with name plates have been erected over the burial places of every identified man that has fallen.

Usually the steel helmet of the man—and it generally has his name written on the helmet—has been placed on the grave, together with his bayonet, thrust into the earth as a sort of foot stone. Often his canteen shown to me. Moldy human bones were still lying about in a little muddy stream bed where on one winter's night after another the slaughter was carried out.

Every night the peasants of Sarduliza, who were forbidden to leave their houses after sunset, heard men's screams coming from a nearby wood. The following morning fierce village dogs would bring into the streets human arms and even heads, which they tore off the bodies of the murdered men.

At Ushesive, a hamlet to the north of Vranja, 120 men, women and children—the entire population—were killed in one day.

At Vladitchi all the women were col-

DISCOVERED A PNEUMONIA VACCINE

ARMY LOUSE ROUTED

American Army the Most Sanitary in the World.

Hot Baths and Clean Underwear Rid Them of Louse Common to Soldier.

Paris.—The American army in France is the most sanitary in the world. The discovery that the louse was the carrier of trench fever and that scabies—the seven-year's itch of Bible fame—and other skin diseases are conspicuously reduced by cleanliness led the army staff to take measures to rid the Yankee soldiers of these evils. It was decided that clean underclothes and frequent baths would make the Yank immune from many of the ills common to the soldier in France. General Pershing ordered that his army be equipped with efficient facilities to insure every man in the army a change of clothing and a bath at least once, and, if necessary, twice a week.

The soldiers, as they return from active duty, are received in squads. They disrobe and turn in their clothing. Then they spend half a minute under a hot shower, half a minute under a cold one, two minutes scrubbing their bodies and then another half a minute under a warm shower for rinsing. They emerge to receive clean underwear, socks and shirt and, if necessary, a clean uniform. The whole process takes 35 minutes, plus time for dressing and undressing.

The underwear the men leave when entering goes to the laundry wagons. It goes through the washing and sterilizing process and is issued again, a day or two later, to other troops.

Lice, known as "cooties" in the soldier's vocabulary, have been common to all armies in the war, but serious efforts to exterminate them were not made until they were found to be germ carriers and some of them violated. The rest were tied up and left until two days later, when the Bulgarians came back and completed their work of outrage.

Lebanon and Leskovatz probably were the worst martyred towns of all. At the former place 20 persons were beaten literally to death.

What is to be done to punish this cynically planned and brutally executed policy of murder? The names of the Bulgarian officers directly responsible for these butcheries are known. The peasants of Vranja and Sarduliza after them with the same dread as that with which men of the English west country must have spoken of Judge Jeffreys after the bloody assizes.

GROUNDING LIGHT WIRE

Makes Peculiar Catch

Mechanicsburg, O.—Henry Stanley insists that this is a "true" story. It is about three-thirty.

They were coming across the field near Hopkins' country home. Nothing the lights had become dim they looked around for the cause.

Some distance away they found a wire down with the insulation worn off at three places. Hanging to the wire were a coon, an opossum and a groundhog.

Another case of "stetmen" trouble.

BRAVERY OF YANKS PRAISED

A. J. Cone Distinguishes Himself When Leinster Is Torpedoed by Huns.

Dublin.—A. J. Cone, an American, is praised by the survivors of the Leinster, which was torpedoed by the Huns on the day they started their overtures for armistice.

He is said to have spared no efforts to stay the alarm and confusion which ensued when the first torpedo struck the vessel. He passed out life preservers and worked incessantly at the boats to get the women and children away from the big ship in the lifeboats.

He was assisting at one of the small boats, when the second torpedo struck the ship. Mr. Cone was thrown down. When he attempted to rise he found himself disabled. Both his legs had been broken by the shock.

Then he rolled himself to the edge of the deck, worked his way through the guard and dropped into the water. He was picked up by one of the rescuing ships.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

Swamp-Root is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything. According to verified testimony it is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you will find it on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Ypres.

In the salient of Ypres there are not less than one hundred thousand graves of allied soldiers, sometimes marked by plain wooden crosses, sometimes obliterated by the debris of ruined trenches, sometimes hidden in corners of fields. The ground is forever England; it is also forever France. When the war is over this triangle of meadow land, with a ruined city for its base, will be an enclave of Belgian soil consecrated as the holy land of two peoples. It will never be common ground. ## LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Hon. William E. Blanchard, member-elect of the state legislature which convenes at Santa Fe on the 14th of this month, was here Monday from his home on the Macho. He says the snow is deep in his section and has not yet begun to thaw.

The old board of county commissioners met Monday and closed up the year's business before turning over affairs to the new board. Chairman Franks, Members Bryan and Gilmore were all present.

Meyer Barnett returned Saturday from a visit to his old home in New York City. He left here November 14; hence, he had plenty of opportunity to see his old haunts, and—no wonder he did.

Jim Robinson and H. M. Reddy were over Saturday from Parsons. They came over the trail on horseback and found the snow four feet deep in places. We have not heard whether they have yet reached home on their return.

Peter Barleson was here Tuesday from Lincoln in conference with the board of county commissioners. Mr. Barleson has been foreman of a road gang, working the road from Hondo to Capitan, and those passing over that road pronounce it one of the best in the county.

George J. Weishart, postmaster and merchant at Jicarilla, passed through Tuesday enroute to Arizona. His trip to Arizona has for its object the examination of a mining property with a view of taking an interest.

Prof. J. E. Koonce, who retired Monday from the office of county school superintendent, left the same day for Alamogordo to take the position of principal in the public schools there. Prof. Koonce has taught school in this county for a number of years and for the past two years has served Lincoln county efficiently in the capacity of county superintendent of schools. Prof. Koonce is a finished schoolman and Lincoln county feels that he will make good in his new location.

W. J. Langston has received a card from Jimmie Roselle, dated in December, in which the latter states that he is enjoying good health and wishes to be remembered to his Carrizozo friends. Jimmie left here in the summer of 1917 to join an aero squadron and after a few months' training went over seas.

Dr. F. S. Randless returned this week from a visit to his old home near Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He is just visiting old friends here and has made no announcement as to his future plans.

Scipio Salazar, one of the oldest and best known citizens in the county, was here this week from his home at Lincoln.

Antonio M. Vega has been appointed jailer by Sheriff Duran. He has held the same position under Sheriff Hyde.

New Board Organizes

The new board of county commissioners held a session this week following the conclusion of business that was transacted by the old board. The new board organized by the election of E. L. Moulton, of Corona, as chairman. About a day was spent in going over county matters, after which the board adjourned to meet again the 29th of this month.

EX-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT DEAD

came the Spanish-American war. The famous Rough Riders were organized by Wood and Roosevelt, a band of fighting men the mention of whose name today suggests immediately the word "Roosevelt." They came out of the west—plainsmen, miners, rough-and-ready fighters who were natural marksmen—and Wood became their colonel and "Teddy," as he had become familiarly called by the public, their lieutenant-colonel. In company with the regulars of the army they took transports to Cuba, landed at Santiago and were soon engaged in the thick of battle. Among the promotions which this hardy regiment's gallantry brought about were those of Wood to brigadier general and Roosevelt to colonel—and this little Theodore Roosevelt cherished until the end.

When Cuba had been liberated, Roosevelt returned to New York. A gubernatorial campaign was in swing, with the Republican party in need of a candidate. Roosevelt was nominated. Van Wyck, his Democratic opponent, was defeated. When the Republican national convention was held in Philadelphia in 1900 his party in New York state demanded and attained his nomination for vice president on the ticket with William McKinley. In November of that year this ticket was elected.

Called to the White House in 1901, after McKinley had been assassinated, Colonel Roosevelt, 42 years of age, became the youngest president the United States has ever had. Three years later he was elected as president by the largest popular vote a president has received.

Thus Roosevelt, sometimes called a man of destiny, served for seven years as the nation's chief magistrate. In a subsequent decade the fortunes of politics did not favor him, for, again a candidate for president—this time leading the Progressive party, which he himself had organized when he differed radically with some of the policies of the Republican party in 1912—he went down to defeat, together with the Republican candidate, William Howard Taft. Woodrow Wilson, Democrat, was elected.

Colonel Roosevelt's enemies agreed with his friends that his life, his character and his writings represented a high type of Americanism.

Twentieth street, the baby Theodore was a weakling. He was one of four children who came to Theodore and Martha Bullock Roosevelt. The mother was of southern stock and the father of northern, a situation which during the early years of Theodore Junior's boyhood was not allowed to interfere with the family life of these children during the civil war days.

Colonel Roosevelt, it is said, was keenly disappointed when he did not receive the Republican nomination for president in 1916. At the same time, however, he refused to follow the advice of some of his staunchest followers that he again head the Progressive party ticket. Instead he prevailed upon the Progressive party to make Charles E. Hughes, the Republican candidate, its own choice. He campaigned for Mr. Hughes. With the reelection of Mr. Wilson, and America's entry into the world war soon after, Roosevelt immediately supported the President and bitterly assailed the pro-Germans, pacifists and other types of men who attempted to delay speeding up the war.
