SANTA FE NEW MEXICAN

VOL. 47.

SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22, 1910

NO 80

FINAL DAYS OF CONGRESS

Important Appropriations and Other Legislation Are Being Passed

CATRON IS HOMEWARD BOUND

Secured Important Changes in Statehood Bill as Finally Drafted.

Special to the New Mexican.

Washington, June 22.—Delegate Andrews continues to receive many telegrams of congratulations upon his success in passing the statehood bill. Had Andrews not been here the statehood bill would not have been passed. Delegate Andrews working on the floor of the Senate secured the passage of an extra $20,000 for the Albuquerque federal building, also $15,000 each for sites at Las Vegas and Las Cruces, thus insuring early buildings at those places. Andrews secured 25,000 copies of the statehood law for distribution in New Mexico.

The postal savings, the $20,000,000 irrigation certificates, the land withdrawal bills are to be passed and will be followed by the publicity of political contributions bill, thus with statehood carrying out all planks of the Republican national platform.

The next Rough Riders reunion will be held in Arizona. Roosevelt will be the orator of the day.

Delegate Andrews secured not only the flag with a certificate that it waved over the capital the day the House concurred in the Beveridge statehood bill but also the pens used by Speaker Cannon and Vice President Sherman in signing the bills as well as the quill with which the President signed the word "Taft" on the bill. These together with a photograph of the notable scene at the White House when the bill was signed, photographed and with an inscription of President Taft on the picture will be presented to the New Mexico Historical Society for its Museum at Santa Fe.

The House and Senate received the message that the President had signed the statehood bill and also a message from President Taft requesting the passage of the bill that appeals in land cases may be taken to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia relieving the secretary of the interior from the responsibility of final decision.

Hon. Thomas B. Catron has left for Santa Fe. He is entitled to great credit for securing important changes in the statehood bill and in aiding Delegate Andrews in the final skirmish of the eight year battle the delegate has waged for statehood.

Omnibus Building Bill Passes.

Washington, June 22.—After considering the omnibus public buildings bill in an hour and twenty minutes today, the Senate passed the measure as reported from committee. It carries $25,588,500 increase, more than four millions over the total as it passed the House. The measure contains authorizations from every state.

A Knotty Question.

Washington, June 22.—Congress is facing the question whether union labor shall be exempt from prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust law. Conferees on the sundry civil bill have the question under consideration today. The House by a decisive vote insisted upon the exemption, which is sharply opposed by the Senate.

AN EPIDEMIC OF MURDER IN KENTUCKY.

More Trouble Is Expected at Trial of Feudists at Jackson on Thursday.

Jackson, Ky., June 22.—The examining trial in the Spicer-Fugate case has been set for Thursday. Many members of the rival families are here and a critical situation is expected when the case is called. Dema Johnson, who disappeared after Monday's affair at Jetts Creek in which John Fugate was killed and his mother was wounded, was arrested today charged with complicity in the shooting. With her was captured Spicer's 18 year old son, who it is alleged assisted his father in the fight with the Fugate family. The Johnson woman is a sister of Elisha Johnson, who is in jail charged with murdering Miles Crawford last week.

LOCAL RAINS ARE PREDICTED IN NORTHWEST.

Hot Wave is to Be Broken There But Will Continue in South and East.

Washington, June 22.—The weather bureau today in a special bulletin says that a break in the hot wave in the northwest is in progress and local rains followed by normal temperatures are coming. The warm weather, say the forecast, is to continue in the southern Plains states, the Mississippi valley and the eastern district during the next several days.

OHIO DEMOCRATS MAKE DEMANDS

Nothing Seems to Suit Them In Management of National Affairs

BLAMES REPUBLICAN PARTY

Income Tax and Popular Election of Senators Is Endorsed.

Dayton, Ohio, June 22.—The Ohio Democratic state convention today renominated Judson Harmon for governor by acclamation. It passed a resolution endorsing him as a candidate for President in 1912, and voted down the proposition to endorse him as a candidate for U. S. Senator. The latter was endorsed by William J. Bryan, and the Cleveland delegation fought ardently in favor of it, but Harmon was opposed and the convention which is strongly for Harmon, as is evidenced by the honors heaped upon him, voted against the Bryan idea. The convention, adopted a platform, which in substance follows:

The platform favors legislation limiting the hours of women workers. It demands a revision of the "present unjust and oppressive tariff reducing rates so as to lower prices imposed on consumers, the need of revenue for the economical conduct of the government must be guided by this principle instead of the demands of favored interests," it expresses belief in the conservation of natural resources and denounces the administration, especially Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, for dismissing from the public service, tried and true officers whose only aim was the preservation to the people of such resources.

Democratic Platform.

Dayton, June 22.—The platform adopted by the Democratic state convention calls attention to the prosecution of grafters by the present governor for the return to the state of thousands "secured by fraud and wrong doing," it declares that the governor was handicapped "by the opposition of a hostile legislature and Republican state officials;" it favors safeguarding the franchise as well as all public utilities; it favors the ratification of the income tax amendment to the federal constitution and demands the election of U. S. Senators by the direct vote of the people.

ROMANTIC STORY WAFED FROM LUNA COUNTY.

Eighteen Year Old Trained Nurse in Men's Clothes Discovered By Section Foreman.

Special to the New Mexican.

Deming, N. M., June 22.—Robert C. Martin and wife, running the Commercial hotel several weeks, are under arrest, pending an investigation.

Miss Della Harris, 18 years old, from Shawnee, Oklahoma, came here last Friday night and applied to Dr. S. D. Swope for a position as a nurse.

Educated in a convent she stayed at Dr. Swope's home Friday night, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, until 3 o'clock. Yesterday afternoon a section foreman found her twenty miles out of Deming, under a railway bridge, her hair cut off, and dressed in man's clothes. A cattleman brought her in. After hearing her story the officers arrested Martin and his wife. All three are in the county jail awaiting an investigation this afternoon.

CROWDED CARS JUMP TRACK

Scenic Railway Proves Pitfall in Which Four Were Fatally Injured.

New York, June 22.—At least four persons were fatally injured, and a dozen others seriously hurt today, when two crowded cars on the scenic railway on the Bowery at Coney Island, jumped the track and dropped sixty feet to the ground. Six went down with the first car and were pinned fast beneath the wreckage. Ten of the occupants of the other car were hurled from their seats and went crashing down among the scenery falling to the ground where they lay unconscious.

THE TROUBLE IN MEXICO

Authorities Deny That There Is Any But They Are Very Active

PREDICTED UPRISING SUNDAY

Troops Dispatched From Guaymas to Manzanillo to Seize Arms.

Cananea, Mexico, June 22.—One hundred and twenty additional troops reached here yesterday, and two hundred more are en route from Hermosillo. The Mexico officials still deny that they expect trouble but add that they wish to be prepared to offer every possible protection to Americans and property interests here in case of an uprising on Sunday. It is not now believed, however, that an uprising will occur as the government is fully prepared. All Cananea stores are forbidden to sell arms or ammunition.

Trouble at Manzanillo Too.

Nogales, Ariz., June 22.—It was reported here that Mexican troops have been dispatched from Guaymas to Manzanillo where arms have been seized and many arrests made.

ARROYO HONDO IRRIGATION DAM

Work on Reservoir No. 3 Is Progressing Favorably and With Expedition

HUNDRED MEN ARE EMPLOYED

Twelve Thousand Cubic Yards of Masonry to Bar Path of Stream.

To dam the Arroyo Hondo, five miles south of Santa Fe, upon first thought does not seem a great undertaking. But a visit to the dam construction camp of the Santa Fe Irrigation Company will soon dispel that idea and at the same time prove an instructive and interesting visit. There, one hundred men or more, under the direction of Chief Engineer E. E. Meyer of Chicago, are erecting twelve thousand cubic yard of rubble masonry to obstruct the flow of the little stream that trickles down from the mountains but which after a cloud-burst becomes a roaring torrent. It is to conserve these flood flows that the dam is being built. Three dams are planned and the sites for them selected, but the one under construction is the one nearest the hills and the smallest of the project which Chicago capital and enterprise are erecting in the front yard of this city. This dam will be 92 feet high and is so massive that the historic Old Santa Fe Trail will cross it at its narrowest point in a fifteen foot roadway. Masses of granite and tons of concrete are being welded into solid masonry that extends far below the creek bed to the granite foundation to which the dam is also anchored on both sides.

Construction on Dam No. 2, about half a mile below, is to be begun as soon as Dam No. 3 is completed. This dam will be entirely of steel and concrete. Thus far two thousand cubic yards of the twelve thousand of Dam No. 3, are in place and give an idea of the size, beauty and solidity of the dam which appears as immovable as the granite hills to which it is anchored. The work is being done at the rate of a hundred cubic yards a day. The rock for it is taken from a quarry right at the dam site and the cement and sand to form the concrete are ground and mixed on the spot, the sand being taken from an arroyo a short distance below. There is plenty of water for operations and the dam as far as completed has already backed the water to a depth of ten feet. Good roads, some of them of scenic beauty, have been built to different points along the project.

Employment is given to fifty sturdy pupils from the U. S. Indian Industrial School who make very good workmen. Most of the other workmen come from the Estancia valley. Strange, to say, is has been difficult to get workmen from Santa Fe. The workmen occupy a camp that forms a little town of 20, or more inhabitants as many of the workers have their families with them. There is a company commissary, kitchen, dining room and the supplies, tool and machinery on the ground, represent an immense outlay of capital. A reclamation enterprise in the making is an interesting study and a trip to the Arroyo Hondo will convince every one that the men who are putting up the thousands needed

PRE-HISTORIC SANTA FE

Some Light on a Question of Intense Local Interest

LESSON OF THE SKELETON

Doctor Edgar L. Hewett, An Authority, Tells About It.

The skeleton found in making the excavation for Sylvanus Morley's house on La Garita hill, mentioned in last evening's New Mexican, was turned over to the Museum of American Archaeology, and Director Edgar L. Hewett after making an examination of the specimen has made the following statement concerning it:

"The skeleton is that of an Indian woman probably under twenty years of age at death. The cranium and some of the long bones were recovered. The stature was low, not to exceed five feet, and the muscular development rather small. The teeth were in good condition, the full number being present, the wisdom teeth having the appearance of having been recently cut. The skull is greatly flattened at the back on the right side. This artificial deformation of the skull was characteristic of all the ancient tribes of the Rio Grande valley. It was doubtless caused by the binding of the head upon the cradle board in infancy. It is a typical dolicocephalic skull—the long narrow type. This is of especial interest because of the fact that the Pueblo Indians of the present day are predominantly brachycephalic—short, broad-headed, there being from fifteen to twenty-five per cent of the other type among them. It was upon this characteristic that we were able to determine that the ancient cliff dwellers and mesa dwellers of the Pajarito plateau west of the Rio Grande were not identical with the Pueblo Indians, the former having been a perfectly pure stock, one hundred per cent dolicocephalic, while the Pueblos are a mixed stock but predominantly brachycephalic. The skeleton found under Mr. Morley's house conforms exactly in type with others that have been found in making excavations about the Old Palace. This fact would seem to relate the inhabitants of prehistoric Santa Fe to the ancient Pajaritans, (the name we have given to the prehistoric culture west of the Rio Grande), more closely than to the modern Pueblos. It would be most interesting if it should be found that that ancient culture ages ago overspread the entire Rio Grande valley."

"It is now practically established that the Pueblos are composed of a strain of the old Pajaritan stock to which was added a much stronger strain from somewhere else. The older culture prevailed and survives in great part to the present time, because the climatic conditions of the time and place naturally tended to the establishment of Pueblo habits, mode of life, social order and religion. But the physical character, and probably the language of the newcomers prevailed. In this connection, Mr. Harrington has recently made the intensely interesting discovery (announced in the current number of the American Anthropologist) that there is striking similarity between one of the Pueblo dialects and the Kiowa of the Great Plains."

"The Tewa name for the site where Santa Fe now stands was 'Knapoge' (Tewa: The place of the shell beads near the water), and a large terraced pueblo stood on Fort Marcy hill where the military breastworks have long covered its ruined walls. A smaller pueblo, later called 'Anasco' (Anasco: A Nahua or Aztec word, 'atl', water; 'nalli', the other side; 'co', on; 'On the other side of the water') stood south of the Rio Santa Fe, on the site of San Miguel church. Some years ago I called attention to the fact that portions of its walls still exist in the foundations of the so-called 'Oldest House in Santa Fe,' built upon the ruins of the old Indian pueblo early in the seventeenth century. We now know that a third pueblo existed in very early times in the valley north of the river. There is an ancient burying ground under the back part of the Old Palace and the alterations of the building necessary for the purposes of the museum disclosed within the massive wall of the central axis, portions of an ancient 'puddled' wall, characteristic of Indian architecture before the art of making adobe bricks was learned from the Spaniards; identical with fragments of puddled walls formerly to be seen in the foundations of the 'Oldest House' and under the fortifications of Fort Marcy; also identical with those that we have discovered in the course of our excavations at Pe-rage, (prehistoric San Ildefonso), the ruin that is cut through by the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, a mile

FOURTH OF JULY AT LAS VEGAS

Statehood Flag From National Capitol Will Be Raised There

GALLINAS BRIDGE DEDICATION

Finest Memorial Structure Marking Old Santa Fe Trail.

Colonel Ralph E. Twitchell of Las Vegas, is in Santa Fe today on legal business for the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company, having arrived from Albuquerque. He will leave this evening for his home in the Meadow City. Hon. W. H. Andrews has wired Colonel Twitchell that he will bring with him to be raised on the Fourth of July at Las Vegas the flag which floated over the National Capitol the day the House of Representatives passed the bill giving statehood to New Mexico. This flag will float in Las Vegas on July 4. It was on August 15, 1846, that an American flag first floated in that city, the morning of the entry of General Kearny and the American Army of the West. On the Fourth the people of Las Vegas will dedicate the beautiful $40,000 concrete bridge over the Gallinas, the finest memorial structure marking the Old Santa Fe Trail anywhere between Independence, Mo., and Santa Fe. Hon. T. B. Catron will deliver the memorial address. Delegate Andrews, Governor Mills and other territorial officials will be present. Excursion rates will be in effect and a big crowd is expected from Santa Fe and other portions of New Mexico.

TORONTO BIDS $150,000 AND EXPENSES FOR FIGHT.

Guarantee That Authorities and Police of Dominion of Canada Would Not Interfere.

Reno, Nev., June 22.—James J. Jeffries, accompanied by his training partners and a number of sporting men and newspaper correspondents, arrived at Reno from the coast at 10 o'clock this morning. Rickard this morning received from Toronto, Canada, promoters what he declared to be the "most sensible offer" for the fight yet made to him. They offer $150,000 guarantee for the fight on July 4, freedom from police or other interference, rates on all the railroads, and a traveling allowance of $2,000 for the fighters. After reading the bid and passing it to the newspapermen, Rickard placed the telegram in his pocket. Rickard positively assures that there is no possibility of Promoter Hester staging the Langford-Ketchell fight in the Jeffries-Johnson arena prior to the big battle. The best offer is the day after the big fight. Hester declares that if Rickard does not relent before night, he will return to San Francisco.

They Disobeyed Their Parents and Played With Matches Setting Clothes on Fire.

Iredell, Texas, June 22.—Playing with matches resulted in the death of the two sons of J. O. Taylor, aged 2 and 4 years, here late yesterday. The boys were starting a fire when their clothes became ignited.

GERMANY SETS THE PACE

Airship With Restaurant Makes First Passenger Trip on Schedule

MANY TICKETS ARE SOLD

Regular Service Covers Three Hundred Miles in Nine Hours.

Dusseldorf, Germany, June 22.—The first regular airship passenger service was inaugurated today, when Count Zeppelin's great craft, Deutschland, carrying twenty passengers successfully made the first scheduled trip from Friedrichshafen to this city, 300 miles, in nine hours. The weather was perfect and the motors worked faultlessly. Count Zeppelin steered for the greater part of the distance. Regular trips will be made and many tickets have been sold. The airship is equipped with a restaurant.

GREATER THAN ENGLISH DUKE

Is American Boy, Declares Judge A. L. Morrison at Commencement

ARCHBISHOP PITAVAL PRESIDES

And Pins Medals on St. Michael's Boys As Vast Audience Applauds.

"The American boy is greater and more to be envied than an English duke, because the American boy has the privilege when he reaches the age of 21, of electing his ruler and the Congress that makes the laws, whereas the English duke has to accept as his sovereign some one who has fallen heir to the crown."

This was the declaration, made amidst prolonged cheering, by the Hon. Judge A. L. Morrison in his address last night in Loretto auditorium where the fifty-first annual commencement exercises of St. Michael's College were held, in the presence of a large audience and presided over by His Grace, Archbishop Pitaval.

The exercises began at 8 o'clock when the college orchestra played a stirring march and those who arrived a minute or two late found the large auditorium packed with the friends of the youths who were to receive the honors they had striven for during the collegiate year just ended.

Near the stage were seated the Archbishop, with the vicar general, the Very Rev. Antonio Pourcigne, Father Bobst, Father Besset, Father Pugins and Father Derasches, at his right, and Brother James, the president of the college and other persons of distinction at his left.

The program was carried out as arranged. There were three orations, the first by Nestor Montoya, Jr., whose subject was "The Era of Good Feeling," the second by Manuel Lujan, who spoke on "The Government Control of Public Utilities," and the third by J. Felipe Hubbell, Jr., whose oration was on "The Centenary of Balmes." All of the speakers merited praise for their clear enunciation, graceful delivery and for the ideas they expressed.

The oratorical selections were interspersed with music by the college orchestra or choir and each number of the program was vociferously applauded.

There was profound silence as Brother James arose and read the list of awards and as each name was called out there was warm applause. The announcements were as follows:

Degree of M. A.
The Degree of Master of Accounts has been conferred on Mr. J. Felipe Hubbell.

BABY'S SCALP ALL CRUSTED OVER

With Eczema That Broke Out when but Three Months Old—Burned and Itched So She Could Not Sleep —Chance of Cure Seemed Slight.

CURE BY CUTICURA
EASY AND COMPLETE

"Our little daughter, when three months old, began to break out on the head and we had the best doctors to treat her, but they did not do her any good. They said she had eczema. Her eyes became crossed from the disease and her scalp was a solid scale all over.
The burning and itching was so severe that she could not rest, day or night.
We had about given up all hopes when we read an advertisement of the Cuticura Remedies. We at once got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent and followed directions carefully.
After the first dose of the Cuticura Resolvant, we used the Cuticura Soap freely and applied the Cuticura Ointment.
Then she began to improve rapidly and in two weeks the scale came off her head and new hair began to grow. In a very short time she was well. Her eyes were perfectly straight when she recovered and have been so ever since. She is now sixteen years of age and is a picture of health. We know the Cuticura Remedies cured her and have used them in our family ever since.

"We used the Cuticura Remedies about five weeks, regularly, and then we could not tell she had been affected with any disease. She suffered with burning and itching and hard, scaly, dandruff-looking scales all over her head and in places on her body. We used no other treatments after we found out what the Cuticura Remedies would do for her.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE.

Santa Fe People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are so unmistakable that they leave no ground for doubt. Sick kidneys excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back aches constantly, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighed down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger of dropsy. Bright's disease, or diabetes. Any one of these symptoms is warning enough to begin treating the kidneys at once. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Santa Fe proof: Hyman Lowitzki, 115 Guadalupe Street, Santa Fe, N. M., says: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills, as they have been used by myself and other members of my family with splendid results. The value of Doan's Kidney Pills for relieving pain in the back and other kidney difficulties has been thoroughly proven to me. I take pleasure in making the merit of this remedy known to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

PROTECT POLICY HOLDERS

There Are Eight Million of Them in Fraternal Insurance Companies.

Chicago, June 22.—Adequate protection for the 8,000,000 holders of $9,000,000,000 worth of fraternal insurance will result from the enactment by all the states of the proposed uniform regulation bill agreed upon at the conference in New York between the National Association of Insurance Commissioners and representatives of many of the societies. Such irregularities in the management of the fraternal societies as have occurred in Illinois will not be possible in any state when the tentative bill becomes a law. The results of this joint conference, following a preliminary meeting in May in Chicago, together with the fact that a new insurance regulation law goes into effect in Illinois on July 1, are expected to have great weight with the legislatures of the various states. The new Illinois law places additional power in the hands of the insurance commissioner, giving him the right to take charge of a society and wind up its affairs when it is more than ninety days in arrears in the payment of any claim against it. The proposed uniform bill, however, is broader in scope than the new Illinois law. "This bill, if enacted into law," says Thomas H. Cannon, president of the National Fraternal Congress, "would stop deals in membership, would stop the practice of keeping from the members exact knowledge of the financial conditions of the society, would safeguard societies by making their charge rates adequate to meet all legitimate demands; would prevent insolvent or moribund societies continuing in existence to be 'traded in'; would stop exorbitant expense charges against mortality funds. It would certainly greatly help that half of the fraternal societies which are either insolvent or rapidly approaching such a condition, and it might save them all. That is what we hope for."

Autobiography of Union Printer.
The autobiography of a former union printer of Chicago who since the late eighties, when he worked here in various shops, has had stirring experiences as advertising expert and publisher, is interesting many people who enjoy revelations of business happenings. There are printers in Chicago offices who still remember John Adams Thayer Boston born and bred, who came to the western metropolis with a union ticket in his pocket. The young New Englander was employed for a time with the J. M. W. Jones Company, and took part in a well remembered strike caused by the profanity and brutality of a foreman. He drifted east again, held jobs with type founding establishments, was for a brief period a printer again in Chicago, became advertising manager of the Ladies' Home Journal in Philadelphia, business manager for Frank A. Munsey, advertising manager of the Boston Journal, advertising manager of the Delinquent, and with Erman J. Ridgway, publisher of Everybody's Magazine. It was Mr. Thayer's initiative, and the fortunate circumstance that as a boy he had been a private in a torchlight company captained by Thomas W. Lawson, that secured for Everybody's that extraordinary series of articles written by an author who not only would accept no compensation but who personally paid for advertising them in the press of the country. Facts about Frenzied Finance now given out only increase the wonder-

Cook in Comfort

You no longer need wear yourself out with the weakening heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort.

Here is a stove that gives no outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking—none in outside heating.

entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is no surrounding heat—no smell—no smoke.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Continental Oil Company (Incorporated)

ment existed at the time the articles appeared. His partner's scheme of a "militant weekly for God and country" which ran nineteen weeks and dropped three hundred thousand dollars, did not appeal to Mr. Thayer who sold his interest in Everybody's and executed a desire which most normal Americans have; he saw something of the world until, returning from his travels he wrote, under the title "Astir," an autobiography in which, to his own enjoyment and that of those who have been privileged to read it, he has lived over again the events of a very remarkable business life. It was intended originally for posthumous publication but friends persuaded the publisher to give his narrative to the world during his own life time.

Preacher Must Be Business Man.

The resignation of the Rev. John A. Morrison, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, has called the attention of religious circles to the fact that a pastor of a downtown Chicago church must be more of a business man and banker than a preacher. The Rev. Morrison resigned because he wanted to be a religionist and not a banker. In addition to his pulpit duties he was directly associated with thirty-two different interests in his church organization. He was the supervisor of a railroad mission, president of Presbyterian League of Chicago, trustee of several funds, director of Chicago Tract society, advisory head of Fort Dearborn guild, had direct or supervisory charge of the Christian Endeavor Society, Sunday school, Home Mission Society, Men's League, Women's Benevolent League, Deacons' fund, Board of Elders, Board of Trustees, Endowment fund project, administrator of railroad mission property, member of executive committee of American Bible Society, general overseer of First church annual contribution to home missions, foreign missions, ministerial sustentation, aid for colleges and education of negroes, Chinese Sunday school, railroad gymnasium, preacher at the University of Chicago, trustee of the Presbyterian hospital board.

Increase Cost of Railroad Operations.

An interesting sidelight on some of the factors entering into the increased cost of railroad operation which the roads claim make it necessary for them to increase freight and passenger rates was brought out here this week in connection with statistics on the subject of railroad ties. It appears that at the present time more than one hundred million cross ties are used every year by the various railway lines of the country. A few years ago ties were bought by the thousand at a cost of a few cents each and the principal expense in equipping a road with them was the cost of the labor required to put them down. With the rapid disappearance of hardwood timber suitable for the purpose, however, the cost has rapidly advanced until now some roads in some parts of the country pay a dollar a piece for ties and it is figured that in five years more even this price will be doubled giving an annual tie bill of $200,000,000 on this score alone. All the big companies are casting about for means to insure themselves a future supply of tie timber. The Pennsylvania system has been conducting extensive experiments with a view to growing its own ties and the Santa Fe is taking up timber growing on a large scale for the same purpose. In a letter taken from the files of the Eucalyptus Mahogany-Growers, Inc., of New York, President Ripley of the Santa Fe announced that his road had planted 1,500 acres in California with eucalyptus trees in 1909 and proposed to plant 4,500 acres more during the present year, this tree being selected because it grows to a size sufficient for use as ties and similar materials in less than six years. All the roads extending to the Pacific coast as well as many private investors are studying this wonderful new industry. Eucalyptus timber can be used for most any purpose where hardwoods are employed.

Developing Florida.

Mrs. Potter Palmer has undertaken one of the greatest development propositions ever known in Florida. She has just completed a purchase of between 75,000 and 100,000 acres on the west coast of Florida in Manatee county, extending approximately 25 miles along Sarasota bay from Sarasota to Venice, Florida, and about 12 miles inland. The seaboard air line has just authorized a 25 mile extension from the terminus of Fruitville to Venice bisecting the property just purchased by Mrs. Palmer. Mrs. Palmer and her son, Honore Palmer, expect to develop the property and place some of it on sale this fall. Plans have already been drawn for bungalows both for Mrs. Palmer and Honore Palmer and it is expected that a society colony will be developed along the beautiful coast of Sarasota bay. The investment totals approximately $300,000 and none of the acreage is to be sold less than $100 an acre to colonists. J. H. Edwards who is in the Florida land business with headquarters in the Marquette building, Chicago, Florida headquarters at Sarasota, is responsible for Mrs. Palmer's going into Florida and is heavily interested with her together with Mr. Honore Palmer. He will manage the development of the property and the sale of such portion as is disposed of. This together with operations of the Miakka Company, which controls as much or more land than Mrs. Palmer is one of the remarkable developments of colonization in real estate. The Miakka Company is contemplating the establishment of two colonies, one in the northern part of their land composed of English colonists and the other will be practically Italian agriculturists. This experiment or colony will be in the southern part of Manatee county towards Peace valley. A new experiment in Florida is to be undertaken by the Florida-Manatee Company of Bradenton, Fla. They expect to develop olive growing and are making plans for that end now.

ROOTS, HERBS AND BARKS.

You can no doubt recall the collection of roots, herbs and barks your grandmother made every fall for the family medicine chest.

It is interesting to note that the most successful remedy for female ills had its origin more than 30 years ago in one of these home medicine chests, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made today in immense quantities from those same roots and herbs with extreme accuracy, care and cleanliness.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF SANTA FE COUNTY.

The New Mexican is the oldest newspaper in New Mexico. It is sent to every postoffice in the Territory, and has a large and growing circulation among the intelligent and progressive people of the Southwest.

CONDITIONS ARE ALIKE.

As far as endowment with natural resources and climate are concerned, the case of New Mexico is almost identical with that of Colorado. On account of its territorial condition, New Mexico which has by far the larger area, has fallen behind, but at the present rate of growth, it will catch up to Colorado by 1930, and will have passed it in population in 1940. The census of 1910 gives Colorado a population of 825,000, a gain of only about fifty per cent since 1900. Colorado had expected to show at least a million inhabitants but as in the case of every other state and territory, the official returns are disappointing. Still, a population of 825,000 indicates a marvelous growth since 1870 when the population of Colorado was less than 40,000, and since 1880 when the population of the territorial state was almost exactly the same as that of New Mexico in 1900. Therefore, the following editorial in the Rocky Mountain News on this census growth is quite applicable also to New Mexico and holds out the hope of still greater gains in the future:

"According to the figures given out by an official in the census department at Washington, Colorado has a population of more than 825,000, a gain in the last decade of 53 per cent. The increase of population is an encouraging one, in view of the fact that it represents a steady and wholesome gain due to normal development and not to any mushroom booms.

"The reason for the growth of Colorado is not far to seek. It lies in the wonderful natural resources beginning to be developed. The state is just finding itself. Agriculturally, it is in its infancy. Not until the past five years have even Coloradoans appreciated what possibilities lie latent here. The western slope alone is capable of supporting more people than now live in the whole state. The San Luis valley has at present less than 20,000 inhabitants. Yet it holds an area as large as Connecticut and undeveloped resources far more varied and rich.

"The state's water power has not yet been harnessed to serve the needs of man. Nor has any large proportion of its land been brought under cultivation. Even that portion farmed, despite the rich returns, has been handled in such a way as to give no idea of how great a yield may be expected under more intensive and scientific methods. Many owners now take care of 320 or even 640 acres. When the centennial state comes into its own conditions will be different. Land is now getting too valuable to be farmed in large, haphazard fashion. The twenty-acre tract will supplant the ranch that is now a mile square, and in fruit districts five acres will be nearer the average holding. This will make for a greatly increased production, for added comfort of living and for the facilities of modern civilization, without which no rural district can now be progressive.

"The hope of Colorado for the future rests not only in the general abundance of latent opportunities. Its specialties are in many respects incomparable. Here may be found the best marble in the country, Rocky Ford cantaloupes command the highest price by reason of superior quality. The apples of the western slope have no equal. The little town of Olathe, in the Uncompaghe valley, to take the first instance that occurs, can go into the middle states and win competitive prizes in most of the fruits, vegetables and cereals for which that region is famous.

"Yet while these things are true, while Colorado has already manifested a fertility that easterners will scarce credit, the experimental stage in agriculture has scarce been passed. The great development of the beet sugar industry is a matter of a dozen years. The movement to dry farming has taken place in even less time. The amount of land under irrigation is increasing faster than would have been credited at the time the last census was taken. Everything points to an era of development of which we have but seen a hint.

"With the added farming area to be reclaimed will come also an impetus to other industries. Denver must of necessity be a manufacturing center to a far greater extent than at present. Mineral resources will be exploited in Routt county and other parts of the state. Capital seeking the best field of operation, will naturally flow in this direction. For good investments are more rare than they were and this state offers a chance that is both safe and tempting.

"For which reasons one risks nothing in predicting that the development of Colorado—its increase in arable area and products and population—will be far greater during the next ten years than in the past. As yet it is only in the dawn of its prosperity."

PROFESSIONAL OPTIMIST.

Editor Klinefelter of Obar, Quay, county, has discovered a new occupation for the people of New Mexico, in which young and old can engage without fear of over competition. It is the job of professional optimist. Says the editor whose original utterances are widely quoted:

"As for the press, the newspaper offices reek with optimism just as naturally as the breath of an Italian prima donna does with garlic.

"But the sun has given us that rarest of earthly things—a brand new ideal.

"We have noticed for some time that the world is going around with its nose to the ground, like a pup in a pasture, hunting for something, it doesn't know what.

"We now know what it wants. 'The world needs a new profession—the profession of Optimism—and we have decided to set up as regular practitioner.

SANTA FE'S WATER SUPPLY.

Santa Fe is fortunate in its water supply, the purest water to be found in the entire Southwest, coming from mountain heights 12,000 above the level of the sea and from a stream along whose entire watershed down to the main reservoir there is not a single human dwelling to contaminate the supply, which is ample, in fact, so abundant, that there is much unnecessary waste. That even cities like Denver are not near as fortunate is indicated by the following item from Tuesday morning's Denver News:

"Judge Whitford grants an injunction restraining all consumers from using water for irrigation purposes. The writ is made returnable next Saturday at 10 a. m.

"In consequence of the water shortage suffering exists, especially among those afflicted with throat and lung troubles.

"Only three feet of water remains in the Capitol hill and Ashland avenue reservoirs."

Five miles south of Santa Fe, on the Arroyo Hondo, outside capital is spending $3,000 a week building dams and ditches to reclaim 8,000 or more acres of land tributary to Santa Fe. The greater part of the sum expended goes into the pockets of local merchants. Eventually, those 8,000 acres will produce an average of at least $50 an acre or $400,000 altogether, a sum which exceeds all the salaries paid by the federal and territorial governments in this city. That sort of an enterprise makes but little splurge locally, not near as much as there would be if some one threatened to remove some little federal office from the town, and yet, it is enterprises of that kind to which Santa Fe must look for its future. Bring the lands in this vicinity under cultivation and the capital can be removed without seriously hurting the community, but at present such removal would spell disaster. There should be greater effort, starting with the manual training and school garden idea, to make the vacant lands of this vicinity capital and sustenance for the town.

An exchange figures out that the constitutional convention will consist of 61 Republicans and 30 Democrats with nine delegates classed as doubtful. But the same exchange places Lincoln, Otero and Sierra counties in the Democratic column with Union county as doubtful. Each of those counties will select Republican delegates to the constitutional convention and Union county will do so by 500 to 1,000 majority. The constitutional convention will consist of at least 72 Republicans and probably 77, or three fourths majority, as the county of Torrance will likely fall in to the Republican column. Of course, had the apportionment been made up on the 1910 census figures as the Democrats demanded, the Republican majority might not have been quite so overwhelming, but it would have been large enough nevertheless, to carry every point except where a two-thirds majority would be demanded.

Not any one in Santa Fe should omit reading the article on "Prehistoric Santa Fe" in today's New Mexican. The knowledge imparted should take the place of the vague ideas and the misleading information that is absorbed by visitors and even local residents from preposterous legends that are circulated and that gather fringes of moss with years. It is fortunate for Santa Fe, that serious study is being given its intensely interesting history as well as its archaeological remains by so eminent an authority as Doctor Edgar L. Hewett, and whatever little any local resident can do for the furtherance of the work, should be done with enthusiasm. The information given should be imparted in the public and other schools so that every child and every grown up may be proud of the history of this, the most interesting town in the United States, because of knowledge that he is eager to impart to others.

The interesting story of the prehistoric pueblos that stood on the site of Santa Fe five hundred and more years ago, which is told in the New Mexican today, renews also interest in the rather unusual communal mound on the north side of the Santa Fe river opposite Agua Fria, and that on the Arroyo Hondo six miles south of Santa Fe, where modern enterprise is about to restore the cultivation of the fields that undoubtedly was practiced there many centuries ago. Six miles to the north, on the Tesuque river, also, are prehistoric remains of communal dwellings, all of which indicate that this part of Santa Fe must have been a populous section that possibly made more use of the flowing waters and the fertile soil than is the case today.

In the fifteen years from 1895 to 1909, inclusive there were in New Mexico, according to Jo E. Sheridan, territorial mine inspector, a total of 223 fatal accidents. The law does not require the reporting of non-fatal accidents. During the fifteen years there have been only four, 1895 1899, 1901 and 1907, in which there were any deaths charged to explosions of gas or dust. The total number of deaths from this cause was 43, and 24 of these occurred in 1895, so that in fourteen years only 19 deaths have been caused by explosions. Falls of roof and coal killed 108. In 1909 there were 13 fatal accidents, a decrease of 10 as compared with 1908.

The cablegram announcing today that regular aerial service has been established in Germany with a dirigible balloon equipped with a restaurant and covering 300 miles of its route in nine hours, brings to mind that it was Germany that had the first electric trolley line, opened by Siemens and Halske in Berlin as early as 1880. In those days, which are only thirty days ago, an electric railway was deemed as impractical as aerial navigation for commercial purposes is today, but doubtless, thirty years hence aerial transportation routes will be as commonplace as trolley lines are today.

Nevada will receive the unenviable notoriety of having the Johnson-Jeffries fight pulled off within its boundaries. However, not one-half as many people will go to Reno to see it as would have gone to San Francisco. Some day, Nevada too, will be as decent and law abiding as New Mexico, and then prize fight promoters will have to hire a raft and take it out of the three mile limit, so that their champions may pummel each other to their heart's content without interference from any officious state official or peace officer.

The Commercial Club at Las Vegas is after the postoffice department to establish daily automobile mail service from Las Vegas to Vaughn from which point daily automobile mail service to Roswell and the lower Pecos valley already exists. Such a daily service from Las Vegas would take in Encino, La Palma, Olguin and Anton Chico. While the service may not be as necessary and will not serve nearly as many people as would daily automobile service from Santa Fe to Taos, yet, the commercial bodies of other towns have a habit of getting things which is unknown to local enterprise.

President Taft wants Congress to pass the campaign publicity and the postal savings bills during the few days that remain of the present session. But without these, the President has already secured an extraordinary amount of important and wise legislation from the legislative body. The President is making good, despite the predictions to the contrary, that wisecracks had indulged in up to a few weeks ago.

The suggestion made by an Old Timer in the Las Vegas Optic that Santa Fe annually celebrate "Santa Fe Trail Day," is an excellent one. No where else in the United States do surroundings, historic setting and memories lend themselves so well to an annual historic celebration as in this ancient and picturesque city.

Goldfield, Nevada, offered $200,000 just to get the Johnson-Jeffries fight. And the $200,000 would have been easier to raise in Goldfield than would $200 in Santa Fe to place the Scenic Highway as far as built in good condition.

MODEL COMMUNITY CENTER FOR FARMING DISTRICT.

It is a Great Idea That Would Eventually Accomplish Wonders for Rural New Mexico.

Spokane, Wash., June 22.—When the Country Life Commission of the state of Washington appointed recently by Governor Marion E. Hay, meets in Spokane the week of November 14, plans will be presented for a model community center and consolidated country school, to be established in one of the rural districts adjoining Spokane, early in 1911.

David Brown of Spokane, chairman of the commission, announces that Governor Hay and possibly Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will attend the conference and assist in formulating a practical plan for the betterment of life on the farm, along the lines suggested in the report of the Roosevelt commission on country life, which, headed by Professor Liberty Hyde Bailey of Ithaca, N. Y., made a tour of the larger farming districts of the United States the latter part of 1908 and early in 1909.

This is to be the preliminary step of a nation-wide movement, co-operative with the various states and territories, in an endeavor to teach the youth of the land the fundamental principles of agricultural and domestic economy and manual and industrial training, also giving the farmers in the communities the benefit of the most approved methods of agriculture and allied subjects. The community center is designed to furnish a place where men and women can meet for the interchange of ideas.

Primarily, the school is for the average boy and girl, whose institutional education ends even before they finish the secondary school, the purpose being to train them to become useful men and women and capable of supporting themselves and thus adding to the wealth production of the country at large and the districts in which they live and to better their condition of life.

The Washington commission has prepared tentative plans for a community center, including a consolidated rural school. It is designed to cover 10 acres and will serve a school area of 36 square miles, the most distant point being three miles. In addition to the school building the plans show a large community hall, residence for the principal and supervisor athletic and play grounds, tennis court, pressure water tanks for domestic, lawn, irrigation, stock and fire uses and plots for the practice of agriculture, horticulture, floriculture and forestry. Surrounding and bisecting the tracts will be models of good road building.

The school and other buildings will be under the direction of a principal, trained in the various branches of agriculture and familiar with conditions in the northwest. This official will be assisted by a supervisor and a corps of teachers. In connection with the community hall will be a bureau of information, containing all the available data of federal and state departments of agriculture and experimental stations in the country, also books and journals dealing with all the branches of the industry.

The community center is to be made beautiful with trees, shrubs, flowers and lawns without being ornate, and no saloon, store or other commercial institution can be located within half a mile of its boundaries. The teachers will be men and women with red blood in their veins and able to adapt themselves to the ideals of the center and school of the type outlined. Among other qualifications they must be broadminded and optimistic and able to see the human side of life, also be helpful to those under their charge.

The keynote is that the best defense against misfortune is to give every child in the country such education that will enable it to make its own living on a piece of land, if necessary, when it becomes of age. It is also purposed to launch a campaign, urging the people of the open country to work together, not merely with the view to forwarding their own economic interests or in competing with those who are organized, but to develop themselves and establish an effective community spirit.

The consolidated rural school will be similar to the graded city institution, the betterment of the curriculum being by emphasizing industrial and manual training and domestic science and adding such other studies as will give the students a knowledge of things with which they come into contact in actual life and presenting means of working out the chief studies in practice. It is also purposed to teach the students the principles of business. However, the value of agriculture as the greatest of all industries will be constantly kept to the fore.

"This may be termed a 'back to the farm' movement, the necessity of which is becoming more apparent every day," said Mr. Brown. "We need more men and women on the farms; in fact, it would be better for the nation's prosperity if 65 per cent instead of 33 per cent of the population as at present, were tilling the soil, making cows and setting hens. The open country, however, is not the solution of the out-of-work problem, for unless instructed in some branch of agriculture and keenly interested in the work the average man is worse off in the country than in the thronged city."

"This takes the Spokane plan to the first principle, that the child should be educated along practical lines, and to bring this about the country school must be made a new kind of institution. The rural schools are held by some to be largely responsible for ineffective farming, the general lack of ideals and the rapid drifting from the country to city. The rural schools are not declining; they are simply in a state of arrested development and have kept pace with the changed conditions of life."

GREATER THAN ENGLISH DUKE.

Montoya of Albuquerque for the Junior Elocution Contest was won by Earl J. Haley. Next in merit, Luis Samaniego.

As Brother James called out the name of the winner of a medal, the happy young man walked up to the stage and received the gold symbol from the hands of the Archbishop who congratulated the recipient as the audience cheered to the echo.

This little ceremony was repeated again and again and it was noted that one of the pupils, J. Felipe Hubbell literally "had medals hanging to him" when the exercises were over. The medals were beautifully engraved by the well known jeweler, S. Spitz, of this city.

Archbishop Speaks.

The Archbishop, the vicar general and Brother James were still seated on the stage when His Grace introduced the speaker of the evening saying: "The Brother director has asked me to perform a task and I have accepted it for the simple reason that it is a very easy one. It is a pleasure to introduce to you the Hon. Judge Morrison who will deliver the commencement address."

This announcement was followed by cheers as it is well known that Judge Morrison has two sons, alumni of St. Michael's and the judge has been a warm friend of the institution since 1881 when he came to Santa Fe.

Judge Speaks.

Judge Morrison arose and at once launched into a speech delivered with his characteristic vigor and ringing with patriotic sentiments toward church and state.

He said in substance: "Most Reverend Archbishop, Reverend Fathers, Venerable Brothers, College Students and ladies and gentlemen:

"The history of the Spanish people in these mountains has never been written. It cannot be written. Oh but if these mountains could speak, what would they not say of the terrors faced by that heroic band of explorers who braved both hostile Indian and ferocious beast to live in this region. What would they not say of that wonderful heroism displayed, that tenacity of purpose, that unbending will to accomplish the great work they planned or die in the attempt. (Applause.) How they existed, God only knows.

"We do know, however, my friends, that those people remained faithful to God in all kinds of tribulation. It is easy to say today that those people were ignorant. How could they be otherwise. There were no schools here to teach their children and to seek an education they had to go by muleback to St. Louis fighting their way past hostile bands of Indians and multitudes of savage beasts.

American Flag Comes.

"In the course of time God sent the American flag to New Mexico. It was the first government the Spanish people ever had that paid any attention to the Spanish settlers here. It has been said, and I think truly, that the people here under the Spanish rule were robbed, under the Mexican government they were neglected and only under the stars and stripes did they get justice and attention. (Cheers.)

"If the Spanish government that ruled this country was Catholic it gave very little evidence of its Catholicity and I do not hesitate to say so. (Applause.) There may be some question as to the justice of the war with Spain but as for the war with Mexico, good came out of evil and we are here to benefit by it.

Statehood.

"And now, my friends, after a struggle of sixty years, we people of New Mexico have arrived at the threshold of statehood. (Cheers and shouts of 'Hurrah for Taft!') You may well cheer for I want to tell you that this is the greatest boom that could be conferred on us. I am 78 years of age but I hope to live to vote in New Mexico for a president of the United States just like other people in other states are going to do. (Applause.)

Tribute to Mr. Lamy.

Referring to the great work accomplished here along educational and religious lines by Archbishop Lamy, the speaker said:

"Why, I can almost see Archbishop Lamy passing through the streets today. (Applause.) He was the Apostle of the Southwest. He came here a great man for a great occasion and God made him for the work. It was he who brought the Christian Brothers to New Mexico." (Shouts of applause.)

The judge then read from a work by Father Defouri on the history of Archbishop Lamy and the trials and tribulations of the religious who first came here. Continuing he said midst ripples of laughter:

"In those days, boys, there were no library cars, no observation cars, no dining and palace and sleeping cars, why there were no cars at all. (Laughter.) It was a six or seven weeks' trip from Kansas City. The priests to come out here in those days had to be members of the church militant. (Laughter.) Yes, they had to fight their way."

Likes Church Militant.

Judge Morrison then raised a storm of laughter and applause in which the clergy joined by adding:

"As for me, give me the church militant!" Continuing the judge fired a shot at England, saying: "I come from a fighting race. My family was engaged in the occupation of fighting old England for 300 years. (Laughter.) Three hundred bloody years. St. Peter, belonged to the

Heart Strength

Heart strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is in its self, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, pulsating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these "nerve" and "wasting" nerve centers. It builds; it gives; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with church militant when, in the garden, he cut off the ear of one of that party that had come out to attack the Savior."

Qualified to Vote.

Returning to the statehood problem the speaker said that it is safe to say that the Christian Brothers are educating the youth of New Mexico and making that youth qualified to vote intelligently on matters that will come up before citizens of a state. Continuing, he said:

"Young men, be proud that you are American citizens, for the title of an American citizen is the proudest on earth. (Applause.) It is better and a nobler thing to be an American citizen than an English duke. (Applause.) Those dukes and such fellows are born into their rights and privileges and they have to be loyal to a man born unto the crown. You boys have no such servitude. You vote for the man you think is qualified to be president and if you do not like his career you vote for another man. The same in selecting our law makers. We get rid of them by the ballot if we find they are undesirable. (Laughter.) If they don't do what we tell 'em we put them out."

Advice to Young Men.

"I am not going to load you down with advice and maxims. You have had a good moral training here and I believe you have come to realize that a good Catholic will be a good American citizen. There is one thing I wish to impress on you boys, now, however, as you are about to leave the college free from temptations and go out into the world, full of temptations. Just this word of advice, boys, keep out of the saloons. (Prolonged applause.) Don't go near them (more applause), for you will find in the world enough troubles to be looked after without this saloon trouble, this awful drink evil."

Concluding the judge paid a tribute to the fair sex, saying that after all good and gallant men will admit that there is only one finer and nobler creation than the American boy and that is the American girl. This sally was received with shouts of applause and waving of handkerchiefs and hats, which kept up until the college orchestra was well into the Willow Grove March, which was the final number on the program.

INCREASED RUN OF CATTLE AT KANSAS CITY.

Kansas City Stock Yards, June 22.—Total cattle receipts here last week jumped up to 49,000 head, an increase of 18,000 head over the week previous. An extraordinary run of quarantine cattle last week accounts for the greater part of the increase, and the natural increase in supply of grass cattle from native territory at this season each week, together with an unusual number of well finished native cattle, are responsible for the balance of the increase. Two of these factors were eliminated last week, as far as their future effect on the supply is concerned, namely, finished natives will become more scarce all the time, balance of the summer and the quarantine supply will not be nearly as heavy for three or four weeks ahead as it was last week. Grass cattle from quarantine territory are not moving freely yet, and the big run of cake fed steers from Texas last week just about cleaned that variety of cattle up for this season. A relatively large number of native steers sold between $8 and $8.50 last week, and that class remained steady for the week, but farther down the line declines set in, until bottom steers showed a loss of 25 to 50 cents cows and heifers off almost as much, calves 50 to 75 lower, stockers and feeders tending downwards.

The hog market closed last week practically unchanged from close of previous week on an average, but during the week heavies had lost all of their premium over lighter weights and a little more, and hogs under 200 pounds in weight now lead by a small margin. Bacon houses are unable to get enough material to make their brands of standard quality, and their difficulty is likely to become greater, as average weights are increasing. As long as the feeder can get such a good profit on corn fed to hogs as at present, this condition will likely remain. Supply here today 7,000 head, market 15 higher.

Last week was one of disaster in the live mutton trade, particularly on lambs, which lost $1 to $1.50 per hundred, while mutton grades of sheep lost 50 to 75 cents. The run of spring lambs from Kentucky and Tennessee at eastern markets was excessive last week and a big run of natives at western markets, many of them inferior in quality, account for the collapse of the market.

An Organized Epidemic

By MARTHA McCULLOCH-WILLIAMS

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

Minerva's name was one of Fate's subtlest ironies—the girl was so far, so very far, from wise. Indeed, she knew no more than to be sweet and biddable to crabbed task-mistresses. They were the Grimley sisters who had taken her, as they said daily, out of charity, and to whom she served for hands, feet and eyes. She was rated sharply if she talked back, which was seldom, since she had rather a talent for silence than for speech. The sisters were not consciously unkind—it was just that they had fallen into the way of fretting at everything. Life had defrauded them of the natural outlets—husbands and children. Therefore, they made the most of such small worries as remained to maiden gentlewomen.

Minerva came to them when she was ten. For the next eight years her appetite and her trick of breaking things, especially those she was handling with utmost care, had served as vital grievances. But since she was full grown she ate much less, and hardly ever let fall anything, no matter how fragile or precious; hence, the Miss Grimleys had had to invent a new sin for her. They had chosen to find it in her possible future husband. According to their notion, she was always intent upon matrimony, and scheming to ensnare whatever masculine person chance threw in her way.

The young circuit rider, for example: Jim Mace, the constable, who rode by the big gate every day; the two Leonards, who farmed the lower place; even the young fellow clerking over at the crossroads—hadn't he actually tried to get board at the Grimley mansion? Dr. Bell, the one person who dared speak up to the sisters, rated them soundly for such suspicions. No wonder, he said, poor Minerva, as shy and modest as any white rose, was awkward, almost rude, indeed, to all the young fellows she encountered, and therefore likely to die an old maid.

Miss Jane and Miss Abby nodded approval there. Minerva was to have everything when they were gone—it would be quite enough to keep her like a lady. Husbands were but worries most of the time. As for children—they shook their heads and sighed. Clearly, in their judgment, a woman was lucky to escape such things. Look at Minerva herself! Where would she be now if the Grimleys had not chosen that better part?

Dr. Bell, who had a tongue as rough and a heart as warm as his great coat, growled at them. After a while, being a strategist, he did something else—something which, at first blush, made him laugh a great shouting laugh. When his wife asked the meaning of it, he said enigmatically:

"Oh, I'm going to cure some chronic cases by provoking an epidemic."

And that was all she could get out of him, no matter how hard she tried. She could not try very hard, since, like the rest of the neighborhood, she was giving all her mind to the coming session of the synod.

It was to be a great occasion, ministers, their wives, sons and daughters, were coming by the score. Their number would not be too great, however, for the countryside's hospitality.

With no provocation whatever from the church, Dr. Bell fixed it so the Grimleys would have rather more than a double share of the clerical influx: Namely, Deacon Brown and his wife; Dr. Henshaw, a pulpit Sanson, just beginning to look about him over the edges of weeds not yet rusty; Prof. Balderson, famed for persuading money into college channels; and young Lee, not yet come to full ordination. How the doctor managed all this is not known. He was almost unscrupulous when it came to carrying out a plan. At least two other households were full of bitter jealousy over the parceling out of guests, but the guests did not suspect it—least of those fated to sit at meat with the Grimleys.

Miss Jane was a famous cook. Miss Abby was past mistress at preserving. Minerva made cake that was simply heavenly, and black Susan was a miracle of efficient strength in the kitchen. So the visitors rejoiced that their lines had fallen as they had. Indeed, all through synod week they could not say enough in praise and gratitude to their hostesses. As a consequence, Miss Jane and Miss Abby forgot either to scold or to suspect. Carried away by the tide of hospitable impulse, they showed for what they were—excellent gentlewomen, of the first rank.

As for Minerva, she fairly blossomed. Even the most callous onlooker saw in her a new creature. She was so radiant, indeed, that, before three days were out, Prof. Balderson, a seasoned bachelor, made up his mind to marry her—if he could. He changed his mind after good Sister Brown had let fall words of wisdom. "It's providential," she said, nodding toward Minerva and young Lee. "If ever anybody was cut out for a pastor's wife, it's that sweet girl—and I'm mighty glad to believe both of them have found it out."

Slight observations brought the professor himself to the same belief. For half an hour he was right down crest-fallen—then he flung up his head and actually whistled. Possibly the sight of Miss Jane had nothing to do with it. But certainly that afternoon, and all through the days following, he kept pretty close to her. Miss Jane was in a state of mind. It was plain as a pikestaff that that man Henshaw was making up to Sister Abby—Abby who had never before tolerated anybody's courting.

"He must have bewitched her—that's all the way I can account for it," she confided, almost weeping, to the professor upon Saturday afternoon. "Something ought to be done about it. It's ridiculous—at her time of life. I don't understand it a bit."

"No—but it may be the cooking. Dr. Henshaw's a good man, but not wholly above earth," the professor comforted wisely. "Besides, I can quite understand a man's loneliness is something dreadful. He has just about had time to find out how much he misses his wife. In fact he is worse off than I—who have been lonely so many years."

"Well! It was just because you chose to be," Miss Jane snapped—then could have bitten her tongue.

The professor positively beamed over her intimation. "I wonder if you can be in the right," he murmured. "Honestly, now, dear Miss Jane, if—I found myself greatly attracted by a most superior woman of suitable age, do you think I should have any chance?"

"You'll have to find out for yourself—one woman never knows about another," Miss Jane retorted, but with a blush that would have done credit to Minerva.

The professor took her hand. "But—suppose it is not—another?" he asked. "Suppose I dare raise my eyes to you?"

If Miss Jane had felt what was coming, the sudden certainty of it overwhelmed her. For the first and last time she fainted outright—and most gracefully, notwithstanding her hundred and fifty pounds, upon the professor's shoulder.

Minerva came running to them, exclaiming anxiously. "Fetch Dr. Bell! And keep Aunt Abby away!"

Afternoon service was just about to begin—in the stir and confusion of getting the crowd inside the church it was easy to mask Miss Jane's faint as something else.

"Oh, I—I turned my ankle," she herself said, sniffing the salts Sister Brown held under her nostrils.

"Then we must take you straight home," the professor said, as one in authority, looking into her eyes while he nodded toward Minerva and her sweetheart.

Miss Jane began to say faintly, "Abby—where is she?" but Sister Brown checked her with a significant smile.

"Don't you worry about Miss Abby," she said. "Just let them put you in the barouche and go along. Dr. Henshaw'll see to it your sister gets home all right."

Then Dr. Bell exploded. When he could speak for laughing, he said, wringing Miss Jane's hand heartily, and beaming on the professor:

"It has worked splendidly. Get home—all of you. I'll tell Abby everything—and make her likewise tell me."

"What has worked?" Miss Jane demanded, suddenly forgetting her turned ankle and stamping her foot. The doctor looked quizzically from her to Minerva, then on to the professor and young Lee, whence his eyes wandered to Miss Abby and her prize, just now coming up to them.

"My organized epidemic," he said, with another great laugh. "Of matrimony, to be sure—it hurt my feelings to see three fine wives going to waste."

For once Miss Jane had no word ready—the professor was likewise silent. But young Lee spoke up manfully:

"You were exactly right, doctor—and no man could have done a better deed."

"So, I can say: 'Bless you, my children!' all round?" the doctor queried. Young Lee's eyes twinkled. "Sure thing," he said. "You see Dr. Henshaw begged me to fix things with Minerva, so Miss Abby would have no excuse to make him wait."

"She didn't think of me, I suppose," Miss Jane said, sighing. The others smiled. Sister Brown spoke for all of them. "No—she didn't forget you," she said. "But all of us have seen how it would be this last three days."

Opposed Taking of Census.

The first census in history was that taken of the Jews by David who counted all males over 20 with their cattle. The procedure aroused the wrath of the people and it was currently believed that God punished the race for the impiety involved. Later censuses were quite as unpopular, and even in America in the eighteenth century a great deal of opposition to the scheme was caused by the government's proposal to count heads. Gov. Hunter of New York, in 1712, attempted to make a census, but abandoned the idea after he had it well started. A few years later the New Jersey government attempted the same task, but also gave it up because of the opposition among the people, who still clung to the belief that the Almighty objected to the enumeration.

Growth of Candy Industry.

The immense chocolate candy industry is an outgrowth of French colonists in Venezuela and Trinidad experimenting in French bonbons and nuggets (nuggets), so dear to the French palate. From France this chocolate candy has spread all over the world and may run for the money a race with the tobacco habit.

Varying Weight of Bees.

The French honey bees weigh about 1,600 to the pound, but the wild bees of Russia are so light that it takes 5,000 of them to weigh a pound.

Box Rents—Notice was posted in the postoffice today that all box rents must be paid before the first of the month or the boxes will be closed. Three months ago when this order was put up it was ignored by many box renters with the consequence that they had to get their mail at the window on the first of the month as the postal officials have no discretion in this matter.

PRE-HISTORIC SANTA FE.

north of the iron bridge Abiquil and Ojo Caliente. These walls evidently survived the partial destruction of the Palace in 1680.

"None of these towns were occupied at the time when the Santa Fe valley was first seen by white men. All were in ruins but the evidences at hand justify the belief that if one could have stood upon the spot where the city now stands, looking east from the site of the Church of Our Lady of Guadalupe, five hundred years ago, there would have been seen on what we call Fort Marcy hill, an Indian town of considerable size, consisting of one large terraced pueblo and one or more smaller buildings near by, a kiva or sanctuary of the circular subterranean type on the bench half way down the hill side; south of the river, on San Miguel slope, a small pueblo two stories high, and passing back and forth from these two towns to the river, then considerably larger than now, the water carriers with their ollas on their heads. In the foreground, where the historic Old Palace has undergone the vicissitudes of nearly three centuries, would have been seen a cluster of ruined walls and rounded mounds, the remains of an earlier town, over which some of the earliest houses of Santa Fe were doubtless built.

"Such is our conception of 'Pre-historic Santa Fe' and for it there is abundant documentary and archaeological evidence. In this form it will be presented by Mr. Lotave in the first of a cycle of paintings now being executed for the historic corridor in the Archaeological Museum in the Old Palace representing the principal epochs of the civilization of this place.

"It is of the greatest importance that all archaeological remains uncovered in works of building and ditching in and about Santa Fe be carefully preserved. This is especially so of skeletons for no other evidence throws so much light on the problems of the earliest inhabitants of this region, the ancestry of the Pueblo Indians and kindred questions. It is hoped that all such remains will be placed in the museum where they can be scientifically studied and their value made known. Otherwise, they are utterly lost. The museum and what it contains belongs to all the people. It exists solely for their benefit and if all join in its upbuilding it can become a great institution for public education. When remains are found, if the museum is notified, a member of its staff will go at once to assist in recovering them and preparing them for removal. Valuable specimens are often damaged beyond recovery by careless or unskillful handling, and, moreover, in every case there are certain observations that should be made on the ground while the specimen is in place, by one who is accustomed to such work. In the study of ancient life, nothing is more instructive than the phenomena connected with burial. In the position in which the body was placed, the method of wrapping, the disposition of objects about the dead the people gave expression to their thoughts concerning those questions which have been through all the ages, as they are today, the ones most compelling and most baffling to the human mind. If viewed in this light a skeleton or a mummy ceases to be simply an object of morbid curiosity and becomes one of serious, thoughtful interest."

GOVERNOR MILLS STARTS FOR HOME TOMORROW.

Acting Governor Jaffa Receives Another Message From Him—Quiet at Capital.

Acting Governor Jaffa has received a telegram from Governor William J. Mills stating that he expects to start for Santa Fe in "two or three days." It is figured out that he will therefore leave tomorrow or next day as the message was sent yesterday. The governor has been in Washington looking after important matters and also went to New Haven to see his son graduate. Mrs. Mills and Miss Madeline Mills were also at New Haven to attend the commencement exercises of Yale University.

Quiet reigned at the capitol today. The corporations had taken a day off and filed no applications to do business in the territory and no applicants for the office of notary public were heard from.

R. F. Asplund, of the education department is in Belen today attending the institute there and will go to Las Vegas before he returns home.

Inspector E. E. Van Horn has just returned from Taos where he went on business. He rode 210 miles in three days and says that New Mexico horses are as good as any to be had.

Appraisers Make Report. The appraisers appointed in the condemnation proceedings of the Santa Fe Irrigation Company against J. S. Candelario for about 25 acres of uncultivated lands to be covered by the Arroyo Hondo reservoir No. 3, five miles south of Santa Fe, have awarded the defendant $75 for the tract. The appraisers were Frank Owen, J. W. Mayes and Leo Hersch.

to complete the project are in dead earnest to make it a winner, which will mean the settlement of several thousand people eventually in the basin of the Hondo and an addition of half a million dollars a year to the trade of Santa Fe, that is if local businessmen are alert to their advantages.

FORT SUMNER CELEBRATES PASSAGE OF STATEHOOD BILL.

Special to the New Mexican.

Fort Sumner, N. M., June 22.—Fort Sumner celebrated. Anvils boomed, torches blazed, small boys yelled, women sang, and business men made speeches.

J. H. Keeling presided over a "short order" celebration that overtopped all high marks for local enthusiasm. Good will, confident expectancy, and a broad-minded determination to forget party and pull for a greater New Mexico that the Fort Sumner valley may share in the results of the just development of the great southwest was the keynote of the speeches. Among the speakers were J. H. Keeling, who unfurled the flag, A. P. Anaya and Isaac Sandoval who spoke partly in Spanish, E. L. Bernard and W. G. McCanne, the wheel horses in the industrial development of the beautiful Fort Sumner valley, L. D. Beckwith, secretary of the Commercial association and Mrs. Beckwith, who was the only woman found that had voted for president, and John Taylor, whose one-sentence speech, "And there's a man who has had more to do with it than any one, except the president—W. H. Andrews!" brought an outburst of enthusiasm in recognition of his services.

REPORT ON PREPARATION OF MISSIONARIES.

Edinburgh, Scotland, June 22.—At today's session of the World Missionary conference, the general subject of preparation for work among non-Christian people was discussed. The report of the commission on "Preparation of Missionaries," was presented by Chairman Rev. Dr. W. Douglass McKenzie, president of the Hartford Theological seminary, at Hartford, Connecticut.
