OLDEST AND LEADING NEWSPAPER IN CIRCULATION IN THE COUNTY OF LINCOLN, NEW MEXICO

VOLUME 20

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1919

NUMBER 36

CARRIZOZO SCHOOL NOTES

(By H. COLE.)

The public schools of Carrizozo opened Monday morning with about 300 pupils in attendance. After enrollment, assignment to classes and singing of songs, the pupils were allowed to go home for the remainder of the day.

The attendance in the high school is thirty-five, and the teaching force is sufficient to do the best work. In the high school the following courses are offered: English, four years; Spanish, four years; Latin, four years; Commercial, four years; Science, four years; History, three years; Manual Training, two years; Home Economics, two years; and Agriculture, one year.

These courses are being strengthened in every possible way. The school has twelve benches for work in Manual training, a large equipment for the Domestic Science department and seven typewriters in the Commercial department. A first class table for work in Physics will be built by the Manual Training classes and a splendid equipment has been ordered for this department.

Emphasis will be placed on work in the common branches all along the line. We want our boys and girls to read and write well; to be able to spell well and figure well. After that a strong high school course is offered.

We want every boy and girl in the district to come and get all the education possible. Education is the only thing on earth that is free to all. Everything else is screwed down tight, and the screw-driver lost.

The teaching force of Carrizozo is as follows: E. E. Cole, superintendent; Bryan Cozier, principal of High School, Manual training; Edith Lutton, English; Minnie Sullivan, Commercial branches; Jewel Machen, Spanish; Alice Tipton, eighth grade; Mrs. Velma Carlisle, seventh grade; Esther Seale, sixth grade; Elizabeth Jarrett, fifth grade; Lucille Lindsay, fourth grade; Inez Holland, third grade; Mrs. Nora Massie, second grade; Verda Neil, first grade; Ivy Lindsay, first grade; Mrs. Gumm, East side; and Miss Hughes, East side.

Of Interest to Ex-Soldiers

The following advice from the war department will be of interest to all soldiers discharged, or transferred to the Reserve, since April 6, 1917: a large number of whom returned to civil life without claiming their "kit."

Honorably discharged soldiers or those furloughed to the reserve are entitled to permanently retain the following articles of uniform and equipment:

One hat and cord, 1 pair breeches, 1 pair shoes, 1 pair leggings, 1 waist belt, 1 stick, 1 overcoat, 1 barrack bag, 1 pair gloves, 1 O. D. shirt, 1 coat and ornaments, 2 suits underwear, 4 pairs stockings, 3 scarlet chevrons, 1 toilet article.

Additional if overseas: One gas mask and helmet, 1 overseas cap in place of hat and cord.

Duplicates of the articles will be returned to the soldier on application, by sending his name, regiment and company, and the camp from which his discharge was issued together with date, to the Director of Storage, Munitions building, Washington, D. C. This information will be of interest to a great many soldiers, who left the army with nothing but their fatigue uniforms, and perhaps a "cootie" or two smuggled over from France.

New Mexico to Build 483,287 Miles of Roads

Santa Fe, New Mexico, Sept. 1. — A total of thirty-nine federal aid highway projects have been initiated in New Mexico since the United States "fifty-fifty" plan was adopted in New Mexico. New Mexico has shown remarkable speed, insofar as the federal provisions permit, in accepting federal assistance in her road building. Seven of the projects have been fully approved with construction underway, including nearly one hundred miles of highway on which a total of over $950,000 will be expended. Two other projects have been approved and bids for their construction will be opened the middle of September, involving some ten miles of highway at an estimated cost of some $75,000.

The plans and specifications are ready for two more projects totalling sixteen miles at a cost of $359,000. One project has been approved but construction deferred; surveys and plans are being made for eight more, aggregating 129 miles, estimated cost $624,000. Approval has also been asked for twelve more projects, 214 miles, cost $1,260,300. Only one project has been disapproved by the department of agriculture. Two have been withdrawn on the request of county commissioners who wanted others substituted.

The total mileage of projects under construction approved and for which statements are ready is 483,287 miles and estimated total cost $3,377,218.81. The government will pay half of the cost, the state to provide the other half. Counties in which the projects are located contribute out of county levies. The state and counties must therefore provide $1,688,609.40 to meet federal aid on these projects. Projects have already been started in all but Otero, Socorro and Torrance counties.

"The movement to have the public lands ceded to the states is gaining surprising support," said Governor O. A. Larrazolo, back from the Salt Lake City conference of governors. The movement was initiated by him early in his administration.

Death of Capt. John Lee

All the old residents of Lincoln county will regret to learn of the death of Capt. John Lee, which occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ed Queen, at Douglas, Arizona, last Friday. The deceased was a native of Scotland, and followed the sea in his earlier life. He located in White Oaks about 35 years ago, where he was in business for a long number of years, moving to Carrizozo about ten years ago. Of late years he suffered from an internal ailment, and underwent an operation about a year ago, but failed to regain his strength. The captain made friends with all whom he came in contact with. He was about 85 years of age. He leaves two sons, Jim and Ed Lee, who were present when his spirit passed away, and a daughter, Mrs. R. E. Lemon, who was absent from town, and did not learn of her father's death until she returned, which was too late for her to attend the funeral, which took place in Douglas last Saturday.

The News extends condolence to the family.

Your Home Paper and the High Cost of Living

Shoe men predict that by next spring shoes we once paid $3 for will be around $15 and $20. Clothing people say a very ordinary suit will sell at $50, and everything else we wear will be in proportion. Already the price of groceries and furniture, in fact, of all necessities, is so high that it makes a fellow's head hurt to contemplate such soaring. And yet, amid it all, there is one thing that has not kept pace in ascending price with other things: a civilized people cannot well get along without—and that is your home-town paper.

Don't stop reading there if you are a fair-minded man. Just give this a minute's thought. Is there anything that gives you the same amount of enjoyment, the same amount of knowledge, the same amount of valuable suggestions and then serves some worthy purpose that the home-town paper does. And did you know that it has yet never asked you to lay down your good money, unless it met your every requirement. It is one thing you can contract for and quit when you choose and you're still ahead of the game.

Printer's ink, white paper, type metal, labor, everything that goes into the making of your home-town paper has gone up in price as other things went up. But we are asking you no more money for your paper. For that reason, why wouldn't it be a good idea to show your appreciation of the one thing that has remained at the same price by paying up your back subscription. It takes money to print and mail you a paper every week for a whole year, and the printer-man appreciates a timely check.

Carranza Soldiers Shoot Down U. S. Airplane

Washington, Sept. 2. —The war department will await an official report from Major General Dickman, commander of the southern department. Secretary Baker said today, before considering the question of whether some action would be taken against the Mexicans who fired upon an American army airplane on the Rio Grande, wounding one officer. Until some report was received, Mr. Baker declined to speculate on what line the department's action might take.

In military circles, the firing upon army fliers was considered far more serious than the recent detention of two other aviators for ransom. All army machines are plainly marked, it was said, and the press reports from the border would indicate that Captain McNabb's airplane was either on the American side or was following the river—the international boundary at this point. In either case, it should have been immune from hostile attack.

The fact that press dispatches referred to repeated "volleys" from the Mexican side also was considered significant as indicating that the assailants were under some sort of military command.

Reports persisted here that General Dickman has authority to meet such situations, without waiting on his superiors, by sending a column across to capture or scatter the offending band and to clean up the district in which they committed the objectionable action. It would not come as a surprise to many officers if dispatches related to a southward movement by cavalry.

Tri-County Institute Resolutions

The Tri-County Institute of Otero, Dona Ana and Lincoln counties is drawing to a close. Your committee, in an honest endeavor to learn the sentiments of the members of this institute, find so great agreement on all points considered that we offer the following resolutions:

1. That we express our appreciation of the splendid work done by our instructors, and our gratitude to all others who have helped toward making the sessions both pleasant and profitable.

2. That we appreciate the privilege of holding our meetings in the beautiful new buildings of the Otero County High School.

3. That we express to the citizens of Alamogordo our thanks for many courtesies extended.

4. That we extend congratulations to the county superintendents of Lincoln, Dona Ana and Otero counties for the splendid management shown and their spirit of self-sacrificing devotion to the cause for which we stand.

5. We go on record as unalterably opposed to the proposed amendment providing for placing the educational and penal institutions of the state under one board of control.

6. That the sentiment of this institute is—that all influence possible be brought to bear to have formed a separate department of education with representation in the President's cabinet, as provided in the Smith-Turner Bill.

7. That we go on record as favoring medical inspection of schools, under the supervision of the State Board of Health, and that we urge all teachers to use their influence toward that end.

8. That recognizing the broadening influence of a wider outlook, we recommend that every member of this Tri-County Institute become affiliated with his state and national organizations.

9. That it is the sense of the members of this organization that since the institute of 1919 has been so eminently successful, the Tri-County Institute should become a permanent institution.

10. That we go on record as favoring the lengthening of the tenure of office of both the state and county superintendents, and that these same should be persons of education sufficient to hold a first grade certificate or its equivalent.

Jack's Peak Mining Co.

A report from the Jicarilla mining district says: The narrow gauge railway from Luna, a station on the E. P. & S. W., to the iron mines is almost completed. One of the mines has suspended work temporarily, until the air compressor, ordered some time ago, is put up. Also a power hoist, as development has passed the hand-labor stage there. When the machinery arrives and is put in place, the Jicarillas will be the boningist boom camp in New Mexico, with Carrizozo as the trading and distributing point. The Jack's Peak Mining company may be the means of re-incarnating the Jicarilla mining district.

We are this week publishing the articles of incorporation of the Consumers' Coal company of Otero. Our little neighbor on the south may yet occupy a prominent place on the map. Oil, coal and copper is a good starter.

Oscura News Notes

In some localities there has been nice rain, and grazing is good. Stock is fat, gardens fine, orchards splendid, though not a large yield. The fruit is certainly delicious. Every one seems to be happy and of good cheer, for the prospects are now a rush in the oil development.

The Canadian-American Oil & Leasing company, of Vancouver, B. C., have taken over the rig and holdings of E. G. Raffety, and are now drilling after spending a few days on repair work. They are going to carry the hole on down from its present depth of 650 feet. However, they are reaming out a 60 foot offset that had been made, and are making a 12-inch hole all the way down, which they intend keeping as long as possible or as long as they think best. They have a car of coal coming, also another driller, R. W. Gunion, geologist, of Vancouver, is director and general manager. W. E. Tiller, also of Vancouver, a director, is here. J. Wellbank of the same place is on the job, dressing tools. They have rented the Edwards Hotel building and in the store room part will have their offices. They have bought and leased more than 15,000 acres of land. There is quite a little traffic in leases now going on here.

Harold Havens, geologist, of California, was here last week, and said: "I have been all over New Mexico, looking up the oil possibilities, and around Oscura. It is the most favorable place I have seen. I will report same to the companies in California I am out for, which will result in further examination of this field by their own specially employed geologists."

Henry Drace, a former resident and still a property owner of this place, dropped off for a day to see how things were coming in the oil business. He was on his way to Beloit, Wisconsin, where his wife and baby now are. Mr. Drace has been living in Wilcox, Arizona for some time, but is now moving to Beloit to take a position with Fairbank-Morris Co.

Ole Norton, recently discharged from the truck department in France, was in town for a short time. Said he would, in a few days go back to his old home in Wisconsin to see his mother and father.

Floyd Crews, from Chicago, came in last week, to spend a month or more with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Judge S. F. Crews. Floyd certainly looks fine, and he is getting a nice tan on already.

Miss Anna Browning, of Mayhill, N. M. and Miss Evelyn Gore of Alamogordo, the young ladies, who taught the Oscura school last year, have been visiting Mrs. Black for the past week. I'll bet a lot of nice peaches was picked off of those trees next to the house, while they were there.

The school board elected, Miss Bertha Woods of Roswell for principal, and Miss Nora Kimmons of Corona as the teachers this coming year. The school will start September 1st.

A very enjoyable dance was given in the hall next to C. F. Grey's store by Mr. and Mrs. Purcell, in honor of their daughter's birthday. Music was furnished by the Tularosa Jazz Orchestra. There was 75 or more present. Some from Tularosa, Carrizozo and Nogal were there. Cake and coffee was served. The birthday cake baked by Mrs. Black was a beauty. Miss Online received quite a number of presents.

Dr. West, wife and two little daughters left Tuesday for their home in Batavia, Illinois, having spent the past three months with Dr. and Mrs. Ranuiger.

H. D. Chamberlin, of El Paso, is doing clerical work in Mr. Raffety's oil office.

R. W. Gunion, manager of the oil company that is drilling near town, and Mrs. Gunion, his wife, went to El Paso last Friday, returning on Tuesday evening.

Ed. Howser has rented the building next to Chas. F. Grey's store, and will open an oil office there. The Oscura Business Club will also have a room there.

There was two very prosperous looking oil men in town last week, and the report is, that they will be back in just a few days.

The Canadian-American Oil & Leasing Co. received a car of coal Monday, which was unloaded and delivered at the oil rig.

A most enjoyable evening was spent in the parlors of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Grey, by a social bunch of 50 players. Miss Woods, our principal in the school, carried off the grand prize. Mr. Wellbank, a tool dresser, won the booby prize.

The President and the Shopmen

President Wilson has earned the right to speak to the railroad shopmen as a friend. From that point of vantage he proffered them caution and advice which were none the less friendly because solemn in tone, and which, in their own interest and for the behoof of the entire nation, it is hoped they will accept in like spirit.

The president reminded the shopmen that the cost of living has reached its peak and that its trend may hereafter be expected to be downward, and is certain to fall much lower so soon as the treaty of peace has been ratified. Until after that ratification has been accomplished and all business and industry is put upon a sure footing, President Wilson explained, increases of wages dictated by the maximum costs of the moment would defeat the campaign which the government is now conducting for lower prices; would advance the raise for transportation and in that way enhance every charge against production and distribution. These increases of wages to meet a temporary situation would be permanent and their effects on the cost of living would be equally lasting.

Not only the shopmen, but all workers and employers—every man, woman and child in the United States—would continue to feel the pressure of excessive prices of all they need for food, clothing and shelter. Those whose income takes the form of wages and salaries would feel it most of all. Strikes which stop the rate and multiply the costs of production will only magnify the difficulties.

The remedy is quick ratification of the treaty. This will put a period to the uncertainty which makes speculation of every investment, enterprise and transaction that ought to be predicated upon sound, stable conditions. Neither an increase of wages at the hands of the president nor a stoppage of work on the part of labor can afford a cure. The senate alone has the means of ending the evil state of things. Ratify the treaty!

Sylvia and Slang

By GERALD ST. ETIENNE

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Sylvia was a girl of high ideals and "new thought." Her mind was always struggling with beautiful thoughts and philosophy, though it must be confessed right here that although Sylvia's tastes lay that way, her mind was not equal to it. She just understood such things partly—not that Sylvia was stupid. She was really one of the cleverest and most conscientious stenographers in the employ of Ellis & Co., and was fair to look upon; but that is all that could be said of her outward.

Madge was a very different type of girl. "New thought" was farthest from her mind most of the time, and as for beautiful thoughts and the art of living in perfect harmony with everything and everybody, well, she just didn't think of life in that way. Get all the enjoyment out of everybody and everything and give everybody and everything all the enjoyment of yourself as far as it is within your power, was the code that Madge lived up to unconsciously.

She was the life of the office and popular with everybody but Sylvia. Sylvia could not make out Madge at all. At times she seemed good-hearted, and, on unexpected occasions, came out with real philosophy that astounded the other girl, but whatever good impression that made on Sylvia was quickly banished by Madge's use of slang.

That was the bugbear of poor Sylvia's life. She would just sit back and gape and hold her head when Madge let loose some of her new versions of the English language. "I should worry," "Have a heart," "I'll say that it is" and such horrible expressions were mild to some of the crimes against Webster that floated so easily from Madge's pretty, laughing lips.

The others said Madge was original, but Sylvia could see no other interpretation of such a manner of speech, but commonness and utter lack of propriety.

It would not have been so bad, Sylvia thought, if Madge had confined her slang to use among her associates, but when she persisted in using it even in the presence of the manager and the president of the firm, that about capped the climax as far as Sylvia was concerned. What did it matter if Madge could express herself better than any other girl in the office just by resorting to slang? Even when Madge was the means of securing an extra twenty-dollar bonus for the staff Sylvia could find no excuse for her. The incident is worth relating.

For two weeks every stenographer in the employ of Ellis & Co. worked nights to finish some special work. Of course a promised bonus was looked forward to—anywhere from thirty to a hundred dollars was figured on by every girl. Picture their disappointment when the bonus turned out to be a paltry ten dollars each. Every girl (Sylvia included), excepting Madge, got angry and mumbled to themselves about the unfairness of the thing.

Not so Madge. The minute she discovered the extra ten dollars in her pay envelope she was back to the cashier, and said, in a tone loud enough for the manager and president to hear:

"Well, some people are so mean they would sing through their nose to save the year and tear on their false teeth. Now, Mr. Ventilator," (the cashier's name was Ventilator, but Madge had persisted in nicknaming him from the first). "Do you think this a fair bonus? Or," she added, "perhaps the firm is giving us our bonus in installments."

Madge was never impudent. Slang from her lips to the ears of anybody but Sylvia sounded perfectly all right. She was gifted with a personality that could almost have put across profanity.

Before Mr. Ventilator could volunteer an answer to her surprising question, the manager had come from his office.

"You are quite right, Miss Wilson," he apologized. "There was a mistake this week. An additional twenty dollars will be included in the envelopes next payday."

"How enigmatis of you!" It was a senseless expression, but isn't all slang senseless? And then the way Madge said it, it expressed a whole lot.

Sylvia just gaped, while the others, fanged to applaud. Every one of them knew that such an outburst from any one of them would have won instant dismissal, but with the exception of Sylvia they realized that Madge's personality counted more with the firm and somehow her slang seemed to make up part of that personality.

Poor Sylvia! It was bad enough to have to work with a girl that used slang in about every fifth sentence without having a man who used slang in love with her. Dick Levery's slang was not original—it was just ordinary gush-diminished slang that did more to irritate the object of his affections than all the voices of candy and confessions of devotion could ever do to pacify her.

At first Sylvia believed she cured Dick, but finally when she found all her admonitions against the use of common and, to her, vulgar expressions were in vain, she refused to have anything further to do with him. Madge, who blamed for the whole thing, Dick worked in the office and thought Madge was too wonderful for anything. It was from her he caught his habit of using slang, Sylvia felt sure.

That was another reason for disliking the girl. One who disliked the favorite of the office could not hope to be popular, so Sylvia had to content herself with reading the books of J. Lincoln Treadway on philosophical subjects. Of course, she did not understand them, but there was some consolation in dreaming about J. Lincoln and admiring his handsome face as it was pictured on the flyleaf. There was a real man—a man who found the fine things of life and who loathed the low and the barbarous.

How her heart beat one day as she was in the private office of the manager taking dictation and she realized that the visitor who entered was no other than J. Lincoln Treadway.

Unmindful of her the manager jumped from his chair and ran forward with a hand of welcome extended.

"Congratulations, Lincoln, old boy. Miss Wilson is the finest girl in my employ, and I know she will make you happy. She has told me all about it." "Isn't she wonderful?" Lincoln exclaimed enthusiastically. "Why, she just seems to have been made for me. Her happy-go-lucky nature and bright ideas of life are just what I need to take me out of myself. Did you ever hear anything so original as her slang? It's too clever, though, to be called slang. It's more like witty phrases. Madge is the most wonderful girl in the world."

For a long, long time after she had retreated from the private office Sylvia sat down and thought it over. The realization that her views had been narrow suddenly dawned upon her. Making life worth while and enjoying it to the utmost was what counted, after all. She had ruled her own happiness by a false idea of what real living was. Slowly the tears started down her cheeks.

"Sylvia!" It was Dick. They were alone in the office and there was a note of sympathy in his tone that seemed to draw her to him.

Tearfully she confessed her new discovery. "Oh, Dick, I don't care whether you use slang or swear or anything so long as it is you," she blurted finally.

"Won't you even care if I get cafeteria and help myself to a kiss, dear?" he laughed happily.

"I should worry!" The expression sounded strangely new on the lips of Sylvia as she raised them to Dick's.

YOUTH IS LOVE'S GOLDEN AGE

Less Stable but Far More Pleasant Than That Experienced in Later Years.

The love of youth is always full of hope. It is quite free from doubts and fears. The young man and girl have unbounded faith in love because they have had no experience of the heart's instability. Neither women nor men can love quite so wholeheartedly and truly once their faith in love has been shaken. For this reason the palm for true loving goes to youth. Older folks sometimes love with more passion, but they are also more subtle. They are much richer in exquisite expression of their affection, but this ability to "talk love" only comes with practice, and is no proof of sincerity.

This does not mean that an older man or woman is not sincere, but undoubtedly experience has taught them that the love they have won must be constantly aided with sweet words if the desire is to keep it. To a certain extent they are "playing a part," while the love of youth is spontaneous.

A girl does not analyze her love for the boy nor his for her. She has perfect faith and yields willingly to the loved one's authority. The love of older folk is hedged in by reservations and it cannot stand the test of marriage so well.

True love need not be blind, but it should not keep its eyes too wide open, nor should it do too much reasoning, or it may be killed.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Our "Kin" Home Folk.

If we hope to find life worth while we must make the best of existing conditions and of the persons around us. Some of them may be neither over-clever nor brilliant, but if we find them thoughtful and considerate they are worthy of our highest regard. Of course, it is very pleasing to be "taken up" by "really smart" folk, but sometimes this prestige lives only for a day, and then those persons go their way, completely forgetting us and our strenuous efforts to entertain them. Happiness, like the blue bird of fable, is oftenest found at home among our "kin" home folk.

French Villages Forever Ruined.

Many ruined villages of France can not be rebuilt, according to the commission on reconstruction. Vaux, near Verdun, which was so heroically defended, is one of these, and now the remains of two other historic hamlets, Doncourt and Fleury, have informed their fellow-citizens, who have taken refuge in different parts of France, that the German has made them exiles for life. The soil cannot be cultivated, and the ruins are so full of hidden dangers that rebuilding is impossible.

Off His Game.

"It's too bad." "What's the matter?" "He's just shot the best game in golf he's ever played in his life." "Well, what is there bad about that? I should think he'd be very happy." "Oh, he is happy now, but for the rest of his life he's going to be sick at heart because he can't equal his record."

Lace Frocks in Favor in Paris

Deauville, Aix-les-Bains and Monte Carlo are principal points of interest on the fashion program. Paris, which is to say all of fashionable Paris, has betaken itself to the smart resorts in France, so it is necessary to follow closely, asserts a prominent New York fashion writer, if one is to keep in touch with the latest developments in dress.

Always on the alert, Paris traveled to the races, but many of the best people were absent and the midweek fairs the dressmakers at the last moment, so that there were fewer new frocks than had been expected. Happily most of the troubles are over and the best houses have promised interesting and important changes. However, we are left to guess what the changes are to be, though a few of the models give some important clues and the assurance that whatever the changes may be one may be certain that they will be interesting.

The elegance of the pre-war toilettes is repeatedly mentioned and there is every indication that eventually the more elaborate manner of dressing will return. Lace, which has long since been discarded, is considered one of the most important materials for afternoon wear.

Many and conflicting were the comments on its use at the races, but in spite of adverse opinion it was noted that as the days passed by and the makers had an opportunity of showing new models the lace dresses increased in numbers.

An all-lace frock was contemptuously referred to as a lace curtain, but nevertheless the dress was repeated later by other women.

The widely diverging views in regard to the use of lace are to be expected, for there is no more difficult ured in the skirt principally and the waist was of taffeta with a touch of lace. Tunes are as prominent as ever in the scheme of the lace dress, but the lace reaches almost to the bottom of the foundation skirt.

The dark silk dresses considered sufficiently elaborate for any afternoon affair if embroidered or otherwise embellished seem to be passing out, at least for the summertime.

Jenny uses Chantilly lace in a large way, that is to say, in quantities and in big spaces. A black satin and black lace frock by her is typical of the prevailing mode in more ways than one. It carries the harem hem, the almost sleeveless bodice and the nipped-in waistline with the fullness bulging both below and above. To all intents and purposes the dress is of lace, with the pattern in the sweeping curves common to Chantilly. Below the waist there is a full pleat and the satin is draped as a scarf over the shoulders, forming the only sleeves there are and falling straight to the hem at the front, leaving an open space showing the lace, about eight inches wide, in the center.

Drapery and Plaiting. Several striped dresses in taffeta have been noted that show the same arrangement of drapery over the shoulder and one a bit on that order is marvelously constructed of fine plaiting. Variation is found in the way the plaiting is looped up at the sides is a modified pannier effect. Across the front of the upper part the plaits are held in closely, like a girdle, and at each side allowed to fall loosely in a large loop.

Drecol shows a Chantreuse colored frock with the skirt draped in Chantilly and the girdle forming wing-like loops at the side, giving the desired width.

On the whole new models are rather scarce, suggesting that the best known makers are not averse to holding back as many of their creations as they may for later in the season.

Whether by accident or following the lead of Paris, a well-known American designer turned out lately a charming afternoon dress of organdie and black net, bearing out the assertion that silks are no longer absolutely necessary in the construction of the reception and dinner frock.

The entire gown was of French blue organdie draped with the net in tulle fashion and edged with black lace. If either this frock or the lace frocks noted at the races are any indication, the chemise dress is on the wane, for each one is marked by a decided waistline and both show slashes tied in huge bows at the back.

All the late models by Beer point to the fact that the flaring tunic over a tighter foundation will continue in favor.

Redingotes Are Coming Back.

Cloth dresses in redingote style continue to appear and are quite the accepted thing when wool dresses are worn. From this the indications are that the redingote will be among the autumn models when they make their appearance on this side. Redingotes were introduced two or three seasons ago. At the time they did not make any deep impression, but are now rather surer of success, as any suggestion of being extreme will be out of the question, and they are undoubtedly smart.

As the longer jacket is rather sure of being the proper thing this fall, one may have the same trouble as formerly in trying to tell a dress from a coat or the reverse.

All authorities agree so far on the wider hip line and the accentuated fullness about the hips, and this is to be found in the coats and suit jackets, as well as in the frocks, where it has been seen principally so far. Jenny is very active in turning out suits, as it appears that the dolman and even the cape are slightly less in demand and it is anticipated that the suit will take the place to a certain extent.

Among New Fall Shades.

Among the new fall shades, Indian red, Pompeian red and Cordovan brown (a warm yellow brown tone), are most prominent.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

My thoughts come flying forth in flocks. Gay, eager ones of vivid hue. But oh, the little winged things That will not flutter through!

The little lovely wispy things That start and then draw back with fear. These are the ones of all That I hold vastly dear.

SANDWICH FILLING OF VARIOUS KINDS.

A sandwich may be filled with meat, chicken or fish, making a sandwich which is in itself a meal, or filled with sweets, a dessert or a dainty to serve with a cup of tea or a glass of cooling beverage.

Cold meat put through the meat chopper, with a sweet pickle or two and bound together with a salad dressing, makes a good sandwich and one in which leftovers may be used without remarks from the family.

Veal and Tongue Sandwiches.—Put the veal and tongue through the meat chopper and moisten with a small amount of soup stock; season with paprika and nutmeg. Spread on buttered bread after chilling the meat. Any kind of meat, minced or sliced, mixed with various seasonings such as capers, pickles, nuts or olives will make, with a little ingenuity of the cook, a countless number of good and appetizing sandwiches.

Thinly sliced radishes, cucumbers, onions, chopped green peppers and lettuce make most tasty sandwich fillings.

Olives, either stuffed, green or ripe, may be mixed with nuts and boiled dressing, or added to cream cheese or to cottage cheese.

Cottage cheese with chopped candied cherries (or cream cheese is richer), makes a most tasty sandwich for a sweet sandwich.

Chopped celery and cheese (the American) and Roquefort are all good as fillings.

A club sandwich is enjoyed by the men prepared as follows: Place a slice of tomato with salad dressing on a buttered slice of rye bread, add a layer of cream cheese mixed with chopped nuts, then top with a slice of rye bread.

Chopped hard-cooked egg mixed with butter, a pinch of mustard, salt and pepper makes a most appetizing sandwich.

Life is not so complex if we do not persist in making it so. We need faith; we need to be brave; we need chronically to keep the corners of the mouth turned up and not down. And after all it is only a step at a time.—Ralph Waldo Trine.

FOOD FOR HOT DAYS.

There is nothing that takes the place of good vegetables for hot weather dishes; they rank with fruit in importance. A healthy diet must include vegetables, for they not only build up the bones and teeth but supply bulk, which is an essential to intestinal movement; their chief value is in their mineral salts, which are needed to make good blood and produce changes in the body cells which are necessary to keep the body young and supple.

A rule which has no exceptions, is to cook vegetables in boiling water and most liquors should be saved for soups or to serve as a sauce with the vegetable; the liquor from beets is one to except.

String beans served with a bitter sauce or in a rich cream sauce are delicious, but for variety cook them two to three hours with a quarter of a pound of salt pork or a few slices of bacon if preferred. Cook down with the saucepan uncovered until the moisture is nearly all absorbed and evaporated, then add a tablespoonful or two of vinegar, salt if needed, and a dash of cayenne.

Creamed Onions and Tops.—Take finger-sized onions, cut, leaving a three-inch stem, cook until tender and serve in white sauce on toast as asparagus is served. Young beets, tops and all, are very good served as a vegetable. Cook them until tender, chop or cut up in coarse bits and serve with butter and vinegar. The secret of savoriness in vegetables is care in seasoning. Do not always serve the same dish with the same seasonings.

When teaching a child to like a certain kind of vegetable make it as attractive as possible in appearance, and go farther to avoid disappointment; make it so tasty that no further urging is necessary.

Such vegetables as tender green peas should be cooked in as little water as possible, not to lose the good flavor. For this reason steaming is an economical method to use. The French cook peas in lettuce leaves in the top of the steamer; the lettuce is served as greens, making a most tasty dish. Serve with butter and a dash of vinegar.

Salads of various kinds, using both vegetables and fruits, are most acceptable hot weather dishes.

Couldn't Work

S. W. Bishop Was Laid Up By Kidney Trouble. Now Owes Good Health to Doan's.

"I owe my present good health, largely, to Doan's Kidney Pills," says S. W. Bishop, 512 Kensington Ave., St. Louis, Mo. "I wasn't able to work. Sharp pains would catch me when I stooped or tried to lift anything, and at night the kidney secretions passed frequently and were painful. Speech seemed to be before my eyes and I would get dizzy. There was a fullness under my eyes. I could see myself failing from day to day and I finally was laid up from June until September. I got Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. I received relief with the first box and became stronger every day. I could sleep well at night and the kidney secretions were now of natural color. The dizziness and other troubles disappeared and I picked up in weight. After I had used four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills I looked and felt like my old self. The cure seemed a miracle and I firmly believe that my life was saved by this remedy."

HOW RHEUMATISM BEGINS

The excruciating agonies of rheumatism are usually the result of failure of the kidneys to expel poisons from the system. If the irritation of these uric acid crystals is allowed to continue, incurable bladder or kidney disease may result. Attend to it at once. Don't resort to temporary relief. The sick kidneys must be restored to health by the use of some sterling remedy which will prevent a return of the disease. Get some GOLD MEDAL Hamlet Oil Capsules immediately. They have brought back the joys of life to countless thousands of sufferers from rheumatism, lame back, lumbago, sciatica, gall stones, gravel and other affections of the kidneys, liver, stomach, bladder and allied organs. They will attack the poisons at once, clear out the kidneys and urinary tract and the soothing healing oils and herbs will restore the inflamed tissues and organs to normal health. All others are imitations. Ask for GOLD MEDAL and be sure the name GOLD MEDAL is on the box. Three glasses, at all good druggists.—Adv.

TELLS LOST SHIP WHERE SHE IS

System of Triangulation Will Give Bearings to Bewildered Craft.

ALL U. S. PORTS TO WATCH

Operators at Radio Stations Figure Out Position of Boat by Compasses—Used in Navy for Years.

New York.—Not the least of the dangers attending the business of being a mariner has been that of losing one's bearings while at sea. Time was when the sailor's life was more replete with danger than in these days of advanced maritime efficiency. But though the ocean terrors were eliminated one by one until there remained little to be afraid of, there still was the disconcerting possibility of a ship losing itself in fog and compass irregularities; of mishaps to instruments and disabilities of steering mechanisms. Thus every so often a liner or freighter or a warship was reported "lost in the fog" or "out of its course."

The United States naval communication service has perfected a system of triangulation that has eliminated the possibility of further maritime reports of this sort. It is not the discovery of any one man. Indeed, it truly cannot be classified as a discovery. It is simply a perfection of a basic rule of position finding that has formed the fundamental of range determination in the army and a straightforward geometric theorem concerning intersecting lines.

System Explained.

The perfected system has been in use in the American navy for a year. At 44 Whitehall street the system was explained briefly by attaches of the New York district central controlling radio station.

It is to be assumed that a ship is a hundred miles off the middle Atlantic coast. She has lost her bearings. Her navigators are unable to tell her latitude and longitude. At once the bewildered ship's radio flashes the American coast a demand to be told the data she needs most:

"Where am I?"

The request coming within the sector for which the New York district central controlling radio station is responsible, the appeal is received by five radio compass stations located at Montauk Point, L. I. Fire Island, Rockaway Beach, Sandy Hook and Manhattan, N. J.

Each of these stations is connected with 44 Whitehall street by telegraph and telephone. These radio compass stations cannot communicate with the "lost" ship, as they are receivers only and not transmitters. However, each of the radio compass stations notifies the central station in Whitehall street that a ship within the district is demanding to know its location. Immediately the central station radios the bewildered mariner to continue transmitting his call letters for at least thirty seconds. And at the same time the radio compass stations begin obtaining bearings on the ship.

Then Its Simple.

The operators in the five stations turn their compass wheels until each has an accurate bearing. These five readings are transmitted to the central station where, on a huge chart, the five readings are combined. Each reading will indicate a certain number of miles between the ship and the station that took the bearing. It is a relatively simple matter, then, to project these lines upon the chart until the five lines intersect. And that point of intersection is the location of the calling ship. Acknowledgment from the ship completes the operation.

Every American port is now being safeguarded by just such systems of radio compasses and central stations. Within a few months, at any point along the coast, mariners will be able to approach channels, reefs and shoals waters with an absolute assurance that they will not proceed too near, nor yet exercise such great caution

"Kinematic Surgery" Developed to Extraordinary Degree.

Italian Physician Achieves Remarkable Results in Fitting Artificial Legs.

Bologna, Italy.—Remarkable results have been achieved in Italian military hospitals recently by the use of what is known as "kinematic surgery," the invention of Professor Patti of Bologna university. Professor Patti's methods have aroused intense interest on the part of American doctors attached to the Italian commission of the American Red Cross who are supervising the artificial leg factories already established and being established in Athens, Saloniki, Belgrade and Bucharest for the war's mutilated.

At present allied soldiers in the Balkans who have lost their limbs are being fitted with artificial limbs and arms of a type similar to that employed by Sarah Bernhardt. Professor Patti's methods, however, are a distinct advance over all other artificial appliances.

His treatment of amputated limbs consists of a unique preparation of

Good Chickens Are Profitable Investment

Washington, D. C.—The story of Reuben Love, of North Ship-leigh, Me., illustrates the possible profits from poultry keeping where careful management is practiced. During 1913 this poultryman, who devotes only part of his time to chicken raising, kept 250 birds, which paid him a profit over feed cost of more than $1,000, equivalent to $4 a bird. Included in this amount are the sales of a few eggs for hatching, about 30 cock-erels sold for breeding purposes at $3.50 to $5 each, as well as the market eggs, which were disposed of in large quantity. Mr. Love keeps White Wyandottes of a strain that wins in the show ring when judged according to either the standard of perfection or a utility standard.

One pen of 20 pullets owned by this Maine poultry raiser produced eggs as follows: November, 1913, 413; December, 1913, 418; January, 1914, 390; February, 1914, 320; March, 1914, 450; a total of 1,991 eggs, averaging 99.65 eggs per bird in five months.

It pays to keep poultry of this kind, and growers everywhere are coming to realize that there is more money in keeping better fowl and feeding them properly balanced rations than in wasting time with inferior birds, as to throw them out of their course. And thus also is the danger attending fog banks eliminated.

Lieutenant Commander R. B. Coffman, U. S. N., is superintendent of the central station at 44 Whitehall street. Lieut. M. W. Arps, U. S. N., is in direct charge of the New York district.

BID BY FRANCE IS TOO LOW

Offers Only $300,000,000 for United States Material—May Be Sold Elsewhere.

Washington.—The French government having offered only $300,000,000 for American army equipment in France, costing $1,500,000,000, the war department has ordered a sales organization for disposal of the property be formed in France. Director of Sales here told a special house committee investigating war department expenditures abroad. Director Hays said the French offer was made to Chairman Parker of the United States legislation committee. The offer, he stated, included all material, including ship docks, railroad works and equipment, automobile trucks and textiles. "If France will not pay a fair figure," the director added, "we will take the stuff out of the country and sell it elsewhere."

the stump to develop a "motor" end to the cords which, after being bound together over a smooth "bearing" of bone, get as much as a three-inch travel of the leg by means of a re-education and co-ordination of the muscles of the stump.

After the stump heals Professor Patti cuts out a flap of flesh, which he folds back into an incision to take the flap. This is allowed to heal and then through the loose flap of flesh a metal bar with attachments to operate the artificial limb below is suspended.

The muscles of the calf and thigh readily respond after some weeks to the movement of the artificial leg, and soon the pressure of the swinging of the artificial leg re-educates the muscles through the flap of flesh, so that it may be said the muscles of the stump actually operate by themselves the independent features of the artificial limb.

In the case of a severed hand the muscle groups surrounding the bone are trained to operate certain cords which, in turn, operate artificial fingers.

Not since the introduction of "kinematic" in American army medical work in France has any medical innovation created as much comment.

AMERICA'S BURDENS

Burdens to my shoulders I have lifted stinging;
Not for me the silence of the early slave,
Through primeval forests I my ax went swinging,
Till the gloomy wildwood light and shelter gave.

All the unknown mysteries on my shoulders pressing,
Hunger and the fierce beasts and the
savage men,
Yet I laughed, my musket's shining lock caressing—
Soon the dead lay quiet and the wounded sought their den.

Loneliness in desert, soul and body thirsting,
Harvests long awaited burned by cruel
sun;

I have watched the torrents my dams'
strong barriers bursting;
I have laughed and lost, and I have laughed and won.

Borne full off the weight of war and
women's weeping,
But I never faltered on my destined way.

Now the world such burden of hopes on me is heaping,
Faint my spirit grows and I feel my body away.

Freedom of the prairies, winds from mountains blowing, Dreams and clean achievements my heritage have been;
Strength has flowed to meet me and strength from me is flowing, World! I'll show you visions that mine eyes have seen.

HINTS FOR THE POULTRY GROWER

Chicken mites are a constant menace to the flock. They curtail egg-production, hinder growth, reduce vitality and sometimes cause the death of setting hens.

The poultry-keeper must maintain a constant warfare on these pests that reduce his profits.

They multiply very rapidly in warm weather. Their life cycle from egg to adult requires only about a week's time. Blood is essential for the development of the mite in all stages of growth. They are active at night when the hens are on the roosts, and chicks are in the coops, sucking blood until they are full and then returning to cracks and crevices during the day.
To combat them, hiding places must be reduced to the minimum, and an effective spray must penetrate every crack and crevice where they may be hiding.

There are a number of good mixtures that have proven effective in controlling these insects:

Crude petroleum thinned with one part of kerosene to four parts of crude oil is cheap, and retains its kiling power for several weeks. Five parts cream of lime, one part creolin, and one part kerosene is a favorite mixture with many poultrymen. Pure kerosene and kerosene emulsion, are used with success, if frequently applied.

These mixtures should be forced into all their hiding places with a sprayer or brush.

Remove as many internal applicances as possible, roosts, nests, hup-pers, etc., and give them an application of the mixture out of doors.

To be the most effective, the solutions should be forced into all badly infested quarters; and sides, floor and even roof must be treated.

The work should be done on pleasant days when the flock can be outside, and the coops and poultry house may be closed for a few hours after applying the mixture so that the woodwork may dry. Keep the pests in subjection by frequent applications of some mixture during the summer months.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

In a strong mind fear grows up into cautious capacity, grief into amiable tenderness.

What we do not believe is of no importance. The secret of life is to discover what we believe.

It is usually not so much the Sorrow does not really change already in them; that which they bring to it they will reap from it.

Sodium and Potassium Are Most Interesting Metals

Perhaps the most interesting metals of all are sodium and potassium, says Boy's Life. They are usually mentioned together because they act in almost the same way. If a piece of either is placed on water it does not sink, but spins over the surface and often, in the case of potassium, bursts into flame. After the metal is dissolved in the water, it will be found to be soapy. If the metal is placed on water colored with red litmus, the water will turn blue. If the metal is placed in pure concentrated sulphuric acid nothing will happen, but if a drop of water is added there will be a violent explosion.

The great stone tower in this photograph is Rumeli castle, overlooking the Bosphorus at Constantinople. It was built in 1452 as a fortification against the Moslem advance on the Sublime Porte. The tower is one of the many picturesque buildings in or about the great city, which under the terms of the peace treaty ceases to be the capital of an empire.

A Good Kind of Dessert.

There is no dessert more wholesome,
attractive and well liked than fruit.
Muskmelons, watermelons, berries of various kinds in season when grown in one's own garden or purchased at a reasonable price, are wonderful savers of time in dessert making.

When one cannot afford to serve fruit as a full dessert it may be used as a garnish, thus helping out the appearance and flavor as well as the cost of the dessert.

Junket is a most wholesome and delicious dessert and when garnished with a spoonful of sugared, fresh fruit, is satisfying and inexpensive.

Plain Junket.

Heat to lukewarm temperature a quart of milk, add a junket tablet dissolved in a tablespoonful of cold water, a pinch of salt, and sugar to sweeten to taste, flavor with any desired flavoring, pour into sherbet cups and let stand in a warm room to set.
When thick put on ice to chill and serve with a spoonful of whipped cream and a spoonful of fresh berries well sugared, one, or both.

Rice With Bananas.

Peel and scrape three well-ripened bananas and mash them with a fork until smooth and creamy, adding a few drops of lemon juice. Stir this lightly into one cupful of cooked rice and serve with cream and sugar.

Velvet Sherbet.

Take the juice of three lemons, two cupfuls of sugar or strained honey and one quart of rich milk, freeze as for ice cream. If the honey is not at hand, sugar and water with a little grated rind may be cooked to a syrup and cooled. The sherbet keeps better when the syrup is used, as it does not melt so quickly.

Peach Ice Cream.

This is a most delicious cream, made from very ripe fruit: Peel, wash and put through a sieve using a pint of pulp, or less will flavor a quart of cream, adding sugar syrup to sweeten and a little lemon juice to accent the peach flavor. Almond extract is often used and well liked in peach ice cream, but with nicely flavored fruit it is not needed.

Apricot Ice Cream.

Drain a can of apricots, force through a strainer. To the apricot juice add one and one-half cupfuls of orange juice, a few grains of salt and a cupful of sugar, then add the apricot paste and freeze.

Prescriptions May Best Be Filled by Those Who Think They Are Ailing

If people always knew beforehand just what the doctor's prescription would be, most of the time it would be quite unnecessary to consult a doctor.

A patient with a vague and indeterminate complaint sought out the late Dr. Weir Mitchell and elaborately described what she thought were the symptoms of imminent collapse.

The famous physician heard her out with courteous gravity, wrote a line or two on a bit of paper and then said: "Take this to the drug store across the street and they will fill it for you."

When the ailing hypochondriac showed the paper to the apothecary, he smiled and handed it back.

"I'm afraid you'll have to fill this out yourself, madam," he said deferentially.

"What do you mean?"

Then she read what was written. It was simply the Bible verse: "Greater

His tastes are not limited, but he deals in large quantities. In some respects the grizzly is a dainty feeder.
He is fond, for instance, of violets, and will eat several pounds if he can find vour almost any sort of bulb. On the other hand, he will eat meat of any age. Apples and turnips are perhaps his favorite delicacies, but he also is fond of honey. Usually, he eats the hives with it. Wasps, yellow jackets, grasshoppers, ants and their eggs, bugs and all sort of grubs are also on

Corn Remains What It Was Before Columbus Landed

The early Indians grew flint corn for hominy and flour corn for bread and soups. They invented "succotash," composed of maize and beans, with butter and salt added. We owe to them all of our best recipes for the preparation of corn, not excepting "hockcake" and cornbread.

Corn remains today what it was before Columbus landed, the great American food crop. Our last year's crop of maize, loaded on wagons in single file and allowing 20 feet to each wagon, would make a line long enough to encircle the globe nine and a half times.

WRITES NEW NOVEL OPERA

Mascagni's Latest Effort Is Revolutionary Step.

(Has No Characters, but Represents Ideas for Which Men Have Striven.)

Rome.—Pietro Mascagni, known to reverence as the composer of "Cavalerie Rusticana" and numerous other musical works, has written a new opera, "Il Piccolo Mariù," which is characterized here as distinctly a revolutionary step in operatic works. It contains no personalities as characters in the story, but it substitutes for them symbolic representations of virtues and ideals similar to the American pageant.

"I expect to produce my new opera next winter in Rome," said Signor Mascagni to the Associated Press correspondent. "The theme is founded on the conflict of the ideas between the autocrat and the democrat, between oppression and freedom. The time of the opera, of course, is not limited to any one period. The opera is symbolic of many periods and would just as readily apply to the stirring times of the American Revolution as it would

to the French revolution, or the Russian or the Bavarian.

"I have no characters in the production representing any particular personalities. There is no Napoleon, Metcalf or Garibaldi. My characters represent the ideas for which men have endeavored to keep men in subjection. There is a character for justice, for truth, for freedom; and, on the other hand, for tyranny, for ignorance, for wrong. The plan in my new work has been to depict in song the evolution of man from a slave to a free man through the instrumentality of characters representing the abstract qualities for which man fought, and,

the national joy smoke

NEVER was such right-handed-two-fisted smokejoy as you puff out of a jimmy pipe packed with Prince Albert! That's because P. A. has the quality!

You can't fool your taste apparatus any more than you can get five aces out of a family deck! So, when you hit Prince Albert, coming and going, and get up half an hour earlier just to start stoking your pipe or rolling cigarettes, you know you've got the big prize on the end of your line!

Prince Albert's quality alone puts it in a class of its own, but when you figure that P. A. is made by our exclusive patented process that cuts out bite and parch—well—you feel like getting a flock of dictionaries to find enough words to express your happy days sentiments!

COAL SHORTAGE ON WAY; GOVT.
SAYS BUY NOW

May Be Repetition of 1917-18
Conditions Next Winter Says
Geological Survey.

MINES IDLE WITHOUT ORDERS.

Those Who Delay Ordering Longer May Not Get Their Fuel Later On.

The United States Geological Survey announces from Washington, the probability of another general coal shortage next fall and winter. The announcement is based, the Survey states, upon a nation-wide study of conditions in the bituminous field. Unless steps are taken at once, the Survey says, to place the mines upon a basis of increased production there is every prospect of a repetition to some degree of the situation that prevailed in the United States during the winter of 1917-18.

The only way production can be stimulated at the present time, it is said, is by placing orders with the mines for coal which will be needed later on. "Production during the first five months of the year," reads the statement, "fell 57,332,000 net tons, or approximately 25% below production during the first five months of 1918. Mines are producing coal now at the rate of from 8,000,000 to 8,500,000 tons a week. An average output of 10,700,000 tons a week must be maintained from June 1 to January 1 next if the country's estimated needs of 500,000,000 tons this year are to be met."

Evil of Delayed Orders.

At no time during this year has the rate of production approached the required tonnage. The tendency on the part of buyers to hold off placing their orders is limiting production, as the mines cannot store coal at the point of production, and when the rush of orders for the winter's needs comes next fall there is grave danger that the mines, with depleted labor forces and the probability of less adequate transportation, will be unable to meet the demands. The result of such a situation would be an insufficient supply for the requirements of domestic consumers, public utilities and industrial users generally.

"It is believed that requirements for this year," reads a Survey statement to Fuel Administrator Garfield, "will be about 500,000,000 tons of bituminous coal, of which approximately 30,000,000 tons have been used from stocks accumulated last year, leaving 500,000,000 tons to be produced. Of this 500,000,000 tons 178,000,000 tons were produced during the first five months, leaving 322,000,000 tons to be produced in the remaining 30 weeks, or an average of 10,700,000 tons a week.

"Thus far this year production has been at the rate of 8,200,000 tons a week. In 1918 production was at the rate of 11,300,000 tons a week.

"This production will be difficult of accomplishment. The capacity of operating mines at the present time with labor now on the payroll is about 10% lower than it was last year. This deficiency may be made up in part or wholly if the mines have orders sufficient to run them five or six days a week unless the threatened exodus of foreign-born labor occurs.

May Be Car Shortage.

"Present wage agreements between operators and miners expire with the proclamation of peace by the President. A suspension of mining operations while a new wage agreement is being negotiated would, of course, seriously interfere with the production of coal and if it should occur during the fall would cause a panic among buyers and consumers of coal."

There is no use in gambling upon this or any other contingency, fuel administration officials say. The firm or individual who wants to be sure of an adequate coal supply next winter can be certain by buying coal now. There is no other way such assurance can be obtained. Transportation also promises to be a limiting factor if the flood tide of demand comes at a time when the country's record crops are being carried. In some districts it would appear certain that, notwithstanding the utmost endeavors of the Railroad Administration and the utilization of its experience last fall, car shortage will be a cause limiting bituminous coal production, and for that reason it is problematical whether the expected production of 500,000,000 tons can be attained this year.

Shortage of labor already is a factor that is cutting down the output in some coal producing sections, according to the Survey's report. The operators report that from 35,000 to 40,000 foreign-born miners expect to return to Europe as soon as they can get passports and that many have already returned. If continued this movement will be capable of producing but one result—a reduction of the amount of coal mined in districts where the mine labor is largely foreign-born, and there are many such districts.

He who needs coal should hesitate no longer. Now is the time to buy coal.

IN EUROPE—WORK IS TO BE OPENED IN BELGIUM
AT ONCE.

Commission Aboard To Study the Situation—Extensive Program Is Planned—Church Busy in Other Lands.

Nashville, Tenn. (Special Correspondent)—On August 29th a commission composed of Bishop James Atkins, of North Carolina, John H. Pepper, of Tennessee, Dr. Helle H. Bennett, of Kentucky, and Mrs. Luke O. Johnson, of Georgia, sailed for Europe to arrange for the opening of extensive religious and philanthropic work in Belgium, France and other war-torn countries.

They represent the Centenary Commission and the Board of Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which have set aside $5,000,000 of Centenary funds for religious reconstruction in Europe.

They go with authority to purchase property and open work at once in Belgium and to make a careful survey of the needs in other countries and recommend an adequate program. Orphanages, schools, social centers, religious literature and direct evangelism will be the methods employed.

In some of the countries to be entered the work will be conducted in cooperation with the Methodist Episcopal Church, which is already operating in France, Italy and the Balkans, and is planning to expand its work greatly as a result of the Centenary, which in the two churches brought missionary pledges aggregating more than $150,000,000.

TWO AND ONE-HALF MILLION
MEMBERS TO OBSERVE DAY OF FASTING AND PRAYER.

Centenary Commission Starts Movement To Establish 100,000 Family Altars—Following the Plan of Old Circuit Riders.

Nashville, Tenn.—The Centenary Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has named August 29th as a special day of fasting and prayer for the two and a half million members of the church. The Commission has also started a movement to establish 100,000 Family Altars, by having that many homes pledged to observe daily devotions.

This is the revival of ancient customs in the church. It is the part of an intensive campaign which the church has launched in connection with the spiritual side of the Centenary Movement, through which the Methodists raised $53,000,000 in an eight day drive last May.

The object of the present campaign, as stated by Rev. S. A. Nebbett, Secretary of the Department of Spiritual Resources, is to enroll at least 10% of the church members in the prayer league known as the Fellowship of Intercession, to establish 100,000 Family Altars, and to assist in finding a thousand young people to go abroad as missionaries.

August 24-31 is known as Mission Week. During this period the seven thousand pastors and are their members to join the Fellowship of Intercession, to establish Family Altars, and to observe the day of fasting and prayer.

JAPAN TO MODIFY KOREAN RULE.

So Predicts Dr. S. E. Hager, 26 Years a Southern Methodist Missionary in The Orient.

Nashville, Tenn.—That Japan will moderate her rule in Korea is the prediction of Dr. S. E. Hager, recently returned missionary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Dr. Hager has spent more than a quarter of a century in Japan doing religious work. Japan is learning that her success in giving good government to Korea is fraught with difficulties, and that tolerance and good will must take the place of harsh and severe methods.

"The military leaders are usually at leasting their rule thorough and permanent, and naturally there is great temptation to the men of the sword to make his rule severe."

"But democratic ideas are growing in Japan, and more temperate treatment of the subject race will come about."

Dr. Hager says the Christian missionaries in the Orient are elated at the success of the Centenary movement, through which the church raised $53,000,000 for missionary work in all lands.

Millions of this will be spent in the Orient. Hundreds of new missionaries will be sent and there will be a great advance movement in medical work, education and evangelism.

LEADERSHIP

The world today needs trained, loyal leaders. Notwithstanding that less than one half of one per cent of the population of the United States is enrolled in colleges and universities, college men and women have predominated remarkably in leadership. College and university enrollment should be doubled for the good of the country. The University of New Mexico invites ambitious young men and women to prepare for leadership.

OPPORTUNITIES

The University is undergoing reorganization and betterment. Special attention will be devoted to the conservation of the health of students. A new Department of Hygiene, supported in part by Federal Appropriation, will be in operation. Nearing completion is the new building for Practical Mechanics. Instruction is offered in Mathematics, Biology, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, History, Political Science, Economics, Business Administration, Home Economics, Education, Hygiene, Psychology, Philosophy, Physical Training, Music and Languages, including English, Spanish, French, Italian, Latin and Greek. EXPECT TO COLLECT SUM OF $53,000,000

SOUTHERN METHODISTS OUTLINE
PLANS FOR HANDLING GREAT CENTENARY FUND.

Organization Will Collect Largest Amount Ever Handled By Any Religious Denomination Anywhere.

The Centenary Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has announced its plan for collecting the $53,000,000 which was pledged for the missionary work of the church in the recent eighty-day drive. The plan was prepared and will be directed by Colonel John E. Edgerton, of Tennessee, the general centenary treasurer and the director of the department of finance for the Centenary Commission.

Colonel Edgerton is a well known business man. He is president and manager of the Lebanon Woolen Mills, president of the Tennessee State Manufacturers Association, and during the war he was a member of the executive committee of the war industry board appointed by President Wilson.

"Our slogan is no shrinkage, but an increase," said Colonel Edgerton recently. "Just as the Southern Methodist church has surpassed all records in securing pledges for benevolent purposes and has raised the largest sum ever given to any church at one time in the history of the world, so do we expect to set a new record in the collection of these pledges."

An Extensive Organization.

The organization through which these pledges will be collected has four centers of responsibility. The first is a general finance commission with headquarters at Nashville, headed by Colonel Edgerton. This commission has prepared the standard plan and will direct the entire movement, handing down to the various bodies throughout the church detailed plans for their guidance.

There will also be a conference cabinet in each annual conference of the church, about forty in number. These conference cabinets will be composed of the Conference Missionary Secretary, Conference Campaign Director, the lay leader, and the Conference Centenary Treasurer. Each of these officials have certain specific duties, and will direct the work of collecting all the pledges in each annual conference.

In each of the four hundred districts of the church there is a similar cabinet composed of the Presiding Elders, the lay leaders, Campaign Directors and the Chairman of the Methodist Minute Men. The Conference Missionary Secretary is an ex-officio member of all district cabinets. The work of collecting in the districts will be supervised by this district cabinet.

Twenty Thousand Churches.

In each of the 20,000 local churches there will be local cabinets composed of the pastor, the centenary treasurer, the campaign director, the lay leader, the chairman of the minute men, the Sunday school superintendent and the president of the Woman's Missionary Society. This cabinet will do all the actual work of collecting the individual pledges.

The persons who made subscriptions will be divided into lists of twenty-five and the lists will be placed in charge of a certain member of the church cabinet who will collect all pledges as they come due.

One feature of the standard plan is that the local church will be responsible for collecting the full amount of its subscription. If any subscribers dies or moves with many one such as to render it impossible for him to pay his pledge, it will be the duty of the church cabinet to secure another person to take the place of the one that becomes delinquent.

It is also proposed that every new member who comes into the church shall also be asked to make a contribution to the Centenary fund.

The Centenary fund of $53,000,000 will be used for the church in an extension of its missionary work throughout the world. Several millions will be spent in the devastated regions of France, Belgium, Poland and Russia. Other millions will go to the seven foreign fields occupied by the church—Mexico, Brazil, Cuba, Africa, China, Japan and Korea. Other millions will be spent in the industrial sections of the great cities, in the mountains, among the immigrants, the negroes and the Indians, and in building churches in the missionary territory of the United States.

and are hereby designated to act as Directors of this corporation for the first three months after its formation; that the number of Directors shall be seven, and before the expiration of the said three months period in which said designated Directors are hereby authorized to act as Directors, a meeting of the stockholders shall be called according to law to meet at Otero, Lincoln County, New Mexico, the home office of said corporation, on the first day of November, 1919, and the said meeting shall there be held, and Directors, seven in number, shall be elected for a period of one year, and such annual election shall be held as aforesaid on the first day of November every year at the annual meeting of the stockholders at said home office, and at which annual meeting to-wit: on the first day of November each year, other business may be transacted, provided nothing in this certificate shall be construed as preventing special call meetings of the stockholders for the transaction of any business that they are authorized to transact under the law and this certificate.

That said Directors shall enter upon their duties immediately after the granting of this Certificate as provided by law, and those hereafter elected shall enter upon their duties on the 15th day of November each year after their election on the said first day of November; said directors shall elect one of their number President of the Company, also shall elect a Secretary and a Treasurer. Said directors shall hold their offices one year and until their successors or successors are elected, provided however no director can hold for a longer period than five years without reelection by the stockholders.

SIXTH
 The directors shall have the power to make, amend and repeal all by-laws governing the corporation and its business, and shall fill all vacancies on the Board of Directors until election by stockholders is held, and at such meeting the stockholders may confirm such appointments by the Board of Directors or elect other members.

SEVENTH
 The power to make, amend and repeal the by-laws made by the directors, shall always remain subject to amendment or repeal by the stockholders, but if not acted upon shall be confirmed.

EIGHTH
 This corporation shall exist for a period of fifty years from the date these articles of incorporation are filed and approved by the State Corporation Commission of New Mexico.

NINTH
 At all times by the stockholders, each stockholder shall have the right to cast as many votes for or against any question or for the election of directors as shares owned by him, and his qualifications to vote and the number of shares representing the number of votes he is entitled to cast, shall be determined by the stock book and transfer books of the corporation, and the fact that a stockholder's stock may be hypothecated, pledged or mortgaged, shall not affect his right to cast a vote equal to the full number of shares owned by the stockholder as shown on the stock and stock transfer books.

TENTH
 The board of directors shall have full control and charge of the business of the corporation and shall appoint all officers and managers, except the directors themselves who shall be elected by the stockholders, except unexpired terms may be filled in case of vacancy as hereinbefore stated.

The New Fall Hats are delightfully becoming

A Woman's Hat is a peculiar part of her attire.

A shape may look very odd and quite often freakish, and yet when put on it assumes a most becoming setting.

The models now being shown offer such wide latitude for choosing that you can find a becoming hat quickly and satisfactorily. You will find hats turned up at the side, others come straight over the head, others in smaller shapes, while trimmings have been shaped at just such angles to produce the most becoming and modish effects.

Savings Campaign Is Boon To Women

The average family in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and New Mexico is not wealthy enough for the "buds of the house" to have all the little conveniences she wants. Through Thrift and War Savings Stamps, however, the government has provided a way for the housewife to fit up her kitchen, paint the house, furnish her spare room or embellish the parlor.

These women who were so wise as to begin saving systematically early in 1918 have now little sums invested in War Savings Stamps by this time. Eleven War Savings Stamps, some of which cost as little as $4.12 apiece, will buy a first class kitchen cabinet. In many instances, the housewife would not have saved anything to speak of, had it not been for the War Savings Stamps.

Some of the hundred Savings Societies in the Eleventh District are in women's clubs or church societies. Women are quick to grasp the benefits from habits of Thrift. Numerous reports have been received at District Headquarters of the Savings Division at Dallas of women who have started in by putting quarters in Thrift Stamps and who have been enabled to buy desired articles to brighten up their homes. As soon as a War Savings Stamp is bought, it begins earning more money. War Savings Stamps are ready money. They are redeemable with accrued interest at the post office on ten days' notice, but the longer they are held, the more money they make for their holders.

Have you bought your Thrift Stamp today?

BARTON MAKES HIS FIRST FORAY INTO THE WORLD AS A STUDENT IN MICHAEL HACKETT'S ACADEMY

Synopsis.—Barton Baynes, an orphan, goes to live with his uncle, Peabody Baynes, and his Aunt Deel on a farm on Rattleroad, in a neighborhood called Lickitysplit, about the year 1826. He meets Sally Dunkelberg, about his own age, but socially of a class above the Bayneses, and is fascinated by her pretty face and fine clothes. Barton also meets Rovin Kate, known in the neighborhood as the "Silent Woman." Amos Grimshaw, a young son of the richest man in the township, is a visitor at the Baynes home and Rovin Kate tells the boys' fortunes, predicting a bright future for Barton and death on the gallows for Amos. Barton meets Silas Wright, Jr., a man prominent in public affairs, who evinces much interest in the boy. Barton learns of the power of money when Mr. Grimshaw threatens to take the Baynes farm unless a note which he holds is paid. Now in his sixteenth year, Barton, on his way to the post office at Canton, meets a stranger and they ride together. They encounter a highwayman, who shoots and kills the stranger. Barton's horse throws him and runs away. As the murderer bends over the stranger Barton throws a stone, which he observes wounds the thief, who makes off at once.

The beauty of that perfect day was upon her. I remember that her dress was like the color of its fireweed blossoms and that the blue of its sky was in her eyes and the yellow of the sunlight in her hair and the red of its clover in her cheeks. I remember how the August breezes played with her hair, flinging its golden curling strands about her neck and shoulders so that it touched my face, now and then, as we walked! Somehow the rustle of her dress started a strange vibration in my spirit. I put my arm around her waist and she put her arm around mine as we ran along. A curious feeling came over me. I stopped and looked at my arm.

"It's very warm!" I said as I picked a stalk of fireweed.

What was there about the girl which so thrilled me with happiness?

She turned away and felt the ribbon by which her hair was gathered at the back of her head.

After a moment of silence I ventured:

"I guess you've never fallen in love."

"Yes, I have."

"Who with?"

"I don't think I dare tell you," she answered, slowly, looking down as she walked.

"I'll tell you who I love if you wish," I said.

"Who?"

"You." I whispered the word and was afraid she would laugh at me, but she didn't.

We stopped and listened to the song of a bird—I do not remember what bird it was—and then she whispered:

"Will you love me always and forever?"

"Yes," I answered in the careless way of youth.

She stopped and looked into my eyes and I looked into hers.

"May I kiss you?" I asked, and afraid, with cheeks burning.

She turned away and answered: "I guess you can if you want to."

Now I seem to be in Aladdin's tower and to see her standing so red and graceful and innocent in the sunlight, and that strange fire kindled by our kisses warms my blood again.

That night I heard a whispered conference below after I had gone up stairs. I knew that something was coming and wondered what it might be.

I remember the sad excitement of that ride to the village and all the words of advice and counsel spoken by my aunt.

I remember looking in vain for Sally as we passed the Dunkelbergs'. I remember my growing loneliness as the day wore on and how Aunt Deel stood silently buttoning my coat, with tears rolling down her cheeks while I leaned back upon the gate in front of the Hackett house, on Ashery lane, trying to get like a man and rather ashamed of my poor success. Uncle Peabody stood surveying the sky in silence with his back toward us. He turned and nervously blew out his breath. His lips trembled a little as he said:

"I dunno but what it's goin' to rain."

I watched them as they walked to the tavern sheds, both looking down at the ground and going rather unsteadily. Oh, the look of that beloved pair as they walked away from me—the look of their leaning heads! Their silence and the sound of their footsteps are, somehow, a part of the picture which has hung all these years in my memory.

Sally Dunkelberg and her mother came along and said that they were glad I had come to school. I could not talk to them, and seeing my trouble they went on, Sally waving her hand to me as they turned the corner below.

I felt ashamed of myself. Suddenly I heard the door open behind me and the voice of Mr. Hackett:

"Bart," he called, "I've a friend here who has something to say to you. Come in."

I turned and went into the house.

"Away with sadness—liddle back!" he exclaimed as he took his violin from its case while I sat wiping my eyes.

"Away with sadness! She often raps at my door, and while I try not to be should. You remember Rovin Kate?" he asked by and by.

"Yes," I answered.

"Some day when you're a little older I'll tell you her story and you'll see what happens when men and women break the law of God. Here's Mr. Wright's letter. Aunt Deel asked me to give it to you to keep. You're old enough now an' you'll be goin' away to school before long. I guess."

I took the letter and read again the superscription on its envelope:

"To Master Barton Baynes:

(To be opened when he leaves home to go to school.)"

I put it away in the pine box with leather hinges on its cover which Uncle Peabody had made for me and wondered again what it was all about, and again that night I broke camp and moved further into the world over the silent trails of knowledge.

Uncle Peabody went away for a few days after the harvesting. He had gone afoot, I knew not where. He returned one afternoon in a buggy with the great Michael Hackett of the Canton academy. Hackett was a big, brawny, red-haired, kindly Irishman with a merry heart and tongue, the latter having a touch of the brogue of the green isle which he had never seen, for he had been born in Massachusetts and had got his education in Harvard.

He was then a man of forty.

"You're coming to me this fall," he said as he put his hand on my arm and gave me a little shake. "Lad! you've got a pair of shoulders! Ye shall live in my house an' help with the chores if ye wish to."

"That'll be grand," said Uncle Peabody, but, as to myself, just then, I knew not what to think of it.

[END OF BOOK ONE.]

BOOK TWO

Which Is the Story of the Principal Witness.

CHAPTER VIII.

In Which I Meet Other Great Men.

It was a sunny day late in September on which Aunt Deel and Uncle Peabody took me and my little pine chest with all my treasures in it to the village where I was to go to school and live with the family of Mr. Michael Hackett, the schoolmaster.

I remember the sad excitement of that ride to the village and all the words of advice and counsel spoken by my aunt.

I remember looking in vain for Sally as we passed the Dunkelbergs'. I remember my growing loneliness as the day wore on and how Aunt Deel stood silently buttoning my coat, with tears rolling down her cheeks while I leaned back upon the gate in front of the Hackett house, on Ashery lane, trying to get like a man and rather ashamed of my poor success. Uncle Peabody stood surveying the sky in silence with his back toward us. He turned and nervously blew out his breath. His lips trembled a little as he said:

"I dunno but what it's goin' to rain."

I watched them as they walked to the tavern sheds, both looking down at the ground and going rather unsteadily. Oh, the look of that beloved pair as they walked away from me—the look of their leaning heads! Their silence and the sound of their footsteps are, somehow, a part of the picture which has hung all these years in my memory.

Sally Dunkelberg and her mother came along and said that they were glad I had come to school. I could not talk to them, and seeing my trouble they went on, Sally waving her hand to me as they turned the corner below.

I felt ashamed of myself. Suddenly I heard the door open behind me and the voice of Mr. Hackett:

"Bart," he called, "I've a friend here who has something to say to you. Come in."

I turned and went into the house.

"Away with sadness—liddle back!" he exclaimed as he took his violin from its case while I sat wiping my eyes.

"Away with sadness! She often raps at my door, and while I try not to be rude, I always pretend to be very busy. Just a light word of recognition by way of common politeness! Then laugh, if ye can an' do it quickly, lad, an' she will pass on."

The last words were spoken in a whisper, with one hand on my breast.

He turned the strings and played the "Fisher's Hornpipe." What a romp of merry music filled the house! I had never heard the like and was soon smiling at him as he played. His bow and fingers flew in the wild frolic of the "Devil's Dream." It led me out of my sadness into a world all new to me.

"Now, God bless your soul, boy!" he exclaimed, by and by, as he put down his instrument. "We shall have a good time together—that we will. Not a stroke of work this day! Come, I have a guide here that will take us down to the land of the fairies."

Then with his microscope he showed me into the wonder world of littleness of which I had no knowledge.

"The microscope is like the art o' the teacher," he said. "I've known a good teacher to take a brain no bigger than a fly's foot an' make it visible to the naked eye."

One of the children, of which there were four in the Hackett home, called us to supper. Mrs. Hackett, a stout woman with a red and kindly face, sat at one end of the table, and between them were the children—Mary, a pretty daughter of seventeen years; Maggie, a six-year-old; Ruth, a delicate girl of seven, and John, a noisy, red-faced boy of five. The chairs were of plain wood—like the kitchen chairs of today. In the middle of the table was an empty one—painted green. Before he sat down Mr. Hackett put his hand on the back of this chair and said:

"A merry heart to you, Michael Henry."

I wondered at the meaning of this, but dared not to ask. The oldest daughter acted as a kind of moderator with the others.

"Mary is the constable of this house, with power to arrest and hale into court for undue haste or rebellion or impoliteness," Mr. Hackett explained.

"I believe that Sally Dunkelberg is your friend," he said to me presently.

"Yes, sir," I answered.

"A fine slip of a girl that and a born scholar. I saw you look at her as the Persian looks at the rising sun."

I blushed and Mary and her mother and the boy John looked at me and laughed.

"Puer pulcherrime!" Mr. Hackett exclaimed with a kindly smile.

Uncle Peabody would have called it a "stout snag." The schoolmaster had hauled it out of his brain very deftly and chuckled it down before me in a kind of challenge.

"What does that mean?" I asked.

"You shall know in a week, my son," he answered. "I shall put you into the Latin class Wednesday morning, and God help you to like it as well as you like Sally."

Again they laughed and again I blushed.

"Hold up yer head, my brave lad," he went on. "Ye've a perfect right to like Sally if ye've a heart to."

"A lad in his teens will never know beans if he hasn't an eye for the girls."

It was a merry supper, and when it ended Mr. Hackett rose and took the green chair from the table, exclaiming:

"Michael Henry, God bless you!"

Then he kissed his wife and said:

"Maggie, you wild rose of Erin! I've been all day in the study. I must take a walk or I shall get an exalted abdomen. One is badly beaten in the race o' life when his abdomen gets ahead of his toes. Children, keep our young friend happy here until I come back, and mind you, don't forget the good fellow in the green chair."

Mary helped her mother with the dishes, while I sat with a book by the fireside. Soon Mrs. Hackett and the children came and sat down with me. "Let's play backgammon," Mary proposed.

"I don't want to," said John.

"Don't forget Michael Henry," she reminded.

"Who is Michael Henry?" I asked.

"Sure, he's the boy that has never been born," said Mrs. Hackett. "He was to be the biggest and noblest of them—kind an' helpful an' cheery hearted an' beloved o' God above all the others. We try to live up to him."

He seemed to me a very strange and wonderful creature—this invisible occupant of the green chair.

I know now what I knew not then that Michael Henry was the spirit of their home—an ideal of which the empty green chair was a constant reminder.

We played backgammon and "old maid" and "everlasting" until Mr. Hackett returned.

The sealed envelope which Mr. Wright had left at our home, a long time before that day, was in my pocket. At last the hour had come when I could open it and read the message of which I had thought much and with a growing interest.

I rose and said that I should like to go to my room. Mr. Hackett lighted a candle and took me upstairs to a little room where my chest had been deposited. There were in the room a bed, a chair, a portrait of Napoleon Bonaparte and a small table on which were a dictionary, a Bible and a number of schoolbooks.

"These were Mary's books," said Mr. Hackett. "I told your uncle that ye could use them an' welcome."

I sat down and opened the sealed envelope with trembling hands and found in it this brief note:

"Dear Partner: I want you to ask the wisest man you know to explain these words to you. I suggest that you commit them to memory and think often of their meaning. They are from Job:

"His bones are full of the sinns of his youth, which shall lie down with him in the dust."

"I believe that they are the most impressive in all the literature I have read."

"Yours truly,

"SILAS WRIGHT, JR."

I read the words over and over again, but knew not their meaning. Sadly and slowly I got ready for bed. The noises of the village challenged my ear after I had put out my candle. There were many barking dogs. Some horsemen passed, with a creaking of saddle leather, followed by a wagon. Soon I heard running feet and eager voices. I rose and looked out of the open window. Men were hurrying down the street with lanterns.

Delicate Mechanism

Despite its scope Swift & Company is a business of infinite details, requiring infinite attention.

Experienced men must know livestock buying with a knowledge of weight, price, the amount and quality of meat the live animals will yield.

Each manufacturing operation must be done with expert skill and scientific precision. A highly perishable product must be handled with speed and care to avoid loss.

Chemists, engineers, accountants, and other specialists are required to take care of our intricate problems.

Alert wisdom and judgment must be used in getting stocks of goods into the open channels of demand through our four hundred branch houses. Branch house organizations must show activity and energy to sell at the market in the face of acute competition from other large packers, and hundreds of small ones.

All these requirements of intelligence, loyalty, devotion to the task, are met in the personnel of Swift & Company. Yet the profit is only a fraction of a cent per pound with costs at minimum.

How can the workings of this delicate human mechanism be improved upon?

Do you believe that Government direction would add to our efficiency or improve the service rendered the producer and consumer?

Supreme Court May Have Last Word on the Treaty

WASHINGTON.—In the heat of the controversy between the president and senate over the League of Nations policy, the general public seems to have overlooked the fact that there may be a third party to the controversy by whom the final and conclusive decision may be rendered. This third party is the Supreme court of the United States.

If the senate fails to ratify, the treaty becomes void by that act, and no appeal to the Supreme court would be necessary.

If the League of Nations covenant shall be ratified by the senate it will be incumbent on congress immediately to make an appropriation to cover the United States' portion of the expenditure deemed necessary to establish and provide for the maintenance of the league's secretariat, to be set up in Geneva.

As soon as Congress seeks to do this, the taxpayers' action will be commenced on the ground that the United States, by its Constitution, is inhibited from participation in such a convention, certain obligations assumed by the United States under the covenant being in direct contravention of provisions of the Constitution.

If the court should decide that the objections raised were sound, and that the covenant of the League of Nations actually would, in effect, amend the Constitution, the treaty could not be carried out until the Constitution had been amended in the way the Constitution itself provides it shall be amended, namely, by the submission of an amendment of a federal amendment.

Several persons are ready to bring this test action, among them being Hannis Taylor, minister to Spain under McKinley.

The right and duty of the Supreme court is defined in section 2 of article 3 of the Constitution.

When Old Dame Nature Gets Ready to Scatter Seed

IT WAS noticed one morning at Madison, Wis., that the snow which lay on the ground had acquired a bright yellowish tint. At the same time the people of Florence, in the same state, were surprised to find that the snow "looked dusty" and had acquired a reddish brown color. Similar effects were noticed elsewhere as far east as Vermont and New Hampshire.

This strange phenomenon was examined by several scientists. They found that a very fine dust had fallen, apparently all over the eastern United States.

The strangest thing about this fall of dust was that it occurred in a region the greater part of which lay under snow and had been under snow for many days. It was evident, therefore, that the dust must have traveled hundreds, if not thousands, of miles.

The study made by government scientists shows that this assumption was correct. Samples of the dust have been analyzed, with the result that it was shown to be composed of minerals found, not in the North where the dust fell, but in the Southwest. The scientists assert positively that this dust came all the way from Arizona, New Mexico and Kansas, being borne by those large movements of the air which cause our variations of weather.

It is interesting to note that a little before these strange dustfalls occurred in the North and Northwest there were heavy sandstorms in the Southwest. At Albuquerque, N. M., there was a storm such as none of the old-timers could remember to have seen before. The air was filled with clouds of dust and sand so dense that street cars and taxicabs could not run.

Scientists say that this migratory dust is worthy of careful study, as it carries germs, spores of plants and important elements of soil.

Washington to Drive 15,000 People Out of Alleys

WASHINGTON, noted the world over for its cleanliness and order, has more than 15,000 inhabitants living in filthy alleys. Nine-tenths of these people are colored. These unfortunate alley dwellers must vacate their present homes a year after the signing of peace with Germany, when an act of congress abolishing the alleys as places of residence becomes effective.

Washington now faces the big problem of how to provide housing accommodations for these people in an already overcrowded city. Congress will be asked to help solve the problem by appropriating $5,000,000 to erect 2,000 sanitary bungalows.

About ten years ago the Alley Improvement association began a fight for the elimination of inhabited alleys in the District of Columbia. Other civic bodies joined the movement. As a result of their combined efforts a bill was passed by unanimous vote of both houses of congress wiping out the alley evil.

The date set for the evacuation of the alleys originally was July 1, 1918, but because of the great congestion in this city due to war conditions, congress found it necessary to extend the date.

The association is of the opinion that the building of 3,000 small houses, in view of the high cost of building, the class of tenants concerned and the limited time before the law becomes operative, cannot be left to private enterprise. The government must help, just as in other countries, such as England, Belgium and Scotland, the governments have done under similar circumstances.

The alley law is not confiscatory, as the alley buildings can be used after the law becomes effective for garages, stables, shops, storage warehouses and coal sheds.

The elimination of inhabited alleys will not only improve the health and morals of the capital, but it will add greatly to its beauty.

Go to Russia, Young Man, to Make a Fortune

IF YOU want to share in the greatest commercial and industrial development of the immediate future, study the Russian language, and also Russian geography, resources and trade methods. This is the advice of the bureau of education to young Americans.

Russia is in chaos now, but it can't afford to stay in chaos much longer. And whether it emerges a socialist state, a social democracy or a republic, its 180,000,000 people must be supplied with the necessities of life; it must be equipped with railroads and factories; its forests and mines must be utilized. And all or most of this must be done by traders and engineers and capitalists from the West, for Russia has neither trained men, money nor tools.

Russia is the world's greatest opportunity, and the fact is apparent to most of the world. Americans seem least aware of the Russian opportunity, but the bureau of education and the federal board for vocational education have been doing what they can to overcome this indifference. Surveys have been made in 250 American cities with a view to establishing evening and day classes in the Russian language. Special textbooks have been prepared, in which Russian banking, trade and shipping terms take the place of the "bat of the gardener" and the "green umbrella of my aunt's grandfather."

Here in a "new country," despite the fact that it is a very old one—a country where are unexplored soil, virgin forests and mineral resources that have never been tapped.

For men of every trade and profession, and especially for young men whom adventure compensates for hardship, Russia is the opportunity of the future.

GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER

In the good old summer time when fruits of all kinds are getting ripe and tempting, when cucumbers, radishes and vegetables fresh from the garden are too good to resist, when the festive picnic provokes and everybody overrears and your stomach goes back on you, then is the time for "August Flower," the sovereign remedy for tired, overworked and disordered stomachs, a panacea for indigestion, fermentation of food, sour stomach, sick headache and constipation. It gently stimulates the liver, cleanses the intestines and alimentary canal, making life worth living. Sold everywhere.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Death of Mrs. Austin

Mrs. A. H. Austin, aged about 85 years, died Thursday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. L. Gumm, in this city. The deceased lived on the Bonito this county for a great many years, and was personally known to most of the people in that part of the county. Her husband preceded her to the great Beyond about five years ago. Two daughters survive her, Mrs. Wallace L. Gumm, of this place, and Mrs. Dr. J. W. Laws, of El Paso. Funeral services were held in the Kelley Chapel Thursday afternoon, and the remains expressed to Kansas City, for interment same evening.
