HARDING COUNTY DEVELOPER TAKES A RAP AT ROY BUSINESS MEN

The Harding County Developer of last week came out with a two column article under the heading "ROY'S BUSINESS MEN START NEW FIGHT ON COUNTY SEAT" and begins the article with this paragraph.

"Roy has shown her true colors at last, that is a part of Roy has. We do not believe that the majority of the people of that little village are to be classed with the few would-be-leaders who have started their latest move of iniquity. Unlike some of our readers we refuse to believe that the Democratic Party is back of the move, even though sponsored by a few of the prominent democrats of that place."

The article contains three more long paragraphs filled with more or less abuse of Roy and the citizens of the town and ending with these remarks, "But greatest of all it will so disgust the rest of the county with the people of Roy that they will never be able to live down the distrust and disgrace of their actions."

The whole article is one that would fill any fair minded person with disgust who would take the time to read it and we are sure it has done our County Seat far more harm than it could have ever done it good.

The cause of the article was the fact that a number of persons of Harding County had reached that point when they felt that it was time to call a halt to further bond issues without a vote of the people.

A few months after Harding County was organized the County Commissioners issued THIRTY THOUSAND DOLLARS in debentures or future indebtedness against the county without a vote of the people. A number of the people of the county felt at that time that it was more than necessary, but not a word of protest was raised against this action as it was needed, or at least most of it was used, in starting off the new county on a cash basis.

This fall, just a short time before election, the people of Mosquero wanted a special election called to vote on a bond issue for county buildings and the people of this part of the county were perfectly willing for the election to be called providing that the location of a county High School would be submitted to the people at the same election. Those who represented Mosquero, said "No" "We want our election first and Roy can have the vote on the High School at the general election." The people of Roy objected bitterly to this manner of procedure and the commissioners decided to not call the election for the bond issue. Later it was learned that the commissioners had decided to issue the bonds without a vote of the people and preparations were being made to issue the bonds and to have them sold.

This was too much for the people of Roy and many of the taxpayers in other parts of the county. With an existing bonded indebtedness of $30,000, with a prospect of our having to pay Union and Mora counties large sums under the provisions of the law creating our county, and while thousands of dollars remain due and unpaid on our county tax rolls because our people are too poor to pay their taxes, the county commissioners were planning to place additional burdens on our taxpayers by the issuance of $25,000.00 in court house and jail bonds! And this without a vote of the people; as stated.

For the information of the Editor of the Developer we beg leave to quote Section 10 of Article 9 of our State Constitution which reads as follows:

"No county shall borrow money except for the purpose of erecting necessary public building or construction or repairing of public roads and bridges, and in such cases, only AFTER THE PROPOSITION TO CREATE SUCH DEBT SHALL HAVE BEEN SUBMITTED TO

THE QUALIFIED ELECTORS OF THE COUNTY WHO PAID PROPERTY TAXES THEREIN during the preceding year and approved by a majority vote of those voting thereon. No bonds issued for such purpose shall run for more than fifty years."

With all these facts in view a number of people of Roy did get out an injunction against the County Commissioners, forbidding them to issue a large block of bonds against the county at this time. The injunction was not against Mosquero, but against the county commissioners. The District Court granted a temporary restraining order and when the matter came up for hearing last Monday at Raton, the Commissioners were represented by one of the ablest lawyers in the state, Judge Roberts of Santa Fe, but after a full hearing, the court made the injunction permanent. The Commissioners have appealed the case to the Supreme Court where the matter will be finally decided by that tribunal.

Now these are the facts of the matter just as they have taken place. The Developer can call it an attack on Mosquero if it wishes, but we call it "A Godsend to the people of Harding County" have been misinformed if you think the rest of Harding County (of course we don't know what you call the rest) is disgusted with this injunction. The county is filled with good honest people, people who wish to say when an indebtedness is placed on them. Remember the people should rule. Let the public vote on these bonds and if they carry, we will guarantee that Roy will be with you and the commissioners in having them issued at once. Why be afraid of the people? If they want them they will say so by their vote, so let's give them a say on the question. We do not know what is meant by "Past favors extended" unless it was the overwhelming vote cast by Mosquero against the County High School!

Now a few words about the article in the Developer. It says Roy has shown her true colors. Well she has when it comes to keeping down the taxes of the people. But might we not say that a portion of the people of Mosquero showed their "true colors" on election day when they cast 156 votes against the high school out of a total vote of about 250. The article also makes fun of those who got out the temporary injunction and the able editor tells his readers that it is an assured fact that the injunction will never be made permanent. Where did you get your information Mr. Editor?

He asks if the injunction is for the purpose of disgusting the rest of the county with Roy, causing them to see in fact what they (WHO?) merely disregarded before, the utter disregard of Roy for past favors extended etc.

Now listen Mr. Editor, you that this one plank did much to bring a democratic victory in Harding County. But for the information of the Developer we wish to state that the injunction has the approval of many Republicans in all parts of the county. The paper also states that Mosquero citizens will retaliate with an injunction against the County High School. This is their privilege if they wish to try and stop the will of the people as the County High School has been established by a vote of the people and when one tries to withhold the decision of the people, they generally retaliate with a heavier vote than ever if called upon to do so.

We admit that part which states that considerable hatred is being made between the two towns, when the fact of the matter is, they should be working for a bigger and better Harding County. We are sure that the article in the Developer caused more hatred than anything which has been said or done to date, and while it is not the desire of the S.A. to mix in county or town disputes, yet when the business men and the people in general of any town are attacked as they were in the article referred to, it is up to the paper of the town in which they reside to protect them and give the pe-ble the real facts. All we ask for is a fair and square deal for the whole of Harding County and that the people of the County shall rule. We had hoped that an election would be called with the general election and a bond issue voted for a County Court House and Jail, and if Mosquero had not objected, no doubt it would have been called and the chances are that it would have carried; at least it would have given the people a chance to say whether they wanted additional indebtedness or not.

As for the closing paragraph, we will state that the people of Roy and vicinity are able to stand on their own records and merits; so long as they are in the right and working for the taxpayers interests they are not afraid but they will be able to live down "The Distrust and Disgrace of their actions" as the closing of the Developer article states. We are sorry that it was necessary to write this article, but the people have a right to know both sides of all questions and then again the Spanish American will never allow unanswered such vilifications as were heaped against the people of Roy and community as appeared in the Developer article of last week.

HERN-JUDY

Forrest Judy and Cora Hern of this place were married at Raton Tuesday evening. They will make their future home at that place where Mr. Judy has a good position with the Santa Fe railroad. The wedding was a surprise to their many friends at Roy, and while they knew a romance was in the air, yet they did not think it would end so quickly in the happy way it did Tuesday.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Judy of south of town and is a young mechanic of considerable ability and will make a fine husband for the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. A. J. Hern of this place and is a graduate of the Roy schools. She is a young lady of considerable ability and Mr. Judy should consider himself lucky in securing her for his life partner.

The young couple will be at home to their many friends at the Seaberg Hotel in Raton on Saturday afternoon November 25th.

The Spanish-American extends congratulations to the happy couple and wishes them the joys of a long and successful life.

MRS. SLEMAN DAVID PASSES AWAY FRIDAY NIGHT

Just as we go to press we received the sad news that Mrs. S. David had passed away Friday night at the Valmore Sanitarium after a lingering illness of several weeks. No arrangements have been made for the funeral as we go to press. A complete obituary will appear in next week's paper. Mr. David and children have the sympathy of the entire community in their grief.

George Hunker State Chairman of the Democrat Party arrived in Roy Saturday noon and is conferring with local Democrats. Mr. Hunker shows that he well pleased with the results of the recent election.

DISTRICT COURT MAKES INJUNCTION PERMANENT

The temporary injunction granted by the District Court a few days ago against the County Commissioners restraining them from issuing the County Court House bonds, was made permanent at a hearing in the District Court at Raton last Monday. The Court ruled that Manuel Martinez did not have the power to represent the whole people of the county or rather that this power had not been delegated to him by the people. The Commissioners appealed the case to the Supreme Court and that Tribunal will have final decision on the matter.

Mrs. Linton Tells How Helpful Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is at This Period

Denver, Colorado.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for seven years and I cannot tell you the good it has done me. It is good for young and old and I always keep a bottle of it in the house, for I am at that time of life when it calls for Lydia E. Pinkham's help. My husband saw your ad. in the papers and said 'You have taken everything you can think of, now I want you to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.' So I let him get it, and I soon felt better and he told me I want you to take about six bottles." So I did and I keep house and do all my own work and work out by the day and feel fine now. I tell every one about the Vegetable Compound, for so many of my friends thought I would not get well."—Mrs. R. J. LINTON, 1850 West 33d Avenue, Denver, Colorado.

Molly ran behind the blazing divan, picked up the rifle, and drove a smashing blow against the back wall. It cracked; again and again she dashed the stock against it, until a section of the pine planks gave way under her assault.

Together they carried Wilton through into a room behind. Outside it was quite light; a gust of wind came through an open window and fanned the flames to fury. With a roar the fire leaped up the outer walls, and the whole front of the camp was ablaze.

Molly scrambled to the sill, cune there, and dropped. The factor, leaning out, lowered Wilton's body. And he himself dropped to the ground beside the girl.

As he dropped she perceived, without realizing it, that he had used both arms and legs. The paralysis had left him.

They ran down toward the lake, carrying Wilton between them, and making instinctively for the shelter of the undergrowth.

As they passed the road, Bowyer came out of the stable, pulling fiercely at the horse, which were fastened to the rig. He had set his foot upon the step when Lee Chambers and Hackett broke upon him from among the trees.

They made a leap for the vehicle. "Let us in, d—n you!" Chambers yelled.

Bowyer dealt him a blow with the whipstock that sent him staggering. With a vile oath Hackett sprang for the step. Bowyer lashed him across the face, causing him to miss his footing, and cursing and shouting, the two men rushed after him and disappeared down the road. The sound of the galloping horses died away. Molly kneeled at Wilton's side, bathing his face with water from the lake. The factor held his wrist.

"His pulse beats sound," he said. "He'll come back to himself soon. Let's awa', lass; let's awa'."

The girl hardly heard him. Piteously she scanned Wilton's face for some signs of returning consciousness. But Wilton did not stir, though he was breathing easily.

Presently, with a hideous clamor, the two outlaws returned. Molly held her breath as they came back along the road, only a few yards above where she crouched with the factor. But they passed on, and turned up toward the camp, which blazed furiously, a flaming parallelogram against the glow of the eastern sky, into which the rim of the sun just projected from the horizon.

Even as she watched the girl saw the blazing walls tumble inward. The men leaped back, and then, shouting drunkenly, made their way toward the stables.

"Come awa', lass!" muttered McDonald, pulling at Molly's arm.

He took Wilton by the legs, and together they crept with him cautiously further into the bushes beside the lake.

Suddenly Wilton opened his eyes. And his first words fell like an icy chill on the girl's heart.

"Kitty, I tried to save your line!" he muttered.

He was thinking of the fire. He stared into Molly's eyes without recognition, and his own closed again. Once more the factor pulled at the girl's sleeve.

"Come awa', lass!" he whispered eagerly. "He'll get well. Come! It's our chance—a grand chance for us!"

"What do you mean?" she whispered back.

"Dinna ye see? They think we're dead. Tom Bowyer'll think we're dead in the fire. He'll never trouble us again. Come, lass! He winna come to no harm!"

As he spoke, Molly perceived two horsemen riding along the road. They were policemen; they moved at a slow walk, and they carried their rifles on their arms.

When they were within two hundred yards of the camp they dismounted, tied their horses to a tree, and began to run forward swiftly along the road. The uproar in the stable had not ceased.

Lee Chambers came staggering out, a bottle in his hand. And suddenly, a hundred yards away, he saw Quain and the constable.

He bolted back with a scream of terror. Then followed Hackett's bellowing roar, and the two men appeared at the door with rifles in their hands.

The policemen ran toward them. Quain led the way. "Drop those! Hands up! We've got you!" he shouted.

Molly saw Hackett drop to one knee and draw a careful bead upon the inspector.

At that moment the constable fired. The outlaw toppled head over heels like a shot rabbit, and never stirred again. The bullet had pierced his heart.

With a cry of despair Chambers fired wildly and turned to run. Once those men shouted, and the constable fired again. Chambers dropped in his tracks and lay still.

Horror-stricken at the sight, Molly crouched by Wilton's side. His eyes were open again. He did not yet recognize her, but it was evident that consciousness was coming back to him.

As the policemen began to carry the bodies of the outlaws into the stable the factor plucked violently at Molly's arm.

"What do you want to do, father?" she whispered.

"I'll tell ye, lass. Ye ken the trail that strikes off from the road below the lake and runs nigh the portage? We'll travel east through the bush two about. We'll go to the store and pack our few things and go. Aye, we'll go. We'll travel east through the bush two hundred miles or maybe more, till we strike the line somewhere. And then we're free. Dinna say no, lass!"

She was touched by the babbling stammered words. They went straight to her heart.

"He's naething to ye, lass?" asked the factor, pointing at Wilton.

Molly looked at him. He had fallen into a deep sleep. She could do nothing for him by remaining.

"No, father, he's naething to me," she answered.

"We'll put him a wee bit higher on the slope, where they'll see him," the factor whispered.

They raised Wilton and laid him on the new-fallen snow, not far from the road. Then, cautiously and secretly, they turned and plunged into the depths of the underbrush.

It was two hours later when Wilton opened his eyes, to find himself lying in the stable. The inspector was standing at the door, the constable paced at his side.

Wilton looked at Quain with astonishment. He could remember nothing since his plunge into the burning building.

"Jack!" he called feebly. "What's happened to me? How did you get here, old man?"

Quain, who appeared to be struggling with some deep emotion, did not answer him.

"You know how I got here?" continued Wilton. "They trapped Miss McDonald and her father—where is she, Jack?"

"They're not here, Will."

"They must be here. I tell you I saw her. That beast Bowyer had her

The Trap.

Bob Payne, the lawyer, could not make up his mind whether his client, Will Carruthers, was innocent or guilty, and that was a position in which he did not often find himself.

Either Carruthers was one of the coolest and most deliberate murderers that had ever lived, or he was the victim of an extraordinary well-woven conspiracy.

Whether Wilton was innocent or guilty, Bob Payne meant to fight to the last. He had taken a liking to

At That Moment the Constable Fired. by the throat. It made me see red! They got me down, and the place was afire, and—

"Don't tell me that, Will," said the inspector in a choked voice. "Don't tell me any more."

"Why not, Jack? What's the matter with you?"

"Because you're under arrest for the willful murder of Joe Bostock. And I've—I've cautioned you!"

CHAPTER XVIII

Confession.

When Wilton was arrested Kitty had been stunned by the news. She had made frantic attempts to see him, but without success.

Kitty knew on what the charge was built, and the consciousness that Wilton's freedom could only be purchased by her confession caused her an agony of shame and fear. Yet she would have purchased Wilton's freedom even at the cost of that humiliation, had she not known that she must inevitably lose him. Instinctively she realized that treachery was the one sin that he would never condone.

At last, when she could bear it no longer, she resolved to go to see Bowyer. She left secretly, at an early hour one morning, and reached Cold Junction a little before noon.

At the same hour Bowyer was seated in the office of his house there. Facing him across the desk was Clark, the manager of the Bank of New North Manitoba at Clayton.

"I'm not going to take you up on your preposterous story," Bowyer stormed. "I won't answer it. Nor will I deny it. You won't get 'yes' or 'no' out of me. Let's say you've rendered special and confidential services to the bank this past year and you want a bonus. How'll that do?"

"Call it what you like," said Clark. "But get me straight, Mr. Bowyer. I didn't tackle that job to be fobbed off with a paltry two hundred dollars. I know what it was worth to you and I want a proper price for it. I'm not bargaining. I'm going to bleed you just what you're willing to stand. One hundred and fifty thousand dollars in bonds, which I'll specify, and fifty thousand in cash."

Bowyer went white. Clark had gauged his limit exactly. The two men eyed each other in silence for a few seconds. Then Bowyer capitulated.

"Your talents are wasted here," he said. "I'll take you up on that, and I'll be able to employ you to better advantage after the first of the year. You're not afraid of a check?"

"Not in the least," said Clark. "Thank you!"

He took the check and sauntered out of the house. When he was gone Bowyer gave way to one of his mad rages. He called up Payre and damned him. He stamped up and down the office; and in the middle of it his man announced Kitty.

When she came in he was smiling and admirably under control. "Well, Mrs. Bostock, I guess this isn't social," he said. "Last time we parted you were quite vexed with me."

Kitty put her hands to her eyes and broke down. "I can't bear it," she sobbed. "It's too awful! I've been ill for days, and—I had to come to you. It's Wilton and Molly. If you had any hand in that poor child's death, may God forgive you, Tom Bowyer!"

Not Unimportant Territory.

The District of Columbia is only 100 miles square, and most of that hundred miles is occupied by statesmen, flappers and office hunters. But aside from such bipeds, the district produced last year over $100,000 worth of live stock of the quadruped persuasion, and raised over a million dollars' worth of green things that did not wear short dresses but contained more vitamins. A million dollars' worth of vegetables were grown in the otherwise idle fence corners of lots and fields.

Carruthers, and he was resolved to free him. That, of course, presumed his own belief in his client's innocence.

He found his client seated in his cell, scribbling upon pieces of paper covered with diagrams, just as he had found him on the occasion of his previous visit. Wilton rose and they shook hands.

The lawyer sat down. "Let's go over the facts together," he said. "There's going to be a fight. You realize that? Not that you won't win out. Of course you will. But when popular passions are stirred—when a newspaper campaign has practically prejudged the case, it's apt to be reflected in the minds of the jury. I've thought of asking for a change of venue. But—I'm frank, Carruthers—the feeling is widespread, and Clayton is the town where your enemies have the least influence. I think we'll fight them here."

"I'll fight it out here," answered Wilton.

"Your luck has been infernal. If it could be proved that Bowyer hired those men to kidnap Miss McDonald and her father—though it wouldn't help directly—it would create a prejudice in the minds of the jury. We could bring that in as evidence. It would discredit Bowyer. It would force him into the witness-box and give us an opportunity. If those men—if Miss McDonald could go into the witness-box—we could present something of a case. But they're dead—at least those outlaws are dead—and their secret died with them."

"We can get Tongway there."

"You don't consider that he may be a star witness for the prosecution, Carruthers? He's got his neck to save. And, if your implication of Payre is the correct one, you remember that Payre is a director of the Clayton hospital, and donated a large sum of money to it. Three weeks in a private room there offer opportunities."

"You do believe that Payre is implicated?" cried Wilton.

"I do, Carruthers. I'll be frank with you. I didn't at first. But I'm convinced that either Payre or Bowyer was privy to Joe Bostock's murder. I believe it was an accident, and that they're playing on it to get you convicted."

"That's what we can prove against them, and it amounts to nothing. Now what can they prove against us? You were Joe Bostock's friend. You knew all his affairs. You were his executor. For some reason or other Joe Bostock raised a loan of a large sum on five hundred Missatibi shares—probably to cover some other investment, and knowing that he could meet it when the time came. There's nothing abnormal or unusual about that."

"The money disappeared. Checks aggregating four hundred thousand dollars signed by Joe Bostock and made out in your favor are found in your safe. It is claimed that you presented them; that they passed through the bank in the normal way, and that they went back to you at the time you signed the monthly statement as his executor."

"You are presumed to have cashed those checks. Two days later you went into the bush with Mr. Bostock. He died at your side. Do you see the implication, as a jurymen would see it?"

"And you believe I forged those checks?"

"I do not," said Payne emphatically. "But—I'll be frank—I couldn't see—"

"Then it was Payre."

"Payre or Clark. Clark has a first-rate record. He was twelve years with the Regina branch of the Western National. We haven't been able to trace anything to his discredit. Still, there's not the least doubt Payre and Bowyer fixed up this scheme to get control of the Missatibi and ruin you, at the best. Joe Bostock's death fitted in only too well with their purposes. But how those checks got into your safe, Carruthers—"

"Chambers placed them there, of course. I went over the papers immediately. I discovered that the safe was open, but the checks were the last thing I should have thought of looking at. I thought they were after the blue-prints of the townships."

"Then Chambers must also have abstracted the checks showing how Joe Bostock expended that five hundred thousand, and left those in their place. It's a diabolical contrivance, and I'm afraid we can't hope to make much impression with such a story on a jury, Carruthers. Are you positive you closed the safe?"

"I am absolutely sure, because I always tried it after closing, and made sure that the combination was not set."

"It couldn't be opened without the combination?"

"Impossible. Of course, I'm not saying what mightn't be done by a master craftsman—"

"But Chambers wasn't a burglar. He was an engineer, and always had been. He was a skilled one, too. He could do better by his profession than by burglary. That's the heaviest item in the prosecution's bill, Carruthers. It establishes a strong motive. That's what I mean when I say that we're on the defensive. The thing we have to do is to clear up this forgery situation."

He hesitated. "Carruthers, I'll be frank with you," he said. "There's another motive almost as strong. It's Mrs. Bostock. She went to live at Big Muskeg in an isolated cottage near your own—right after her husband's death. A damning thing in the eyes of men of the world, as all jurymen pride themselves on being."

"She was like a sister to me for Joe's sake," said Wilton.

"Which is the last—the very last suggestion that I would put before a jury," answered Payne.

Wilton had another visitor that day. It was Jim Betts, who had somehow obtained a permit to see him, and appeared outside the bars, accompanied by the warden.

"Will," he said huskily, "we're going to get you out of here. I told you them two snakes would be found at the bottom of the brushwood. I believe in ye, boy! That ain't much, maybe, but I want ye to know it."

Wilton was deeply moved. "Thank you, Jim," he said warmly.

"And listen, boy! Ye remember how ye came to me about meeting that note when it falls due? I told ye I couldn't help ye. Well, boy, I was lying. I was trying ye, Will, and ye've made good; and I want to say—the old man's voice almost failed him—I want to say the money's yours to meet that note when it falls due, and I—I want

"Will, We're Going to Get You Out of Here."

ye to know this when ye're in trouble, and not when ye're out of it and all the world's slapping ye on the back and cheering ye, and—and—d—n it, I'm going to get ye out of here a free man, or my name ain't Betts!"

One hundred and fifty thousand dollars in bonds, which I'll specify, and fifty thousand in cash."

Bowyer went white. Clark had gauged his limit exactly. The two men eyed each other in silence for a few seconds. Then Bowyer capitulated.

"Your talents are wasted here," he said. "I'll take you up on that, and I'll be able to employ you to better advantage after the first of the year. You're not afraid of a check?"

"Not in the least," said Clark. "Thank you!"

He took the check and sauntered out of the house. When he was gone Bowyer gave way to one of his mad rages. He called up Payre and damned him. He stamped up and down the office; and in the middle of it his man announced Kitty.

When she came in he was smiling and admirably under control. "Well, Mrs. Bostock, I guess this isn't social," he said. "Last time we parted you were quite vexed with me."

Kitty put her hands to her eyes and broke down. "I can't bear it," she sobbed. "It's too awful! I've been ill for days, and—I had to come to you. It's Wilton and Molly. If you had any hand in that poor child's death, may God forgive you, Tom Bowyer!"

Not Unimportant Territory.

The District of Columbia is only 100 miles square, and most of that hundred miles is occupied by statesmen, flappers and office hunters. But aside from such bipeds, the district produced last year over $100,000 worth of live stock of the quadruped persuasion, and raised over a million dollars' worth of green things that did not wear short dresses but contained more vitamins. A million dollars' worth of vegetables were grown in the otherwise idle fence corners of lots and fields.

Chef Had Plenty But He Could Hardly Eat

Even an expert chef for an up-to-date restaurant, with everything heart could wish in the eating line and the skill to prepare it in the most appetizing manner, finds life miserable and work a burden with his appetite gone and his health all broken up on account of stomach trouble.

According to his own statement, such had been the case for two years with William Lackey, 885 North Wells St., Chicago, Ill., chef at a popular North Clark St. restaurant, who says he recently found relief by taking Tania.

Mr. Lackey now boasts of a "wonderful appetite and a stomach that digests such things as ham and eggs, corned beef and cabbage, and rich pastries, foods that would have almost put me out of commission before I took Tania!"

"Before I ran across this medicine," said he, "I was having to lay off from my work for a week at a time just on account of the numerous ills I suffered from indigestion. But when I tell you I have gained fifteen pounds, eat and digest anything, and am on the job every day feeling fine, you may know how I appreciate Tania."

Tania is sold by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

Pride is as great a beggar as want and a great deal more saucy.

Mrs. Gertrude Sell

Houston, Texas—"I was in a terribly run-down condition of health after a siege of ptomaine poisoning, and then the influenza. I could not seem to regain my strength and was really not able to do my housework. I knew I needed a good tonic and builder and remembered how my folks used to regard Dr. Pierce's remedies in my girlhood days, and then I decided to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. After taking the second bottle I found it was doing me a world of good; strength returned rapidly and I felt better in every way. I am glad indeed to recommend the medicine that did me so much good and do not hesitate to give this statement."—Mrs. Gertrude Sell, 1236 Rutland St.

All druggists tablets or liquid.

One of the main troubles with us is that we are too busy to live right.

Aspirin

Say "Bayer" and Insist!

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over twenty-two years and proved safe by millions for

Colds Headache
Toothache Lumbago
Earache Rheumatism
Neuralgia Pain, Pain

Accept "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" only. Each unbroken package contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.—Advertisement.

The best that can be said of some folks is that they mean well.

SHE DYED A SWEATER, SKIRT AND CHILD'S COAT WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her worn, shabby dresses, skirts, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything, even if she has never dyed before. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is sure because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to spot, fade, streak, or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.—Advertisement.

A sensible woman seldom wastes her time on a handsome man.

Grand Opera Hearing for Girl of 16

Marion Talley, 16 years old, daughter of a telegrapher in Kansas City, won a Grand Opera hearing and has been declared the vocal wonder of the day.

MILLS AND VICINITY

The weather man keeps us encouraged by giving us a light snow every week.

Miss Marjory Leonard left Monday for Trinidad, Colo., where she will attend business college.

The Roy basket ball team played Mills basket ball teams Friday afternoon which resulted in the Mills boys winning from Roy and Roy girls winning from Mills. We are glad that we can truthfully say the Roy girls played a fair, square game and none stooped to cheat.

Harriet Smith celebrated her tenth birthday last Friday and entertained a few of her friends from four until six o'clock. A fruit game was played and Murlie Hollopeter won the prize which was a cupie doll for getting the most "fruit." Dorothy Holcomb won a prize of a sack of peanuts in a peanut race. Several more games of various length were indulged in after which delicious refreshments were served to the following: Bernadine Smith, Martha Yarbrough, Mary Ansley Murlie Hollopeter, Dorothy Holcomb, Ruth Bartness, Irene Bartness, Marguerite Smith Marjory Applegate and Harriett Smith. Several little presents were received by the hostess such as children like to give and receive. The youngsters went home declaring that they had had the "most fun" so we presume the party was a success.

Mrs. Wava Somerville of Cope land, Kansas arrived here the latter part of last week for a short visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Hollopeter and other relatives.

L. H. Boyd and J. M. Winch made a business trip to Raton Sunday returning Monday. Anyone having a shot gun which they are tired of and wishing to trade for something of similar nature, would do well to see W. H. McMinn or W. E. Carter.

Alice Wright who has been absent from school for the past six weeks on account of whooping cough, entered school again Monday.

W. E. Carter, who has charge of the Hewlett building was repairing same Monday.

That Mosquero correspondent states that he is politically dead and buried and laments the fact that we did not send him any flowers. Well, that was a very regretful oversight on our part but we do not believe that he is dead—just snowed under—that's all. Next year when all these good democrats who have been elected to office take their respective seats and cast their sunny smile over this broad land of ours he will see then that he mistook a mole-hill for a grave and forget that he was hurt over their victorious race. However we will bear this little incident in mind and just after the election two years from now we will send him one of the nicest bouquets which a green house can produce.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Garner made a trip to Springer the first of the week where Mr. Garner had some dental work done.

FARM FOR SALE—I have a nice little farm of 65 acres in the foot hills of the Boston mountains which I will trade for mess farm. This is a nice fruit farm and well improved. What have you to offer? Write or see J. H. West, Mesquero, N. M. 11-18-25-pd.

Wedding bells are ringing in the Yates community.

Mr. and Mrs. Boarts were visiting in the DeHaven neighborhood Sunday afternoon.

Baker Shannon and J. Shelton came down from Dawson the fore part of the week and spent a few days hunting deer near the Henry Stone ranch in La Cinta Canyon. Baker says that he saw quite a few of the elusive animals but they would not stand still long enough for him to get a shot at them.

Honoring Our Yankee Heroes

President Harding and Former President Woodrow Wilson were the principals in impressive Armistice Day activities at Washington, D. C. In simple ceremony Pres. Harding visited the grave of America's Unknown Soldier, to place a huge floral wreath, as shown in the upper picture. Former President Wilson broke his long silence when more than 3,000 admirers marched to his home in Washington to pay tribute. His tribute was to our soldier boys who made the supreme sacrifice.

Heiress True to Boy Sweetheart

And after everything was said and done it happened just as it always does in the story book, and Dellora is going to marry Lester in the spring and be happy ever after. When Mrs. John G. Gates died she left the enormous Gates fortune of $38,000,000 to Dellora Angell, who was just a sweet little girl in St. Charles, Ill. Dellora's father, R. F. Angell, was made administrator. While Dellora was in school at St. Charles she had a sweetheart whose name was Lester Norris. Money or no money, Lester was wild about her, but Papa Angell said Dellora must have her chance. So he took her away and she saw many wonderful people, and several times it was said she had become engaged to some notable or other. But Lester knew the girl behind the gold and Dellora knew and when she had met everybody and learned a lot about men she was certain she was right in the first place and there never could be anybody but Lester whose father is the village undertaker. Now Dellora is 20 and her engagement to Lester announced. Photo shows Miss Dellora and her fiance, Lester Norah, 26, budding artist.

MOISTURE, YES WE ARE GETTING LOTS OF IT

We want to tell our eastern friends that we are getting all kinds of moisture this week. It started snowing the first of the week and then turned to rain and on Thursday night we had a 5 inch heavy wet snow that is slowly melting now and nearly every bit is sinking into the ground. It is a dandy and will help the winter wheat much to come out under the heavy drought that it has undergone the past month. It looks like we may have more snow or rain any day and the farmers already have smiles all over their faces and why not for this is the first real moisture we have had for many months.

RED CROSS WINNING IN FIGHT FOR HEALTH

Better, Stronger Citizenry Now Emerging Out of Work in United States.

The American Red Cross as an evangelist of better health has looked its problem square in the face. How it accepted the task revealed to it in the nation's physical condition as brought out during the World War, and conscientiously applied its activities to correction forms a vivid chapter in the forthcoming annual report. Historically and practically, nursing is a basic work for the Red Cross. In its public health nursing service, in instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick, nutrition classes, first aid and life saving courses and health centers, the American Red Cross is applying effectively the lessons learned during the war and making for a healthier, stronger and better nourished citizenry.

AN APOLOGY

The Editor of this paper wishes to apologize to its readers for the small amount of news which the paper contains this week, but we expect to have all machinery installed and everything in shipshape condition in plenty of time to get out a real news paper next week. We have been moving for nearly two weeks and every piece of machinery weighs a thousand pounds or more. The big press that prints the S. A. weighs over 5000 and some of the other presses and folder weigh close to this amount. It was a big job and we were unable to get the linotype installed until Thursday morning. We appreciate your patience with us and promise you a bigger and better paper than ever.

With the installation of additional machinery we are now able to do any kind of job work you wish and at the very lowest price possible.

The large subscription list of the Spanish-American makes it the best advertising medium in northeastern New Mexico and the paper is read by two-thirds to three-fourths of the residents of the mesa.

We want to thank those who have been so kind in helping us to get moved into our new quarters and we want to personally mention the work which has been done by Mr. Wade and son, Henry Heyen, Nels Wetbarhus, Wm. Bagley and several others. We know that you have lifted until you saw stars and we know that you have several blisters on your tired bodies, but they will soon all be forgotten when you see the fine paper that we will get out in our new home.

Again we thank you.
 The Editor

Mrs J W MAIB HAS SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Mrs. J. W. Maib who lives about three miles northeast of town had the misfortune to break her leg just above the ankle last Tuesday when she fell from a building and the ladder which was standing against the building fell across her leg causing the fracture. Mrs. Maib was alone when the accident happened but managed to crawl to the house where she laid on the floor until the arrival of her husband who had been to Roy. She lay on the floor for several hours before help arrived. Her husband phoned for help and Drs. Plumlee and Self arrived in a few minutes and set the broken limb. She is doing as well as could be expected for one of her age. The friends of Mrs. Maib will be indeed sorry to hear of this accident which has befallen her and hope that she will soon fully recover.

ROY SCHOOL NOTES

Buster Emerson is absent from school this week on account of work.
Little Jack Lewis was a very pleasant visitor in the fifth grade room.
Vera Emerson has been absent nearly two weeks on account of illness.

James Farley has the highest of "Perfect Spelling Days" for the month of November. . . .
Raleigh Campbell was absent Thursday for the first time this year.

Fifteen of the third grade received perfect attendance certificates from Mrs. DeFrees, Monday.

Mrs. Frank Roy visited the fourth grade Thursday. . . .
Lora Plumlee, Vivian Estas, and Thelma Farley are absent from the fourth grade on account of sickness.

Hazel Plumlee is back in school after a week's absence caused by a sore foot.
Our county superintendent presented us with a large new flag this week. It measures five by ten feet and occupies a very conspicuous place in our school building.

Aurel Young has gone from among us to join the school force of Missouri. We greatly miss her, both from the classes and especially from our ball team. She was one of our good players. But Edna Wade has taken her place on the team and bids fair to become as good a player.

The school children are enjoying to the limit the snow that is on now.

On account of attending the State Teacher's Association at Albuquerque Thanksgiving week, the high school except Mr. Pott's agriculture class will vacate from Friday November 24 till Monday December 4. The grades will continue in session until Wednesday, November 29, then dismiss until December 4th.

This is the week for exams for the high school. If you hear anyone "holler" you may know he has been hit,—by a hard set of questions.

Lois Ballard quit school Wednesday afternoon and went to her home at Albert, New Mexico.

Laura Belle Lusk was absent from school Monday on account of sickness.

Everyone in the seventh grade room received a certificate for being neither absent nor tardy during the month of October, except Meyler and Donald Gibbs and Lela Carver and two more that just started.

Last Friday afternoon after recess the second grade entertained the seventh grade with a fine program. This coming Friday the seventh grade will entertain the second grade.

Henry Romero in Geography was trying to find Cape Cod on the map. He asked which one we wanted because he had found three.

The seventh grade are studying the book of manners. When we finish it we will be glad to give it to any of the other rooms who think they need it.

The seventh and eighth grade pupils have decided to go into together and get a volley ball.

Theseventh grade have found two wonderful singers in their midst, which are Donald Gibbs and Otis Fullbright. By the time they are twenty-one years of age they will be singing on the stage in New York. The title of their song last Friday was "Sweetly Sings a Donkey."

The seventh grade have found this poem which they think will be very helpful to anyone who will use it.

THREE GATES OF GOLD

If you are tempted to reveal
A tale one to you has told
About another, make it pass,
Before you speak, three gates of gold,

These narrow gates; First, "Is it true?"
Then: "Is it needful?" in your mind
Give truthful answer, and the next

Is last and closest, "Is it kind?"
And, if to reach your lips at last,

It passes through these gate-ways three,
Then you may tell the tale, nor fear
What the result of speech may be.

153 pupils in the Roy school received the nice little attendance certificates given out by our worthy county superintendent. They are certainly proving to be an incentive to good attendance in our school.

Last Friday Prof. and his two fast teams of basket ball players went to Mills for a return game with the school teams there. This was a very pleasant afternoon for us, for Mills certainly did treat us royally. Their warm cocoa was surely a treat to us for we were rather chilled when we got there. The girls played first. Their game was as clean as one usually sees. Every player was jolly from the beginning, and altho the score stood 19 to 7 in favor of Roy, the Mills girls showed they were good sports and took the defeat in the best of spirit. The boys however reversed the thing, their score being 20 to 17 in favor of Mills.

This was a good game full of ginger and pep, but the rise in the temperature of two or three of the players took a good deal of the fun out of the game. But the boys came thru with a tolerably clean game, and we assured them that we all have a friendly feeling toward all of them.

The team representing Roy at the District Stock Judging contest, consisting of Ivan Johnson, Edward Farley and Joyce Laumbach and Joseph Rhyne as substitute left Roy last Saturday morning at about 10 minutes to 6 in Mr. Mahoney's Essex. They arrived at Springer a little after 8 o'clock and after warming up the teams competing in the contest which were from Springer, Roy, and Raton left town for a farm about 3 miles northeast and judging a ring of fat hogs.

The boys were then taken a few miles north where they judged a ring of dairy cows. The next ring which was judged was a ring of draft horses at Taylor Springs. The boys were then taken back to Springer where they judged ring of fat sheep. It was 5 minutes after 12 o'clock when they finished and were allowed to eat dinner. The Roy and Raton boys ate dinner at the Boyd Cafe and reported at the Colfax Garage at 1 o'clock. The boys were then taken to the Charles Springer ranch where two last ings were judged, the first, a ring of fat beef and the second a ring of bulls. They arrived back at Springer in the evening and were taken to the Springer high school building. Reasons were given three rings of stock they were hogs, fat beef and fat sheep. Two minutes were allowed to every individual to give his reasons but most of the boys did not take the entire time allowed them. Mr. Ford then announced the first three high men and the standing of each team. James Bruce of Springer was highest man by 760 points, Bernard Wheeler of Raton was second high man by 725 points and Ivan Johnson of Roy was third high man by 722 points. The standing of the teams are: Springer first, by 2150 points; Roy second by 2067 points and Raton third by 2062 points.

Mr. Ford, the state supervisor and Mr. John Coffeen of Roy were the judges and Mr. Hendricks was superintendent of the contest. The judges said that the main weakness of the boys was in giving their reasons. The Roy boys arrived at Roy about 8:15.

Mrs. Clint Hester arrived in Roy last Sunday and Mr. and Mrs. Hester have gone to house keeping in the Floorsheim house in the south part of town. Mrs. Hester has been quite sick the past several weeks at the home of her parents in Salisbury, Mo. She has been suffering with tonsillitis and has just recently had her tonsils removed. Clint's grouchy look has left him and he has that happy smile which is proof to us that he is one of the happiest boys in town. Now that you have gone to housekeeping Mr. and Mrs. Hester, we again extend congratulations and hope that you may never be separated again until time doth be no more.

Richard Lloyd Jones tells Us To Speed Up Safety.

EVER since the advent of the steam engine we have been speeding up, and while that speed has come with inestimable benefit, it has not come without its measure of attendant harm. When the legislature of New York was first asked to grant a franchise for eighteen miles of steam railroad, the right to build this first railroad was not granted without a bitter opposition which contended that it would be unsafe because the engine would scare so many horses that an unwarranted toll of death would result.

The railroad came and those who opposed it were right in their death-toll predictions. The engines did scare the horses. There were runaways, and what is worse, there were wrecks on the rails and an ever-increasing list of accidents had been recorded as the iron ribbed mileage multiplied.

But for all this we would not erase the railroads from our maps; we would not go back to the days when even a king would cry "My kingdom for a horse."

The thrashing machine has cost many a thrasher an arm. But we would not go back to the days when we flayed grain on the floor.

Mill machinery and foundry furnaces take their human toll. But we cannot do without them.

We fly sky-high and all too often we read of a fallen flyer. It is the price we pay to learn how with safety to use the swifter way.

The auto brings its price in limb and life. We pay it and speed away.

We have been impatiently seeking speed. With the same impatience we must seek safety. The cost of speed has reached such alarming proportions that the "Safety First" slogan was born.

Observe, we did not cry "Cut it out," nor did we even plead to "Slow down." We do not want to slacken, much less to stop. On the contrary, we want to speed up. That is progress. But we must speed up safety.

The National Safety Council reports that the compiled figures of preventable accidents in 1920 show a death toll of as many people as live in the State of Nevada. In other words, in one year we wiped out by accident one whole State. That means that it is time to STOP something. It is not speed we should stop. We must stop recklessness.

The man-eating thrashing machine has gone out of fashion. But the fool at the auto wheel is busy. Fatalities from reckless auto driving average thirty deaths a day. We have speed laws, but they are defiantly disobeyed and the violators when arrested are too often dismissed with a modified reprimand or a petty fine.

To endanger the life of another is not a light or laughing matter.

We must adjust ourselves to the auto as the horse did to the train. We make the train run on schedule, limit its speed on curves, slow down at the sign of caution and come to a full stop at the STOP signal. So must we make every auto driver do.

There is but one way to do it, and that is for every community to impose drastic penalty for every offender and for every community to promptly get rid of any officer that fails to arrest the offenders and every judge and magistrate that will not impose the full penalty of the crime.

If it is a crime to take life, it is a crime to endanger life. Speed up safety. It is the duty of every town and county government to get indignantly busy on this all important job. We cannot spare our people in whole state-full lots.

Thanksgiving on the Farm

Oh, the farm was bright, Thanksgiving morn,
With its stacks of hay and shocks of corn.
Its pumpkin heaps in the rambling shed,
And its apples brown and green and red;
In the cellar, the winter store,
In bins that were filled and running o'er
With all the things that a farm could keep.
In barrel and bin and goodly heap,
Hung to the rafters and hid away—
Oh, the farm was a pleasant place to stay!

And here and there was the Jersey stock,
The sheep and horses—Old Prince and Jock—
The turkeys and geese and awkward calf,
And the goat that made the children laugh,
A pair of mules that a friend had sent
Out to the farm for experiment,
Pigeons and fowls and a guinea pig,
Dogs that were small and dogs that were big,
Chickens that were white and black and gray—
Oh, the farm was a jolly sight that day!

Out back of the house the orchard stood,
Then came the brook and the chestnut wood,
The old sawmill where the children play,
The fodder barn with its piles of hay,
The walnut grove and the cranberry bog,
The woodchuck hole and the barking dog,
The wintergreen and the robber's cave—
Wherein who entered was counted brave—
The skating pond with its fringe of bay—
Oh, the farm was a right good place to stay!

The big home barn was a place of joy
For the romping girl and the climbing boy,
With beams and mows and ladders to mount,
Horses and oxen and sheep to count,
Hunting of nests of sly old hens,
Tunneling hay and fashioning pens,
Helping the men to do up the chores,
Shutting windows and locking doors,
Letting some work come in with the play—
Oh, the farm was a jolly place to stay!

Oh, the pantry shelves were loaded down
With cakes that were plump and rich and brown,
With apple pie and pumpkin and mince,
And jellies and jam and preserved quince,
Cranberry sauce and puddings and rice,
The dessert dishes that look so nice,
Vegetables, breads, and bonbons sweet,
A great brown turkey and plates of meat
Sauces fixed in the daintiest way—
Oh, 'twas a glorious sight that day!

Oh, the farm was bright Thanksgiving morn,
The sun shone clear on the hay and corn,
The guests came early with laugh and shout,
And the boys and girls scattered about
Seeking the pets they had known before,
Climbing through window instead of door,
Racing from barn to corner or mill,
Shouting and laughing with glee, until
The dinner-horn sounded. Oh, I say
'Twas pleasant upon the farm that day!

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Lady's Apparent Suffering Merely the Result of Her Hands Being Temporarily Occupied.

Passers-by stopped and looked. The lady's face was white as if she was in terrible agony. Her mouth worked up and down and she seemed to be suppressing shrieks of pain. Then a girl acquaintance approached hurriedly and gazed at her face.
"Why," she exclaimed, "what on earth is the matter?"
The twitches ceased and a sweet smile took their place.
"With me?" inquired the sufferer.
"Why nothing."
"But you look ill," said the girl.
"Your face—it looked as if you were in dreadful pain."
The lady held out her hands. In one was a paper parcel, in the other her umbrella.
"I was only trying," she explained, "to work the edge of my veil down over my chin, dear."
The crowd passed on.

Some Town.
"I'm from Chicago. I manufacture Persian rugs."
"I'm from Chicago myself."
"What do you manufacture?"
"Turkish cigarettes."

Love and hate have good memories; only indifference forgets.

Youth's Grace Before Meal Certainly Savored Strongly of the Correspondence School.

Roberts is a correspondence specialist. He writes letters for a large wholesale house eight hours a day. A few days ago he was dining at the home of a friend. As they sat down to the meal he was unexpectedly called upon to say grace. This was something Roberts had never done, but he prided himself on never saying that he could not do a thing. So, after a moment's hesitation, he plunged into the prayer:
"We acknowledge with thanks the receipt of your favors of this date, O Lord," he began. "Permit us to express our gratitude at this evidence of thy good will. May we merit the confidence thus shown in us, while at the same time trusting to receive more favors in the future. Amen."

Surely Something Doing.
Mary Catherine takes a great interest in all our neighbors. Recently a newly married couple moved into a bungalow near us, and a few days later Mary Catherine came running into the house and said: "Oh mother, the Johnsons are either going to have chickens or children. Mr. Johnson is building a fence all around their new house."—Exchange.

Jack Dempsey's Really Amusing Story of Irishman Made a Hit With English Hosts.

Jack Dempsey's recent visit to London was a brief one but it afforded him time enough to establish a brilliant reputation as an after-dinner speaker. Several London newspapers, in fact, declared him to be a better after-dinner speaker than Chauncey Depew or James Russell Lowell.
Jack made his reputation at a luncheon given in his honor by Lord Northcliffe. All England's greatest statesmen, artists and millionaires were gathered round the board. When the young champion was called on for a toast he rose and said:
"I am a good deal like the Irishman who attended a dinner where every guest had to make a speech, sing a song or tell a story. When the Irishman's turn came he got up and said: 'I can't make a speech, or sing a song, or tell a story, but I'll fight any man in the room!'"

Fitting Him Out.

The Salesman—What kind of book would suit him?
Mrs. Justwed—Well, he's a tall, blond man and he wears a brown housecoat when he reads.

How much sleep do you need?

It isn't so much a question of the number of hours you spend in bed, as it is of the quality of the sleep you get. Is your sleep sound and restful, or is it fitful and unrefreshing?

One common cause of wakefulness at night is overstimulation from coffee drinking. For coffee contains caffeine which irritates the nerves and frequently leads to insomnia.

If you have any idea that coffee keeps you awake at night, or makes you nervous, make a change from coffee to delicious Postum.

This pure cereal beverage contains nothing that can harm health, and its flavor is much like coffee. In fact, many people prefer Postum for its flavor alone.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully 20 minutes.

Postum FOR HEALTH

"There's a Reason"
Made by Postum Cereal Company, Inc. Battle Creek, Mich.

The two forms of Postum are equally delicious; and the cost is only about 1/2c per cup.
