WORLD NOTABLES GATHER AT ARLINGTON TO HONOR UNKNOWN AMERICAN HERO

HIGHEST DECORATIONS OF WAR ADORN FLAG-DRAWN COFFIN AT NOTABLE BURIAL SERVICE

Soil of France Covered by Casket of Signally-Honored Service Man; Last Wreaths Placed on Grave by War Mothers; Mrs. Harding Weeps as She Joins in Singing.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Nov. 11 (By the Associated Press.)—Laid to rest with all the honors a grateful nation could pay, the unknown hero from France was blyouacked among the gallant dead today in Arlington National cemetery.

The highest officers of the army and navy walked beside his coffin; none but the hands of gallant comrades of the war laid hands upon it. President Harding walked behind his bier to do him homage; former President Wilson made his first public appearance in months; General Pershing turned aside an opportunity to ride and trudged behind the body to its last resting place. Representatives of foreign governments reverently laid their highest military decorations on his casket and with soil from France where he fell, he was laid away.

Minute guns at Fort Myer boomed their continuous tribute as the funeral procession was passing from the capitol to the great marbled amphitheater in Arlington where the ceremonies were opened with the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the marine band.

After winding its way between the long lines of a reverent multitude in the streets of the capital the funeral procession toiled up the long hill leading to Arlington, arriving at the main gates at 11:10 after 11 o'clock. The invited guests, including great chieftains of the war, were seated in the boxes of the amphitheater and on the long rows of marble benches, and thousands more stood outside, or anywhere to be merely near.

Just before 11:15 o'clock the caisson bearing the flag-drawn coffin rolled up to the west entrance and was removed by the army and navy to the tomb. The caisson was borne tenderly within and placed on the catafalque. The great audience rose and stood uncovered as it passed in, followed by General Pershing and the distinguished officers of the army and navy as mourners.

Marshal Foch and his staff came with all his war medals across his breast. General Jacques, the Belgian chief, also came and the two men, dressed in the marble-clad made behind their boxes, exchanging greetings. General Diaz of Italy, joined them. Together the three moved with the Japanese minister to the place where the body lay.

Ambassador Geddes, in full British diplomatic uniform, brought flower offerings for the dead from England's king, with a bunch of orchids. General Foch, Chief Plenty Cook, of the Crow Indians, attired in full war regalia, feathered bonnet, furs and skins of variegated colors, was seated on the platform, joining the group of distinguished military leaders from Europe. Thus the uniform of the first Americans took its place with those of the allied powers in the last war. A group of Indian braves appeared in the audience, tin-tin in their beaded moccasins down the aisle to their seats.

Premier Briand of France was among the last to arrive. With the party of distinguished complete and the body of the unknown hero on the anse, the ceremonies waited for the arrival of President Harding.

On the strains of "Chopins Funeral March" had heralded the coming of the unknown to his great honors.

Far out among the trees to the fort, the dull dun color of moving troops had shown and marching half step to the throbbing, muffled beat of the drums, the marine band swung slowly out to circle the great colonnade to the entrance where the supplied coffin waited.

As the casket was lifted from the sun carriage the solemn chords of a hymn were joined by the deep notes of the band, the choir sang "The Son of God Goes Forth to War" as the telephone amplifiers caught up the notes and threw them out over the land to the thousands standing as far away as San Francisco.

On its simple base a hundred yards from where it will lie for all eternity, the casket of America's unknown rested as though supported by a mountain of blossoms of every color and kind from nations all over the world.

As former President Taft took his seat, Admiral Beatty appeared, surrounded by his officers.

Exactly on time, at 11:50 o'clock, President and Mrs. Harding came in and took their places.

Almost immediately afterward the marine band broke forth into the Star-Spangled Banner. At the conclusion of the anthem Chaplain Axton pronounced the invocation.

There was absolute silence, a hush as if the world had stood still as the unknown hero was laid to rest.

The opening notes of America signaled the ending of the two minute period, the thousands outside joining in the mighty hymn of love of country.

As the last great note died away Secretary Weeks stepped to his place beside the bier for his brief speech as master of ceremonies. He said:

"We are gathered, not to mourn the passing of a great general or other conspicuous person, but an unknown soldier of the republic, who fought to sustain a great cause for which he gave his life. Whether he came from the north, the south, the east or the west, we do not know. Neither do we know his name, his lineage or any other fact relating to his life or death, but we do know that he was a typical American who responded to his country's call and that he now sleeps with the heroes."

"We, who are gathered here in such numbers are simply representative of all the people of the United States, who are here in spirit and whose hearts have been more deeply stirred by this event than any in the life of our country. These sentiments can only be adequately expressed by the American people, president of the United States."

Immediately afterward President Harding began delivering his address. "A tribute in the name of the American people to the man who slept beneath the flag."

As Mr. Harding spoke, the sun drove through the haze and splashed the whole great gathering with golden light, as though it also would lay its life-giving hand in commendation of the humble, faithful servant at rest.

There was unbroken silence as the president spoke. Every tone of his voice showed the emotion he felt as he read slowly and distinctly that his words might be caught by the electric appliances and sent winging across the nation to gathering listening hosts.

At San Francisco, to another multitude drawn together in mourning in New York.

As the president concluded, a clear blue sky spread above the white hills, turned on from the green hills below as though it offered a human tribute of emotion and high feeling to the mystery being, in which the lonely sleepers of the world were joined.

There was a dramatic moment as the president concluded, when touching on the coming conference in Washington, he said it should be the beginning of a better civilization, a more lasting peace, and then ended his address with a recitation of the Lord's prayer, in which the thousands joined, their strong earnest tones rolling in the pledge of faith to the sunlight above.

In his address, the conclusion of the prayer a quartette of sinners from the Metropolitan opera house of New York sang "The Supreme Sacrifice."

Major Fenton of the general staff then stepped forward and handed to Secretary Weeks the velvet lined boxes containing the nation's highest tokens of valor for the dead hero. Secretary Weeks took the congressional medal of honor and the distinguished service cross from their cases and handed them to President Harding.

The president leaned over the casket, then clutching the Belgian Croix de Guerre on his own breast, tore it from the cloth of his tunic to pin it on the flag-drawn casket.

The Belgian chief stepped back and his feet slipped on the polished floor.

The Victoria cross Britain's most prized war decoration, never before placed on the breast of a man not a British subject, was next bestowed. Earl Beatty, admiral of the fleet, set it on the flag and saluted as he stepped back. Then General, the Earl of Gavan, representing the king of England, in person, spoke briefly and turned away to let General Diaz bring forward and pin in place Italy's gold medal for bravery.

PAST IS JOINED WITH FUTURE BY ARMISTICE DAY

Ambassador Harvey in Banquet Speech Refers to Arms Limit Parley and Funeral of Unknown Hero

(By The Associated Press.)

London, Nov. 11 (By the Associated Press.)—"Today signifies the joining of the past with the future," declared George Harvey, United States ambassador to Great Britain, in an Armistice day address here tonight.

The occasion of his commemorative discourse was a dinner to him and Mrs. Harvey given by the English speaking union. It was presided over by Capt. Frederick E. Guest, air secretary.

In his address, Ambassador Harvey alluded to the incident of the proclamation making the day a national holiday, and pointed out the three hundred and first anniversary of the landing of the Mayflower.

"On one bank of the Potomac," he said, "the sacred soil of Arlington cemetery, the body of our unknown soldier was lowered reverently to rest. On the other side of that historic river, in the capital, for the first time in history, the world's greatest statesmen from the uttermost parts of the earth in a common determination to find for the distracted peoples of the world a way to peace and happiness, which combined their priceless heritages, from the maker of the universe. A memorial to our patriot dead, a harbinger of hope for all the living, such is the true import of this holy day."

Ambassador Harvey asked rhetorically if history must be forever mainly a narration of warfare.

"The strength of a country is not measured by armies and navies," he declared. "A schoolhouse at a cross roads is more potent ultimately than a dreadnaught of the seas. One little church on a hill is worth a score of regimental camps. The world is not to be won by the sword, but by the spirit of peace and understanding."

Then Lieutenant General Baron Jacques of Belgium stepped forward. He named beside the casket, then clutching the Belgian Croix de Guerre on his own breast, tore it from the cloth of his tunic to pin it on the flag-drawn casket.

The Belgian chief stepped back and his feet slipped on the polished floor.

The Victoria cross Britain's most prized war decoration, never before placed on the breast of a man not a British subject, was next bestowed. ADDRESS OF HARDING AT BURIAL OF UNKNOWN AMERICAN SOLDIER

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Nov. 11.—The text of President Harding's address at the burial of an unknown soldier at Arlington cemetery follows:

Mr. Secretary of War and ladies and gentlemen:

We are met today to pay the impersonal tribute. The name of him whose body lies before us took flight with his imperishable soul. We know not whence he came, but only that his death marks him as the everlasting glory of an American dying for his country.

He must have come from any one of millions of American homes. Some mother gave him in her love and tenderness and her most cherished hopes. Hundreds of mothers are wondering today, finding a touch of solace in the possibility that the nation bows in grief over the body of one she bore to life and, if need be, for the republic.

With the din of battle, the glow of conflict and the supreme trial of courage, come involuntarily the hurried appraisal of life and the contemplation of death's great mystery. On the threshold of eternity many a soldier, I can well believe, wondered how his ebbing blood would color the stream of human life, flowing on after his sacrifice. His patriotism was no less if he craved more than triumph of country; rather, it was greater if he hoped for a victory for all human kind. Indeed, I believe that citizen whose confidence in the righteousness of his country inspired belief that his triumph is the victory of humanity.

This American soldier went forth to battle with no hatred for any people in the world, but with a love for his country and a purpose of every war for conquest. He sacrificed.

UNDEFEATED GRID TEAMS IN WEST ON TRIAL TODAY

(By The Associated Press.)

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Three undefeated eleven will renew their drive for the western conference gridiron championship tomorrow when they meet at the University of Illinois. The three teams, which have been playing for the championship since 1905 in a contest that promises to overshadow all others in the Midwest, these traditional rivals have been priming for their clash for two weeks, and Wisconsin, with eleven experienced veterans in the field, appears to observers to have a slight advantage, although Michigan threatens to spring a surprise.

Six other "grid" teams will be in action. Chicago will invade Urbana for the annual battle with Illinois, while the undefeated Iowa eleven will attempt to strengthen its claim to the 1921 title by engaging the Badgers at Ames, Iowa. Indiana to date has engaged in only one conference game and on past performances Iowa is expected to score an easy triumph. Ohio State, conqueror of Michigan and Chicago, will tackle Purdue at Columbus.

Considering past performances, Chicago is figured to rout the Illinois tomorrow and Ohio is expected to have no trouble in running over Purdue; but observers, while giving Wisconsin the edge, expect a battle royal from the Wolverines that may result in an upset. The Badgers already have crushed Illinois, Northwestern and Minnesota, while Michigan has triumphed over Illinois and lost to Ohio.

Both the Badgers and Wolverines, with two weeks of rest, are in perfect condition for the contest.

The powerful Notre Dame eleven will have the chance to score a third triumph within a week tomorrow when it meets the Haskell Indians at South Bend. Notre Dame walloped the Army last Saturday and cleaned up on Rutgers on Tuesday. Another Indiana contest will bring together the Michigan Eagles and Butler at Indianapolis.

WILSON APPEARS FOR FIRST TIME SINCE MARCH 4

Is Congratulated as Wounded Soldier of World War Who Has Regained His Health; Visit His Home.

Washington, Nov. 11 (By the Associated Press.)—Former President Wilson made his first public appearance today since he left the White House, riding in the funeral procession for the unknown dead soldier and later receiving a crowd gathered at his home.

Everywhere Mr. Wilson was given a demonstration. When his carriage entered the line at the foot of Capitol Hill, he was greeted with a fluttering of handkerchiefs and then with handclapping and cheering which continued until he left the line after passing the White House, where he exchanged greetings with President Harding.

The demonstration at his home was of greater proportions. It was arranged as a non-partisan affair by a committee of seven women for whom Hamilton Holt, of New York, was the spokesman.

"We congratulate you, a wounded soldier of the world war, on your regaining your health," Mr. Holt said to the former president, who had come to the front porch of his home to receive the committee. "We pledge you our honor and respect. Your work will not die."

When the cheering which greeted this statement subsided, the committee of women arrived, four wounded soldiers from Walter Reed hospital drew up in front of the home in an automobile. A few minutes later the former president appeared. There was a cheer and the crowd dispersed, the former president appearing at a window on the second floor in response to repeated calls.

Half an hour before the committee of women arrived, four wounded soldiers from Walter Reed hospital drew up in front of the home in an automobile. A few minutes later the former president appeared. There was a cheer and the crowd dispersed, the former president appearing at a window on the second floor in response to repeated calls.

Mr. Wilson doffed his high hat in response to the cheers and then was assisted as he slowly descended the steps. He shook hands with each of the wounded men in turn as the crowd continued its cheering and waving of handkerchiefs, flags and flowers.

EYES OF WORLD TURN HOPEFULLY TO OPENING OF ARM CONFERENCE

Represented Nations, Acting Together, Can Turn Whole Tide of Civilization Into New Channels.

OUTWARD SIGNS OF CONFIDENCE PREVAIL

Address of Harding at Arlington Ceremony is Chief Topic of Comment Upon Visiting Statesmen.

(By The Associated Press.)

Washington, Nov. 11 (By the Associated Press.)—With the eyes of all the world fixed hopefully upon them, the accredited spokesmen of the powers will meet in Washington tomorrow to try to find a way to ease the heavy burden of armaments.

In the historic quest Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and the United States, a group which acting together can turn the whole tide of civilization into new channels, all have pledged a firm and determined co-operation.

In addition, China, Belgium, Portugal and the Netherlands, invited because of their vital interest in the pertinent and crucial problems of the far east, will sit in the conference to complete the circle of those who are to strive for the new day of international relationship.

Outward manifestations of confidence in the success of the negotiations never have been more in prominence than on the eve of the assembling of the delegates in formal conference. Every nation is declared by its leaders to be ready to come to the conference table with a spirit of unqualified good will for every other, and behind there is a great urging force of world opinion seeking translation into the covenants of permanent friendship.

Among the statesmen and diplomats of the visiting nations, the great topic of interest tonight was the address made at Arlington today by President Harding, who summoned the conference into being and who will welcome it to American soil.

On every hand were heard expressions of satisfaction that in paying his tribute to America's soldier dead the chief executive grasped his opportunity to renew the pledge of the United States to take its full share of leadership in the attainment of a better order.

In the fulfillment of that pledge, it is the expectation of all the delegates that the American government will place before the conference as soon as it begins its work a concrete proposal for armament limitation. Such a proposal has been prepared by the American delegates, and there seems to be universal agreement that as the initiator of the negotiations the United States should have the first say. Whether the proposal will be submitted tomorrow, however, is a question which present indications would answer in the negative.

Today the delegates held a final conference today. Secretary Hughes calling them together soon after the ceremonies at Arlington were concluded.

R. C. McMILLAN IS SHOT AND KILLED NEAR CANTON, N. M.

(Special Correspondence to The Journal.)

Fort Sumner, N. M., Nov. 10.—R. C. McMILLAN was shot and instantly killed Saturday morning near Canton, which is about twenty-five miles southeast of Fort Sumner. He was released on a $1,000 bond. The tragedy resulted over a difficulty which had come up between the two men regarding the contest of a land filling. McMILLAN's horse, which was shot from under him, died shortly after receiving the wound.

2 EARTHQUAKES ARE RECORDED AT VARSITY

(By The Associated Press.)

Washington, Nov. 11.—Two pronounced earthquakes were recorded on the seismograph at Georgetown university; this afternoon, the first 100 miles and the second 1,500 miles from Washington. The first disturbance was said probably to be in South America, but the location of the second was less certain.

The first shock began at 1:55 p. m. and was continuing when the second shock began at 2:54 o'clock. Both thereafter were intermingled but the disturbance ended at 4 o'clock.

WORLD EXPECTS ARMS CUT MEET TO BE SUCCESS

Gompers Says the People Do Not Want An Excuse Or a Reason for a Failure of the Conference.

(By The Associated Press.) New York, Nov. 11.—People of the world expect success from the arms conference and they do not want an excuse or a reason for a failure, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, told the disarmament meeting in Madison Square garden tonight.

"The world was the high climax of the contest between the old and the new," he said. "The philosophy of rule by force, by tyranny, by autocracy and militarism has been swept out of the world. That is the paramount fact of our time. A system has been slain. Unless those who are to be engaged in those great labors shall comprehend this fact and shall build upon it, we may well have fears for the future. If statesmen do not understand the age into which we have entered, it may well be doubted whether the world can persist under the needless burdens which their actions will impose."

"Organize for Peace. With the threat and the challenge of the last great stronghold of militarism gone, it is possible for the nations to organize for peace and unless they do so organize they may face catastrophe. There is throughout the world a revulsion of feeling and a resentment against further criminal waste of manhood and womanhood and of wealth. There is in the tide of the day a great current which runs toward peace. We must take this current as it comes, to reduce the armaments of the world to the last possible degree, to make secure the peace of the peoples of all the nations. If we fail to take this current as it runs we shall, I fear, lose all our ventures."

"We are confronted with accounts of the difficulties that beset the conference. We are beset by accounts of various clashing political and industrial interests. We are beset by those who harp on the differences between disarmament and reduction of armament. All of these are doubtless calculated in some measure to serve as an excuse for possible failure."

People Demand Success. "Let me say that the people of the world do not want an excuse for failure. They do not even want a reason for failure. The people are looking toward Washington with a mighty appeal with a great trust and a profound hope and they want success. The people are not concerned about differences of means in words."

"They demand unity of purpose in action. They demand freedom of action. They demand that the nations to the world what the people expect. Let me say that the expectation exists and the mind of the people is determined. The expectation will not be satisfied with failure and the mind will not be calmed with unfulfillment."

"Those who see and understand will be falling in their duty if they see failure impending and do not proclaim to the world what the people expect. I pledge to you that for myself, hopeful as I am, confident as I am, determined as I am to help, if failure becomes apparent I shall speak and I shall proclaim to the people the truth as I see it, sparing neither institutions nor persons."

Pleading for a reduction in armament, "which we owe to our fellow men, and to the world who are yet unborn," the Right Rev. William T. Manning, Episcopal bishop of New York, declared that it is just as barbarous and just as dangerous for nations "to ride the world down the earth armed to the teeth," as it would be for individuals so to do.

"The aim with which the Washington conference meets is simple, clear and practical," he asserted. "In the present state of the world, and of human nature, complete disarmament is not possible. So long as there is wickedness and lawlessness in the world, we shall need armies and navies as police, to maintain law and to uphold justice and right. If all will agree to this a great limitation and reduction of our present armaments is possible. If all the nations sincerely want this we can take a great step immediately."

The great conference in Washington must not be suffered to degenerate into an "international bargain counter," was the warning sounded by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free synagogue.

Meaning of Failure. "What if the conference fails?" he asked. "What alternative is there? Failure would be notice to the world that armaments must go on and the world continue to stagger under the overwhelming burden of war preparedness which now lies upon it."

"The arms conference is not the world's only chance, but it is the only and last chance of the statesmen and politicians. If they fail to 'make peace' the people will fail to 'unmake them.' If the conference fails, the people will take the matter of peace into their own hands."

ADDRESS OF HARDING AT BURIAL FRIDAY OF UNKNOWN YANK HERO

ing—like men with souls sacrific-

The flying missiles were revealed by illuminating tracers, so that we could note their flight and appraise their dead lines. The air was marked by the flight of masses of destruction; while the effectiveness of the theoretical defense was impressed by the stimulation of going and wounded men, and unheeding, forward, undaunted and unyielding. As this panorama of unutterable destruction visualized the horrors of modern conflict, there grew on me the sense of the failure of the world, which can leave its problems to such cruel arbitrament. Surely no one in authority with human attributes and full appraisal of the patriotic loyalty of his countrymen could ask that the republic make such sacrifice until all reason had failed, until appeal to justice through understanding had been denied, until every effort of love and consideration for fellow men had been exhausted, until freedom itself and inviolate honor had been brutally threatened.

Security of Peace. I speak not as a pacifist fearing war, but as one who loves justice and hates war. I speak as one who believes the highest function of government is to give its citizens the security of peace, the opportunity to achieve and the pursuit of happiness.

The loftiest tribute we can bestow today—the heroically earned tribute—fashioned in deliberate conviction, out of unclouded thought, neither shadowed by remorse nor made vain by fancies, is the commitment of this republic to an advancement never made before. If American achievement is a cherished pride at home, if our unselfishness among nations is all we wish it to be and ours is a helpful example in the world, then let us give of our influence and strength, year of our aspirations and convictions, to put mankind on a little higher plane, exulting and exalting with war's distressing and depressing tragedies barred from the stage of righteous civilization.

There have been a thousand defenses justly and patriotically made; a thousand offenses which reason and righteousness ought to have stayed. Let us beseech all men to join in seeking the rule under which reason and righteousness shall prevail.

Standing today on hallowed ground, I am conscious that an American has halted to share in the tribute of heart and mind and soul to this fellow American, and knowing that the world is nothing this exalted and the republic's mindfulness, it is fitting to say that his sacrifice, and that of the millions dead, shall not be in vain. There must, there shall be, the commanding voice of a conscious civilization against armed warfare.

New Era on Earth. As we return this poor clay to its mother soil, garlanded by love and covered with the decorations that only nations can bestow, let us sense the powers of our people, of all peoples, that this Armistice day shall mark the beginning of a new and lasting era of peace on earth, good will among men. Let me join in this prayer.

Our Father Who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for thine is the kingdom and the power and glory forever. Amen.

cherished our national rights and abhorred the threat of armed domination; and in the maelstrom of destruction and suffering and death he fired his shot for liberty and for the captive conscience of the world. In advancing toward his objective was somewhere a thought of a world awakened; and we are here to testify undying gratitude and reverence for that thought of a wider freedom.

A Better Republic. On such an occasion as this, amid such a scene, our thoughts alternated between defenders living and defenders dead. A grateful republic will be worthy of them both. Our part is to atone for the losses of heroic dead by making a better republic for the living.

Slender in this hallowed ground are thousands of Americans who have given their blood for the baptism of freedom and its maintenance, arm d exponents of the nation's conscience. It is better and nobler for their deeds. Burial here is rather more than a sign of the government's favor; it is a suggestion of a tomb in the heart of the nation sorrowing for its noble dead.

Today's ceremonies proclaim that the hero unknown is not unknown. We gather him to the nation's breast, within the shadow of the capitol, of the towering shaft that honors Washington, the great father, and of the exquisite monument to Lincoln, the martyred savior. Here the inspirations of yesterday and the conscience of today forever unite to make the republic worthy of his death for flag and country.

Ours are lofty resolutions today, as with tribute to the dead we consecrate ourselves to a better future for the living. Let us heartily wish we might say to the defenders who survive, to mothers who sorrow, to widows and children who mourn, that no such sacrifice will be asked again.

War Is Cruel. It was my fortune recently to see a demonstration of modern warfare. It is no longer a conflict in chivalry, no more a test of military prowess, no more a contest of deliberate, scientific, destruction. There was no contending enemy, only the theoretic defense of a hypothetical objective. But the attack was made with all the relentless methods of modern destruction. There was the rain of ruin from the aircraft, the thunder of artillery followed by the unspeakable devastation wrought by bursting shells; there were mortars belching their bombs of desolation, machine guns concentrating their

(By The Associated Press.) Denver, Colo., Nov. 11.—A bullet fired by an unknown armistice celebrator tonight ended the life of Mrs. J. C. Reed of Los Angeles. She was riding in a motor car on the Union station to take a train for home when a shot rang out. F. B. Coulahan, driving the car, paid no attention to the report, as many persons fired revolvers in the down town district during the day. A moment after the shot was fired, Coulahan looked toward Mrs. Reed and discovered her mortally wounded. She had been visiting her mother, Mrs. P. P. Ford of Denver.

OPPORTUNITY FOR THE UNKNOWN MANY PEOPLE

Morning Journal's Gift Plan Attracting Remarkably Few Club Members.

The many valuable awards, including five 1922 model autos, to be distributed by the Albuquerque Morning Journal, its mammoth SALESMANSHIP CLUB gift distribution, are clamoring for more real active hustlers to enter the campaign and expend some real effort to land a prize. When it is taken into consideration that every active participant is guaranteed either a cash award or an automobile, it seems strange that so few of our readers are taking advantage of this tremendous profit-sharing opportunity.

Read This and Profit. If an opportunity were presented to you whereby you could secure without one penny of cost, a brand new 1922 model Studebaker sedan, worth $2,295, or a Studebaker touring car worth $1,450, or one of the three Chevrolet touring cars to be awarded as first district prizes, for just a little of your spare time effort during the next few weeks, would you take it?

Or if you were offered a bag of gold, would you accept it? Or would you stand back and say, "Surely it is not real; I never did or never could get so much so quickly or so easily." Or, if you were offered $1 out of every $10 collection you secured, would you believe it possible? Wouldn't you think that a mighty generous reward for spending just a few minutes of your spare time collecting credits? And while you are thinking of these things, are you going to let the fellow who has the good things? Opportunity for All.

The pessimist sees only the hole in the doughnut, while the optimist—well, you know the rest. Look for the beautiful if you would have it—cash in on opportunities that are offered you if you would profit accordingly.

Such an opportunity—the equal of which has never been offered to you before—is now being presented to you. In just a few short weeks the Journal will award all the prizes mentioned above to the most energetic hustlers in the territory covered by the Albuquerque Journal and the opportunity existing for more "live wire" campaigners to enter and make themselves important factors and probable winners of the money valuable prizes, is finally calling aloud. Why let anybody's opportunity for the FIVE AUTOMOBILES to be awarded to the willing workers.

There is an opportunity, sure, for the man or woman who looks at the thing from a purely business standpoint and who arrives at a conclusion as to its merits by the way it amounts to them as a business proposition. Some worker in the campaign will earn over $100 a week for the next few weeks. How's that for a business proposition?

Campaign Is Just Starting. The competition which is just starting is open to any reputable man or woman or child in the territory covered by this paper's circulation.

The Salesmanship Club headquarters located in the Journal building are open all day, and from 7:30 to 8:30 in the evening for the convenience of those who cannot find time to call during the day.

GIRLS TAKE IN $1131 IN WORK FOR RED CROSS

Over Hundred Girls Sell Memberships to Parade Crowd; Men's Campaign Will Begin Tuesday.

Incomplete returns from the street campaign of the Red Cross roll call under the direction of Miss Erna Ferguson showed the collection of $1,131.71 from the parade crowds yesterday morning. The girls had not reported last night.

The girls were out on the streets early in the morning hailing automobiles as they came down town and sticking the little Red Cross posters on their windshields. Before noon practically every car on the streets was wearing the little sign. Hundreds of memberships were sold to the pedestrians on the sidewalks as well. Some of the girls on the teams sold as many as fifty memberships individually.

The big campaign of the men workers will begin on Tuesday and will continue until November 24. A meeting of twelve men chosen by Chairman D. W. Faw to captain the teams has been called for Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Red Cross office in the federal building. Final plans for the campaign will be made at this meeting. W. P. McDowell is in charge of a "strong-arm" team.

TREATY OF PEACE WITH GERMANY IS MADE EFFECTIVE

(By The Associated Press.) Berlin, Nov. 11 (By the Associated Press.)—Ratifications of the German-American peace treaty were exchanged here tonight at the foreign office between Ellis Loring Dredel, the American commissioner, and Dr. Karl Wirth, chancellor and minister of foreign affairs.

Article three of the peace treaty with Germany provides that the treaty "shall take effect immediately on the exchange of ratifications." Article three reads: "The present treaty shall be ratified in accordance with the constitutional forms of the high contracting parties and shall take effect immediately on the exchange of ratifications, which shall take place as soon as possible at Berlin."

MRS. H. BARRETT LIVED 4 YEARS ON BREAD AND MILK

Mrs. H. P. Barrett, of Republic, suburb of Birmingham, Ala., gives the facts of her remarkable experience with Tanlac as follows:

"During the past fourteen years I have spent more than one thousand dollars trying to get rid of a complaint that was gradually sapping my strength, but until I got hold of Tanlac nothing helped me. For the past four years I have lived almost entirely on milk and bread, and finally even that went against me."

"Before I had finished the first bottle of Tanlac I got so I could eat anything, and I certainly bless the day I first got this medicine for I believe it has added years to my life. The people in my neighborhood were so surprised at the change in me that fourteen of them by actual count are now taking Tanlac."

MEMORIAL TABLET IS DEDICATED TO BERNALILLO COUNTY HEROES WHO GAVE THEIR LIVES IN WAR

Armistice Day Is Celebrated With Largest Parade in History of the State; Governor M. C. Mechem Delivers Short Address at Court House Yard; Lee B. Atwood Gives Dedication Speech.

"After witnessing the spirit of this celebration, surely every soldier must feel that we are not less proud of him now than we were when he was in the thick of the world war," declared Governor M. C. Mechem, in opening his address yesterday at the dedication of the county soldiers' memorial tablet in the court house yard. "This is the type of celebration which is peculiar to citizens of the United States and which impresses upon every lover of his country the general spirit of brotherly love."

Speaking of the many memories which Armistice day brings to mind, the governor dwelt especially upon the tribute being paid to the American soldier, dead or alive, in the burial services of the unknown soldier at Washington, which was taking place even while the celebration and services were held in Albuquerque.

"At this moment that unknown soldier is being given the highest tribute and honor ever accorded to man in these United States. We do not know who he is, nor what was then introduced and the governor's address was followed by the unveiling of the memorial tablet erected some time ago in honor of the Bernalillo county boys and in memory of those who died in the world war. Mrs. Pete Stewart and Mrs. William McClurken unveiled the tablet. The dedication prayer was then delivered by Rev. W. H. Ziegler, pastor of the St. John Episcopal church, who was a chaplain in the war.

The dedication address, delivered by Lee B. Atwood, a former soldier, was one of the most gripping speeches heard in Albuquerque for many years. Mr. Atwood's heart and soul were in the subject and he opened his speech with the reminder of the fact that the great war had drawn us all closer together.

"Comradeship between the buddies now seems to mean even more than it did in the days of battle," he stated.

"We are here to celebrate the third anniversary of the signing of the armistice and to pay honor to

Her mother, shown holding her, is one of the most popular members of the diplomatic social set.

to industry and other peaceful pursuits, was of particular interest. Mrs. J. G. Gold, president of the club, represented the statue of liberty. The Mountain View school had a float and several decorated cars of children in the parade, also. The Old Town school had four well designed floats and a squad of boys carrying American flags that had come back from France around the bodies of their dead brothers.

The most touching figures in the parade were those of the "gold star mothers" and of a number of disabled service men in automobiles. Mrs. E. L. Bradford as "the greatest mother in the world," with the tiny wounded soldier in her arms, was an impressive figure on the Red Cross float. All of the countries allied in the world war were represented by floats entered by various organizations and orders.

The division marshals were Earl Rowdick, Adjutant General Henry Rolf Brown, Captain Benevise, Miss Eugenia Keeler, Miss Margaret Hubbell, Miss Gertrude Elliott, Mrs. A. L. Redding, G. E. McDonald, W. E. Horne, E. E. Eyre and Antonio Duran, E. M. Garber, Sheriff Antonio Ortiz and W. J. Shampman.

MERRITT AND ELLER WIN PLACES IN THE ORATORICAL CONTEST

The gold medal, or first place, in the preliminary oratorical contest at the high school Thursday evening was awarded to Maxwell Merritt. The second prize, a silver medal, was won by Howe Eller. These men placed out of five contestants.

Merritt's topic was "The Question of the Century," and Eller with the matter of disarmament. Eller spoke on "The Irish Question."

The rest of the program consisted of other speeches and several sections by the high school orchestra, under the baton of Miss Peet.

The winners of the preliminary contest will represent the high school in the state oratorical contest, which will take place here around Thanksgiving.

The preliminary declamatory contest of high school pupils will take place Monday evening. This was originally scheduled for Thursday, but on account of the length of the program that evening, the date was altered as indicated.

MARINES NOW GUARD MAILS IN NEW YORK TO PREVENT THEFTS

(By The Associated Press.) New York, Nov. 11.—Sixty-five marines today began guarding the mails in the streets, postoffices and terminals of New York, prepared to use warlike measures to prevent repetition of last month's $2,000,000 truck robbery. The force was expected to be augmented tomorrow by the arrival of 200 more sea soldiers from the barracks at Quantico, Va.

Mail trucks were heavily guarded tonight and armed guards accompanied letter carriers distributing registered mail matter.

MINERS TO SEEK RESIGNATION OF PRES. LEWIS

Decide to Give $90,000 Monthly to Support Fight of Kansas Miners; Lewis Condemns Action.

(By The Associated Press.)

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 11.—A resolution demanding the resignation of John L. Lewis, president of the International Mine Workers, may be presented to the miners' convention here tomorrow morning. The resolution will be hotly debated it is expected.

The miners adjourned their session this morning in respect to the armistice day celebration after adopting a resolution pledging $90,000 monthly to the support of the Kansas miners' fight.

Lewis Hits Back. Washington, Nov. 11.—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, when informed today that Illinois mine workers had adopted a resolution at their Peoria convention to support financially the unauthorized strike of their fellow workers in Kansas, said the Illinois miners had been misled by "a few raving demagogues."

Mr. Lewis said the action of the Illinois miners would have no effect on the situation with respect to the Kansas strike. He refused to discuss the statement made at Peoria by Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois union, that the action meant war with the international organization.

FOUR PEOPLE KILLED IN ROME DISORDER

HARDING STARTS PLAY OF LIGHTS FOR ARM PARLEY

(By The Associated Press.) Washington, Nov. 11.—President Harding tonight pressed a button and threw into action a series of illuminating "nets" arranged by local organizations about the Pan-American building and Continental hall, in which most of the sessions of the armament congress will be held.

For several blocks along Seventeenth street, powerful lamps throwing flaring, torchlike flames formed "The Avenue of Light," which led to the "Jeweled Portal" in front of the Pan-American Union. Between two obelisks, 85 feet in height, was hung a sparkling curtain bearing the flags and coats of arms of the visiting nations outlined in multi-colored bulbs.

At the capital, an electric imitation of "Aurora Borealis" sent long rays of tinted light high in the air. Many of the public buildings were especially lighted for the occasion or were illuminated by direct rays from great searchlights placed on nearby structures.

The ceremony attending the illumination was brief. President Harding, accompanied by Vice President and Mrs. Coolidge, monitored through the crowded streets to a booth near the "Jeweled Portal," where a minor key controlled all the special installation. A battery of field guns stationed near the Washington monument boomed the presidential salute and, as the high towers sprang into light, a military band played the national anthem. The president made no address and after viewing the spectacle for a few minutes, the party returned to the White House.

These in charge of the electric construction estimated that the equivalent of ten billion candles was used in the sets.

BEAUTY CHATS

BEGINNING TO REDUCE.

A well known doctor gives this advice to men and women who are about to start a course of reduction.

For the first day! This is difficult advice. It is probably the hardest part of the reduction treatment. But never mind, you have the consoling feeling that the first day is the worst and that after that, the self-denial treatment will become gradually easier until you won't mind it a bit. And finally, you will really like it.

Most people who have over-eaten for a long period have distended stomachs, or rather, very large ones. They would have to have, otherwise they could not hold so much food.

On the day of the fast, drink as much water, hot or cold, as you want, and take nothing else. The stomach will protest. It will, as the doctor puts it, tell every other organ in your body. You may have a headache, you are sure to have a few more or less imaginary pains, you may feel dizzy, you may be weak minded, you'll be done with reduction at once, and go back to gorging and gaining weight.

But if you persist, in 24 hours, your stomach, contracted in size and much weaker in spirit, will take what food you give it gladly, and will not protest as it did the first day.

Try it—after the day's fast, eat lightly.

Blonde:—As you are so young, the bobbed hair would accentuate this fact, so you are sensible to wait until you have attained a good position and had time to prove you are a competent person. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for a formula for falling hair, meantime, massage the scalp thoroughly each night until it grows from increased circulation.

Margie: S. P.—Teeth that have accumulated a line of green over the top, will hardly yield to the regular cleaning, but will require the services of the dentist. This applies also to the tartar case, as this formation must be removed carefully and requires professional care.

Faith:—You are from five to eight pounds overweight. Substitute whole wheat or graham bread for that made from white flour and eat less than usual, until you have lost this extra amount.

Troubled:—The heated irons have been drying out the hair, which accounts for its deterioration. Try the soft kid curlers occasionally. Massage the scalp every night, which will improve the circulation in it. If you use a tonic several times each week it will hasten the recovery.

Tomboy:—Vaseline has no effect upon the coloring of a whole head of hair, beyond the fact that it darkens only while it is being used. Blonde shades and browns are darker while the oil is on them, but a whole head of hair done this way would not look well.

EFFICIENT HOUSEKEEPING

By LAURA A. KIRKMAN.

DOES YOUR FAMILY LIKE CARAMEL FLAVORING?

A good many housekeepers seldom make cakes and puddings with a caramel flavor. Often this is not because their families don't like the flavor—but because "it's so much trouble" to caramelize the sugar!

The housekeeper who is a "good manager," however, does not even consider going to the nuisance of caramelizing her sugar each time she starts to bake a caramel cake; instead she makes a large quantity of caramel syrup and keeps this in a bottle ready for instant use. This is done in the following way:

Put granulated sugar into sauce pan or a frying pan over the fire and stir constantly until the sugar has melted and becomes a deep brown. Then add an equal amount of boiling water. This makes a thick syrup. Boil it up for a minute or two, then pour it into fruit jars or old catsup bottles. If it should become su-gary, add a little water to it when reheating in amounts needed. Try this syrup in one of the following recipes:

Caramel Fudge Cake: Mix together 1-4 cups of cold, thick caramel syrup and 1-3 cup of butter; add 2 well beaten eggs and 1 cup of sweet milk or water. Stir in 3 cups of flour which have been sifted with 2 teaspoons of baking powder and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Bake in 2 layers in a hot oven for about 30 minutes, and fill with the following:

Fudge Filling: Cook 1 cup of thick caramel syrup, 1-2 cup of milk, a pinch of salt and 1-4 cup of grated unsweetened chocolate together, and when it forms a soft ball in cold water add 2 tablespoons of butter. Remove from range and beat vigorously until it begins to cream, then spread it on the layers at once. Of course a caramel filling or frosting may be put on any white cake recipe, whether the cake is baked in loaf form or in layers.

Social Calendar

Saturday.
Miss Ruth Tompkins will entertain the Pont Neuf club at 2:30 p. m.
Dulcinea club will meet at home of Miss Virgie Romero.

The following recipes will be found good:

Caramel Frosting: Mix together 1-2 cups of brown sugar, 3-4 cup of thin cream and 1-2 teaspoon of butter; boil these ingredients together in a granite sauce pan until a ball can be formed when a little of the syrup is dropped into cold water. (It takes about 40 minutes for the boiling). Then remove from stove and beat until of the right consistency to spread.

Caramel Cream Filling: Made with Caramel Syrup: Scald 2 cups of sweet milk and add to it 1-2 cup of caramel syrup made as described in the first part of this article. Then stir in 2 tablespoons of cornstarch which have been dissolved in a very little cold milk, and add 1 tablespoon of butter; when the cornstarch is cooked, add 1 beaten egg and continue to stir over the fire until the mixture is thick and smooth. Cool and spread between layers and on top of cake. If desired, 2 tablespoons of cocoa may be added to this recipe, which gives it a different flavor, when variety is wanted.

Inexpensive Cream Filling: Cook together 1-2 cup of thick cold caramel syrup, 1 cup of hot water and a pinch of salt. When this mixture is boiling thicken it with 2 tablespoons of cornstarch mixed smooth in a little cold water. Add 1 tablespoon of butter and a tiny grating of nutmeg. Spread between layers before it becomes too cold to spread smoothly.

Every woman is attracted by the frock which combines both economy and style. Here is a two-in-one coat dress of blue which does just that. The underdress is of crepe de chine and can be worn without the coat of braid trimmed serge. A pleated frill finishes the neck and long sleeves of the underdress.

By ELOISE.
Every woman is attracted by the frock which combines both economy and style. It is not often that this happens but when a designer does hit upon that happy combination his frock is sure to be popular. The three piece suit is one of these fashionable economies and the two piece frock is another.

Pictured here is a two-in-one coat dress which has all the new features demanded in a fashionable frock. The underdress is of navy blue crepe de chine and can be worn without the coat of braid trimmed serge. A pleated frill finishes the neck and long sleeves of the underdress. The coat falls part below the dress hem forming the popular uneven bottom and the sleeves of the coat are wide and slashed as are so many of the newer sleeves on fashion frocks. A frock such as this may be worn at almost any season of the year. The silk frock may be worn in the warmer seasons or indoors and the coat dress may be used for street wear. In fall and spring a fur neckpiece will complete the outfit and with a wrap for winter milder has a costume for any day in any season.

The 25 hits made by the Pittsburgh Pirates in a game with the Boston Braves topped the long list of heavy hitting games staged during last season.

THE NEW GENERATION

By JANE PHELPS

MARGARET FACES A NEW PROBLEM.

CHAPTER II.

Almost hysterical, Margaret dropped into the vacant hammock. What a child! So she thought as she recalled Joan's remark—

"Malcolm kisses very nicely. Why don't you kiss Mumsie, Malcolm?"

"Poor Malcolm!" Margaret said aloud, then once more laughed until the tears came. But the incident had quickened in her mind the need of keeping Joan so sure of her mother that no idea of withholding from her anything that happened would ever occur to the child.

"Aren't they good?" she asked a moment later as she joined Joan and Malcolm taking a cake in her hand and munching it as they were doing.

"You must come to see Joan and me often, Malcolm. Hannah makes lots of goodies we will like to share with you."

"You bet I will! I mean—of course I will, and thank you, Mrs. Hayden."

Margaret laughed with the children at Malcolm's embarrassment. His honest "you bet I will!" had cleared the air.

He remained a while longer, while Joan played and all three sang colored songs. When he left Margaret repeated her invitation to come again, and this time Malcolm answered in a well-mannered way, and again thanked her.

"Malcolm Frost is a nice boy. I like him."

"So do I, Mumsie. I think perhaps I will marry him."

"You do?"

"Yes. You see I must have a father to take care of me. You had had Gloria."

"That isn't always necessary, dear. Nowadays women earn money, too, especially college girls. We live in a better world than in small places where women are not so often employed."

"If I go to college, then I can earn the money and not have to have a father."

"Yes. If when you have finished you feel that you want to. By that time you may have changed your mind, or perhaps we can travel, you and I. It was the first time Margaret had spoken of the plan so near her heart.

"Now suppose we go to bed and leave the discussion of all these things until another time."

"All right, Mumsie! Perhaps I'll try to get a job, but I'm not sure I shouldn't like a father to earn money."

As Margaret kissed her good-night she wished Gloria had not put the idea of a "father who earned money" into Joan's mind. Joan had evidently mixed the husband and father relation, thinking them one and the same.

"Oh well, everything will come out all right. It is bound to," she said aloud, as she turned off the light. Yet in spite of her expressed belief it was long before she slept, and when she did she dreamed of kisses, small boys, swinging in hammocks and eating cookies. Over dreams for a woman as "old" as she, so Joan said when she recounted them to the breakfast table.

For a time Margaret ceased worrying about boys, Malcolm Frost in particular. He came often, kissed her and Joan frankly, swung in the hammock with the little bobbed head resting on his shoulder while Margaret sat near, and usually wound up by eating a great plateful of Hannah's cakes before he went home.

"Is isn't a bit smart, that's why I let him come?" Joan naively remarked, apropos of nothing.

"So you don't like 'smart' boys?" Margaret did not pretend to misunderstand.

"No! They're horrid when they think they are smart. I can't bear them around. Clarence Tobin is that kind. He's just the freshest thing ever was. I like Edna (his sister) awfully well, but Clarence is the limit. He asks the foolishest questions. Like 'What animal did Moses let go into the Ark first?' when everybody knows that Noah built the ark. Then if you ask him anything like: 'What's that you have, Clarence?' when it is perhaps just a paper with some thing written on it—he'll say as smart as can be: 'Why, that's a bicycle of course!' I guess if boys knew how much things made girls like them they wouldn't be so smart."

"Don't be too hard on the boys, dear. Perhaps they also see things about the girls they don't like."

"We don't try to be smart. Not one of us."

ALICE TERRY, THE BLONDE HEROINE OF "FOUR HORSEMEN"

Alice Terry, the beautiful blonde leading woman who dazzled audiences in "The Four Horsemen," "The Conquering Power" and "Turn to the Right," is to have the leading feminine role in Rex Ingram's forthcoming production, a picture of the well-known story, "The Prisoner of Zenda."

The Rudolph for Alice Terry's Princess Flavia has not yet been chosen. It is understood, however, that after the completion of the picture Miss Terry is to become Mrs. Rex Ingram and that although the engagement has been announced, the marriage will not take place until after shooting the picture because she is to give up her picture acting when she says "I will."

Associated First National Pictures, Inc., announces that simultaneously with the production plans of "Omar the Tent Maker," which are under way at the Brunswick studio, Richard Tully, author and producer, is preparing the continuities of "The Masquerader," "The Bird of Paradise," "Keep Her Smiling" and "The Flame," as well as a number of original scenarios and European plays which Mr. Tully acquired during his trip abroad.

Pauline Frederick never uses powder on her face except when working in a picture. The fear of a shiny nose is zero in her life.

"If it's going to shine," says she, "let it shine. I can't be bothered constantly dabbing powder on my nose."

2 BOYS MISTAKEN FOR BURGLARS; 1 FATALITY, 1 SERIOUSLY WOUNDED

(By The Associated Press.)

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 11.—John Scanlan, 9 years old, was fatally shot and George Rick, 16, seriously wounded last night, by Mrs. Anna Cavado, who told the police she fired believing the boys, who had entered her back yard, to be burglars. The Rick boy told officers, it was said, that he and his companion were on a chicken stealing expedition when they were fired upon.

10 PERSONS KILLED IN A WRECK IN PORTUGAL

(By The Associated Press.)

Lisbon, Nov. 10.—Ten persons are reported to have been killed and eight injured, when a passenger train in the province of Algarve bound for Lisbon, was wrecked by rails placed across the track. Some of the killed and wounded were women and children.

Railway workers have issued a manifesto declaring that they had no part in the wrecking of the train. The government believes extremists are responsible.

The Royal Irish constabulary consists of approximately 10,000 men.

SYMPTOMS WOMEN DREAD

Mrs. Wilson's Letter Should Be Read by All Women

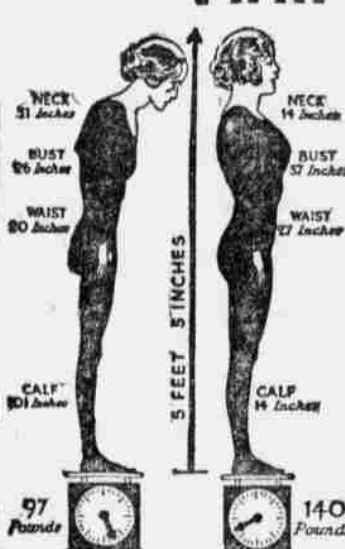

Clearfield, Pa.—"After my last child was born last September I was unable to do all of my own work. I had severe pains in my left side every month and had fever and sick dizzy spells and such pains during my periods, which lasted two weeks."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing others so much good and thought I would give it a trial. I have been very glad that I did, for now I feel much stronger and do all of my work. I tell my friends when they ask me what helped me, and they think it must be a grand medicine. And it is. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish."

—Mrs. HARRY A. WILSON, R.F.D. 5, Clearfield, Pa.

The experience and testimony of such women as Mrs. Wilson prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct such troubles by removing the cause and restoring the system to a normal condition. When such symptoms develop as backache bearing down pains, displacements, nervousness and "the blues" a woman cannot too promptly try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

HERNDON STATES SCOPE OF LOAN AGENCY ACTIVITY

Chairman of Local Finance Corporation, Gives Out Information As to Regulations and Provisions.

Because of common misunderstanding of the nature and administration of amendments to the war finance corporation act included in what is popularly known as the "agricultural relief act," the following outline of the new measures has been approved by J. B. Herndon, chairman of the agricultural loan agency.

The recent amendments authorize the war finance corporation to make loans for financing exports of staple agricultural products and for agricultural purposes in general.

The term "agricultural purposes" has been specifically defined by the corporation to mean "any purposes connected with the growing, harvesting, preparation for market and marketing of agricultural products, including the breeding, raising, fattening and marketing of livestock."

The fundamental purpose of the amendments is to provide for financing the farmer and livestock man, but in practical operation loans are not made direct to individual producers. Banks, trust companies and co-operative associations advance money to the producers and in turn may borrow from the war finance corporation.

Who May Borrow. The amendments govern loans for agricultural purposes and those for financing exports of farm products. Provisions dealing with advances for agricultural purposes authorize loans to:

a. Any bank, banker or trust company that has itself made advances to producers for agricultural purposes as defined by the war finance corporation, or has discounted or rediscounted negotiable paper issued for those purposes.

The term "bank, banker or trust company" has been defined as including loan associations, co-operative associations or co-operative associations for the permitted purposes. The war finance corporation is encouraging the formation of loan associations in districts in which banking facilities are inadequate to meet the requirements of farmers and livestock men.

b. Any co-operative association of producers that has itself made advances to producers for agricultural purposes as defined by the war finance corporation, or has discounted or rediscounted negotiable paper issued for those purposes.

Regulations. In effect, regulations governing loans to banks, trust companies, loan associations or co-operative associations are as follows:

1. The amount borrowed from the war finance corporation may not exceed the unpaid balance of loans made and agricultural paper held by the borrowing bank, trust company, loan association or co-operative association.

2. The borrower must give a promissory note or other instrument imposing upon him an unconditional and primary obligation to repay the loan at maturity.

3. Advances "shall be fully and adequately secured in each instance by indorsed, guaranty, pledge or otherwise."

4. The board of directors of the war finance corporation is empowered to fix the rate of interest on advances made by the corporation, and a bank, banker, or trust company borrowing from the corporation on the basis of loans made for agricultural purposes may not charge on such loans a rate of interest more than 2 per cent in excess of the rate charged by the corporation.

(This 2 per cent was determined upon at a rate that fairly credit the bank for the cost of handling the advance to the farmer or livestock man, the risk taken, and so on.)

5. The war finance corporation may make advances for a period of one year, and an advance may be extended for not to exceed three years from the date of the original loan. The corporation may make loans not exceeding in the aggregate $1,000,000,000, up to July 1, 1922.

(It must be understood that the amendment of the war finance corporation act is wholly an emergency measure designed to meet abnormal conditions. It is not contemplated that the war finance corporation shall carry these agricultural loans indefinitely. Borrowers from the corporation will have to repay these loans at the end of three years, at the latest, and loans for agricultural purposes remaining unliquidated at that time will have to be carried by the lending banks, trust companies, loan associations or co-operative associations.)

Procedure. In order that advances to banks and trust companies under this act may be administered with greater facility and by men familiar with the needs of the particular locality in which the loans are sought, the war finance corporation has created agricultural and livestock loan agencies in each of the principal agricultural and livestock raising districts of the country.

In the Eleventh federal reserve district there are loan agencies at Fort Worth, Tex., and at Albuquerque, N. M.

These agencies pass on only the applications of banks, bankers, trust companies and loan associations. Co-operative associations desiring advances must apply direct to the war finance corporation at Washington, D. C.

In the case of a bank or trust company or loan association, the act works out like this:

A bank has lent $100,000 to farmers in its locality, all for purposes permitted in the act. Of this $100,000, $20,000 has been repaid and the bank still carries $80,000. The bank is authorized, then, to borrow $80,000 from the war finance corporation.

It makes application, on forms obtainable from any federal reserve bank or branch bank, an agricultural loan agency or the war finance corporation, to the nearest loan agency. If the application is approved, the advance is made. If, a year later, the farmer has been unable to repay his borrowings from the bank, the bank may request an extension of the loan from the war finance corporation. The amount of the renewed loan, however, may not exceed the balance remaining due on account of

FIRST SAVINGS BANK CHARGED WITH FRAUD IN PURCHASE OF NEW BANK SITE FROM WIDOW

Action Commenced in Federal Court to Cancel Deed Granted Year Ago Upon Representations Made to 83-Year-Old Lady By Officers of Trust Company.

(SPECIAL DISPATCH TO MORNING JOURNAL)
Santa Fe, Nov. 11.—Suit has been commenced in federal court here by Olivia G. Greenleaf, acting through her attorney, Summers Burkhardt, against the First Savings Bank and Trust company of Albuquerque, charging fraud in the purchase of a business block in the city of Albuquerque which the bank bought as a new location for its business.

The complaint, which it should be remembered is merely the plaintiff's statement of contentions and is not the proof in the case, claims that through fraud the bank induced Mrs. Greenleaf, who is a widow 83 years old, to sell a building and ground worth $65,000 for $42,500.

Mrs. Greenleaf is the widow of R. H. Greenleaf, who was well known in Albuquerque. She went to California five years ago. After going there, she conveyed the building recently occupied by the bank to the Greenleafs, and now being remodeled into a new home for the First Savings Bank and Trust company, and the First Savings Bank and Trust company on May 3, 1919, to be held by the bank in trust during the life of the widow and upon her death to go to her heirs, the bank being authorized to collect rents, pay taxes and the like.

About the middle of October, 1920, Charles S. White, an officer of the trust company, whom the plaintiff alleges she had known from boyhood and in whose integrity and ability she had perfect confidence, came to her home at Glendale, Calif., and is reported to have represented that the Greenleaf building here was worth not to exceed $42,500, that rents were not advancing and that taxes were, that the First Savings Bank and Trust company, then trustee on the building, would buy the building for $42,500 and give her the note secured by a mortgage on the building payable five years after the date of sale with interest at 8 per cent. After negotiations, she accepted the offer and on October 18, 1920, executed her deed conveying the property to the bank. The bank sent its note to her and a quit claim deed reconveying to her the title it had held as trustee and terminating the trust.

Paragraph four of the complaint contains the allegation that Mrs. White had represented to Mrs. Greenleaf that by selling the property to the bank she would receive a larger annual income than she could or would receive from rentals and that the proposed sale would be of great benefit and advantage to her.

The complaint charges: "That the said representations and there so made to her as aforesaid were false and fraudulent, as the said defendant is a said agent at the time of making the same well knew, and were so made by said defendant with the intent and purpose to deceive and defraud plaintiff and to induce her to sell the said property for a grossly inadequate price."

It is set forth that the proper price of the real estate would have been about $85,000 and it is claimed that Mrs. Greenleaf would have been $4,000 better off at the end of five years had she received rentals on her building instead of interest on the amount paid for it.

That Mrs. Greenleaf would have been $4,000 better off at the end of five years had she received rentals on her building instead of interest on the amount paid for it. That Mrs. Greenleaf would have been $4,000 better off at the end of five years had she received rentals on her building instead of interest on the amount paid for it.

J. M. Reynolds when asked for a statement on the Greenleaf suit stated last night that he had no comment to make.

NEW YORK HEARS TRUMPET CALL AT ARLINGTON FIELD

Throbbing Heart of Trade in Metropolis Stilled Out of Reverence for Burial of Unknown Hero.

(By The Associated Press.)
New York, Nov. 11 (by the Associated Press).—New York's throbbing heart of trade was stilled today in reverent tribute to that heroic heart, forever stilled, that was laid to rest with the highest honors the world could pay, in Arlington National cemetery.

A vast crowd in and around Madison Square Garden, obeying the same trumpet call that summoned the throng at Arlington to attention at noon, stood with bowed heads, for two minutes, offering prayers for the dead and vowing that the peace he died to win.

At the same moment the city's wheels of industry droned into silence; transportation ceased, tugs and ferries idled in the harbors, telephone service was suspended; telegraph instruments ceased their clatter, citizens everywhere—in their homes, in their offices, in the great railroad terminals, even on the streets—stood with bowed heads bowed in homage to the symbolic unknown.

Flags at half mast flew throughout the city. Public buildings, military posts, visiting ships in the harbor—ships that were the faces of nearly all the nations of the world—not excepting the German—displayed their colors at mourning.

Observance of the sacred moment centered at Madison Square Garden, where telephone amplifying devices had been set up to connect Arlington and New York.

The great hall, festooned with the flags of America and the allies, and filled with the nation's capacity of 15,000, and the crowd outside filled every available inch of Madison Square park long before the first voice came over the wires from Arlington, announcing that the body of the unknown soldier was placed on the catafalque and that Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Harding were entering the amphitheater.

From that moment until the last tremulous strain of "Taps" died away, the audience was, in spirit, with the vast concourse at Arlington. Every word that was spoken, every hymn that was sung; descriptions of the nation's military medals of eight nations and with the wreaths of two nations' war mothers—all came over the wires to the mourners in and around the Garden.

So securely was the throng held in the spirit of the services, that when President Harding, closing his oration, began the recitation of the Lord's Prayer, its myriad voices blended in a thunderous murmur of "Our Father, Who art in Heaven," with the vibrant lead of the chief executive.

Then bestowing of the decorations—"Worn in Mortality: Worn in Eternity," the president's tones of the president as he placed the congressional medal of honor and the distinguished service cross over the heart of the unknown. Then Jacques and all the other world figures who had come to lay their nations' honors above the body of America's hero.

Advances made by the bank for agricultural purposes.

If a co-operative association is borrowing from the war finance corporation the procedure is the same, except that application for advances are made direct to the corporation's offices in Washington.

Individual producers, as has been pointed out, cannot borrow from the corporation. They borrow from the banks, loan associations or co-operative associations, which then borrow from the war finance corporation.

BLISS OFFICERS TO TANGLE WITH 'VARSITY TODAY

Bring 27 Men on Two Days' Trip Overland; Two Regulars to be Missing From Line-Up in Today's Game

After a two days' trip from Fort Bliss in army trucks, twenty-seven men of the Bliss officers' football team arrived in Albuquerque shortly after 6 o'clock last night. All of the men will be in first class shape for their game with the varsity at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The officers will go to the game this afternoon with two of their regulars missing, according to Lieutenant Blank, who accompanies the team as coach. Bush, a regular halfback, was unable to secure a release from special duty, and could not accompany the team, and Crum, who holds down right end, will be kept out of the game by a sore ankle.

The officers will line up this afternoon as follows: Ends, Bunk and Snyder; tackles, Rayburn and Gorch; guards, McKoon and Pille; center, Knight; quarterback, Courtney; halfbacks, Jones and Kulla; fullback, Kallman.

Lieutenant Blank, who was a member of Walter Camp's All-American eleven in 1918, will not be in the line-up when the game opens, although it is possible he may later enter the fray. He has not played with the officers' team in any game this year, acting solely as coach.

The Fort Bliss line will average about 175 pounds, practically equalling the varsity average. The varsity will also enter the game with virtually its regular line-up, though Calkins will be absent, nursing his sore chest. The team will probably enter the game with the following line-up: Ends, White and Bernhardt; tackles, Greenleaf and Popejoy; guards, Hernandez and Ferguson; center, Pearce; quarter, Jones, halfbacks, Willey and Popejoy; fullback, Hernandez.

The game, which is the second the varsity has played this season, and the third which the officers have played, will begin promptly at 2:30 o'clock at the University field.

UNION LEADER ACTS TO AVERT STRIKE OF GARMENT WORKERS

(By The Associated Press.)
New York, Nov. 11.—A proposition to avert the threatened strike of 50,000 garment workers here next Monday, was offered by Benjamin Schlessinger, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, in a letter made public tonight to the twelve United States senators, who had made efforts today to prevent the strike.

After reviewing the past relations between the employers and the workers which led to the creation of a bi-partisan commission last June, which was to consider means of increasing production in the trade and report November 1, he wrote:

"If the employers' association will consent before November 14, to continue operations under the terms of the existing agreement upon the understanding that the joint commission resume its work and make definite recommendations by the fifteenth day of next January, the union will call off the strike immediately."

"But if the manufacturers will not recede from their unreasonable and autocratic position, and merely consent to defer action to a later date, the union will force workers will be forced to take up the fight for their rights without delay."

L. L. Langer, secretary of the joint commission of the garment workers, said that the letter reflected the attitude of the workers.

GALLUP HIGH BESTS BELEN IN FAST GAME

Gallup defeated Belen yesterday at Belen by a score of 12 to 0. Gallup made two touchdowns in the first quarter, which ended the scoring for both teams. The Belen team had improved considerably since its first game two weeks ago when the Gallup high boys trounced them to a score of 12 to 0.

Belen will play St. Mary school here a week from today.

The cost of the world war to the United States, between April 6, 1917, and June 30, 1920, was $24,010,000,000.

10-YEAR-OLD BOYS ADMIT SNATCHING NUMBER OF PURSES

With the arrest of three boys each about 10 years old, police have broken up a gang of youngsters which have obtained possibly two hundred dollars in the past few weeks by snatching purses from women. Last night, shortly after their arrest, the boys admitted snatching three purses. Police have from descriptions that they are responsible for several other similar actions.

The boys had about $20 with them when arrested. This is thought to be a part of the $25 contained in the purse which was snatched from Mrs. R. M. Genin, 329 North Twelfth street, a few nights ago. Two of the boys admitted snatching the purse of Mrs. J. McDaniel, 412 East Silver avenue. It contained $40.

Their plan of operation was to stop women along the street and walk along with them while they talked about where they had been and where they lived. Then, when they got a good chance, they would snatch the woman's purse and run for safety.

PRESCOTT DEFEATED BY WINSLOW; SCORE 27-14

The Winslow high school football team defeated the Prescott high school eleven at Winslow yesterday with a score of 27 to 14. The Prescott team is noted for its fast players.

The playing of Jay Sutherland, quarterback for Winslow, was the feature of the game.

OFFICERS THINK KEMPENICH TOOK HIS OWN LIFE

Investigation of the cause of the death of Eugene Kempenich, state highway commissioner, who was found dead in his bed at his home in Peralta with a bullet wound in his chest, has been carried on by officials since that time, but very little light has been thrown on the subject, according to Sheriff Tondre, of Los Lunas, who has charge of the case.

Speaking of the case last night, Sheriff Tondre stated that, although he had felt for some time that foul play had entered into the tragedy, he had practically decided that the case was one of suicide.

Considerable difference of opinion was expressed by officials at the time of the discovery of the tragedy as to whether the wound had been self-inflicted. Many possible clues have been traced down with the result that after close investigation, Sheriff Tondre has practically adopted the suicide theory.

BARELAS BRIDGE TO REMAIN OPEN DURING REPAIRS

State Highway Department Will Build Temporary Bridge to Be Used While Repairing Main Structure

Barelas bridge will not be closed to traffic during the completion of the repair work.

State Highway Engineer L. A. Gillett, at the mass meeting held yesterday afternoon at the chamber of commerce, assured the citizens from the other side of the river that they would not be cut off from direct communication with Albuquerque due to bridge repair work. A temporary bridge will be constructed within a few days by the state highway department across the part of the river bed now filled with water.

The repair work will not start until this temporary structure is in place. It will bridge the impassable part of the stream and a road across the sand will be used to reach this side of the river bed.

Indignation meetings have been held every afternoon for the past three days by the citizens living across the river. The matter came to a climax when a few days ago a notice was posted on the bridge stating that the repair work would be started and the bridge closed. It was later learned that it would take at least three months to complete the work and that unless other arrangements were made, the passage across the river would be closed for that period of time.

District Attorney E. B. Garcia was appealed to for advice and the meeting of the citizens, the bridge contractor, Mr. Garcia and State Highway Engineer, L. A. Gillett, A. E. St. Morris, highway superintendent, and N. M. McCloskey were arranged for yesterday. When the matter was placed before the members of the highway department and it was pointed out that the closing of the bridge would result in heavy loss, as well as great inconvenience to the valley ranchers and to Albuquerqueans and tourists, the temporary bridge was decided upon, the state highway department having charge of the construction.

"The residents west of the river feel very grateful to all those who have helped us out in this matter," declared J. T. Young, chairman of the residents' protest committee, after the decision was made for the temporary bridge yesterday. "We want to express our appreciation of the co-operation of the citizens of Albuquerque, District Attorney E. B. Garcia, the members of the state highway department, Dr. D. R. Boyd, County Engineer Edmund Ross, the Morning Journal and all others who have contributed in any way toward relieving the serious situation."

SHALL WE INVESTIGATE?

No more serious situation confronts the citizens of New Mexico than the irregularities and inefficiencies which are bound to exist in almost every department of state government as a result of the present laws governing the auditing of accounts. The state traveling auditor is made the sole auditor for state departments, state institutions, counties, school districts, cities and drainage districts. Public money can not be expended to employ other auditors, according to the decision of the attorney general.

As a result of this situation the utmost laxity existed in the expenditure of public monies and the handling of public accounts, in a large proportion of these sub-divisions of the state.

In his report of conditions in the department of education the traveling auditor says that the last audit was four and one-half years ago. So that department had gone unchecked for that period. In another portion of the report he says that the department is now audited "out of turn" at the request of the state board of education.

For the love of Mike! Not audited for four and one-half years and then audited "out of turn"? Will some mathematical genius estimate for us when it would have been audited if it had been compelled to await its turn, as other sub-divisions must do?

This is not mere carping. It is the most vital criticism of which any one can conceive. At least ten million dollars is expended by public officials each year in New Mexico. No one but the traveling auditor is authorized by law to check up this expenditure. He can not make the rounds once in six years and, with a real audit, can not do so once in ten years. Conceding that the traveling auditor is honest and competent, this is appalling. But his report on the educational department shows that he is not competent. This adds to the distress of the taxpayer.

This situation should set the state on fire. That families should sacrifice comforts to pay taxes on their homes, only to have the money loosely or corruptly spent, without adequate auditing supervision, is a crime against the people which should not be endured.

When Albert Simms was made chairman of the county commission of Bernalillo county he found there had been no audit of the county for four and a half years. The commission spent $1,000 contrary to the ruling of the attorney general, in procuring a check-up for a year back. For this they are to be commended. Yet today, the previous three and one-half years stands un-audited.

This county is in financial troubles now. Whose fault it is the Journal does not know. It is easily ascertainable. If the business men of the city would conduct a private audit. This they have a right to do at private expense. The records are public. Access to them can not be denied. If a movement is not started, to go to the bottom of county affairs, we deserve the worst kind of mismanagement. In a communication to the Journal Mr. Simms commends our stand in this matter. He would approve such an audit. We have every confidence in the good faith and high purposes of Mr. Simms.

An investigation of the report of Traveling Auditor Whittier on the educational department shows it to be a "half-baked" affair which borders very closely on a white-wash. It reveals that things are radically wrong, but does not go to the bottom of the matter. For instance, it casually shows an item of $2,500 for "compiling school laws." No date is given and no statement as to who received the money. No one can tell what was done.

Of course, this item might prove to be all right, on investigation. However, the school laws could be "compiled" in two or three days. There are plenty of people who would have rendered this service for nothing as Captain Reid did in compiling the appellate procedure without cost to the state, although that was a much greater task. Even if "compiling" included printing, we can not conceive of how the bill for this small pamphlet could be more than $250. It looks as though much is "rotten in Denmark."

The Journal is wholly dissatisfied with the Whittier report. It reveals just enough to convince us that the whole matter needs a thorough overhauling in the interests of decency and economy. This paper is contemplating putting expert auditors into the educational department to conduct a thorough investigation. The expense is all that deters us. We wonder whether taxpayers are interested sufficiently to come forward with financial assistance in conducting such an investigation? We believe that startling disclosures, leading into other departments of state government, would result.

Public suspicion has been aroused. If there is no basis for it, an investigation will clear the atmosphere. If things are wrong the people should know it. What do you say?

The fear of some republican leaders that an investigation will hurt the party is groundless. If the republican party joins heartily in cleaning its own house, its standing will be helped, not hurt. If it offers resistance, and attempts to conceal wrong-doing by its officers, it will be damned in the public eye. Wisdom advises co-operation.

AMERICAN SHIPPING DECLINING.

Records of ocean carrying under the American flag prove that something more than ships is needed to make a nation a factor in maritime transportation. In July, 1920, foreign vessels carried only 36 per cent of our imports, while in July this year they had 54 per cent of the total. During the same period independent American vessels increased their percentage from 3 to 36 per cent, while shipping board craft lost 22 per cent. In both the import and export divisions shipping board vessels are doing less and less, while independent American shipping is making slight gains, but there can be no denying that foreign ships are rapidly recovering control of the ocean business, which they dominated before the war.

It was the proud belief of Americans that revival of a merchant marine under Old Glory would be one compensation for the sacrifices this country made in the war. Who could doubt that it would be so when we had ready for use such an enormous number of ships and men to man them, to say nothing of the traffic to keep them busy? It seems now that we took a great deal for granted. One thing we overlooked was the indisposition of our associates in the war to let us keep the business that fell to us as the result of their temporary disability. As they have been finding the means to renew their activities they have been getting back into the ocean carrying trade, competing with us and beating us. We have as good ships but they have more favorable marine laws. In consequence they are able to get the business.

This is a matter for regret by Americans. But there is no use crying over our disappointment. Our friends overseas are not to be expected to hand us anything. If we can not manage our affairs so that we can get the wanted share of the marine transportation business we will have to do without it. No American would think of asking favors of them. This matter of merchant marine on which we had placed such high hopes may be considered in connection with the huge sums which European countries owe us. They would like to be relieved of their indebtedness, but in time they will be earning and should pay. Their recovery on the seas at our expense is proof that they will be able to pay. But the American authorities must strive to hold our flag on the seas.

FIGURES ON THE CANAL

Statistics from the Panama Canal Record point to a steady growth in the shipments of Pacific coast fruits by water route, although the diversion from all rail transportation is less than enthusiastic predictions indicated. In the first eight months of the year, up to August 31, the fresh fruit traffic through the canal totaled 7,132 tons, of which 6,000 tons originated on the Pacific coast of the United States. On a ratio of 30 boxes to the ton the estimated fresh fruit shipments aggregated 213,960 boxes. An even more interesting statement would be that covering shipments on all Pacific coast fruits through the canal, since that would be actually clear of the canal from rail tonnage, which heretofore held a monopoly of that traffic.

The favorable side of the Panama canal operation is presented further in the official report, which states that for the fourth consecutive year the water route has shown a profit. In the fiscal year which ended with June 30 last, receipts for tolls exceeded expenditures for operating by $2,712,000, an amount, according to official language, "sufficient to wipe out the last of the deficit resulting from slides in the earlier years of operation." The cost of the canal on invested capital at the same date was $236,543,271.95, a sum which is still substantial.

The world has been out of joint for some time, but the trouble is, the doctors do not seem to be able to reduce the dislocation.

VERSE OF TODAY

HOME HUNGER.

There lies a glory on familiar places,
Born of old dreams and long-remembered faces,
Touching all earthly things of mortal fancy,
With an unearthly and immortal necromancy.

In that warm light lost hopes have being,
Dim figures live; there glowed eyes have seen,
Beyond the stars mysteriously wheeling,
Beyond Time's slow, inexorable revealing.

All hungerers change, forever and forever,
Save the one hungering that changes never;
While that endures there may be cause for laughter,
Laughter, and the brave hope that follows after.

EDITORIAL OF THE DAY

EAST AND WEST AGAINST THE PRESS.

(From the London Times.)
On the same day lately two items of news were published, one from Persia, the other from the United States, but both of interest to the editors of newspapers, and perhaps to their readers. A Persian newspaper had joked about titles conferred upon the victors in a recent battle; whereupon the minister of war sent for the editor, gave him 200 lashes, and put him in prison. The American attempt to deal with an editor was less punitive in character, but also less successful.

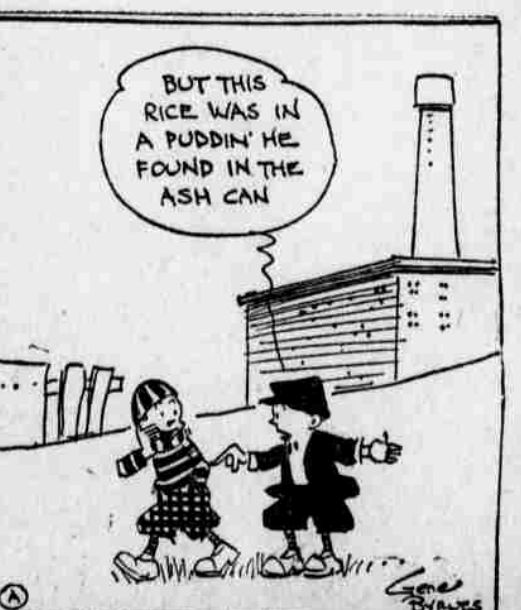

The mayor of Chicago brought an action for libel against the Chicago Tribune, claiming $2,250,000 damages on the ground that the paper had by its attacks on the municipal administration; but the action was dismissed. The methods of the minister and the mayor were different, but their motives and their aims were the same; both resented criticism, and both tried to suppress it. No doubt the mayor would have acted like the minister if the institutions of his country had allowed him to do so; and no doubt mayor and minister alike believed that they were acting in the public interest.

Officials always have believe- and always will believe, that it is wrong to criticize them; they are experts, and know better than any editor what ought to be done; if they sometimes do evil that good may come, they are to be judged by the good they intend, not by the evil they do, or rather, they are not to be judged at all, but left free to get on with their job, whatever it may be. Only by long and painful experience have western nations learned that freedom of criticism, with all its drawbacks, is better than the freedom of officials to do as they please.

But as officials, wherever they may be, continue to resent criticism, so they will attempt new ways of suppressing it. The way of the mayor of Chicago was both novel and audacious; and, if it had been successful, it would no doubt have been developed elsewhere.

UNCLE WIGGLY AND THE MINK.

"Uncle Wiggly, I don't like to see you go out today," spoke Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzey one morning, as the dear old rabbit gentleman was about to start from his hollow stump bungalow.

"Oh, but Janie, I must go out," said Mr. Longears. "Else how can I have an adventure?"

"Well, if you must, I suppose you must," went on Miss Fuzzy Wuzzey. "But I shall be worried about you until you come back."

"Why?" Uncle Wiggly wanted to know.

"Because of what you did to those winter white Weasels yesterday."

"What?" cried the dyed animal.

"It was Uncle Wiggly," said the Mink. "But listen! I have a plan for playing a trick on him. I found some flour in a barn where I crawled last night to get a chicken. I have some of that white flour in a bag with me."

"But what can you do to Uncle Wiggly with white flour?" asked the Weasels.

"I'm going to color myself white with it," spoke the Mink. "And hide along the path that bunny will take. He will not see me because I'll be all white, and I can bite him before he knows it."

"That's all nonsense!" said the larger brown dyed Weasel. "There is no snow on the ground now and it is only when there is white snow that white animals can not be seen. If you dust flour on yourself now you'll be more plainly seen by Uncle Wiggly than if you stay brown."

"Ah, but it is going to snow very soon," snarled the Mink.

"And, surely enough, in a little while a flurry of snow covered the ground, making it all white. Then the Mink dusted himself with flour until he was the color of the snow. Along he ran, to hide beside the path Uncle Wiggly was hopping along. The Mink cowered down in the snow and waited. So up came the bunny gentleman with his feather duster."

"I wonder if this is a good duster," said the bunny aloud. "I ought to have tried it before I took it. But I'll try it now. I'll dust away some of the snow from the path."

"Uncle Wiggly swung the duster

he hopped over the fields and through the woods. "I'll get the feather duster first," thought the bunny. "Then if I have an adventure the duster may share it with me."

Now something very strange was soon to happen, though Uncle Wiggly did not know it. He went to the twenty-two and twenty-three cent store and bought a grand duster made of long, ticklish feathers. And as Uncle Wiggly was hopping home, wondering when an adventure would meet him, all of a sudden, not far from the path the bunny was taking, danger appeared.

This danger was in the shape of a brown animal a little larger than a Weasel, but almost as savage, and the strange part of it was that sneaking along beside the Mink, which was the name of the brown animal, were the two Weasels whom Uncle Wiggly had colored brown the day before.

"I've found out who it was that changed your white winter coats back to a brown color, so you will have hard work to catch anything this season," said the Mink to the Weasels.

"Who?" snarled the dyed animals.

"It was Uncle Wiggly," said the Mink. "But listen! I have a plan for playing a trick on him. I found some flour in a barn where I crawled last night to get a chicken. I have some of that white flour in a bag with me."

"But what can you do to Uncle Wiggly with white flour?" asked the Weasels.

"I'm going to color myself white with it," spoke the Mink. "And hide along the path that bunny will take. He will not see me because I'll be all white, and I can bite him before he knows it."

"That's all nonsense!" said the larger brown dyed Weasel. "There is no snow on the ground now and it is only when there is white snow that white animals can not be seen. If you dust flour on yourself now you'll be more plainly seen by Uncle Wiggly than if you stay brown."

"Ah, but it is going to snow very soon," snarled the Mink.

"And, surely enough, in a little while a flurry of snow covered the ground, making it all white. Then the Mink dusted himself with flour until he was the color of the snow. Along he ran, to hide beside the path Uncle Wiggly was hopping along. The Mink cowered down in the snow and waited. So up came the bunny gentleman with his feather duster."

"I wonder if this is a good duster," said the bunny aloud. "I ought to have tried it before I took it. But I'll try it now. I'll dust away some of the snow from the path."

"Uncle Wiggly swung the duster

to and fro on the ground. On all sides flew the snow flakes and then, all of a sudden, the bunny reached the place where the white Mink was waiting in the snow.

Along the back of the Mink swept the duster. The flour was dusted off, showing the brown fur beneath, for the Mink does not change his color in winter as does the Weasel.

"Oh, ho! Oh, ho! What have we here?" cried the bunny when he saw the brown Mink thus uncovered by the duster. "Trying to catch me, were you?" Then the rabbit gentleman flicked the feather duster in the face of the Mink, making him sneeze "Kerchoo! Ker-snit!"

And when the Mink was sneezing, partly from the feather duster and partly from the flour dust getting up his nose, away ran Uncle Wiggly so fast that he could not be caught.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the bunny as he reached his hollow stump bungalow. "I changed the Weasels from white to brown, the Mink he changed from brown to white, but if they want to nibble me they'll have to sit up most all night!"

So everything came out all right, you see, except that the Mink was very angry because his trick didn't work. And if the rubber ball doesn't go to sleep on the pin cushion and get so filled with holes it can't squirt water at the jump jet, I'll tell you next time about Uncle Wiggly and the needles.

"I was late for school today, and I ran to get the bunny trying to be early but when I got there nobody was outside but Mary Watkins standing there crying, me saying, 'Wats the matter, wats you crying for, wats the matter?'"

"I'm late for school and I haven't got any excuse note and the teacher will talk cross to me and I can't bare it, said Mary Watkins crying wats, and I said, 'Aw dont cry, O wats the matter, ill rite you a ix-cuse note if you promise not to tell who rote it in case anything happens. O, how lovely of you, I promise not to tell. I cross my hart, said Mary Watkins.

And I lore a page out of one of my exercise books and rote her a ix-cuse note, being, Dear Miss Kitty, Please ix-cuse Mary for being late as she had a bad tooth ache that terned to a head ache. Respectfully, Mrs. W. Watkins.

O, wats a bewtiffil ix-cuse note, I promise not to tell, O Benny I think you're perfectly bewtiffil, said Mary Watkins. Making me think maybe I was, and we went in and Miss Kitty sed, Its too bad that somebody always has to be late to spoil the days record. Im not seprized at Benny Potts, but I certainly am seprized at you, Miss Watkins.

I got a note, I got a ix-cuse, Mary Watkins quick sed, and Miss Kitty sed, Well Im glad there's an ix-cusing circumstance in your case, let me see the note. Wich Mary Watkins did, and Miss Kitty red it with a ix-cpression like somebody not believing something, saying, So, Mary, your mother ix-cuse a very good speller, is she?

No mam, sed Mary Watkins, and Miss Kitty sed, Who rote this? Tell me immediately.

Benny Potts and Mary Watkins. Me thinking, Heck, darn it all, and Miss Kitty sed, Benny, is that true, did you rite this note?

Part of it, I sed, and Miss Kitty sed, Wich part? I sed, All of it, and Miss Kitty sed, Then in that case you will kindly remain after skool for part of 2 hours, and if you want to know wats part ill tell you, every part.

Wich I did.

RIPPLING RHYMES

By WAIT MASON.

NOVEMBER.

October, cheerful month, is through, and now November has the floor, and doubtless every day or two she'll hint that winter's at the door; she'll wall sad droops down the flue, and make my spirit tired and sore. November has some fifty days, indorsed by pulpit and by press; she sometimes shows some winning ways, and makes the prospects miss their guess, but still the burden of her lays is always winter and its stress. We see November's sun arise, but do not cheer the goodly sight; we say, "Yon cloudlets in the skies portend a tempest that's a fright, and haply ere the evening dies our shikars will be frozen tight."

November browns the once green earth, and strikes the happy songsters dumb, and sends the ground-hog to his berth, convinced that things are out of plumb; she laughs, but in her hollow mirth we hear vague threats of ill to come. Ah, well, it can't be always June, the other months must have their turn; so let us drop the drear-like tune, and all bleak thoughts and longings spurn; Thanksgiving will be with us soon, when gratitude's our chief concern.

EVAPORATION PLANT DESTROYED BY FIRE

(By The Associated Press.)

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 11.—The evaporation plant of the Telling Bell, Akron company at Wellington, near here, was destroyed with an estimated loss of $100,000 early today by what officials say was an incendiary fire.

Piles of waste saturated with oil and gasoline; the presence of an automobile load of strange men in the village and cut telephone wires are the basis for the assertion that the plant was deliberately set on fire.

Destruction of the plant will have no effect on the status of the strike here of approximately $60 milk wagon drivers employed by the Telling company, officials announced. They said they would double the number of wagons sent out for house to house milk delivery during the day.

How Not to Take Cold.

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room; avoid over heated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, over eating, becoming over heated and then chilled and getting the feet wet. Then, when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.

War department expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, were $1,602,106,356.62.
