FRIEND OF PRESIDENTS
Leonard Wood Made Good as White House Surgeon.

Leonard Wood was ordered to Washington in 1895—the morgue of the government official—to become assistant attending surgeon. The holder of this office often shares with the navy surgeons the responsibility of medical attention to the president. In addition he acts as medical adviser to army officers and their families and is the official physician to the secretary of war.

It was not an office that appealed to Captain Wood. It could not, since he was a man essentially of out-of-doors, of action and of administration. Yet he seems to have made such a success of the work that he became the personal friend of both Cleveland and McKinley. His relations with President Cleveland were of the most intimate sort, resulting from mutual respect and liking as well as from mutual understanding on the part of both men of the other's good qualities.

THIRTY FIVE OF THE STATES WILL ELECT GOVERNORS

Of the Executive Retiring This Year 22 Are Republicans and 13 Democrats

Thirty five states will elect governors next fall at the time when the President and Vice President are chosen. Thirty two United States senators, to take office March 4, 1921, also are to be selected.

Of the governors whose terms expire next year, twenty-two are Republicans and thirteen Democrats, while seventeen of the thirty two senators are Democrats, and fifteen Republicans.

The thirty five governorship to be filled offer a wide range both in terms and salaries. Among the state executives whose terms expire are Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, the highest paid governor in the country; and R. McKelvie, of Nebraska, the poorest paid. Mr. Lowden receives $12,000 yearly for a four year term and McKelvie $2,500 a year for two years. Only twelve of the thirty five receive more than $5,000 a year, and five will be paid $3,000 or less.

Gov. Coolidge, of Massachusetts, whose position carries a $10,000 salary, is the only governor in the country elected for one year. All other states have either two or four year terms.

Territorial governors are better paid than the average state executive and two of the four are appointed for indefinite terms, with the result that they remain in office as long, as a rule, as the President who named them.

Francis Burton Harrison, governor general of the Philippines tops the list of territorial executives with an indefinite term and a $20,000 yearly salary. Arthur Yager, governor of Porto Rico, receives $10,000 and is appointed for an indefinite term. Gov. Thomas Riggs, Jr., of Alaska, and C. J. McCarthy, of Hawaii, each received annual salaries of $7,000 during their four year terms.

SINCE the war in 1914 the number of horses in the United States on farms has increased 147,000, the number of mules is 3,000 greater.

It has been often said that the "You can't make people vote by a set of Parliament" was the motto of the Congress.

DID you ever wonder which one of the animals with which you are familiar you most resemble? There's the lion, the lamb or the bear—but we refrain from further suggestions.

IT has been purposed, to introduce in the New York Legislature a bill for the protection of harmless snakes. A small snake, it is claimed, will eat from three to five field mice in a week.

AT the 1920 February Fur Sale, held in St. Louis, we note out of 100,000 skins only 1,200 Alaska muskrat, 2,000 Alaska mink; 130,000 ermine; 60,000 foxes, of all kinds, 217,400. For the agony endured by these animals, mostly trapped, who was responsible? The wearers of furs.

IN St. Louis, Mo., the other day a publisher, seeing a negro driver refuse to punish an overloaded team, though ordered to do so by the owner of the horses, had a gold medal made and presented to him. The medal bore this inscription: Presented to Tom Lett, a Colored Gentleman who would not whip a stalled team. Two gentlemen at least figured in this incident.

THE World Tomorrow, in its March issue, is authority for the statement that at Alcatraz the government prison authorities have adopted the infamous device of confining recalcitrant prisoners in cages so constructed that a man cannot possibly sit down, and that the war department has announced that it is about to construct such cells at Fort Leavenworth. We had thought we were living in the twentieth century and in America.

The Covenant of the League of Nations will create a situation which will at least greatly restrict and lessen the chances of war between nations. Disputes between individuals are settled by our courts and we assume as a matter of course that no one shall turn to physical force. The present war has brought before mankind, more vividly than anything else in history, the folly and waste and crime of war. We see its terrible devastation; we see its terrible sufferings. All civilized mankind will struggle for years to come under the burdens of this war. With our advance in education with our means of disseminating information, we certainly have reached the point where public judgment should lead to an understanding between nations that tends to throw our battles in the path of forces gathering for the future. That the covenant of the League of Nations itself presents a real constructive method which undoubtedly will greatly tend to result war must be admitted by all. As such all should give it help and support.

GREAT IN HIS PENMANSHIP

Leonard Wood Puts Himself in Class With Horace Greeley and Napoleon.

Leonard Wood's penmanship is his weakest point, but in that he has as prototypes, Horace Greeley, Napoleon and many other illustrious leaders. Clive Newcome Hart, who was his stenographer at Governor's Island, writes:

"During the winter of 1916-1917 General Wood was traveling here and there speaking in behalf of preparedness. It was part of his preparation for the Chicago convention that he was ready to listen to what one had to say."

"What's wrong? Fire away."

"That was his usual signal that he was ready to listen to what one had to say."

"Er—excuse me, general," said Captain Johnson, hesitatingly, "but, but—I don't quite understand the memorandum. This reads 'Here for lunch' while my slate says you are not in town tomorrow—and I don't quite understand—that is, I've made no plans for lunch for tomorrow."

"Let me see it," said the general.

"He glanced quickly at the notation on the pad, and then said disgustedly: 'That doesn't say anything about 'Here for lunch.' It reads 'Leave for Ithaca.'"

WOOD LEADS IN LITERARY DIGEST

Leonard Wood Is More Than 9,000 Votes Ahead of Nearest Competitor.

In its attempt to learn the composite choice of the nation for nomination for president, the Literary Digest or the week of April 24 publishes the second installment of its presidential poll of 31,000,000 voters. The returns include 349,694 votes. Leonard Wood continues to hold a big lead.

Wood has 32,351; Hoover, 22,908; Johnson, 22,609; Harding, 10,432; Hughes, 5,322; Lowden, 6,449; Taft, 3,400. Among the Democrats, Edwards gets 7,568; McAdoo, 6,749; Wilson, 6,491; Cox, 5,649; Bryan, 3,885.

Hoover receives a Democratic vote of 9,974 which is larger than the Democratic vote cast for any avowed Democrat. McAdoo has the first place in the declared Democratic vote with 5,613 and Wilson is second with 5,342.

The vote continues to come mainly from Ohio, New York, New Jersey, California, Texas and Washington.

New York Leans Ever Woodward.

New York, April 24.—Although the people of Ohio will actually vote for the selection of only 48 delegates to the Chicago convention at the polls on April 27, the result of their balloting will materially influence 88 delegates from New York state at nomination time.

A poll of the Empire state's 88 delegates, elected on April 6, shows that they are for the strongest candidate, with a leaning toward General Wood because he is in the lead. The remarkable showing General Wood made in Illinois against Governor Lowden has boosted his stock with the 88 New Yorkers and they are now watching Ohio. If general Wood makes as good a showing against Senator Harding in Ohio as he did against Governor Lowden, this fact will practically insure the vote of the New York delegation for him.

John J. Lyons, a leading New York delegate elected to go to Chicago, said:

"Two things are certain about the New York delegation: First, it is not for Senator Johnson, because all the Johnson pledged candidates for delegates were beaten by three to one or worse in the recent primary election; second, it is going to vote for the man who is nominated. At present it looks like Wood is going to be nominated, for he has split the delegation in one favorite son's state and it looks like he has a chance to split another favorite son's native state's delegation. If he does the New York delegation will regard him as the man most likely to get the nomination and will support him after a complimentary first ballot for Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. A recent poll showed Wood was the first choice of 75 per cent of the people of New York state, and if to this sentiment is added the Illinois outcome and a similar result in Ohio, it can readily be understood why Wood would stand ace high with the New York delegation."

Garland for Wood.

Hamlin Garland, the writer, has written a letter of indorsement of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, in which he says:

"General Wood knows the old world and the new. He has a wide acquaintance among the men of power and patriotism and can be trusted to form a cabinet of the highest ability. He has shown that he can hold the even hand over the labor problem. He is neither the business man nor the partisan of labor; he is a great and patriotic citizen, a civilian of vast experience, a soldier of noble spirit and notable self-restraint. Admirable as the other candidates are General Wood by his training, by his experience as well as by his temperamental qualities has first claim on the voters who realize that this is a time of swift change and that the nation needs an executive of proven ability and impartial good will."

Stenographers Were Perplexed but He Always Came to Their Rescue Gladly.

Leonard Wood's penmanship is his weakest point, but in that he has as prototypes, Horace Greeley, Napoleon and many other illustrious leaders of men. Clive Newcome Hart, who was his stenographer at Governor's Island, writes:

"And what a signature it is! Unless one knows in advance what it is supposed to represent, it might be looked at through a magnifying glass without being able to decipher it."

"But no matter how puzzling his chirography may be to others, it is always clear and legible to the general. I had occasion to learn this very soon. He would take typewritten pages I had turned in, revise them and scrawl interpolations and insertions and changes in the most terrific way, and then I would have to make a fresh copy of this changed matter. He was working over his notes one day when he boomed:

"If you can't read that, Mr. Hart, don't be afraid to ask me—and save time."

"He was quite right about it's saving time. It would take a outfit board to read a page of his notes, and then one couldn't be sure that even one word was correct!"

"If this sounds like an exaggeration, let me convince you of the validity of my statement."

"During the winter of 1916-17 General Wood was traveling here and there speaking in behalf of preparedness. It was part of Captain Johnson's duty—Captain Johnson being an aide to the general—to keep in touch with his itinerary. One day the captain came into the office, and picking up the general's memorandum pad, scowled in perplexity at the words scrawled across the page in the general's inimitable handwriting. The general watched him quietly for a few moments, then said:

"What's wrong? Fire away."

"That was his usual signal that he was ready to listen to what one had to say."

"Er—excuse me, general," said Captain Johnson hesitatingly, "but but—I don't quite understand the memorandum. This reads, 'Here for lunch,' while my slate says you are not in town tomorrow—and I don't quite understand—that is, I've made no plans for lunch for tomorrow."

"Let me see it," said the general.

"He glanced quickly at the notation on the pad, and said disgustedly, 'That doesn't say anything about 'Here for lunch.' It reads 'Leave for Ithaca.'"
