Facts and Fancies

About the Philippines

BY RALPH W. FLEW,
Manager of the Carrizozo News.

Washington, May 12.—A certain lady at the St. Louis Exposition saw at a table in a brown complexioned man clad in faultless evening dress, and accosted him with the inquiry, "I suppose you are Japanese, sir?" The man addressed replied, "No, madam."

"Then you must be Chinese," she said.

"No, I am not. I am a Filipino," he replied.

"How is that?" asked the lady. "I thought they were all savages living in the woods."

"Well, I'll tell you how I came here," he said. "A month before I left the Philippines I was living in the woods, but the American governor decided to catch as many wild men as possible, train them, and send them over here. So the American forces were immediately set in motion, we were taken from the woods and kept for a month at the governor's palace, taught how to dress and speak a little English, and then sent over here. So here I am, just as you see." And the St. Louis lady actually believed him.

That is what you would call fancies about the Philippines. The fact is, however, that the 10,000,000 Filipinos and their ancestors have been civilized and Christians for three hundred years; that the non-Christian population, according to the census of 1918, is only 500,000.

Another fancy is that not until the coming of the Americans were school buildings seen in the islands. Roads built, of substantial houses erected. Do you know that for hundreds of years the Filipinos have had colleges and schools, and that the University of Santo Tomas is only twenty-five years older than Harvard? That as early as 1866, out of a population of 4,000,000 people, there were 841 schools for boys and 133 for girls? That in 1892, eight years before the coming of the Americans, there were 2,137 schools?

"To grant self-government to Luzon under Aguinaldo would be like granting self-government to an Apache reservation under some local chief." Thus spoke a former president of the United States during the Filipino-American war. Exaggeration could be an excuse at a time when the dignity of the American people demanded the extinction of Filipino opposition; but do you know that the Philippine Republic, before the American occupation of the islands, had the approval of prominent Americans who were on the spot, like John Barrett, director of the Pan-American Union, who compared it favorably with the Japanese government? That Admiral Dewey considered the Filipino better fitted for self-government than the Chinese? That they had offered a constitution of 1898 which elected the approval of distinguished Republicans like the late Senator George F. Hoar? That before the coming of the Americans they had produced national figures like the martyred Jose Rizal, who has been proclaimed by an Austrian writer, Ferdinand Brunetiere, as the greatest man the Malay race has produced, and pronounced by a Republican congressman, Representative Cooper, as the noblest victim that has ever fallen into the clutches of tyranny?

Possibly the geographical situation of the Philippines had something to do with the fanciful

To Red Cross Workers

Mrs. J. B. French, chairman of the supply committee, respectfully requests all members to have garments, finished or unfinished, at her home early next week. The committee will make its final shipment to Denver next week, and desires all garments, of whatever nature, in hand by that time, so they may be inspected, packed and shipped. Remember, all garments, finished or unfinished, are requested.

estimate the St. Louis lady, had. The Philippines are just next door to Borneo, where scientists have hunted in vain for Darwin's missing link between the monkey and the supermonkey. They are close to Java, where the small country of Holland has ruled for hundreds of years through a system of native princes and royal families, steeped in medieval ideas of government. Farther east is India with her beaming millions, divided up into scores of native states and by almost impassable caste barriers. But do you know that the Filipinos have not had for hundreds of years any caste system, blood distinction, or royal families, and that, unlike their Oriental sisters, they are the only Christian people in the Orient?

People have pictured an ignorant mass of Filipinos, illiterate, poor, living a life of servitude for a few wealthy land owners and foreigners, with no houses and farms or property of their own. Do you know that seventy per cent of the people above ten years of age can read and write, and that this percentage of literacy is almost as high as some of the states of the union? That it is higher than in any country of South America, higher than the literacy of the Spanish people, and unquestionably above that of any of the new countries recognized in Europe? Do you know that there are a million and a half farms in the Philippines, and that ninety-six per cent of these farms are owned by Filipinos? In other words, that out of the ten million Christian Filipinos, eight million of them at least live on their own farms, with houses of their own, independent of any absentee landlord or foreign master? That ninety-one per cent of the urban property consisting of houses and lands is owned by the natives of the Philippines, and only one per cent is in the hands of foreigners? Yet these are facts which have just been called by Acting Governor-General Charles Edmund Yester to the war department from the recent census estimates.

The Philippine legislature recently sent a special mission to the United States to request the fulfillment of America's promise of grant of independence. It is their plea that the specified condition precedent to the granting of autonomy—the establishment of a stable government—is already fulfilled. Their representations are endorsed in every particular by Francis Barton Harrison, who has been the American governor-general in the Philippines for six years, and is in a position to speak from actual observation.

"By temperament, by experience, by financial ability," says Governor Harrison, "in every way the ten millions of Filipinos are entitled to be free from every government except of their own choice. They are intelligent enough to decide for themselves."

World's Great Mine Field

Bit by bit the story of the wonderful part the American navy played in winning the war is being unfolded. A sample of the assistance the navy gave the Allies in bringing about the downfall of the Central Powers is seen in the laying of the world's greatest mine field, now being swept, accomplished by the division of the American fleet under Rear Admiral Strauss.

A little more than a year ago the Americans laid a mine barrier that extended from Bergen, Norway, to the Orkney Islands, north of Scotland, effectively closing the North Sea to navigation except through the narrow lane along the coast of Norway and the only one between the Orkneys and Scotland.

The barrier made practically impossible the escape from the North Sea of any enemy raider or warship. Fifty-seven thousand of these mines, every one made in America, formed this barrier to German sea operations, and but one mishap occurred during their laying, the sinking of one ship laden with mines from being torpedoed.

Not even yet does the world realize the immensity of the task assigned to American ingenuity and industrial enterprise, and which was accomplished when we had been in the war but little more than a year.

Chairman Is Commended

The following is a wire received from Mrs. Grace George, state chairman of the Woman's Liberty Loan campaign committee: "Enclosed, N. M., May 13, 1919. 'Miss Ula L. Edquist, Carrizozo, New Mexico. 'You have made a splendid report, considering the difficulties you worked under. Extend thanks to our workers for me. 'GRACE GEORGE.'"

Mining Activity

Recently the Corona Lead and Silver Mining company was incorporated, with A. J. Atkinson, R. L. Stevens and Charles Bryan as incorporators.

The mining properties on which this incorporation was based are located in the Gallinas mountains, and include in the group the Red Cloud and Deadwood mines. Some very valuable lead, copper and silver ore has been shipped from these properties, and mining men have always considered them very promising.

We are informed by one of the incorporators that practically all the stock for development purposes has been sold, and the new company assured of abundant means to properly develop the property. We hope the revival of operations in the Gallinas will not only bring substantial profit to the new company, but that it will also result in adding wealth to that community and to Lincoln county.

In the Jicarilla district some very active iron development is in progress. The Beech brothers, of Tucuman, are the operators, and have uncovered a large body of high grade ore. They are making extensive preparation for the extraction and shipment of the ore, and the handling of the proposition will necessitate the employment of quite a number of men.

Miss Spence Entertains

Miss Florence Spence gave a "Bunco" party at the home of her parents Wednesday night, many of the young people of the town attending. A pleasant evening followed the assembling of the guests, and at a seasonable hour all started homeward, congratulating the hostess on the successful event.

Richard Brockman drove over from Fort Stanton Monday, returning the same afternoon.

District Court Adjourns

The regular spring term of district court for Lincoln county adjourned yesterday, and Judge Mechem and other court officials, resulting elsewhere, departed for their several homes.

Much of the time of the court was taken up with civil matters and disposition of a large number of cases was the result of the court's efforts. A few important criminal cases remain on the docket, two or three by continuance and others by change of venue.

K. P. Lodge Organized

Louis W. Gates, Deputy Grand Chancellor of New Mexico, spent a week here in the interest of Psychism and organized a K. P. Lodge Monday night of this week. A charter membership of 52 was secured, about half of whom were new members. About 30 other members will deposit cards in the near future, and this, with an additional number of new members, will make the new lodge one of the best in the state.

A team of ten came up from Roswell to put on the work, and made an all-night job of it, and the initiates know best whether the work was done well.

The following constitute the officers for the ensuing term:

E. L. Wood, Chancellor Commander.

C. P. Happers, Vice Chancellor.

D. S. Donaldson, Prelate.

Louis Adams, K. of R. & S.

Thomas M. Carr, M. of F.

Ratification of League By Senate Assured

Washington, D. C., May 10.—The senate's ratification of the peace treaty, including the league of nations covenant, is assured, according to a poll of members of the senate by the League to Enforce Peace.

The poll shows 64 senators for the league, only 12 against, and 26 doubtful.

The twelve senators definitely classed as opposed to the league are: Borah, of Idaho; Sherman, Illinois; New, Indiana; Lodge, Massachusetts; Reed, Missouri; Moses, New Hampshire; Frolinghuyzen, New Jersey; Fall, New Mexico; Wadsworth, New York; Penrose and Knox, Pennsylvania; Poindexter, Washington.

Sixty-four votes are the two-thirds necessary for ratification, but the statement by the League to Enforce Peace indicates that a number of senators who are doubtful will probably vote for ratification, and that several of those classed at present as "against" will cast affirmative votes when the time comes. In fact, the list as made up by the League to Enforce Peace shows only four senators as being unalterably opposed to the league—Senators Borah, Reed, Poindexter and Sherman—and some of the more optimistic advocates of the league express the belief that when the covenant usually comes before the senate for a vote, these four will be about the only ones who will stand out against the overwhelming sentiment of the country and oppose ratification.

Bond Quota Made

A. J. Rolland, chairman of the Lincoln County Victory Liberty Loan committee, reports that the Lincoln county quota has been subscribed. The amount was made up at the close of the drive, however, by the banks agreeing to underwrite the unsubscribed portion. The receipt of some belated subscriptions went beyond the quota about $5,000.

The quota for the county was $74,500, and the amount actually subscribed is between $80,000 and $91,000. The ladies' committee labored indefatigably and the regular loan committee put in some hard knocks, but both committees had hard sledding. Nevertheless, the results, under the adverse conditions, are most gratifying.

Proportionately, population and wealth considered, Fort Stanton led the van, turning in a subscription list amounting to $6,400. Major McKee and his assistants, including the ladies' auxiliary, deserve a carload of medals and they will, no doubt, be accorded them.

Almost every other locality was far below expectations and to put the loan over at all not only required hard work, but also means that certain localities and individuals had to do an excessive share to go "over the top."

The railroad boys took $16,000, 15.33 per cent of the amount credited to Carrizozo, which took about $40,000. At any rate, the requirement was met and on the whole the county did well; and there is a general feeling of charity to localities that didn't do as well as expected, because of the excessive demands of the past and unusual conditions that have prevailed throughout the county.

HOW CAN YOU TELL YOUR FAVORITE TOBACCO?

As Plain as the Nose on Your Face—Just Snell It

Smokers do not have to put tobacco in their pipes to find out if they like it. They can just rub the tobacco between the palms of their hands and smell it. The nose is an infallible guide to smoking enjoyment.

All smoking tobaccos employ some flavoring "to improve the flavor and burning quality of the leaves", to quote the Encyclopedia Britannica. Naturally, there is considerable difference in the kind of flavorings used, and the nose quickly detects this difference. TUXEDO Tobacco uses the purest, most wholesome, and delicious of all flavorings—chocolate. And the almost universal liking for chocolate in a great measure explains the widespread popularity of TUXEDO Tobacco.

Carefully aged, old Burley tobacco, plus a dash of pure chocolate, gives TUXEDO Tobacco a pure fragrance your nose can quickly distinguish from any other tobacco. Try it and see.

PATENTS

It is not only in Ireland that bulls are made! A lady residing in France having reproached her wood merchant for sending her wet firewood, he replied:

"Madame, I have the honor to say that if the wood had not been wet it would have been perfectly dry."

A French butcher, on being asked for a beefsteak, answered:

"I have no beefsteak of beef today; but I can offer you good beefsteaks of pork!"

CALLUS CORNS LIFT RIGHT OFF

Doesn't hurt to lift them off with fingers

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns, calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off.

When Freezone removes corns from the toes or calluses from the bottom of the feet, the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore or tender.

The Real Trouble

The other day two cousins were on their way to the store to do some shopping. The little boy was complaining of not having any time to play.

Florence said: "You know, Edward, the days are very short."

"Oh," said Edward, "the days are not so short, but the errands are too long."

BOSCHEE'S SYRUP

Why use ordinary cough remedies when Boschee's Syrup has been used so successfully for fifty-one years in all parts of the United States for coughs, bronchitis, colds settled in the throat, especially lung troubles? It gives the patient a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectoration in the morning, gives nature a chance to soothe the inflamed parts, throw off the disease, helping the patient to regain his health. Made in America and sold for more than half a century.—Adv.

GERMANS FAWN BEFORE VICTORS

Foe's Servility Looked Upon as an Attempt to Win Leniency.

TRIES TO BE GOOD FELLOW

Attitude Is Proving Poser for Statesmen at Peace Conference—Behind It All Is German Campaign for Sympathy.

Paris.—Germany apparently is playing hard to re-establish herself commercially with the powers against whom she has been warring for four years.

Like the bully who is licked, Germany is now trying to ingratiate herself with her enemies, and her attitude of servility is proving a poser for the statesmen at the peace conference. To British, French and Americans alike, now taking up positions in her territory, the German extends open hands, throws wide the doors of hospitality and with almost studied care sees that the life of the soldiers is made pleasant. It is proving effective propaganda.

One incident showing the peculiar

IN AN UNUSUAL UNIFORM

It is probable that among the thousands of men in uniform you have seen on the city streets you have never seen one wearing this particular uniform. This man belongs to the most exclusive branch of Uncle Sam's fighting forces—he is one of the regular naval gunners who manned the big 14-inch naval guns which helped smash the German lines on the western front.

MISS U. S. BATH TUB

Yanks in Russia Long for Home Conveniences.

Russian Steam Baths Can Be Obtained Only With Much Difficulty.

Archangel.—The soldier of the American north Russian expedition misses the American bathtub and its simplicity and frequency. He is annoyed at the ceremony and difficulty one must undergo to obtain a Russian bath. Only in the homes of the wealthy in the cities, and rarely, if ever, in the villages, is it possible to find a bathtub or a shower.

The Russian bath is a steam bath, in an air-tight room, where water is thrown on a stove to make steam. The bather then douses himself liberally with buckets of water after perspiring. Some of the Americans, fortunate course the Germans are pursuing is told by one of the French statesmen as follows:

"About six weeks after the signing of the armistice some French officers were sent to Berlin to take charge of the French embassy there. Shortly after their arrival a musical was given in one of the cafes, to which the French officers were invited and went. During an intermission a German woman of consequence came over to the table where the Frenchmen were seated and, raising her glass, said:

"To France."

"The French officers, somewhat taken aback, replied:

"We are sorry madame, but we cannot rise to that toast, for it is impossible for us to reciprocate."

"The German woman left the table confused, but presently returned and again lifted her glass, saying:

"Then may I not offer a toast to Paris, most beautiful city in the world?"

"The French officers drained their glasses.

"But how contemptible is such servility! But it always goes with brutality," the Frenchman said.

Another case of the effort of the German now to be a "good fellow" is shown by an incident happening to a doughboy in the occupied territory. Americans in the army of occupation are forbidden to fraternize with the Germans. One day, however, one of the men lost his way and inquired of a German the direction to his objective. The German told him. But during the conversation an American officer, seeing the discussion, came up and placed the doughboy under arrest for fraternizing. Before the doughboy could explain the German rushed up and, addressing the officer, said:

"He was not fraternizing with me, sir—he had lost his way and merely asked me how to get back and I told him."

The effect of the move on the doughboy is obvious.

There are hundreds of similar stories.

What's Behind It?

But how to meet the situation is what is puzzling the peace conference. Of course they regard with disgust this effusive effort to please the victors. Behind it they see the German campaign for sympathy and adherence to the old plan of "Let bygones be bygones" with commercial interests in the saddle.

The French fear its effect most, knowing Germany's ability to soon re-establish herself industrially, while France struggles to rebuild her ravaged plants. Hence the French on the one hand demand the utter destruction of Germany and on the other hand demand Germany pay gigantic indemnities.

The American view is that "to milk a cow one must feed her"—if Germany is to pay, as she must pay, for the horror she has wrought, her industries must start.

It is a dilemma—and the end is not yet in sight.

PLYING SEVEN SEAS

Yankee Ships Represent One-Fifth of World Tonnage.

Carry Flag Where American Craft Have Not Been Seen in Fifty Years.

Washington.—American merchant craft are now plying the seven seas, carrying products of the United States to the farthest corners of the earth and bringing back both essentials and luxuries. The American merchant marine fleet, built up under the spur of war's necessity, now represents one-fifth of the entire seagoing tonnage of the world. It comprises 46 per cent of all ships clearing from United States ports, as compared with 37 per cent before the great war.

Trade routes not traversed by American craft for 50 years once more are invaded, with new routes established to China, Australia, New Zealand, India, the Dutch East Indies, the west coast of Africa and ports in the Mediterranean. Ships flying the Stars and Stripes are also running regularly to South America, Great Britain, Continental Europe, Canada and Mexico.

The American fleet engaged in overseas commerce comprises 551 freight-ers, 84 freight and passenger vessels and 16 miscellaneous ships, aggregating 1,931,230 gross tons. When the army and navy return 333 ships, which they are now operating, the commercial fleet under the American flag will be boosted to 3,834,750 gross tons, with many hundreds of thousands of tons building or under contract.

British Lost 2,800 Planes, Foe 8,000

London.—During the war 8,000 enemy airplanes were shot down by the British air forces, while 2,800 British machines were missing, Brig. Gen. J. E. B. Seeley announced in the house of commons in introducing the army's air estimates of $330,000,000.

General Seeley said that if the war had continued the estimate would have been $1,000,000,000.

When the armistice was signed, he added, England was turning out 4,000 airplanes a month and had 200 squadrons in commission, compared to six at the beginning of the war.

FLYING TO ARCTIC INDORSED

Canadian Air Route Over Famous Chilkoot Pass Approved by Statesmen.

Dawson, Yukon Territory.—Official information has been received from Ottawa that the project for an airplane route from Alberta to the Arctic is indorsed by several members of parliament and that a flying board will be named soon. If the government approves tentative plans, the Chilkoot pass and other traps which claimed a awful toll of lives during the Klondike rush, will be conquered for the second time. A railroad is now operated from Skagway to White Horse, where, during the season, the traffic north is via the Yukon river.

The proposed airplane route is from Edmonton, Alberta, to Dawson via the Yukon river and Mackenzie. Portions of this region are accessible during the winter by dog teams, but long journeys have seldom been attempted, except by members of the Northwest mounted police.

MEN OF SCIENCE PUZZLED

Find It Hard to Account for the Erratic Movements of Deep-Water Fish.

The erratic movements of fish are a constant source of worry to scientists, who, try as they will, can never account for the vagaries of these sea-dwellers. Here is a case in point: In May, 1879, the fishing schooner Hutchings, sailing from Gloucester, Mass., was under the command of Captain Kirby, trawling for cod off Nantucket. A strange fish came up in the nets, a large creature covered with yellow spots. The men caught over two tons and brought them to land, where they were found to be an entirely new family. Scientists named them "tile fish." For three years, till 1882, the fish were caught in huge numbers, then the "bankers" reported that they were no longer to be seen. The news came that the sea was covered with dead tile fish. Six thousand square miles of sea were almost hidden by the dead bodies. Authorities said that there must have been a volcanic disturbance or else some deadly disease had killed off the fish. In 1915 a schooner working to the same waters caught the tile fish in abundance, and to this day the fish are there in millions.

THIS LIFE MERE PATCHWORK

Pleasant to Think That in this Land—By All Things Will Have Full Completion.

Life at best seems only a patchwork. By the time the artist learns to paint a picture which is considered worth while, his hand has become shaky, nervous or palsied and he cannot paint the thing in his heart for which, all his life, he had been preparing. By the time the business man has earned enough money to keep him in comfort for the rest of his days he has often lost the capacity to enjoy the fruits of his labor. When the mother has raised her boy to manhood her offspring leaves her for the sake of someone he loves better, and by the time the man learns to really appreciate his mother she is taken from him. Nothing seems ever quite finished, quite mature, quite as it should be in this world. Perhaps in the by-and-by on another planet we shall all find that every incomplete thought and work of our lives has been fitted into the completed temple of life which we may then inhabit forever.—Los Angeles Times.

Whiskers Reappearing

A noticeable feature in masculine appearance is the increasing fashion of whiskers. At present they are only small affairs of the Albert variety, made popular by the prince consort. The whisker is no longer than two fingers' breadth, but there is no telling what dimensions these side products of the war may assume.

It is an army fashion, just as beards were an after-growth of the Crimea. The present whisker originated among officers whose right arm, stiff or impaired through wounds, cannot be raised easily to the level of the ear, and so prevents a clean shave to the top of the cheek.—London Chronicle.

All-Covering Garment Is Kind to the Figure.

In Some of Its Phases It May Easily Be Fashioned by the Uninspired Dressmaker—Look Smart.

The long, all-covering cape remains a favorite with the up-to-date woman. It is tucked into the season's outfit, whether for Northern or Southern climes.

It is kind to the figure, this long cape. It has such grace, such picturesqueness, is so easily put on and off, and supplies such a comfortable extra wrap to be thrown on over a suit that its vogue is readily understood. And in some of its phases it may easily be fashioned by the uninspired dressmaker. However, one must not allow oneself to be deceived on that last count. Some of the latest models, unassuming in air, are extremely subtle in cut and adjustment, and unless one can be content with a simple circular cape it is well to be sure of a good pattern before undertaking a home-made wrap of this order.

One of the most popular of the season's cape models came out a little before the new year and has been copied to the point of monotony, yet it always manages to look smart, even though it is no longer exclusive.

It has a full, voluminous body, attached to a yoke which extends half the length of the upper arm, forming a point shape over the arm. There is a large shawl collar which is draped around the neck, crosses over in surplus fashion and fastens at the back underneath the folds of the cape. This model is well adapted for summer wear, as it leaves visible at the front, from the waist down, a panel of the pretty summery frock.

One model built upon these lines was made of gray silk figured in a soft rose-colored design.

In dark blue serge, white serge, black and white checks, black satin, gray serge, beige serge, etc., this cape is very effective, and is fairly typical of a large class of such wraps, varying only in minor details.

Some of these capes and cape-coat models are of a distinctly sporty character, built up in plaids, black checks, gray wool velours, tweeds and jerseys. Others are designed more especially for street or travel purposes, and among these are some particularly good-looking dust-gray models in fine, soft serge or twill.

Paris is very fond of this material and color for all kinds of travel coats. It is good, too, for a separate cape for travel or motorcar, a long, ample, enveloping garment, warranted to protect the frock or suit beneath. But for hard motoring a cape is not desirable save, perhaps, to afford extra warmth or protection over a coat. The cape is not fast enough, is prone to fluttering or flying folds and flapping is the unpardonable thing in a motor outfit that asks to be taken seriously.

Beige and the various shades of light brown are modish colors, too, though Paris likes the dust gray better for this special type of garment, and it is more practical in the matter of resisting soil.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Two Simple Questions. The Rev. Dr. Phillips sat in his study one Sunday morning going over the heads for his forenoon sermon. Suddenly his five-year-old granddaughter entered with an air of importance. "Grand-daddy," she said, "I want to ask you sump'n."

"Honey," said the clergyman, "grand-daddy is very busy. Run away now and come back this afternoon."

"But I'll only take you a minute to tell me," persisted the little one.

"Well," he said, knowing from past experiences that she was not to be dissuaded from her purposes, "if it will take only a minute, go ahead. What is it you wish me to tell you?"

"I want," said the child, "to know about condensed milk and the Immaculate Conception."

For Colds, Catarrh or Influenza

Do you feel weak and unequal to the work ahead of you? Do you still cough a little, or does your nose bother you? Are you pale? Is your blood thin and watery? Better put your body into shape. Build strong!

An old, reliable blood-maker and health tonic made from wild roots and herbs, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This "nature remedy" comes in tablet or liquid form. It will build up your body, cure your cold, and protect you from disease germs which lurk everywhere. One of the active ingredients of this temperance alterative and tonic is wild cherry bark with stilling, which is so good for the lungs and for coughs; also Oregon grape root, blood root, stone root, Queen's root, — all skillfully combined in the Medical Discovery. These roots have a direct action on the stomach, improving digestion and assimilation. These herbal extracts in the "Discovery" aid in blood-making, and are best for acrofula. By improving the blood they aid in throwing off an attack of influenza.

Catarrh should be treated, first, as a blood disease, with this alterative. Then, in addition, the nose should be washed daily with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Send 10c for trial pkg. of Medical Discovery Tablets or Catarrh Tablets to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR BETTER ROADS

PROPER DRAINAGE FOR ROADS

Tile Drains Are Much Superior to Open Ditches or Those Filled With Stone or Gravel.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Open ditches have been used frequently in some of the southern states for subdraining roads through low, flat sections. Ordinarily only one ditch is used, and it is located a few feet outside of and parallel to the road. This ditch usually is made about two feet wide and three to four feet deep, with vertical banks. The material excavated from the ditch is used to build up the roadbed, and the surplus water from the side ditches is turned into the deep ditch at convenient intervals. The use of such ditches should be decided upon with care. There are ditches in the South, within the coastal plain, where sand clays and indurated clays occur a few inches underground, that have stood with vertical sides since the middle of the last century. They have been cleaned repeatedly, and no doubt have become somewhat enlarged, but considering the cost of maintenance and the service given, they have been entirely satisfactory. In other soils of a gravelly nature, however, the sides of such ditches would not stand, and the cost of keeping them clean would be excessive. In certain localities the open ditch soon will become obstructed by the banks breaking away and by the growth of vegetation, and is very seldom economical in the long run.

Ditches filled with broken stone or gravel sometimes are used as a substitute for the tile drains. These have been used in all sections of the country, and when properly constructed usually have proved satisfactory for a considerable period of time. When such ditches are used it is common practice to place one on each side of the road immediately under the open ditches. They are excavated to a depth of two to three feet with vertical sides and usually are made about eighteen inches at the top or just wide enough for a man to work in them conveniently. To be effective they must have a uniform grade and be carried to a suitable outlet.

The drains in general are much superior to either open ditches or ditches filled with stone for subdraining roads, and though generally more expensive than either open or stone drains, they usually can be constructed at comparatively small cost. As a rule the tile need never be over six inches in diameter, while for ordinary conditions a diameter of four inches is sufficient.

CHECK ON ROAD ENTHUSIASM

Building of Highways That Will Not Wear Is Very Discouraging to Taxpayers.

There is only one cause that can check the enthusiasm, now so evident, for good roads, and prevent a steady development in construction. This is the building of roads that will not wear. It is very discouraging to taxpayers to appropriate money for road building and then to have roads constructed that wear out long before the bonds are paid off. Yet this has occurred in many instances.

Colorado business men recently united in a movement for a $10,000,000 bond issue. After getting well into the campaign they discovered their chief opposition was in a general criticism because they asked for too little. The bill now before the legislature calls for $20,000,000.

SHOULD MATCH THE CAMISOLE

Combination of Brilliant Colors Does Not Add to Attractiveness of Well-Dressed Woman.

In anything uglier than the transparent peplum blouse worn with a light camisole or corset cover? It was had enough with the oldtime blouse that ended at the beltline, but when the newer type of blouse is worn thus there is an ugly discrepancy between the waist section and the skirt section of the blouse.

Of course, where the front and back panel of the blouse are of some heavier material the effect is quite satisfactory. But when georgette or chiffon is used, then one really needs a dark camisole. It is not always easy to buy these, although they are to be had in navy blue, one or two shades of brown, green and the other usual suit shades. But they are not difficult to make, and you should have one or two to go with every suit.

INTEREST IN EVENING DRESS

With the Trying Days of War a Thing of the Past Women Are Dressing in Gay Clothes.

More interest is being taken in the question of evening frocks just now than at any time since America entered the war. During the trying months of the war women were too thoroughly occupied with really serious interests to spend either time or money on apparel for formal functions, and as a matter of fact there were few social functions that were not of a semipatriotic or philanthropic nature, so that simple costumeing was considered in the best possible taste.

All women agreed, however, that they must continue to dress well in order that the public morale might be kept in a healthy state and the all-the-days-through frock was by all odds the favorite outfit.

Now that the war is over and soldiers are returning by the thousand every week, social festivities are taking on a new lease of life and the regulation evening gown is in demand. Women in full evening dress are seen at the theaters and life everywhere is sounding a gay note.

HAVE NOTE OF QUAINNESS

Simpler Summer Frocks Are Being Developed in Many Alluring Demure Styles.

There is a note of quaintness in the simpler summery frocks this year; quaintness in small patterned designs are developed in many alluringly demure styles, one with tiny bright red flowers having a little white dotted Swiss bibbed apron appliqued with red wool embroidery.

Hats are made of fabric to match and one model with a poke bonnet trend is equipped with long green earrings.

Pendant frocks in natural or dark colored linens have applique border designs of two-color crepes. Simple morning frocks of gingham are ruffled in white and embroidered in wool, and chemise frocks of handkerchief linen also have rather elaborate embroidered borders in worsted.

Red Cross Meets Anxiety

Denver, Colorado, May 12, 1919.
 To All Chapter Organizers

All production will be temporarily suspended throughout the Mountain division June 1, 1919, in order that the thousands of faithful Red Cross workers may enjoy a well-deserved much needed rest during the summer season.

Far from meaning that the necessity for the chapter and the articles given by the Red Cross workers is ending this temporary suspension of production is the fact that, according to our federal commission, the need for these articles will be as great next fall and winter that it is deemed imperative for our workers to rest and recuperate preparatory to a renewed and even more vigorous campaign in the fall.

Both for historical purposes and to form the nucleus for the collection of workers needed for the coming production, we therefore suggest and urge that you chapter take steps immediately to enroll, in a winning review, all those who have participated in the making of beautiful dresses, hats, pajamas, quilted beds, knitted stockings, etc. These lists should be taken not to omit the name of any individual worker from the list, as this list will prove of considerable personal and historical value in years to come.

Chapters desiring branches should urge their local organizations to keep similar lists and to enroll their workers in the same manner, and in the case of the disbanding of such branches, they should be taken to make certain that the branch lists are turned in to the chapter headquarters.

Very sincerely,
 J. A. Haley,
 Manager, Mountain Division,

Magnificent work started the county this week, and the future for all interests seem bright to brighter. It has been a happy hour, but the time is not only rapid but extremely pleasing.

We take the following from the New Albin News:

That the life of a woman officer from all over was lately shown at North McGregor one day last week. A well-known Wagon man got off the Prairie du Chien train with a suit case and was walking toward the Wagon train when the revenue man spied him and, thinking him a serious smuggler, engaged him in conversation. While they were talking the officer noticed that the suit case was leaking, and accused the Wagon man of having brought whiskey into the state. He denied it. The revenue man dropped his finger into the puddle and tasted it. It smelled like whiskey. He made another dip and tasted

Where the War Money Went

THE ORDER AND THE MILL

From our entry in the war to the end of 1918, Uncle Sam's debt was more than 25 billion dollars. But of this, nearly 8 billion were lent to other nations—and that was some of the best fighting finance, as you will see a little later.

By spending and lending 25 billion in nineteen months we saved six months' further warfare, and perhaps a year.

We also saved at least 100,000 American soldiers' lives and four times as many wounded.

Nor was this all. For had the war continued through 1919 our further expense this year would have been not less than 25 billion dollars, and more likely 30 billions. So that through the nineteen months of war spending, if we deduct money raised to lend Allied nations, we find that every dollar raised by Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps came pretty near saving the spending of two dollars during 1919—the year of fighting that never came.

Shipping was a big problem, and we were caught short of merchant ships. But our shipyards got busy and new ships were built, and old ones brought from the Great Lakes, taken from coast-wise service, chartered from neutral nations, and lent us by the Allies. So, in it—and it tasted like whisky. He placed the Wagon man under arrest for bringing whisky into Iowa, and ordered him to come along. "You better open the suit case," said the Wagon man, "before you cause me to miss my train." The revenue officer did so. Out fell a bottle of gin.

November, 1918, we had a cargo fleet of 2,655,000 deadweight tons, which transported to France 5,275,000 short tons of cargo. Of the 2,048,008 American soldiers sent over, 893,149 were carried under the American flag.

Uncle Sam built in France 937 miles of standard gauge railroad and 538 miles of narrow gauge—a total of 1,475 miles nearly as much standard gauge railroad as there is in Connecticut—almost another Lackawanna system. Counting in the narrow gauge, there is more mileage than the railroads in Maryland, and nearly another Chicago, Great Western system. In locomotives, 1,383 standard gauge engines were shipped to France, and 1,055 erected; 466 narrow gauge locomotives shipped to France; 18,013 standard gauge cars shipped to France and 14,302 erected; 3,751 narrow gauge cars shipped over. In this country the Armistice found half as much railroad equipment again, ready for shipment or under construction: 559 standard gauge locomotives, 32,685 standard gauge cars, 217 narrow gauge locomotives, 4,972 narrow gauge cars.

When the war ended our army abroad was equal to the British Expeditionary Force—2,013,009 officers and men in Europe and Siberia. Back home we had 1,690,254 more in training, and were steadily turning them out of the training camps after 4 months' drilling.

Where the war money went? Our war money—if it went anywhere it was largely from one pocket to the other, and it has worked so well for us, and will work so much harder in the future, that it was not an expenditure, but a splendid national investment.

Lumber has made an average advance of 25% since the beginning of the war.

With an abundance of employment at high wages and the recent stimulus to economy caused by the war, there is more money that could be utilized for home building than there has been for many years.

Lumber is relatively low in price, the advance not having kept pace with the increases in wages, freight rates and other commodities — from 35 to 50 per cent and over.

Now, therefore, while other commodities are higher in proportion, and Lumber is lower, is the time to do your building.

ROSA AND HER TWO COMPANIONS FACE DEATH FROM STARVATION OR DISEASE

Synopsis.—Don Esteban Varona, rich Cuban planter, hides his money and jewels and the secret of the hiding place is lost when he and the only other person who knows it are killed. Donna Isabel, step-mother of the Varona twins—Esteban and Rosa—searches vainly for years for the hidden treasure. Johnny O'Reilly, an American, loves and is loved by Rosa. Donna Isabel falls to her death in an old well while walking in her sleep. Esteban's connection with the Cuban Insurrección is discovered and he and Rosa are forced to flee. O'Reilly, in New York on business, gets a letter from Rosa telling of her peril and he starts for Cuba. Pancho Cuseto, faithless manager of the Varona estates, betrays Esteban and Rosa, leading Colonel Cobo, notorious Spanish guerrilla, to their hiding place. Esteban, who is absent, returns just in time to rescue Rosa. O'Reilly's efforts to reach Rosa are fruitless and he is compelled by the Spanish authorities to leave Cuba. Esteban wreaks a terrible vengeance on Pancho Cuseto. A fierce fight with Spanish soldiers ensues. Esteban escapes, but, badly wounded and half-conscious, he is unable to find his way back to his camp. Rosa, with the faithful servants who had remained with her, is forced to obey the concentration order of General Weyler, the Spanish commander, and seek refuge in Matanzas. O'Reilly returns to Cuba with a band of filibusters, which includes Norine Evans, an American girl who has dedicated her fortune and services as nurse to the Cuban cause. Although warned by Cuban officers that both Esteban and Rosa probably are dead, O'Reilly refuses to abandon the search. He joins the forces of General Gomez, the Cuban commander.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued.

"I inferred as much from what Lopez told me." The general nodded his white head. "Well, you'll make a good soldier, and we shall be glad to have you." He extended his hand, and O'Reilly took it gratefully.

The city of Matanzas was "pacified." So ran the boastful blarney of the captain general. And this was no exaggeration, as anyone could see from the number of beggars there. Of all his military operations, this "pacification" of the western towns and provinces was the most conspicuously successful and the one which gave Valeriano Weyler the keenest satisfaction; for nowhere did the rebellion lift its head—except, perhaps, among the ranks of those disaffected men who hid in the hills, with nothing above them but the open sky. As for the population at large, it was cured of treason! It no longer resisted, even weakly, the law of Spain. The reason was that it lay dying. Weyler's cure was simple, efficacious—it consisted of extermination, swift and pitiless.

Poverty had been common in Matanzas, even before the war, but now there were so many beggars in the city that nobody undertook to count them. When the refugees began to pour in by the thousands, and when it became apparent that the government intended to let them starve, the better citizens undertook an effort at relief; but times were hard, food was scarce, and prices high. Moreover, it soon transpired that the military frowned upon everything like organized charity, and in consequence the newcomers were, perforce, abandoned to their own devices. These country people were dumb and terrified at the misfortunes which had overtaken them; they wandered the streets in aimless bewilderment, fearful of what blow might next befall. They were not used to begging, and therefore they did not often implore alms; but all day long they asked for work, for bread, that their little ones might live. Work, however, was even scarcer than food, and the time soon came when they crouched upon curbs and doorsteps, hopeless, beaten, silently reproachful of those more fortunate than they. Their eyes grew big and hollow; their outstretched hands grew gaunt and skinny. The sound of weeping women and fretting babies became a common thing to hear.

Dogs and cats became choice articles of diet, until they disappeared. The government did supply one quality of food, however; at intervals, it distributed yucca roots. But these were starchy and almost indigestible. From eating them the children grew pinched in limb and face, while their abdomens bloated hugely. Matanzas became peopled with a race of grotesquely misshapen little folk, guinea with young bodies, but with faces old and sick.

Of course disease became epidemic, for in the leaky hovels, dirt-floored and destitute of any convenience, there could be no effort at sanitation. Conditions became unspeakable. The children died first, then the aged and infirm. Deaths in the street were not uncommon; nearly every morning bodies were found beneath the portales. Starving creatures crept to the market in the hope of begging a stray bit of food, and some of them died there, between the supply stalls. The death wagons, heavy with their daily freight, rumbled incessantly through the streets, adding to the giant piles of unburied corpses outside the city.

Typhoid, smallpox, yellow fever, raged unchecked. The hospitals were crowded, and even in them the commonest necessities were lacking. It is believed that many have returned from the grave, but no one, either Spaniard or Cuban, had ever been known to return from one of these pesthouses, and, in consequence, those who were stricken preferred to remain and to die among their dear ones.

Yes, Matanzas was pacified. Weyler's boast was true. Nowhere in the entire province was a field in cultivation; nowhere, outside the garrisoned towns, was a house left standing. Nor was the city of Matanzas the only concentration camp; there were others dotted through Santa Clara, Habana and Pinar del Rio. In them half a million people cried for food. Truly no rebellious land was ever more completely pacified than this, no people's spirits ever more completely crushed.

Into Matanzas, city of beggary and death, came Rosa Varona and her two negro companions, looking for relief. They made the journey without mishap, for they were too destitute to warrant plundering, and Rosa's disguise concealed what charms remained to her. But once they had entered the city, what an awakening! What suffering, what poverty, what rage they saw! The three of them grew weak with dismay at the horror of it all; but there was no retreat.

Asensio built a makeshift shelter close under La Cumbre—from it the ruins of the Quinta de Esteban were visible—and there they settled down to live. They had hoped to lose themselves among the other prisoners, and in this they were successful, for none of their miserable neighbors were in any condition to notice them, and there was nothing sufficiently conspicuous about two tattered blacks and their hunchbacked daughter to draw attention from the soldiers.

Asensio foraged zealously, and at first he managed somehow to secure enough food for his little family. One day the soldiers seized him and put him to work on the fortifications along with a gang of other men who appeared strong enough to stand hard labor. Asensio was not paid for this, but he was allowed one meal a day, and he succeeded in bringing home each night a share of his allotment.

It is surprising how little nourishment will sustain life. Rosa and her two friends had long felt the pinch of hunger, but now they plumbed new depths of privation, for there were days when Asensio and his fellow conscripts received nothing at all. After a time Evangelina began making baskets and weaving palm-leaf hats, which she sold at six cents each. She taught Rosa the craft, and they worked from dawn until dark, striving with nimble, tireless fingers to supplement Asensio's rations and postpone starvation. But it was a hopeless task. Other nimble fingers worked as tirelessly as theirs, and the demand for hats was limited.

They had overlooked the road to San Severino, that Via Dolorosa on which condemned prisoners were marched out to execution, and in time the women learned to recognize the peculiar blaring notes of a certain cornet, which signified that another "Cuban cock was about to crow." When in the damp of dewy mornings they heard that bugle they ceased their weaving long enough to cross themselves and whisper a prayer for the souls of those who were on their way to die. But this was the only respite they allowed themselves.

Rosa meditated much upon the contrast between her present and her former condition. Matanzas was the city of her birth, and time was when she had trod its streets in arrogance and pride, when she had possessed friends by the score among its residents. But of all these there was not one to whom she dared appeal in this, her hour of need. But even had she felt assured of meeting sympathy, her pride was pure Castilian, and it would never down. She, a Varona, whose name was one to conjure with, whose lineage was of the highest! She to beg! The thing was quite impossible. One crumb, so taken, would have choked her. Rosa preferred to suffer proudly and await the hour when hunger or disease would at last blot out her memories of happy days and end this nightmare misery.

Then, too, she dreaded any risk of discovery by Mario de Castano, who was a hard, vindictive man. His parting words had shown her that he would never forgive the slight she had put upon him; and she did not wish to put his threats to the test. Once Rosa saw him, on her way to buy a few centavos' worth of sweet potatoes; he was huddled in his victoria, a huge bladder of flesh, and he rode the streets deaf to the plaints of starving children, blind to the misery of beseeching mothers. Rosa shrank into a doorway and drew her tattered shawl closer over her face for fear Don Mario might recognize in this misshapen body and in these pinched, discolored features the beautiful blossom he had created.

Nor did she forget Colonel Cobo. The man's memory haunted her, asleep and awake; of him she was most desperately afraid. When for the first time she saw him riding at the head of his cut-throats she was like to swoon in her tracks, and for a whole day thereafter she cowered in the hut, trembling at every sound.

In these dark hours she recalled the stories of the old Varona treasure and Esteban's interesting theory of its whereabouts, but she could not bring herself to put much faith in either. Of course it was barely possible that there was indeed a treasure, and even that Esteban's surmise had been correct. But it was little more than a remote possibility. Distance lends a rosy color to reality to our most absurd imaginings, but like the haze that tints a far-off landscape, it dissolves upon approach. Now that Rosa was here, in sight of the ruined quinta itself, her hopes and half-beliefs faded.

More than once she was tempted to confide in Evangelina and Asensio, but she thought better of it. Although she put implicit faith in Evangelina's discretion, she knew that Asensio was not the sort of fellow to be trusted with a secret of great magnitude—he was boastful, talkative, excitable; he was just the sort to bring destruction upon all of them. Rosa had sufficient intelligence to realize that even if she found her father's riches they would only constitute another and a greater menace to the lives of all of them. Nevertheless, she wished to set her mind at rest once for all. Taking Evangelina with her, she climbed La Cumbre one day in search of roots and vegetables.

It turned out to be a sad experience for both women. The negroes wept noisily at the destruction wrought by Pancho Cuseto, and Rosa was overcome by painful memories. Little that was familiar remained; evidence of Cuseto's all-devouring greed spoke from the sprouting furrows his men had dug from the naked trees they had felled and piled in orderly heaps, from the stones and mortar of the house itself.

The well remained, although it had been planked over, but it was partially filled up with rubbish, as Rosa discovered when she peered into it. Only a tiny pool of acum was in the bottom. After a long scrutiny the girl arose, convinced at last of her brother's delusion, and vaguely ashamed of her own credulity. No, if ever there had been a treasure, it was hidden elsewhere; all of value that this well contained for Rosa was her memory of a happiness departed. Of such memories, the well, the whole place, was brimful. Here, as a child, she had romped with Esteban. Here, as a girl, she had dreamed her first dreams, and here O'Reilly, her smiling knight, had found her. Yonder was the very spot where he had held her in his arms and begged her to await the day of his return. Well, she had waited.

But was that Rosa Varona who had promised so freely and so confidently this pitiful Rosa whose bones protruded through her rags? It could not be. Happiness, contentment, hope—these were fictions; only misery, despair, and pain were real. But it had been a glorious dream, at any rate—a dream which Rosa vowed to cherish always.

CHAPTER XIV.

That Sick Man From San Antonio. It was part of the strategy practiced by the Cuban leaders to divide their forces into separate columns for the purpose of raiding the smaller Spanish garrisons and harassing the troops sent to their relief, reassembling these bands only when and where some telling blow was to be struck.

When O'Reilly and Branch enlisted in the Army of the Orient they were assigned to the command of Col. Miguel Lopez, and it was under his leadership that they made their first acquaintance with the peculiar methods of Cuban warfare.

There had been, at first, some doubt of Branch's fitness to take the field at all—he had suffered a severe hemorrhage shortly after his arrival at Cabañas—and it was only after a hysterical demonstration on his part that he had been accepted as a soldier. He simply would not be left behind. At first the Cubans regarded him with mingled contempt and pity, for certainly no less promising volunteer had ever taken service with them. But upon the occasion of the very first fight all ill-will disappeared as if by magic, for, although Branch deliberately disobeyed orders, he nevertheless displayed such amazing audacity in the face of the enemy, such a theatrical contempt for bullets, as to stupefy every one. Moreover, he lived up to his reputation; he continued to be insanely daring, varying his exploits to correspond with his moods, with the result that he attained a popularity which was unique, nay, sensational.

O'Reilly alone understood the reason for the fellow's morbid irritability, his suicidal recklessness; but when he privately remonstrated he was grossly told to mind his own business. Branch flatly refused to modify his conduct; he seemed really bent upon cheating the disease that made his life a misery.

But, as usual, fate was perverse; she refused to humor the sick man's hope. When, after blindly inviting death, Leslie had emerged from several engagements unscathed, his surprise—and perhaps a natural relief at finding himself whole—became tinged with a certain apprehension lest he survive those dangerously courted dangers only to succumb to the ills and privations of camp life. The fellow's tongue grew ever sharper; his society became intolerable, his gloom oppressive and irresistibly contagious. When, after several weeks of campaigning, the column went into camp for a short rest, O'Reilly decided that he would try to throw off the burden of Leslie's overwhelming dejection, and, if possible, shift a portion of it upon the shoulders of Captain Judson.

On the day after their arrival O'Reilly and the big artilleryman took advantage of a pleasant stream to bathe and wash their clothes; then, while they lay in their hammocks, enjoying the luxury of a tattered oil-cloth shelter and waiting for the sun to dry their garments, O'Reilly spoke what was in his mind.

"I'm getting about fed up on Leslie," he declared. "He's the world's champion crepe-hanger, and he's painted the whole world such a deep, despondent blue that I'm completely dimal. You've got to take him off my hands."

O'Reilly's youthful assistant, who at the moment was painstakingly manufacturing a huge, black cigar for himself out of some purloined tobacco, pricked up his ears at the mention of Branch's name and now edged closer, exclaiming:

"Caramba! There's a hero for you. Meester Branch is the bravest man I ever seen. Our people call him 'El Demonio'!"

O'Reilly jerked his head toward the Cuban. "You see? He's made the hit of his life, and yet he resents it. My nerves are frayed out. I've argued myself hoarse, but he misconstrues everything I say. I wish you'd convince him that he has a chance to get well; it might alter his disposition. If something doesn't alter it I'll be court-martialed for shooting a man in his sleep—and I'll hit him right in the middle, no matter how slim he is." O'Reilly compressed his lips firmly.

The assistant, who had finished rolling his cigar, now lighted it and repeated: "Yes, sir, Meester Branch is the bravest man I ever seen. You remember that first battle, eh? Those Spaniards seen him comin' and threw down their guns and beat it. I laugh to think of that day."

"Jacket" was at once the youngest and the most profane member of Colonel Lopez's entire command. The most shocking oaths fell from his beardless lips whenever he opened them to speak English, and O'Reilly's efforts to break the boy of the habit proved quite unavailing.

This Camagueyan boy was a character. He was perhaps sixteen, and small for his age—a mere child, in fact. Nevertheless, he was a seasoned veteran, and his American camp-mates had grown exceedingly fond of him. He was a pretty, graceful youngster; his eyes were large and soft and dark; his face was as sensitive and mobile as that of a girl; and yet, despite his youth, he had won a reputation for daring and ferocity quite as notable in its way as was the renown of Leslie Branch.

In order to expand his knowledge of English—of which, by the way, he was inordinately proud—Jacket had volunteered to serve as O'Reilly's striker, and the result had been a fast friendship. It was O'Reilly who had given the boy his nickname—a name prompted by a marked eccentricity, for although Jacket possessed the two garments which constituted the ordinary insurrecto uniform, he made a practice of wearing only one. On chilly nights, or on formal occasions, he wore both waistcoat and trousers, but at other times he dispensed entirely with the latter, and his legs went naked. They were naked now, as, with the modesty of complete unconsciousness, he squatted in the shade, puffing thoughtfully at his giant cheroot.

"Did I told you about that battle of Pinar Bravo? Eh?" He turned his big brown eyes upward to O'Reilly. "Cris-to! I still more'n a dozen men that day!"

"It was a hot scrimmage," Judson attested. "Some of Luque's niggers, those tall, lean, hungry fellows from Santiago, managed to hack their way through a wire fence and get behind a detachment of the enemy who had made a stand under a hill. They charged, and for a wonder they got close enough to use their machetes. It was bloody work—the kind you read about—no quarter. Somehow Jacket managed to be right in the middle of the butchery. He's a brave kid, all right. Muy mulo!"

At that moment Branch approached, his long face set in lines of discontent, even deeper than usual. He had been wandering about the camp in one of his restless fits, and now he began:

"Say, what do you think I've been doing? I've been looking up some grub for Miss Evans, and I can't find any."

"Can't find any?"

"Nothing fit for her to eat. You don't expect her to live on this infernal, eternal beef stew."

"Didn't Major Ramos bring anything along?" O'Reilly asked.

"He says there's a famine at Cabañas."

"We'd better look into this," Judson exclaimed, and, finding that his clothes were dry, he hurriedly began to dress himself.

Together, the three men made an investigation of the camp's resources, only to discover that Branch was right. There was, indeed, but little food of any kind, and that little was of the coarsest. Ordinarily, such a condition of affairs would have occasioned them no surprise, for the men were becoming accustomed to a more or less chronic scarcity of provisions; but the presence of Norine Evans put quite a different complexion upon the matter. They were still discussing the situation when Miss Evans, having finished her afternoon nap, threw open the flaps of her tent and stepped out.

When she had listened to the account apologetically submitted by her three friends, she drew her brows together, saying, plaintively: "Oh dear! We've been going short for a week, and Major Ramos told me we'd fare better when we got here. I had my mouth all set for a banquet. Couldn't you even find the poor dog a bone?"

"I'm afraid the cupboard is bare,"

O'Reilly acknowledged.

"Do you know what I want for dinner?" Norine inquired. "Lamb chops with green peas, some nice white bread, a salad, and coffee."

The three men looked at her anxiously. Judson stirred uneasily.

"That's what I want. I don't expect to get it."

With a sigh of relief the captain exclaimed: "I thought you were giving your order."

"Goodness, no!" With a laugh the girl seated herself upon her one camp-chair, inviting her callers to dispose themselves on the ground about her. "If you can stand the food, I dare say I can. Now then, tell me what you've been doing since you left Cabañas. I've been frightened to death that some of you would be hurt. That's one reason why I've been working night and day helping to get the hospitals in shape. I can't bear to think of our boys being wounded. Everything is so different to what I thought it would be, and I'm so weak and ineffective. The medical supplies I brought are nearly all gone, and I've learned what hard work it is fitting up hospitals when there's nothing to fit them up with." She sighed.

"I imagined I was going to work wonders—I thought I was going to be a Florence Nightingale, and the men were going to idolize me."

"Don't they?" Judson demanded.

"No. That is—not in exactly the way I expected."

"They all want to marry her," O'Reilly explained.

"Insolent bunch!" growled the captain. Then he swallowed hard and said, "But for that matter, so do I."

"How silly you boys can be!" Norine laughed. "I dare say the others are joking too, but—"

"Joking?" O'Reilly grinned. "Not at all. I'm the only single man in camp who isn't in love with you. When you arrived this morning there was a general stampede for the river. I'll bet the fish in this stream will taste of soap for years to come."

As if to point O'Reilly's words at the moment appeared Colonel Lopez, shaved blood-ran and clad in a recently laundered uniform which was still damp. The three Americans rose to salute him, but discipline was lax and he waved them back to their seats.

O'Reilly, fighting with the Cuban rebels, makes a remarkable discovery that puts new life into his hopes. Don't miss the next installment.

WOMAN WORKS 15 HOURS A DAY

Marvelous Story of Woman's Change from Weakness to Strength by Taking Druggist's Advice.

Peru, Ind.—"I suffered from a displacement with backache and dragging down, a pain so badly that at times I could not be on my feet and it did not seem as though I could stand it. I tried different medicines without any benefit and several doctors told me nothing would do me any good. My druggist told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with the result that I am now well and strong. I get up in the morning at four o'clock, do my housework, then go to factory and work all day, come home and get supper and feel good. I don't know how many of my friends I have told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. ANNA METTERIANO, 36 West 10th St., Peru, Ind.

"No. They will do a great deal of talking about doing a great deal of gardening until it is too late to do any gardening this spring, and then reluctantly put it off until next spring."—Kansas City Star.

Quicksilver Output. The domestic output of quicksilver in 1918, according to the United States geological survey department of the interior, was 151,452 flasks of seventy-five pounds each, valued at about $3,042,302. Compared with the output of 1917, this shows a decrease in quantity.

Health Was Shattered

Mrs. Hayes Was Discouraged Until Doan's Made Her Well.

"I was in awful shape from kidney trouble," says Mrs. Frank Hayes, 43 Boyer St., Boston, Mass. "When I got up out of a chair, I felt as though someone had stuck a knife into the small of my back and it fairly took my breath away."

The kidney secretions passed often and only a little at a time. They were so searing I would scream so I believe I could have heard a block away. They deposited brick-dust like sediment and their odor was something awful. My complexion became sallow and I had large, dark, sunken eyes."

"I was troubled with spells of gasping for breath and had such dizzy attacks I often fell right over. Spots floated before my eyes and I got so nervous I couldn't stand any noise. I cried over nothing at all, became irritable and imagined all sorts of things. My health was shattered and I became discouraged."

"I continued to grow worse in spite of any treatment and came pretty near dying several times. After several months of this horror, I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills. I used a dozen boxes of Doan's and was cured. I was entirely well and have enjoyed good health ever since."

WASHINGTON SIDELIGHTS

Three Flying Circuses to Aid the Victory Loan

WASHINGTON.—Three flying circuses of American, French and British aviators in American and captured German Fokker planes will tour the United States in connection with the Victory Liberty loan campaign, giving aerial sham battles and aerobatics over 50 leading American cities.

Fourteen captured German Fokker planes have been landed at Newport News and shipped to Washington. The best types of American planes developed during the war will be demonstrated. Each squadron will be carried in a special train of 11 cars, traveling at night.

Six of the best British flyers developed during the war will participate. Eight French flyers, one of whom has a record of 41 victories, have come from France to take part. Photographers of the signal corps will accompany each squadron. They will take war photographs of each of the American cities visited; the plates will be dropped from the airplanes by parachute and hurried reproductions made for the benefit of the residents of all cities visited. Parades will precede the flights.

The general program to be followed in each city visited will be as follows: Two American scout planes will rise to drop Victory loan literature over the city. Four "German" planes will then attack these two American planes in the air. Four American planes will then drive off the "German" planes, and the flyers will give demonstrations of aerial aerobatics.

These tours and demonstrations will be under the direction of the bureau of publicity of the Victory loan organization. The actual flights will be under the direction of the military aeronautics branch of the war department, with Capt. Leon Richardson in charge.

Washington Memorial to Bishop Francis Asbury

IN THE last hours of the Sixty-fifth congress Representative Charles H. Sloan of Nebraska made an address in favor of senate joint resolution authorizing the erection on public ground in Washington, D. C., of a memorial to Francis Asbury. No appropriation is asked; the funds have been raised by subscription. Congress is asked to give a site. Who was Francis Asbury? Doubtless the average American citizen does not know. Mr. Sloan said among other things:

"He was born in the parish of Bandsworth, England, August 20, 1745. Early called to active militant church service, he became, in 1771, the elder Wesley's 'procurator' for America. He was a patriot, standing with the people whom he hoped to serve in their struggle for an independent nationality, while every one of his coworkers sent from England by Wesley went back to the mother country.

"The seashore and the great river banks had the important settlements of America. Many of them would have furnished a suitable home for a bishop, but this he did not desire nor would he have it. He believed that the outposts of American civilization should be the outposts of Methodism. He would be a commander to lead a charge rather than to order an advance made. So from 1784, when he was ordained a bishop, till 1816, when he passed to his reward, no road was too long to travel, no river too turbulent to cross, no storm too fearful to venture, no savage that he would not face, no civilized man or mob he would not confront.

"At the Saratoga general conference in May, 1916, on the commemoration of the centennial of Bishop Asbury's death, Judge Henry Wade Rogers in a masterly address, said:

"Asbury preached about 16,500 sermons; traveled about 270,000 miles, most of it on horseback, some of it on foot; presided in 224 annual conferences, and ordained more than 4,000 preachers. In addition, he was writing more than 1,000 letters a year."

Will December 31 Be the National Wedding Day?

YOUNG men contemplating matrimony will do well to bear in mind the latest interpretation of the law. The man who was married at any time during 1918, a commissioner has ruled, is entitled to tax exemption for a wife for a full year. Thus, he whose ceremony took place at 11 p. m., December 31, 1918, wins all of his $2,000 exemption—less, of course, the wedding expenses. On the other hand, he who married at 1 a. m., January 1, 1919 (and likely enough there were some such), might just as well have been married way back in 1917.

In Denver an enterprising reporter took a look at the 1918 marriage record and found that 13 couples were married on December 31. Denver has a population of 200,000. This is to say a marriage to 20,000 people. If there were marriages December 31 all over the country in the same proportion among our 110,000,000 people, the total was 5,500. As each marriage carried with it an exemption of $2,000, the aggregate exemption was $11,000,000. In short, the account stands thus: Tax exemption, $11,000,000, without the expense of wives for a year and with only wedding expenses to be considered.

Will this bring about a radical change in the popular wedding season? Will December hereafter be the season of brides and June be thrown into the discard? Will December 31 be the one great marrying day of the whole year? Will it come to be the big national holiday of the year, bigger than Christmas, the Fourth of July and Thanksgiving day? Will it be combined with New Year's day in a double holiday?

The only trouble with this profound mathematical calculation and the deductions therefrom is that brides are in the habit of setting the wedding day. And little the bridegrooms will have to say about it, tax exemption or no tax exemption.

United States Has $574,000,000 for Good Roads

WITH full state co-operation, according to the terms of the federal aid road act, the United States will have a total of at least $574,000,000 for co-operative road building during the next three years. The federal part of this fund is assured by an extra appropriation of $200,000,000 in the post-office appropriation bill passed by congress.

Officials of the bureau of roads, United States department of agriculture, which administers the provisions of the federal aid road act and co-operates with the state governments in the expenditure of the money, point out that this amount of funds is the largest ever appropriated for similar purposes and for a similar period by any government in the history of the world. In connection with the great federal aid program it is also noted that expenditures for highway work in the United States this year are likely to amount to $500,000,000 or more. On reports received from state highway departments the bureau of public roads estimates the 1918 expenditures for roads and bridges at $285,000,000, or $110,000,000 more than the average expenditures for 1916 and 1917.

An important effect of the law containing the new appropriation is that it broadens the definition of a rural post road, under which class a highway had to qualify in order to receive the benefits of the federal aid act.

The new act also raises the government limit of contribution from not to exceed $10,000 a mile to not to exceed $20,000 a mile, taking account of higher present costs of labor and materials.

Of the $200,000,000 added to the funds available under the federal aid road act, the new law makes $30,000,000 available for expenditure by the secretary of agriculture for roads and trails within or partly within the national forests.

Starving in the Midst of Plenty

Acid-Stomach Steals Strength and Good Feelings From Millions

One of the worst features of acid-stomach is that very often it literally starves its victims in the midst of plenty. And the strange thing about it is that the people with acid-stomachs seldom know what their trouble really is.

No matter how good or wholesome the food may be, or how much they eat, they do not gain in strength. This is clearly explained by the fact that an acid-stomach cannot properly digest food. Instead of healthy, normal digestion, the excess acid causes the food to sour and ferment. Then when this mass of sour, fermented food, charged with excess acid, passes into the intestines, it becomes the breeding place for all kinds of germs and toxic poisons, which in turn are absorbed into the blood and in this way distributed throughout the entire body. And that is exactly why it is that so many thousands of people eat and eat and keep on eating and yet are literally starving in the midst of plenty. Their acid-stomachs make it absolutely impossible for them to get the full measure of nourishment out of their food. And it doesn't take long for this poor nourishment to show its ill effects in a weakened, emaciated body.

Naturally, the sensible thing to do is to strike right at the very cause of this trouble and clean the excess acid out of the stomach. There is a quick, easy way to do this. A wonderful new remedy quickly removes the excess acid without the slightest discomfort. It is EATONIC. Made in the form of tablets—they are good to eat—just like a bit of candy. They literally absorb the injurious excess acid and carry it away through the intestines. They also drive the bloated out of the body—in fact you can fairly feel it work. Make a test of EATONIC in your own case today. Get a big box of EATONIC from your druggist. See for yourself how surely it brings quick relief in those painful attacks of indigestion, bitter heartburn, belching, disgusting food repeating, that awful bloated, lumpy feeling after eating and other stomach miseries. Banish all your stomach troubles so completely that you forget you have a stomach. Then you can eat what you like and digest your food in comfort without fear of distressing after effects.

If EATONIC does not relieve you, it will not cost you one penny. You can return it to your druggist and get your money back. Triumph Over Necessity.

Manhood begins when we have in any way made truce with Necessity; begins even when we have surrendered to Necessity, as the most part only do; but begin joyfully and hopefully only when we have reconciled ourselves to Necessity; and thus in reality triumphed over it, and felt that in Necessity we are free.—Carlyle (Essays).
