From the Tucumcari Sun.

The Bell ranch this week received a herd of real buffalos from the Frank Rocketteller ranch near Pratt, Kansas. The herd consists of two cows, two calves, one yearling bull and a yearling heifer.

The animals will be kept in a pasture to themselves, where it is expected they will thrive. When they were taken from the train at Tucumcari they were apparently very gently, but when once out on the range their wild instincts returned, and it took three cow-punchers three days to drive them to the pasture ten miles away.

The board of county commissioners, consisting of T. C. Collins of Obar, Fred Walther of Puerto, and W. B. Rector of Tucumcari, are holding a special session at the court house today.

The meeting is in regard to the sale of the state road bonds. The bonds will in all probability be sold within the next few weeks.

The share that will come to Quay county will amount to over $18,000.00. The regular quarterly session of the board will be held on Tuesday, July 6th.

Inspector Farwell of the state engineers office was here last week and accepted the bridge across the Revuelto between Tucumcari and San Jon. He pronounced the job one of the best ever done in the state and greatly complimented the workmen, and Geo. Tate who supervised the construction.

The Elk Drug Store was entered Tuesday night by burglars and the sum of $47.50 taken from the cash register and from a "punch board." The money from the register was mostly change, that from the board being gold pieces. The parties entered the dasement through a window and then cut out an opening in the floor with a brace and bit.

The ones who did the work were evidently acquainted with the layout of the building, and had studied their plans very carefully. The deed is supposed to have been committed between one and two in the morning. Night marshal Akin passed the place about one and everything was then quiet.

It is now supposed that the parties who committed the act are the same ones who burglarized the stores of the M. B. Goldenberg Company and Joseph Israel, which happened within the last few weeks.

The city police force in conjunction with the sheriff and his deputies got busy at once on the case and on Wednesday evening arrested two suspects, A. L. Kabon and Harry Ridley. Both men were confined in jail. This morning Ridley secured bond and was released pending the preliminary which is set for July 6th. Kabon is still detained in jail.

GREAT FLEET FOUND

British Navy Is at Anchor in the Orkneys.

American Ship Officer, on Height, Sees World's Most Formidable Fleet—Secrecy and Close Guard Is Maintained.

By LOUIS EDGAR BROWNE.

Correspondent of the Chicago News.
Rotterdam, Holland.—The British North sea battleship fleet is in the Orkney Islands north of Scotland. For more than two months there has been no official news given to the world as to its whereabouts or what it was doing. On the contrary, strenuous efforts have been made to conceal the location of the fleet. The fleet's great work is done. It destroyed every German commerce raider. It drove every enemy ship to harbor.

There remains only one task—the destruction of the German fleet. British naval policy long ago assumed definite shape. There is believed to be little doubt that the British fleet will annihilate the enemy when they meet, but the admiralty thinks that this meeting will take place only when the Germans are ready to fight in open sea. Until then the British fleet will remain safe in port. It will not risk unremunerative loss by permitting isolated divisions to cruise in the North sea, a fair and sure target for the active German submarines.

Consequently the British fleet lies at anchor just as far from the German naval bases as it can get. But it is ready. There is no question about that. It is in the pink of condition—and is eager.

By years of labor and the expenditure of much money the English navy has transformed the barren, desolate Orkney Islands into one of the strongest naval positions in the world. It is Great Britain's Kiel canal and Wilhelmshaven all in one. The great feature about this base is its inaccessibility.

The mate of an American merchant ship which was held at Kirkwall in the Orkney Islands pending examination slipped ashore. He made a complete circuit of the Kirkwall mainland and from the top of a mountain which overhangs the landlocked harbor he had an excellent view of the great hidden naval base.

When the American ship was at Kirkwall there were more than seventy great warships lying at anchor under the lee of the island of Hoy. Forty of these were dreadnaughts and battle cruisers. Thirty were older battleships and large armored cruisers. In other parts of the bay were fleets of warships of other types.

To the left of the battleship fleet was an armada of more than 100 wicked looking destroyers, while still farther to the left lay a fleet of armed merchantmen, probably to be used as transports. Behind the dreadnaught fleet, built out from the sandy shore, was a long wharf with several small buildings upon it. To this wharf a fleet of submarines was tied side by side in groups of four.

New York Judge Refuses to Allow Club to Take "Insane" Name.

New York.—Supreme Court Justice Brady, sitting in Bronx county, refused to approve the application of the organizers of a social organization called the Daffydill Club for incorporation. Taking judicial notice of current slang, the court said:

"My objection is to the name. The incorporators surely cannot have considered its significance, or, if they really possess the characteristics proper for membership in such a club with such a name, they should have the approval of the state lunacy commission."

booms and strong wire nets. The fourth is obstructed in the same manner, so that only a skillful pilot can bring a big ship through in safety.

One might sail around the Orkneys indefinitely and never suspect that the most powerful fleet in the world lay hidden just over the circular ridge of mountains.

German submarines are constantly nosing about. Hardly a day passes that one or more is not sighted. It has been reported that several German submarines have been sunk just off the Orkneys.

The British navy has taken elaborate precautions to prevent German cruisers from getting to sea for commerce raiding. The Skager-Rak, between Norway and Denmark, is watched closely by swift destroyers and submarines. If German ships stand out from the Baltic into the North sea through the Skager-Rak, the destroyer informs the headquarters of the fleet, on the island of Hoy in the Orkneys, by wireless, giving the strength of the enemy, the course and speed.

There is another strong patrol which completely blocks the North sea between the Shetland Islands and the coast of Norway. The English channel blockading fleet comes under another division entirely. But all are quite sure that a German cruiser would not elude discovery if it attempted a dash to the open Atlantic

MAKES DARING TRIP

Belgian Newspaper Man Tells of Escape Into Holland.

Humble Heroes Who Make a Living in Expediting Passage of Those Who Wish to Go to Holland—Trying Night Watch.

Rotterdam.—Willy R. Benedictus, a well-known Belgian newspaper writer, has arrived here after a daring trip through the German lines guarding the frontier of Belgium.

To get out he employed one of the perilous business of expediting the passage of those wishing to leave the conquered kingdom. They arrived at a hamlet on the frontier late at night. "The man at whose house we put up is one of the humble heroes who during the war have sprung up from the most unexpected quarters," said Benedictus.

"Before the war he might have been something of a poacher, but since the summer he has been of incomparable use to his country in allowing hundreds of young men to leave Belgium and join the army. He began by taking me for a spy on account of my beard. 'Beard,' he said, 'may be false.' But my guide gave him the password. That satisfied him, and we waited what the night was to bring us.

"Three other young men were to pass also; one of them, a Russian, had waited for five days in the peasant's little house.

"Our host took us at about midnight to a spot I shall remember till my dying day. Imagine a road of ten yards or so in width running between the sharp ascents of two clifflike little hills. One of the cliffs is Belgium. The other—Holland. All we had to do was to run down one of the cliffs, cross the road and climb into the other steep bank. But easier said than done!

"For hours we crouched behind our cliff awaiting the signal, which our leader was in no haste to give. I cannot answer for the others, but for my part I was growing nervous. It is known that the sentries fire at once if they see anyone. And their shouting rather got on my nerves.

"There were two of them—two landsturm men—walking to and fro on the road. We saw clearly every line of their faces, as the moon was full, and the big men guarding an invisible line and halloing to each other from time to time, were ghostly.

"Isn't the full moon a drawback for us?" I asked our guide. "By no means; if there were no such moon you could rush into the sentry's arms, as a young fool did last week!"

"We had to wait the moment when the sentries were a hundred yards from each other. It struck half-past two at a neighboring church; the sentries exchanged, or rather shouted, the password; the signal was given, and off we darted. We threw ourselves down the cliffs and the ten yards of the road were covered in two strides. But the climbing up the other cliff was no joke. We had just to take hold of the jutting stones; but we thought not of the difficulty. Something pushed us on—the feeling of immediate danger. I know not how I came to climb up and to run some hundred yards out of danger. Even then the well-known buzzing of the bullets were heard around us. The sentries must have seen our shadows crossing the road. Something else was heard. . . . I shall always swear it was a woman's cry, shrill and piercing in the cool night . . . then something like a wall, and all was again silence."

STATE GETS FAMOUS FLAG

Colonel Proctor's "Rattlesnake" Now Reposes in the State Library at Harrisburg, Pa.

Greensburg, Pa.—The famous rattlesnake flag has been transferred from the vault of the Merchants' and Farmers' bank in Greensburg to the state library, Harrisburg, to take its place among the relics of American wars. The rattlesnake flag belonged to Col. John Proctor's independent battalion of Westmoreland county. It was made in 1775 and was carried in the Revolution. Samuel Craig, Sr., who, with his three sons, John, Alexander and Samuel, Jr., fought in Proctor's battalion, was the color bearer.

On Colonel Proctor's death the flag passed to the next senior officer, and so on to the last survivor, Gen. Alexander Craig, with whom it remained until 1914, when it was bequeathed by his great-granddaughter, Jane Maria Craig of New Alexandria, to the state library at Harrisburg.

FEW MONOGRAM HINTS

USE CARE IN SELECTING THE STYLE OF LETTERS.

On This the Success of the Work Depends to a Large Extent—Three Excellent Ideas Illustrated Here.

In making articles, either household or personal, with a monogram, select the style of letters in every case with an eye to the particular article to be decorated. For example, one sees a very pretty monogram designed, say, for a sheet or a pillow slip, and desires to adopt it for marking handkerchiefs. Sometimes it will work out right, but a large monogram reduced to a small one frequently loses its clearness of outline—becomes distinctly blurred. This is inevitable when the design is intricate. Again, a small design may be so enlarged as to give the effect of bareness to the larger lettering. This, however, can be remedied in a measure by adding stitches to aid the impression of fullness—such as delicate vines creeping in and out of the lettering—or by encircling the letters with a heavy frame in satin stitch as shown in illustration No. 1.

This monogram, worked about twelve inches in length, is especially pleasing on a cushion cover, the center of a bedspread or at the top of a sheet. It is a design, too, which may be increased or reduced in size without spoiling the effect aimed at. One would scarcely need it very much larger, but it may be reduced to five inches, if desired, without losing any of its beauty.

No. 2 is excellent for making men's collar bags, pajamas, golf bags, shirts, shirt cases, etc., and will look well in any size from one to four inches. It is a good design also for the smaller household linens—tray cloths, doilies, guestroom towels and pillow slips.

The plain outline depicted looks well as a house linen decoration; but when such dainty articles as a pin-cushion top, a handkerchief or glove needles and the pocket for the scissors must be sewed in their places upon the silk. These pockets are bound at the edges with narrow ribbon and the board is edged with a silk cord of the same color as ribbon.

Three reels of cotton are suspended from the top of the board with loops of narrow ribbon, the ends of which are tied in smart little bows.

For suspending the board from a nail in the wall, a loop of broad white satin ribbon with a bow at the top is attached to the back and the board is further ornamented with two loops of ribbon at each side and three loops at the base.

FOR THE BATHROOM FLOOR
Something That Is a Real Novelty Will Probably Be Given a Warm Welcome.

We have all become so accustomed to accepting the Turkish bath mat as the regulation thing that it is a positive relief to see the shops exploiting something new in this indispensable household commodity. This newest venture into realms of unusual needlework is a bath mat worked in colors upon what might be described as huck toweling, disguised as a natural colored, heavy, linen basket weave cloth. It is not very large, but of a size sufficient to cover the tile or wooden floor in front of the usual size bathtub. There is a border on this rug formed by a darning stitch done with blue cotton. In the center there is a large oblong containing the enlightening words, "bath mat," worked out in the same blue cotton.

Between the border and the oblong portion there is a curious blending of colors in the same darning or weaving stitch, except that the stitches run only one way. The rug is finished at both ends with an ornamental linen braid. The whole effect is of a rug woven with rich colors on a putty-colored ground.

How to Transfer.
Place a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material.

THE GROWTH OF WESTERN CANADA

Increase in Railway Mileage, School Attendance and Population.

Some idea of the extent of railway construction in Western Canada can be derived from the fact that the railway mileage in the Province of Alberta has been doubled in three years. The present mileage is 4,097. In all of the settled districts there is ample railway privileges. The rates are governed by a Dominion Railway Commission, and in the exercise of their powers they not only control the rates, giving fair equality to both railway and shipper, but form a court to hear complaints of any who may desire to lodge the same.

In the matter of education no better instance of the advancement that is taking place can be given than that found in the information to hand that attendance at the University of Alberta has increased 1,000 per cent in five years, and is now thoroughly representative of all settled portions of the Province. The students in attendance are from sixty-one distinct districts.

Then as to the prosperity which follows residence in Western Canada, J. E. Edward of Blackie, Alta., gives splendid testimony. He writes, "In the spring of 1907 I first came to this locality from the State of Iowa, Cass County, and located on a quarter section of land near Blackie. Since coming here I have been engaged in mixed farming, which I have found to be more profitable than where I formerly lived. On coming here my worldly holdings were small besides having a family to care for. I now own three quarter sections, sixty head of cattle, twenty head of horses and forty head of hogs, without encumbrance.

"During the seven years I have not had a crop fail. My best crop of oats averaged ninety bushels per acre, with a general yield of thirty-five bushels and upward. My best wheat crop averaged forty-three bushels per acre. When I have had smaller yields per acre I have found that it has been due to improper cultivation. The winters here, although at times the weather is cold, I find as a whole are very agreeable. The summers are warm, but not sultry. The summer nights are cool and one is always assured of a good night's rest. My health has been much better, as I do not suffer from catarrh since coming here. I have no land for sale, and am not wishing to make any change, but would be pleased to answer any enquiries concerning this locality."—A&V

FREE FROM THOSE WORRIES

Troubles of Commuter Got Little Sympathy From Fellow Passenger on Train.

"Some of my bulbs have rotted in the ground. Ever have that happen to you?" asked the commuter of the man who sat beside him in the train.

"No, I can't say I have," replied the other.

"And the bugs in my rosebushes are a pest. Do you have any trouble of that kind?"

"Not a bug on a single bush."

"That's strange. Now, with my lawn, I find that only about half the grass looks healthy. The rest won't grow no matter how much I water it. But I suppose you know from experience what that is?"

"Never had any grass trouble, either."

"Great Scott, man!" exclaimed the commuter. "How do you manage to escape all these annoyances?"

"Very easily, sir. I live in a hotel."

Russia Becomes Temperate.

The prohibition of selling brandy in the government monopoly shops was introduced throughout the Russian empire from the beginning of the war, on the day of mobilization, and has now been in force for more than eight months. One of the Russian papers has made inquiries concerning the results of this measure, and has published some of the statistical data that were collected. The following list shows that the consumption of vodka in the city of Moscow in 1914 compared with the preceding year: July, 612,686 gallons in 1913 and 359,124 gallons in 1914; August, 667,926 gallons in 1913 and 23,373 gallons in 1914; October, 707,688 gallons in 1913 and 2,913 gallons in 1914. During the first three months vodka could be obtained at the first-class restaurants for consumption in the same, the selling of vodka in bottles being prohibited under a heavy fine.

Earmarks.

Alexander Powell, war correspondent and lecturer, said at a tea in New York:

"The English volunteer troops are splendid. You can tell by certain earmarks where they come from. You can tell the miners of the Midlands, the mill hands of Manchester, the bookkeepers of London, the—"

"How do you tell them?" a young lady asked.

"Well," said Mr. Powell, "it's easy enough to tell, for example, the bookkeepers. Every time the bookkeepers are commanded to stand at ease they try to put their rifles behind their ears."

Steep the Sassafras.

A St. Louis clergyman gloomily informs us:

"The images of the poet and the painter have ceased to charm us. We want the realities. Hence the passing of poetry."

Sassafras tea in liberal doses, about this time of year, was formerly believed to be a sound remedy for the physical conditions which generate that state of mind.

Caught.

"What a pretty hat, Mrs. Pinky wore this evening."

"Did you like it, dear?"

"Yes, it was very becoming. Why don't you get hats like that?"

"You mustn't blame me if I laugh, Mrs. The hat you like is my hat."

Johs. Pinky borrowed it this evening. It's the $30 hat you called a fright."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Villain Outvillained.

"I wouldn't trust him," she argued.

"Neither would I," assented the other girl; "he's as treacherous as a fountain pen."

It is the man who listens to both sides of the question who meets the greatest number of liars.

GET POWER

The Supply Comes From Food.

If we get power from food, why not strive to get all the power we can. That is only possible by selecting food that exactly fits the requirements of the body.

"Not knowing how to select the right food to fit my needs, I suffered grievously for a long time from stomach trouble," writes a lady from a little Western town.

"It seemed as if I would never be able to find out the sort of food that was best for me. Hardly anything that I could eat would stay on my stomach. Every attempt gave me heart-burn and filled my stomach with gas. I got thinner and thinner until I literally became a living skeleton and in time was compelled to keep to my bed."

"A few months ago I was persuaded to try Grape-Nuts food, and it had such good effect from the very beginning that I kept up its use. I was surprised at the ease with which I digested it. It proved to be just what I needed."

"All my unpleasant symptoms, the heart-burn, the inflated feeling which gave me so much pain, disappeared. My weight gradually increased from 98 to 116 lbs., my figure rounded out, my strength came back, and I am now able to do my housework and enjoy it. Grape-Nuts did it."

A ten days trial will show anyone some facts about food.

DRY FARM SEED ESSENTIALS

Great Many Failures May Be Attributed to Overseeding—Much Care Must Be Exercised.

One of the most important problems associated with dry farming is the determination of the rate of seeding per acre. A great many failures in dry farming may be attributed to overseeding.

The one limiting factor of crop production on dry lands is moisture, and it is largely because of its deficiency that care must be exercised in the rate of planting. Each plant in the soil takes out large quantities of water, which are evaporated into the air through the leaves, consequently when a thick stand is obtained large quantities of water are drawn from the soil.

A thick, luxuriant stand in the spring or early summer is no indication of a good harvest, as the probabilities are that such a heavy stand will deplete the soil of moisture and prevent complete maturity of the crop, while a thin stand would be able to withstand the dry periods and yield fairly well when harvested.

Thin planting does not of necessity mean a thin stand. Whenever the moisture conditions are favorable the plants will stool or branch out and make a stand that will warrant a satisfactory yield and at the same time be heavy enough to shade the ground and reduce the losses from excessive evaporation. When plants are crowded, very little, if any, stooling occurs, and the plant is unable to adapt itself to its immediate conditions.

As a general rule the rate of planting for dry lands is just a trifle more than half of what would be used on irrigated lands.

DISK HARROW IS IMPORTANT

Nothing Will Conserve More Moisture Than by Using It on Stubble—Also Used as a Cultivator.

The disk harrow may be considered as the most important implement for grain farming in a dry climate. Nothing will conserve more moisture by using it on stubble after harvest and before plowing time. It may be used as a cultivator for summer fallowing. On ground where small grains are to follow such crops as beets or potatoes the use of this implement will often make plowing necessary.

The 16-inch disk is of proper size for ordinary farm work. This disk pulls somewhat heavier than the larger sizes, but pulverizes enough better to justify its use. The 16-inch disk penetrates the soil deeper than the larger one, because it has less bearing-up surface; it revolves faster, thus pulverizing the soil better.

For handiness and ease of operation, each gang of the disk should be controlled by an individual lever. All bearings must be well protected from dust and dirt, so constructed as to be easily oiled. Each disk should be provided with a satisfactory foot-lever cleaner. For thickening a thin stand of alfalfa in the early spring or after a cutting, the disk is set almost straight, in which condition it is run over the field twice, just as the alfalfa is beginning to grow in the spring.

DAIRYING AND DRY FARMING

Cow is One of Most Economic Animals for Transforming Field Crops into Human Food.

Dairying should have a place in dry-land farming, because the dairy cow is one of the most economic animals for transforming field crops into human foods. The ultimate object of all live stock and farm labor is to produce food for the masses of humanity from the field crops. The different farm animals will produce from 100 pounds of dry matter in the form of field crops about the following:

The sheep from 100 pounds of dry matter will recover about 2.5 pounds of edible dry matter for human food.

The steer from 100 pounds of dry matter will recover about 2.7 pounds of edible dry matter for human food.

The hog from 100 pounds of dry matter will recover about 16 pounds of edible dry matter for human food.

The dairy cow from 100 pounds of dry matter will recover about 18 pounds of edible dry matter for human food.

This table, deducted from the best experimental data, shows that the dairy cow recovers in her produce the largest per cent of the dry matter in field crops for human food, and the hog ranks second.

PRINCIPAL DRY FARM CROP

In Case Corn Fails to Mature It Can Be Cut Up and Put in Silo for Use of Dairy Herd.

Corn is one of the principal crops of the dry farmer, and if for some reason there is a failure of crop maturity, the stalk can be cut up and used for silage and thereby provide an abundance of the very best of feed for the dairy herd.

The silo is one of the best possible conservers of feed. By the use of silage, every bit of the corn can be utilized. About 40 per cent of the nutrients in corn are in the stalk, and without the silo most of this goes to waste.

The silo also enables the dry farmer to do winter dairying most successfully. The dairy cow needs a succulent feed during the winter months. Silage can also be stored and fed during the summer months when there is a shortage of pasture.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK!
CLEAN LIVER AND BOWELS MY WAY

Just Once! Try "Dodson's Liver Tone" When Bilious, Constipated, Headachy—Don't Lose a Day's Work.

Live up your sluggish liver! Feel fine and cheerful; make your work a pleasure; be vigorous and full of ambition. But take no nasty, dangerous calomel, because it makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver, which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

Listen to me! If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning, because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and cannot salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of calomel is almost stopped entirely here.

SHOE TOKEN OF SUBJECTION

Ancient Significance of Custom Which is Now Looked Upon as Merely a Joke.

As specially applied to weddings, there is a suspicion that the throwing of old shoes—or new slippers, for all that—had at first a significance which would surely be most objectionable to twentieth-century brides. It seems to have been a token of the complete subjection of the bride to her lord and master. In the East a shoe or a slipper was publicly borne at the head of the bridal procession in indication of the bride's subjection, and at some Jewish weddings the bridegroom used to strike the bride a blow with his shoe as a sign that she was thereafter to be submissive to his will. Among the Nestorians it was the custom for the bridegroom to kick the bride, and for her to remove from his foot the shoe with which he had kicked her. To this day there is a common custom in Russia for the bridegroom on his wedding night to require the bride to pull off his boots. In one of them is a whip, and in the other a gift. If she pulls off first the one containing the whip, she gets a stroke from the lash, and is to expect floggings thereafter, but if the gift is first disclosed her married life will be happy. It is related of Martin Luther that once, after performing the wedding ceremony for a couple, he took off the bridegroom's shoe and placed it upon the bride's pillow, as a sign that she should in all things and at all times be subservient to her husband.

BIG REWARD FOR INVENTIONS

British Government is Encouraging Ideas Tending to Improve Development of Army Equipment.

That there are handsome rewards for those who are able to devise improvements in guns and machinery is shown in sums that have been paid in fees to inventors at army ordnance factories for the year ending March, 1914. No less than £4,000, for instance, was paid to Col. C. L. Holden, late superintendent of the royal gun and carriage factories, for various inventions and improvements connected with ordnance mountings, machine tools, etc., in addition to £500 paid on another account; while £2,850 was paid to Mr. W. T. Thomson, chemist and manager, respectively, of the Royal Gunpowder factory, for improvements in the manufacture of nitro-cellulose and accompanying apparatus, in addition to a previous £1,150.

Smaller amounts, such as £250 to Mr. W. H. Turton, manager of the Royal Gun factory, for improved machines for the manufacture of ordnance; £100 to Mr. W. Lambert for a process for testing steel bullets; £25 each to William Rogers and E. F. Pular for labor-saving and improved tools for use at the Royal Carriage department, and £20 to Assistant Foreman S. Capon, Royal Gun Factory forges, for improved muffle for use in forges, have also been paid.—Tit-Bits.

Aviators' Safety Parachutes.

The energies of practically all the inventors of parachutes for airmen have been directed towards the development of a device for the airman alone, the aeroplane itself being allowed to drop to earth unhindered. Parachutes for the whole aeroplane have just been designed by a French inventor. Two folded parachutes, contained in cone-shaped receptacles, are attached to the wings as near the ends as possible. By means of a simple mechanism, operated by the movement of a small hand lever, these parachutes are pushed out of the containers, after which they are claimed to open freely, no matter in what manner the aeroplane may be falling. All the airman has to do is to hang on to the aeroplane.

In obedience to a custom as old as this nation, the American people today worship at the shrine of liberty and commemorate the anniversary of American Independence. I am sure that as the American people today reflect upon the adversity under which this Republic came into existence, the hardships through which the patriots of Revolutionary days passed, and the sacrifices made by the fearless and courageous men and women who lived in the turbulent days of the infancy of this republic, that a deep feeling of gratitude springs up within their hearts for the heritage they have bequeathed us. I beseech of each of you that as we reflect upon the achievements of the past, the progress along the lines of governmental development, the industrial advancement made, the marked genius of our citizenship as evidenced by the wonderful inventions of the nineteenth century, the marvelous progress in science and the arts, the almost miraculous strides in education as demonstrated by the innumerable rural school houses dotting the prairies and valleys, of this Republic, the high schools of our towns and cities, the universities and academies arising as monuments to the industry and intelligence of our citizenship, that we as citizens of this nation, with opportunities unparalleled in the history of the world, come to a full realization of the duty we owe to society, the responsibility charged to us, to maintain the high standard of citizenship and perpetuate, unstained and unshaken the fair name and fame of this nation, its institutions and the liberal government we now enjoy, assuring to posterity justice to all, and special privileges to none.

Incredulous as it may seem, marvelous as it is, nevertheless it is a fact known to all the civilized nations of the world and disputed by none, that in the past One Hundred and Forty years the United States has organized a government, which at the time of its organization, comprised but thirteen of the forty-eight states of our present Union of States, extending along the Atlantic coast, but now stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the Old Dominion on the north to the Gulf of Mexico on the south, a government built on the faith of our Fathers established in the name of justice and liberty, assuring to each of its citizens, whether in the highest walks of life, or the humblest pursuits which men and women follow, an equality in advantage and voice of our laws and administration of government, with positive assurance of free and equal protection under the law. A government which today stands out among the nations of the world the recognized leader in science, in literature, in inventions, in education, in Christianity, in progress and peace, today looked upon by the nations of the world as the arbiter and guardian of rebellious Mexico, with confidence that through the state craft of our Statesmen, through the peaceful policy of our government, a stable and substantial government based upon the same general and liberal policy of this nation, will soon be established in the Republic of Old Mexico, insuring its citizens against the graft and corruption that have permeated that country for the past three hundred years, increasing its present land-owners from seven thousand to the fifteen millions of its present inhabitants, giving free home to each of its citizens, building school houses and churches, enlightening and educating its citizens that have been held in ignorance and superstition for three hundred years, and thereby solve the problem of free government of Mexico.

This marvelous progress, this wonderful development concerning which I have spoken, is not the result of chance, neither is it the work of any one man or set of men. While we hold in reverence the names of our great statesmen and warriors, who in war have led us safely on to victory, and who in peace advised in the making of laws and have in a large measure shaped the policies of our government and have kept the ship of state from wrecking on the rocks and crags of many perilous seas, and to their memory have erected monuments of granite and marble, and in the hearts and memory of the people have by their deeds and counsel built monuments that will never fade; we must not forget that after all, the potent factor, the fundamental basis and the corner stones upon which this government has been built, and which have brought about the progress we have made, are the cardinal virtues of its splendid citizen ship: The splendid courage and patriotism of her men and women, the industry and intelligence of its citizens, the fidelity and devotion of her fatherhood, and the purity and christian character of her motherhood. When I speak of the courage and patriotism of her citizens I refer to that splendid quality of American manhood and womanhood who in time of peace as well as war have at all times responded to the needs and demands of their country with a fervor and temperament that has led them even to the cannons' mouth in her defence, men and women who have never feared a foe and never lost a battle: When I speak of the intelligence of American men and women, I refer to that magnificent manhood and womanhood who have been indefatigable in the work of building this nation, who contribute of their time and money in the building of our institutions, and who, in time of peace and war have solved all problems that have confronted us and when I speak of the Christian character of American Motherhood and American Fatherhood, I refer to that Splendid Motherhood and Fatherhood that have builded and established pure homes and filled them with virtuous sons and daughters. The character of the homes of our people have contributed the greatest portion to the building and advancement of this nation. From the fireside comes the true American spirit, in the home the great problems of this nation have come up for discussion and with this influence and consideration of the home, of the wife and children, the father has come forth in every civic duty and cause, remembering the interests of his home and loved ones, and guided by the counsel and christian character of his wife and children, has performed his duty as a citizen. Moved by these influences American manhood has made no mistakes in the exercise of his franchise and has faithfully discharged the duties he owes to his home and to his country. And my friends, so long as the future citizens of this republic shall preserve the purity of our homes, so long as we shall preserve the christian character of our citizenship, and abstain from luxury and be modest in all the affairs of life, not given to follow in mad blindness the god of war, the future policy of this nation will be assured along the line of the past. But the moment we drift from these virtues of the home life, and compromise our manhood and womanhood, and indulge in war there is great fear for the future of this nation. It was so with the Roman Empire. It was said of the early Roman that he possessed the faculty of self government with higher degree than any other person with Take warning on this National Holiday and in the American Government, in the name of the American flag, preserve the virtue, the purity and christian character of the American home. Be careful with your sons and daughters, rear them in the admonitions of the Lord, and set before them an example of christian character, of modesty and purity, for by so doing you assure the perpetuity of the nation. My friends, I must not detain you longer, but before closing I desire to make a few remarks concerning our flag, and in my weak and humble way, pay a tribute to this National Banner. The mothers and daughters of this Republic have pressed it to their innocent lips; the fathers and sons have defended it on a hundred battle fields from the crimson green of Lexington and the memorable Bunker Hill to the towering heights of San Juan, and when in the watches of the eventful night foretold by the builder of all nations, when at the sound of the trumpet the nations of the earth shall respond to the Highest of all Governments, there before the armor of the Lord I trust will be seen floating just as the symbol of truth and justice, our flag, the red, the white, and the blue.
