Just Half in Bed

Clyde, Ky. - Mrs. I. A. Decker, writes from Clyde: "I recommend Cardui, the woman's tonic, to any woman in need of a remedy. For five years, I was unable to do my own work. Half my time was spent in bed. At last I tried Cardui. Now I am well and happy, and can do my own work. Don't suffer pain, headache, backache, and other womanly miseries, when your own druggist has on his shelf a remedy for such troubles—Cardui. Get a bottle for yourself. As a general tonic for weak women, nothing has been found for 50 years that would take its place.
Try it. It will help you."

THE FORUM

An Open Letter to J. I. Seder, President New Mexico Anti-Saloon League.

Tucson, N. M., Jan. 10, 1911.

The Rev. J. I. Seder, Albuquerque.

Dear Sir and Brother—I am in receipt of your circular entitled "Shall the People Rule," also "To Our County Officers." The one about the enforcement of law is all right, but I am very much surprised at the stand you make the American Anti-Saloon League take with reference to the New Mexico constitution as given in the first named circular. I verily believe that at the bottom of all the opposition to the new constitution is the fact that some bosses and politicians of the minority party are working solely to make political thunder for their own personal boosting in the future, and I am led to believe that the dominating influence on this committee is controlled by strong Democrats. And they see a personal advantage in giving all the prestige the league has to the move against the constitution.Granting that about all you say about the effort by the liquor influence to keep prohibition out of the constitution is correct, you do not see a little further along this line.
There are two ways for us to lose statehood if prohibition were put into the constitution; first, the whisky influence would all line up with the minority party and the combined vote would be pretty certain to beat us;
second, Congress itself is not favorable to prohibition, and we would take our chances there.You very adroitly say that we as individual citizens have a number of other and weighty reasons for objecting to the constitution, but you do not state your reasons; very weighty logic. It is evident that the proposed document compares more than favorably with the other state constitutions.
I would like to know what would be gained if the same delegates were to assemble again to make a constitution to suit everybody. They did their best once, and that best is equal to the best and superior to the most of such documents drawn up by other states. There were quite a number of delegates that were as strong prohibitionists as you or I, but the delegates were all elected in a fair and square election and in nearly every county or delegate district the prohibition issue was drawn personally if not politically, and the result of the election represents the wishes of the voters of New Mexico.
The election in Curry county was fought out along the line of investigating the sentiments of the delegates on the liquor question, but the people were whipped into line by party leaders, so I do not conceive of any good that may arise from the Anti-Saloon League making the fight against the constitution. The time to make the fight was in the election of delegates.The constitution has been written, and if it were rejected the very same men would have to write it again. It would seem to me that it is a pretty poor time to holler "murder" after the dog has been poisoned. It is up to the league to make friends instead of taking a narrow view of statehood, and for selfish reasons fighting statehood.It is a mystery to the laymen who are free, independent American citizens how it is that some can not bow to the unhampered, free rule of the majority at the ballot box, and especially at this time when statehood hangs in the balance.This isn't the only time that strong prohibitionists like you and I will have a chance to assert ourselves, and after statehood comes we have a session of the legislature just as regular as any other state, and I know of nothing in the constitution prohibiting the legislature from handling the liquor question. I fear that the trouble with most of us is that we do not know what a constitution really is, and we want every little legislative bill ever proposed, enacted, or defeated put into our constitution.With best wishes for the success of the Anti-Saloon League, your personal health, and the ADVENT OF STATEHOOD so we will be brought out from the reservation Indian class, and be enabled to rule ourselves, I remain,Yours very sincerely,
L. P. TAFFINDER.Funeral in This City—Robert J.

DIDATES FOR JUDGESHIPS.At Least Pecos Valley Has Its Quota

(Roswell Register-Tribune.)

The fact that President William H.
Taft has indicated an election of state officers in New Mexico as early as the coming June in the event of a favorable vote on the constitution, taken in connection with the prevailing conviction that the vote on that instrument will be favorable is causing more or less comment as to how things will likely be shaped up here after the present official system shall have vanished from the scene.The possible changes to transpire in the courts, and the attorneys, especially, are manifesting a lively interest as to the possible aspirants for judicial honors, so far as this district is concerned. It is understood that the present district judge, William H. Pope, has designs on higher possibilities.Rumor has it that Charles R. Brice of Carlsbad, Eddy county, John T.
McClure of Roswell, Chaves county, and T. R. Reese of Portales, Roosevelt county, are sure to be in the race for the office of district judge.
The friends of each of these gentlemen are numerous and are no doubt prepared to furnish special reasons why the particular candidate of their choice should have the position. U.
S. Bateman and Judge James M. Dye, both of this city, have also been mentioned in connection with the district judgeship, but whether they will enter the race seems at present doubtful.For the place of district attorney Kenneth K. Scott, of this city is more prominently mentioned than any one else. Asked this morning if he would be a candidate, he gave the direct inference that if the constitution carried his friends could persuade him.
Mr. Scott has served as city attorney of Roswell, is well acquainted over the district and would no doubt run a splendid race.These parties are all democrats and it is understood that some, if not all of them, would favor submitting their names to a democratic primary.It is also rumored that Roswell may even present a candidate for the supreme bench in the person of Judge William A. Dunn, whose qualifications are known over the territory.One attorney expressed the opinion this morning that though the judge is a democrat his well known qualifications for the bench are such that practically the entire bar of the district would endorse him for the position regardless of politics.Among the republicans no rumors have developed as to district offices.
The friends of the Hon. Louis O. Fullen, present district attorney, think that his past eminent services entitle him to advancement, and that he would make an excellent attorney general for the new state. Mr. Fullen could fill the office with credit and ability, and should be offered for it, his support would be earnest and enthusiastic from the home district.COMMITTEES TO BOOST by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the deafness, and that is by constituan inflamed condition of the mucous

the tube is inflamed you have a rum-

when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamma-

ONE WEAK SPOT.

Most Santa Fe People Have a Weak Part and Too Often Its The Back.

Everyone has a weak spot. Too often its a bad back. Twinges follow every sudden twist. Dull aching keeps up, day and night. Tells you the kidneys need help. For backache is really kidney-ache. A kidney cure is what you need. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.

Cure backache and urinary ills. Santa Fe people recommend the remedy.

Thomas M. Baca, Cerrillos St., Santa Fe, N. M., says: "My faith in Doan's Kidney Pills is just as strong today as when I publicly recommended them in 1902. I was caused much suffering by backache for three years and my loins were so painful at times that it was all I could do to go around. Doan's Kidney Pills entirely relieved me and I had no return attack of the trouble for six months. At that time my work brought on a recurrence of backache. I at once took Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me relief. A medicine that lives up to the claims made for it like Doan's Kidney Pills do, deserve the strongest endorsement."

George W. Armijo Addresses Spanish American Voters of Lincoln

GOOD BUSINESS REASONS

Tide in Favor of Constitution Is Sweeping Onward Irresistibly.

Delegate J. H. Crist of Monero, Rio Arriba county, was to have addressed a public meeting at Plaza del Alcalde, Rio Arriba county, last evening. Next week, ex-Governor L. Bradford Prince and Hon. O. A. Larrazolo will speak there.

Meeting at Lincoln. At Lincoln, Lincoln county, today, Probate Clerk George W. Armijo delivered the following address in Spanish:

Fellow citizens and fellow patriots: In addressing you on so important a subject as that which claims the attention of all, and is so vital to every man in the whole territory, I do so with the confidence that you will listen to me with forbearance, understanding the great issue at stake, that causes me to ask every man here to vote for the constitution, so that New Mexico may become a great state of the Union. While I am a stranger to you, I feel at home here and am confident that a Lincoln county audience will give me close attention, for I am on my own native heath and among my own people, not through any personal efforts, but as an inheritance from my beloved grandfather, the late Colonel J. Francisco Chavez. Through him I learned to love Lincoln county dearly and partly for his sake I ask tonight your attention and indulgence. I know the mention of his name will awaken in your hearts loving remembrances of a faithful and constant friend, not only on account of his merits and talents but also for the faithful friendship he demonstrated for you during his life time, the good and sane counsel he gave you on the fulfillment of your duty as citizens, on the proper methods you should employ to protect your best interests and on the necessity of working in union and harmony for all that conduces to your welfare and prosperity.

As your grandson, I come before you covered with the mantle of his memory, animated with the same spirit that animated him, to speak as he would have spoken on a subject of great importance to me, to each one of you and to the people of New Mexico.

My theme is the constitution for the state of New Mexico prepared by the constitutional convention composed of Republican and Democratic delegates sent from all parts of the territory, who in harmony and unity framed and endorsed it. It is the delegates having signed their names to the constitution, so that this document is the official exponent and production of the legitimate representatives of the people of New Mexico. A side from this, the constitution itself is such that it has merited general approval from learned, patriotic and disinterested men of New Mexico. President Taft has read it and pro-not specifically enumerated in the enabling act. It also provides irrevocably, equitably and lawfully for all Spanish-American children the right to attend the public schools and public institutions of learning of the state without being subjected to segregation, such as has been practiced in Arizona and even in some of our own counties under the territorial government.

"What more can we ask and what greater advantages can we demand of our fellow citizens for the protection and safeguarding of their rights? I think you will agree with me that we cannot find any better or more effective clause. As you know, what is contained in a constitution is law, permanent and supreme, and no legislature can change it without the consent of the majority of the people."

You may have been told that the state government will place a costly burden on the people, especially the taxpayers. Such a charge would be true if it were not for the offsets, the compensations, which the enabling act and the constitution provide. As soon as the constitution is approved and we are admitted, New Mexico will have at its disposal altogether over thirteen million acres of public domain ceded by the government to aid New Mexico in supporting its public institutions, its universities, colleges, asylums, hospitals, penitentiaries, reform schools, orphan's homes and public schools. These lands cannot be sold for a less average than $4 an acre. Placed at public sale, these lands would therefore produce at least $52,000,000, which would provide a permanent income of more than $2,000,000 a year. So you see, that as a state we would be wealthy, prosperous. We would not need to borrow, nor beg, nor tax people out of existence. We will have ample means to educate our children, so they will become honorable and useful citizens.

Fellow citizens, with the little that I have said, I hope that I have convinced you, that I am not asking you to make any sacrifice in asking you to vote for the ratification of the constitution, but beg you to take advantage of this opportunity that presents itself for your proper benefit and that of your children. I beg you for your own proper welfare in the name of your friend, the late Colonel J. Francisco Chavez, who today is silent in his tomb, but who if he were alive would eloquently beg and implore you not to lose this golden opportunity for which he fought so valiantly in his day, which secures and secures your rights as no other constitution would ever do again. Protect yourselves and your children by voting for this constitution. If you lose the opportunity now, the immigration of strangers not in sympathy and accord with you, who do not understand you, will later force upon you other conditions, endangering your rights and liberties as faithful, loyal and patriotic citizens of this Great American Union.

Mr. Armijo spoke in Spanish. Statehood Will Fix It. "Millions of acres," says the immigration bureau secretary, "are held back from irrigation by the territorial form of government."

"Statehood will be the biggest possible help to the development of New Mexico mines," says a leading mining operator.

The immigration secretary's statement is borne out by that of the territorial engineer, who says in his biennial report that statehood will mean a big increase in irrigation project construction.

There is no guess work about this business. There are on file batches of correspondence from irrigation promoters and mining investors; they are ready to loosen up and make the dirt fly when the territorial form of government is dispensed with.

There is no sentiment about this. It is cold blooded business.

It is about time for the people of New Mexico to tear down this fifty year barrier and leave the way open for money to come in and develop our resources. Congress after long years has made a breach in the wall for us and it is up to New Mexico to do the rest. We believe there will be a flood tide of ballots on January 21 that will sweep away this barrier forever.

Thirty million tons of ore have been developed at Santa Rita, Grant county; 1500 men are at work, five steam shovels and eight locomotives are hauling out ore. At Custer a vanadium plant is going up at cost of $150,000. In the Mogollon district millions in ore are being carted out of the hills. It begins to look really as if New Mexico's mineral development had just begun and will grow vastly with the coming of statehood.

"A NERVOUS WRECK"

"My daughter is rapidly becoming a nervous wreck," said an anxious father to a friend who happened to be a druggist. "She has no appetite, is run-down, weak, takes no interest in anything and we cannot find anything that helps her."

"Why don't you give her Vinol?" said the druggist. "It is not a secret nostrum, just a simple and delicious cod liver and iron tonic—and the best strength creator and general all round tonic we have ever sold in our store. Take a bottle home and try it. We'll return your money if it does not help her."

Within ten days the father came back for another bottle of Vinol, saying that he had never seen such a change in a girl in his life, and he felt sure one more bottle of Vinol would restore her to her normal condition.

Such cases as the above are constantly coming to our attention, and we ask every run-down, nervous, debilitated, aged or weak person in this vicinity, and every person suffering from a chronic cough, cold, or bronchial trouble, to try a bottle of Vinol on the same terms as above. Capital Pharmacy.

INTERVIEW WITH GOVERNOR

Highways in Bernalillo County Are Declared to Be Worst in New Mexico.

"Bernalillo county is one of the smallest in New Mexico and is said to be one of the wealthiest, but it is said as a mark of its lack of enterprise, it presented the worst so-called roads encountered on our whole tour."

This is the highly disagreeable truth spoken by A. L. Westgard, in the current number of Collier's, which contains an account of the recent coast to coast trip of the path-finding "Premier." The visit of this car to Albuquerque on its way from New York to Los Angeles will be chiefly remembered, of course, because Harry Drum, of Chicago, journalist abroad, carried off a bride from that city in the person of Miss Constance Sellers.

Westgard's article is illustrated with various views along the route, including one of the remarkable piece of road building down the La Bajada cliffs between here and Santa Fe, a view of a camp near Albuquerque and a scene in the White River national forest of Arizona. Mr. Westgard says in part:

Proceeding south from Las Vegas, we traveled through some exceedingly rough country, steep climbs and rough wash-out roads with high centers, to Old Bernal, a Mexican town and a conglomeration of adobe huts which offered quite a problem when it came to finding the main trail out of the village. We followed the railroad to Glorieta, from where we made a short cut up through Piedras Negras canyon to Santa Fe. During the 137 miles from Las Vegas to Santa Fe we had met only one man who could speak English, the telegraph operator at Glorieta, and, by the way, he gave us wrong directions, which led us into and out of some of the roughest trails ever traveled by an automobile. But for a bowing acquaintance with Spanish, acquired during a residence of some years in the southwest, we would have had a hard time of it this day. In some parts there were no main roads; all trails looked alike and showed about an equal amount of traffic, and many a false start was made at the frequent forks where no one was at hand to give directions.

Santa Fe, being off the main line of the railroad, is not visited by tourists to the extent it deserves. It is without question one of the most interesting towns in America. Its oldest house, built in 1530, its narrow streets lined with adobe houses, its splendid old church and picturesque plaza, Indians peddling wool carried on the backs of burros, its Mexican restaurants, all lend a charm and picturesque quality rarely met with.

I had a conference with Governor Mills at the capital, and discussed the matter of road improvements with him and with the territorial engineer. I found them thoroughly alive to the issue and believe great improvements will shortly appear along the route which we traveled. From Santa Fe to Bernalillo we followed a territorial road recently constructed. It was splendidly built in many zig-zags down La Bajada mountain, a lava cliff; but across the sandy Bad Lands beyond it was of doubtful value, being merely graded through loose sand, and where moisture is so scarce it will remain a heavy road until copiously saturated with oil. Albuquerque is located in Bernalillo county. It is one of the smallest counties in the state and is said to be one of the wealthiest, but, it is said as a mark of its lack of enterprise, it presented the worst so-called roads encountered on our whole tour.

We were told harrowing tales of what we would find thirty miles beyond the city, at the Rio Puerco. There would be two feet of water many dangerous quicksands, etc. After leaving our pilot some ten miles out, we certainly did encounter plenty of deep sand and a bunch of coyotes, on which we assiduously practiced sharpshooting but we crossed the Puerco river without knowing it was the river. There was no water whatever, merely a sand wash and no quicksands, but we ran into a lot of confusing trails.

On reaching Laguna, a splendid specimen of Indian pueblo, and the only one close enough to the Santa Fe railroad to be distinctly seen from the passing trains. We found that no gasoline was to be had, so we proceeded over what was nothing more or less than a rotten road to Cubero, fifteen miles distant and off the railroad. There we procured fifteen gallons of welcome gasoline. We now began to realize that the gasoline problem was becoming serious, especially after getting only one and a half gallons more at McCarthy's last station on the railroad which we expected to see for

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right side, and my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but it was as I was afraid to stop too soon."—Mrs. SADIE MCELLEN, 2728 N. E. St. Elwood, Ind.

Will women take chances with an operation or drag out a shilly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration. If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

another 35 miles. The country south of the Santa Fe and north of the Southern Pacific railroad in western New Mexico and eastern Arizona is beautiful beyond description and has the further and unusual charm of being absolutely new to tourists. Ours was the first automobile seen on a major part of this section of our route. The first habitation south of McCarthy's was El Rancho del Puente de Malpais, located fifty miles south of the point of a lava bed, some ten miles wide and about 45 miles long. This lava bed is about 4 to 10 feet high, perfectly black, and full of deep crevices. Our road skirted this formation its entire length, and passed between it and multicolored sandstone cliffs, rising precipitously some 500 feet above our heads. The distance between the two formations varied from a few feet to one-eighth of a mile, and the road was deep sand, caused by abrasions from the cliffs. This country is romantically called by the Indians "Romansis," and most appropriately it is named. We pitched our fourth camp in this enchanted section, and the next day we reached Nations' ranch, where we procured gasoline and were most hospitably entertained.

Into a Crater. More rough country and badly washed roads to Salt Lake. This little lake, locally called Laguna Salina de Zunia, is a unique natural phenomenon. It is located in a deep kettle or crater, and is so salty that it is said one can not even wade knee-deep in it without holding on to stones to keep the legs from bobbing up like corks. It has two hollow cones arising from its surface and these are said to be bottomless. The surface of this lake covers about nine or ten acres, and on its shores is located a small Mexican village, the inhabitants being mainly engaged in gathering salt for stockmen of the region. It was, indeed, a hard climb for our car out of this crater, but ours had the distinction of being the first ever seen in those parts. Shortly afterwards we crossed the line into Arizona, and after a lot of hard going over lava-strewn roads we landed pretty tired at Springerville, a common settlement and headquarters of the forest service for the White River National Forest reserve. We found a very fair hotel here and plenty of gasoline—at fifty cents a gallon. The next day we climbed up through magnificent pine forests and above the timber line found the old road, almost obliterated by snow twenty inches deep; for eight miles we plowed along, backed and forged ahead again, consuming four hours in covering the distance, working strenuously with shovel all the time. Upon re-entering the timber the snow disappeared, and at Cooley's ranch we had excellent quarters for the night.

Upon arriving at White River Apache Indian agency, the agent, upon presentation of my commission as a special agent of the United States Office of Public Roads, kindly let me have five gallons of cleaning fluid, used in the tailor shop; this was dandy 90-proof gasoline, and made the car run like a Colt. As this quantity was insufficient to take us to the next gasoline station, we called at Fort Apache, and from the officer on duty, by the use of the same persuasive documents employed by the agency, procured another five gallons a distant surprise—the roads were not only getting better but really good. The country was growing wilder, the road winding up and down deep forces and crossing the White river always power, built on scientific grade. In this region there were no houses whatever except a government station established at the Black river ford. Wild turkeys, quail and mountain cats were plentiful, and the scenery was truly inspiring.

We struck the railroad again, this time a branch of the Southern Pacific, at Rice, and followed it for twenty miles to Globe, a thriving copper mining town. From here to Phoenix via Roosevelt Dam we again were on of touch with civilization, though we had an excellent government road for one hundred miles.

HUGHIE JENNINGS STOLE A BASE ON FANS.

Dropped Into Santa Fe for Dinner Yesterday and Out Again Without Attracting Notice.

Hughie Jennings was here yesterday.

The startling news is in circulation among local fans this morning and there are many regrets that Hughie did not make his presence known.

His appearance in Santa Fe was revealed by Hughie's own writing on the register of the Hotel Montezuma. It was the same clean cut script of the manager of the Detroit Tigers and the world-famed ball player. Hughie is a lawyer in Scranton when he is not arguing against opponents on the diamond.

But why was Hughie so shy of Santa Fe fans? Ah, there is a reason, perhaps. A dispatch from Philadelphia may explain it. Here is the telegram:

"Hughie Jennings, world-famed manager of the Detroit Tigers and Miss Nora Mary O'Boyle were married here Tuesday morning by the Rt. Rev. Prendergast."

Was Hughie, therefore, on his wedding tour to California, "and stopped off in Santa Fe to see the old Palace and other sights, but not his fan friends?"

OFFICIAL PAPER OF SANTA FE COUNTY.

The New Mexican is the oldest newspaper in New Mexico. It is sent to every postoffice in the Territory, and has a large and growing circulation among the intelligent and progressive people of the Southwest.

THE WORD OF JURISTS.

The recent unqualified endorsement of the constitution by Chief Justice W. H. Pope in an interview first published in the New Mexican, has brought over to its support many voters, who had hesitated and wavered because of the exaggerated claims put forth by those against and some of those in favor of the constitution. His was a calm, judicial opinion that bore weight with men of thought. Associate Judges Frank W. Parker and C. J. Roberts helped to formulate the constitution; Associate Justice M. C. McChesney is defending and praising it on the stump; the other judges favor it. Now comes former Associate Justice Alfred W. Cooley, who is unprejudiced, if any one is, and says the constitution is a good one. Commenting on this, the Albuquerque Morning Journal declares:

The government of New Mexico, says Judge Alfred W. Cooley, depends under this constitution entirely on the people of the state.

Judge Cooley's letter is an argument for statehood that is keen as a rapier and its keynote is in the foregoing sentence.

The people of New Mexico have the power to make this constitution a power for good government or a bad government.

The significance of this constitution like the celebrated "observation" of Cap'n Cuttle is in the "application on't." The strong point of the constitution is that its power for good or ill lies with the people.

The people cannot escape responsibility for their government through the constitution. A good law cannot be voted down because the constitution does not specifically ordain the passage of such a law, a pernicious law cannot be passed on the ground that the constitution demands it.

The constitution leaves the law making power with the people. It turns over the election of their officers to the people. It places the burden of good administration or bad administration on the people. It gives them every opportunity to rule themselves well; it cannot prevent them from ruling themselves unwisely. There are certain broad general principles which lay down, principles which broadly govern the passage of laws and their administration; it cannot contain specific legislation for the government of future changing conditions and changing population.

Law, we are told, must be right or it is not law. Specious, fallacious, anarchistic. This means nothing more or less than that every man may be the arbiter of the righteousness or evil of a statute. Law is the will of the majority under our system of government. The majority will rule in the State of New Mexico. The constitution to be in accord, requires with the constitution of the United States must assure this.

Granted, then, that the majority will rule in the new state. The majority may pass any law it desires. Can't it self government?

Law, in the State of New Mexico will not be that which some particular agitator thinks right. It will be the expression of the majority of the people. We are optimistic enough to believe that the majority of the people of New Mexico will pass laws which are right.

If we accept the argument of the "ants" that the people of New Mexico cannot be trusted to elect honest men; that they can not be trusted to pass good laws; that they cannot be trusted to serve their constituents honestly in public office; it will be the fault and the misfortune of the people. You cannot compel the people to be good by a constitution.

The constitution does not contain a prohibition clause; neither does it forbid murder, arson, highway robbery, suicide or stealing cattle.

It gives the people however, power to define and to punish crimes, to make and interpret and execute its laws; it prescribes and safeguards the making, interpretation and execution of laws.

The cause of good government in New Mexico, as in every other state, will be in the hands of the people. This is the long desired consummation, the control of our own government.

Don't reject self government because you don't like the shape or some of the stones in the foundation.

THE POCKETBOOK REASON.
Highbrows may sneer at the "pocketbook" appeal in politics but the pocketbook is the tenderest spot of the human anatomy and very often when high-flown arguments fail to convince, a touch of the pocketbook makes the whole world kin at the polls. Therefore, there is much practical weight to the reasons advanced by the Roswell Register-Tribune in advocating the approval of the constitution when it says:

"It is a significant fact that practically all of the property owners favor the constitution. They realize perfectly well that if statehood carries that the value of all real estate will take an upward jump, and they want to see all that sort of acrobatics they can. It is certainly needed in these parts. They also see that if the constitution is defeated that it will cause a slump in values that will be hard to stand. No sane property owner is going to hesitate in such an emergency, especially when the constitution proposed is a thoroughly good one.

"There is a great awakening going on among the farmers of the outlying country in regard to the constitution. They are beginning to realize that its adoption means five months of schools in the smallest and poorest districts, and a practical doubling of the school fund. They are also realizing that the passage of statehood to completion will many times enhance the value of their lands, while if it is defeated it will be all off so far as ever selling at a fair price is concerned. These are points that get close to the farmer, and they are getting in shape to go to the polls and vote for the constitution.

"The fact that in Roswell a vote against the constitution means a vote against the school children is making Christians out of many who wavered. It takes a hard-hearted man to deliberately vote against the only chance the children have ever had for a useful education with which to enter the fierce modern competition we call life."

The Tribune adds rather maliciously: "If there were no other reason why the average man was for the constitution, he would be justified in his faith that it should be carried, by looking around him and seeing who is against it. Ever think about that, beloved?"

W. B. Walton, in his Silver City Independent, also adds a pocketbook reason that appeals especially to Santa Fe and Grant counties and which carries the more weight as it comes from a recognized Democratic leader. He says:

"Some of those who are fighting the constitution are endeavoring to make capital out of the fact that the new state will have to pay the railroad and indebtedness of Grant and Santa Fe counties. It is true that the enabling act requires the state to assume such indebtedness. It is only right and proper that these counties should be reimbursed for the same. These railroad aid bonds were held by the supreme court of the United States to be invalid and soon after such decision was rendered Congress passed an act validating them and saddling the indebtedness upon the two counties named. Grant county has paid interest on these bonds since 1884, and the payment of the principal by the new state will only be a small amount expended. The constitution declares that the state will assume these debts and issue bonds therefor, but these bonds will be paid out of the proceeds of the rentals and sale of one million acres of land granted by Congress for that purpose. The commissioner of public lands of New Mexico states that he can sell enough of that land immediately to pay for the bonds and that there will remain about six hundred and fifty thousand acres which will go to maintain the public schools.

"If the constitution is adopted and New Mexico admitted as a state, Grant county will receive at once fifty-seven thousand dollars in cash, which will lessen our bonded indebtedness that much and consequently result in a reduction of taxes. Certainly the people of Grant county have every reason to support the constitution in order that they may be relieved of this burden of unjust indebtedness."

THE CAUSE OF GOOD ROADS.

The publication in Collier's, an illustrated weekly of national circulation, of a criticism of New Mexico roads from the standpoint of the automobilist, is proof that good roads are a good advertisement, will attract tourist travel and incidentally bring money to the section which builds and maintains them. Unfortunately, New Mexico roads come in for severe criticism, except where the Territorial Good Roads commission has done substantial work such as over La Bajada hill, or on the Scenic Highway between Santa Fe and Las Vegas, or on the Santa Fe Trail at Raton and between Canoncito and Santa Fe. Such work counts, but stretches of road must be completed between important points. It would never do, for instance, to abandon the work between Santa Fe and the Pecos nor that it is nine tenths completed; nor should the good road to Albuquerque stop at the foot of La Bajada hill. Nor should the Santa Fe Trail be permitted to remain incomplete between Albuquerque and Raton, or the project of a good road to Taos be abandoned. It is true, other parts of the territory also have a right to part of the territorial road fund and the services of the Good Roads commission and they are receiving both. It is up to each county to do its utmost to take advantage of the work of the Good Roads commission and the assistance it gives, and now is the time to do it. Not to do it, is to hurt the commonwealth and each county and the towns in it, in an irretrievable manner, for tourist travel once diverted to other points can be re-established only after a long and costly effort. New Mexico is in the limelight at present and if it had the good roads and the hotel facilities it would attract thousands where only scores come now. Says the Albuquerque Journal of this same matter:

"It is not pleasant to read in a leading periodical that Bernalillo county has the worst roads between New York and Los Angeles. That is what A. L. Westergaard, who recently drove a pathfinder car across the continent, was compelled to say in a recently published article. He commended highly some of the roads in New Mexico and the attitude of the territorial administration toward good roads; but all he could say regarding our roads was 'He said as a mark of the lack of enterprise of Bernalillo county, it has the worst roads we found on our whole tour.'

That is a pretty stiff jolt. But don't abuse Mr. Westergaard; he is only telling the truth and doing us a service. It isn't pleasant to be held up to the country as having the worst roads between the Atlantic and Pacific. In fact, it is highly mortifying. But it is the truth; and there you are.

This ought to be a nice little spur to activity; a prickly little cockle burr under the saddle which will make the people 'buck.' Bernalillo county doesn't need to endure this stigma. So let us all take our dose of medicine as cheerfully as possible and get busy on this road proposition. We have made a good start and our intentions are of the best; but such intentions as is well known form a splendid paving material for that thoroughfare which leads to the regions toured by Dante. The start is good; let us keep a-going."

WHY PAMPER THE INDIAN?

New Mexico is to have an Indian investigation if the following dispatch in the Philadelphia Inquirer is correct:

"Declaring that disgraceful conditions exist in the United States Indian reservations in New Mexico, the executive committee of the Indian Rights Association announced that Matthew K. Sniffen, secretary of the society, would leave this city shortly to visit different points in that territory, to make a thorough investigation. 'Another meeting of the body will be held at which Rev. W. R. Johnston of Tolpach, Arizona, will be present. The clergyman has been studying at the reservations for some time past and it is expected that his information will be a valuable aid to the society in their effort to obtain evidence of fraud among officials of the district. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John Markoe, 1639 Locust street, who is prominently interested in the work of the society.'

"A representative of the society was sent to Oklahoma about a year ago and as the result of his observations two government inspectors were sent to the territory and are now at work on facts supplied by him."

The Indian Rights Association has done more, perhaps than any other agency, to insist that grown-up Indians should be treated like coddled babies, should lean constantly on the arm of Uncle Sam and should be fed and pampered at public expense. Whenever the homely truth is put forth that the Indians are like other men and women who must shift for themselves, a heartrending wail goes forth from a set of shorthaired women and long-haired men in Boston and Philadelphia, that echoes and re-echoes in the halls of Congress and causes a tremor to pass through the Indian office. Yet, no more convincing example of the error of the government in treating the Indians as if they were baboons from Africa in a Zoological garden, is found than right here in New Mexico. The Pueblo Indians of the Las Cruces and Ysleta sections, who somehow escaped that pampering, degenerating supervision of the government have amalgamated with the surrounding population, are men among men, have forgotten that they were at one time a different race from the surrounding people to such an extent that it is difficult to tell them apart from the other settlers. The Indian makes a good citizen, he is able to take care of himself if let alone, he has an abundant heritage of land and water, and why the government should bother any more about him than it does about the Spanish-American, or the Anglo-Saxon or the Irishman, who are much more strangers to the land, who have no endowment of thousands of acres of fertile soil, is beyond the comprehension of the men who live right here and have given the subject thought. Why not let the Indian work out his own salvation without the hampering leading strings of Uncle Sam and the Indian Rights Association. Suppose one or the other does make a bad bargain occasionally, or a certain percentage fall by the wayside like the average white man, is not that merely human and part of the human game?

There would not be so much "irony" in El Paso calling the Eagle reclamation project, "our project" if it were not for the fact that the Rio Grande from northern to southern boundary of the Territory is a New Mexico river and that New Mexico reclamation projects are languishing because New Mexico waters have been trafficked away to Texas and Mexico by a beneficent paternal government. No wonder General Anson Mills has just finished a twelve story business block in the Pass City. There's a reason, as a prominent advertiser says.

The annual number of the El Paso Herald issued this week is a mirror of the magnificent growth of the Pass City and the prosperity of its tributary country. The Herald gives much space and attention to New Mexico affairs and has contributed much to the upbuilding of the southwest. The full page illustrations of El Paso scenes are most striking and are proof that El Paso has arrived in the Big City Class.

Hair Health

If You Have Scalp or Hair Trouble, Take Advantage of This Offer

We could not afford to so strongly endorse Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and continue to sell it as we do, if we were not certain that it would do all we claim it will. Should our enthusiasm carry us away, and Rexall "93" Hair Tonic not give entire satisfaction to the users, they would lose faith in us and our statements, and in consequence our business prospects would suffer.

Therefore, when we assure you that if your hair is beginning to unnaturally fall out or if you have any scalp trouble, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will promptly eradicate dandruff, stimulate hair growth and prevent premature baldness, you may rest assured that we know what we are talking about.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is vastly different from other similar preparations. We believe that it will do more than any other human agency toward restoring hair growth and hair health. It is not greasy and will not gum the scalp or hair or cause permanent stain. It is as pleasant to use as pure cold water.

Our faith in Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is so strong that we ask you to try it on our positive guarantee that your money will be cheerfully refunded without question or quibble if it does not do as we claim. Certainly we can offer no stronger argument. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain it only at our store, The Rexall Store. The Fischer Drug Co.

SKIN DISEASES HUMORS IN THE BLOOD

Nature has made ample provision in the moisture and sunshine of the air for the outward protection and healthy condition of the skin. But the more important work of nourishing the cuticle has been left to an inward source—the blood. It is from the circulation that the pores and glands receive their stimulus, and the fibrous tissues are all preserved in a youthful state because of constant nutriment supplied by the blood. It is only when the circulation becomes infected with humors or acids that we are troubled with skin affections. The humors producing these troubles are carried through the circulation direct to the skin, and their irritating or inflammatory effect remains until the blood is cleared. S. S. S. cures Skin Diseases, because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. It goes into the circulation and REMOVES the acids and humors which are causing the trouble, builds up the weak, acrid blood, and completely cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, pimples, rashes, and all eruptions of the skin. When S. S. S. has driven out the humors every symptom passes away, the skin is again nourished with cooling, healthful blood, natural evaporation is renewed, and the skin becomes soft and smooth. ## REVOLUTION IN MEXICO HAS NO EFFECT ON MARKET.

San Antonio, Texas, Jan. 13.—R. L. Lacaud of Paris, France, who is stopping in this city en route to the City of Mexico, declares that the French money market has not been disturbed in the least by the alleged revolution in Mexico. Discussing this phase of the situation, he said: "The banking interests of France do not believe the revolution is nearly as bad as at first reported and that there is no cause for alarm relative to Mexican securities. Paris financiers who carry a great deal of Mexican paper have the utmost confidence in the stability of that government and cannot conceive of an uprising of sufficient magnitude to oust President Diaz." During Mr. Lacaud's stay in Paris he established a branch of his banking institution which is largely interested in taking care of Mexican bonds.

BELIEVING ONE IS RICH AS GOOD AS BEING WEALTHY.

San Antonio, Texas, Jan. 12.—Believing that he is worth $5,000,000, and that every dollar of this sum exuded from the pores of his body, is the hallucination that has taken possession of John Rucker who is held in the county jail here. Rucker imagines that he reveals in money and invites his friends, or those who come to see him out of curiosity to get scoop shovels and help themselves. He declares the dollars drop from his body so fast that he fears he will be smothered in the constantly increasing heap. His is the strangest case of mental derangement that has ever come under the observation of the officers here. Aside from this hallucination, he appears to be perfectly rational.

GETTING OUR GOAT.

We are yielding up our laurels. Giving them up altogether. They're swiped from us by the people Who prognosticate the weather: When they tell you: "Clear and colden," Does the mercury get droopy? And the sky above get cloudless? Hardly! It gets warm and sloppy!

We took their prognostication For the weather yesterday morning. And the clouds that drizzled on us We just looked up with scornful "Clear and cool" the paper told us. And we knew it could not fizzle. Though the day seemed very much like Just a warm and sloppy drizzle.

Their Relationship.

The stork which had been hovering about the neighborhood for some time had delivered the goods and departed, and Marjorie and Jeessamine were calling on the new arrival.

"Well, little girls," said the baby's grandfather, "everyone who calls on the baby this week has to be some relation to it; cousins or aunts or uncles, or something; what relation are you going to be?"

"I think we'll be uncles," replied Marjorie, "mamma is bothered half to death with ants."

The Details.

"Do you recollect old wot's-is-name?"

"I'm with the collar?"

"Ay!"

"Wot about 'im?"

"E'ad to go down (jerk of the head), you know—they giv' 'im wot you call it—didn't arf git it, I don't think!"

"Reely!"

"Adn't you 'eard, then?"

"I did 'ear somefink, but no details, not afore now."—Punch.

Commendable Care.

Uncle Ezra—How's your daughter doing in business college?

Uncle Eben—Fine. She can't spell very good, and she ain't very fast on the typewriter, but I tell you she's keertful. When she gets through writing a letter on that machine every "I" is dotted and every "t" is crossed!—Puck.

Practical Experience.

"It's the little things that tell in this life."

"Yes; I've found that out. I've a small brother, too!"

WEDNESDAY.

Not Wanted.

Although he's always finding fault, Some day he'll learn That no one offers a reward For his return.

Breaking It Gently.

"Did she tell you I was a rare character?"

"Not in those exact words, but that was probably the meaning she sought to convey."

"What, exactly, did she say?"

"She said your ways were rather raw."

An Electrical Slave.

Wirlams—The push-button habit will be the ruination of Toucher's mind. Do you know what he did the other day?

Battlers—No.

Wirlams—Pushed the button on his coat and kicked because his valet failed to respond.

Life's Varied Interests.

"The weather's rather bad, isn't it?" said the young woman.

"Yes," replied the nonchalant youth. "Lucky thing it is. Helps conversation. It would be a deadly bore to go on forever saying 'It's a pleasant day.'"

Always Busy.

"And you are really settlement workers?" interrogated the housewife as she handed each of the wanderers a wedge of pie.

"Yes, mum," responded the dusty spokesman, with a low bow, "we work every settlement we come to."

Insomnia.

"Did you try to put yourself to sleep by counting imaginary sheep jumping over a fence?"

"Yes. But sheep reminded me of wool, and it kept me awake thinking about the tariff."

Headwear.

"Your crown is in jeopardy," said the prime minister.

"I know it," replied the petty king. "People nowadays don't seem to have any more respect for a crown than they have for a last year's straw hat."

Fame.

"Why seek for fame, ambitious youth? The world too often forgets the wise." He answered, "I do so, in sooth, Because it pays to advertise."

The Magic of a Name.

"Li," said Kit, "you're tryin' to take my feller away from me; I'll got even with you, miss!"

"I s'pose you'll tell 'im some lie about me, Kit Skimmerhorn!" snapped the other.

"I'll do more'n that, Li Goovius! I'll tell Laura Jean Libbey on you!"

AN IMELICATE REMARK.

"One cannot be too careful in his remarks on some occasions," said a young clergyman, in speaking of a tour of inspection which he, in company with certain older divines, made of a certain penal institution.

"The leader of our expedition, a truly good man, was so impressed by what he learned from the story of one young man, imprisoned for burglary, that he felt that he should offer him some encouragement, of what kind he hardly knew. So, after many 'hem' and 'haws' he delivered himself of the following:

"Ah, my friend, we must not lose sight of the fact that we are here to-day and gone tomorrow."

"You may be, sir," rejoined the burglar, "but I ain't."—Harper's Magazine.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.

"Gee, Bill, let's buy this watering trough and open up a swimming school."

It Didn't Pay.

"Does advertising pay?" they asked. One answer was surprising: "Not on your life—I got my wife By steady advertising."

His Specialty.

"This is a pretty bad report card," said the father of the young hopeful, as he looked over the teacher's figures. "You seem to be 'poor' in pretty much everything."

"That's 'cause teacher only puts down th' studies I ain't good in. I ought to have 'excellent' in one thing."

"And what's that?" hopefully inquired the father.

"Fightin'. I can lick any boy in th' class!"

A Food Combine.

"Oh, John," exclaimed Mrs. Bayside, laying down the paper, "isn't it just lovely! You remember that last summer in their sailboat? Well, they fell in love and got married. And they're so well to do, too. Her father is a rich packer and his father is a prosperous farmer."

"Oh," sniffed the summer hotelkeeper, "a sort of corned beef and cabbage combination, eh?"

A Confused Situation.

"Who gave the real offense in this affair of honor?" asked one Parisian duelist.

"It's hard to decide," replied the other. "The duke undoubtedly insulted me, but he insists that for a person in my position to resent anything he says is an unpardonable impertinence."

IF.

Says a poky paragrapher in a penny morning sheet: "We would save a pot of money If we didn't have to eat."

That's a fact beyond disputing. And it's evident, no less That our wads would be much fatter If we didn't have to dress.

Furthermore, by the same token, It is plain to any gawk We'd be in a lot on footwear If we didn't have to walk.

Then again we'd do more labor And some extra shekels reap, Also save on beds and bedding, If we didn't have to sleep.

Summing up, to this conclusion Free indorsement you will give: That vast wealth would line our pockets If we didn't have to live.

FORCE OF HABIT.

The prize-fighter (just regaining consciousness after being hit by an automobile)—I was knocked out all right, all right, but I'd like to have a return match.

Superstitious.

Munhall—How did it happen that one of the shipwrecked sailors starved to death after the barrel of pork had been found?

Carson—The other sailors wouldn't let him eat.

Munhall—Why?

Carson—He would have made the thirteenth at the table.

Why They Were Good.

"The men in that hose company from the Tenth ward seem to be death on fire," I remarked to the superintendent of the fire department as I watched the brave boys fighting the flames.

"Yes," he said, "they were all recruited from a lot of ex-apartment house janitors."

MORAN AFTER LIGHTWEIGHT CROWN

Owen Moran, English Champion.

A tribute to Battling Nelson, a debt to Ad Wolgast and a few words to the wise were the sum and substance of the visit of Owen Moran in Chicago the other day. The clever Briton, the man who scored the first and only real knockout over the one-time durable Dane, tarried between trains en route for New York and fresh from his decisive triumphs on the coast.

Despite his sudden leap to fame and fortune, Moran lacked the supreme confidence which usually follows in the wake of unlooked-for victories.

Moran had nothing but praise for Nelson and cited a case to show the indomitable courage of the veteran lightweight. During the fight, when Nelson began to weaken, Moran claims he saw the final downfall of the Battler, and in the eleventh round, when the Dane was on his knees more than half the time, Moran implored him to quit, but the former champion came back for more.

"He would not stay down," said Moran in his own inimitable way, "and just before the count I merely pushed him over. It was not even a weak punch, but his strength was gone and he lay there on the mat face down with his fighting spirit finally broken."

NOTED ATHLETES AT CHICAGO

Martin Sheridan, Matt McGrath, Melvin Sheppard, Flanagan and Others at Windy City.

Chicagoans will have an opportunity to see Martin Sheridan, Matt McGrath, Melvin Sheppard, Flanagan and other athletes of New York and many famous athletes of the country at the big indoor meet of the Chicago Irish-American Athletic club to be held January 14 at the Seventh regiment armory.

An Exception.

The landlord of a village tavern stood at his door fondly gazing at his newly put up sign of the Golden Lamb, which specimen of zoology swung lastly over his door.

"Good morning, friend James," said a passing rustic; "what be you thinking of?"

"I was thinking," said the host, "as how the lamb is a picture of innocence."

"Yes, friend James; but that one of yours is a picture of guilt!"—Tid-Bits.

Moran gives a good part of the glory of his victory to his trainer, Jeff Perry, who vies with Billy Delaney for successive victories. Perry's latest score was in Moran's corner during the Nelson engagement, and he claims his next will be when he is advising the little Englishman when Wolgast is the other man. Perry trained Nelson for both fights when he whipped Gans and broke the fighting spirit of the now deceased old master. He then went to Wolgast and was in the corner of the Michigan wildcat when Nelson received his defeat at Point Richmond last February.

Moran is now looking longingly toward the lightweight crown, and until the opportunity to grasp it arrives he will shy clear of the fight game. A battle with Wolgast is the only thing that Moran will consider now, and he will camp on the trail of the title-holder until his wants are granted. Time can raise no barriers to the aspirations of the clever boxer, and if necessary he will wait a year until the champion's arm heals.

Club officials secured the building the other day and immediately President Sheridan of the C. I. A. A. C. left for New York, where he will make arrangements to have his brother Martin and the other point winners of the east enter the first indoor meet to be held by this club in Chicago.

Among the entrants also are the best athletes of the west and the south. It has been the object of the I. A. A. C. to build up an athletic team that can successfully compete with the men of Manhattan.

Many good men from the south and west have entered. St. Louis and New Orleans are expected to send their best athletes for the competition. In New Orleans the cause of athletics was given a big boost by the championships of the A. A. U. recently held there. The committee expects several of these southern athletes to appear as the southerners remember that the Chicago athletes that competed there practically "made" their meet.

The manner in which the Irish-Americans among the leaders being A. J. Sheridan, John T. Cahill and J. J. Mahoney, have assumed control of athletics the last season has done a great deal to boom the cause in the middle west.

Bubbling Water Sets New Mark.

Bubbling Water, in winning the Sombrero handicap at Oakland, Cal., established a new world's record for a mile and seventy yards, running the distance in 1:42:15. The previous mark of 1:42:25 was held by Kings Daughter, Gania, Ida May and Tony Bonero, the first two over the Fort Erie track and the latter two at La-tonia. Bubbling Water carried 121 pounds and after suffering interference beat Chester Krum a head.

Highlanders at Richmond.

The New York Highlanders will do their training in Richmond, Va., next season, it is said. The Highlanders will play three games early in April in Cincinnati with the Reds, under the watchful eye of the chairman of the supreme court of baseball.

A LAMENT.

I'm getting tired of gloomy days Without a gleam of sun; Oppressive tints of browns and grays, And roses sweet—not one!

I'd like to hear the birds sing, Just as they used to do, When frolic airs come o'er the hills And all the skies were blue;

And every field was daisy-starred And every hedge aglow With silver drops of morning dew And violets in a row.

In vain has tolling fancy wrought A scene where all is fair— Outdoors a dream landscape lies, Now warmth and cheer be there.

ADVERTISE!

YOUR SALESMAN may speak to twenty persons a day praising your wares. HE BRINGS YOU BUSINESS.

YOUR ADVERTISEMENT in the NEW MEXICAN speaks to thousands every day. IT IS BOUND TO BRING YOU BUSINESS.

THE SUBSCRIBERS to the local paper are the prosperous people of your town. THEY ARE THE PEOPLE WHO BUY.

YOUR ADVERTISEMENT in the local paper helps to build the town. The outside judges Santa Fe by the advertisements in its local papers.

It is a BUSINESS MAXIM universally accepted that advertising pays. That is, if it is done right.

PEOPLE READ ADVERTISEMENTS. Let the "New Mexican" place in its most obscure column that you are selling sugar at one cent a pound and your store tomorrow will not hold its customers. Advertise calico at one cent a yard and you will have to telegraph to your wholesale house for car-load lots.

YOU CAN STIMULATE BUSINESS BY ADVERTISING. Today no business will increase permanently unless by some method of advertising. The fool in his heart will say that there is no virtue in advertising but the wise man knows that the fool is deceiving himself.

AN ADVERTISEMENT in the "New Mexican" DRAWS LIKE A POROUS PLASTER. It cannot fail if it advertises the right goods at the right price.

THE NON-PROGRESSIVE MERCHANT is noted by the fact that his advertisement does not appear in the local papers. The sheriff has an eye on his business and his credit must be poor.

LAST YEAR, the "New Mexican" took in $12,000 in subscriptions. The readers who had that much for the local paper have as much for your store but you must let them know that you are doing business, where, and how you are doing it.

THE ADVERTISING RATES in the "New Mexican" are but a fraction of the rates in other cities. It is untrue that you cannot afford to advertise; the fact is when you feel that you cannot afford to advertise, you cannot afford NOT to advertise.

The "New Mexican" goes into the homes of Santa Fe and it reaches every post office in New Mexico

It pays to advertise in the "NEW MEXICAN"

BOY SCOUTS AND THE FLAG.

that you have not heard before. This shop is a quaint little building, two stories and a garret, it has a tablet on the house near the door, stating that the first American flag was made at that place. John Ross, her first husband, was the son of an Episcopal clergyman, and a nephew of Col. Ross of the Flag Committee. He was killed by an explosion of gun powder while guarding military stores on the wharf, and Betsy continued the business of upholstery that they together had established in the Arch street store. Her maiden name was Elizabeth Griseom. The Friends or Quakers, disowned her from their society because she married an Episcopalian, and attended Christ Church in Philadelphia with him. She occupied a seat in a pew next to that of General Washington. A tablet has been placed on a pillar near by and a flag is draped over the pew that she occupied. After the death of her husband this young widow heroically determined to continue in business on her own account, although her father and mother and family urged her to return to their home. She had by this time attracted the attention of Hon. George Ross, her late husband's uncle, with whom she became quite a favorite, so that when General Washington suggested that a sample flag should be made, Mr. Ross was at no loss as to whom they could get to do the work. Being very skillful with her needle she had previously met General Washington as she had embroidered ruffles for his shirt bosoms and cuffs. He was very willing to interview the attractive young widow on this subject. They called together with Robert Morris, at the little upholstery shop and dwelling on Arch street. She was asked if she could make the flag, for she had never yet made one. She replied with sweet confidence that she did not know, but would try. Thereupon Washington produced a small paper with a hurried pencil sketch thereon from his pocket with the outline of a flag with thirteen stripes and a field of blue dotted with thirteen stars.

Now Betsy had taken lessons in her trade and had done some very delicate work, so after studying the drawing for some minutes she ventured an objection that the stars as drawn with six points should have only five, as she said that she had watched them in the sky and remembered how they looked. Washington's reply was that he knew that, but he thought that a star with six points could be more easily made in cloth than one with five points. Then Betsy immediately responded that nothing was easier, if one only knew how, and she quickly folded a piece of paper in the way she had learned as one of the little arts of her trade, and with one slip of her ready scissors displayed to the astonished eyes of the august committee a true, symmetrical five pointed star. The design was then redrawn at her suggestion and she was left to make a sample flag according to her own ideas of proportion and arrangement of the stars. In a remarkably short time she had completed it, and it was accepted by the committee. She was soon authorized to procure all the bunting she could obtain in Philadelphia for flags for the use of congress. Before his departure her uncle laid down a note of large denomination for the purchase. Thus started her flag making business was continued for a period of fifty years. Betsy was attractive as well as young and in her twenty-fourth year she was courted and married by Captain Ashburn, a gallant sailor and patriot, who, together with his brother-in-law, Captain Donaldson, was captured by a British vessel and carried to London. They were confined in Mill prison in that city with other American patriots. Although rebels, they had the sympathy of many London people. One humble admirer and friend was the baker, who furnished bread to the prisoners. Whenever news favorable to the Colonies was received he informed the prisoners through scraps of paper concealed in their loaves of bread. The prison officials suspected that someone was giving information from across the sea, but they failed to detect the offender until the news of the surrender of Cornwallis reached London. The captive Americans learned of the victory before the news reached the outskirts of the city. A rigid investigation resulted in the detection of the friendly baker and he was hanged as a traitor.

The patriots, overjoyed at the news of the surrender of Cornwallis, gave vent to their feelings in repeated cheers; the jailers thought that their prisoners had all gone mad. All took part in this rejoicing but Captain Ashburn, who sat quietly in his chair. The others were surprised at this and spoke to him, but he made no reply. They spoke to him again, but he never moved nor showed any sign, and an examination revealed the fact that he was dead. Joy had killed him! After the war a sad party returned to Philadelphia and a melancholy duty devolved upon Captain Donaldson, but he was unequal to the task, and asked John Claypoole to inform Betsy Ross of her second bereavement, in the death of her second husband. It is evident that he used both tact and sympathy in fulfilling this sad duty, as later she became the wife of this same John Claypoole, and together they carried on the business of making flags for the United States government until 1826.

There was no change in the flag first made until May 1st, 1795, when two extra stars were added for the states of Vermont and Kentucky which had come into the Union. After this there was no further change until 1818 when provision was made for the addition of a star for each state which thereafter should come into the Union, but the thirteen stripes were to remain unchanged forever.

Have you ever thought that the sky of day gives its crimson and white, and the sky of night its stars and its blue, to this, the grandest banner on the face of the earth?

In our own land from the Atlantic to the Pacific, as well as in isles of the sea in both of those oceans, homes have been desolated for it, hearts have been broken for it, sleeves have been emptied for it, graves have been filled for it; thousands have died for it, and millions are willing to die for it.

To you, young men, I entrust this banner. May it ever remind you of patriotic devotion and lead you in the path of integrity and honor; and may it never be sullied while in your hands.

PROMINENT MEXICAN REBEL KILLED IN BATTLE.

San Antonio, Texas, Jan. 13.—News has been received here that Praxides G. Guerrero, who a year or more ago was in jail in this city charged with violation of the neutrality laws, has been killed in a fight between federal and rebel troops at Janos, state of Chihuahua, Mexico. The charge against Guerrero when he was imprisoned here was dismissed because the Mexican government failed to prosecute. When trouble broke out in Chihuahua, he left his home in Los Angeles, where he had located after his troubles here, came to El Paso, Texas, and from there crossed into the disaffected territory. It is reported that he was the leader of one of the Mexican bands of marauders and that he was shot by federals after his command had been beaten and was on the retreat.

HIGH PRIVATE STACY A. PAXSON IS ACQUITTED.

San Antonio, Texas, Jan. 13.—The grand jury failed to return an indictment against Stacy A. Paxson, arrested some time ago on the charge of having impersonated a United States soldier and by so doing had benefited financially. It was also alleged at the time of Paxson's arrest that he had been married a number of times, ignoring the legal formality of freeing himself of one wife before he formed a legal alliance with another. After investigating this case, however, the grand jury concluded the evidence was such as not to warrant a true bill. Paxson is said to have carried on his operations in various parts of the country and is alleged when he was arrested that he was on the eve of marrying a young woman in Laredo, Texas. Investigation, however, failed to justify action on the charge.

MAN HAS APPENDIX REMOVED IN 14 MINUTES

Santa Fe Has Some Surgical as Well as "Prehistoric" Wonders to Talk About.

A local surgeon this week made an incision of an inch in width and removed a man's appendix performing the entire operation in just 14 minutes. Of course, the ethics of the profession do not permit telling names but it is asserted on good authority that the operation took place at the Sanitarium here and that the patient was lying on his side and smoking a cigarette within FOUR HOURS after he came out of ether. This is really a wonderful achievement and shows that Santa Fe has surgical skill that Denver and the great cities cannot surpass. And the question naturally arises "Why leave Santa Fe to have an operation performed that can be had here just as safely and at a much less cost?"

CAT CAUSES $10,000 FIRE AT CHILLI.

Upsets Lamp While Family of A. Salas Was Attending a Dance—But Little Insurance.

Fire at Chilli, Bernalillo county, 12 miles south-east of Moriarty, Tuesday night destroyed the store of A. Salas. Mr. Salas and family had gone to a dance at a neighbor's and left the lamp burning. A cat was left in the house and it is surmised that the fire was started by the lamp being turned over by the cat. The loss to Mr. Salas is quite heavy. He carried a $10,000 stock of goods and practically nothing was saved. His residence at the rear of the store was also burned. He carried a small amount of insurance.

FIRST SAN ANTONIO WOMAN IN A BALLOON.

San Antonio, Jan. 13.—Miss Minnie Cleary, 115 Maple street, is the first San Antonio woman to ascend in a balloon. Miss Cleary was one of a party of four who took a trip into the clouds Sunday with Captain H. E. Honeywell of St. Louis who is here with his big gas balloon. The party ascended to the height of a mile, drifted eastward and came to land eight miles from the city. Miss Cleary gives a most graphic account of her experience and sensations and declares that she is ready to make another trip when the opportunity is offered. Since Captain Honeywell has permitted one woman to take a trip with him to cloudland he is besieged with applications, a number of these coming from the best known young women in the city.
