Work of Transferring the Surveyor General's Office Finished

Later yesterday afternoon, the work of transferring the property in the surveyor general's office was finished, and the contents formally turned over to the county clerk. Those who took charge hereafter, in checking up the contents of the records, were: paper on record, and the property was all in first-class condition.

John Charles E. Easley closed his business accounts and forwarded them with his papers to Washington last evening. In passing them, Mr. Easley takes with him the greatest feelings on the part of a veteran who, during his business contact with them, and whose untiring efforts, during his confinement, to faithfully discharge the duties of his office, he made known to them through the high of the territory. — New York Times.
