OLDEST AND LEADING NEWSPAPER IN CIRCULATION IN LINCOLN COUNTY, N. M.

VOLUME 20

CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, APRIL 25, 1919.

NUMBER 37

For one person who has made money quickly there are a thousand who have built up a fortune slowly by means of conservative investments, such as Government Securities.

Any sane man would rather lend money at interest, than have it taken from him. The Government must have money. It is a case of lending or being taxed.

Whatever the future has in store, those people who have purchased Government Securities have least to fear and most to congratulate themselves upon.

What you waste will buy a Government Security.

For a person who knows nothing of finance, stocks, shares or bonds, there is one good safe investment--Government Securities.

Place your money with the United States Treasury--the safest place in the world. Buy Government Securities.

Save money, buy U. S. Government Securities; accumulate them, and one day you will be able to buy that "something" you have always wanted.

Last, but by no means least, buy Government Securities because your country needs the loan of your money--and such a demand amounts to a sacred obligation.

A bulletin from headquarters temporary committee, American Legion, 19 West 44th St., New York City, bearing the names of Lt. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, chairman; Lt. Col. Bennett Clark, vice-chairman, and Lt. Col. Eric Fisher Wood, secretary, says that "the object of the St. Louis convention is the formation of an organization to consist of all those who have been in the military and naval service of the U. S. during the present war. It will be absolutely non-partisan, in it the opportunities and influence of all ranks will be equal, whether enlisted or commissioned."

Enlisted men should be elected in each state in the proportion of 50 percent of the total number of delegates.

Ten Heroic Deeds

Ten of the best deeds of heroism of American soldiers have been made into films showing from 400 to 700 feet of action and will be shown throughout the Eleventh Federal Reserve district during the Victory Liberty Loan campaign.

The films were made at Camp Dix, and the movie actors used were actual American soldiers—that is in nearly every incident. When it came to assigning the parts the American boys refused to play the part of the Germans. So the movie directors had to set out in search of professional actors to take the part of the Germans.

The battle scenes were staged under the direction of officers who had had overseas experience.

It was an expensive and difficult matter to get these stories satisfactorily made. Much of the equipment actually used in battle could not be procured at Camp Dix, and it was necessary to carry 3-inch guns by motor truck from Baltimore to Camp Dix. Bombs, paratroopers, flares, machine guns and real bullets were used. The folks around Camp Dix consider it remarkable that nobody was hurt. Some of the scenes show a moving barrage, which was provided by electrically exploding bombs placed ahead of the advancing troops.

Each picture shows the entire exploit of some American hero as described in official reports.

The fighting valor of American boys have matched the fine deeds of heroism in history. In preparing and carrying out the plans of war America has surpassed the great exploits of Hannibal, Caesar and Napoleon. A peasant people furnished millions, piled high, munitions, built ships, made guns, airplanes, built armor, barbed wire, tanks and rifles, carried two million fighters 3,000 miles, across the infected seas—all in less than eighteen months, and—saved the world.

Ten hundreds of heroism pictured in the films show the spirit of these two million fighters which Uncle Sam sent overseas to put an end to the war, to bring about peace, and to make the Victory Liberty Loan the last war loan.

Ellis Richardson Dies

Ellis Richardson, a well known stockman of Ancho, died Tuesday, April 22, from heart failure, following an attack of acute indigestion. Mr. Richardson had the appearance of an exceedingly strong and healthy man, and his sudden death came as a shock to many friends here who knew him well and among whom he was highly respected.

Ellis Richardson was born in Texas in 1858, came to New Mexico several years ago and with the exception of a short residence in Arizona has resided in the Chama-Ancho communities since coming to this county. He leaves a widow, a daughter and a son, the latter with the American forces in Spain.

The funeral was held at the Methodist church yesterday at 2:30 p. m. Pastor Lewisling conducting the services, and the remains interred in the Carrizozo cemetery. The bereaved family have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends.

Distribute Loan Purchases

A telegraphic dispatch from Washington relayed in Dallas today by the War Loan organization says, "You are authorized to say that the secretary of the treasury wants to emphasize in the strongest possible manner that it is imperative that the bankers move issued in the Victory Liberty Loan campaign should be distributed as widely as possible amongst the greatest possible number of people."

This makes clear beyond all doubt the attitude of the government on this important matter, and it sets at rest the rumor that the banks are expected to absorb the offering.

The plain facts about the Liberty Loan are as follows:

For months past the government has been borrowing from the banks to pay our war debts, and the time has now arrived when that money must be paid back. The government ran up a huge bill to buy the equipment and ammunition which started Germany still and ended the war, thus saving the lives of thousands of American boys, who would otherwise be fighting and dying in the trenches today. The public is being asked to lend its money to the government to pay for American boys' lives. This is not a job for the banks, but for every American that is worthy of the name. CLAYTON.

A Word of Warning

A strong word of warning and advice to War Savings investors was issued in an instruction given by R. L. Van Zant, a governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas today. Mr. Van Zant said:

"My attention has been called by the secretary of the treasury to the fact that several persons, and hence to this district are sending out circular letters offering to buy War Savings stamps at greatly reduced prices, ranging all the way from three dollars and seventy cents for the 1919 issue, to four dollars for the 1918 issue. Each of the offers specify that registered War Savings stamp will not be purchased, but that loose stamps or stamps off cards will be purchased where there is no writing on the stamps, even though the cards have names written thereon. It is evident that these unscrupulous dealers intend to soak the stamps off cards which have names written on them, and then the stamps to new cards for the purpose of redemption."

"The warning of all circulars, which have been received by me, are to inform as to what is to be done. The 'unscrupulous' come from the same source, and these offers are made by people who are either selling or agents to the same source, or have an agreement with the same source to take their purchases at some special price."

"These transactions are not only illegal, as the stamps are by law non-negotiable, but are swindling in character, as the original purchaser has the redemption certificate of the possibility open to him in case of need, and can receive the full cash value of the stamps offered by these dealers."

More Rain

Again and again it has rained this week, no heavy fall at any stated period, but splendid showers during the week. Grass is coming nicely—this will give it an additional push—and farming is going on ahead. This should be a banner year.

Gowns and Hats Shown in Paris

This week is sketched a distinct novelty, which would certainly prove very useful for afternoon wear. It is a black charmeuse dress which takes the form of an ultralong tunic, thrown over a straight fourreau of black and white broche silk. The dress is exactly the same back and front and it is in reality a throw-on dress, invisibly attached to the broche fourreau on the shoulders by pressure buttons.

The dress buttons right down the back, and down the front from the point of the deep V opening, and the outline is quite original. The centre is made of white skunk and the same fur borders the high Medici collar and petal cuffs.

This is the type of dress, writes a Paris correspondent, that all elegant women need in their wardrobes. It is sufficiently ornate to wear at a fashionable wedding, and yet it might with perfect propriety be worn at a restaurant tea, or for ordinary visiting. This idea of throwing on a picturesque satin dress over a broadened or striped princess robe is very popular in Paris just now.

We are in the midst of gaiety of one kind or another. Your splendid president has "en in our midst and visits, of a ceremonious order, were the order of the day. Now for such visits this is the kind of costume that our smartest women wear. Something original, dressy without being eccentric and rich without being ostentatious. This idea of throwing on a picturesque satin dress over a broadened or striped princess robe is very popular in Paris just now.

Materials Are Favored.

Worth is using these two materials with the best effects; so is Mme. Paquin and so is Doucet. I saw, recently, in Doucet's showrooms a model dress very similar to that sketched, which was made of deep purple panne over gray and black broadened silk, the latter material being traced over with silver threads. On the neck and sleeves there were narrow borders of sable.

There was a long cape-wrap to accompany the dress and this was also made of purple panne, with an immense sable collar and a lining of silver gray peau de sole—a truly regal toilette. The Parisiennes fell in love with Mrs. Wilson. Everywhere one heard of her "lovely smile" and—for French women place great faith in a correct taste in dress—of her excellent taste in sartorial matters.

I heard a well-known leader of Parisian society exclaim: "Mme. Wilson puts on her hats quite perfectly!" Greater praise than this could not be given—by a Parisienne. For the presidential entertainments many lovely afternoon and evening dresses were ordered in the rue de la Paix. Amongst these I noticed several lace gowns, set in flounces from waist to hem and worn with a tight-fitting satin or embroidered tulle corsege which recalls the outline of days gone by. Lace dresses are becoming quite a craze in Paris; black lace, cream lace and the two combined. We are drifting toward a revival of fussy evening dresses: elaborate gowns trimmed with flounces and with intricate draperies and loops and ribbons. We are in for a reaction in dress matters.

For a long time back we have been satisfied with evening dresses of severe outline, which one could hardly call evening gowns at all.

Await the Final Peace.

Now we are rapidly blossoming out. As if by magic the big "Maison" have suddenly produced exquisite and elaborate evening toilettes, though the Parisiennes insist that really décolleté dresses will not come right into fashion until peace is really signed. All the same we are dancing gaily along the road with leads to such frivolities.

Mirror velvet and panne may be said to be the favorite materials of the present moment for afternoon dresses of elaborate order, and both these materials are mixed with silk jersey-cloth and with bands of handsome fur. Nearly all the more expensive models have rich embroideries on corsage or side-panel, and these embroideries are achieved in metallic threads, glittering beads, brilliant silks and chenille.

I have often seen all these combined on a single length of embroidery. Worth is showing some lovely velvet princess robes which have richly embroidered, very high collars and cleverly arranged draperies of fine silk jersey cloth which fall heavy and straight at the sides of the robe. One model which specially pleased me was in mole-gray velvet, with mole-gray silk jersey cloth side draperies and superb embroideries worked in silver threads and steel beads. There was a high Medici collar, covered with embroidery and bordered with mole-skin and the petal sleeves were very similar to those shown in our sketch. This was one of those elegant, dignified toilettes which are eminently suitable for women of "certain age;" soft, rich dresses, which look so lovely when combined with pure white hair, carefully arranged.

The Gay Floral Toque.

Once again we have floral toques in our midst. This is the best of good news, for the floral toque in early spring, is a thing of beauty and a real joy to eyes wearied by the sight of gray, rather dreary, days and evenings. And then the floral toque is almost universally becoming. The leading milliners in Paris are showing these toques in several different forms; but personally I award the palm for beauty to the close-fitting Russian turban shape which I have sketched.

On a young and pretty girl, or woman, this is an ideal toque for early spring wear. It may be covered with any small flat flower, but roses, violets, hyacinths or scarlet japonica blossoms are perhaps the best of all. The model was covered with dull pink Banksia roses, and very lovely it was. Quite plain and simple, but full of rich and varied color, for the little roses were shaded—here and there dark.

This style of toque must be pressed close down on the head so that the hair at the back is almost covered. No fringe shows on the forehead, but coquettish curls are allowed to straggle forward over the ears. A toque of this kind made entirely of dark purple violets would be lovely; or of Parma violets mixed with dull blue hyacinths; or again with moss roses and soft green rose leaves.

For Correct Combination.

The correct thing to combine with such a toque as this is a large square throw-over veil made of taupe gray Russian net, with the border embroidered in silver threads. These taupe-colored veils are extremely becoming to bright complexions. They look remarkably smart when worn with an all-black hat or toque.

Floral toque covered with dull pink Banksia roses. A thing of beauty and a great relief from the dark gray days.

For early spring wear Lewis is already showing very large flat-brimmed hats made entirely of satin and trimmed with flat bows of velvet ribbon, the latter being placed at one side near the back. Everyone says that the spring season will open exceptionally early this year of 1919. It is to be hoped that the clerk of the weather will remember that we shall badly need a great deal of brilliant sunshine. What is a fête without sunshine? And this year Paris will enjoy one long, long fête.

Coats for Children.

Quite a little attention is being devoted in children's coats to those of fur plushes, velvets and velours, according to reports from authorities in the trade. On a great many of these coats fur trimming is used, and it seems to be very popular in widely separated sections of the country. This demand so far this season has been for the finest quality of materials and workmanship at the most reasonable prices possible. A great many of these garments are cut along military lines, sometimes an exact miniature of the American army officer's hip-length overcoat. For these, of course, a khaki color is used. In others various shades of tan, blue, gray and Nile green are seen.

Spring Waists.

Spring waists are being made of men's striped silk shirting.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Fame and Riches for First Aviator to Cross

WASHINGTON.—The indications are that an attempt to fly across the Atlantic will be made soon. The Aero Club of America has offered a prize of $10,000. The London Daily Mail has offered $50,000 for the first successful flight, with an additional $50,000 if the trip is made in a British-built machine and the start is from British soil.

At least two British airplane makers are planning independent flights. The Aero club has been notified by cable that three British flyers have entered the Daily Mail's contest; their names are not made public. Capt. Hugo Sunstedt, an American who is experimenting with a machine of his own design at Bayonne, N. J., entered the Daily Mail's contest February 14.

Lieut. Col. William A. Bishop, the Canadian ace of aces, has stated publicly that he will essay the flight as soon as his lecture tour is finished. It is known here that Brigadier General Kenley, chief of aeronautics of the army, and Commander Tower of the navy are planning to attempt the flight in person.

Captain Sunstedt is likely to be the first one to start. He plans to fly from New York to St. John's, N. F., and from there to cross to Ireland, a distance of 1,800 miles, in 21 hours. Other starters from this side plan to fly to the Azores, 1,100 miles; thence to Portugal, 675 miles.

The Congress of the United States of America

THE United States senate is always organized for business. The house of representatives, in its entire membership, dies at noon on March 4 of the odd years, as 1917, 1919, etc. At the same time only one-third of the membership of the senate expires. There is always remaining two-thirds of the senate, more than a quorum, ready to do business. Under the provisions of the Constitution the members of the house of representatives are elected to serve two years. When each new congress convenes it is necessary for the house of representatives to elect a presiding officer and all of its other elective officials. The presiding officer of the senate is the vice president of the United States, and he is ready to do business. Reorganization is not a necessity for the senate, but the majority party always does reorganize that body, although generally not immediately.

Each congress exists during the period of the life of the house of representatives, and that is only two years. Each congress expires at noon on March 4 of the odd years. Senators are elected for terms of six years each. They are divided into three classes. The terms of one-third expire with each congress. In the general elections last November there were elected 435 representatives, that being the complete membership of the house of representatives. At the same time there were chosen only 32 senators, and that is one-third of the legislative body, whose complete membership is 96.

The terms of these 32 senators will expire at noon on the fourth day of March, 1925. These 32 senators constitute what is known as the "Class of 1925." The majority of these senators are veterans. There are 18 veterans in this class, men of experience in the rules and regulations of the senate. Theoretically these veterans are more valuable to the country than any newcomer. Anyway, under ordinary conditions, they keep the chairmanships.

Ohio Asks Punishment of William Hohenzollern

VICE PRESIDENT MARSHALL laid before the senate the other day a resolution adopted by the legislature of Ohio, which was referred to the committee on the judiciary. The resolution recites, among other things:

"Whereas, it is charged . . . that William Hohenzollern, the former kaiser and emperor of Germany, actuated by a lust for world domination, was the instigator and cause of the recent world conflict of arms, which has drenched the fields of Europe in blood; entailed a sacrifice of millions of lives; maimed and crippled for life millions more; laid waste vast areas of cultivated lands with their happy homes; brought woe, want, and starvation to multitudes of innocent people."

"Resolved by the general assembly of the state of Ohio, that it is the sense of this body that 'punishment of crime must be made certain in order that society may be safe' and that nations may be secure in their rights and liberties, whether the criminal be of high or low degree, whether he be a king or a peasant, a ruler or a slave; that in the interest of the welfare of the human family and for the future safety of nations justice demands that William Hohenzollern should be apprehended, such formal charges preferred against him as the evidence warrants; that he be given a fair and impartial trial with full opportunity for defense, and, if found guilty, that he be made to suffer punishment commensurate with his crimes, the same as any other criminal."

Text of Monroe Doctrine of the United States

HERE is the Monroe doctrine which bulks so large in the public discussion of the league of nations, together with the circumstances under which it was enunciated by James Monroe, fifth president of the United States, in his message to congress December 2, 1823.

Several Spanish colonies of Central and South America had won their independence after many years of struggle and their independence had been recognized by the United States. In 1822 Spain appealed to the holy alliance—Russia, Prussia, Austria and France—for assistance in recovering her lost colonies. At the same time the Russian czar issued an ukase, putting forth a claim to the Pacific coast of North America as far south as latitude 51 degrees and to exclusive rights in the north Pacific ocean and Behring sea. Hence the two parts of which the Monroe doctrine is composed. The text is as follows:

"In the discussions to which this interest has given rise, and in the arrangements by which they may terminate, the occasion has been deemed proper for asserting, as a principle in which the rights and interests of the United States are involved, that the American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintain, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European power. . . . We owe it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence and maintain it, and whose independence we have, on great consideration and on just principles, acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling in any other manner their destiny by any European power in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States."

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss FLO KELLY, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

Why They Quit

In November last a message was flashed from the German Front to Berlin that it was useless, hopeless, to fight any longer. America was ready to smash the German armies.

It was true. For every ton of mustard gas the Germans possessed America had ten tons ready for shipment. Soon America would have had a tank on every seventy-five feet of front. Thousands of batteries of guns would soon have been placed, where we had none before.

By making these preparations and letting the Kaiser know what was coming we ended the war, and saved the lives of thousands of American boys, who would otherwise be fighting and dying in the trenches to-day.

This is what we want you to pay for by lending your money to the Victory Liberty Loan---American boys' lives. You will not fail to respond to this kind of appeal. From a sense of duty, and in a spirit of gratitude,

O'REILLY'S HOPES OF FINDING AND RESCUING ROSA RECEIVE A CRUSHING BLOW

Synopsis.—Don Esteban Varona, rich Cuban planter, hides his money and jewels and the secret of the hiding place is lost when he and the only other person who knows it are killed. Donna Isabel, step-mother of the Varona twins—Esteban and Rosa—searches vainly for years for the hidden treasure. Johnny O'Reilly, an American, loves and is loved by Rosa. Donna Isabel falls to her death in an old well while walking in her sleep. Esteban's connection with the Cuban Insurrectos is discovered and he and Rosa are forced to flee. O'Reilly, in New York on business, gets a letter from Rosa telling of her peril and he starts for Cuba. Pancho Cueto, faithful manager of the Varona estates, betrays Esteban and Rosa, leading Colonel Cobo, notorious Spanish guerrilla, to their hiding place. Esteban, who is absent, returns just in time to rescue Rosa.

"Senor, you are in danger. Tonight, at midnight, you will be arrested. I beg of you to see that there is nothing incriminating in your possession."

O'Reilly's face betrayed his amazement. "Arrested? What for? On what charge?"

The stranger shrugged. "I don't know. That newspaper man will be arrested at the same moment, so you had better warn him. But be careful where and how you do so, for all his movements are watched, all his words are overheard."

"Why do you tell me this—yes? Is it some scheme to—to incriminate me?" O'Reilly inquired.

Manin was leaning over the counter, his face drawn with anxiety, his lips framing the same question.

"No!" The lieutenant shook his head. "I am a friend—a Cuban, in spite of this uniform. If you repeat my words I shall be shot within the hour. I implore you—his voice became more urgent—to heed my warning. Remember—midnight!"

He bowed, turned to the door, and was gone.

On the stroke of midnight O'Reilly was arrested. After a thorough search of his person and his premises he was escorted to government headquarters, where he found Leslie Branch.

The invalid looked taller, thinner, more bloodless than ever, and his air of settled gloom admirably became the situation.

"Hello, What luck?" Johnnie flashed at him.

"Good!"

An officer sharply commanded him to be silent.

The prisoners were ordered to stand aside by the door, facing their accusers. Then each in turn was subjected to a rigorous examination. Owing to his acquaintance with Spanish, O'Reilly was able to defend himself without the aid of an interpreter.

"Tonight, at Midnight, You Will Be Arrested."

It was evident from the first that Branch's case was hopeless. He readily acknowledged himself to be a newspaper writer, and admitted having sent articles for publication through the mails. This was quite enough; from the attitude of the military men it promised to go hard with him. Judgment for the moment was suspended, and the two prisoners were led away.

At last O'Reilly was recalled; but when he re-entered the big room he found General Antuna awaiting him, alone.

The general spoke with force and gravity: "Mr. O'Reilly, I believe you to be a far greater menace to the interests of my country than—well, than a score of dynamite experts. I believe you are a writer."

"The American smiled. 'Are writers such dangerous people?'"

"That altogether depends upon circumstances. The United States is inclined to recognize the belligerency of these Cuban rebels, and her relations with Spain are becoming daily more strained; ill-feeling grows, and all because of the exaggerations, the mendacities, that have gone forth from here to your newspapers. We are determined to put down this uprising in our own way; we will tolerate no foreign interference. War is never a pleasant thing, but you journalists have magnified its horrors and misrepresented the cause of Spain until you threaten to bring on another and a more horrible combat. Now, then, you understand what I mean when I say that you are more dangerous than a powder expert; that your pen can do more injury, can cause the death of more Spanish troops than could a regiment of Americans with dynamite. Your English friend makes no secret of his business, so we shall escort him to Neuvas and see him safely out of the country, once for all."

"And yet you permit me to remain?" Johnnie was surprised.

"For the present, yes! That is my official message to you. Privately, however—the speaker eyed O'Reilly with a disconcerting expression—"I would like to warn you. You are a bright fellow, and you have a way with you—there's no denying it. Under other conditions it would be a pleasure to know you better. It grieves me, therefore, to warn you that your further stay in Cuba will not be pleasant. I almost regret that there is no conclusive evidence against you; it would so simplify matters. Come, now, hadn't you better acknowledge that I have guessed your secret?"

O'Reilly's perplexity was changing to dismay, for it seemed to him he was being played with; nevertheless, he shook his head. "I would only be deceiving you, sir," he said.

General Antuna sighed. "Then I see embarrassments ahead for both of us."

"More arrests?"

"Not necessarily. Understand me, I speak as one gentleman to another, but—you must have noticed that Americans are unpopular with our troops. Eh? They are impulsive, these troops; accidents cannot be prevented. Suppose something should happen to you? There is the trouble. You came to Cuba to enjoy its climate; you cannot be expected to remain indoors. Of course not. Well! Among our soldiers are many new recruits, patriotic, enthusiastic young fellows, but—careless. They are wretchedly unprofitable marksmen, and they haven't learned the danger of promiscuous rifle fire. They are forever shooting at things, merely to score a hit. Would you believe it? Oh, I have to discipline them frequently. To think of you being abroad through the streets, therefore, worries me intensely. Suppose you should be found dead some day. Imagine my feelings." The speaker's tone and expression were eloquent of concern. "How could I fix the responsibility?"

"By having me followed, as usual, I dare say," O'Reilly said bitterly.

"Oh, you will of course be shadowed day and night; in fact, to be quite sure of your—er—safety, I shall ask you to permit one of my men to accompany you everywhere and even to share your room. We shall try never to lose sight of you, depend upon it. I wish you could find another climate equally beneficial to your rheumatism. It would lift a great load from my mind." The speaker paused hopefully; that same sardonic flicker was on his lips.

Johnnie could not summon an answering smile, for his heart was like lead. He realized now the utter futility of resistance; he knew that to remain in Puerto Principe after this thinly veiled warning would be to court destruction—and destruction of a shocking character against which it would be impossible to guard. After a moment of thought he said gravely: "I appreciate the delicacy of your consideration, sir, and—I shall go."

General Antuna leaped to his feet, his grim face alight; striding to O'Reilly, he pressed his hands—he seemed upon the point of embracing him. "I thank you!" he cried. "You render me a supreme service. See, I breathe easy. Permit me to offer you refreshment—one of our famous Spanish wines. No? Then the best cigar in all Cuba!"

O'Reilly was escorted to the railway station at daylight. He and Branch took their seats and their guards filed in behind them. He cursed savagely; the memory of these wasted weeks, the narrow margin of his failure, filled him with a sick feeling of dismay and impotence.

In marked contrast to the difficulties of entering Cuba was the ease of leaving it. A ship was sailing from Neuvas on the very afternoon when the two Americans arrived, and they were hurried aboard. Not until the anchor was up did their military escort depart from them.

With angry, brooding eyes O'Reilly watched the white houses along the water front dwindle away, the mangrove swamps slip past, and the hills rise out of their purple haze. When the salt breath of the trades came to his nostrils he turned into his stateroom, and, taking the crate of coconuts with which General Antuna had thoughtfully provided him, he bore it to the rail and dropped it overboard.

"Rheumatism was a fool disease, anyhow," he muttered.

"Great news!" Esteban Varona announced one day as he dismounted after a foraging trip into the Yumuri. "We met some of Laceret's men and they told us that Spain has recalled Captain General Campos. What do you say to that?"

"Does that mean the end of the war?" Rosa eagerly inquired.

"Oh, no. They have sent a new man—he's in Havana now—a dark little old fellow who never smiles. He has a long nose and a big chin; he dresses all in black—a very 'Jew-bird' in appearance, from what I hear. His name is Weyler—Valeriano Weyler, marquis of Tenerife."

Esteban covertly appraised his sister's charms, but respecting her terror of Cobo he did not speak his thoughts. He was certain, however, that Rosa knew, as well as he, what motive lay behind the fellow's tireless persecutions of the valley dwellers; for, in spite of their isolation, stories of Cobo had reached the refugees—stories that had rendered both the boy and the girl sick with apprehension. The colonel, it seemed, had nearly died of his machete wound, and on recovering he had sworn to exterminate the wasps that had stung him. He had sworn other oaths, too, oaths that robbed Esteban of his sleep.

Esteban idolized his sister; her loyalty to him was the most precious thing of his life. Therefore, the thought of that swarthy ruffian hunting her down as a bound hangs to the trail of a doe awakes in him a terrible anger. Second only to his hatred for the guerrilla chief was his bitterness against the traitor, Pancho Cueto, who had capped his villainy by setting this new peril upon them; and since Rosa's safety and his own honor called for the death of both men, he had sworn that somehow he would effect it. It was, of course, a difficult matter to get at the colonel of volunteers, but Cueto still lived in the midst of his blackened fields, and it was against him that the boy was now planning to launch his first blow.

The thought of the hated Cobo had momentarily distracted Esteban's thoughts. Now he collected them and said:

"Wait! I am forgetting something. See what Laceret's men handed me; they are posted from one end of the island to the other." He displayed a printed bando, or proclamation, signed by the new captain general, and read as follows:

"All inhabitants of the country districts, or those who reside outside the lines of fortifications of the towns, shall, within a period of eight days, enter the towns which are occupied by the troops. Any individual found outside the lines in the country at the expiration of this period shall be considered a rebel and shall be dealt with as such."

It was that inhuman order of concentration, the result of which proved to be without parallel in military history—an order which gave its savage author the name of being the architect of a nation reputedly peculiarly cruel. Four hundred thousand Cubans driven from their homes into shelterless prison camps; more than two hundred thousand dead from hunger and disease; a fruitful land laid bare of all that could serve as food, and changed to an ash-gray desolation; gaunt famine from Oriente to Pinar del Rio—that was the sequel to those printed words of "Weyler the Butcher" which Esteban read.

"Eight days! When is the time up?" Rosa inquired.

"Bless you, this is already two weeks old!" her brother told her.

"Why, then, it means that we'll be shot if we're caught."

"Exactly! But we shan't be caught, eh? Let the timid ones take fright at the squeaks of this old blackbird. Let them go into the cities; we shall have the more to eat!" Esteban crumpled the paper in his hand and dropped it. "Meanwhile I shall proceed toward my settlement with Pancho Cueto." His very careless confidence gave Rosa courage.

CHAPTER XI.

When the World Ran Backward.

Esteban went about his plan of destroying Pancho Cueto with youthful energy and zest. First he secured, at some pains, a half-stick of dynamite, a cap and fuse, and a gallon or more of kerosene; then he assembled his followers and led them once again into the San Juan.

La Joya was still tenanted when early in the evening its rightful owner arrived; the house and some of its out-buildings showed lights. Esteban concealed his men. While the horses cropped and the negroes rested he fitted fuse and cap to his precious piece of dynamite.

Now while Esteban was thus busied, Pancho Cueto was entertaining an unwelcome guest. In the late afternoon he had been surprised by the visit of a dozen or more volunteers, and inasmuch as his relations with their colonel had been none of the friendliest since that ill-starred expedition into the Yumuri, he had felt a chill of apprehension on seeing the redoubtable Cobo himself at their head.

The colonel had explained that he was returning from a trip up the San Juan, taken for the purpose of rounding up those inhabitants who had been dilatory in obeying the new orders from Havana. That smoke to the southward was from fires of his kindling; he had burned a good many crops and houses and punished a good many people, and since this was exactly the sort of task he liked he was in no unpleasant mood. He had demanded of Cueto lodging for himself and his troop, announcing that a part of his command was somewhere behind and would rejoin him later in the night.

Cueto had welcomed his visitor in all humility; he put up the soldiers in the bays of the sugar mill, and then installed Cobo in his best room, after which he ransacked the house for food and drink and tobacco.

When Cobo finally took himself off to bed Cueto followed in better spirits than he had enjoyed for some time. For one thing, it was agreeable to look forward to a night of undisturbed repose. Pancho's apprehensions had fattened upon themselves, and he had been living of late in a nightmare of terror.

But it seemed to him that he had barely closed his eyes when he was awakened by a tremendous vibration and found himself in the center of the floor, undecided whether he had been hurled from his bed or whether he had leaped thither. Still in a daze, he heard a shout from the direction of Cobo's room, then a din of other voices, followed by a rush of feet: the next instant his door was flung back and he saw, by the light of high-held torches, Esteban Varona and a ragged rabble of black men. Cueto knew that he faced death. He dodged a blow from Esteban's clubbed rifle only to behold the flash of a machete. Crying out again, he tried to guard himself from the descending blade, but too late; the sound of his hoarse terror died in his throat, half born.

"Quick! Soak the bed with oil and fire it," Esteban directed; then he ran out into the hall to investigate that other shouting. He found the chamber whence it issued and tried to smash the door; but at the second blow he heard a gunshot from within and the wood splintered outward almost into his face. Simultaneously, from somewhere outside the house, arose the notes of a Spanish bugle-call.

Young Varona waited to hear no more. Nor did his men; realizing the peril into which they had been led, they bolted from the house as fast as they could go. There was no need for questions; from the direction of the sugar mill came belated orders and the sound of men shouting to their horses. Evidently those were troops—and trained troops, too, for they took no time to saddle; they were up and mounted almost before the marauders had gained the backs of their own animals.

Instantly there began a blind battle in desperately cramped quarters. Riders fought stirrup to stirrup with clubbed rifles and machetes; saddles were emptied and the terrified horses bolted. Some of them lunged up the banks, only to tumble down again, their thrashing limbs and sharp-shod hoofs working more havoc than blows from old-time battle-hammers.

Of course, after the first moment of conflict, Esteban had not been able to exert the least control over his men; in fact, he could not make himself heard. Nor could he spare the breath to shout; he was too desperately engaged. His rifle was empty, he had his hot barrel in his hands; he dimly distinguished Asencio wielding his machete. Then he found himself down and half stunned. Something smote him heavily, at last—whether a hoof or a gun-stock he could not tell—and next he was on all-fours, trying to drag himself out of this rat-pit. But his limbs were queerly rebellious, and he was sick; he had never experienced anything quite like this and he thought he must be wounded. It greatly surprised him to find that he could struggle upward through the brambles, even though it was hard work. Men were fighting all around and below him, meanwhile, and he wondered vaguely what made them kill one another when he and his negroes were all dead or dying. It seemed very strange—of a piece with the general unreality of things—and it troubled him not a little. One of his arms was useless, he discovered, and he realized with a curious shock that it was broken. He was bleeding, too, from more than one wound, but he could walk, after a fashion.

He was inclined to stay and finish the fight, but he recollected that Rosa would be waiting for him and that he must go to her, and so he set out across the fields, staggering through the charred cane stubble. The night was not so black as it had been, and this puzzled him until he saw that the plantation house was ablaze. Flames were belching from its windows, casting abroad a lurid radiance; and remembering Pancho Cueto, Esteban laughed.

By and by, after he was well away, his numbness passed and he began to suffer excruciating pain. The pain had been there all the time, so it seemed; he was simply gaining the capacity to feel it. He was ready to die now, he was so ill; moreover, his left arm dangled and got in his way. Only that subconscious realization of the necessity to keep going for Rosa's sake sustained him.

Daylight came at last to show him his way. More than once he paused, alarmed, at voices in the woods, only to find that the sounds issued from his own throat.

It had grown very hot now, so hot that heat-waves obscured his vision and caused the most absurd forms to take shape. He began to hunt aimlessly for water, but there was none. Evidently this heat had parched the land, dried up the streams, and set the stones afire. It was incredible, but true.

Esteban reasoned that he must be near home by this time, for he had been traveling for days—for years. The country, indeed, was altogether unfamiliar; he could not recall ever having seen the path he trod, but for that matter everything was strange. In the first place he knew that he was going west, and yet the morning sun persisted in beating hotly into his face! That alone convinced him that things had gone awry with the world. He could remember a great convulsion of some sort, but just what it was he had no clear idea! Evidently, though, it had been sufficient to change the rotation of the earth. Yes, that was it; the earth was running backward upon its axis; he could actually feel it whirling under his feet. No wonder his journey seemed so long. He was laboring over a gigantic treadmill, balancing like an equilibrist upon a revolving sphere. Well, it was a simple matter to stop walking, sit down, and allow himself to be spun backward around to the place where Rosa was waiting. He pondered this idea for some time, until its absurdity became apparent. Undoubtedly he must be going out of his head; he saw that it was necessary to keep walking until the back-splats of that treadmill brought Rosa to him.

Rosa and her faithful companions, facing starvation, obey the Spanish concentration order, ignorant of the greater privations that await them in the terrible refugee camp. Don't miss the next installment.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She mixed Sulphur with it to Restore Color, Gloss, Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and lustrant.—Adv.

Reared Her Family WITH SIMPLE HOME REMEDY

An American Mother Beats Them All

There are few families in which the record of Mrs. Gustave Koch, Box 24, Kewick, Keokuk County, Iowa, has been surpassed. Not in the fact that she raised a family of eight in her story remarkable. Thousands of families are larger. The history of the Koch family is unique in that the mother, with all her loving care, pinned her faith to a simple home remedy and never had a doctor for her children. Here is what she says: "Peruna has done my children good. I have a family of eight and never had a doctor, only your medicine. We all think Peruna a splendid tonic." So far as we have learned, Peruna is the only known remedy for which such a wonderful claim can be made. Like Mrs. Koch, there are thousands upon thousands of mothers who place their entire dependence upon Peruna. That Peruna has merited this confidence is attested by the words

HIS MEMORY PROVED FICKLE

Convivial Gentleman in Hard Luck
When It Came Time to Remove His Footwear.

A wealthy citizen of a thriving city had been out until the small hours with convivial companions. It was not exactly a "dry locality" that he had visited, and he arrived home slightly exhilarated. He managed, by describing several erratic, rather than geometric, lines, to get to his bedroom and into a chair. Then he called to his wife in a stage whisper:

"I can't get my boots off."

"What's the matter with your boots?"

"Nothin'." In a faint whisper.

"What's the matter with your hands, then?" she cross-examined.

"Nothin'."

"Why don't you pull your boots off, then?"

"Marin, I've forgot the combination."

Here's a registration yarn which, though late, still has its laugh:

Louis Yvino was born in sunny Italy. When he registered he was required to fill out an information slip giving name and other personal facts. He was a bright boy and made no mistakes until he came to the line marked "born," followed by a blank space. In this Louis wrote down very neatly the one word, "Yea."

SEASONABLE DISHES.

The careful preparation and serving of foodstuffs are coming to be known as worthy of attention and thought.

Beets Piquante.—Wash beets and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and reserve one-half cupful of the water in which the beets were cooked. Plunge into cold water, rub off the skins and cut into cubes. Reheat in the following sauce: Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, and when well blended, add the beet liquor, cook until smooth, add one-fourth of a cupful of vinegar and the same of cream, one teaspoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of red pepper.

Potato Salad.—Mix two cupfuls of chopped cooked potato, add one cupful of chopped celery, one chopped hard-cooked egg and three-fourths of a tablespoonful each of chopped pickle and parsley. Moisten with cream and salad dressing. Heap on a salad dish and surround with crisp lettuce leaves.

Glazed Sweet Potatoes.—Wash and pare six medium-sized sweet potatoes, cook ten minutes in boiling water, salted. Drain, cut in halves lengthwise and put into a greased pan. Make a syrup by boiling three minutes one-half cupful of sugar and four tablespoonfuls of water; add a tablespoonful of butter. Brush the potatoes with the syrup and bake 15 minutes, basting twice with the remaining syrup.

Canton Cream.—Soak one tablespoonful of granulated gelatin in one-fourth of a cupful of water and add to a custard made by using two egg yolks one cupful of milk, one-fourth of a cupful of sugar and a dash of salt. Strain and chill in a pan of ice water, add a tablespoonful of orange juice, three tablespoonfuls of canton ginger syrup and one-fourth of a cupful of ginger cut in small pieces. When the mixture begins to thicken fold in the whites of the eggs, well beaten, and a cupful of whipped cream.

Our life is composed of a thousand springs
And dies, if one be gone;
Strange that a harp of a thousand strings
Should keep in tune so long.

WHOLESOME DISHES.

For a new dish and one of good flavor the following will be worth trying:

Boiled Calves' Tongues.—Cover four fresh tongues with boiling water. Add five slices of carrot, two stalks of celery, one onion stuck with six cloves; 15 pepper-corns and one-half a tablespoonful of salt; cook until tender. Take from the water, remove the skin and roots and cut in halves lengthwise. Cook one-half can of tomatoes with two cupfuls of brown stock until reduced one-half. Reheat tongues in sauce, garnish with parsley, lemon slices and points of bread sautéed in butter.

Mock Sausages.—Pick over one-half cupful of lima beans and soak in cold water to cover. Drain and cook in boiling salted water until soft; then force through a sieve. There should be three-fourths of a cupful of pulp. Add one-third of a cupful of dried crumbs, three tablespoonfuls of heavy cream or butter, a few grains of pepper, salt to taste, one-half teaspoonful of sage and one egg beaten slightly. Shape in the form of sausages, dip in egg crumbs and fry in olive oil. Drain, arrange on a serving dish and garnish with fried apple rings.

Italian Canaper.—Cut stale bread in one-third-inch slices and remove the crusts. Cut in finger-shaped pieces and toast on one side. Mix one cupful of grated cheese (Parmesan), two-thirds cupful of heavy cream and two tablespoonfuls of fruit juice; season well with salt and pepper. Spread the untoasted side of bread with the mixture, arrange in a pan and bake in a hot oven six minutes. Garnish with sprigs of parsley and serve at once on small hot plates.

Escalloped Potatoes.—Wash, pare and cut four medium-sized potatoes in one-fourth-inch slices. Put a layer in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour and dot with one tablespoonful of butter; repeat. Add hot milk until it seeps through the top layer. Bake one and one-fourth hours or until the potatoes are soft.

Lives 200 Years!

For more than 200 years, Haarlem Oil, the famous national remedy of Holland, has been recognized as an infallible relief from all forms of kidney and bladder disorders. Its very age is proof that it must have unusual merit.

If you are troubled with pains or aches in the back, feel tired in the morning, headaches, indigestion, insomnia, painful or too frequent passage of urine, irritation or stone in the bladder, you will almost certainly find relief in GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. This is the good old remedy that has stood the test for hundreds of years, prepared in the proper quantity and convenient form to take. It is imported direct from Holland laboratories, and you can get it at any drug store. It is a standard, old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. Each capsule contains one dose of five drops and is pleasant and easy to take. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gall stones, gravel, "brick dust," etc. Your money promptly refunded if they do not relieve you. But be sure to get the genuine GOLD MEDAL BRAND. In boxes, three sizes.—Adv.

SMOKING TOBACCO FACTS FROM THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA

The Use of Flavorings Determines Difference in Brands

The Encyclopaedia Britannica says about the manufacture of smoking tobacco: "... on the Continent and in America, certain 'sauces' are employed... the use of the 'sauces' is to improve the flavour and burning qualities of the leaves." Which indicates that a smoker's enjoyment depends as much upon the flavoring used as upon the tobacco. Your nose is a sure guide in the matter of flavorings. Try this simple test with several tobacco brands: pour some tobacco into your palm, rub briskly, and smell. You will notice a distinct difference in the fragrance of every brand. The tobacco that smells best to you will smoke best in your pipe, you can rest assured.

Carefully aged, old Burley tobacco, plus a dash of pure chocolate, gives TUXEDO Tobacco a pure fragrance your nose can quickly distinguish from any other tobacco. Try it and see.
