The Carlsbad Current

TWENTY-SEVENTH YEAR.

CARLSBAD, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, JULY 18, 1919.

NUMBER 33.

FREE DELIVERY OF MAIL TO BE PUT ON IN THE "CITY OF CARLSBAD".

Numbering of Residences To Begin Next Week and New Mail System Is Soon to Follow.

Carlsbad is beginning to "put on airs"! To her beautiful homes, well kept lawns, shade trees and fine sidewalks, will be added numbering the houses, naming and marking the streets, which is preparatory to free mail delivery. It may not be generally known, but Carlsbad has been entitled to free delivery for four years past, the annual receipts of the postoffice having been above $10,000.00 for that time.

Street signs, four feet high and twenty-four inches on a side, have been painted at the Morris Shop and twelve of them will be placed at the intersections of the principal streets at once, others being added from time to time, as the occasion demands.

The houses will be numbered, taking the court house as the center of town, all north of that edifice being called "North Canyon", "North Canal," etc., and the other directions the same way. The property owners will pay for the numbers on individual buildings. Each block will begin with the number 100, and will alternate, the odd numbers on one side and even numbers on the other. After this has been accomplished we may expect free mail delivery.

PROCLAMATION.

That the streets, alleys, lots and some resident property in our little city are in an unsightly and unsanitary condition, no one can truthfully deny.

Looking to a change of said conditions, the City Council of Carlsbad, in regular session, on July 7th, unanimously adopted a resolution fixing and declaring July 25th, 1919, as Clean-Up Day in Carlsbad.

Now, in conformity with said action, on the part of the City Council, I, D. G. Grantham, Mayor do hereby proclaim, fix, set apart and designate July 25th, 1919, as Clean-Up Day, and request that every individual, aggregation and organization of individuals, in the City of Carlsbad, join the City in this laudable undertaking and effort.

Let every one clean up their lots, put the trash and debris where it can be easily reached, and wagons and trucks will be there to remove same, on said day.

Please do not forget the day, Friday, July 25th, 1919. Let the residents of each block or precinct, elect a captain and all join in the work.

May we not have the hearty cooperation and help of the citizens to make our little city more beautiful and sanitary?

D. G. GRANTHAM,

Mayor.

DR. DAVID HILL NEW PRESIDENT OF U. of N. M.

The presidency of the University of New Mexico was solved by the board of regents Monday night they unanimously electing Dr. David Spence Hill of Tennessee, now holding a professorship in the University of Illinois, to that position.

The work of the regents has been most difficult. There were more than twenty-five applications, and the names of a number of persons who were not applicants were under consideration for a month or more.

CARLSBAD PROJECT.

May weather was cool, with a maximum of cloudy days throughout the month. The precipitation amounted to 0.55 inch. The weather was suitable for the growth of crops.

The flow of the Pecos river averaged about 3,000 acre-feet per day during the month. About 90,000 acre-feet were spilled thru the Avalon gates. Water was delivered to the farms throughout the month, except for three days when the headgates were closed for the purpose of killing moss.

Labor has been scarce and high priced. The sheep camps are still employing a large number of men for shearing. Farm operations have been seriously delayed on account of the labor shortage. The entire operation force was engaged in delivering water during the month, except for three days at the middle of the month. During that period the field force was engaged in making minor repairs. Only a very few men under the ditch riders were engaged on maintenance work in the irrigable area. A repair maintenance job on the east embankment begun in April was in progress all month. This work was in charge of the regular maintenance foreman. This job consists of the repair of the face of the embankment, made necessary by a severe windstorm early in April. The repair work consists of a 2 to 3 foot thickness of riprap placed on a 1 to 1 slope in wire mattresses. The job is 26 per cent completed. About 700 linear feet were completed at the end of the month. No maintenance work has been necessary on the drains during the month.

A considerable percentage of new land has been added to the irrigable area. This land is being improved by local people, in part by farmers increasing their holdings or by the purchasing of farms by business men of the community. Very few new settlers from other communities have bought land.

The first crop of alfalfa hay has been about 75 per cent harvested and marketed. There has been considerable loss of time in the harvest account of labor shortage. The crop has been exceptionally fine both as to yield and quality, and has had a ready market for about $20 per ton f. o. b. the project. A large acreage of cotton has been planted. The increase in acreage of this crop over last year is large. The exact acreage, however, has not yet been determined. The stand is good as a rule and the crop generally in a good condition. Reclamation Record.

SCOUTS AT CLOUDROFT.

Bert Rawlins is in receipt of a letter from Will Purdy, scoutmaster, who left with Carlsbad Boy Scouts for their camp at Russell, New Mexico, the 8th instant. Mr. Purdy says that the Scouts who are in camp there gave a demonstration at Cloudcroft last Sunday which was witnessed by a large crowd from near-by villages. He further states that the Carlsbad boys compare well with the Scouts from other places in behavior, appearance, discipline and the many other things that enter into the life of a Scout. Mr. Purdy also says that while the boys do not get just what they might desire to eat, they are fortunate in being able to eat the abundant, wholesome food that is set before them without comment. The discipline, while necessarily strict, is not more so than necessity requires with such a large number of boys. Camp will break up next Monday night and the boys may be expected in Carlsbad the Wednesday following.

BRITISH DIRIGIBLE COMPLETES RETURN CRUISE ACROSS OCEAN IN 75 HOURS.

Arrives at Popham, Norfolk, Sunday Morning at 6:56 O'clock With No Accident to Mar Flight

Popham, Norfolk, England, July 13.—Great Britain's mammoth trans-Atlantic air pioneer, the dirigible R-34, arrived at the air station here at 6:56 o'clock, Greenwich time, today, completing her round trip from the British Isles to the United States and return.

The R-34 poked her nose out of the clouds northeast of the village and after circling the flying field three times, glided gently to the ground, and ten minutes later was housed in the dirigible shed. The voyage from Long Island was without particular incident and was completed in approximately 75 hours.

Makes Perfect Landing. As the R-34 approached the field she dropped from a height of 5,000 feet to 2,000 feet. The 400 men who were to aid the airship in landing were ordered to their positions and waited silently as the ship circled the field, dropping lower and lower.

When Major G. H. Scott, her commander, had maneuvered the airship into position for the landing, the water ballast was released to steady her and a rope was thrown from the bow. The giant ship moved across the field to the shed where the delicate operation of berthing her was completed quickly.

The tired, unshaven but smiling men who composed the crew quickly climbed from the gondola and were greeted warmly by the officers and soldiers gathered on the field.

"The voyage home has been without incident," said Major Scott. "We want breakfast."

After breakfast and while enjoying the belated luxury of his little black pipe, smoking not being permitted on the ship, Major Scott told the story of the return flight as follows:

"We estimated we would make it in from 70 to 80 hours," he said. "We made it in 75. When we left we had a strong wind behind us and we covered the first 800 miles in about eight hours. When we circled over New York we could plainly see the crowds on Broadway waving to us as we passed, but we could not hear them because of the noise of the engines."

"South of Newfoundland we encountered head winds and our progress from there on was slower. We traveled at an average height of from 3,000 to 5,000 feet and found much low clouds and fog. Once we saw nothing but fog for 24 hours."

"We struck Ireland at Clifden and made good progress from there, although our steering engine broke down Saturday morning. We started with 4,000 gallons of gasoline and had 1,000 gallons left."

"We are naturally pleased with the trip, all of us. I expect important changes in the size and speed of future airships—big ships that will travel 70 to 80 miles an hour and powerful enough to crawl through anything."

"This has been a great trip," said Colonel W. N. Hensley, Jr., of the United States Army, Jr., as he climbed out of the car. "We lost one whole day because of the fog, which was so thick we could not get a shot at the sun, moon, stars or horizon, but we worked out of it and struck the Irish coast. We passed over the Isle of Man about 3 o'clock this morning and then, mounting above the clouds, witnessed a most beautiful sight. Above was the bright moon; below soft, fleecy clouds, touched with all the colors of the rainbow, and far down below occasionally could be seen the dark blue of the sea. But we did not have time to admire the beauty of the scene."

"We soon passed over Liverpool and then other cities and towns and here we are. We suffered no hardships and no inconveniences except that we had no hot water for shaving. Our engines' eggs were cooked in the exhaust of the engines and we had plenty of tea and cocoa to drink. No one suffered from air sickness and while the sea below was tossed by a 40-mile wind, we were moving along in comfort on an even keel."

"Regular airship service between Europe and America is bound to come and soon."

Hon. R. C. Dow left for Miami, Arizona, the home of his mother, Mrs. Mary Dow, Wednesday morning, in response to a telegram stating that she was very ill. Word received since then indicates that her condition is much improved. Here in Carlsbad, where Mrs. Dow lived for many years, and passed through a baptism of sorrow and bereavement, are a host of her friends, anxious to learn of her complete recovery to her usual good health.

I am offering for sale 50 acres of land within two miles of the Illinois Producers well No. 2 on Dayton Hill, the heart of production, in blocks of 10 acres or more; or will lease the whole tract for oil and gas.

WELL DRILLING MACHINERY NOW BEING INSTALLED.

Many New Mexico Companies Now Financed for Tests and Equipment Is Arriving at Many Stations.

Is the oil activity in New Mexico slowing down? If noise and publicity determine the progress, there would be indicated a marked loss in interest as well as a drop in progress of the exploration work itself.

Such is not the case, however. There is more real effort to locate oil in New Mexico today than ever before in its history. The activity has safely passed the "hurry" stage and is developing along practical lines. The men that made the most noise were really not the men that will finance and carry out the real test of a drilling.

The northeast part of the state is making good progress to start more drills. The United Oil Company is now proceeding with the drilling, after having moved their outfit around as a precaution. It is not generally known that this company had a very disastrous fire while sinking their first well. Gas was struck and became ignited and the derrick and machinery and buildings were lost. The second well is now getting down into the same formation and the precaution of moving everything possible away from the well was taken. Otherwise the report that oil was struck has not been confirmed or denied.

The Shorby Gobbler company is hurrying the work to get the derrick and machinery ready for drilling. The company is already well financed to carry out their program for exploration of the site between Greenville and Coruppa. Good progress is also being made at the location near Buoyeros northeast of Mosqueros. Other locations are likely to be tested soon in Union county. That the field is promising in this section of the state and adjoining territory is indicated by the fact that one company is already drilling across the New Mexico line northeast of Clayton and a second company is also ready to start work in the Panhandle of Oklahoma.

In Quay county things are moving well. The work on the McGee well east of Tucuman has been somewhat delayed as water was struck that had to be cased off. Drilling is again going forward. Otherwise good progress is being made and the formation in this well is very satisfactory so far. The steel derrick in the field well at Ranah has been moved to its location. The rig at Indee will go up as soon as a selection of location is made. Investigations are in progress around Glenrio and San Jon.

At Taiban in De Baca county there is much excitement now that actual drilling is ready to begin. A location has been selected on the east side of section 2, township 22, North Range 27 East between Taiban and La Lande. The rig that arrived several weeks ago has been taken to the location and actual drilling will be under way in a few days. This section is pronounced to be very promising and is being visited by prospectors in numbers at this time. West of the Pecos river in the Yaso section investigations are also being made.

At Portales progress is being reported and an early test is expected to be made. Oklahoma oil men have become greatly interested in the oil prospects in this section. At Kenna the derrick is going up and drilling should begin without much further delay.

In the Pecos Valley drilling continues on the Lincoln well near Lake Arthur. This well is now down around 2,000 feet. The formation is improving as the drill goes down. Little information is given the public as to the actual conditions. At Dayton the Illinois Producing and Refining Company is making fair progress in the new well started there. The reports that oil has already been found in the well this company is drilling south of Dayton, near Lakewood, has not been confirmed. Many reports are in circulation as to new wells to be sunk in this part of the valley. At Hope a block of 1,000 acres is being offered drillers on favorable terms.

In the Tularosa basin good progress is being made by the Cox people. This location is out in the wilderness and it was necessary to provide houses and other conveniences for the employees before actual work could be undertaken. A fleet of trucks is being used to carry the material from Las Cruces to the location in the east part of Dona Ana county.

There is much stir around Deming and drilling is likely to be under way before many weeks at the outside. Over at Steins west of Lordsburg a storm recently blew down the derrick of the Deming Oil, Gas and Development Company. But work is again under way to rebuild the derrick and start drilling at an early date.

In McKinley County progress is being made in the Seven Lakes district northeast of Gallup. One well is down nearly 500 feet and is expected to develop shallow oil. There is every indication that this district will be tested out fully in the next few months. The operators in this district are looking for shallow oil, but no heavy flow.

GENERAL DIPPING ORDERS ISSUED BY THE CATTLE SANITARY BOARD OF NEW MEXICO.

To All Whom It May Concern: Under authority conferred upon the Cattle Sanitary Board of New Mexico, by the provisions of Chapter 31, of the Laws of New Mexico, notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Cattle Sanitary Board, held at Albuquerque, on the 7th day of June, 1919, in consequence of scab having been found in range inspection conducted by the Cattle Sanitary Board in cooperation with the Federal Bureau of Animal Industry, general cattle scabies dipping orders were issued and made effective the first day of August, 1919.

This dipping will begin on the 1st day of September, 1919, and all owners of cattle in Eddy County, must make arrangements to be prepared to dip their cattle under Federal or State supervision when notified by an inspector at any date after September 1st, 1919.

Very respectfully,
(Signed) A. R. TREAT,
Govt. Inspector.

BIG DAY AT ARTESIA TUESDAY.

Artesia certainly pulled off a big celebration Tuesday in honor of the returned soldiers and sailors of Eddy County. A large number attended from Carlsbad and the lower valley, and those who didn't go wished they had when they heard the glowing accounts given by others more fortunate. Everything was free, the returned service men and their ladies being the honored guests. Speaking, a band concert, baseball game and movies were among the pleasures provided and the fish fry was all that could be desired. Besides fish, in abundance, and done to a turn, bread, pickles, salad, cake and leed tea were on the menu. The tables were laid just north of town in a little grove and the guests were served cafeteria style. Nothing was left undone that could add to the pleasure of the visitors, the Artesia people having a reputation for hospitality which was ably sustained on Tuesday.

Fruit Plentiful in Upper Valley.

Early peaches, apples, pears, plums and crab apples are plentiful in the vicinity of Hope and Artesia and some concerted action is needed to bring this to the attention of the people in Carlsbad who are wanting cheap fruit. Packages weighing fifty pounds can be sent by parcel post at a low cost and A. Z. Smith, county agent, will be glad to give the names and addresses of persons having fruit to sell in that part of the county.

But if conditions prove the expectations a battery of wells will be sunk and pumped.

In Valencia county near the Socorro line investigations are also reaching the stage of actual exploration. It is expected that one or more shallow fields may be developed in this section. Even if the flow of oil should not prove to be strong, it is expected that the production will warrant pumping.

The latest report from San Juan county is that the Spencer Petroleum company of Delaware has closed a contract with the Mesa Verde Oil Company that drilled at Flora Vista, to drill a deep well. The indications in the Mesa Verde well was very promising, but the company was not able to continue drilling. The new company is strong enough to make a full test. The San Juan field is one of the most promising in the state. None of the test wells drilled in the past were carried deep enough for lack of funds. Gas was found in all these wells and was used for fuel in drilling.

No late reports are at hand as to the progress the Toffee is making in Santa Fe county, the Gypsy Company near Dilia, and the Valley Company at Columbus.

Oil Association.

The oil activity in New Mexico has reached a stage when a statewide oil association is very necessary. So far no one is really in position to keep in touch with the progress of work in the various sections of the state. The possible investor at home and outside of the state finds no central body that is in position to give reliable information on the situation. The state needs outside capital to carry out a satisfactory statewide exploration. At the present time no general agency is at hand to direct attention to oil prospects in the state. In fact New Mexico needs most urgently some agency to furnish reliable information to the public, not only as to probable oil districts but regarding mineral and other important resources.

There is a decided drop in the making of new companies the last week. Only one company has filed articles with the Corporation Commission this week.

Quay County Oil and Gas Company of Tucuman, E. B. Hamilton is the statutory agent. The capital stock is $50,000.00, divided into dollar shares. The incorporators are W. J. Eitzen and twenty-five others, all of Tucuman. The first board of directors: W. J. Eitzen, W. E. Horn, W. F. Kirby, B. L. Francis and G. A. Rager.

Hold fast to that which is good. Keep your Liberty Bonds.

WEATHER AND CROP CONDITIONS IN NEW MEXICO.

For the week ending July 15th: The week was warm, partly cloudy and favorable with good showers except in the southeastern counties where rain is needed. Some local downpours occurred in the northern and central sections. The latter part of the week, washing out bridges and roadways. The harvesting of winter wheat is general with favorable conditions. Spring wheat well ahead out. In the southern counties cotton is making good growth and filling in well. Corn, oats, sorghums and gardens are doing well. Ranges are generally good to excellent and stock thriving.

Black Rock: Big rains continue; washing out bridges and roads. Crops in excellent condition. Ranges in fine shape. Weather has been cloudy but warm. General condition of crops and range one month ahead of normal.

Black Lake: Everything looks fine.

Amarillo: Rain badly needed for row crops, but dry weather ideal for harvest. Grain is mostly all in shock. Abundance of sunshine.

Loving: Week has been very warm with little rain. Second crop of alfalfa is nearly harvested, third crop growing fine. Cotton filling in well with good growth.

Hermosa: Recent rain has caused corn, cane and garden truck to take on new life. Plenty of rain on Black Range mountains.

Costilla: Alfalfa cutting well under way. General crop conditions slightly below the normal. Wheat is in head generally. Little rain but severe electrical storms which killed considerable stock.

Chimayo: All crops growing fine. Wheat seems to be much better this year than last.

Taos: Crops all over the valley growing nicely, only grasshoppers have appeared in large numbers at Taipa, Ranchos, and Cordovas, but so far not much damage done.

RED CROSS NOTES.

The Red Cross military relief workers are at present caring for more than 15,000 soldiers in the army posts, hospitals and camps in Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming. Besides supplying recreation, rest, refreshments and entertainment, the Red Cross workers give personal service of all description to the men.

Although fighting ceased seven months ago, thousands of wounded and sick men are still in the A. E. F. hospitals, too ill or weak to stand the journey home. American Red Cross workers have been concentrated at the hospitals with the difficult task of keeping the soldiers amused and in combating the homesickness epidemic, which has been increasing ever since the armistice.

More than 700 ex-service men, stranded or wandering, have called on the Salt Lake City Red Cross for aid since the armistice. The workers there have been busy finding them work, persuading them to return to their homes, or getting them in touch with their families or relatives whom they could not locate.

NOTICE.

For the attention of all honorably discharged Soldiers, Sailors, and Marines, who participated in the World War, at home or overseas:

A meeting will be held at the County Court House at Carlsbad, Saturday night, the 19th inst., at 8:30 P. M., for the purpose of organizing the Eddy County Chapter of the American Legion; and electing officers.

All Soldiers, Sailors, and Marines are urgently requested to be present.
E. P. BUJAC,
Late Major, U. S. Army.

BRIDGE PARTY.

Eight tables of bridge players were entertained by Mrs. Lila Merchant at her home in La Huerta, yesterday afternoon, honoring her five sisters who are visiting in Carlsbad at this time. In the games Mrs. J. F. Jones made highest score and was given a hand-painted plate as a prize. A "sister's" prize was also provided by Mrs. Merchant, a beautiful silver bread plate, which the sisters set for and was awarded to Mrs. Hobart. Mrs. Merchant is enjoying the society of her sisters extremely. It being very unusual for six grown sisters to have the privilege of being together. Most of the ladies are known to Carlsbad people. They are Mesdames Harris, Mitchell, Hobart, Eldridge, Dickey and Merchant.

R. M. Gorley had a communication from Miss Helen Taylor, who, with her parents, resided here about a year ago, coming from Indiana for the father's health. The gentleman, Walter Taylor, was a victim of tuberculosis and passed away last Sunday at their home near Indianapolis. Many will remember the family, the daughter, a beautiful, amiable girl, graduating from Carlsbad school with the class of 1918. She was a sweet singer, and Mrs. Taylor a fine pianist. They lived in one of the Nelson cottages while here. Friends extend sincere sympathy.

A PLEASANT PARTY.

The beautiful suburban home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Livingston was the scene of an unique party Saturday afternoon, their little daughter, Katherine Laurette, being one year old at that time and the party being given in honor of that very important event.

Ten babies, all of tender age, played on the lawn and on the spacious veranda, toys having been provided for their pleasure in great abundance; while the mothers watched them at play and enjoyed the social hour together. Ice cream and cake were served. The guests were: Mary Craig, Mary Frances Dow, Roberta Lee Hanson, Helen Esther Wells, Hazel Fortson, Frances Ryan, Philip Jackson, Leslie Bates, Jr., June Carter, Jeanette Worthen, and the young hostess, Katherine Laurette Livingston.

Miss Jewelle Hubbard returned Tuesday night from Albuquerque, where she has been in school since September and expresses her pleasure at being at home once more.

Joe Cunningham and family spent Tuesday at the barbecue and dance at the Dolph Lusk home. Edwin Little accompanied them.

Paula L. Washington is up on the Black River, stopping in town for a few days.

After a very pleasant vacation last week, Mrs. Annie Weeks returned from California Sunday. She reports a fine time with relatives there and looks much better than when she left. She wishes her friends and customers to know of her return and that she will again take up her painting and hem-stitching in connection with her other work in the F. C. Horne store.

BR-R-R-R!

A hundred in the shade and the pup shivering? Oh, yes! You see he's a Mexican hairless dog and is not used to American Electric Fans.

But Mr. Man is used to Electric Fans—in fact so used to them that you'd have to tempt him with the seashore or a trout stream in the shady mountains to get him away from his own private cool spot. By the way, have you a little breeze-blower in your home?

There's a Western Electric Fan in our store just waiting to be sent to your home—now.

LESSON FOR JULY 20

THE LORD'S SUPPER.

LESSON TEXTS—Mat. 26:26-30; 1 Cor. 11:23-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come.—1 Cor. 11:26.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Mark 14:22-25; Luke 22:14-20; 1 Cor. 10:14-21.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Remembering Jesus (Luke 22:19).
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord's Supper reminds us of Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—The meaning of the Lord's Supper.
SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—Communion with Christ and with one another.

I. The Institution of the Lord's Supper (Matt. 26:26; 1 Cor. 11:23).

1. Time: It was on the night of the betrayal of Jesus, just after the betrayer had been announced.

2. The circumstances: In connection with the eating of the Passover. At the command of Jesus the disciples made ready the Passover, and while they were eating, Jesus took bread, blessed it and gave it to the disciples.

3. Elements: (1) The bread. This doubtless was the common bread of the Passover feast. (2) The cup. This cup consisted of the fruit of the vine.

II. The Significance of the Lord's Supper (Matt. 26:26-28; 1 Cor. 11:24-26).

Jesus took natural and literal elements and made them to be symbols of his own body and blood. Just as our bread and drink are assimilated into brain and brawn, becoming an integral part of our body, so by means of these symbols the communicant partakes of Christ. He becomes a part of us and we are in him. It is both a memorial and a prophecy.

1. A memorial of the Lord (Luke 22:19). When he went away he left the bread and the cup for the disciples by which to remember him. Those who love him will desire to keep sacred this memorial.

2. To show the Lord's sacrificial death (1 Cor. 11:26). He did not die as a hero or as an example of unselfish devotion, but as a substitutionary ransom. On the cross he made expiation for our sins.

3. It is a guaranty that our sins are forgiven (Rom. 4:25). When the believer partakes of these elements his faith is confirmed. "It is a signet of the Son of God attached to redemption."

4. Through them the believer receives Christ (1 Cor. 10:16). He thereby participates in the body and blood of Christ, becoming a member of his body. Christ liveth in the believer (Gal. 2:20). The Holy Spirit communicates the life of Christ to believers, making them one body, joined together (Eph. 4:16). This union is illustrated by the figure of the human organism (1 Cor. 12:12-27): the vine and branches (John 15:1-8); the husband and wife (Eph. 5:25, 26); we are one bread and one body (1 Cor. 10:17).

5. A forward look to a completed redemption (1 Cor. 10:20). When faith is exercised in Christ, redemption begins, and its completion will take place at the coming of Jesus Christ (1 Thess. 4:16, 17). The bread and the cup constitute the keepers of the Lord until he returns. These elements possess an immense psychological value both as a memorial and a prospect.

III. Qualifications for Participation in the Lord's Supper (1 Cor. 11:27-34).

1. A proper apprehension of its meaning (v. 27). Eating and drinking "unworthily" does not refer to the desert of the communicant, but to the failure of the communicant to grasp its meaning and importance. Therefore, to thoughtlessly engage in this service is to do it "unworthily." Only a regenerated person can discern the Lord's body (v. 29, cf. 2:14). Faith in the integrity of Christ's person and work is essential. Anyone who does not believe in the absolute deity of Christ and his vicarious atonement is an unworthy communicant.

2. Church membership (1 Cor. 11:18-22). The Lord's body is the church which is composed of regenerated men and women, united to Jesus Christ as head and to each other as members of that body by the Holy Spirit.

3. Orderly walk. The disorderly should be debarred from the Lord's table, examples of which are the following: (1) Immoral conduct (1 Cor. 5:1-13). It is perilous to the individual who is guilty of immorality to approach the Lord's table (v. 30). Sickness and death are oftentimes visited upon such. This explains why some are mysteriously taken away in death. (2) Heresy (Titus 3:10; John 4:2, 3). (3) Schismatics (Rom. 16:17). Those who are causing divisions in the church should be debarred.

Our habitual thoughts and actions determine our characters and they are made moment by moment. If at the center we are stayed on God the circumstances must be right.—Samuel Fallows.

Would you?
Would you remain always young, and would you carry all the joy and buoyancy of youth into your mature years? Then have care concerning but one thing—how you live in your present world.—Ralph Waldo Trine.

MEMBERS INSTALL OFFICERS.

Carlsbad Rebekah lodge No. 13, held a very interesting session Monday night, that being the date for the regular installation of officers. The work was in charge of Mrs. L. E. Hayes, district deputy, and Miss McKeeley, assistant, and was ably performed. The officers installed were:

Nobel Grand, Miss Dona Ferguson; Vice Grand, Mrs. Belle McCord; Secretary, Mrs. E. S. Kirkpatrick; Treasurer, Miss Lucille McKeeley; Past Noble Grand, Mrs. J. B. Leck. Appointive officers as follows: Chaplain, Mrs. Asbury Moore; Warden, Miss Inez Jones; Conductor, Miss Hattie Eaker; Inside Guardian, Miss Elizabeth Eaker; Outside Guardian, Mrs. Barnes; R. S. N. G., Mrs. L. E. Hayes; L. S. N. G., Mrs. J. W. Armstrong; R. S. V. G., Mrs. Barnes; L. S. V. G., Miss Ona White.

At the conclusion of the installation ceremonies, sherbet and wafers were served and an informal social hour was spent. Several candidates have been accepted and will be initiated in the near future, the Artesia team coming down to put on the initiatory work.

J. A. Pond, ten years old, lays claim to being the youngest carpenter in the city. Recently his mother sustained a fall from the back steps at her home in the northern part of town, the steps being old. This was too much for J. A., so, without any assistance, he made a new set of steps and put them in place and is mighty proud of his handiwork, which is as good as any one can do, and his mother is proud of her thoughtful son, also.

Judge D. G. Grantham returned from Fort Davis Sunday afternoon, coming from Pecos via automobile. The judge had been attending court at Ft. Davis and looked decidedly the "worse for the wear" after his long car ride.

Forty-nine Senators are said to oppose the League of Nations—and no two have the same reason for the opposition.

One Republican publicity bureau wants a "separate peace" with Germany. Which looks like one way to start war with the American people.

Republican leaders in the House of Representatives are claiming a fictitious saving to the nation of $1,500,000,000 in appropriation bills, but are omitting to state that they voted for those bills at the last session and claimed great patriotic credit for doing so.

Nine and thirty "robins" inveighed against the League, and chirped so long and loudly the country felt fatigue. When the time for voting came, "twas seen that all was sham—the "robins" voted "aye" to keep from getting in a jam.

PROGRESSIVES FAVORED FEDERATION OF NATIONS LIKE PROPOSED LEAGUE.

"Progressive" Senators and others who are opposing the League of Nations seem to have forgotten, or else imagine that the public no longer recollects, the pronouncement in the platform of their party in 1917. Just a week after the United States entered the war against Germany, and nearly three years after that cataclysmic conflict began, the Progressive party in its "contract with the people" adopted the following article of its political and social creed:

"We urge a Federation among Nations to dismantle navies and disband armies to the end that international controversies be controlled and disposed of without war."

Mr. Borah and his associates in the Progressive party are not of record as having objected to this "Federation of Nations" then. Are they obstructing the League of Nations because it is advocated by President Wilson?

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS MEMORIAL.

As a perpetual memorial to the soldiers and sailors of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and New Mexico who served in the world war, and in honor of those who died in the service, the Southern Methodist University, at Dallas, Texas, is planning the erection of a memorial hall.

Plans for the building, which have recently been completed call for an auditorium seating about 2,000 persons. In the English basement beneath the main auditorium will be a smaller one with a seating capacity of about 750. A still smaller auditorium will be located on the same floor and back of the main auditorium. The main floor will contain a suite of offices on each side of the auditorium. Bronze memorial tablets will be placed in the main lobby along the hallway of those in the service from these states as listed in its program and records. Already more than 10,000 names are available together with the names and addresses of their parents who will be asked to subscribe to the erection of the building at ten dollars a name. A large number of these names are from the Methodist Sunday schools of the southwest. The estimated cost of the memorial is $250,000.

A B C OF THE LEAGUE.

What It Proposes and Its Benefits.

1. What is the league of nations?
A union of the strongest civilized nations formed at the conclusion of the great war.
2. What is its object?
(1) To promote the peace of the world by agreeing not to resort to war. (2) To promote open dealings between nations, not by secret treaties. (3) To improve international law. (4) To co-operate on all matters of common concern.
3. Does it presume to end war?
No more than any government can end crime. It claims to reduce the liability of war.
4. What will be done to any nation that makes war?
It will be boycotted and otherwise penalized.
5. How else will the probability of war be lessened?
By voluntary, mutual and proportionate disarmament, by exchanging military information, by providing for arbitration, by protecting each nation's territorial integrity and by educating public opinion to see the folly of war.
6. What else does the league propose to do for mankind?
(1) Secure fair treatment for labor. (2) Suppress the white slave traffic, the sale of dangerous drugs, and the traffic in war munitions. (3) Control and prevent disease. (4) Promote the work of the Red Cross. (5) Establish international bureaus for other causes that concern the human race.
7. What agencies will the league have?
(1) An assembly, composed of representatives of all the member nations. (2) A council of nine. (3) A secretary general. (4) A mandatory commission, to look after colonies, etc. (5) A per-

TAYLOR COMES BACK AT FALL ON PEACE RESOLUTION.

By William Howard Taft—

Senator Taft's joint resolution to declare peace with Germany has been referred to the foreign relations committee of the senate. Senator Lodge has said that congress, having power to declare war, has, therefore, the power to declare peace. This argument is faulty in that it assumes that in their making war and peace are of the same nature. Each is a legal status, but the status of war is created by the declaration of one nation. The status of peace after a war may be created only by an agreement of the belligerents to end the war. If only one of them declares peace, war continues. Congress declares war, makes war and can cease making war on its side, but that does not make peace. The nation with which we have been at war must agree that war is ended and signify its agreement. Now, agreements with other nations are made, and our constitution, by what is called the treaty making power of the president and the senate. Therefore, permanent peace after a war can only be properly made by a treaty. It is true that we have sometimes effected arrangements with other nations through an act of congress but they were in their nature mere enactments of law to prevail in our country on condition that corresponding laws were enacted in another country. Thus Canadian reciprocity in 1911 was provided for by an act of congress as to duties on imports from Canada on condition that certain duties were imposed by Canada on imports from the United States. Either party might end the operation of the arrangement by repeal of its law. So here, perhaps, congress could declare peace with Germany on condition that Germany make a similar declaration. But that is not the Fall resolution. It merely declares peace. Without Germany's accord it can not create peace. The armistice continues. The effect of the signing of the final treaty before ratification will continue the armistice till ratification of the treaty.

But suppose that Germany were by legislative act to make a corresponding declaration of peace. The result would be an end of the war without any conclusion. We went to war specifically to maintain as neutrals the right of our own ships and citizens on commercial vessels of the enemies of Germany to be free from injury upon the high seas by submarines. Germany denied us those rights. If the war is to be ended by congressional resolution, as suggested, we shall not have settled in any way the rights we have sought to maintain. Under our alien enemy property act we have sold millions of dollars of the private property of German nations. Germany will be in a position to dispute the validity of every one of these sales. She may dispute our title to the German commercial vessels we interned and then look over for our use. Such a peace would, indeed, be a lame and impotent conclusion of a great war and our great sacrifices.

It would be a separate peace with Germany, ignoring our allies. Those who propose it must rely on the provisions of the treaty already signed in Paris by the Germans, the advantages of which it is thus intended to secure without assuming its burdens. But it is said we can make a subsequent treaty with Germany with specific terms. Yes, we can, but then she will be in a much more unstrained position to assert and demand conditions which she was unable to secure against the allies.

But why discuss such an impossible resolution as the Fall resolution? It can not pass so with the executive signature. Of course that will be withheld. The president could not and would not approve the resolution and the committee would sustain him in his veto. It would then take two-thirds of the senate and two-thirds of the house to pass it. Does anybody suppose that two-thirds of either house would pass it?

Why, then, attempt to pass it in the senate? The only possible reason is that in some way it will transfer to the president the burden of delaying a return to normal peace conditions with Germany and a resumption of business intercourse. It is hoped by Senator Fall that the senate, in amending the German treaty so as to send it back for further negotiation, or that a majority of the senate in refusing to ratify the unamended treaty may avoid responsibility for the delay by manifesting a desire for immediate peace by such a resolution. In other words, its only real object would seem to be in playing for position.

The Fall resolution should be allowed to die the same natural death apparently suffered by the Knox resolution.

When the treaty is before the senate then no consideration of expediency should prevent a senator from voting to amend or reject the treaty if he believes it to be really dangerous to our country's interest. If he hesitates to assume responsibility for the delay it must be that he has not confidence in his reasons for opposing the treaty on its merits.

BEAR'S LAST FIGHT

Bruin Made Big Mistake When He Tackled Turtle.

Like Ben King's Famous Pup, Slow-Moving Loggerhead Demonstrated That "What He Took Hold of, He Never Let Go."

While bears are certainly dreadful antagonists, they have been known to get the worst of it when out of their element. Curious and unequal combats occur when beasts of prey attack creatures under unusual circumstances. The pursuer in such a case is likely to incur more risk than the pursued, a fact that was illustrated in a novel encounter in a harbor of Florida between a bear and a turtle.

The crew of a schooner while ashore heard a strange rumbling and pushing around a turn in the beach, saw a huge loggerhead turtle in deadly combat with a big black bear.

From the men's position it seemed that the bear had sprung upon the turtle as it was retreating toward the water, and had tried to overturn it. In some way the bear had stepped in front of the turtle, which, thrusting its head out, had quickly seized one of the bear's hind legs and held it.

At this the bear roared loudly, pawed furiously at the turtle's back, and tried to force it over. The turtle resisted with all its strength and weight. He settled down close to the ground whenever the bear made an extra effort. Then, as the bear would relax its efforts the turtle would suddenly start up and endeavor to get nearer the water, keeping his firm hold on the bear's leg.

Finally, by a sudden push and a powerful muscular effort of his head and paws, bruin managed to get the turtle back set, one side being raised a foot or two. Pursuing his advantage, he seized one of the turtle's hind flippers in his jaws, and the snap that followed showed that the bear felt that things were coming his way.

He continued to chew the flipper and endeavor to overturn the turtle. But his antagonist worked around and finally got in a stroke with its sharp claw that badly ripped the bear's underside. This infuriated the bear to such an extent that he let go his grip on the flipper and, reaching his head down, tried to reach and free his hind leg. Herein he committed a terrible tactical error and the enraged loggerhead quickly improved the opportunity thus afforded him.

As the bear's nose came within reach the turtle let go the hind leg and quick as a flash fastened his iron grip upon the bear's jaw. The bear was taken by surprise and roared lustily with pain and rage. The turtle pushed on and dragged his unwilling captive along. The bear saw his danger and felt it, too, for they were so near the water's edge that the waves were splashing them.

The bear continued to struggle ferociously, but his strength soon began to fail, for the turtle dragged him deeper and deeper. Fighting with his head half the time under water so exhausted the bear that presently he began to gurgle. That moment was fatal. The loggerhead marched off into the sea with his enemy and the last seen of the bear was the feeble kicking of his hind legs. Next day his body was washed ashore, cut into a dozen pieces. —New York Herald.

Can An Auto Prance?

Can an automobile prance?—or is it in this one respect inferior to the horse? A few days ago a handy little truck was navigating Spring street, Jeffersonville, which is rather rough because the war delayed repairs. It was loaded with long boards which projected far behind and practically balanced the truck on the rear axle. When holes in the street were struck the front wheels reared up so violently that the chauffeur, or driver, was catapulted into the air. He then got down and "led" his truck which did not prance unless running at least five miles an hour. Had he "let'er out" she would certainly have set on her tail. —Indianapolis News.

Ideal Bed for Invalids.

In view of the elaborate care with which most details of sick nursing have been worked out, it is more than a little curious that the maintenance of the patient's warmth in bed should have been left so long to the precocious ministry of the hot-water bottle. At the Treloar Cripples' hospital, Alton, England, two wards are now supplied with electric mattresses, which have proved both safe and convenient in practice, even when a child is the occupant of the bed. The mattress is differentially heated, and the heating element is so disposed that the maximum warmth is generated at the foot end, less in the middle and none at all at the head end.

More Food From Irrigation.

Prospects throughout the western reclamation belt indicate that the food production records of 1917 and 1918 will probably be eclipsed by those of the current season. Prices of essential foodstuffs are high enough to make it attractive and profitable for farmers to produce on a big scale. Reports indicate the labor supply is abundant and good, although demanding high pay. Credits are not cramped, with the consequence that native farmers are not handicapped in their operations. This is why it looks like a boom year for the rubber-boot farmers of the far West.

America's Immortals

Most striking instances of gallantry for which the Distinguished Service Cross has been awarded

Among the thousands of American soldiers who were awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for conspicuous bravery on the field of battle in France, there were a few whose feats were of such an unusual character as to stand out above the others. General Pershing's staff has selected a number of these most notable cases of bravery on the part of the fighting Americans, and a few of them are given below. They present only a few of the thousands of acts of heroism that are given recognition in the official records of the war department.

OSCAR F. MILLER, Major, 361st Infantry.

Maj. Miller received the Distinguished Service Cross for conspicuous gallantry in action near Gesnes, France, September 28, 1918. After two days of intense physical and mental strain, during which Maj. Miller had led his battalion in the front line of the advance, through the forest of Argonne, the enemy was met in a prepared position south of Gesnes. Though almost exhausted, he energetically reorganized his battalion and ordered an attack. Upon reaching open ground, the advancing line began to waver in the face of machine gun fire from the front and flanks and direct artillery fire. Personally leading his command group forward between his front line companies, Maj. Miller inspired his men by his personal courage and they again pressed on toward the hostile position. As this officer led the renewed attack he was shot in the right leg, but he nevertheless staggered forward at the head of his command. Soon afterward he was again shot in the right arm, but he continued the charge, personally cheering his troops on through the heavy machine gun fire. Just before the objective was reached he received a wound in the abdomen, which forced him to the ground, but he continued to urge his men on, telling them to push on to the next ridge and leave him where he lay. He died from his wounds a few days later. Maj. Miller's widow lives at 1727 West Fifty-first street, Los Angeles, Cal.

HENRY G. COSTON, Private, Company, M, 15th Infantry.

Conspicuous gallantry resulting in wounds which caused his death won the Distinguished Service Cross for Private Coston. Near Bois de Consenvoye, France, October 8, 1918, when the advance of his platoon had been held up by machine gun fire, and a request was made for an automatic rifle team to charge the nest, Private Coston was the first to volunteer. Going forward with his team under terrific fire of enemy artillery, machine guns and trench mortars, Private Coston continued to advance after all his comrades had become casualties and he himself had received serious wounds. He operated his gun until he collapsed, but his act resulted in the capture of about 100 prisoners and several machine guns. He died shortly after from the effects of his wounds. Private Coston's widow lives at 615 Mason avenue, Cape Charles, Va.

JESSE N. FUNK, Private, First Class, Co. L, 354th Infantry.

Private Funk received the Distinguished Service Cross for conspicuous gallantry in action near Bois de Bantheville, France, October 31, 1918. Learning that two daylight patrols had been caught out in No Man's Land and were unable to return, Private Funk and another stretcher bearer, upon their own initiative, made two trips five hundred yards beyond our lines, under constant machine gun fire and rescued two wounded officers. His father, Martin Funk, lives in Calhan, Colo.

JOSEPH A. BUFFALO, Private, Company F, 258th Infantry.

Private Buffalo, who lives with his mother, Mrs. Pearl E. Buffalo, at Boxby, Okla., was decorated for extraordinary heroism in action near Fey-en-Hays, France, September 12, 1918. Although he was seriously wounded early in the fight, Private Buffalo remained in the fight throughout the day, leading small parties of men against machine gun emplacements, killing two of the enemy himself and refusing to be evacuated until late at night, unable to fight further.

CLIFFORD E. MELLE, Private, Company A, 104th Infantry.

Disregard of his own safety in an effort to save his comrades won the Distinguished Service Cross for Private Melle. The act was performed in the Bois Haumont, France, October 15, 1918. Private Melle, an officer, and eight other soldiers, were surrounded by the enemy in a shell hole, into which an enemy grenade was thrown, landing directly in the midst of the group. Disregarding his own safety, this soldier seized the grenade and attempted to throw it out, but it exploded in his hand just as he succeeded in getting it above the level of the ground. His prompt action saved the lives of the men in the shell hole, but he was severely wounded. Private Melle lives with his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Melle, 28 Worcester street, Worcester, Mass.

PARKER C. DUNN, Private, First Class, 1st Battalion, 312th Infantry.

Private Dunn (deceased) was decorated for conspicuous gallantry in action near Grande-Prie, France, October 23, 1918. When his battalion commander found it necessary to send a message to a company in the attacking line and hesitated to order a runner to make the trip because of the extreme danger involved, Private Dunn, a member of the intelligence section, volunteered for the mission. After advancing but a short distance across a field swept by artillery and machine gun fire he was wounded a second time. Still undaunted, he persistently attempted to carry out his mission until he was killed by a machine gun bullet before reaching the advanced line. He lived in Albany, N. Y.

ALEXANDER R. SKINKER, Captain, 138th Infantry.

Capt. Alexander R. Skinker (deceased) was decorated for conspicuous gallantry in action at Cheppy, France, September 26, 1918. Unwilling to sacrifice his men when his company was held up by terrific machine gun fire from iron pill boxes in the Hindenburg line, Captain Skinker personally led an automatic rifleman and a carrier in an attack on the machine guns. The carrier was killed instantly, but Captain Skinker seized the ammunition and continued through an opening in the barbed wire, feeding the automatic rifle until he was killed, too. His widow lives at 646 Elmwood avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

PATRICK GARRITY, Private, Company C, 354th Infantry.

Private Garrity was decorated for conspicuous bravery in action near Remonville, France, November 1, 1918. When his company was advancing across an open field an enemy machine gun opened fire upon it from the left front. Private Garrity and two other soldiers being on that flank of the company, immediately advanced upon it. His two comrades were shot down, but Private Garrity advanced alone at a run; and with his bayonet drove the three Germans from their guns into a nearby dugout, capturing them and the guns. Private Garrity's home address is 3741 Kenmore avenue, Chicago, Ill.

ROBERT L. BLACKWELL, Private, Co. K, 119th Infantry.

Robert L. Blackwell (deceased) was decorated for conspicuous gallantry in action near St. Souplet, France, October 11, 1918. When his platoon was almost surrounded by the enemy and his platoon commander asked for volunteers to carry a message calling for reinforcements, Private Blackwell volunteered for this mission, well knowing the extreme danger connected with it. In attempting to get through the heavy shell and machine gun fire this gallant soldier was killed. The address of his father is James B. Blackwell, R. F. D. No. 2, Hindles, N. C.

CLAYTON K. SLACK, Private, Company D, 124th M. G. B.

Private Slack received the Distinguished Service Cross for conspicuous intrepidity in action near Consenvoye, France, October 8, 1918. Observing German soldiers under cover fifty yards away on the left flank, Private Slack, upon his own initiative, rushed them with his rifle, and single-handedly captured ten prisoners and two heavy machine guns, thus saving his company and neighboring organizations from heavy casualties. His home is with his mother, Mrs. Jennie Mae Slack, Lamson, Wis.

HOWARD E. MADSEN, Sergeant, Co. D, 115th Infantry.

Sergeant Madsen was decorated for conspicuous gallantry in action at Bois-de-Consenvoye, France, October 22, 1918. When the platoon which he was commanding was held up by an enemy machine gun nest, Sergeant Madsen, taking an armful of grenades, advanced alone over ground swept by machine gun fire, put the machine gun out of action, routed the enemy and permitted the platoon to advance without casualties. His mother, Mrs. Mary V. Madsen, lives in Baltimore, Md.

Chicken on a Jag.

A chicken owned by a woman living near Jeffersonville, Ind., got on a jag a day or two ago but it was the owner's fault, the chicken might plead. She had some whisky put away, used on physician's prescription for her heart. The chicken was sick and she diagnosed the case as heart trouble so thought she would try the same remedy. She gave it "the tiniest drop," but the chicken did not need much. Neighbors say they are satisfied the chicken was cured, but it immediately began a furious war dance, exemplified the different steps of all the different redskin tribes, passed from these to the waltz, two-step, one-step and other dances not yet invented, and according to the faithful narrator tried to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner," but this is probably an exaggeration, even if not actually untrue.

BEING A GOOD MOTHER

By MRS. ISABEL S. WALLACE. The education of young girls should prepare them for the greatest work in the world—wifehood and motherhood, and I wish they could all have courses in home-making, domestic science and kindergarten training.

My training as a kindergarten taught me many things, among them keeping strictly to a schedule; so my baby was fed, bathed and put to bed regularly. Habit is formed early in life, and can help to make or mar character, depending on whether habits are good or bad. This carrying out of a regular schedule was not always easy, for it meant sacrifice of many pleasures. But I wanted to be a good mother first of all, and I was rewarded by having a happy, good baby. Even now at six years old there is no fuss at nap time or bedtime. One of the things taught unconsciously in the kindergarten is regularity and promptness, and these can be taught in the home just as well.

Long before baby could talk she knew the little play for the fingers, "Here's a ball for baby."

Here's a ball for baby,
Big and soft and round!
Here is baby's hammer—
O, how he can pound!
Here is baby's music—
Clapping, clapping so!
Here are baby's soldiers,
Standing in a row!
Here's baby's trumpet,
Toot-toot-too, too-too!
Here's the way that baby
Here's at "peek-a-boo!"
Here's a big umbrella—
Keep the baby dry!
Here's the baby's cradle—
Rock-a-baby by!

—Emilie Poulsen.

The ball is made with the two hands doubled together; the hammer by doubling up the hands and pounding, one on top of the other. Baby's soldiers are made by holding all the fingers up straight. The hands are clasped together for the music, and doubled up, one in front of the other for a trumpet. For peekaboo the fingers are spread in front of the eyes so that baby can see between them. The umbrella is made by placing the palm of one hand on the index finger of the other and the cradle by putting the two hands together, inside of the palms touching and outer sides open.

Baby Tries to Imitate.

As I said the words of this little play and made the motions, baby would try to make the motions, too. She also knew "Five Little Squirrels," "Good Mother Hen" and "Little Squirrel Living Here." Of course, she could not play them perfectly, but she loved them and wanted me to play them for her over and over.

Baby also loved music and even when very tiny would stop crying to listen to soft music. She has always loved stories also. First we took up "Mother Goose Rhymes." I would repeat them over and over to baby as I sat sewing and she played on the floor, and before she was two years old she knew a great many of them. She also knew the words of several little songs, such as "Rock-a-bye Baby." It was enchanting to hear her say them in her sweet baby way. I never actually taught her the songs, however, simply singing them over and over again.

Baby played with two other little girls from the age of three until over four. One was younger and the other older than she. The two little girls did not have much home training, as their mother was a society woman and left the children to the care of a maid. They almost lived at our house. When the children grew quarrelsome, I usually suggested a party. The little table and chairs were gayly set on the piazza, weather permitting, and milk, Graham biscuits and dates were served or grape juice and arrowroot biscuit. Sometimes an apple or an orange was carefully prepared for the occasion. Such a party always stopped the quarreling. Sitting down rested them and eating quieted them. Then after they had finished I left my work and told them a story. Oh, how eager their little faces were!

Telling Stories.

Both of our little visitors were story hungry. Their mother said she could not tell stories. By reading a story over several times and getting its meaning and spirit, anyone can tell a story. Don't be afraid to put expression into your voice and face. No stories should be told which may frighten a child.

Then there are pictures. Good pictures and picture books are very necessary for children. One or two pictures that are worth while are better than many poor ones. Since babyhood my little girl has known and loved pictures. She learned nearly all of the animals in that way. She has also learned how to handle a valuable book and now she can be trusted to go to the bookcase and take out and replace a book after looking at the pictures, and asking about them. Good pictures are an education to all children and they love them.

In kindergarten children play with blocks, among other things, at first with the simplest kind, then with more complicated and larger sets. They are directed and taught how and what to build, and it trains the eyes and hands, teaching accuracy and construction.

ROYALTY IN JAVA

Pomp and Majesty Always Accompany Sultan.

Gold Umbrellas an Indispensable Adjunct of Procession With Which Ruler Dazzles the Eyes of His Faithful Subjects.

The most cherished batik day in my memory was the day we went to see the palace of the sultan of Djokjakarta, who has an establishment of 15,000 wives, children, grandchildren, soldiers and servants. An old Dutch official showed us everything except the old sultan himself. A gold umbrella, the insignia of Javanese royalty, always accompanies the sultan and his family wherever they go. On state occasions many gold umbrellas are carried behind the sultan or held over him by his maids of honor, who live in one of the shedlike entrances to the private apartments of the sultan.

These maids of honor, to whom we talked through an interpreter, were handsomely dressed in the finest batik sarongs and wore glittering jewels on their bare necks. No one can be admitted to the honorable post of maid of honor until she has reached the secure age of 70 years, and those we saw, to judge by their wrinkled faces and bony shoulders, must have held the position from twenty to forty years. The royal batik workers in the palace also are old hags, so that there may be no grounds for jealousy on the part of the sultan's 300-odd wives. The soldiers guarding the entrance to two different courtyards were as fine-looking men physically as one might see in Java, in spite of their perfect comic-opera uniforms.

They seemed taller than they actually were, because each of them wore a black fez tall as a chimney-pot and held himself as straight as a ramrod, as he marched across the plaza with slow, majestic step, which was not unlike the ritualistic walk of a high church acolyte or a stately Shinto priest. The soldiers as a rule wear nothing above the waist, but, in deference to the "cool" season, perhaps (the temperature had dropped to only 95 degrees or so) they were, when I saw them, wearing blue and black jerseys with broad stripes running around their muscular torsos.

Their brown batik sarongs were not trimly and tightly folded about the waist, as most Javanese wear them, but were bunched up in a fantastic way like a huge bustle or pannier over one hip, to allow them, I inferred, to get at the kris, which was always worn on the tucked-up side. Their feet were bare, yet I noted that several of them were wearing puttees above their shoeless feet. When on guard at the entrance they do not stand as our sentries do, but squat in Javanese style or sit cross-legged in semi-Turkish fashion. Their officers, rich young noblemen, were obviously elegant dandies, who disported with an indescribable grace and air the most wonderful cream and chestnut batik sarongs. —Asia Magazine.

China and the Y. M. C. A.

That the "Y" but of war-time days in France is a good thing which should be preserved and copied in China is the decision arrived at at a conference of some 60 Chinese Y. M. C. A. secretaries who were appointed to work among the hundreds of thousands of Chinese coolies employed as laborers in France. It was the first time that any of them had come in contact with the work of the association and they have been so impressed they have decided to carry on the organization work which now reaches chiefly the higher classes, among the coolies and others. China was well represented at the conference. Delegates came from widely separated parts of the republic, such as Manchuria, Shantung, Kiangsoo, Chihli, Hupeh and many other places.

Work for Business Farming.

A large number of Montana farm bureau members have organized a state farm management association and will offer over $300 in cash prizes for the advancement of this type of work. There will be a prize of $100 for the best kept and most accurate farmer's account book, another $100 for the best organized farm as shown by the account book, and a $100 trophy as sweepstakes will be offered as a combination prize. A $25 shield will be awarded to the county or farm management club showing the most results accomplished from keeping and studying record books in groups. These prizes have been donated by commercial firms doing a state-wide business, all of whom recognize the importance of this work.

Taught to Use Both Eyes.

The royal air force of England has instituted an eye drill that has made many splendid pilots out of men who otherwise would have been useless. It was discovered that a large percentage of men only use one eye at a time, and in the early days pilots were not tested for eye balance. Many men were then passed into the air service who could never land correctly. When these deficiencies were discovered a school was formed and under an eye specialist twice a day airmen undergoing the cure were paraded for eye drill and taught how to use both their eyes at the same time. The result was that 95 per cent of the men who would have been bad pilots became good ones in a little while.

MET ROOSEVELT IN THE MUD

At the White House Pershing Reminded Former Rough Rider of Their Cuban Encounter.

On November 24, 1903, William Loeb, Jr., secretary to President Roosevelt, wrote the secretary of war: "The president would like to know when Captain Pershing is coming to Washington." (Pershing had just returned from the Moro campaign.) The answer was returned: "Captain Pershing is now in Washington and has an office in the war department." The captain was invited to take luncheon at the White House. "Captain Pershing," said the president, "when the party was seated at table, 'did I meet you in the Santiago campaign?'"

"Yes, Mr. President, just once." "When was that? What did I say?" "Since there are ladies here, I can't repeat just what you said, Mr. President."

There was a general laugh, in which Roosevelt joined.

"Tell me the circumstances, then." "Why, I had gone back with a mule team to Siboney, to get supplies for the men. The night was pitch black and it was raining torrents. The road was a streak of mud. On the way back to the front, I heard noise and confusion ahead. I knew it was a mixed mule team. An officer in the uniform of a Rough Rider was trying to get the mules out of the mud, and his remarks, as I said a moment ago, should not be quoted before ladies. I suggested that the best thing to do was to take my mules and pull your wagon out, and then your mules got out. This was done and we saluted and parted."

"Well," said Roosevelt, "if there ever was a time when a man would be justified in using bad language, it would be in the middle of a rainy night, with his mules down in the mud and his wagon loaded with things soldiers at the front needed." —George MacAdam, in World's Work.

Pushing Own-a-Cow Campaign.

Bankers are cooperating with the agricultural agent in Jefferson Davis parish, La., in an "own-a-cow" campaign. The bankers are financing the farmers, and the agent is preaching the gospel of better live stock. In the fall of 1918 he bought five carloads, 100 head, including 5 registered bulls, of pure-bred Holsteins from Wisconsin. These dairy animals were widely distributed among the farmers, one or two head going to each owner. So pleased have been the owners of these pure breeds that the agent is already taking orders from others. It is probable that several additional carloads of such cattle will be purchased next fall, the agent reports, together with about 200 pure-bred calves for members of the boy's calf club. The bankers and the school board will back the proposition to help the boys get a start in cattle raising.

They Used Horse Sense.

A team of horses, owned by a firm in Indianapolis decided to move without their driver. The horses, drawing a drag, started slowly. They were just behind the white line at Meridian and Maryland streets when the traffic man turned the semaphore. The "stop" sign faced the horses and they stopped. In a few minutes the traffic man turned the semaphore and the "go" sign faced the horses. They went. As the team stopped at the "stop" sign and started at the "go" sign the traffic man failed to notice they were driverless. The horses slowly walked to the next corner and again the "stop" sign was up. The horses stopped. And this is the way the driver caught them when he did.

Canadian Statesmen.

The prime ministers of the Dominion of Canada, beginning in 1867, have been Sir John Macdonald, Alexander Mackenzie, then Sir John Macdonald again, Sir J. J. C. Abbott, Sir John Thompson, Sir McKenzie Powell, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Wilfred Laurier and Sir Robert Borden. The governors-general of Canada have been Viscount Monck, from 1867 to 1890; Lord Ligon, 1890-1892; earl of Dufferin, 1892-1897; marquis of Lorne, 1897-1898; marquis of Lansdowne, 1898-1898; earl of Derby, 1898-1903; earl of Aberdeen, 1903-1908; earl of Minto, 1908-1904; duke of Connaught, 1911-1916, and the duke of Devonshire.

Expert Testimony.

Heard in court during the cross-examination of a witness:

Q.—State what it makes the coconut plantation poor in fruit production?

A.—Anything which is not favorable to coconut trees.

Q.—What winds are favorable and what are unfavorable to coconut plantations?

A.—The wind which does not give any harm to the coconut trees is favorable, and those winds which give harm to the bearing of fruits and growing thereof is unfavorable. —Guam News Letter.

Suitably Dressed.

While in the army I was accompanied by a sergeant that, to hear him talk, was one of the brainiest men Uncle Sam had hired. On a certain Sunday, in a certain town, a young woman we met on the street asked us if we cared to go to her house and have a cup of coffee. On arriving we were introduced to her mother, who made excuses in regard to her appearance. She remarked: "I'll go and put on the percolator." The sergeant said: "Oh, you look all right the way you are." —Chicago Tribune.

Rev. D. F. Sellards was a business visitor to Artesia Wednesday, motoring up and back the same day.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Kindel returned Wednesday night from a short visit to relatives in Lovington.

George McCollum, one of the McCollum Brothers, flockmasters, from the Queen section, was in town yesterday.

Willard Keen, roadmaster, for this division of the Santa Fe, was in Roswell the first of the week, on business.

Mrs. R. L. Halley made a trip to Roswell this week and was registered at the Gilkerson Hotel in that city Tuesday.

Rev. Buren Sparks will move his family to Artesia the first of next week, where they own their home and will likely remain for the future.

Jack Hines left Tuesday for Roswell where he goes to a temporary position in a drug store, and, after remaining there a couple of weeks, will leave for San Francisco, where he will be located permanently.

Prof. F. M. Hatfield was up from his home at Malaga yesterday transacting business. Mr. Hatfield is farming this summer, but has been chosen principal of the Malaga schools for the coming year.

Mrs. R. R. Carter and children returned Monday from Pine Lodge, where they made a short visit, and went to Roswell Wednesday to visit over the celebration, after which they will return and spend a few days here before returning to their home at Carlsbad.—Hagerman Messenger.

Tuesday afternoon four truck loads of lively boys hit Hope and for a time it looked like school was again in session. The boys numbered 40, and were in charge of Scoutmaster Will Purdy who is conducting them to Cloudcroft to attend the National Boy Scouts Convention now in session.—Hope Press.

Visitors from the lower valley to the county seat Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Harroun and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Williams and Master Benjamin Gerlach.

Louise Moore left Thursday of last week in company with Claribel Bray for Roswell, where they expect to visit for a fortnight. The girls write of the fine time they are having in that city.

If you want acreage in the heart of production on Dayton Hill, within two miles of the Illinois Producers well No. 2, see W. F. McIlvain at Carlsbad, as he has a tract of 50 acres which is one of the very few left for sale or lease.

Oscar Mercer, who was operated on for appendicitis at Eddy County hospital last week has taken to his home west of town the first of this week.

Art Moritz and Paul Collier, of the Moritz Paint Shop, were among the many who went to the soldiers and sailors blow-out at Artesia last Tuesday. Moritz represented the Navy and Collier the Army.

Mr. and Mrs. John Reed and children spent a couple of days in town this week from their home on Black river. Mrs. Reed says they have had nice rains on their ranch and their cattle are fat, but they could use more rain any time.

Carpenters have been building two hay sheds on the Geo. M. Cooke place west of town this week. The plot already has a large hay barn and the sheds are to provide additional storage for the Pecos Valley staple.

Mrs. Maggie Reed is confined to her bed at the Metropolitan hotel this week, under care of a physician, but is some better at this writing.

J. W. Tulk, Mrs. Tulk and Mrs. Thompson came in Monday from the Tulk ranch where the ladies had spent a couple of weeks.

Willoughby Hegler made a flying trip to town this week from his ranch at the point of the mountains, southwest.

Frank Davis came in Monday night from Cloudcroft where he accompanied his cousin, Ray Davis, over a week ago. Frank says everything is getting on fine at the big Boy Scout camp, that the Carlsbad boys are getting on nicely and that Ray Davis seems to be improving in health.

Mrs. Church and Davidson sisters of John T. Bolton, left for their home in Roswell last Tuesday night after several days spent at the bedside of their brother who is dangerously ill at Eddy County hospital.

A. R. Treat, a government cattle inspector, whose headquarters are in Roswell, came down from there the first of the week and will be here a fortnight or more in the interest of his work.

The Carlsbad baseball team again suffered defeat at the hands of Artesia team Tuesday afternoon, the score standing 9 to 8 in favor of Artesia. A return game is booked for the near future.

Sergt. Wickliffe is the recruiting officer in charge of hospital corps No. 16, now camped in the court house lawn, and they have come here from El Paso.

A. J. Crawford returned Monday from an auto trip through the northern part of the state. Mr. Crawford said he came through a terrific rain north of town, almost a cloudburst, with water all over the face of the earth. A heavy rain is reported the same day four miles west of town, which filled the gulches and water holes and did untold benefit to pastures and growing crops.

Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery and two children were in town the first of the week from the cement plant north, where Mr. Montgomery is employed and where they reside. They had a very sick baby and came to consult a physician. Later, the child made such improvement that they were able to return to their home.

The game of baseball between Artesia and Carlsbad played on the diamond at Fireman's Park last Sunday, resulted in a victory for the visitors by a score of 6 to 3. Quite a goodly number accompanied the team from the "plenty-of-water" town, and our townspeople also turned out well. A heavy sand storm which came at the close of the game detracted somewhat from the pleasure of the occasion.

The twin sisters of Mrs. Annie Weeks, the Misses Jessie and Carrie Vaughn, accompanied their sister from Los Angeles, to El Paso, where they remained while Mrs. Weeks came on home to prepare for their arrival. Another sister, Miss Mary, accompanied the twins from El Paso and will spend her vacation in Carlsbad, the trio arriving Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Alinger chaperoned their respective Sunday School classes on a camping trip Tuesday. Arrangements had been made several days previous and when the rain threatened on Tuesday afternoon, juvenile spirits fell accordingly. However, the skies soon cleared up and camp was made near the Worsell place, an ideal camping spot. Each one took bacon, eggs and bread enough for two meals, and the cooking over the camp fire was an enjoyable part of the outing. Bedding was carried out in a truck and two cars transported the boys and girls, and a freezer of cream was also taken along as an especial treat. The children played games until a late hour and were up early Wednesday morning preparing for the homeward trip. Lee Middleton took his car out to bring the boys home and upon the annual camping trip of these two classes was only a memory.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Major Amberson had made a fortune in 1873 when other people were losing fortunes, and the magnificence of the Ambersons began then. Major Amberson laid out a 200-acre "development," with roads and statuary, and in the center of a four-acre tract, on Amberson avenue, built for himself the most magnificent mansion the Midland City had ever seen.

CHAPTER II.

Another citizen said an eloquent thing about Miss Isabel Amberson's looks. This was Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster, the foremost literary authority and intellectual leader of the community—for both the daily newspapers thus described Mrs. Foster when she founded the Women's Tennyson club; and her word upon art, letters and the drama was accepted more at law than as opinion. Naturally when "Hazel Kirtle" finally reached town after its long triumph in larger places many people waited to hear what Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster thought of it before they felt warranted in expressing any estimate of the play. In fact, some of them waited in the lobby of the theater as they came out and formed an inquiring group about her. "I didn't see the play," she informed them.

"What! Why, we saw you, right in the middle of the fourth row!"

"Yes," she said, smiling, "but I was sitting just behind Isabel Amberson. I couldn't look at anything except her wavy brown hair and the wonderful back of her neck."

The ineligible young men of the town (they were all ineligible) were unable to content themselves with the view that had so charmed Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster; they spent their time struggling to keep Miss Amberson's face turned toward them. She turned it most often, observers said, toward two: one exclaiming in the general struggle by his sparkle, and the other by that winning if not winsome old trait, persistence. The sparkling gentleman "Ted" performed with her, and "Ted" confided to her with his bouquets—sonnets lacking neither music nor wit. He was generous, poor, well-dressed, and his amazing persuasiveness was one reason why he was always in debt. No one doubted that he would be able to persuade Isabel, but he unfortunately joined too merry a party one night, and during a moonlight serenade upon the lawn before the Amberson mansion, was easily identified from the windows as the person who stepped through the bushes and had to be assisted to a waiting carriage. One of Miss Amberson's brothers was among the serenaders, and when the party had dispersed remained propped against the front door in a state of helpless liveliness; the Major going down in a dressing gown and slippers to bring him in, and scolding mildly, while imperfectly concealing strong impulses to laughter. Miss Amberson also laughed at this brother the next day, but for the sister it was a different matter: she refused to see him when he called to apologize. "You seem to care a great deal about bass viol," he wrote her. "I promise never to break another." She made no response to the note, unless it was an answer, two weeks later, when her engagement was announced. She took the persistent one, Wilbur Minafer, no breaker of bass viol or of hearts, no serenade at all.

A few people, who always foresaw everything, claimed that they were not surprised, because though Wilbur Minafer might not be an Apollo, as it were, he was "a steady young business man and a good church goer," and Isabel Amberson was "pretty sensible—for such a showy girl." But the engagement astounded the young people, and most of their fathers and mothers too; and as a topic it supplanted literature at the next meeting of the "Women's Tennyson club."

"Wilbur Minafer!" a member cried, her infection seeming to imply that Wilbur's crime was explained by his surname. "Wilbur Minafer! It's the queerest thing I ever heard! To think of her taking Wilbur Minafer, just because a man any woman would like a thousand times better was a little wild one night at a serenade!"

"No, that wasn't her reason," said wise Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster. "If men only knew it—and it's a good thing they don't—a woman doesn't really care much about whether a man's wild or not, if it doesn't affect herself, and Isabel Amberson doesn't care a thing!"

"Mrs. Foster!"

"No, she doesn't. What she minds is his making a clown of himself in her front yard! It made her think he didn't care much about her. She's probably mistaken, but that's what she thinks, and it's too late for her to think anything else now, because she's going to be married right away—the invitations will be out next week. It'll be a big Amberson-style thing, raw oysters floating in scooped-out blocks of ice and a band from out of town—champagne, showy presents; a colossal present from the Major. Then Wilbur will take Isabel on the carefree little wedding trip he can manage, and she'll be a good wife to him, but they'll have the worst spoiled lot of children this town will ever see."

"How on earth do you make that out, Mrs. Foster?"

"She couldn't love Wilbur, could she?" Mrs. Foster demanded, with no challengers. "Well, it will all go to her children, and she'll ruin 'em!"

The prophetic proved to be mistaken in a single detail merely: except for that her foresight was accurate. The wedding was of Ambersonian magnificence, even to the floating oysters; and the Major's colossal present was a set of architect's designs for a house almost as elaborate and impressive as the mansion, the house to be built in Amberson addition by the Major.

At midnight the bride was still being toasted in champagne, though she had departed upon her wedding journey at ten. Four days later the pair had returned to town, with promptness seemed fairly to demonstrate that Wilbur had indeed taken Isabel upon the carefree little trip he could manage. According to every report she was from the start "a good wife to him," but here in a final detail the prophecy proved inaccurate. Wilbur and Isabel did not have children; they had only one.

"Only one," Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster admitted. "But I'd like to know if he isn't spoiled enough for a whole carload!"

Again she found none to challenge her.

At the age of nine George Amberson Minafer, the Major's one grandchild, was a princely terror, dreaded not only in Amberson addition but in many other quarters through which he galloped on his white pony. "It's better to get current printing than to wish you had."

"You Think You Own This Town!"

Golly, I guess you think you own this town!" an embittered laborer complained one day, as George rode the pony straight through a pile of sand the man was sleving. "I will when I grow up," the undisturbed child replied. "I guess my grandpa owns it now, you bet!" And the baffled workman, having no means to controvert what seemed a mere exaggeration of the facts, could only mutter, "Oh, pull down your vest!"

"Don't haf to! Doctor says it ain't healthy!" the boy returned promptly. "But I tell you what I'll do: I'll pull down my vest if you'll wipe off your chin!"

This was stock and stenell: the accustomed argot of street badinage of the period; and in such matters George was an expert. He had no vest to pull down; the incongruous fact was that a fringed sash girdled the juncture of his velvet blouse and breeches, for the Fauntleroy period had set in, and George's mother had so poor an eye for appropriate things, where George was concerned, that she dressed him according to the doctrine of that school in boy decoration. Not only did he wear a silk sash, and silk stockings and a broad lace collar with his little black velvet suit; he had long brown curls, and often came home with burns in them.

Except upon the surface (which was not his own work but his mother's) George bore no vivid resemblance to the fabulous little Cedric. The storied boy's famous "Lenn on me, grand-father," would have been difficult to imagine upon the lips of George. A month after his ninth birthday anniversary, when the Major gave him his pony, he had already become acquainted with the toughest boys in various distant parts of the town, and had convinced them that the toughness of a rich little boy with long curls might be considered in many respects superior to their own. He fought them, learning how to go bareback at a certain point in a fight, bursting into tears of anger, reaching for rocks, uttering wailed threats of murder, and attempting to fulfill them. Fights often led to intimacies, and he acquired the art of saying things more exciting than "Don't haf to!" and "Doctor says it ain't healthy!" Thus on a summer afternoon a strange boy, sitting bored upon the gatepost of the Rev. Malloch Smith, beheld George Amberson Minafer rapidly approaching on his white pony and was impelled by bitterness to shout: "Shoot the ole jackass! Look at the girly curls! Say, huh, where'd you steal your mother's ole ash!"

"Your sister stole it for me!" George instantly replied, checking the pony. "She stole it off our clo'esline an' gave it to me."

"You go get your hair cut!" said the stranger hotly. "Yah! I haven't got my sister!"

"I know you haven't at home," George responded. "I mean the one that's in jail."

"I dare you to get down off that pony!"

George jumped to the ground, and the other boy descended from the Rev. Mr. Smith's gatepost—but he descended inside the gate. "I dare you outside that gate," said George.

"Yah! I dare you half way here. I dare you—"

But these were luckless challenges, for George immediately vaulted the fence—and four minutes later Mrs. Malloch Smith, hearing strange noises, looked forth from a window; then screamed, and dashed for the pastor's study. Mr. Malloch Smith, that grime-bearded preacher, came to the front yard and found his visiting nephew being rapidly prepared by Master Minafer to serve as a principal figure in a pageant of massacre. It was with great physical difficulty that Mr. Smith managed to give his nephew a chance to escape into the house, for George was hard and quick, and in such matters remarkably intense; but the minister, after a grotesque tussle, got him separated from his opponent and shook him.

"You stop that, you!" George cried fiercely, and wrenched himself away. "I guess you don't know who I am!"

"Yes, I do know!" the angered Mr. Smith retorted. "I know who you are, and you're a disgrace to your mother! Your mother ought to be ashamed of herself to allow—"

"Shut up about my mother beta! ashamed of herself!"

Mr. Smith, exasperated, was unable to close the dialogue with dignity. "She ought to be ashamed," he repeated. "A woman that lets a bad boy like you—"

But George had reached his pony and mounted. Before setting off at his accustomed gallop he paused to interrupt the Rev. Malloch Smith again.

"Pull Down Your Vest, You Ole Billy-goat."

"You pull down your vest, you ole billygoat, you!" he shouted, distinctly. "Pull down your vest, wipe off your chin—an' go to h—!"

Such precocity is less unusual, even in children of the Rich, than most grown people imagine. However, it was a new experience for the Rev. Malloch Smith, and left him in a state of excitement. He at once wrote a note to George's mother, describing the crime according to his nephew's testimony, and the note reached Mrs. Minafer before George did. When he got home she read it to him sorrowfully.

"Dear Madam: Your son has caused a painful distress in my household. He made an unprovoked attack upon a little nephew of mine who is visiting in my household, insulted him by calling him vicious names and falsehoods, stating that ladies of his family were in jail. He then tried to make his pony kick him, and when the child, who is only eleven years old, while your son is much older and stronger, endeavored to avoid his indignities and withdraw quietly, he pursued him into the inclosure of my property and brutally assaulted him. When I appeared upon this scene he deliberately called insulting words to me, concluding with profanity, such as 'go to h—,' which was heard not only by myself but by my wife and the lady who lives next door. I trust such a state of undisciplined behavior may be remedied for the sake of the reputation for propriety, if nothing higher, of the family to which this unruly child belongs."

George had muttered various interjections, and as she concluded the reading he said:

"He's an ole liar!"

"George, you mustn't say 'liar.' Isn't this letter the truth?"

"Well," said George, "how ole am I?"

"Ten."

"Well, look how he says I'm older than a boy eleven years old."

"That's true," said Isabel. "He does. But isn't some of it true, George?"

George felt himself to be in a difficulty here, and he was silent.

"George, did you say what he says you did?"

"Which one?"

"Did you tell him to—to— Did you say, 'Go to h—'?"

George looked worried for a moment longer; then he brightened. "Listen here, mamma; grandpa wouldn't wipe his shoe on that ole story teller, would he?"

"George, you mustn't—"

"I mean: none of the Ambersons wouldn't have anything to do with him, would they? He doesn't even know you, does he, mamma?"

"That hasn't anything to do with it."

"Yes, it has! I mean: none of the Amberson family go to see him, and they never have him come in their house; they wouldn't ask him to, and probably wouldn't even let him."

"That isn't what we're talking about."

"I bet," said George emphatically, "I bet if he wanted to see any of 'em, he'd haf to go around to the side door!"

"No, dear, they—"

"Yes, they would, mamma! So what does it matter if I say somep'm to him he didn't like? That kind of people, I don't see why you can't say anything you want to to 'em!"

"No, George. And you haven't answered me whether you said that dreadful thing he says you did."

"Well—" said George. "Anyway, he said somep'm to me that made me mad." And upon this point he offered no further details; he would not explain to his mother that what had made him "mad" was Mr. Smith's hasty condemnation of herself: "Your mother ought to be ashamed," and "A woman that lets a bad boy like you—"

George did not even consider excusing himself by quoting these insolences.

Isabel stroked his head. "They were terrible words for you to use, dear. From his letter he doesn't seem a very tactful person, but—"

"He's just rickraff," said George.

"You mustn't say so," his mother gently agreed. "Where did you learn those bad words he speaks off? Where did you hear anyone use them?"

"Well, I've heard 'em several places. I guess Uncle George Amberson was the first I ever heard say 'em. Uncle George Amberson said 'em to papa once. Papa didn't like it, but Uncle George was just laughin' at papa, an' then he said 'em while he was laughin'."

"That was wrong of him," she said, but almost instinctively he detected the lack of conviction in her tone. It was Isabel's great failing that whatever an Amberson did seemed right to her, especially if the Amberson was either her brother George or her son George. "You must promise me," she said feebly, "never to use those bad words again."

"I promise not to," he said promptly—and he whispered an immediate codell under his breath: "Unless I get mad at somebody!" This satisfied a code according to which, in his own sincere belief, he never told lies.

"That's a good boy," she said, and he ran out to the yard, his punishment over.

As an Amberson he was already a public character, and the story of his adventure in the Rev. Malloch Smith's front yard became a town topic. Many people glanced at him with great distaste thereafter, when they chanced to encounter him, which meant nothing to George, because he innocently believed most grown people to be necessarily cross looking as a normal phenomenon resulting from the adult state; and he failed to comprehend (Continued On Next Page.)

that the distasteful glances had any personal bearing upon himself. If he had perceived such a bearing he would have been affected only so far, probably, as to mutter, "Riffraff!" Possibly he would have shouted it; and certainly most people believed a story that went round the town just after Mrs. Amberson's funeral, when George was eleven. George was reported to have differed with the undertaker about the seating of the family; his indignant voice had become audible: "Well, who is the most important person at my own grandmother's funeral?" And later he had projected his head from the window of the foremost mourners' carriage, as the undertaker happened to pass.

they were—who expressed themselves longingly: they did hope to live to see the day, they said, when that boy would get his come-uppance! They used that honest word, so much better than "deserts," and not until many years later to be more clumsily rendered as "what is coming to him.") Something was bound to take him down some day, and they only wanted to be there! But George heard nothing of this, and the yearners for his taking down went unsatisfied, while their yearning grew the greater as the happy day of fulfillment was longer and longer postponed.

CHAPTER III.

Until he reached the age of twelve George's education was a domestic process; tutors came to the house, and those citizens who yearned for his taking down often said: "Just wait till he has to go to public school; then he'll get it!" But at twelve George was sent to a private school in the town, and there came from this small and independent institution no report, or even rumor, of George's getting anything that he was thought to deserve; therefore the yearning still persisted, though growing still with feeding upon itself.

The yearners were still yearning when George at sixteen was sent away to a great "prep school." "Now," they said brightly, "he'll get it!" He'd find himself among boys just as important in their home town as he is, and they'll knock the stuffing out of him when he puts on his airs with them! Oh, but that would be worth something to see! They were mistaken, it appeared, for when George returned a few months later he still seemed to have the same stuffing. He had been deported by the authorities, the offense being stated as "insolence and profanity." In fact, he had given the principal of the school instructions almost identical with those formerly objected to by the Rev. Malloch Smith.

But he had not got his come-uppance, and those who counted upon it were embittered by his appearance upon the downtown streets driving a dog-cart at a criminal speed, making pedestrians retreat from the crossings, and behaving himself as if he "owned the earth."

When Mr. George Amberson Minner came home for the holidays at Christmastide in his sophomore year, probably no great change had taken place inside him, but his exterior was visibly altered. Nothing about him encouraged any hope that he had received his come-uppance; on the contrary, the yearners for that stroke of justice must yearn even more itchingly: the gilded youth's manner had become polite, but his politeness was of a kind which democratic people found hard to bear.

Cards were out for a ball in his honor, and this pageant of the tenantry was held in the ballroom of the Amberson mansion the night after his arrival. It was, as Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster said of Isabel's wedding, "a big Amberson-style thing." All "old citizens" recognized as gentry received cards, and of course so did their dancing descendants.

The orchestra and the caterer were brought from away, in the Amberson manner, though this was really a gesture of ostentation—for servants of gayety as proficient as these importations were nowadays to be found in the town. It was the last of the great, long-remembered dances that "everybody talked about"—there were getting to be so many people in town that no later than the next year there were too many for "everybody" to hear of even such a ball as the Ambersons'.

George, white-gloved, with a garb in his buttonhole, stood with his mother and the Major, embowered in the big red-and-gold drawing room downstairs, to "receive" the guests; and, standing thus together, the trio offered a picturesque example of good looks persistent through three generations. The Major, his daughter and his grandson were of a type all Amberson: tall, straight and regular, with dark eyes, short noses, good chins; and the grandfather's expression, no less than the grandson's, was one of faintly amused condescension. There was a difference, however. The grandson's unlined young face had nothing to offer except this condescension; the grandfather's had other things to say. It was a handsome, worldly old face, conscious of its importance, but persuasive rather than arrogant, and not without tokens of sufferings withstood. The Major's short white hair was parted in the middle, like his grandson's, and in all he stood as briskly equipped to the fashion as the exquisite young George.

Isabel, standing between her father and her son, caused a vague amazement in the mind of the latter. Her age, just under forty, was for George a thought of something as remote as the moons of Jupiter; he could not possibly have conceived such an age ever coming to be his own: five years was the limit of his thinking in time. Five years ago he had been a child not yet fourteen; and those five years were an abyss. Five years hence he would be almost twenty-four; what the girls he knew called "one of the older men." He could imagine himself at twenty-four, but beyond that his powers staggered and refused the task. He saw little essential difference between thirty-eight and eighty-eight, and his mother was to him not a woman but wholly a mother. The woman, Isabel, was a stranger to her son; as completely a stranger as if he had never in his life seen her or heard her voice. And it was tonight, while he stood with her, "receiving," that he caught a disquieting glimpse of this stranger whom he thus fleetingly encountered for the first time.

Youth cannot imagine romance apart from youth. That is why the roles of the heroes and heroines of plays are given by the managers to the most youthful actors they can find among the competent. Both middle-aged people and young people enjoy a play about young lovers; but only middle-aged people will tolerate a play about middle-aged lovers; young people will not come to see such a play, because for them middle-aged lovers are a joke—not a very funny one.

Therefore, to bring both the middle-aged people and the young people into his house the manager makes his romance as young as he can. Youth will indeed be served, and its profound instinct is to be not only scornfully amused but vaguely angered by middle-aged romance. So, standing beside his mother, George was disturbed by a sudden impression, coming upon him out of nowhere, so far as he could detect, that her eyes were brilliant, that she was graceful and youthful—in a word that she was comically lovely.

He had one of those curious moments that seem to have neither a cause nor any connection with actual things. There was nothing in either her looks or her manner to explain George's uncomfortable feeling; and yet it increased, becoming suddenly a vague resentment, as if she had done something unmotherly to him.

The fantastic moment passed; and even while it lasted he was doing his duty, greeting two pretty girls with whom he had grown up, as people say, and warmly assuring them that he remembered them very well—an assurance which might have surprised them "in anybody but George Minner!" It seemed unnecessary, since he had spent many hours with them no longer than the preceding August. They had with them their parents and an uncle from out of town; and George negligently gave the parents the same assurance he had given the daughters, but murmured another form of greeting to the out-of-town uncle, whom he had never seen before. This person George absently took note of as a "queer-looking duck." Undergraduates had not yet adopted "bird." It was a period previous to that in which a sophomore would have thought of the Sharon girls' uncle as a "queer-looking bird," or, perhaps, a "funny-face bird." In George's time every human male was to be defined at pleasure as a "duck," but "duck" was not spoken with admiring affection, as in its former feminine use to signify a "dear"—on the contrary, "duck" implied the speaker's personal detachment and humorous superiority. An indifferent amusement was what George felt when his mother, with a gentle emphasis, interrupted his interchange of courtesies with the nieces to present him to the queer-looking duck, their uncle. This emphasis of Isabel's, though slight, enabled George to perceive that she considered the queer-looking duck a person of some importance; but it was far from enabling him to understand why. The duck parted his thick and longish black hair on the side; his tie was a forgetful-looking thing, and his coat, though it fitted a good-enough middle-aged figure, no product of this year, or of last year either. Observing only his unfashionable hair, his preoccupied tie and his old coat, the Olympic George set him down as a queer-looking duck, and having thus completed his portrait took no interest in him.

The Sharon girls passed on, taking the queer-looking duck with them, and George became pink with mortification as his mother called his attention to a white-bearded guest waiting to shake his hand. This was George's great-uncle, old John Minner: it was old John's boast that in spite of his connection by marriage with the Ambersons he never had worn and never would wear a swaller-tail coat. Members of his family had exerted their influence uselessly—at eighty-nine conservative people seldom form radical new habits, and old John wore his "Sunday suit" of black broadcloth to the Amberson ball. The coat was square, with skirts to the knees; old John called it a "Prince Albert" and was well enough pleased with it, but his great-nephew considered it the next thing to an insult.

The large room had filled, and so had the broad hall and the rooms on the other side of the hall, where there were tables for whist. The imported orchestra waited in the ballroom on the third floor, but a local harp, cello, violin and flute were playing airs from "The Fencing Master" in the hall, and people were shouting over the music. Old John Minner's voice was louder and more penetrating than any other, because he had been troubled with deafness for twenty-five years, heard his own voice but faintly, and liked to hear it. "Smell o' flowers like this always puts me in mind o' funerals," he kept telling his niece, Fanny Minner, who was with him; and he seemed to get a great deal of satisfaction out of this reminder. His tremulous yet strident voice cut through the voluminous sound that filled the room, and he was heard everywhere.

Presently George's mortification was increased to hear this sawmill droning harshly from the midst of the thickening crowd: "Ain't the d'ckin' broke out yet, Fanny? Hoopla! Le's push through and go see the young women folks crack their heels! Start the circus! Hoopsey-daisy!" Miss Fanny Minner, in charge of the lively yet stern, was almost as distressed as his stephen George, but she did her duty and managed to get old John through the press and out to the broad stairway, which numbers of young people were now ascending to the ballroom. George began to recover from the degradation into which this relic of early settler days had dragged him. What restored him completely was a dark-eyed little beauty of nineteen, very knowing in lustrous blue and jet; at sight of this dashing advent in the line of guests before him George was fully an Amberson again.

"Remember you very well indeed!" he said, his graciousness more earnest than any he had heretofore displayed. Isabel heard him and laughed.

"But you don't, George!" she said.

"You don't remember her yet, though of course you will! Miss Morgan is from out of town, and I'm afraid this is the first time you've ever seen her."

"You Don't Remember Her Yet, Though of Course You Will."

You might take her up to the dancing; I think you've pretty well done your duty here."

"Be d'lighted," George responded formally, and offered his arm, not with a flourish, certainly, but with an impressiveness inspired partly by the appearance of the person to whom he offered it, partly by his being the hero of this fete, and partly by his youthfulness—for when manners are new they are apt to be elaborate. The little beauty trusted her gloved fingers to his coat-sleeve, and they moved away together.

As he conducted Miss Morgan through the hall toward the stairway they passed the open double doors of a cardroom, where some squadrons of older people were preparing for action, and, leaning gracefully upon the mantelpiece of this room, a tall man, handsome, high-mannered and sparklingly point-device, held laughing converse with that queer-looking duck, the Sharon girls' uncle. The tall gentleman waved a gracious salutation to George, and Miss Morgan's curiosity was stirred. "Who is that?"

"I didn't catch his name when my mother presented him to me," said

George. "You mean the queer-looking duck."

"I mean the aristocratic duck."

"That's my Uncle George. Honorable George Amberson. I thought everybody knew him."

"He looks as though everybody ought to know him," she said. "It seems to run in your family."

If she had any sly intention it skipped over George harmlessly. "Well, of course, I suppose most everybody does," he admitted—"out in this part of the country especially! Besides Uncle George is in congress; the family like to have someone there."

"Why?"

"Well, it's sort of a good thing in one way. For instance, Uncle Sydney Amberson and his wife, Aunt Amelia, they haven't much of anything to do with themselves—get bored to death around here, of course. Well, probably Uncle George'll have Uncle Sydney appointed minister or ambassador or something like that, to Russia or Italy or somewhere, and that'll make it pleasant when any of the rest of the family go travelling, or things like that. I expect to do a good deal of travelling myself when I get out of college."

Sydney was an Amberson exaggerated—more pompous than gracious; too portly, flushed, starched to a shine, his stately jaw furnished with an Edward the Seventh beard. Amelia, likewise full-bodied, showed glittering blond hair exuberantly dressed; a pink, fat face cold under a white-hot glare; a solid, cold bosom under a white-hot necklace; great, cold, gloved arms, and the rest of her beautifully upholstered. As George ascended the broad stairway they were precisely the aunt and uncle he was most pleased to point out to a girl from out of town, as his appurtenances in the way of relatives. At sight of them the grandeur of the Amberson family was instantly conspicuous as a permanent thing: it was impossible to doubt that the Ambersons were intrenched, in their nobility and riches, behind polished and glittering barriers which were as solid as they were brilliant, and would last.

LAKEWOOD LOCALS.

The Illinois Producing & Refining Company have been working on their Lakewood Well No. 1 all of this week, and the people here are on the quiver of expectancy, listening for the rumble and roar of the big pusher when the liquid gold is finally released from its underground moorings. That we have the oil is an indisputable fact, and that this company means to get it is evidenced by their backing, their confidence, their persistence, and by their indefatigable efforts. Lakewood is destined to become a great oil center in the near future. Come to Lakewood.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pritchard and daughter, Miss Ola Mae, of Little Rock, Arkansas, arrived here Sunday, Mrs. Pritchard and Miss Ola Mae to spend the summer; Mr. Pritchard will remain two or three weeks looking after the splendid farm he owns on Seven Rivers, at which place Mrs. Pritchard and daughter will spend the summer. The Pritchards were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Beals and son, R. E. Brown, and C. N. Faubel. These, after looking over the oil situation, have all returned to their homes, and will very probably arrange their affairs so that they may return to Lakewood in the near future.

John Savich, of Colorado, has been here for about a week looking into the oil situation. He owns a five-acre tract near Lakewood well No. 1, which is destined to become quite a valuable holding in the near future.

W. L. McDonald, who has been here for sometime, sold his cattle last week to Lewis Howell, and has returned to his present home at Miami, Arizona.

Mrs. Ollie Ratcliff and little daughter, Audrey, Mrs. Mae Webb and little son "Pete", went to Portales Wednesday night to spend a month visiting with relatives and friends.

Miss Verla Whitworth, who has been visiting with friends at Artesia, returned home Thursday.

J. M. Stroud was a business visitor to Carlsbad Wednesday.

Mrs. Belle DeAutechmont visited with friends at Artesia Wednesday.

A good rain visited this section Tuesday.

Mrs. J. D. Millman and daughter Miss Ola visited at Carlsbad Monday.

Rudolph Wilcox has accepted the position of cook with the cattle pool now working in this section.

Henry Lamas and Frank Morrison were visitors to Artesia on Thursday.

Misses Ona Millman and Laura Fanning visited at Artesia Tuesday, returning Wednesday.

W. I. Johnson, of the Peoples Mercantile Company, has been staying the week this week, and is also having some much needed repair work done on their warehouse in the town of the store.

We went to the phone office today in search of news, and found Misses Sallie Pruitt and Donna Harrison as busy as could be scrubbing, scouring and taking a general clean-up. It would be well for everybody to follow their example, now that flu is making its appearance in some localities.

The Lakewood school board has employed its full quota of teachers for the coming term, and the prospect for a successful school term is quite promising.

Dr. R. J. Boatman and wife, after reaching Roswell on their contemplated overland trip to California, were compelled to store their car and proceed by rail, the doctor being too weak to make the trip by auto.

Miss Marie Purdy was singing at the Methodist Church Sunday morning in connection with the eleven o'clock service.

LOCAL NEWS

Anson Jones is at present an employee of the American Express office at Amarillo.

E. Price, whose home is in Lovington, was registered from there at a local hotel this week.

Julian Smith went up to Roswell for a few days' business visit leaving here Tuesday night and returning Thursday.

Dallas Jones came in from the ranch near Lovington the first of the week and is still in town.

J. M. Stroud, one of the business men of Lakewood, was a visitor to the "Beautiful" Wednesday.

H. P. Larsh and Mr. Traylor, of Artesia, were in town yesterday stopping at the Crawford hotel.

Mrs. A. J. Richmond was registered at the Palace hotel the first of the week from the ranch.

Mrs. Bert Rawlins accompanied her brother, Sims Hamilton, to the home of her parents at Lovington this morning.

A. C. Crozier, of Lakewood, has spent the week in Carlsbad. Mrs. Crozier, who underwent a major operation at Eddy County hospital this week is getting along nicely.

Garvin Smith, who is employed in the state ranger service, and who resides near Mayhill New Mexico, came in yesterday. His family will probably arrive today and spend a month.

Rev. George H. Givan will deliver the sermon at the Ardmore Sunday evening at eight-thirty. The Gerlach orchestra and special music will be features of the community worship.

Rev. J. D. Terry, of Dayton, is expected down from there this afternoon and will continue on to Queen and hold preaching services next Sunday. Brother Terry is in charge of the work at Malaga, Loving and Queca.

Lawrence Clardy is among the boys to return from overseas lately, he arriving in Carlsbad last night. He looks well and says he never felt better. However, his joy at being once more at home may have something to do with it.

The Current is pleased to announce the continued improvement of W. J. Barber at Eddy County Hospital. While his improvement is necessarily slow, and he suffers greatly, friends now feel sure of his eventual recovery from his serious burns.

The condition of John T. Bolton who has been at Eddy County hospital for over two weeks, seems slightly more favorable this morning. Mr. Bolton is troubled by hiccoughs and these, with the fact that he is unable to obtain much rest, renders his condition very grave, and his friends here are very anxious about him.

Last night was surely "bargain" night at the airrome, when the fine seven-reel picture was shown with Rhea Mitchell and Howard Hickman as stars. The pictures during the entire week have been of the best and tonight Alice Joyce will appear on the screen and the airrome likely will be filled with admirers of this famous actress.

Miss Catherine Finlay received a letter from her brother, Robert, ("Red"), Thursday, which states that he is now in New York from overseas, arriving the 13th. Robt. went over with the B Company boys and has been at an officers' training school in France since the signing of the armistice. He does not know when he will be able to come home, but he is assured of a hearty welcome when he does arrive.

Keep in mind the fact of an Old Settlers' Meeting, which is to be held in Carlsbad the last of August or the first week in September. Of course everybody will want to attend and this is none too soon to begin laying plans and making preparations for the occasion. Just how elastic the term "old settlers" is, we do not know but there will likely be a big crowd here, and if plans mature that are now under consideration a grand time will result.

Miss Esther Rhodes, of Mayfield, Kentucky, a school friend of Miss Donna Ferguson, arrived in Carlsbad yesterday, coming from Estancia, this state, where she has been visiting a sister. Miss Ferguson has planned a number of social affairs in honor of her friend, the first of which will be a picnic this evening at the flume.

Mr. William G. Cowan, Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, in Roswell, has received the following telegram: "Washington, D. C., July 15, William G. Cowan, Roswell, New Mexico. Your nomination for Receiver of the United States Land Office, Roswell, New Mexico, was confirmed by the Senate last evening. Please accept my congratulations and best wishes. A. A. Jones, United States Senator."

At one o'clock last night a delightful and refreshing rain fell, 25 of an inch of precipitation being registered at the Government building. The rain lasted but a few moments and was accompanied by very sharp lightning and heavy thunder claps. Indications are that heavy rains passed over to the east.

ECONOMY AND GOOD MANAGEMENT.

By Taxpayers' Association of N. M.

To the thoughtful taxpayer, evidences of economy and good management in the administration of public affairs are gratifying, says the New Mexico Tax Review in its July number. Public officials are often too ready to spend state, county and city funds for the sake of helping personal friends, or of strengthening the party, or of making a "record" to gain glory for themselves or advantage for the party. It should, therefore, not escape our attention when tendencies towards a saving of the people's money and proper accounting therefor are apparent.

A board of county commissioners in New Mexico recently found it possible to dispense with two assistants at the county jail and saved several hundred dollars. In a certain city two policemen were found sufficient to keep peace and order instead of four. These are two examples among several of a similar nature. As an instance of full intelligible accounting, reference is made to a financial report of the Board of Education of the City of Roswell. Published financial reports often mean nothing to the private citizen and taxpayer. For this reason such a report as the one mentioned is to be commended and is, we hope, indicative of a movement toward clearer statements of public expenditures. The people should know where their money goes and reports should be such as to be easily analyzed and understood.

Much has been said of the kind of highways to be built some insisting that only hard surface roads should be constructed. Others argue that the character of roads should depend upon the use made of them. In some localities the traffic will justify the building of concrete roads, in others of gravel roads, while in the majority of sections well maintained dirt roads will be found adequate. To determine the character of the road according to the use to be made of it seems refreshingly sane and the officials having in charge the maintenance and construction of roads and bridges are to be commended for the adoption of the efficient "traffic census" method.

In view of the rapidly rising tax rate, new standards of public administration must be attained if levies are to be kept within reasonable limits. An increase of from 20 per cent to 55 per cent in taxes is predicted for the next year, unless economy and good management become the rule instead of the exception.
