State Journal.

Timely Article from a Fractional Edvertiser of the Territory.

In the approaching political contest, it is well that the leaders and all voters should study the questions relating to the donation, commonly known as school lands, already given and yet to be given by congress to the territory. These questions are important to every parent with children to be educated, to every taxpayer, to every property owner, and to the residents of small rural settlements as well as the cities.

land in to, or almost any of the older states, should be a lesson for the law makers. Hundreds of thousands of dollars might have been saved annually to the taxpayers of these states if they had adopted such excellent methods of utilizing the land as we have seen adopted by our last legislature.

From the report of the superintendent of public instruction, it is learned that the total expense of the district schools of New Mexico for 1926 were $1,212,511. Oklahoma obtained just about the same result from the taxing of her schools lands for the same period. Her school lands yielded a revenue sufficient to pay much more than half of the total expenses of her district schools.

Our school land laws were patterned largely after those of Oklahoma. Just as Oklahoma has had several years of drought, so we have had several years of drought. Our officials can produce such disastrous results as are now obtained in that territory.

It is important that the political parties should select only those candidates who are of the highest character and best fitted for the legislature who will honestly assist in making the best public use of the thousands of acres of public lands, the great heritage for future generations. The public schools have come to rely on the land in their development. It is making a record that can be referred to with pride. To hinder their legitimate work or cripple their resources should bring disgrace and a sure but fitting reward.

Some men too late for securing a fair proportion of the good lands. Also, on account of the scattered condition of our rural settlements, the cost of giving all our youth a fair education will always be proportionately greater than it would be to the east.

The necessity for an education is as great here as in the east. These and other reasons are sufficient for asking for a much larger grant of land in aid of our school system and public institutions than has ever been given to any state on being admitted into the union.

The urgency of the case demands that only those persons should be nominated for delegates to congress who will take the greatest personal interest in securing such that this land is granted with as few restrictions as to kind, quality or future management as possible. It still makes it obligatory on the territory to preserve the lands as a permanent endowment, sacred to the development of the children of New Mexico.
