LABOR GROUPS MUST ACCEPT WAGE CUTS TO HASTEN RETURN OF PROSPERITY, SAYS COLFAX

Miners, Building Trades Workers and Railroad Employees Will Have to Deflate Their Pay-Time Prices More Sharply Than Yet Been Done, Members of the Unemployment Conference Believe.

(By The Associated Press.)
 A reading of the morning Journal played a part in the discussion of the unemployment conference, Oct. 2. Three labor groups, in addition to the railroad workers, must deflate their pay-time prices more sharply than has been done, in the opinion of a majority of members of President Harding's unemployment conference, in order to hasten the coming of nationwide prosperity.

The three labor groups mentioned are the coal miners, the building construction trades and the railroad workers. The railroads must reduce freight rates as possible and the retailer must be content with the narrowest margin of profit. Summed up, such is the official opinion of most of the conference.

This opinion has not been rejected in current accounts of the proceedings for the reason that the conference was called to consider emergency measures for relieving the present situation and not to consider fundamentals. And the declaration of war time profits is regarded as a fundamental proposition.

There has been considerable debate—some of it quite warm—in the various committees as to the attitude of the five groups at times when a disagreement arises. The coal miners, the building construction trades and the railroad workers, in many cases, have been accused of being too slow to accept the wage cuts and the business as a result has been more and more to those disaffected.

Groups Total 3,500,000.
 The three labor groups approximate 3,500,000 men. First in order are reckoned the coal miners, the union fields there are about 575,000 of these, it is estimated, although not all of them are found on the rolls of the United Mine Workers. In the building construction trades there are approximately 150,000 more. The latter are not placed in the same classification as the union men, for the building construction trades are not placed in the same classification as the union men, for the building construction trades are not placed in the same classification as the union men.

Resist a Reduction.
 The building construction trades agreed, in most instances, to wage cuts but the cuts have been comparatively small in keeping with cuts in other lines less highly organized. In their case there is a national agreement but wages are local. The period of adjustment has brought strikes in

PERSHING LAYS CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR ON THE TOMB OF AN UNKNOWN FRENCH POILU

United States Pays Its Highest Tribute to the Dead Soldiers of France, in the Presence of An Immense Throng, Including President Millerand and Other High Officials.

 Paris, Oct. 2 (By The Associated Press).—The United States today paid its highest tribute to the dead soldiers of France when General John J. Pershing, in the presence of an immense throng, including President Millerand, and other high officials of the republic, laid the congressional medal of honor on the tomb of the unknown poilu under the arch of triumph.

A military review, second in importance only to the historic victory parade, followed the ceremony, picked up by a battalion of American troops from the forces on the line, led the parade, which was viewed by President Millerand, General Pershing, Ambassador Perrier and all the marshals of France.

Shakes With Emotion.
 Before placing the medal on the tomb of the unknown soldier, General Pershing stood before it at a distance of several feet, and, with a voice shaking with emotion, declared:

97 PERSONS ARE SEVERELY HURT IN TEXAS CLASH

Fight Occurs Between Sheriff's Posse and Knights of the Ku Klux Klan; Grand Jury Will Probe.

Waco, Tex., Oct. 2.—County Attorney B. T. Tierney here today refused the demand of a committee of one hundred leading Lorena citizens, that he file complaints against Sheriff Bob Buchanan and an Deputy Sheriff Burton, in connection with last night's fight at Lorena between parading knights of the Ku Klux Klan and a sheriff's posse, in which ten men were killed, three perhaps fatally.

He said a grand jury investigation would be started.

(By The Associated Press.)

Waco, Texas, Oct. 2.—The fifty-fourth district grand jury here will investigate the clash Saturday night at Lorena, fourteen miles south of here, between fifty odd knights of the Ku Klux Klan paraders and a sheriff's posse, in which Sheriff Bob Buchanan, of McLennan county, was dangerously wounded and eight other men severely injured.

The announcement was made here today by District Judge R. I. Munroe, of the fifty-fourth district court, following an informal conference with County Attorney Tierney, who is conducting an inquiry into the case.

Following a meeting with the county attorney, a delegation of Lorena citizens drew up the following resolution, signed by 299 persons:

We, the undersigned citizens of Lorena and vicinity, deplore the tragedy that was enacted in our little town last night. We grieve for the lives lost and the injuries inflicted, but in order that the world may know the facts we desire to make public the following statement:

1.—We do not believe that the members of the Ku Klux Klan, who staged the parade, violated any law or that they had any intention of violating any law.

2.—We attempted to prevail upon the sheriff of this county and his deputies to use the medium of citizens of representative citizens to permit the parade to be held, guaranteeing that it would be law abiding and orderly.

3.—We induced the leaders of the parade to accede to the sheriff's demand that two of the paraders should be unmasked.

4.—We implored the sheriff not to jeopardize the lives of our women and children.

5.—We unequivocally place the blame for the shedding of blood on the sheriff.

6.—We solemnly and we honor the spirit and the individual that kept the American flag from being trampled to the earth.

7.—We conclude by affirming our belief in the preservation of America for Americans and by offering tribute to the little band of men that last night showed by their calm and determined action that their lives supported this principle.

The third statement in the above resolution repudiates the assertion of Sheriff Buchanan last night when brought to a hospital here to the effect that the masked men would not unmask.

Asked if he had any statement to make regarding the resolution, County Attorney Tierney said he had "nothing whatsoever to say."

Physicians attending Sheriff Buchanan would not permit him to be questioned, in view of his serious condition. He did not make a formal statement last night.

AMERICAN BANKERS' ASS'N. CONVENES IN LOS ANGELES TODAY

(By The Associated Press.)
 Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 2.—Delegates to the convention of the American Bankers' association, to be held here beginning tomorrow, will, among other things, discuss what are said to be the three major questions now confronting business and banking institutions of America—depreciated currency, foreign exchange and the hearing of currency in the United States and expenses of government.

The convention first plans to take up a detailed discussion of the effects on American business of the depreciated currency of certain foreign nations and the resulting influence on rates of exchange.

According to a statement issued from the office of H. H. Hellman, local banker, has brought about a condition in foreign markets making it almost impossible to sell American-made commodities abroad.

Second, the convention will investigate into and offer remedies for a financial situation which, it is claimed has resulted from the failure of individuals to put personal cash into circulation.

The third topic to be discussed will be that of "the economies which are being put into effect in Washington looking toward a lowering of governmental expenses," as described in Mr. Hellman's statement.

POLICE RESERVES CALLED OUT TO QUELL A FREE FOR ALL FIGHT IN GREEK ORTHODOX CHURCH IN N. Y.

One Man Is Alleged to Have Been Killed By Being Hit Over the Head With a Candlestick in the Hands of a Priest; Physician Says He May Have Died From a Heart Attack; Dispute Over a Debt Is Said By Members to Have Started the Row.

(By The Associated Press.)

New York, Oct. 2.—Services in the Greek orthodox church at 153 Cedar street, this noon, were broken up by a free-for-all fight among the congregation, which resulted in the death of Nicholas Vazarakos, 40, a wealthy Greek merchant.

A wealthy Greek merchant, a man's 12-year-old son, told the police that the sexton of the church held his father's hands while the priest, Rev. Kerido Vazarakos, hit him over the head with a candlestick.

A physician, who examined the man, expressed the belief that he may have died from a heart attack.

GRAIN DEALERS TO ASSEMBLE IN CHICAGO TODAY

(By The Associated Press.)

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Freak and class legislation, according to members of the Grain Dealers National association, must be stamped out if American industry is to properly expand.

"It should be made impossible for an active and aggressive minority, aided by skillful lobbying to obtain class laws detrimental to business," said John B. Mallin of New Haven, Indiana. He will be one of the chief speakers on legislation at the association's twenty-fifth annual convention which will open here tomorrow.

For three days Chicago, the giant funnel through which is poured a large part of the produce of agricultural America, will be the headquarters of 2,000 of the association's 5,000 members. Besides the problem of class legislation which is characterized by Charles Quinn, secretary-treasurer, and other officers of the association as an enemy of normal industrial conditions, the convention will consider transportation, South American trade development, international finance and means of overcoming unemployment.

Finance will be discussed by David R. Forgan, president of the National City bank, Chicago. Problems bearing directly on agriculture and the grain trade will be treated by President Joseph P. Griffin of the Chicago Board of Trade, B. E. Clement, Waco, Tex., president of the Grain Dealers National association, and Governor Warren T. McCray of Indiana, former president of the association.

Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, and Ashbel P. Lever of the federal farm loan bureau, will be the speakers at a banquet Tuesday. Eight former presidents of the association which was organized in 1895 will occupy one table at the banquet. Special convention rates have been made by all railroads leading into Chicago.

(By The Associated Press.)

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Counting of the strike ballots of 250,000 members of four railroad unions will begin here tomorrow with the possibility of a general strike by more than 800,000 railway men in protest against the 12 per cent wage reduction recently ordered by the railroad labor board depending somewhat on the result of the tabulation of these votes.

It is believed that the count will not be completed before the end of the week.

Two other railway organizations, the shop crafts and the trainmen, also have voted overwhelmingly in favor of a strike rather than accept the wage reduction, but their leaders have announced that there would be no walkout unless the other organizations joined in the strike.

UNREST IN THE RANKS OF LABOR CAUSES CONCERN

Leaders Say It Is No Secret That There Is a Good Deal of Driftwood in the Union Movement.

BY RALPH BURTON.
(Special Dispatch to Morning Journal.)
(Copyright 1921 by Associated Press.)
Washington, Oct. 2.—Unrest in the ranks of organized labor as an accompaniment of unemployment is giving many members of labor unions and sympathizers with union organizations, a considerable degree of earnest concern. They assert that it is no secret that there is a good deal of driftwood in the labor movement. Neither can it be denied that there are many labor politicians.

One indication of the unrest which is stirring the unions, which arose at the miners' convention in Indianapolis Thursday over the question of the officials' salaries, which were cut very appreciably. Then came a proposal to make those officers refund some of the money they had already received—and the officers were supported by an overwhelming vote, so overwhelming in fact that more votes were cast than the total to which the whole convention was entitled.

How Has Been Brewing.
For a long time, of course, there has been brewing between the Howat and Lewis factions of the miners. It has been charged that the officials of the organization, which has not been allowed by the fact that a good many former union leaders suddenly blossomed out as officers of mining companies. So unorthodox has this practice of shifting sides become to the miners that a resolution was prepared for presentation to the convention, opposing any negotiations whatever with former union officials now acting as representatives of the mine owners.

The Brindell Case.
So much for the warfare in the ranks of the miners. The Brindell case, which split the building trades in New York wide open, has also tended to discredit union leadership. There was an effort at Denver to dislodge President Samuel Gompers and his entourage in the A. F. of L., but Gompers won out handsily in the convention. The railroad unions have their own troubles, which came to light at the time of the outlaws strike. Their members think their organization unnecessarily top heavy; they contend that they have too many paid officers and that they are mulcted for enormous sums in dues without receiving anything proportional in the way of benefits. The extreme hostility manifested by organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor to the Amalgamated Garment Workers and their associated union is another divisional force in the labor movement. The Amalgamated organized the clothing workers after the American Federation of Labor had failed, it got rid of the sweat shop and made the garment trades among the best paid and most independent in the country. The Amalgamated moreover, contributed generously to the striking steel workers when other unions did nothing.

Movements.
So long as labor is divided, its success will be moderate indeed. However, the prospect of any appreciable change is not bright. The movement as a whole is floundering about with a tendency to lose, rather than to gain ground.

BOOTLEGGERS IN WINDY CITY FIND BUSINESS BRISK

As the Quantity of Good Whisky in Chicago Slumps the Supply of Wied Concoctions Increases.

BY H. R. BUCK.
(Special Dispatch to Morning Journal.)
(Copyright 1921 by Associated Press.)
Chicago, Oct. 2.—With Chicago's supply of bonded liquor on the wane, the thirty amateur is forced to seek tipples from strange denizens of the underworld, in back alleys and on side streets and content himself with a big one. The weird concoctions of killing, tinted moonshine or diluted alcohol made by manufacturers of barbers' supplies, tinctures and extracts, etc.

This is the statement of John J. Jelander, prohibition enforcement officer of Illinois. But the demand does not diminish and even the appaer's sanity has not without its shot of synthetic gin. Jelander is gathering his forces against the new element as well as "the big fellow" but the task ahead of him is a big one. "Let the Government Do It" has been the motto of Illinois officialdom. The federal staff numbers only fifty agents and investigators. The co-operation given them is meager. A host of impostors, usually well known criminals posing as government officers, have by wholesale shake downs given the staff an unenviable reputation. The lawful staff is beset with temptations that surround bootlegging imbedded in and protected by police and the life this personnel leads on $15 a month salary from Uncle Sam is the life of a $15 bank clerk turned loose in the vaults of a mint.

The quality of good whisky in Chicago has dwindled, the number of "substantial citizens" engaged in supplying clubs, clubs members and a clientele of business and professional men and politicians, has diminished proportionately. A daily increase is reported in bootleggers unable to speak more than a few English words. Grimsy Europeans who would otherwise be shining shoes, cobbling, form a long line of law breakers picked up in the back of hotels and in the vicinity of railroad stations and brought in for questioning.

Good Liquor Plentiful.
Despite the loss of prestige that has attended a certain falling off in sales of good liquor it has by no means passed out of existence. Most quantities of bonded stuff now are brought in from other states. A fleet of auto trucks is operating from various Kentucky points and a steady stream of contraband fluid passes through that well known Detroit river. It is recognized to points here and beyond. Apparently the fact that Ontario has gone dry has not materially affected business of bootleggers operating on the frontier.

Bootlegging under the protection of the police has and continues to menace the city. Its root extends to Chicago's political life with the political faction in power and the protection achieved has come from the ward politicians who have control of numerous precincts. Hundreds of police have been used to guard and protect booze shipments. Many police thus engaged have finished the night's work by stealing the booze shipments they were guarding. They now fear Chief of Police Fitzmorris, who has sworn to take off the badge of any policeman implicated and to take it before his trial.

Elaborately is not confined to the police alone. If certain public officials who should know what they are talking about are believed. If an investigation were started at the federal building you would see lots of people jumping out of the windows, said one public official whose sources of information are many and varied.

The saloons continue to sell more or less openly what is gulped down mayhap a bit fearfully, under the name of good liquor. In the majority of cases, it is nothing but a colored concoction hawked as such. A few cafes still sell diluted drinks, but only a few. Generally it is necessary to carry "hip" liquor on parties or to deal with one's favorite bootlegger-water.

The young crowd, flappers and their escorts are perhaps the most thorough "hooray trailers" and their success is evident on every glided dance floor and in every public dance hall in the city. There was a time when a likely looking boulevard vamps taking the air, but now the common question is not "where to" but "got anything aboard?" The youngster affects a liking for gin, or what has come to be known as gin, a white fluid passing under the name, often reposes in the reticule. It appears that most of the stuff is made from juniper oil, but few can distinguish that fact who have not had access to a cellar of honest liquors.

Bootleg whiskey in Chicago has revamped that old saying "Cherchez la femme" to "Find the bootleggers" in the case of many murder mysteries and other major crimes. In fact, the latter appear to originate in a bottle of new liquor. The more spectacular tragedies are continually being found to have a connection with the whiskey that crazes.

American railroads own approximately 2,428,049 freight cars, 56,240 passenger cars and 68,892 locomotives, passenger cars and over 252,571 miles of track.

MONEY IS RAISED TO REPAIR ARMORY AND STABLES AT CRUCES

(Special Correspondence to The Journal.)
Las Cruces, N. M., Oct. 2.—Final arrangements for raising $3,500 to repair the Las Cruces armory and stables were completed October 1 by John M. Bowman, cashier of the First National bank, and W. S. Sutherland, representing the Bowman Bank and Trust company. The state has subscribed $1,000, making a total of $4,500, the amount required to make the improvements, upon which work will begin November 1.

Maj. Joseph W. Lowe of the two companies of first engineers' national guard of New Mexico, says that plans are to establish an aviation corps in Las Cruces in connection with Headquarters and a company. There are five bi-censed flyers in Las Cruces, and a landing field and mechanic shop are being established. The Las Cruces has been selected as an intermediate station on the air route from El Paso to Cheyenne, Wyo. Officers and men of the two companies here are highly pleased over the appointment of Norman L. King of Santa Fe as colonel of the First New Mexico engineers. He was captain of the New Mexico Infantry on the border with the Pershing expedition. He served overseas and came home with the rank of major.

Hard on the Small Fry.
The big fellows at Geneva always seem to be thinking of something else. Most of them act as if they were expecting a telephone call (perhaps from Washington) that might take them away at any moment. It is hard on the small fry, who would like to settle down for a nice long comfortable chat. Of course if the small nations were also invited to the Washington conference it would not be so bad. But having got into this much advertised club, they find that all the most prominent members have gone and formed a more exclusive club of their own. It's not very clubby of them, to say the least.

CARL C. MAGEE CHIEF SPEAKER AT CRUCES EVENT

(Special Correspondence to The Journal.)
Las Cruces, N. M., Oct. 2.—Carl C. Magee, editor-in-chief of the Albuquerque Morning Journal, will be the principal speaker at the "Pep" day celebration to be staged at state college October 21 by the alumni association of the New Mexico College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts.

W. A. Sutherland, head of the arrangements committee, in making the foregoing announcement today, said it is expected that Governor Merritt C. Mechem of New Mexico, Gen. Robert L. Howe, commander at Fort Bliss, Texas, and Gen. Henry Rolfe Brown, commanding the national guard of New Mexico, and their staffs, and Dr. E. H. Roberts, principal of the El Paso high school, have been invited as special guests.

The festivities will begin after sundown the evening of October 20, when the students are to have a "shirt tail" parade in Las Cruces. A huge bonfire is to be built at Main and Griggs streets, where the jinks will be presented by a company of entertainers. Afterward the students will be entertained at movieland.

The official celebration will begin at 11 o'clock the morning of October 21, with an address by Mr. Magee, who suggested the "Pep" day idea when he was here early last June as the principal speaker at the college commencement day exercises. Following the address there will be a parade in which fifteen prime heaves, a ton of bread, rolls and beans and caldrons of coffee are to figure in the menu. After luncheon President Kent and members of the faculty will escort the visitors on a tour of the grounds and buildings at state college. Promptly at 3 o'clock the football teams of the New Mexico Military Institute at Roswell and the state college will meet in a test of skill, strength and endurance. The game will be followed by a college dance at the gymnasium and a military ball at the Las Cruces armory. A band of twelve pieces from Fort Bliss will furnish the music at the ball.

Officers of the Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce and the Dona Ana county farm bureau will invite the chambers of commerce and farm bureaus in New Mexico and at El Paso and towns in northern Texas and the high schools at El Paso, Alamogordo, Lordsburg, Silver City, Deming and Hot Springs to send representatives to Las Cruces to participate in the celebration.

LAST TRACES OF CURB MARKET TO BE ELIMINATED

(By The Associated Press.)
New York, Oct. 2.—Refusing to conform to the edict of the majority and move in "out of the rain," a handful of men—too few, almost, to attract the notice of passersby in the crowded thoroughfare—still congregated daily in Broad street during stock exchange hours to buy the unlisted wares of the street broker.

W. A. HIGHTOWER FACES TRIAL ON MURDER CHARGE

Property Owners Along Broad Street Are Seeking to Have Brokers Declared a Public Nuisance.

These men, with a circle of posts to ward off traffic, are the last visible remnants of the outside curb market which for a half century personified Wall street and American "high finance" in the minds of millions of people.

Removal of most of the curb brokers into their handsome new building on Trinity place, facing the tiny cemetery of Trinity church, left a gulf of strange and silent silence in the heart of the financial district which only time can bridge with new forms of activity.

The noisy confusion of the throng of traders and their excited shouting customers has vanished. Hundreds of windows overlooking the curb now stare blankly at the chance tourist who wanders into the financial district. Scores of drawn blinds betray the absence of tenants in offices which six months ago rented out the privilege of occupying a square foot or so of window space for four or five hundred dollars a year.

Since the curb moved indoors most of these windows have been vacant. Only occasionally now a man appears at one of them to vanish again after a momentary inspection of the quiet street below.

The "sign language" of the delight and wonder of sightseers in the palmist days of the outside curb, has fallen into disuse as a means of conveying buying and selling orders from the windows to traders in the street. Business is so dull now, the few remaining street brokers say, that orders may be communicated by word of mouth. Even the faithful few who stuck to their old rendezvous when the others moved away are not left in undisputed possession of their "market." Property owners along Broad street, including several great financial concerns and office buildings, are seeking to have them declared a public nuisance by the courts and forbidden by injunction to ply their trade in the street. The suits are directed at the Curb Stock and Bond Market, Inc., the name assumed by the remaining traders when their colleagues withdrew to form the New York Curb Market.

District Attorney Edward Swann has announced his intention of assisting in the move to eradicate the last traces of the old curb.

Man Accused of Slaying Catholic Priest Seems Nervous and Excited; Says He Dreads the Ordeal

Retrieved City, Calif., Oct. 2.—William A. Hightower, whose trial on a charge of murdering the Rev. Father Patrick E. Heslin, a Catholic priest of Colma, opens here tomorrow, seemed nervous and excited tonight and told officials at the county jail where he is held, that he dreaded the ordeal.

It was Hightower who early last August led San Francisco police and newspaper men to a shallow grave at Salda beach, a desolate spot north of here, where the priest's body was found. Hightower said he discovered the grave through information given him by a woman called Dolly Mason, and that he disclosed it to gain rewards offered for recovery of the priest's body. The police declared "Dolly Mason" was a mythical personage and charged Hightower with murder.

Father Heslin's housekeeper said Hightower closely resembled a man who took the priest from his home at night to an unknown destination on the pretext that a dying man desired spiritual consolation.

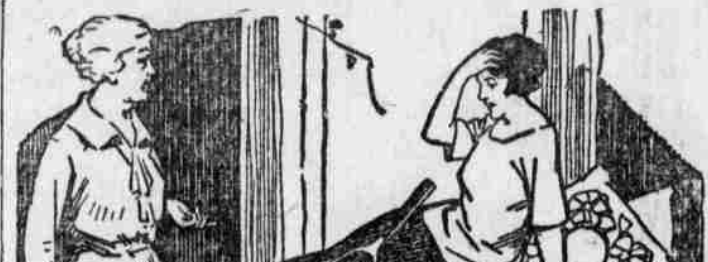

Hightower's counsel, however, announced recently that Dolly Mason was a real person and had been traced to Oakland and San Francisco. A subpoena for her appearance as a defense witness was issued recently but has not been served.

Search of the Italian quarter of San Francisco was started today for Marie Bianchi, wanted as a witness for the state, who has been reported as missing from her home for several days past.

PUBLIC ERECTS A MONUMENT TO M. CLEMENCEAU

Tiger's Speech Regarded By Some As His Valedictory to Public Life; Others Take Another View.

(By The Associated Press.)

Sainte Hermine France, Oct. 2 (By The Associated Press).—Georges Clemenceau, France's premier, at the unveiling of a monument depicting him in his well known little slouch hat and surrounded by poilus, facing the Germans in the trenches, today delivered what some observers considered to be his valedictory to public life. Others, however, considered it as interpreting the "Tiger's" re-entrance into the active political arena.

The monument was erected by the people of Clemenceau's native department of Vendee, in honor of the former premier's activities during the war.

"Let us remember," said Clemenceau, "and let us keep substituting by vain words the acts which are expected of the country. Let us remember France's motto, 'Live in the peace of justice, or perish in the peace of justice.'"

"Remember" was the keynote of M. Clemenceau's speech throughout. "Victory," continued Mr. Clemenceau, "was a victory by all the allies. But as soon as the enemy was disarmed the trouble commenced in the entente. At Versailles we banded Germany's knee. Why has she been permitted to forget it? We hold her signature to undertakings which count no longer. Yesterday we were the victors. Let no one place us in the situation where we ask whether we still are victors."

"I see that some persons are magnificently occupying themselves with safeguarding peace in the Far East. We can wish them nothing but success. But the Pacific ocean is far away, and the German frontier is very close to us. Why not link together all the disturbing questions?"

"Doubtless national interests in the open sky will always preserve the future, but common sacrifices will impose respect for the common cause. The Washington conference may find in the present state of things occasion to redress wrongs which today are evident."

"Is there anyone, for instance, who sees nothing in our victory but financial defeat, who could not forget the forgotten government, remember that the rule of victory is the victory of the vanquished?"

"I am not here to accuse anyone. Evil came from the fact that chiefs of state, the powers of subordinate, wielded control that had to be controlled. We showed supreme weakness. We lacked nothing, neither in right or in power. It is not too late to say that reparations and security are inseparable terms; that each Frenchman is worth one German, and that France renounces nothing of what is due her."

M. Clemenceau spoke before a huge crowd.

NEW BOOKS AT THE LIBRARY

The Peace Negotiations by Rouben Luskin.

As secretary of state through the war, Mr. Luskin had a unique opportunity for knowing what actually happened to Paris. His account of the part played by America in the peace negotiations, and particularly his full and frank inside story of the inception and carrying through of the plan of the league of nations, cannot fail to remain one of the outstanding documents on diplomatic history.

My Stuart, by John Drinkwater. Out of My Stuart's entire turbulent career, Mr. Drinkwater has distilled within a single episode the heart of her tragedy and the significance of her character. He has dignified and at the same time humanized this portrait by showing her conscious of her weaknesses and powerlessness, because of them and of the condition and personalities surrounding her, to combat them.

God's Country, by James Oliver Curwood.

The strangest thing that Curwood has ever written; most beautiful message of hope. In four essays the author unfolds his religious nature. He has been a great hunter, in his time killing for the joy of it, till a giant grizzly, one day, taught him the brotherhood of all life and his egotism, collapsed.

Star Points, edited by Gertrude E. Richards.

Songs of joy, faith, and promise from the present day poets. In this period of reconstruction, following the war which has engulfed the entire world, there is larger need than ever before of an uplifting and sustaining faith. Out of this thought has come the title of this book.

If Winter Comes, by A. S. M. Hutchings.

The title of this novel is taken from Shelley's lines, "O Wind, If Winter Comes, Can Spring Be Far Behind?" It has a plot which rings true and yet is unusual. It contains both rich humor and genuine pathos.

Her Father's Daughter, by Gene Stratton-Porter.

The heroine of the "Lumberlost" to a California setting. She is wholesome though precocious, wears sensible clothes and loves art and nature.

ALICE ADAMS OF TARKINGTON IS ACCURATE STUDY

ALICE ADAMS, By Booth Tarkington. (Doubleday Page and Company.)

The narrative interest found in "Alice Adams" is of so pregnant a nature, that the characterizations are very rarely considered, at the time of reading, in most parts of the book. Only when you have laid aside the novel, and are dining or shaving, do you really begin to appreciate, through deliberation, the extremely nice gesture with which Tarkington has drawn his puppets.

The girl, Alice, is relentlessly evolved, and her actual sincerity what little she possessed; her amazing ingenuity, and her soverign, pitiful struggle to keep within the smart circle of provincial-city aristocrats, are depicted with that fatal precision and meticulous observation which so keenly are traits of the author. From the first view of Alice, to her final and complete capitulation, "does one expect and realize her ultimate surrender. The story is not a pleasant one, because it is disastrously accurate."

The characters of the two Adams parents, and their dissolute, fifty son, are no less remarkably handled, but their impression upon the reader is not so poignant as that of the ill-fated Alice.

To quote Archibald Marshall, in the Bookman: "Alice Adams" is a far more damaging indictment of the meanness of life in a provincial town than any of the other realistic novels of recent date. If we are to take the heroine and her unspeakable brother as representatives of it."

BOOK ENDS

Ethel M. Dell is rated as one of the most mysterious of writers. She has never been interviewed. Only once has she been seen in person by her publishers, G. P. Putnam's Sons.

There is no photograph of her in existence, and she rarely leaves her home in the country to visit London, though dramatizations of her plays run for months in the British metropolis. Her vogue is enormous; and for the first time she will be serialized in the United States in a popular magazine during 1922. One or two friends who know her well speak of her as a charming young woman with a fascinating voice. Beyond that, they refuse, out of loyalty, to betray any secrets.

William Dean Howells' daughter Mildred has the "Life and Letters" of her father well under way. She has been steadily at work for months on this important task, which involves the examination and editing of an immense amount of material. The book will be nothing short of a chronicle of our country's literary annals during a period of nearly seventy years.

The first collection of Padraic Colum's verse since the publication of "Wild Earth" is embodied in "Dramatic Legends and Shorter Poems," which the Macmillan company will publish. Four long poems in dramatic form open the book; then there is a sequence of short poems which the editor calls "Reminiscence" and in which characters and aspects of Irish life are conveyed. Finally there is a collection of poems dealing with the creatures of the wild.

Still another Roosevelt book impends. It will bear the capital title "Roosevelt, the Happy Warrior." It is by T. R. A. Harvard, a classmate, Bradley Gilman, who knew the warrior forty years and loved him.

A story-drawing book for children, "Tom and Willie in the Country," will be brought out this month by the Harpers as the first in a series of "Fill-in Books." Cornelia Wright is the creator of this new idea in story and picture form. The book is called "Fill-in" because the pictures are not complete in order that the little artist and reader may crayon in the missing details.

"Anonymous" has become the most popular author in America. Putnam's announce that "The Mirrors of Washington" is ranked as the best-selling fiction book in all parts of the country.

Theaters Today

"B" Theater—"The Bronze Bell" with Doris May and Courtenay Foote as the stars, is being repeated today for the last time. It is a great picture and should be seen. The management is also repeating the comedy, "The Imposter," and the "Current Events" pictures.

Lyric Theater—"The Picture," "Spooners," is also being repeated today. "The Picture" is a comedy, "Spooners" is a comedy.

Pastime Theater—"The Sting of the Lash," with Pauline Frederick as the leading star, is being repeated today. "Bashful," with Harold Lloyd, and the "Fox News" pictures are also being repeated.

MELATTUR SITUATION IS GROWING SERIOUS

(By The Associated Press.)

Calcutta, India, Oct. 2.—The situation in Melattur is becoming very serious. The rebels are offering the alternative of death or Islam. If the Indians hesitate to choose, they are ordered to dig their graves. If they refuse to embrace Islam, they then are shot and dropped into their graves.

Complete home rule has been declared. Crops belonging to the Hindus have been confiscated. The Hindus are fleeing. In the fighting at Nyal, 600 of the tribesmen were killed. The British had fifty-one casualties.

12 CARPENTERS BREAK THE SABBATH BUILD NEW HOME FOR POOR WOMAN MEN ENJOY THE DAY'S SACRIFICES

All day long the sand hills at the end of the little street that leads from the sand hills and saw. Invalids from the surrounding colony gathered to watch. Sunday idlers wandered curiously up to see what caused the noise and excitement, and one widow and her child were supremely happy. For a miracle was being performed.

Twelve carpenters, union men, who had labored for their own during the whole week, were giving up their holiday to build a house for an invalid woman who had been laid up for several years. They began early in the morning, they sawed all over the tiny framework, laying floors, nailing on shingles, fitting doors and having the roof at sunset. The little house stood practically completed. It was a day's work well done.

The men actually enjoyed the sacrifice they made. Laughing and joking, yet working none the less, they made a "rush job" of it. The framework had been raised a few days before and they desired to finish the house in one day. It stood, when they packed up their tools at night, a finished cottage of two rooms and two sleeping porches, a new house at 730 East Santa Fe avenue.

The woman, Mrs. Julia Zumbach, could not express her delight, but in broken English phrases, and in the heightened color in her cheeks from the fever that would not stay down in the excitement. The little boy, Walter, of the golden curls, played around with chips and sticks the carpenters left, scarcely understanding it all. But for his mother it meant independence.

Mrs. Zumbach, a Polish woman of attractive and alert face, has

While the convention today was at a standstill, various committees were at work with a view of condensing the program to three days, with next Thursday set as the latest date for final adjournment.

THE WOMAN HE MARRIED

By JANE PHELPS.

CLOTHES QUESTION AGAIN.

Chapter 103

Juanita seemed never to forget to dress the part she wished to play, or perhaps I should say, to emphasize. Clothes had once been my undoing—rather the love of them. When I was a girl, I took my husband from me now. Not that Juanita lacked in cleverness and fascination, but no woman who understood the art of dressing, the psychology of clothes would underestimate the effect her peculiar, almost bizarre style would have upon a temperamental man. Sometimes I felt almost tempted to give myself free rein again, as far as clothes were concerned. I would not have to run in debt—I need only to let the rest of the house wait until Dick's book was finished, and let him pay the bills; and let Junior go without all the little extras I had been sending him, and the other extras so dear to the boy in school—his athletic sport, et cetera.

I earned enough to dress almost as I wished, if I used it all for myself. But even as I thought of it, I dismissed the idea. No matter how well I dressed, no matter what I wore, I never could compete with Juanita. If I tried to wear peculiar clothes, as she did, I should be laughed at for attempting to copy her. I thought of myself as a woman who could wear bizarre gowns, and fitted locks. Fashionable, stylish clothes looked extremely well on me as they did on hundreds of other women, while not one of the hundreds could dress as Juanita did and not be called eccentric, to say the least.

I decided that I could not hold my husband by spending my money to deck out my person. I would adhere to my original plan of decorating the entire house as artistically as I could; of giving Junior all I could afford that I thought good for him to have, and incidentally, would keep myself as dainty and stylish as they did on hundreds of other women.

But this did not mean that I intended to give Dick over to Juanita without a struggle. Not for one moment did I mean should I take him from her. I could help it. So although at times my heart was aching, bleeding, because of my fears, I never gave the slightest intimation to either Dick or Juanita, that I thought them more than just good friends, and that their being together so much annoyed me in the least.

I had not set myself an easy task. I don't think I was particularly good actress. I often lay sleepless all the long night through, and in the morning looked tired with dark circles under my eyes.

I had my strong hours and my weak ones. There were hours (few and far apart) when exhausted, depressed, nervously exasperated, I determined to give him up to Juanita, to give up the house, take Junior and go away. At these times I prayed that my love might be killed. It was so hard to leave him when I loved him so dearly.

"But there's Junior. I have no right to hurt him," I would say. For I was old-fashioned enough to think it hurt a child when that child's father and mother separated.

At times I had a mad impulse to throw myself into Dick's arms, to blurt out all I knew, all I had seen, all I suspected, all I believed—to ask him to put Juanita out of his life, to love me, and only me, as he used to. But even if he promised, could he keep such a promise? Junior had said Dick loved her because he couldn't help it. That, perhaps, was the way Dick loved her—because he couldn't help it.

By Dick's increasing moodiness I knew that things were not going to his liking. Juanita spent most of the day with him, occasionally coming back to the study for an hour or two in the evening. Dick said to me in a deprecating sort of way, very unusual in him: "You see, Nan, we are really collaborating on my book although Juanita will not have it so."

"If that is really the case, Dick, why won't she acknowledge it? Most writers would demand recognition if they gave up their time as she does."

"She is very generous," Dick replied in a musing way that angered me.

"I wonder if she is as much help as you imagine her to be," I ventured, keeping my voice steady.

"Oh, yes! She has inspired the best in the book as well as helping me with my characters, and descriptions."

"According to you, she has written the book. You have only been her amanuensis."

"Don't be sarcastic, Nan! I thought you liked Juanita."

"I do, of course, but—"

"What are you two quarreling about? I couldn't help hearing my name. I hope it isn't about you."

"Nan thinks you should receive your share of whatever fame the book may bring. We never quarrel," Dick explained soberly.

Dick looked at me and said: "I noticed he did not glance at Juanita who looked daintily lovely in an orange and black creation, a brilliant orange scarf about her head."

"I have done nothing but try to help you, Dick. If the book is a success I shall be more than repaid."

Dick raised his eyes, and as he looked at her I saw in them that which drove me from the room.

NOVEL FUR PIECE FOR YOUNG MISS

If the choker or the animal scarf or the cape mode is thought too costly or sophisticated for the very young miss here is a pretty fur style which will surely please both the conservative mother and the modern daughter. It is made of a pretty brown fur which fits gracefully about the neck with wide brown satin broadened streamers each finished in a band of the fur.

HOW TO MAINTAIN A LIGHTING SYSTEM AT HIGHEST EFFICIENCY

Some of the prime causes of inadequate illumination are: dirty reflectors, walls and ceilings darkened by smoke and dust, blackened lamps left in service as long as they continue to burn, empty sockets, unobserved burnouts and wrong size or kind.

In an office where the intensity of light was entirely too low for office work—only 2 3-4 foot candles—the following simple measures were taken to improve the condition. The reflectors were wiped out at regular intervals and the illumination jumped at once to 3-4. The lamps had been in service for more than two years and their rating was several volts higher than the average voltage of the circuit. When new lamps of the proper voltage were substituted, the illumination was increased to over 5 foot-candles.

The ceiling in the office had become so soiled by soot and smoke that it was reflecting but 50 per cent of the light. Refinishing the office in its original tone further increased the illumination to a total of over 7 foot-candles. In this case, failure to observe simple maintenance requirements resulted in an intensity of 2 3-4 foot-candles where an intensity of over 7 was being paid for.

To maintain a lighting system at top efficiency four simple rules are to be observed:

1. Wipe reflectors and lamps thoroughly with a damp cloth every ten days or so.

2. Fill empty sockets and replace burned out lamps with new ones of the correct size and proper voltage rating.

3. Refinish ceiling and high side walls in white or in a light cream color.

4. Make some reliable employee responsible for the maintenance of the lighting system and give him authority to have the work done.

In such cases it will be found that the waist line should be larger and the corset loosened at that place.

Household Operations That Necessitated a Cleaning Afterwards Being Replaced By Electrical Methods.

A struggle has been going on between home economics old and home economics new. But the old order changeth giving place to new. In order to understand how different this new housekeeping is—think what the women were doing in the colonial times. They were spinning, weaving, dyeing in one corner; perhaps the weekly wash was in progress in another corner; from side-walls and rafters hung dried fruits and vegetables, ham and bacon. The old-time home was really a miniature manufacturing plant.

Gradually there came a change. The weaving, dyeing, soap-making and other industries were transferred to other buildings outside the home—to factories. With the building of the first factory the new housekeeping began in the home and since then homes have been in a more or less formative period. Then gradually it began to be perceived that housekeeping is a profession that must be run on a business basis. The emancipation of the home from the factory where the members of the family could live and get rest and recreation and development.

It is peculiar to housework that most of its operations result in making still more work. Maintenance rather than production is its keynote. Half the work entailed in a well-kept home, large or small, comes within the category of removing dirt. Whence comes this dirt? A certain amount of dirt enters the house from the street, surface and from chimney smoke, but the bulk of the dirt is revealed by the bright sunshine in the dismal work of old-fashioned methods of heating, perhaps of lighting and cooking, for where there are flames there are always fumes.

In that word "fumes" you have the guilty cause of the dirt that sticks, of the discoloration of walls, the cause therefore of so much of the painting, papering and white-washing necessary to maintain the appearance of cleanliness. Fumes from flaming fires from open burners pour out unceasingly and leave their deposits on everything within the room, hence house-cleaning! By attacking the chief cause of dirt and deterioration at its source, electricity, clean, sootless and smokeless offers the most promising prospect for the twentieth century home. The use of electricity for heating, lighting and cooking removes much of the dirty work from the modern home and the rest of the work is made easier and simpler.

Japanese naval appropriations for 1921 amount to 498,000,000 yen (about $249,000,000).

TINY ELECTRIC STOVE IS GOOD FOR MANY USES

It is interesting to note the line of small electric stoves on the market, a stove for every purpose, at a price for every purse, and the things these small stoves will do. They are now so well made, so perfected that they fit in as a necessary convenience in every home, office, laboratory, nursery and sickroom.

The main point about them after their nice polished appearance is their heating element made of nickel chromium resistance wire, under licensed patents.

A square toaster stove has a set of two interchangeable cookers and cover. The larger cooker with cover is set on top of the small stove while the shallow an big enough for two chops is placed underneath the heating element.

In a few moments one may have chops and peas which with tea and toast make a very good luncheon.

Such a stove provides a simple and easy method of warming milk or making any of the special foods that are so often required for children. It has been said that the good things of life often come in small packages, if so, then these little electric cookers must come under that heading.

"THE PEACOCK GIRL"

Miss Fay Parrish in the peacock bathing suit she was chosen to wear.

Fay Parrish, beautiful Los Angeles dancer from the Roscoe school, was chosen to wear the exquisite peacock model bathing suit which created a stir at the Revue Des Modes there recently. The model, designed by Mrs. Harold Ryerson, is made of white silk jersey embroidered by hand in colored yarns and beads and edged with silver fringe.

LIBEL SUITS

The Chicago Tribune is being sued for libel by the city of Chicago. The basis of the suit is the Tribune's statement that the city is bankrupt by reason of the inefficiency and criminality of the Thompson machine which controls it.

A demurrer to the complaint has just been argued and is now in the bosom of the court awaiting the pronouncement of his decision.

The demurrer is based upon the argument that the freedom of the press, guaranteed by both state and federal constitutions, will be greatly curtailed, if not destroyed, if governments, either municipal, state or national can maintain suits for libel except in cases of sedition. The immense power of a government otherwise, can be used to suppress criticism of its misconduct. All newspapers in the United States await the decision with intense interest.

Suppose, for instance, that the demurrer be overruled and the precedent thereby be established that government can maintain such a suit. Thereafter there would be nothing to prevent the state of New Mexico from suing the Journal or any other newspaper, for any criticism of the administration of the state. Silence would be the result. Evil could go unscathed and extravagance and favoritism might run riot without exposure. The people would be unaided of conditions and their liberties and rights would pass from them. Such a situation is unthinkable.

Yet an effort is being made in the suits of J. M. Reynolds and A. B. McMillen against the Journal to put a construction upon the libel laws which would set a precedent that would accomplish the same result.

Concerning the statements made by the Journal regarding these men upon which they originally brought suit, we do not care to say anything. We promptly answered in those cases and were ready to try the cases in the courts instead of in the newspapers. The question was merely whether we were justified in certain concrete statements we had made concerning them.

However, these gentlemen were unwilling to "go to court" on these remarks which they originally thought were their sources for a grievance. They therefore employed lawyers more capable than themselves and have filed amended complaints. It is these amended complaints which are a menace to the freedom of the press and therefore a menace to the people. If the principles of law which they attempt to lay down can be made to stand in the courts, all criticism of existing conditions in the state will be silenced. Because the interests of the people are involved so vitally, we feel free to discuss the matter. It is by no means a private question between Messrs. Reynolds and McMillen and the one hand and the Journal and its editor on the other hand. Wittingly or unwittingly these gentlemen are striking a deadly blow at the people of New Mexico.

The Journal has talked with great freedom about the bad conditions in New Mexico. It has made rather concrete charges against certain influences in the state. Sometimes it has called them "bombers"; sometimes "higher ups"; sometimes the "junta"; sometimes the "gang." For more than a year we have pointed out how the state has suffered at their hands. During all of that time we had never mentioned the plaintiffs in these actions or the First National Bank in any connection, until after July 15 of this year.

Soon after the latter date we said the "gang" was after us. The allusion printed rather directly to the First National Bank. These gentlemen now plead their connection with the First National and argue that the Journal previously used the word "gang" as recited above in attacking general state conditions. Therefore, they say, when we later used the word "gang" in a way which pointed to the First National that we imputed to that bank all that we had previously charged against the "gang" in earlier months and that, in view of their connection with the bank, we thereby imputed it to them personally. So they sue us on the theory that what we have said about Fall, Hawkins and others previously, now hurts the standing of Reynolds and McMillen.

If this theory can be established as the law, a free press in New Mexico is gone forever. Guy Rogers and Charles White, who happen to be executive officers of the First National can maintain suits, saying we impute to them merely because they are such officers, all that we have said over a year ago by. Any man whom we have ever intimated that we thought belonged to the Invisible Government in New Mexico in the remotest way, could sue us saying that we charged him with everything with which we ever had charged any body.

If all criticisms of vague and undefined class of men can be imputed to every individual whom we have intimated as associated with that class in any phase of their activities, a multiplicity of vexatious suits can result which would crush any newspaper by the dead weight of expense incident to their trial.

The original suits of these two men could have been tried in two days. If they are to be permitted now to go into all that we have said about other men in an effort show that we mentally included the plaintiffs all of the time and secretly meant them in every criticism, the cases can not be tried in two months. The sheer expense of trial would be enormous. If this can be done newspapers must cease to criticize anyone.

The people should be alert as to what the real result of these cases would be upon the freedom of the press in New Mexico, in case a court should hold such complaints to be good pleading.

No one wants a return to the silence of the grave which prevailed for years. If this can be accomplished, any manner of selfish or corrupt political activity is safe from exposure.

CAN MONARCHISM REVIVE?

The Frankfurter Zeitung is prepared to risk its reputation on the prophecy that the monarchists of Germany never will make a "come back" and probably never will even make a serious attempt through militant force. Many have been questioned and, surprising as it sounds, not one was discovered who has so much as his individual opinion of what sort of monarchy would be best for Germany. This, more than any other single point, seems to have hurried the newspaper to the conclusion that the real spirit of the old monarchist group has been broken and befuddled.

From these individual conversations the Zeitung spreads an analogy to the entire royalist crowd and publicly expresses the judgment that monarchy in any form never will be re-established in Germany. Late flurries in Bavaria and the assassination of Erzberger are marked as isolated fanaticism carry no definite meaning in a national sense.

BELIEVES IN RAINBOWS.

A Chicago man, interviewed in Washington where the speeding evil is perhaps at its worst, expressed the hopeful belief that in 10 years hence, a man will be as safe on the streets of any big city as on a battlefield. It must be delightful to tote this brand of rainbow sunshine around the country. But it twists an ordinary man's curiosity to understand how any American, free as the air to jump for his life at 99 per cent of all street crossings, gets that way.

Ten years is a relatively long period in the life of an individual, but a short time in the evolution of a national habit. It is theoretically impossible that in 10 years motor car drivers will have placed under close restraint their impulse to run over every pedestrian they see desperately trying to carry his life in safety across a street or outlying highway. It is possible, but difficult to believe that such a happy day is so close.

The traditional beggar on horseback is a feeble-minded infant compared to the modern red-blooded 161 per cent motor car driver. Alcohol is said to be the great agent to steal away men's brains. Today we have developed the dope industry as a national pastime and enterprise. But neither moonshine, home-brew or drug dope can ever hope to equal the seductive influence which your pneumatic-tired wheels throw into a man the instant he feels them revolve under him. The man who thinks that in 10 short years human life will be as safe in the streets of a big American city as on a great battlefield has faith enough to go hunting a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

VERSE OF TODAY

LAUGHTER.

Nothing there is more varied or apart
Than different people's laughter; some young girls
That like a rippling silver streamlet purr;
A hypocrite's that makes one writhe and start,
So plainly it reveals a crooked heart;
A lover's, breaking on a whispered word;
A young wife's lyric as a mating bird;
An actor's, subtle with consummate art.

The bubbling mirth of some gay tempered child,
That finds the world constructed for his play;
The nervous giggle of a spinster, gray
With wondering how others Love beguiled,
And add, covering a mother's fears,
The little smile that is near kin to tears.

EDITORIAL OF THE DAY

HUMAN WEAKNESS IN JURY BOX

(From the Milwaukee Sentinel)
In Sacramento, Calif., recently two handsome scoundrels stole an automobile, valued at $2,000. The facts were established and the jury of six men and six women found no difficulty in agreeing as to the guilt of the defendants.

But the women stood solidly against a conviction on the charge of grand larceny, which was obviously the only correct verdict. They insisted, and finally prevailed, on finding the prisoners guilty of petty larceny and a verdict was accordingly rendered to that effect. The dissent of the women, who gave utterance to some other dicta entirely uncomplimentary to the jury, its intelligence and its appreciation of the duties of citizenship.

This incident, it is contended by some commentators, serves to prove the frequent allegation that women jurors cannot be relied upon to return a verdict which will inflict any particular pain upon a good looking masculine offender. The fact that the six women on the jury in question rushed to congratulate the prisoners after the verdict was rendered, is added as additional proof of this contention and a convincing argument against their fitness to serve as jurors.

But this argument, powerful as it may be, is somewhat impaired by the well-known fact that it is generally impossible to induce a jury of men to find a good looking woman guilty of anything more than a misdemeanor, even if her infraction of the law proceeds to the extent of getting rid of an undesirable husband or a formidable rival by means of a pistol.

It would seem to the candid observer that the ends of justice are no more dangerously subverted by the acts of women jurors who permit good looking young malefactors of the sterner sex to escape deserved punishment than they are by the performance of male jurors who insist on giving attractive feminine defendants considerable more than the benefit of the reasonable doubt which the law requires.

FAREWELL, SUMMER

When mizzling Summer pulls her freight, and lets the Autumn in,
my lyre hits up a better gait—
mayst hear the merry din.
When Summer's getting in her work,
I spring a noble bluff, and, with an optimistic smirk,
I say that she's the stuff,
Oh, where, I ask, would be our wheat, and radishes and beans, if summer didn't send the heat
that ripens all such greens?
Oh, where would be the luscious fruit,
the pumpkins and the maize,
if Summer's sun refused to shoot its justly famous rays? But even as I deftly spring conundrums such as these, I wish that Summer would take wing, and send an early freeze. It is no reason now it's over, or fading to its rest, that Summer is a bore, and now and then a pest. I'm always glad when Summer goes, and Autumn makes her bow, and hands us hints of early snows to cool each fevered brow. When sizzling Summer comes again, if I am still on earth, I will point to melting men her virtue and her worth;

and as I boost her varied charms,
I'll sigh, in accents droll, "I gladly give two upland farms if Autumn days were here!"

AS THE PEOPLE VIEW IT

"Managing Editor,
Albuquerque Morning Journal,
Albuquerque, N. M.

Dear Sir: I had the pleasure of reading a copy of your paper to-day. Albuquerque is certainly to be congratulated on having such a live, up-to-date newspaper.

A live newspaper is one of the best town-builders in existence. Your city must believe:

That the city that gets publicity gets the business.

That the city that gets advertising grows.

That advertising a city is a business that will grow.

That people will go miles to get to a good live city to trade.

That your property will increase in value when the outside world knows that your city is wide-awake.

That people from neighboring towns will come where there is something doing.

That if you don't get out and go after the outside trade, some neighboring city will.

That if they do, they will get the business you should get.

Yours very truly,
SHAWNEE BOARD OF COMMERCE.

By E. R. WAITE, Secretary.

LET GEORGE DO IT

Editorial of the Journal.
I enjoyed reading communications from Observer and Citizen under the head of "As the People View It" in Monday's Journal, but I had to laugh at your Editorial on "Corrupt Practice Act."

My personal like for you precludes an expression of opinion as to your judgment, or lack thereof, in advocating such for New Mexico. If general talk can be given credence there must have been more than $100,000 spent by the Republican party in last week's Senatorial election, and the Democrats spent every dollar they could raise. The plain truth, were it available, would startle. Men and women, otherwise fair and honorable, many of them, seem to cast aside all scruples in matters political. If they do it voluntarily then they should be stayed therefrom. If in "match" the opposition, as is frequently claimed, the cause must be removed.

We indulge the hope that the entrance of woman in politics would purify same, but the same old story of "man hiding behind" is being repeated, and is going to make "bad matters worse" unless the true women are alert and respond to their great responsibility.

The New Mexican has repeatedly charged that there was $9,000 of Republican money spent in Santa Fe county in the Senatorial election, intimating that same was "bought" from the "outside." Your Journal said "at Santa Fe, some local group raised a considerable sum of money and spent it improperly. Just behind the scenes, it is being repeated, and is going to make "bad matters worse" unless the true women are alert and respond to their great responsibility.

My belief would be a good deal to have it down, and Leroy Shooster, my mother would leave me have it down there, too. I'd be allowed all right, only we're all time having coal put in and every time we had a meeting the coal man would be libel to come and put some more coal in and how could we have any fun with that going on.

Being the reasons why the club hasn't been founded yet and probably the reasons why it probably never will.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

By Lee Pope

Yestidday me and Puds Simkins and Leroy Shooster was setting out to talk about getting up a club, Puds saying, G, lets, that's a grade idea, lets have it down somebody's cellar where we can jump around on the stumps, waiting for the war, lets just us 3 start it and then we'll be the founders and we'll have all the say.

G, that a peach of a idea, I sed, we can have dum balls and Indian clubs and punching bags and everything, G, maybe we wont have fun, and nobody else cant join unless us 3 agree.

G, we'll have a swell club all right, us 3 can take turns being president and wen one is president the other 2 can be secretary and treasurer so we'll be something all the time, sed Leroy Shooster.

My cellar would be a swell place to have it down, I sed, I wish it didnt, well I'd be allowed to have it down mine, too, I sed, only my faithless comrades dont seem to care, so awften he'd be finding out our secret password and everything in case we didnt hear him coming down and holey smoke that would spoil the hole thing, that would be a good idea, I sed.

THE POPULAR GEORGIA MINSTRELS ARE COMING

More people visited the famous Georgia Minstrels last season than ever before. The fixed policy of Tusco & Hockwald, the managers, is to render a dollar's worth of amusement for a dollar.

The value of amusement is measured by the entertainment it gives. Millions of theater patrons have learned "Georgia" in connection with minstrel means quality and quantity. What is easily recognized as the "Georgia" spirit greets the audience at the first raise of the curtain. One is made to feel design, enterprise, optimism.

The Georgia Minstrels have made history just as Edison made history in the realm of intercommunication, just as Curtis made history in the realm of aviation so has the "Georgia" made history in the realm of minstrelsy.

There is always satisfaction and pleasure when you go to see the famous Georgia Minstrels, the confidence that goes with knowing the years of experience in providing amusement is a positive guarantee of satisfaction behind the performance.

This company comes to the Crystal opera house, matinee and night, Tuesday, October 9.

LEGION BOYS TO HOLD MASS MEET TUESDAY NIGHT

C. L. Dawson, National Field
Representative of the American Legion, Will Be Here From North Dakota.

C. L. Dawson, national field representative of the American legion, will be one of the speakers at the American legion mass meeting to be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the armory. Mr. Dawson comes from North Dakota and is making a speaking tour of the its plans are for the coming year.

NO JOHN GREGG ON PROHIBITION FORCE IN THIS DISTRICT

Prohibition enforcement officials last night emphatically denied the report published in several southwest newspapers stating that John Gregg, a member of the department, had been arrested in Santa Fe and fined $10 on a drunkenness charge.

"There is no John Gregg on the force," one of the officers stated last night. "The only man by the name of Gregg who is connected with the department here is A. L.
Gregg, who was not arrested."

The report stated that Police
Judge Alberto Garcia of Santa Fe had imposed the fine. Prohibition officials will start an investigation today to learn where the erroneous report started and to find if there is a John Gregg who is claiming to be connected with the department and is impersonating a federal official.
