PRaises OUR CONSTITUTION

"Nearest Approach to Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of Man"

TWO NEW INCORPORATIONS

Mr. Clark Issues Circular Letter On Election of School Directors.

Governor Mills appointed Vallie Garlington of Vaughn, Guadalupe county, and Thomas E. Blauvelt of Knowles, Eddy county, notaries public.

Praise Constitution.
Governor Mills has received a letter from a prominent educational institution in the East commenting on the constitution for the new state of New Mexico. The writer says that "the liberality shown in the formation of the recent constitution promulgated for the government of the new state of New Mexico, when she shall have been admitted to the Union, is the NEAREST APPROACH to the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man ever emanating from any source since the United States has been a government."

Two Incorporations.

Articles of incorporation were filed in the territorial secretary's office by the Simple Oil Engine Company of New Mexico which has its office at Albuquerque and has named George L. Norton its statutory agent. The company is incorporated at $50,000 consisting of 50,000 shares, half of which shall be preferred stock to pay not less than seven per cent per annum. The directors and share holders are D. W. Stone, who owns all of the preferred stock and 24,998 shares of the common stock; G. L. Horton, one share; Frank England, one share; John H. English, Trinidad, and A. E. Hobbs of Raton are also directors.

Another company which filed incorporation papers was The Gold Frog Mining-Milling Company which has its office in Silver City with Rufus C. Jackson, its agent. The company is capitalized at $1,000,000, consisting of 1,000,000 shares at $1 each, although the company begins business with but $5,000 capital stock equally divided among the following shareholders and directors: Rufus C. Jackson, of Silver City; Milton Park, John V. Hughes, C. F. Freeman and R. G. Ayers, all of Dallas, Texas. The company is incorporated for 50 years.

Land Entries.

The following were the land entries made at the local land office yesterday: Veneciano Griego, Santiago Griego, Albuquerque; Anastacio Chavez, Quemado; Oliver P. Cox, Stanley; James R. Russell, McIntosh; William A. Wilcox, Stanley; Bonifacio Archuleta, Wagon Mound, and Mrs. Gertrude Marguez, Alamosa.

Election of Directors.

Superintendent of Public Instruction J. E. Clark has issued the following circular letter to county school superintendents:

Election of Directors.

1. Who may serve as school director?

Any man or woman resident in the district.
A resident is a person having a permanent abode in a particular place, and does not include persons sojourning temporarily in a place for a particular purpose, not intending to continue to live there after such time of purpose is accomplished. 71 Penna. 302.

2. What are the qualifications of voters at the election for school directors?

They shall be legal voters resident in the district, having paid the poll tax for the current year. Legal voters are citizens of the United States, 21 years or more of age, who have lived in the precinct one month; in the county three months; in the territory six months.

3. What are the qualifications of voters at an election to determine as to a special levy?

They shall be legal (see foregoing answer) voters resident in the district.

4. How proceed in the matter of electing school directors?

Upon creation of a new district the county superintendent shall appoint three directors to serve until the next regular election. On the second Monday of March, directors serving shall post notices of an election to be held on the first Monday in April by qualified voters residing and paying poll tax in the district, for three directors. In case more than one director is to be voted for, each voter shall vote for a candidate for each vacancy to be filled, indicating opposite each name the term of office; one for three years, one for two years, and one for one year; and at each succeeding election one director shall be elected for term of three years.

Vacancies are to be filled by county superintendent until next regular election when said vacancies shall be filled by the election of a director to fill out the unexpired term. In the event of a tie in an election for school director, there is no election; and county superintendent will appoint as in other cases of vacancies.

The election shall be held on the first Monday in April, between the hours of eight a. m., and five p. m.

12,000 TROOPS FOR FAR EAST

This Adds Color to Foolish Rumors of War With Japan

2ND INFANTRY FOR HAWAII

Makes Round About Trip Via San Antonio and Tucson to San Francisco.

Tucson, Ariz., March 18.—Having taken a roundabout course through San Antonio, Texas, as if headed for the army maneuvers, the Second United States Infantry, under the command of Colonel Mansfield, passed through Tucson today en route to San Francisco, where the men embark immediately for Honolulu. It is understood that this will be an additional force for Hawaiian islands and not to relieve the troops now there. The men are discussing the rumor that within the next three months, a force of twelve thousand, including infantry, cavalry, field and mountain artillery, will occupy the Hawaiian and Philippine islands, to be prepared for any possible attack from Japan.

Merely a "Peaceful Move."
Washington, March 18.—The two battalions now en route will sail within a few days. The third battalion is now at Fort Russell, Wyoming, and will sail for Honolulu about June 5. Two battalions of field artillery will sail for the islands on July 5. All this, it is pointed out, by the war department, is merely carrying out the plan worked out several months ago for increasing the inadequate garrison at Honolulu.

Rookies Use Much Tobacco.

San Antonio, Texas, March 18.—Fast freight and express cars are carrying large consignments of tobacco to dealers in this city, many of whom believe that the supply here is not adequate to meet the demand that 20,000 soldiers will make for the week. It is estimated that more than 60,000 pounds of chewing tobacco is being rushed this way, notwithstanding the fact that Uncle Sam has supplied his commissary at the military camp with 5,000 pounds of the kind used for smoking purposes. About eighty per cent of the enlisted men of the army use tobacco in one form or another according to an estimate made by A. Rice, manager of the American Tobacco Company for the southern district of Texas. Mr. Rice estimates the additional troops at the post will use 8,000 pounds of chewing tobacco a week, and that the consumption of smoking tobacco will be even greater. It is to meet this increased demand that dealers have grown busy and placed their orders. One dealer has ordered 35,000 pounds and a number of others in smaller quantities from 2,000 to 5,000 pounds each. It is such orders as these that have started vast shipments of the weed in various forms toward this city.

Baking Tons of Bread.

San Antonio, Texas, March 18.—Baking tons of bread daily is now in progress at Fort Sam Houston where one-third of the United States army is mobilized. The division bakery on the maneuver grounds, under the supervision of Captain L. R. Holbrook, turned out 5,000 loaves of bread yesterday with but four ovens in service. Eight ovens have been installed, and when all are in operation, they will turn out 20,000 pounds of as fine quality of bread as can be baked in the United States, each day. Captain Holbrook was ordered here from Fort Leavenworth, where he was in command of the Bakers and Cooks school there. He has 87 men in his command and these are all busy making bread. Tons of flour are used every day and this is piled in great racks covered with tarpaulin near the bakery. One of the most interesting sights on the maneuver ground is this long line of ovens each turning out fifteen batches of bread a day. The old days of the hard tack have passed for the soldiers while in camp and instead of the bread that had to be broken with a hammer, they get as good a quality as is served in any American home.

WOOLEN TRUST TO REDUCE ITS CAPITAL.

Movement to Cut Capitalization From $30,000,000 to $20,000,000 to Be Decided.

Boston, March 18.—At the head office of the American Wool Company here, it was today announced that the directors of the company had voted to reduce the common stock of $30,000,000 to $20,000,000. The action of the directors will be submitted to the stockholders at a special meeting at Jersey City on April 28. It is expected that the plan will be ratified. The corporation controls thirty-four mills in New England and New York state and is commonly known as the "Woolen Trust." The reduction is made on account of falling off in demand.

MURPHY FOUND GUILTY OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER.

Denver, Colo., March 18.—Guilty of murder in the first degree, with the recommendation that punishment be life imprisonment, was the verdict in the case of Michael H. Murphy, who shot and killed Anatolia Wunderle as she was returning from St. Dominic's church Sunday morning, January 15.

BANKER MOFFAT IS DEAD

Colorado's Most Noted Financier Answers Last Summons in New York

LIVED LONG, USEFUL LIFE

One of the Builders and President For Seven Years of D. & R. G. R. R.

Denver, Colo., March 18.—David H. J. Moffat, the noted Denver banker, is reported dead in New York.

A Useful Life.

David H. Moffat was born in Washingtonville, Orange county, New York, in 1829. He received his education there until 1851 when he became messenger boy in the New York Exchange bank. He was advanced to a clerkship in the office of A. J. Stevens & Co., bankers, Des Moines, Iowa, in 1855. Later he became clerk and cashier in an Omaha bank and started a bank in Denver in 1860. He was its cashier in 1866 and soon after became president of the First National bank of Denver, a position he retained until his death. He was one of the promoters and president of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad; from 1884 to 1891; he built largely at his own expense the Florence and Cripple Creek railroad connecting the Cripple Creek mines with the Denver & Rio Grande system. He was principal owner of the Denver water works and was building a new transcontinental railroad.

Death Came Suddenly.

New York, March 18.—David H. Moffat, of Denver, railroad magnate and banker, died suddenly today in his apartments at Hotel Belmont. He had just recovered from an attack of the grip and pneumonia and was about the room yesterday, apparently in good health.

EXPRESS STRIKE IS BROKEN

After Stormy Session U. S. Employees Vote to Return to Work

WELLS FARGO FOLLOWS SUIT

Men Had But Little Real Grievance Against Company Managers.

New York, March 18.—A break in the express drivers' strike came early today when the employees of the United States Express Company at a stormy meeting in Jersey City voted to return to work. It is believed that the Wells Fargo men also will resume work during the day.

PATHTIC LEAVE TAKING OF CONVICTED MURDERER.

Fought Case Through All Courts of Texas and Insisted That He Killed in Self Defense.

San Antonio, Texas, March 18.—There was a pathetic side to the start of E. W. Duke to the penitentiary to serve a sentence of fifteen years for killing Walter Evers in July, 1908. Duke has made a determined fight to keep out of prison, alleging with most profound earnestness that the murder was a case of self defense of the most pronounced type. His case has been fought through all the courts of Texas, but fate, it appears, was against him. The court of last resort sealed his doom. Through it all he has stood up in a most determined manner at no time believing that he would ultimately be vindicated. When he left the county jail in company with others, he said to his attorney, Carlos Bee: "You will take charge of my clothing and keep it for me, for I'll need it when I get out. I have to serve the entire sentence, the clothes may be out of style, but I'll need them just the same. After serving fifteen years in a Texas prison, a man will need everything that the world holds to make him content with life and himself." Seizing Bee by the hand, he shook it in a most feeling manner, but when he said good-bye there was a huskiness in his voice indicating that something in his throat made it difficult for him to talk and as he turned away there was dampness in his eyes. This was the first time in the long fight that Duke had made in an effort to gain his liberty that hope seemed to have deserted him for a time. He has been one of the most remarkable cases ever tried in a Texas court.

WIFE'S LOVE IS WORTH $15,000 SAYS HUSBAND.

Denver, Colo., March 18.—For the suffering, mortification and shame he endured in having his wife's affections stolen by Michael J. Shehan and in the subsequent disrupting of his home, Thomas Milligan demands $15,000 damages in a suit filed in the district court yesterday afternoon.

DIAZ PALACE IS STONED

Mob Suddenly Gathers In Capital City and Shouts Viva Madero!

ALMOST EVERY WINDOW BROKEN

American Rebel Detachment Is Starving in Hills South of Juarez.

San Antonio, Texas, March 18.—An American official returning from Mexico City, brought authentic reports of a demonstration against the palace of President Diaz about two weeks ago, which took the form of stoning the windows. This United States official witnessed the incident but the censorship is so rigid that no news of the affair has heretofore reached the border. The demonstration was so sudden that the police were unable to disperse the mob until much of the window glass had been broken. The riot occurred at about 9 o'clock in the evening, when the streets about the official residence were filled with people. Without any prelude or excitement, there was a movement of men and shouts from the streets in the vicinity of the palace as if by a signal. Shouting: "Viva Madero!" the rioters threw volleys of stones through the windows. The guests of the President were frightened but the President remained cool and sent one of his aides to the police to inquire why they did not stop the trouble. It is said that only a few whole windows were left on one side of the residence. A number of arrests were made. As far as known, this was the first demonstration against Diaz made in the federal district since the beginning of the revolution.

Border Guard Tripled.

El Paso, Texas, March 18.—All approaches to the bridges leading from the American side to Juarez, Mexico, today are guarded by three times the usual force of United States troops. Heretofore, only a small detail has guarded the bridges, but today an entire company of sentries is patrolling the bank between the two bridges. An American who returned from Insurrecto territory today said that Captain O'Creighton, the American Insurrecto leader, who with a small force has been destroying bridges along the Mexican National railroad, is still encamped in the hills a few miles south of Juarez. O'Creighton's band, which is composed of a large part of Americans, is suffering severe hardships. The men have often gone several days without food and only the chance killing of a steer has saved them from actual starvation.

Insurrectos Surround Federals.

Presidio, Texas, March 18.—A number of casualties were reported in the resumption of the Insurrecto operations in the city of Ojinaga, where the federal command is supposed to be bottled up, while Colonel Dorantez, second in command of the garrison, on a tour of inspection, was cut off by a rush of Insurrectos. He and eighty soldiers are surrounded in a group of houses more than a mile from the garrison. Likewise the Insurrectos are said to have surrounded the garrison. The fighting is at close range, but the fatalities are limited. Seven federals have been killed and one Insurrecto was fatally wounded. Ojinaga is cut off from supplies and water.

Limaout Passes San Antonio.

San Antonio, March 18.—Mexican Minister of Finance Limaout passed through here early today in a private car bound for Laredo. He evidently intends to go to Mexico City by rail, despite the persistent reports that the plans are completed to capture him between Laredo and Mexico and to hold him as a hostage to prevent further executions of rebels captured by the federals.

American Spy to Be Released.

Washington, D. C., March 18.—The Mexican federal judge at Ciudad, Porfirio Diaz, has decided to release Henry Whittle, the American held in prison on charges in connection with the revolution.

Smelters Must Close Down.

According to American Consul Ellsworth, the plight of the American Smelting Refining Company of Mexico, as the result of the revolution, has been officially reported to the state department by Consul Freeman at Durango, who stated that unless relief is soon furnished, all the plants of the company must close down. This would mean the stopping of the payroll of $80,000 a month at Velardena and Asarco.

Insurrectos Execute Two Spies.

Mexical, Mexico, March 18.—Pelipe Rios Mexical, a saloon keeper and another unidentified man were shot as spies by the Insurrectos last night. The men were leaned up against a adobe wall, given a volley and the bodies reeled into the holes in the ground they had been compelled to dig before their execution.

HERO OF MANY INDIAN WARS IS DEAD.

Seattle, March 18.—Charles E. Davis, who served as a private in the Indian wars of Montana, Wyoming and Dakota, and in 1877 killed the Sioux Chief Lama Deer after the latter had attempted to assassinate General Nelson A. Miles, died last night, aged 58.

TAFT ENDS HIS VACATION

Will Leave for Capital Tomorrow to Write Message For Special Session

LEGISLATION TO BE LIMITED

Nothing But Reciprocity and Tariff Revision to Be Taken Up Is Plan.

Augusta, Ga., March 18.—The president played his last golf game of his spring vacation this morning. Tomorrow he will start back to Washington. The president's message to the special session of congress will be brief and it is not known whether he will directly recommend that nothing be considered but the Canadian reciprocity agreement. From informal statements of Democratic leaders however, the president has every reason to believe that the revision of two or three of the schedules of the Payne-Aldrich tariff act will be undertaken, but that no other legislation except reciprocity and the tariff will be undertaken.

BOSTON CLUB WOMEN WANT TO SMOKE.

Boston, Mass., March 18.—The efforts of Mrs. W. B. Leeds, the New York society woman to establish a new club for women in the quarters occupied by the British Tea Table at 280 Boylston street have caused a seething tempest in the society teapot in the Back Bay section. The announcement that women will be allowed to smoke in the new club is the reason for the stir, and fashionable women are divided into two factions, the smokers and the anti-smokers.

UTAH LEGISLATION PASSES ANTI-CIGARETTE MEASURE.

Salt Lake, March 18.—The bill making it a misdemeanor to sell cigarette tobacco, cigars or cigarette paper passed the legislature yesterday.

SHOT HUSBAND FOR BURGLAR

Revolver Was Too Handy, as Usual, and Therefor Tragedy Ensued

WOMAN IS IN HYSTERICS

Deceased Was Superintendent of Northwestern Gas, Light and Coke Co.

Chicago, March 18.—John Schenk, superintendent of the Park Ridge branch of the Northwestern Gas Light and Coke Company, was found shot dead early today at his home at Park Ridge, and the police stated several hours later that when Mrs. Schenk covered from the shock, she admitted that she had shot her husband mistaking her husband for a burglar. Mrs. Schenk was hysterical when the police arrived. She said she was frightened when she heard someone moving in the house but could not understand how she discharged the revolver.

IRISHMAN REFUSED TO MAKE ORANGE SHERBET

Thought it Desecration of St. Patrick's Day and Almost Lost His Job.

New York, March 18.—Although his patriotic feeling nearly cost him his job, Dennis O'Shea, one of the chefs in the Columbia University Commons, flatly refused to profane St. Patrick's day by making orange sherbet as dessert for the evening meal. He told Clarence Jones, the student manager, that he would prevent other chefs from doing this so long as any breath remained in his body. The situation was finally solved by serving raspberry sherbet.

SUPERINTENDENT OF SAGAMORE HILL DEAD.

Was Close Friend of His Employer, Theodore Roosevelt, for Past Twenty Years.

Oyster Bay, March 18.—Noah Seaman, superintendent of the Sagamore Hill estate, and for twenty years a close friend of his employer, Theodore Roosevelt, died late last night in his little cottage on the estate. He was stricken with paralysis two weeks ago, and was fifty-three years old.

ONE OF EVERY FIVE DEATHS FROM CONSUMPTION.

Albany, N. Y., March 18.—Eighteen per cent of the deaths in 1909 among the policyholders in one of the biggest insurance companies in America were due to tuberculosis, according to a report filed today.

NOVELTY IN SYNDICATE LINE

Stock All Taken but Entrance Fees Placed at Moderate Figures.

(Contributed.)
It has been thought advisable to form a syndicate to manage the affairs of a possible, impossible, improbable, dead or resurrected and alive candidates, in the event Congress accepts the constitution and permits us to come in as a state.

The matter has been thoroughly canvassed by parties who are conversant with the aspirations of various would be candidates. The syndicate will be regularly incorporated so that there will be no chance of a comeback on the management.

The entrance fee for beginners will be $25. If they are found to be available, another charge of $25 will be made for advertising fees, in order that they may be brought before the public and their past record given a chance for an airing. If the general public seem to be satisfied, an additional charge of $50 will be made for having the nomination made and seconded in the convention. If acceptable to the convention, such beginner shall be turned over to the central committee for further expense with a clean bill of health.

Old timers who wish to enter, and have no reputation worth publishing, will be charged 50 cents an hour so long as they are on the rolls of the syndicate. Some might be available as dark horses.

Regular candidates, by this is meant those who have been on the ticket in every campaign, can make special arrangements with the executive committee. Age, general appearance, past records and future prospects will, of course, enter into the matter as to what charge shall be made, but in no event will any entry be made for less than $25.

Candidates with dark and shady records must pay $350 each. Of this sum $300 will be donated by the syndicate to some benevolent institution to bolster up the character of the candidate. In making the donations, however, the Home for Infirm and Disreputable Politicians will be given preference.

From time to time, the syndicate will make innovations that will give character and tone to the organization. The syndicate is a charitable organization and is created to harmonize all localities, and more especially to bring money into the hands of the promoters of the same. No vested interest will be considered unless the CASH accompanies the request. The lowest CASH rates being $500 per item.

Notes secured by Standard Oil stock as collateral will be accepted. All stock in the syndicate has been subscribed for, so no one need apply. The syndicate has a complete supply of interesting and instructive books suitable for candidates and prospective candidates, for sale at popular prices. The four best sellers are "My friends insist on my being a candidate," "My country needs me," "Sacrificed for the Nation," and "Memoirs of a Busted Politician."

The following entrance fees have been established by the executive of the syndicate and apply, except as hereinbefore mentioned.

First heat candidates (Beginners), $50.
Candidates whose friends want them to run, $25.
Dark horses $35.
Those who are sacrificing themselves on their country's altar $75.
Regulars (with a reputation) $100.
Regulars (without a reputation) $100.
Chronic office seekers $5.
County chairman, (see subsidiary company located at Albuquerque).
U. S. senator's rates are based on the personnel of the legislature.

The above are the regular rates for state officers. For the county officers deduct 10 per cent. For all appointive offices, add 50 per cent.

Prohibition candidates pay double, as their bar expenses are heavier than those of the regular politicians. Special rates will be given clubs of five or more.

We have no agents. All business is conducted at the home office by an efficient corps, all of whom have had considerable experience in keeping from being thrown out of office. The following are clippings from the recent press:

"Had I secured the co-operation of your syndicate, I should now be a senator. (Signed) Spier, (Rocky News)"
"If I had known of the Office Seekers Syndicate, things would have gone my way in New York. (Signed) The Wind Jammer of Sagamore, (New York Sun.)"

"In Pennsylvania we use the Office Seekers Syndicate and Ivory Soap consequently we are always on top. (Signed) Penn Rose, (Philadelphia Ledger.)"

"A pair of Missouri mules do not have the pull of the Office Seekers"

IT'S ONE OF WORLD'S WONDERS

Roosevelt Dam Officially Opened by Ex-President Roosevelt

WILL RECLAIM 240,000 ACRES

It Has Cost Twenty-Two Lives and Eleven Million Dollars

Phoenix, Ariz., March 18.—Colonel Roosevelt and party arrived at Phoenix at 9 o'clock this morning and left immediately with his party in automobiles for the Roosevelt reservoir, seventy miles west, where the formal dedication will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon. A large number of citizens of Phoenix accompanied the party. Colonel Roosevelt's main speech in Arizona will be made at Phoenix on Monday, when, it is believed, he will point out the defects of the Arizona constitution and condemn them, advising Arizona to formulate a new and more conservative fundamental law. The former President and family will spend Sunday afternoon at Mesa, where Archie Roosevelt is attending school.

Roosevelt Displeased.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 18.—Considerable interest was aroused here by the report that Colonel Roosevelt, not satisfied with the new constitution of Arizona, intends to voice his displeasure in his speech on Monday.

Description of Dam.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 18.—The Roosevelt dam reclamation project, which is scheduled to be officially opened by Colonel Roosevelt today, is situated a half mile below the confluence of Tonto Creek and upper Salt river, at the head of a canyon through which Salt River flows for many miles. It is the most imposing feature of the Salt River project, the first one undertaken by the United States Reclamation Service under the provisions of the Reclamation Act, approved by President Roosevelt June 17, 1902, and after whom the town at the dam site is named. It is 76 miles east of Phoenix, which is situated in the center of a valley of which 240,000 acres is signed to the Salt River Valley Water Users' Association. This corporation represents the farmers in their dealings with the government, guaranteeing payment of the construction cost of the project.

The dam creates a reservoir extending 12 miles up Tonto creek and 13 miles up Salt River nearly to what is known as the intake dam, 400 feet long. The capacity of the reservoir is 1,284,265 acre-feet, the largest artificial lake in the world. Through the dam is not the largest in the world, it is among the largest. The foundation rests on bed rock 40 feet below river level. It is 245 feet long, between the canyon walls, and 170 feet wide. From the river level to the crest of the spillways at either end of the dam, the height is 250 feet, that being the greatest depth of storage possible. The spillways are bridged and over the bridges and the top of the dam runs the only highway in that region connecting the mountain country on the north and south sides of Salt River. This roadway is 29 feet above the highest storage and the coping four feet high protects the roadway. From the bottom of the foundation to the top stone of the coping is 234 feet.

The dam is curved, arching upstream and the top is 680 feet long and 16 feet wide. The spillways at either end are 200 feet wide, so the length, inclusive of the bridges over the spillways, is 1080 feet. The spillways are blasted from the mountain sides.

The dam contains 339,000 cubic yards of masonry, every stone of which was washed before it was permanently cemented in place. In the construction of the dam and auxiliary works 238,452 barrels of cement were used, all manufactured on the ground at a cost of $1,063,542, in a cement mill erected by the government and recently sold. The cost was $3.14 per barrel as against $4.89 per barrel, the best private bid available when operations began. The manufacture of cement on the ground effected a saving of $592,300.

The first stone was laid in the foundation September 20, 1906. The last stone was laid on the coping 284 feet above, February 6, 1911. The upper face of the dam is almost perpendicular. The lower face resembles the pyramids in huge stone steps from the width of 170 feet in the foundation, to 16 feet at the top.

No less interesting are the auxiliary and co-related works, such as the cement mill, the hydro-electric plant and for generating 8,000 horsepower, and what is termed the power canal, built to operate the first unit of the electric plant, creating power for dam construction.

Starting the north end of the dam, almost under the spillway and driven through the solid rock is tunnel No. 2, 115 feet above the river bed. Its sole mission is to release irrigation water when the reservoir shall contain it above the elevation, and when it is desired to release a greater quantity than will come through the pen-

NOT AN EXPERIMENT.

Paint Lick, Ky.—Mrs. Mary Freeman, of this place, says: "Before I commenced to take Cardui, I suffered so much from womanly trouble! I was so weak that I was down on my back nearly all the time. Cardui has done me more good than any medicine I ever took in my life. I can't possibly praise it too highly." You need not be afraid to take Cardui, it is no new experiment. For fifty years, it has been found to relieve headache, backache, and similar womanly troubles. ## THE DAILY ROUND UP.

Alone in Arcady.
Love, harken how the boughs o'erhead
Their lute-like notes are murmuring
It is as though the year had spread
About us an eternal spring;
Joy breathes from every living thing;
The air is sweet with harmony;
Linnets and lark their ardors fling—
We are alone in Arcady.

Love, there's an Orient atar shed
From blooms that climb and bloom that cling;
Fragrance to subtle fragrance wed
To us the vagrant breezes bring;
Roses have lost their thorns to sting;
The lilies gleam like ivory;
Each violet—ah, the marveling!
We are alone in Arcady.
Love, streams by lyric raptures led Through reedy coverts slip and sing,
As when of yore Adonis bled,
Or Orpheus touched the plaintive string
Upon his weary wandering
In search of pale Persephone;
Time seems to fold his hastening wing;
We are alone in Arcady!

Marriage License Issued—A marriage license was issued at Las Vegas to Virginia Valdez, aged 25, and Florencio Armijo, aged 24. Both are residents of Las Vegas.

Freeland Pleads Guilty in Oklahoma—Deputy Sheriff and Jailer Young, of Roswell, received a letter from the sheriff at Frederick, Okla., stating that Will Freeland, who is wanted at Roswell for horse-stealing has been captured there and has pleaded guilty to a charge of horse stealing at that place. Freeland was indicted here with Volle C. Musgrave but was not captured. It was alleged that he gave a bill of sale for stolen horses to Musgrave under the name of Frank Stokes, at Elgin, N. M.

City Makes Them Come to Time—Carelessness and jay-driving have caused the arrest of four drivers of conveyances within the past 24 hours. Each of the drivers was required to pay a fine in the court of Police Judge J. D. Murray. In many parts of the city the drivers have a habit of driving across the sidewalks in order to make short cuts while on their rounds. This is against city ordinances. It is an annoyance to property owners and damages the sidewalks where they are crossed continually by the wagons and horses.—Las Vegas Optic.

Nothing to the Insurrection—That the Mexican revolution will never result in anything more serious than guerrilla warfare and that the government will be able to put it down within a short time, is the belief of Don Benigno Romero, who has just returned from a business visit to the republic on the South. Mr. Romero says the insurgents are not well drilled, are poorly armed and would not prove efficient in the face of trained troops. He says the reports of unrest and dissatisfaction in Mexico are not founded in facts. Interests of Americans and other people, not citizens of Mexico, are being guarded by the government.—Las Vegas Optic.

Division Foreman Quits—After several months of efficient service, Malcolm Stewart has resigned as division foreman for the Santa Fe railway at Las Vegas and has taken a position with the El Paso Foundry and Machinery company. He will leave in a short time for El Paso to begin his new work.

Seven Indictments—The grand jury at Portales Roosevelt county, this week returned one indictment for murder, three indictments for felony and three indictments for misdemeanors. Signed Pass While Drunk—A. S. Crumpton, a former trusted Santa Fe employee, pleaded guilty at Albuquerque yesterday to forging a railroad pass and was held in $500 bail. It is understood, that while drunk, Crumpton signed a pass torn from a book of blank passes he had, and a horse-racing man named Richard W. deNeff used it and was arrested under the federal statute.

Wedding at Clovis—D. L. Gilbert, a Curry county attorney and a Democrat who claims the distinction of having never "scratched" a ticket, and Ida A. Simmons were married at Clovis this week. They will return in a few weeks to Grady, and will later make their home in Clovis.

BOY ALMOST KICKED TO DEATH BY HORSE.

Prospects That Work on Red River Ditch Will Be Commenced Some Time This Spring.

Virgilville, N. M., March 18.—At last there seems to be no doubt of the construction of the long awaited and hoped for Red River ditch. Last week the final contract was let for the building on the project of a tunnel eight hundred feet long and already many men and teams have arrived to start the work. The first land has actually been sold and a substantial deposit made which under the law cannot be done until the ditch is absolutely assured.

A 9-year-old son of Gabriel Herrera was nearly kicked to death by a horse last night. Several teeth were knocked out and the upper jaw badly fractured. His face was so badly cut that it had to be sewed up. Although very weak from the shock and the loss of a great deal of blood, the boy will recover.

STOLE TO KEEP WIFE FROM STARVATION.

Fort Collins, Colo., March 18.—"It was a case of steal or starve," said Charles Rowe when placed on the witness stand in Magistrate Potter's court on a charge of taking a dozen chickens from a neighbor's henhouse. "I'm guilty, all right, but I had to steal or eat small potatoes on which we have been living all winter." When asked why he did not continue on his potato fare, Mrs. Rowe interposed with the assertion: "I asked him to do it. I couldn't eat potatoes any longer." Rowe has been unable to find work and the fact that his wife is soon to become a mother has prevented him from moving to another locality.

CERTAIN RESULTS

Many a Santa Fe Citizen Knows How Sure They Are.

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Santa Fe. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement:

Mrs. Desideria J. de Quintana, College St., Santa Fe, N. M., says: "Several years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and I was cured of a bad attack of kidney complaint. At that time a statement appeared in the local papers, telling of my experience and I now take pleasure in confirming all that was then said in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills. I had pains in my back that made it difficult for me to stoop and there were other troubles which plainly showed that my kidneys were at fault. Soon after I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, improvement was noticeable and the contents of two boxes restored my kidneys to their normal condition and removed the pain from my back. I am glad to say that during the time that has since passed, my cure has been permanent."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

CANNON IS PESSIMISTIC

Yet He Believes in Ultimate Triumph of American Common Sense

NO FREE TRADE FOR HIM

Even Reciprocity With Canada He Views With Evident Alarm.

(Special interview given to Henry Mann and published in the April number of the Columbian Magazine.)

Save from the heights of the reserve gallery the writer had never seen Joseph Gurney Cannon, and it must be agreed that, from that point of view, the cartoonists have created a pretty accurate likeness of "Uncle Joe." At closer view the former Speaker gives a very different impression. Although of medium stature, he looks tall, and certainly does not look his seventy-four years. Few men of sixty have the clear, wholesome complexion of "Joe" Cannon, the starry, penetrating gaze, the expression at once deliberate and frankly impulsive. His features are the kind you meet in Lossing's "Cyclopaedia of United States History"—the old American type of the Revolution and 1812, of the men who made the Republic, before the composite element now so frequent in our urban communities began to take the place of the old stock, and to reap the harvest planted by the Fathers, and watered by the blood of their descendants. One is not surprised to learn that Mr. Cannon was born in North Carolina, being brought North when he was a baby. He is one of the big men whom the South has been permitted to give to the Nation in this roundabout way. Next to the War itself our great national detriment within the past half century has been the suppression of Southern genius, courage and ability as applied in the broadest sense to national affairs.

"Thus far, but no farther!" has been the unwritten veto upon the aspirations of that section of the Union which gave us Washington, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, the Harrisons—yes, and Lincoln.

Mr. Cannon had a public school education, and studied law in the hours which some young men give to having "a good time." At State's Attorney he gained a reputation of straight-to-the-mark common-sense methods, which generally carried his way, especially as Mr. Cannon also had a reputation of not prosecuting unless he was sure that he was right. Many a time he has given a helping hand to those whom duty required him to bring to justice, and put them on the path to honor and success. Mr. Cannon became the best-known man in Danville, and the first of his successive elections to Congress was by a majority that attested his popularity. He has been a member of Congress thirty-eight years, and re-elected in 1910, he was Speaker of the House for eight years, until March 4th, 1911.

Speaker Carlisle appointed Mr. Cannon a member of the Committee on Rules, the other Republican members being Thomas B. Reed, and when the House became Republican in 1889 the three Republican members of the Committee on Rules were Reed, McKinley and Cannon. As chairman of the Committee on Appropriations Mr. Cannon stood for sound economy, vigilance and prudence in protecting public funds, and wise liberality in expenditures that were likely to promote the general welfare and to serve the progress of useful science. Mr. Cannon saw that money was placed at the disposal of the late Professor Langley in demonstrating the practicability of mechanical flight for machines heavier than air. Mr. Cannon was one of the authors of the bill providing for the geological survey of the public domain, which enabled the government to enter upon the vast irrigation and reclamation schemes that have opened great areas of formerly waste land to settlement, and turned deserts into flourishing farms, embracing altogether a work of conservation and development unparalleled in any age of the world. The creation of Potomac Park was made possible by Mr. Cannon's advocacy of the drainage of the Potomac Flats. The office-buildings of Senate and House, the National Museum, and the Municipal and Agricultural Buildings, which help so materially to improve the appearance of Washington, and to promote the efficiency of the public service, owed their erection largely to Mr. Cannon's earnest efforts in committee and on the floor. It is worth noting here also that, as Chairman of the Sub-Committee to revise and codify the postal laws, Mr. Cannon wrote the law giving newspapers and farmer on the altar of free trade. While retaining a still measure of protection for the industries in which they themselves are more especially interested. For my own part I am openly and decidedly opposed to making the Republican principles of protection a dead letter for our agricultural population. Our Canadian neighbors must be laughing in their sleeves at some of the arguments advanced on this side of the border in behalf of so-called reciprocity, which, by the way, being altogether one-sided—Canada having the side—has nothing of reciprocity about it. For instance, it is pointed out that at present Canadian wheat production is of small volume compared with that of the United States. This is true of Canada now, as it was Argentina a few years ago. Argentina now rivals the United States in the wheat markets of the world, and the Canadians claim—see Canadian publications, official and unofficial—that Canada, within a few years will be able to supply all the wheat Great Britain will need. Great Britain, by the way, including Ireland, has a total population of about forty-two millions. We have farmer in the markets of the United States. "That the proposed agreement is hailed with much satisfaction in certain directions is not strange in view of the fact that while the farmer is left bare to the free trade blast from the North, interests which have depended on the farmer and stock-raiser for their supplies are carefully protected. For instance, food animals on the hoof, which the farmer has to sell, come into this country free of duty, while on the meats manufactured from these animals there is a duty of 1-4 cents a pound. "It is claimed, in support of the proposed agreement that the price of wheat for the American farmer is controlled by and dependent upon the supply of wheat and the market price abroad, and that, therefore, the free admission of Canadian wheat would not have any effect in depressing the price of the American grain. Almost on the day that this argument received wide and authoritative publicity, the following appeared in market report in a leading New York newspaper which favors the pseudo-reciprocity plan: "Sentiment was bearish in the wheat market, owing to the continued absence of both cash and export demand, the foreign situation, and the probability that the reciprocity treaty will be passed. Evidently the hard-headed dealers in wheat believe that free wheat from Canada means a lower price for American wheat."

"Would not that mean cheaper bread, Mr. Cannon and lower cost of living for the masses?" "The ex-Speaker smiled grimly. "Did you read what Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, had to say on that point?" he replied. "I think that he figured out that the average loaf of bread cost about forty times the consumer what the farmer had received for the wheat going into the bread. Everyone knows that the farmer's price has a very remote, practically a negligible relation to the price you pay your baker." "Do you think, Mr. Cannon, that the admission of Canadian beef cattle free would give us cheaper beef?" "Have you noticed any reduction in the price of shoes since hides were put on the free-list?" he rejoined the ex-Speaker.

"The Republican party," continued Mr. Cannon, "have always stood for the protection of American industries, including the greatest of all industries, the pillar and support of all the others, the agricultural. I can see no reason for abandoning the American farmer to free competition with Canada for the American market. Not one plausible argument has been presented in favor of such a reversal of Republican policy, and the only consistent argument is that of my Democratic friend and successor, Mr. Champ Clark, that it is a broad step in the direction of free trade, which is the Democratic policy. Democrats who follow Mr. Clark in that direction are true to their party principles."

"Might I ask, Mr. Cannon, what your own attitude will be during the coming two years?"

"What it has always been—that of a Republican who believes that the principles of the Republican party are just as adequate to the safe guidance of the American people today as they were thirty and forty years ago. On that I do not care to speak at length, but the attitude of some of our big men toward genuine, old-fashioned Republicanism suggests a story. Many years ago, before the great division occurred between the Northern and Southern Methodists, there was a well-known preacher in the Southwest named Peter Cartwright. Peter did not put on any frills. He went among the mountaineers and wherever duty called him, wearing the homely garb of the frontier, his chief article of attire being a hunting shirt and a girdle. He spoke from the heart, and he reached the hearts of those to whom he spoke. Wherever Peter Cartwright went, the people turned out to hear him, because they felt that they would get the Gospel message from one whose simple, forcible words they could readily grasp. The time came for a conference at Nashville, and Peter Cartwright, with his hunting shirt, was among the attendant preachers. Henry P. Bascom, afterwards bishop presided, and he was in personal appearance at least quite a contrast to Peter. Bascom wore a white shirt and was gotten up generally in the style of a clergyman accustomed to the environment of a growing community, already at that time the civic center of Tennessee. Bascom did not approve the get-up of Brother Peter, and showed his disapproval by omitting to ask Peter to deliver an address in the church, as was customary in relation during the Conference.

"While Peter was not a favorite with Bascom, he was liked by nearly everybody else, and the fame of his rude, effective eloquence had got abroad among Methodists generally and they wanted to hear him. The pressure on Bascom was so great that he was unable to resist, but he sought to make it as uncomfortable as he could for Peter and Peter's admirers. So, one evening at the close of the daily session, brother Bascom announced: 'Brother Peter Cartwright will deliver a sermon in this church at six o'clock tomorrow morning and all who wish to hear him are requested to be present.'

"The members of the Conference and others present were astounded. Peter arose calmly and deliberately. 'Brethren,' he said, 'I hope everyone of you will be present to hear me. God's message can be spoken just as well at six o'clock in the morning as at any other hour, and I will do my best to deliver it.'

"At six o'clock in the morning the church was as full as it could hold, and among the auditors was General Andrew Jackson, who was spending his closing years at the Hermitage.

near Nashville, and was quite religious in that period of his life. Peter Cartwright outdid himself in the fervor, the earnestness, the apostolic spirit that breathed in his every utterance. It was the most effective sermon of the Conference and ministers and laity alike were inspired by it. When Peter had concluded he was told that General Jackson wished to speak with him. With a hearty grasp of the hand the General spoke of the impression that the sermon had made on him, at the same time handing Peter ten dollars to help him in the ministry. And thus ended Bascom's foolish attempt to belittle Peter Cartwright."

Mr. Cannon paused as if in thought. "The people," he resumed, "can be trusted to see right and to do right, ultimately, to detect the difference between true metal and counterfeit, between red blood and a yellow streak. Every now and then they have to have a lesson and some rough experience, as the Bible tells us the Israelites used to have to bring them back from straying after false gods. The country had its lesson of that kind under the second Cleveland administration, when the farm value of the wheat crop fell to $938,000,000, a shrinkage of $525,000,000 from the value of the wheat crop for the preceding four years of the Harrison administration. And the returns to the protection policy was signaled by an increased value of $500,000,000 for the first four years of McKinley. These lessons in the past have been quite expensive, not only to the farmer, but to every form of American industry."

"Have you anything to say against the insurgents, Mr. Cannon?"

"Nothing. I am waiting to see what those Republicans, who have been instrumental in bringing about present conditions are going to do, and what they will accomplish. It's up to them."

"Then you are not very hopeful as to the future?"

"I am hopeful as to the future," rejoined Mr. Cannon with emphasis, "not only hopeful but optimistic. Not even a Democratic majority in Congress, or even a Democrat in the White House can halt for long the growth and progress of the American people. That growth may be halted, dwarfed for a time, by the pursuit of Jacksonianism and will-o'-the-wisps into the sloughs and quagmires of free trade."

but the remedy comes with the awakening in that period of his life. Peter Cartwright outdid himself in the fervor, the earnestness, the apostolic spirit that breathed in his every utterance. It was the most effective sermon of the Conference and ministers and laity alike were inspired by it. When Peter had concluded he was told that General Jackson wished to speak with him. With a hearty grasp of the hand the General spoke of the impression that the sermon had made on him, at the same time handing Peter ten dollars to help him in the ministry. And thus ended Bascom's foolish attempt to belittle Peter Cartwright."

"Am I to infer that you expect a Democratic President in 1912?"

"I have no grounds for such an impression. While the lamp holds out to burn, the vilest sinner may return."

20 YEARS AGO TODAY

(From the New Mexican of this date 1891.)

South Roswell has been laid out in town lots and placed on the market. A new Concord wagon is to be put on the Cerrillos and San Pedro stage line.

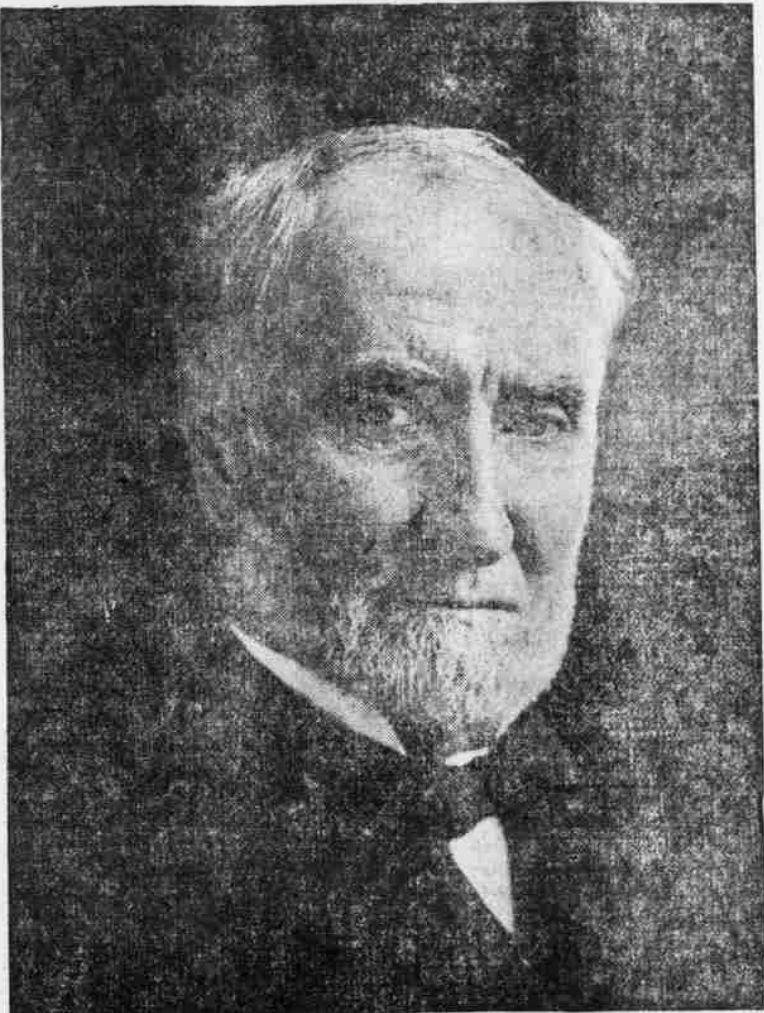

Territorial and U. S. Courts are in session at Albuquerque and Las Cruces and the Territorial district court is holding forth at Springer.

Col. Walter J. Marmion will begin the enumeration of the Navajos about April 1. The reservation will be divided into 12 districts. This will be the first census ever taken of the Navajo tribe.

The following sorrowful wall from the Clayton Enterprise: "No more preemption and timber culture rights after March 3, 1891. It will result disastrously to the average country newspaper and the land office officials, the enumeration of the Navajos about one-half of both. Country editors in this neck of the woods will have to get some other job on the side."

The prospects for a big crop near Clayton the coming season could not well be more favorable. In northeast New Mexico the crop looks excellent, and should everything prove favorable in the next three months, such a crop of grain as will be shown up in this vicinity will be the talk of the whole country. The yield last year was good, but the acreage the present season far exceeds that of former years.

From THE COLUMBIAN MAGAZINE

periodicals a very low rate for transportation through the mails.

As Speaker Mr. Cannon was guided by the rules that represented the concrete experience of more than a century. He did not make the rules and could neither ignore nor set them aside. With Cannon, as with Reed, the House more than once proved itself to be bigger than the Speaker, and the act of the House in overturning the rules and depriving the Speaker of much of his authority was a blow, not so much at Mr. Cannon as to the majority of Mr. Cannon's party, which had placed him in the Speaker's chair.

The Democrats who formed the main force in the attack on the rules did not regard their actions as directed against Mr. Cannon personally as shown by the fact that, while naming their most popular leader, Champ Clark, for Speaker of the Sixty-second Congress, they have also voted to continue the limitations on the Speaker's authority.

Mr. Cannon did not waste any time in preliminaries. He spoke clearly and deliberately from the fullness of mind and heart, as he said:

"Artemus Ward's patriotic readiness to sacrifice his wife's relations on the altar of his country had a small parallel in the willingness of some of my Republican friends—and Democratic friends also—to offer up the American about ninety-three millions. According to Canadian claims, therefore, the Dominion will be able, within a few years, to supply about half our population with wheat. And, with an open market here, who can doubt that they will sell here in preference to Great Britain? Many thousands of our American farmers have already migrated to the Canadian West to take up the new lands there, which are to be had for the asking, a title in fee, however, being given only on the immigrant becoming a British subject. It can be taken for granted that this exodus of a most desirable class of our citizens, and their transformation into subjects of King George is very likely to grow apace when to free land in Canada is added the inducement of a free market in the United States.

"It is of significance in this connection that the Canadian envoy, Mr. Fielding, explains to the mother country that, while Canada is gaining a large market in the United States, the United States is not to gain market enough in Canada to interfere with English trade, since few reductions are made on our products that would seek a Canadian market, and these reductions are small. That is, British manufacturers are to continue to enjoy a preference in Canada, while Canada gradually supplants the American market. Not one plausible argument has been presented in favor of such a reversal of Republican policy, and the only consistent argument is that of my Democratic friend and successor, Mr. Champ Clark, that it is a broad step in the direction of free trade, which is the Democratic policy. Democrats who follow Mr. Clark in that direction are true to their party principles."

"Might I ask, Mr. Cannon, what your own attitude will be during the coming two years?"

"What it has always been—that of a Republican who believes that the principles of the Republican party are just as adequate to the safe guidance of the American people today as they were thirty and forty years ago. On that I do not care to speak at length, but the attitude of some of our big men toward genuine, old-fashioned Republicanism suggests a story. Many years ago, before the great division occurred between the Northern and Southern Methodists, there was a well-known preacher in the Southwest named Peter Cartwright. Peter did not put on any frills. He went among the mountaineers and wherever duty called him, wearing the homely garb of the frontier, his chief article of attire being a hunting shirt and a girdle. He spoke from the heart, and he reached the hearts of those to whom he spoke. Wherever Peter Cartwright went, the people turned out to hear him, because they felt that they would get the Gospel message from one whose simple, forcible words they could readily grasp. The time came for a conference at Nashville, and Peter Cartwright, with his hunting shirt, was among the attendant preachers. Henry P. Bascom, afterwards bishop presided, and he was in personal appearance at least quite a contrast to Peter. Bascom wore a white shirt and was gotten up generally in the style of a clergyman accustomed to the environment of a growing community, already at that time the civic center of Tennessee. Bascom did not approve the get-up of Brother Peter, and showed his disapproval by omitting to ask Peter to deliver an address in the church, as was customary in relation during the Conference.

"While Peter was not a favorite with Bascom, he was liked by nearly everybody else, and the fame of his rude, effective eloquence had got abroad among Methodists generally and they wanted to hear him. The pressure on Bascom was so great that he was unable to resist, but he sought to make it as uncomfortable as he could for Peter and Peter's admirers. So, one evening at the close of the daily session, brother Bascom announced: 'Brother Peter Cartwright will deliver a sermon in this church at six o'clock tomorrow morning and all who wish to hear him are requested to be present.'

"The members of the Conference and others present were astounded. Peter arose calmly and deliberately. 'Brethren,' he said, 'I hope everyone of you will be present to hear me. God's message can be spoken just as well at six o'clock in the morning as at any other hour, and I will do my best to deliver it.'

"At six o'clock in the morning the church was as full as it could hold, and among the auditors was General Andrew Jackson, who was spending his closing years at the Hermitage.

YOUR FIGHT WITH DRINK

A Constant Struggle You Will Surely Loose. Take The NEAL CURE AND WIN

The Neal internal treatment cures the periodical, occasional or moderate drinker, the habitual and excessive drinker and the nervous man who has to drink to keep from becoming more nervous. It takes away all inclination to drink, all desire and craving for drink by neutralizing the poison of alcohol in the system and ridding the blood of poison by a rapid process of elimination leaving the drinker in the same normal condition he was in before tasting liquor, so far as the effect of alcohol may be concerned—his appetite for drink gone—and he is a new man.

No Hypodermic Injections

The Neal internal treatment effects a perfect cure in three days without hypodermic injections.

A Guaranteed Contract.

A guaranteed bond and contract is given each patient agreeing to effect a perfect cure or refund the money at the end of the third day.

A Modern Treatment.

The Neal is a Physician's Cure for the drink habit; it is the most modern and perfect of known treatments, originated by a physician, compounded by a physician, and administered by experienced physicians. It never fails.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF SANTA FE COUNTY.

The New Mexican is the oldest newspaper in New Mexico. It is sent to every postoffice in the Territory, and has a large and growing circulation among the intelligent and progressive people of the Southwest.

COST OF RAILWAY TRAVEL.

The new Santa Fe Railway folder is being distributed with time tables corrected to date. Its ninety pages incidentally give some idea of the many ramifications of the system and its vastness. The last two pages are devoted to an argument proving that it costs more to travel in style and comfort on the railroads in Europe than it does in the United States, although, unfortunately for New Mexico, it is one of the few remaining railroads in the United States where railroads mileage averages as high as it does in Europe. Still, much greater comfort, more speed and more baggage go with a ticket to some portions of New Mexico than do in Turkey or Germany.

Taking everything into consideration, a first class ticket in Europe may be fairly compared, as to price and accommodations given, with a first class ticket in America, plus a parlor car seat.

In America the possession of a first class ticket entitles the holder to have 150 pounds of large baggage transported free, while in some parts of Europe the entire weight is charged for, and in others a small amount only is free. Traveling first-class 2,154 miles in America, at 38.6 miles per hour with an average of 168 pounds of baggage, including reserved seat in parlor car would cost $61.56, or about 286 cents per mile.

In this last calculation the cost of baggage and of parlor car seats is reckoned exactly the same as for 2,221 miles, and is respectively $2.75 and $0.70.

Under the above conditions: A passenger with a trunk in Europe would travel first-class 500 miles in 16 hours and 27 minutes at a cost of $22.25; while a passenger in America with the same baggage would travel in a parlor car 500 miles in 12 hours and 56 minutes at a cost of $14.30.

The cost of traveling 2,154 miles second-class in Europe, at 20.4 miles per hour, with an average of 168 pounds of baggage is $69.26, or 3.21 cents per mile.

The cost of traveling 2,154 miles first-class in America, at 38.6 miles per hour, without parlor car seat, with an average of 168 pounds of baggage is $51.86, or 2.47 cents per mile.

More interesting to Santa Fe, however, is the fact that the word Santa Fe occurs scores of times in small in medium and in large letters, in black and in blue, in red, brown, and in white, in this folder. When it is considered that thousands of these folders are distributed each month and that from each the name Santa Fe glares at the traveler, usually a well-to-do person, no matter to which page he turns, then it is apparent that the new Chamber of Commerce will be missing an opportunity if it does not follow up this splendid free advertising with pamphlets and booklets telling the traveling public what Santa Fe stands for, and convincing the world that the old town, if nothing else, is worth a visit.

MORE MILITARY TRAINING.

The fuss that is being made over the mobilizing of 20,000 of Uncle Sam's troops is demonstrating how pitifully small is the regular army of the United States in comparison with the armies of other nations. Germany, for instance, thinks nothing of parading three times that number each spring on the Tempelhof field near Berlin, and in its annual maneuvers, generally held somewhere along the border of the German Empire, handles six to ten times twenty thousand men with greater ease and less fluster than the present military demonstration in Texas calls forth.

Compulsory military service is utterly obnoxious to Americans, but they would be more military training. H. H. Windsor, in Popular Mechanics Magazine, urges that such training be made part of the popular school work. The objection is that school work is already being overloaded with all sorts of innovations. The attempt to crowd still more into the five hours a day, seems hardly wise, although in Germany time is found for elementary military drill in every grade of the public schools. However, the spread of the Boy Scout movement may serve the same purpose in the United States and for that reason should be fostered energetically and systematically in every community. Says Mr. Windsor:

"England and the United States are the two large powers where compulsory service in the army in time of peace is not required. From time to time, and more frequently of late, we are told that before many years have passed, it will be necessary to enforce one to three years military service here for every able-bodied young man. The idea is extremely repugnant, for while the physical and disciplinary value is admitted, it would mean the taking of the very years in which the average young man really fits himself for his life work. To return to this preparatory work after three years of military life is by no means easy, as anyone who has dropped his studies for a few years, will know. The training to obey without dispute, to be punctual and respectful, are things which the American boy is lacking in, but could not all this be reasonably accomplished with drill of one hour or less a day, compulsory if necessary, for all boys in upper-grade public schools and students in high schools and colleges? Moreover, it should not be forgotten that the average American boy is a very fair shot and with a minimum of training would quickly become an excellent sharpshooter. With a fair knowledge of tactics acquired at an age when he learns easily and rapidly, he would develop into an excellent soldier ten years later, if necessity required his services, in a very short time. There are many things in our modern school curriculum for which military training might be substituted with very great advantage. In cities of sufficient size, the instructor could be a regular army man; in the small towns and country districts, the training would be less efficient both through inferior instruction and lack of enthusiasm which comes only from massed forces, yet much could be accomplished even there."

HOME RULE IN IRELAND.

An Associated Press telegram to the New Mexican yesterday told of the great rejoicing in Ireland on St. Patrick's Day because of the nearness of "Home Rule," for which Ireland has struggled so long with such pathos and heart rending sacrifices. New Mexico in its struggle for statehood, especially, should have a kindred feeling for the Irish in their desire for home rule, although New Mexico never suffered the degradation, the persecution, the oppression, that the British inflicted on the hapless island. Says Henry Mann in the April Columbian:

"The British Liberal ministry is evidently resolved to have home rule for Ireland enacted by the present Parliament. The measure will presumably be along the lines of Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule Bill of about twenty years ago, and this time the House of Lords will not dare reject it. It should be remembered that home rule does not mean an independent Ireland. The Dublin legislature will not possess sovereign authority. The military and naval forces will continue to be imperial, and Ireland will have representatives in the Imperial parliament with the right to vote up on questions relating to the empire as a whole. The customs' service will also be under imperial control. All local legislation, however, will be entrusted to the Dublin law-making body."

"A very large part of the Gladstone Home Rule Bill will be taken up by the re-adjustment of the financial obligations of the United Kingdom, with a view of placing upon Ireland, as distinct from Great Britain, an equitable share of the burden. This will probably be the most difficult feature of the problem. No amount of compensation on the part of England could repay Ireland for the cruel injuries inflicted upon the latter country in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries in crushing out Irish industries, and creating conditions which drove millions of Irish into exile, and turned once populous districts into desert wastes. On the other hand, the Land Purchase Acts, which have in some measures undone previous wrongs, and enabled the peasants to become owners of the soil they occupy, have involved very great expenditures on the part of the British government, and Ireland will be doubtless asked to bear a portion of this."

"No substantial ground is apparent for the fear expressed by some North of Ireland Protestants that they will be unfairly treated by the Catholic majority. The leaders of the Home Rule movement are too sagacious, too patriotic and broad-minded to permit any of their countrymen to be wronged by oppressive legislation. No doubt they sincerely desire any means to have a united Ireland, and every sign points a fulfillment of the desire. Nearly ninety-eight years have passed since Robert Emmet, facing a sentence of death said: 'When my country takes her place among the nations of the earth, then, and not until then, let my epitaph be written.' The time for writing it seems at hand."

If fishing isn't good this year, the Territory cannot blame Game Warden Thomas P. Gable. The fry he has put out allows at least five trout for every man, woman and child in New Mexico, and as ninety-nine out of every hundred do their fishing by proxy there is a catch of five thousand trout awaiting every disciple of Isaac Walton.

The demand of Uncle Sam's high privates that Pullman cars must be placed at their disposal for travel, is not so much characteristic of the United States army as it is of the age and the luxuries to which it is accustomed. It is enough to make any Mexican War veteran laugh.

FOLLY OF FREE TRADE.

"Have you noticed any reduction in the price of shoes, since the tariff has been taken off hides?" Sparker Cannon asks in an interview printed today on another page. It is a question that should be thrust upon the Democrats who are planning to take the duty from wool and who expect aid and comfort in that movement from the Republican side. Those in Santa Fe who heard Dr. F. H. H. Roberts last evening telling from actual observation and study on the ground, of the misery, the poverty, the starvation that exist on the British Isles, will understand why the Republican stalwarts believe in high protection. Doctor Roberts cited official statistics, quoted from official reports by British authorities and his statements were incontrovertible, no matter what interpretation may be put upon the facts. This stood out, that the British workman earns in a week about as much as a New Mexican linotype operator earns in a day of eight hours and instead of living being cheaper in Great Britain it is higher, at least, for the same articles that the American workman uses in his daily life, having can be regarded as being cheaper in Europe only in the respect that the European workman is satisfied with a poorer and an inferior living as compared with the American workman. As Dr. Roberts pointed out, twenty-four per cent of British families have only one room in which they do their cooking, living and sleeping, and hordes, as many as five to ten thousand, in the Whitechapel district of London alone, have not even that, but sleep in the gutter. America has done well under high protection and it would be an egregious folly to experiment at this time with free trade in wool or any other product that can be raised in the United States.

In Texas, in New York, in Idaho, in Washington, in the South, everywhere, water falls are being harnessed to produce power. New Mexico alone does not seem to be making as great progress as it might in compelling these half million horse power of falling water do its work for it. The coal mine operators may not like it, but water power is proving much cheaper than steam wherever the power can be harnessed within a hundred miles of the place that it is to be used. In fact, some scientists are bold enough to predict that when all the falls, the ocean waves, and the sun and the wind are utilized, coal mining will stop altogether, but for the present New Mexico will continue to furnish three and more millions of tons of coal each year for power and for heating purposes, and the enormous supply now available will be visibly diminished before the day when coal will have become a useless product.

The return trip to Santa Fe of Albuquerque autoists scheduled for today, should be the opening of an era of good feeling and cooperation between the two cities. Albuquerque and Santa Fe although almost a hundred miles apart are neighbors and have many interests in common. The completion of the fine highway over La Bajada hill from the Duke City, and the general adoption of the automobile as a means of locomotion, will result in considerable traffic between the two cities, which will be beneficial to both. If, in addition, the Scenic Highway to the Pecos is completed this summer, as the Good Roads Commission has promised, Santa Fe will have annexed every one who is worth while in the Duke City and should be willing to compensate that acquisition by being punctual in returning all calls and working with Albuquerque for the common good.

Twenty-one lives and ten million dollars is the price of the Roosevelt dam and irrigation works which were formally dedicated by Ex-President Roosevelt today. A quarter million acres under irrigation will be the result. Stupendous is the work accomplished and far reaching will be its influence, for it reclaims not only an empire of fertility but the lessons learned will result in establishing one oasis after another in the Southwest and eventually these oases will merge into each other until the fertility of New Mexico and Arizona will be productive of as great wealth as resulted in ancient days from irrigation in the valleys of the Euphrates and Tigris and of the Nile. Today is a red letter day in the history of the Southwest.

The Associated Press dispatches to day forecast that President Taft will ask the special session of Congress to confine itself closely to reciprocity with Canada and not to attempt any other legislation. The Democratic leaders of the House and the Republican leaders of the Senate are in accord with the idea not to take up general legislation at the special session, but the Democrats want to revise several schedules of the tariff and insist that besides reciprocity with Canada they will vote for free wool. If possible they will also put cotton and iron and steel on the free list. All this is interesting, especially to New Mexico and Arizona, whose chances of drawing attention during the special session are very slim indeed.

The opportunity for Rough Riding in Japan does not seem imminent at present despite the warlike report wafted across the country from Albuquerque yesterday. However, the name of Colonel Roosevelt and Captain Curry are kept before the country and if there should be any real danger the nation will instinctively turn its eyes to Sagamore Hill and to Tularosa.

It is proof of the ravages of consumption that one of every five policy holders of a big insurance company dies of tuberculosis. This is the more significant when it is remembered that the holders of life insurance policies are selected risks and that

Articles of Incorporation of the Office-Seekers' Syndicate (Limited).

1. The name of this corporation shall be "The Office-Seekers' Syndicate."

2. The location of the principal place of business of this corporation shall be at No. 4144 Avenida del Burro, at the settlement of Santa Fe which is within the Navajo Reservation, New Mexico.

3. The name of the agent upon whom service of process can be had, (in case the posse comitatus is large enough) is Major-General Juan Democrita, and his principal place of business is at all points in the settlement aforesaid where free alcoholic drinks are being distributed.

4. The objects of this corporation are:

(a) To solicit the patronage of all office seekers, and to insure the success of their headless schemes, provided that such office-seekers "come through" in a manner satisfactory to this syndicate.

(b) To manage, conduct, control, direct, and run, each and every political convention held in New Mexico, irrespective of party, race, color, or previous condition of criminality.

(c) To encourage, promote, and advance by all unlawful means, the infant industry of trafficking in, herding, purchasing, trading, selling, mortgaging or conveying votes and voters, officials of whatsoever brand, and especially state legislators, it being the express purpose of this syndicate to perform in connection therewith, every act inconsistent with honesty, decency, and good morals.

(d) To engage in horticultural pursuits and disseminate useful information and give practical demonstrations in the gentle art of "grafting" as practiced upon would-be politicians, public treasures, and prospective senators.

(e) To promote, advertise, approve and finance (at the cost of the office-sucker) large irrigation projects, and to construct in connection therewith, ditches, canals, reservoirs, sewers and sinks, through which may be connected a never-ending stream of "red-eyes" for the assuaging of the thirst of free and untrammelled electors of bibulous tendencies. Baled alfalfa and well water will be furnished to suit the tastes of Socialists and Prohibitionists.

(f) To make diligent search of the criminal archives of New Mexico, and of each and every of the United States, with a view of abstracting therefrom and consigning to the flames, all evidence of crime such as indictments, judgments of conviction, etc. which may exist, (and probably does exist) against office-suckers who may become clients of this syndicate.

(g) To write biographical sketches of our clients, carefully omitting any reference to the slimy depths from which they have crawled, and to make public the criminal and dastardly records of their opponents.

(h) To co-operate with voice and deed in the meritorious work of raking, gleaming, garnering, and distributing, mud and mud, and to finance and lend aid to all duly qualified, able and distinguished "slingers" thereof.

(i) To hold up all railroad, telephone, telegraph, and other corporations of that ilk desiring legislation, and to deprive them of their ill-gotten gains, to the greater glory of the financial betterment of the syndicate.

(j) To double-cross each and every one of our clients, whenever in the judgment of the syndicate, such course will insure its material gain.

(k) To manufacture and administer white-wash, guaranteed after three applications, to make the rottenness of office-seekers appear to the astonished eye of the credulous public, as a sanctified and hallowed Archangel.

(l) And finally, to do and perform each and every act not forbidden by the Law of Moses, the rules of Joe Cannon, and all statutes and regulations of this syndicate, to be hereafter enacted.

5. The amount of the capital stock of this corporation is hereby fixed at three millions of dollars, and the number of shares into which the same is divided is three, of the par value of fifteen cents each, all of which stock has been duly subscribed and paid for by the undersigned subscribers whose post-office addresses are at the hamlet of Santa Fe aforesaid.

*6. The life of this syndicate shall stock, supplying the power house.

The third exit for flood water, one that is most necessary but will be least used, and the largest of all, is known as the sluicing tunnel, or tunnel No. 1. It was driven through the solid mountain circling the south end of the site, at the river level, before the construction of the dam began. It will be used for sluicing silt, if necessary, and for releasing a larger irrigation supply than the penstock furnishes, if needed, when the water elevation in the reservoir is below the entrance to tunnel No. 2.

Among the earliest construction features was the building of a freight road 60 miles long from Mesa City, the nearest available railroad point, to the Roosevelt dam site. Of this, 22 miles is across a desert and 38 miles through the most impressive mountain scenery in the West. The road was constructed for permanency and though as crooked as a knotted rope and often winding around the face of a cliff, it is as fine a thoroughfare as a city street.

The foregoing constructions constitute the larger features of the storage enterprises, 60 miles or more above the lands to be irrigated. The distributing system is no less interesting though no feature is so great. The water released from the dam runs down the river channel for nearly 60 miles to Granite Reef, a point just below the confluence of the Verde and Salt rivers, where a concrete weir dam 1,000 feet long and 38 feet high, diverts water through a main canal on either side of the river, to numerous canals below, covering the entire reservoir district. The allotment of funds for this project to date is about nine millions, and it may take two millions more to fully complete all contemplated work. The toll in human lives has been 17 at Roosevelt and five at Granite Reef, as near as can be ascertained, through mechanical accidents and drowning.

The work to be done will include several plans for development of hydroelectric power at favorable places along the canals, the power to be used mainly in developing an auxiliary irrigation water supply pumped from the vast underground resources. It is calculated that the reservoir, or gravity flow, will eventually water 190,000 acres and that 50,000 acres will be watered by pumps.

"UNLOADED" REVOLVER DEMANDS DAILY VICTIM.

Denver, Colo., March 18.—An unloaded revolver resulted in a shooting affair last night that probably will cause the death of Mrs. Ida Friedland, 18 years old, a bride of two months. Her 12-year-old brother, Louis Robinson, fired a bullet that penetrated her brain. She is the wife of Benjamin Friedland, clerk of the Jewish Consumptive Relief society, living at 1378 King street.

"H. H. Hague and his brother, C. W. Hague, of Raton, were in Las Vegas last night, leaving this morning for Santa Fe on their way to Las Cruces. They are making the trip in a Regal 40 motor car, and are accompanied by "Printer," a Cocker spaniel, the dog being the mascot of the party. The Hagues reported having passed A. L. Westgard and his motor truck at Wagon Mound.—Las Vegas Optic.

"Bringing with him 50,000 small brook trout to be released in the waters of the streams of San Miguel county, A. J. Fischer of Santa Fe, a deputy fish and game warden, arrived in Las Vegas last night. Today Mr. Fischer placed a considerable number of the fish in the Agua Fria Company's new reservoir in the Peter canon. The remainder he turned over to Max Nordhaus and James Leonard who will release them in the neighborhood of Trout Springs. This will materially increase the stock of fish in the Galinas river. The fish are from the Hossalkuss hatchery at Creede, Colo., and are beautiful specimens of their species. Mr. Fischer was accompanied to Gloria by Territorial Fish and Game Warden Thomas P. Gable, who will stock the streams there with a similar number of young fish. The game warden is spending considerable money this year in stocking the various streams. Mr. Fischer is exalted ruler of the Santa Fe Lodge of Elks. He was the guest today of several members of the Las Vegas herd.—Las Vegas Optic.

NAPOLEON MEETS "WATERLOO" AT HANDS OF JURY.

They Bring in Verdict of Guilty of Selling Liquor to Minor—Case Arouses Interest.

After much deliberation, the jury in the case of the Territory vs. Louis Napoleon, a liquor dealer, charged with selling liquor to a minor, brought in a verdict of guilty at 1 o'clock this morning in the district court.

Napoleon was indicted this week by the grand jury and his case aroused unusual interest as several other liquor dealers in the city were also indicted on the same charge.

There was a big crowd in the courtroom when the verdict was announced.

Judge McFie has not yet pronounced any sentence in the Napoleon case.

Set for Monday.

The case of the Wagner boys charged with murder, has been set for Monday.

Judge McFie is trying the case of the Territory vs. Juan Jose Romero this afternoon. Romero is charged with assault with a deadly weapon on Vidal Romero of Cuernavaca. Antonio Candelario has pleaded guilty to buying stolen goods and was sentenced to $100 fine and 30 days in jail but Judge McFie stated he would suspend the jail sentence during good behavior.

Judge McFie sentenced Bernardino Martinez to the penitentiary for not less than three years nor more than 37 months, and Alfredo Martinez who is under 18 years of age, was sentenced to the reform school for three years to three years and six months. They were the persons who broke into Cartwright's store and stole goods.

WHY NOT A TAG.

LICENSE FOR CATS.

Denver, Colo., March 18.—A license for cats, at $1-per-cat, is the latest. It's urged by persons who are particularly opposed to the "alley cat," or stray feline that feeds upon dainties of the refuse heap and thereby becomes a means of transportation of disease.

Put a tag on each pussy, and provide capital punishment for the ones found without the tag, is the proposal of those in favor of the movement. The matter will be taken up with the health department and the humane society.

TERRIBLE PICTURE

OF SUFFERING.
Clinton, Ky.—Mrs. M. C. McElroy in a letter from Clinton, writes: "For six years, I was a sufferer from female troubles. I could not eat, and could not stand on my feet, without suffering great pain. Three of the best doctors in the state said I was in a critical condition, and going down hill. I lost hope. After using Cardui a week, I began to improve. Now I feel better than in six years." Fifty years of success, in actual practice, is positive proof that Cardui can always be relied on, for relieving female weakness and disease. Why not test it for yourself? Sold by all druggists.

OFF TO GREET DUKE

CITY MOTORISTS.

At noon today the Santa Fe motorists received a telephone message that the Albuquerque party coming here in seven cars had reached Bernalillo.

A party of Santa Fe automobile enthusiasts was made up to go to La Bajada Hill and meet the visitors from the Duke City and escort them to Santa Fe. They are expected to reach here between 4 and 5 p. m.

Among the Santa Feans were F. S. Donnell, Clinton J. Crandall, Celso Lopez, John H. Walker, Dr. J. A. Rolis and J. E. Clarke.

It is said arrangements have been made so that there will be no trouble near Agua Fria, although some was anticipated because of the displeasure the new road, which does not touch the village, has aroused.

The Santa Fe party left here at 1:30 p. m. and had many pennants of Santa Fe in gold letters on a blue background, waving from their machines.

World Famous "SCOUTS" Now on Sale!

Now's your chance to get the "Boy Scout" Shoe, boys that world famous shoe about which you have read so much in the magazines. It's making just as big a hit in this town as it has made in the big cities. Boys are "wild" about them—say they never saw anything like them for baseball, running, jumping and all outdoor sports.

The "Boy Scout" Shoe

Toughest, lightest, most sensible everyday shoe made. Upsets are soft as gloves. Soles wear two to three times as long as ordinary soles. No lumps. Coolest and most healthful boy's shoe ever invented.

Little Boy's size 10-13, $2. Boys' size 1-5, $2.50. Big Boys' and Men's, size 6-10, $3.

Tell your pa that "Boy Scouts" outwear two to three pairs of ordinary shoes. Bring him with you—tell him we have his size, too.

Good-Luck Charm FREE

Every pair of genuine "Boy Scout" Shoes has a "Swastika" Good-Luck Charm attached. It's made of a specially prepared metal that looks like gold and it always stays bright. It's bigger than the picture in the corner and makes a dandy prize for winners of different kinds of games.

Better buy your "Boy Scout" shoes now if you don't want to wait until we send for more, 'cause they're going awfully fast. (16)

A Good Thing.
The Commercial Club and Board of Trade in Santa Fe have merged. Proper spirit; less generals and more privates are needed to boom New Mexico.—Albuquerque Herald.

Smallpox, socialists and a revolution all going on at the same time ought to make Lower California about the hottest place on the continent for a while—not to mention the climate.—Albuquerque Journal.

Advertising Does It.
If the Sears, Roebuck people did make seven million dollars last year it is one of the finest compliments advertising ever received. The big mail order houses live entirely by advertising.—Bismack.

Times Do Change.
Otero county is preparing to gather and sell native tea. My, my, how times have changed. A few years ago the only kind of native tea they had in Otero county would make a rattlesnake take the count.—Albuquerque Herald.

Sort of Anti-Saloon League Proposition.
As near as we can make out, the ultimatum of the insurgents to Diaz will be to hold another election at which Madero must be elected president. From Madero's point of view this is certainly a fair proposition. An honest election with Madero elected.—Albuquerque Journal.

It must have been a satisfaction to Roosevelt on his second visit to the Grand Canyon to note that the American people have followed his admonition and have preserved the canon intact for their children's children. It is currently reported that the colonel felt slightly apprehensive lest some one had filled it up in his enforced absence; and it is well known that he has waxed highly indignant over the proposal of Captain John Hance to have the chasm re-kalsomined.—Albuquerque Journal.

The Yellow Peril.
Now comes the report from Denver that there is a general southward exodus of Japanese cooks, bell boys, groomers, chauffeurs and waiters. "All veterans of the Russo-Japanese war" and all of which is construed to mean nothing else than a violent explosion on the part of the Yellow Peril some where about Uncle Sam's southern border. We don't take much stock in this Jap scare. It would look to the ordinary observer as if Japan with her financial load and the responsibility of looking after China and Manchuria would have little time to plan an invasion of the United States or worry over ways and means of being leagued in St. Louis.—Albuquerque Journal.

All Helps the Road.
Every automobile owner who can spare the time ought to join the procession to Santa Fe which leaves this morning at 11 o'clock. At least a dozen cars of the New Mexico Association will make the trip, and the more the merrier. There is nothing which educates the general public more as to the condition and needs of the roads than an automobile run of this kind. It's to be hoped that with the completion of the road out of this city to Algodones the interchange of auto trips between the two cities will become a daily occurrence. The completion of the road will put the people of the two cities about fifty miles closer together and the resulting closer business and social relations are bound to help both places.—Albuquerque Journal.

The Woman's Clubs.
It speaks well for the enlightenment and progress of the state of New Mexico that over a dozen flourishing woman's organizations have been able to unite in a state of federation which promises to become as strong and effective as any in the West. The club women of New Mexico are to be congratulated upon the successful outcome of the federation meeting in Las Cruces.

The bringing together of these delegates and the co-ordination of their work is bound to give a big impetus to the woman's club movement in New Mexico. The action comes none too soon, as New Mexico has heretofore been the only state or territory in the Union lacking a woman's federation. The possibilities of such an organization are impressive. Already the effect of the various clubs' work has

FISHER HAS SEVEN CHILDREN

New Secretary of Interior to the Liking of Theodore Roosevelt

HE WILL VISIT WEST SOON

While He Is Consistent Conservationist He Is Not a Crusader.

Chicago, Ill., March 18.—One of the first delegations to wait upon Walter L. Fisher, new secretary of the Interior and the third member of President Taft's official family to be chosen from Chicago, immediately he assumes active charge of his new office probably will be a commission of several of his Chicago friends of years' acquaintance who will formally invite him to address one or more of the sessions of the Nineteenth National Irrigation Congress, which are to be held here late this year.

Plans to have Secretary Fisher as a guest of the congress were outlined by members of the Chicago Board of Control immediately after the news was flashed from Washington early in the week with the sudden message that Secretary Ballinger's successor was to be the Chicagoan of conservation and traction fame.

That Mr. Fisher will appear on the speakers' platform of the congress is practically a certainty, and it is not improbable that his address will be made on the closing day, December 9, at which time the president himself is to speak. Aside from his natural interest in all things pertaining to Chicago, the new secretary has a vast knowledge of conservation matters, having for years made a study of conservation in all its phases, and is unusually well-posted in federal and state laws governing the control of water powers and waterways. These matters always have been of vital importance to irrigation interests and few other subjects have stirred up more discussion at the congress sessions in past years.

Having been invited by various boards of trade and other community organizations of the West to visit that portion of the nation which his office is more directly concerned with, especially at this time it is not unlikely that Secretary Fisher will arrange early for a personal tour of inspection throughout the West, northwest and southwest. On conservation Mr. Fisher swings far from the contentions of his predecessor, but he is not, like his friend of years, Gifford Pinchot, former United States Forester, of the crusading type.

Mr. Fisher has never been known as a visionary, but as a lawyer who, as his settlement of Chicago's famous traction questions demonstrated, takes the dreams of other men and reduces them to something definite and of practical use in everyday life. Consequently, if the new secretary does make a tour throughout the western portion of the country it will be solely for the purpose of gathering hard facts for his use in whatever plans he may formulate to logically best promote the interests of the rapidly-developing West.

Secretary Fisher, who becomes in his new office an emphasized national figure because of the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, which placed the former secretary so much in the limelight during the last year, first became a character of general importance outside Chicago when he was made a member of the Railway Securities Commission, to which office he also was appointed by President Taft. This commission recently sat in Chicago and is now in session in New York. At one time Mr. Fisher was mentioned as a possible appointee to the bench of the United States Supreme Court.

The new secretary will find ex-President Roosevelt ever with him in his work is a certainty for more reasons than one. Chief among these, however, is that fact that Mr. Fisher is the father of seven children.

CHIEF MONTGOMERY'S CHALLENGE IS PROMPTLY ACCEPTED.

Roy Mabey, the Oklahoma Farmer, Although Ill With Pneumonia Wires to Arrange Meet.

Albuquerque, March 18.—In reply to the challenge issued yesterday, in which Chief Montour, the Delaware Indian, now in Hagersville, Canada, offered to take on any local wrestler, Roy Mabey, the "Oklahoma Farmer," yesterday telegraphed to the Delaware accepting the challenge. Mabey is now ill with pneumonia, but believes he will be in condition to wrestle at no great date after he is permitted to get out of bed. Chief Montour is a middleweight champion, but now weighs 170 pounds, and will probably wrestle Mabey at that weight. Mabey was stricken with pneumonia last Sunday. Just as he was recovering from a fractured rib which he sustained in his bout with Descher a month ago. Providing arrangements are made for the bout between Mabey and Chief Montour, Albuquerque fans will see some real wrestling, both men being first class performers in the mat business.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

NEW MEXICO POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

It All Helps.

Little seeds from Washington may grow votes if they do not produce much garden sass.—Albuquerque Herald.

The Press Knows Its Friends.
If the press of the territory have been sincere in their commendation of the good work of Delegate Andrews, he should have a walk-over in the candidacy for United States Senator from New Mexico.—Rock Island Tribune.

Premature Worry.
The Raton Range is worrying about those premature senatorial booms. Let us get steeplechase before shaking the skeletons. The skeletons will keep—they have been with us for a long time.—Albuquerque Herald.

Stuffing Arizona Democrats.
The members of the Arizona statehood committee have returned from Washington and are busily engaged in stuffing the people of the territory with the misinformation that statehood is certain during the impending extra session of Congress. And the greatest trouble with the Arizona statehood situation today is that the people have given too much credence to just such misinformation as is being inflicted on them today.—El Paso Times.

Who'll Separate the Goats?

While waiting for long deferred statehood it might not be amiss to reflect a little on the statehood situation, and analyze future possibilities. The men who consider that their valuable service in the past to the party under whose banner they do their political shouting entitles them to the best there is in the way of soft snaps is legion. Forget it, professional politician and habitual seekers after the high places! New Mexico owes you nothing. If you have done your duty—given your best for New Mexico as a citizen of the territory, the account is balanced. It was no more than you should have done, and no more than thousands of others did who do not seek reward. The men who have held office under the territorial administration, either federal, appointive, or elective, have been duly honored and fully paid.

The state of New Mexico will not come into the Union owing you more than a vote of thanks.

The fact that you have made an acceptable public servant entitles you to a clean bill of health, and if the people want—or think they need you, under the new conditions, they have the means at hand of voting their wishes.

Those who have not acquitted themselves with entire satisfaction to the people had better go way back and remain seated. Too late to send your political garments to the laundry. No use investing in buckets of whitewash to partially obliterate the stains on the records for we all know where to locate them.

There is plenty of "pure gold" from which to fashion the initial ornament that shall direct the desires of the infant New Mexico, at base alloys will not be tolerated the people are wise.

They are much wiser than they were and all of them can not be fooled all the time.

The goats will not be allowed to mix with the pure wool sheep in the new New Mexico.—Raton Range.

HUMOR AND PATHOS OF TRAVEL

Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts Gave Audience Intimate View of Life Abroad

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS SCORED

Orchestral Accompaniment Also Served To Make Musical Feature Delightful.

"The Humor and Pathos of Travel" was the subject of Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts, president of the New Mexico Normal University and professor of his history and sociology at the University of Denver who lectured to a large audience last night at the Elks Theater. The lecture was given for the benefit of the High School Athletic Association.

Preceding the lecture the high school Glee Club sang two stirring selections. The girls looked very pretty in their attractive frocks and they aroused much enthusiasm.

The girls in chorus were: Misses Miriam Law, Lena Krick, Pauline Kinsell, Maude Palmer, Claribel Fischer, Opal Sanford, Edna Lutz, Pearl Willey, Jean Law, Ruth McBride, Charlotte Wentge, Lulu Krick, Josephine Cunningham, Lola Michaelson, Dorothy Griffin, Felicitas Walker, Dorothy Safford, Isabel Walker, Anna Dorman, Helen Winter.

As an encore the girls sang a little song entitled "The Little Green Shamrock" which was very appropriate, it being St. Patrick's day.

The musical accompaniment was excellent. Miss Virginia Bean, Miss Consuelo Bergere, Miss Amelia McElie and Edward Cartwright accompanied on the violin, Wallace Fliske on the violin and Miss Hazel and Miss Hazel Sparks on the piano.

The program opened with colored moving pictures of Verdi's great opera, "Il Trovatore" and they were splendid.

The lecture lasted over two hours and was unusually interesting because the lecturer had traveled more as a student and observer of social conditions than do most people "who cross the pond." Dr. Roberts was sent to Europe by the University of Denver to study municipal ownership in England and his report on this subject on him a place in "Who's Who in America," that thick red book in which many men and women yearn to find their names.

Most of the lantern slides accompanying the lecture were of England, and he told many interesting stories depicting rather the conditions of those in the lower walks of life. Time and again, however, he dropped the pathos and took up the humor in his travels, and the audience vented its pleasure in applause and laughter.

The lecturer said a few words about the continent which he also visited, and he took a rap at social conditions which permitted a woman to be hitched up with a dog to a milk cart in Belgium. He also told a story of a student in Berlin forcing a lady to give him her seat and stand through a lecture.

The lecture gave a more intimate view of life and conditions in Great Britain than one usually gains from lectures, books of travel or even the customary hurried trip of seeing Europe in six weeks, which most Americans make.

Closing of Saloons.

In his lecture, Dr. Roberts took a flying shot at the Sunday observance in England, and said that the saloons are closed until 8 p. m. when they are opened until 8 p. m. but that during those two hours he had observed much drinking and drunkenness. He said that the people seemed to save their thirst for those two hours and make up for the rest of the day when the saloons were closed. It is said, however, that the closing of the saloons is not done so much out of respect to the Sabbath as to give the bar maids a holiday.

ALBUQUERQUE AUTO PARTY MAKES START.

Expect to Reach Here This Afternoon and May Go Home by Way of Tijeras Pass.

Albuquerque, N. M., March 18.—Harry Lee, Ed Newcomer and F. A. Hubbell yesterday announced their intention of joining the New Mexico Automobile association run to Santa Fe and back, which starts between 9 and 9:30 from Robinson park in this city this morning in command of Colonel D. K. B. Sellers, president of the association. The others who will take their machines over the route as mentioned yesterday are Herbert Brooks,

CHICHESTER'S PILLS

Clarence Lovern, W. H. Hahn, Ed Hickox, Isaac Barth, I. H. Cox, A. McCready. It is expected that several more will be ready to follow the leader when the starting horn is sounded this morning. All automobile owners are invited to make the trip. Arrangements have been made to stop at Pete Gillian's hotel in Bernalillo at noon for lunch, but those who wish may take their lunch along with them. At Bernalillo, Colonel Sellers will telephone to Santa Fe the number in the party and reserve hotel accommodations.

Clarence Lovern, expert mechanic of the Southwest Garage, has kindly consented to act as trouble man and will accordingly bring up the rear of the procession to pick up all stragglers and extend whatever aid is needed. Lovern will take his big Thomas car.

The party will leave Bernalillo promptly at noon following the Camino Real to Santa Fe, which point should be reached along in the middle of the afternoon, as the tourists will take their time to it and every machine will be perfectly able to keep up with its higher powered companions.

On the return trip, the Albuquerqueers will leave the capital early Sunday forenoon and arrive here with good luck some time in the middle of the afternoon. It is possible that the return may be made via the beautiful scenery on the east side of the Sandia mountains, entering this city by the Tijeras canyon route.

ALBUQUERQUE MAY PLAY JAP BASEBALL CLUB.

Dan Padilla Receives a Unique Challenge That He Is Disposed to Accept.

Albuquerque, N. M., March 18.—Fight to the finish on the baseball field, but peace and joy between the United States and Japan is the slogan adopted by Harry A. Saisho, manager of the Japanese Baseball Club, which will leave Los Angeles on a tour of this country on May 15, and is anxious to play a game or more in Albuquerque. Manager Saisho has communicated with Manager Daniel Padilla, of the Albuquerque Grays, asking for a game and if it can be arranged to play here on a Sunday, when there will be a chance to gather in the guarantee asked by the Japs, the game will be played. Manager Padilla has written to Manager Saisho giving information requested and there is but small doubt that the game will be played. A Japanese baseball club has never played in Albuquerque and will be a big drawing card. The club is composed of some of the best professional and semi-professional Japanese players of the United States. In a letter, which is slightly mixed as far as purity of English and elegance of rhetoric is concerned, Manager A. Saisho has the following to say in part:

"Morning Journal, Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Dear Sir: Please work at paper. If your town agree to us we want a game or more. Battle on the baseball on two nations and peace and joy between two country.

Yours truly,

HARRY A. SAISHO."

Warning to Railroad Men

Look out for severe and even dangerous kidney and bladder trouble resulting from years of railroad. Geo. E. Bell, 629 Third street, Fort Wayne, Ind., was many years a conductor on the Nickel Plate. He says: "Twenty years of railroad left my kidneys in terrible condition. There was a continual pain across my back and hips and my kidneys gave me much distress, and the action of my bladder was frequent and most painful. I got a supply of Foley Kidney Pills and the first bottle made a wonderful improvement and four bottles cured me completely. Since being cured I have recommended Foley Kidney Pills to many of my railroad friends." Capital Pharmacy.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Small Holding Claim No. 1118. (Serial 102528—Not Coal, Pecos Forest.)

Department of the Interior, United States Land Office.

(Re Publication.)

Santa Fe, N. M., March 15, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that the following named claimant has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim under sections 18 and 17 of the act of March 3, 1891, (26 Stats., 854), as amended by the act of February 21, 1893 (27 Stats., 470), and that said proof will be made before Register and Receiver at U. S. land office, Santa Fe, N. M., on May 5, 1911, viz: Nicario Quintana, of Rowe, N. M., for the claim 1418, being the W 1/2 SW 1/4, Sec. 28, SE 1/4 NE 1/4, and the NE 1/4 SE 1/4, Sec. 29, T. 16 N., R. 13 E., N. M. P. M.

He names the following witnesses to prove his actual continuous adverse possession of said tract for twenty years next preceding the survey of the township, viz:

Vicente Quintana, Antonio Roybal, both of Pecos, N. M., Cleofes Garcia, Cayetano Garcia, both of Rowe, N. M.

Any person who desires to protest against the allowance of said proof, or who knows of any substantial reason under the laws and regulations of the Interior Department why such proof should not be allowed will be given an opportunity at the above-mentioned time and place to cross-examine the witnesses of said claimant, and to offer evidence in rebuttal of that submitted by claimant.

Register,

MANUEL R. OTERO.

A ROMANCE ON A COUNTY POOR FARM.

Spokane, Wash., March 18.—This is something about a romance of the Spokane county poor farm that did not end in the regular story book fashion. Mary A. McLaughlin, 48 years of age, and John McNabb, 48 years of age, the province of British Columbia a year ago, when Robert G. Butler, county auditor, had refused to issue a license, have returned. After the wedding the bride dreamed of the many fancies she could gratify with her husband's fortune of $50,000, while McNabb figured that his wife's nest-egg of $2,000 would mean a year or two of ease. One day there was a rude awakening—they had less than $7 between them. Straightaway they came to Spokane and lived for a time on the fat of the land. House-owners and storekeepers tired of this after a while, and then the couple laid siege at the county commissioners' office to receive them as the prodigal son and daughter. The fatted calf condescended to gambol on the green with no thought of gracing the board at the family reunion, at which the McNabbs were to be chief guests.

"SWIFTWATER BILL" FORMS A SYNDICATE.

Spokane, Wash., March 18.—William C. Gates, of Spokane, known from Alaska to Mexico as "Swiftwater Bill," who accumulated several fortunes in Alaska, California, Nevada and Arizona only to squander them, when he reached civilization, has formed a syndicate here to develop 2,228 acres of placer gold ground in the Torredamba district in South America. He has acquired four properties from the government of Peru, the titles being attested by the American consul at Lima. The gold beds are 600 miles back from the Pacific ocean and are traversed by the Torredamba, referred to by the natives as "the River of the Roaring Bull." Gates, who has just returned from a trip to the Peruvian wilds on which he was accompanied by his girl-wife, announces the syndicate has provided ample funds to work the properties. He will employ 200 natives to work in the creek beds and do the suling and as soon as operations are under way, late this spring, he and Mrs. Gates will head an expedition into unexplored portions of Peru and Bolivia.

"Foley's Honey and Tar is the best cough remedy I ever used, as it quickly stopped a severe cough that had long troubled me," says J. W. Kuhn, Princeton, Neb. Just so quickly and surely it acts in all cases of coughs, colds, la grippe and lung trouble. Refuse substitutes. Capital Pharmacy.

IN ANCESTRAL HALLS

By FRANCIS A. COREY

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

Pausing just outside the massive gateway, Leslie Graham gazed wistfully at the picturesque old mansion and the lovely, tangled garden.

This charming place should have been her home. It had been in the Graham family for 200 years. But her present abode was the hall bedroom of a cheap lodging house; and her "brotherly old grandmother" dwelt alone in the ancestral halls with a small retinue of servants.

Thrice had Leslie written within six months making overtures toward a reconciliation. But her letters had been promptly returned with the two words, "Not wanted," indorsed upon the back.

Leslie herself was not to blame for this unfortunate state of affairs. The trouble dated twenty years back—before her day—when Madame Graham's only son married a pretty actress, and the proud old woman had disowned him. He was dead now; so was the pink doll for whose love he had sacrificed himself; but not even his daughter's poverty and friendliness had softened Madame's obdurate heart.

"I've had a mind to go and tell grandma I've come to stay," she said aloud, to herself. The aristocratic old place drew her like a magnet. It would be like heaven to live there.

She turned her back on the alluring picture, and slowly wended her way to the dreary boarding house.

As she gained the upper landing Amy Burton opened the door of her room, showing a litter of half-packed trunks and empty boxes.

"Come in, Leslie," she said eagerly.

"I'm in trouble, and you can help me. I have you out of a place. I applied to Madame Graham, of Overlook, for the position of companion. Word has just come that I am to report for duty immediately, and here's a telegram from home saying mother is very ill and I'm wanted there."

Amy crushed the yellow envelope nervously in her hand, pale with emotion.

"What do you want me to do?" Leslie articulated faintly.

"Go to Overlook and keep the place until I return to claim it."

Leslie clutched a chair to steady herself. She did not believe in chance, but she did believe in Providence. For all she was a Graham, it was certain that Amy had never thought of this fact in connection with the aristocratic mistress of Overlook. She did not take her friend into her confidence now. What she did say, after a moment's thinking, was this:

"Very well, Amy, I'll go."

An hour later she stood again at the Overlook gate, looking into the lovely green tangle. This time the gate was closed. As she tugged at the ponderous latch a perfectly groomed young man in white flannels rose from a bench beside the drive and hurried forward.

"Allow me," he said politely, and swung wide the gate.

A warm color leaped into the girl's face. She went up the shaded walk wondering who the stranger could be and what he was doing at Overlook.

She was shown into an old-fashioned room where Madame Graham sat in a high-backed chair. Never had Leslie seen her grandmother at such short range before. She looked curiously at the little, wrinkled old woman, thinking what a picturesque figure she was in her lusterless black silk and priceless lace.

"What's your name?" Madame shot the question at her like a bullet. "I have forgotten it—if I were told. Simpkins engaged you."

There was a moment's pause. Here was a difficulty at the outset. She could not give Amy Burton's name; neither would she take one to which she had no right.

"Leslie," she answered recklessly. Madame started. Her keen blue eyes became suddenly two points of light.

"That's my own name, Leslie Graham." She gave a short laugh. "My mother was a Leslie. There were no boys in the family, so I was given a name that should belong to a boy, just to keep it in daily use. But I guess it suits me. I hate feminine names. You're not a Westmoreland Leslie, of course?"

The sharp eyes were focused on the girl's face. Leslie felt her heart in her throat. But she was spared the necessity of replying by the entrance of the man who had opened the gate for her.

"Hugh Wentworth," said Madame, presenting him, "the grandson of my dearest friend. I've asked him here for two weeks that I may make up my mind whether he is to be my heir or not, Miss Leslie, Hugh."

There was a look of genuine admiration in the young man's eyes as he acknowledged the introduction.

"I've got money enough of my own. I don't covet Madame's thousands," he declared with a boyish laugh. "They must go to those of her own blood."

"Not a dollar to the daughter of a play-acting woman, if that is what you mean," snapped Madame.

Leslie bit her lip. She let the slur pass, this once. But never again should her grandmother disparage her beautiful mother unbeknownst!

For a few days all went well. Leslie wrote Madame's letters, read to her, performed the duties of lady's maid. She would have welcomed any task that gave her the joy of living in that charming house. And then she began dimly to realize what a vivid part of the beautiful life for which she sighed Hugh Wentworth had already become.

She fairly haunted the dear old garden. She knew just where her father had loved to play when a boy, where he had walked and dreamed as a man. The sweet tangle with its hallowed associations had a charm of which she never tired.

One late twilight she wandered under the trees until the gold was quite gone from the sky. She had flung and voluminous. It had been her mother's. She still had it on when she entered the quaint old library where her grandmother and Hugh sat in the lamplight.

One look, and the old lady started violently to her feet. "That cloak!" How did you come by it?" she almost shrieked.

Without waiting for a reply she crossed to her desk, fumbled in a secret drawer with trembling hands, and held a card photograph up to the light. Leslie gasped with dismay. Her mother's picture taken in this selfsame wrap. Madame glanced at it then at the girl, white as the lace at her throat.

"Now I know why you look like an actress! That dancing puppet of the footlights was your mother!"

Leslie drew herself up. "Yes, and I am proud of the fact," she said. "Who would not be proud of such a mother—the best woman in the world—and the most beautiful?"

Madame sat down heavily, pounding the arm of her chair with her fist. "You dare say that to me?" she cried, her voice rising louder and sharper with each word. "Leave my house—this instant!"

Leslie turned, with a wonderful gesture that was a legacy from the stage. On the threshold she paused an instant.

"Grandmother," she said, "I want you to forgive me for coming here like this. My poor father had told me so much about Overlook and the happy days of his boyhood I wanted to know more of the dear old place. And he always spoke tenderly, forgivingly of you. He loved you in spite of your harshness; or he never would have named me Leslie, after you."

Madame said nothing; she turned away her face. Hugh came close up to the half-sobbing girl and took her hands in his.

"I am your friend," he whispered. "Now—and always. Don't forget that." Unspeaking things were in his eyes.

A new, sweet joy thrilled Leslie's heart as she climbed to her room. Nevertheless a few scalding drops fell among the belongings she gathered hurriedly together. Still enveloped in that picturesque old wrap she descended the stairs. Hugh Wentworth was waiting in the lower hall. Without a word he led her back to the carved mahogany chair, where sat Madame Graham like a queen upon her throne.

Slowly the old woman lifted her bowed head. There was a wonderful new softness in her wrinkled face.

"Nobody—ever called me grandmother—before," she said brokenly.

NEEDS BOTH PIE AND SLEEP

If Boy Craves Either, Doctor Says, It Is a Sure Sign That He Needs It.

That hitherto friendless wight—the boy who pleads with his mother for pie, who pleads with his mother for more in spite of all her attempts to shame him—is a friendless no longer. Dr. Woods Hutchinson, the New York physician, whose articles on how to be healthy have covered many pages in many magazines during the last few years, says: "If he asks for a second piece of pie give it; yes, give him the sixth."

"Give the boy all the pie he wants. When he gets enough he'll know it. His system craves it or he wouldn't ask for it."

Then there's another hitherto friendless one in whose behalf Doctor Hutchinson lifts his voice—the youngster who always grows "Yes'm" when his mother calls him in the morning and then turns over and goes to sleep again.

"Let him sleep," says Doctor Hutchinson. "He needs the sleep; if he didn't he wouldn't object to getting up."

Real Barker for Dog Show.

There will be one real barker at the Westminster Kennel club show. He will be a small member of the dog brigade which is helping to support the downtown animal clinic of the Animal Protection society. All members of the brigade pay $1 into the clinic fund and wear the society badge. Any nice little dog—or big dog—living in a comfortable home and having plenty to eat and a collar or perhaps even a blanket and shoes to wear would be delighted to join the brigade if he knew anything about it. Hence the "barker."

The barker will be on duty each day. He will do tricks and act as a "barker," getting as many dog members of the brigade as possible.—New York Times.

Her's by Inheritance.

Alice Stone Blackwell was elected president of the Woman's Journal, to succeed Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, at a recent meeting of the stockholders. Miss Blackwell has been interested in the suffrage movement all her life, having inherited the interest from her mother, Lucy Stone Blackwell, and her father, Henry Blackwell, both of whom worked all their lives for the cause.

Better Than Talent.

"Has that Milligan girl any dramatic talent?"

"Very little. But she'll win out, all right."

"What makes you think so?"

"The way she starts in. She calls herself 'Molly Morgan' and lets it be understood that she's the favorite niece of J. Pierpont."

The Difficulty.

"Life ain't nothin' but disappointment," groaned the Chronic Grumbler.

"Cheer up!" urged the Cheerful Idiot. "Didn't yer get $10 for puttin' yer picture in the paper as havin' bin cured o' all yer ills by Bunk's pills?"

"Yes, I did. An' now all my relatives are askin' me why I don't go to work, now that I'm cured."—Tit-Bits.

One by Father Time.

Before entering the gates of 1911 Father Time discovered a nick in his scythe.

"What is that doing there?" asked the Foolish Questioner.

"Why, my boy," responded Father Time, "I guess that is what you would call the nick of time."

"Count" Herman Long and President Tom Lynch Had Fast Working Brains, Says Fred Tenney.

Manager Fred Tenney of the Boston Rustlers, tells an anecdote that gives an instance of the remarkable quick thinking on the ball field of the late Herman ("Count") Long, and also the methods of President Thomas J. Lynch of the National League, when he was plain Tom Lynch, the umpire.

"The old Boston team was playing the Giants at the Polo Grounds," says Tenney. "Several years ago. When the Giants went in for their ninth inning we had a

CHEROKEE STRIP TO DISAPPEAR

Political Landslide of Last November Has Annihilated It

LAFOLLETTE ALONE REMAINS

And He Is Merely Waiting to Sit in a Dead Man's Chair, It Is Said.

By Victor Elliott.

Washington, D. C., March 18.—That fertile bit of congressional territory, popularly known as the "Cherokee Strip" is to disappear, temporarily at least, so far as the United States senate is concerned. It will remain nothing but a mere spot, and Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin is to occupy that spot. The great political landslide which occurred last November has practically annihilated it, or if not that, then it has been made uninhabitable for members of the senate who profess the Republican faith.

The name of the "Cherokee Strip" had its origin in the House of Representatives 20 years ago. It was one of the criticisms of "Sackless Jerry" Simpson, the Populist from Kansas, and Jerry was as bright and witty as any man who ever sat in that body, not even excepting Private John Allen, who for many years held the distinction of being the wit of the House. Humor exuded from the statesman from Medicine Lodge, for that was Jerry's home town, and his merry quips struck home, and scored for him in many a verbal combat while he was a member of congress.

It was in the 52nd congress that Simpson coined the term "Cherokee Strip." That was the congress where the Democrats outnumbered the Republicans in the proportion of two to one in the House, and generally the "Pops" sided and voted with the Democrats, when, in the drawing of lots for seats in the House, which is one of the features of the opening day of each new congress, all of the seats on the Democratic side were taken, it became necessary for the democrats whose names were called toward the last, to select places on the Republican side of the chamber. They preempted a section on the minority side, and this Jerry Simpson characterized as the "Cherokee Strip," and thus it has ever since been known, and probably will continue to be known as long as there is a congress, although Jerry Simpson has been dead for five years. Sometimes it has shifted from one side of the House to the other, but wherever a number of members of the majority have been obliged to take seats on the minority side, that location has been known as the "Cherokee Strip." It is a bit of recognized territory, and the term has become classic.

Simpson suggested it because about that time occurred the grand rush for land in Indian Territory, now a part of the state of Oklahoma, and the reservation which was being opened up was known as the Cherokee strip. That is how the "Cherokee Strip" in congress got its name.

Even the dignified senate accepted it as a designation for the location of a number of Republican senators, who were obliged to take seats on the Democratic side of the chamber.

LAND OFFICIAL GETS A FREAKISH LETTER.

Homesteader Writes of His Trouble in Establishing Corners Owing to "Stack of Boulders."

A well known land official of Santa Fe is said to have the following curious letter tucked away in his desk but some one has seen the letter and thinking it good enough for publication sent the following copy to the New Mexican:

"My enthusiasm as a homesteader is decidedly cooler now than it was the day I wormed up the winding stairs to your office, with a throbbing heart and a sore heel, in order to file upon my section. Today we surveyed the possession and were successful in establishing three corners only. The southeast corner is securely tucked under a stack of boulders that would make a grotto in the Rocky mountains look like a modern beer garden. From this corner it ran eighty chains due north to a blue spot in the sky, where we were told the northeast corner had been nailed up.

"The northwest corner I found had taken a half-hitch around a perpendicular wall of sorghum-colored limestone that looks as though it had been built for that purpose, while the southwest corner was not visible at all, being buried under an adjoining hill to a depth of several hundred feet, to reveal which would entail an amount of excavation to which I do not feel equal, and for which I do not think the government holds me obligated in this contract. If I were hunting scenery and landscape material this entry would fill my soul with delight. I have never met a more perfect land (scape) in all my travels!"

WOLGAST REMAINS LIGHT WEIGHT CHAMPION.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 18.—Ad. Wolgast remains the world's light weight champion, having knocked out George Mensie yesterday afternoon, the referee stopping the fight in the ninth round on account of the fearful punishment given Mensie. Wolgast's superiority was never in doubt from the very first and the referee stopped the fight in accordance with a promise given the district attorney that he would do so at the first signs of weakness on part of either pugilist.
