THIRTIETH YEAR

THE CARLSHAD CURRENT, FRIDAY, MAY 26, 1922.

NUMBER 24.

The Patriot Dead

This scene of little Miss America decorating the graves of our heroes who sleep in the national cemetery at Arlington, Va., will be duplicated on Memorial day all over the country.

MEMORIAL DAY PROCLAMATION

By law and custom the 30th day of May in each year is set aside as a Legal Holiday for the purpose:

That the people of this great and glorious nation might quit their labor and dedicate the day in commemoration of those who, in time gone by, have made the supreme sacrifice for country and humanity. Who, in making the supreme sacrifice, made it willingly and unselfishly, so that a free people might prosper on earth.

By so commemorating this day as a legal holiday and by again calling to our minds the heroic deeds of those who have made the supreme sacrifice, we will more clearly understand and realize the duties we owe as citizens of our country and our flag.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, J. D. Hudgins, Mayor of the City of Carlshad, New Mexico, do join with those vested with greater authority and hereby proclaim Tuesday, the 30th day of May, 1922, as a day set apart, to commemorate a noble dead, who sleep in native land, beneath the sea, or on foreign fields.

I request the citizens of this community to meet in public assembly and to devoutly pay homage to God and to those who gave their lives that we might live and enjoy the peace and happiness of a great and independent people.

Done at Carlshad, New Mexico, this 24th day of May, A. D. 1922.

PIGGY WIGGLY

Mrs. A. J. Crawford entertained the little girls in her neighborhood with a slumber party at her home last Friday night. The party was designed to honor the little girl who has been staying at the Crawford home and attending school this winter, Nadine Hughes, and was a merry gathering of little happy girls. The kind hostess prepared breakfast for the children the morning after and all had a most delightful time. In the bunch were Nadine Hughes, Dorothy Flowers, Ruth Craft, Mary Belle Leck, Irma Linn Cranham, and Nannie Iven Little.

Wisdom is particular as to the road in which it abides, but foolishness creeps in wherever there is a vacancy.

FISHING IN THE RIO PECOS

Describing a variety of fishing seldom found in one stream, including trout, bass, perch and catfish, in a land abounding in wonderful camping and scenic possibilities.

By GEO. M. BRINTON.

Fishing in the Rio Pecos is not so tame a sport as one not acquainted with this river might suppose. Rising in the Santa Fe mountains, north and east of the ancient city of Santa Fe, in altitudes varying from 8,000 to 10,000 feet, the Rio Pecos proper and its numerous tributary head streams, clear and cold, come tumbling down over rocky ledges into deep pools which open out in the bright New Mexico sunlight, into silvery streams that flow thru gorges of great canyons, down and down, until they unite in the more sluggish river of the plains below.

Almost every pool from the source of each of these head streams down to the plains country contains speckled mountain trout in sufficient numbers to delight the heart of the trout fisherman. Being well fed from the abundance and variety of aquatic life of these mountain streams and from insects that from different causes, find their way into the water, the trout are fat and active by the beginning of the open season, and prepared to give the angler who successfully hooks them a battle royal.

Many surprises lurk in the different pools. Into one you cautiously drop the fly or the dangling worm, and almost before the tempting bait has touched the water there is a whirling ripple or a splash, and away goes your line across the pool, cutting the water with a "Z-Z-Z" that blends with the "zing" of your spinning reel. You check the speed of the running line and have the trout well hooked. The slender rod dips into rainbow shape and you reel in. Back and forth across the pool goes your line while you tighten it up with the reel. Suddenly the water breaks and out upon the bank comes a speckled beauty not over eight inches long. What a fight for so small a fish! Had he torn the hook loose from his mouth just as he turned up out of the water for an attempt at a break-away, you would have been willing to swear in open court that he weighed at least two pounds.

Again the bait is dropped into the water, and it goes down and remains stationary. You imagine that the hook is fast in a snag or has caught on a stone. Several turns of the reel takes the slack out of the line and you pull in. Much to your surprise, a heavy tug at the line conveys the information that you have hooked a fish worth while. There is no battle more than a steady, heavy, jerky pull that threatens to break the line and rod. The fish is slowly reeled in to shore and successfully landed. He weighs three or four times as much as the other, and the surprise is, that, comparing his size with that of the other, he made no fight at all.

And thus it goes from pool to pool. One never knows of what may happen with each cast of the line keeps up a constant anticipation and makes trout fishing in the upper Pecos streams a delightful sport.

Change and variety of sport meet the fisherman who follows the Pecos down from its source. As the plains country is reached, the trout fishing gives place to that of the larger stream. At McMillan dam a large government reclamation project reservoir, which, caused by the dam, is but an expansion of the Rio Pecos into a lake from one-half to two miles wide and eight miles long, the dam being located three miles southeast of Lakewood, perch fishing can be enjoyed to the heart's content.

With a few angle worms or with grass-hoppers for bait, and the light trout tackle, the fisherman can sit upon the rocks that come down to the water's edge and land the different species of perch almost as fast as he can bait his hook.

The perch are gamy fellows, making those who take them with light tackle experience all the thrills of landing larger fish almost with every catch. When he is hooked, the perch will fight every inch of the way to the surface, turning himself sideways to the water as he is pulled up, and his tugs at the line as he braces his side against the water makes the angler think that one four times the size and weight of the fish has been hooked.

Small catfish are also obtained here. Often the cast for perch results in landing catfish—small ones in the day time, but larger ones in the evening when the sun goes down and the deepening shades seem to interfere with the perch biting so well.

The McMillan dam is so constructed as not to permit of fish going over it into the lake excepting in very high water, when they find their way around by the spillway, a half mile or more above. Lake Avalon, about eight miles farther down the river, is a similarly constructed government irrigation reservoir, not quite as large as McMillan, but well stocked with fish.

Perch, buffalo, different varieties of catfish of all sizes from those just large enough to take a small hook to those that will weigh sixty pounds or more; carp, the voracious, destructive gar, and numerous other varieties abound in Lake Avalon and in the Rio Pecos between Avalon and McMillan dams.

Just below the dam at McMillan, in the spring of 1915, after a high water, when the gates at McMillan had been closed temporarily, cutting off a good part of the flow of the Pecos, the writer saw thousands of these fish running so thickly that the river seemed alive with them. Hundreds of people, who had gathered after the news of the proposed closing of the gates had been spread, waded into the stream and caught together, wagon loads of buffalo, carp, and catfish—one of which weighed 54 pounds—and threw thousands of the destructive gar upon the banks to dry in the hot New Mexico sun.

When the gates are closed at McMillan Lake, all attempts at fishing with hook and line usually give place to an even battle in the water with the large fellows, which attempt to return to deeper water when they discover the water is going down and becoming too shallow for habitation.

One may go to the river as a spectator dressed in a good suit and shoes that no amount of persuasion, under ordinary circumstances, would induce him to get wet, but as soon as the gates at the dam are closed down and the fins of the big fellows show out of the receding water in the river below the dam, and someone jumps into a pool to wrestle with a buffalo or large catfish, the suit and shoes are forgotten, and in he goes, suit, shoes and all, to share in the sport with the others. What matters it about clothes when the spirit of the fun is caught. No matter how much of a real sport a fellow is with rod, hook and line, he forgets the sportsman's side of taking fish in a sportsmanlike way, and goes in to land the big fellows with his hands, not minding in the least the cool bath from the splashings that accompany such a method of taking fish.

Are there fish worth while in the Pecos? Yes, wagonloads of them, and they may be taken with rod, hook and line in a sportsmanlike way.

Below Avalon, at Carlshad, is the Tansill dam of the Carlshad Light & Power Company. Six miles below this is the Public Utilities dam. These dams are furnished with fishways that permit fish from the lower Pecos to come up in the river below. From Avalon down, in addition to the fish enumerated above, black bass, just as gamy as can be found anywhere, abound in considerable quantities. They take either live or artificial bait quite readily. About all the lures and schemes used in the other waters can be used here with equal success.

Many rocky and gravel shoals occur in the Rio Pecos, and the most successful bass fishermen obtain their best catches below the rapids made by these shoals. Boats are not numerous articles on the Pecos. Most fishermen either fish from the banks or wade out into the shallow places and cast into the deeper water below. This is the most successful way to land the bass. It is no unusual thing to land a four or five-pounder. When a big fellow strikes the hook, if you are the fisherman and above the ripples, the battle is on in earnest. The bass takes advantage of the current as you proceed to reel them in. Unless they are well hooked, and your tackle is of good quality, the larger ones are gone before you realize that something has happened.

Using a boat, in August, 1920, the writer took several fine bass from the Tansill dam with a troll line and an ordinary spoon hook. Live bait, however, seems to attract the Rio Pecos bass more readily than any artificial device.

Bass fishing in the Pecos River is often attended with its mishaps. When one approaches the deep pool and casts in with live bait, he never knows whether a half-pound bass, a four-pounder, or a twenty-pound catfish will take the bait. The river is full of surprises. The fisherman is never sure that his tackle is

The Unknown

It is a common weakness of humanity to ask the questions that can never be answered in this life. Probably none to whom the drama of the Unknown Soldier has appealed has not wondered who, in the sunshine of earth, was the protagonist of the great ceremony. A logger from the Penobscot? An orchardist from the Pacific coast? A well driller from Texas? A machinist from Connecticut? A lad who left his hoe to rust among the Missouri corn? A longshoreman from Hell's Kitchen? Perhaps some youth from his own Virginia. All that the army tells us of him is that he died in battle. All that the heart tells is that some woman loved him. More than that no man shall learn. In this mystery, as in the middle of the universe, the wise wonder but they would not know.

At his bier gathered the most remarkable group that America has seen. And the tomb which Fate reserved for him is, instead of the narrow cell on the village hillside, one as lasting as that of Rameses and as inspiring as Napoleon's.

A. C. Keimath and Dr. Russell, both of Artesia, and both members of the Artesia School Board, were in the city Monday and met with John Joerns, State school auditor, to discuss matters of interest to the schools of their home town.

appropriate. If he uses light tackle, the heavier variety of fish might take the bait, and something breaks. If he uses heavy tackle, the more gamy fish are shy, and fishing deeper for the less gamy variety naturally results.

However, the possibility of getting larger catfish when fishing for bass is but slight, as they seldom rise for higher moving bait, as do the bass. Channel cat of good size sometimes strike a rapidly moving live bait in swiftly running water, but one can usually handle these with ordinary tackle.

Catfishing is generally considered pretty slow sport in most sections, but this is not always true in the Rio Pecos. Thirty-two or thirty-six pounders, such as were caught by Leo Feaster of Carlshad in the spring of 1921 with rod, hook and line—the photo of two of these accompanying this article—or those weighing fifty or sixty pounds such as have been taken from the lakes and river near Carlshad, New Mexico, put up a battle worth the time and trouble of the most enthusiastic fisherman.

Perhaps Fletcher Whitehead, a true descendant of Isaac Walton, not yet out of his teens, living at Carlshad, holds the 1921 medal for success in catfishing. With a Ford car fitted out with full fishing and camping equipment, to which is attached a small boat for use in the deeper, wider eddies of the river, he makes regular trips to the Pecos, each time with abundant success. With the boat he reaches places not easily accessible from shore fishing. The accompanying photo shows the results of one of his fishing trips. The largest fish of the string weighs 12½ pounds, and the smallest, 4 pounds, the rest ranging between these weights.

Climatic conditions in New Mexico, especially in the Pecos Valley, are most favorable to camping and fishing excursions. The weather is mild, the evenings cool, but not cold, and there is not usually much rain to detract from the pleasures of an outing. Fairly good roads in the Pecos Valley bring one within easy reach of the fishing grounds, and many of them lead right up to the water's edge. Seldom does one need more shelter on a fishing trip than the blankets that he uses at night.

Whether one desires to fish for trout, bass, catfish, or for the numerous other fish found in the river, he can select fishing grounds in Rio Pecos of New Mexico suited to his desires. With the variety of fishing and a delightful climate for camping on an outing trip, the Rio Pecos affords surprises and pleasures that make up a round of entertainment that needs only to be experienced to be appreciated.

Because of lack of room at the Christian church, and the size of the Berean class, the members of said class will meet in the court house for their Sunday School lesson, after this date. They are to meet at 9:30 sharp, and after the lesson will go to the church for the closing exercises of the Sunday School. The membership of the class numbers thirty-six and most of them are railroad people. A class party is held once a month at the homes of the different members, and this month the session was held at the home of N. T. Daughtery, a good attendance being present.

Paul Bristow came up from Oria where he is at work and spent Sunday in Carlsbad with friends.

SCOUT NEWS

All members of Troop 1 are requested to be at regular meeting Tuesday at 6:45.

Scouts of Troop 1 are grateful indeed to the Chautauqua committee for allowing them the privilege of selling drinks during the week. A neat sum was realized.

Some scouts are splendid workers at anything you put them to, do others are afraid that they will do more than their share. This latter trouble is the fault of their parents to a great extent. If you want your boy to do his level best in life, don't lead him to believe that he is being imposed upon. This applies to work of all kinds.

Only one month until camp. Oh, Boy, we will have a glorious time. Better get in readiness for contests of all kinds.

Our new assistant scoutmaster, Ray Davis, is a real live one, and in the near future a new troop will be started with Davis at the head. We have a sufficient number in Troop 1 to make two good troops and new ones are being added each week.

Troop 2 will soon qualify the most expert signal artists in the west. A great bunch of young fellows and hard to defeat in anything.

Scoutmaster White is putting in extra effort for his boys, and they are showing the effects of it.

Spanish scouts are doing fine. Each Saturday they hold meetings and derive great benefit from the training. Scoutmaster Wells keeps the boys in line.

Miss Dorothy Dick, of Abilene, Texas, who started to school in Carlsbad and continued with the same class during her school years and until the past year, when her parents moved to Abilene, is again in the city and will have the pleasure of graduating with her class, the school at Abilene making the transfer.

Wonderful Pageant of War

After the Civil war had been fought and won, the soldiers of the Army of the Potomac and of Sherman's army, to the number of more than 200,000, marched in a grand review through the streets of Washington. This crowning ceremony of the war, reviewed by President Johnson and by Grant and Sherman and other generals, was the supreme pageant of all time to the soldiers and the people who had fought in or supported the war for the Union. It was an American pageant pure and simple; it was viewed by the representatives of foreign nations but curiously, and with respect for the sorely proved and now triumphant power of the American republic. For two whole days, the 23rd and 24th of May, 1865, regiment after regiment, corps after corps, cavalry, artillery, infantry, subsidiary branches of the service, the sanitary commission—the Civil war equivalent and forerunners of the Red Cross—swung down Pennsylvania avenue in the full pride of their war-stained uniforms of blue, and bearing the tattered flags of a thousand battles. No one who witnessed that great final parade will ever forget it.

To Those in France

This is the memorial to the Americans who died in the World war, erected in New Orleans by the American Legion posts of that city. Opposite the memorial inscription at the base of the shaft is the first verse of "In Flanders Fields," and a bed of poppies surrounds the monument. At the top, where the world-surmounting angle of the marines is shown, are also, on the other sides, the emblems of the army, navy and air service. The entire effect is to carry out the idea of the dead holding on high the torch of patriotism.

Deeds Will Be Remembered.

The World war veterans join with those of the Civil war in Memorial services with a more personal and sympathetic feeling than they know five years ago. The Civil war is a more real event than it was when they studied about it in their school history or even when they heard its tales as told by those who had fought its battles. As they miss and mourn for their own lost comrades, they realize a little the grief that the loss of thousands in the other war brought to every community. They have a reverence for and a nearness to the aged veterans that they did not have before, and if they have imagination they will look forward and see themselves advanced in years and will wonder if their own services will be remembered. They may be sure that they will not be forgotten. America never forgets her soldier sons.

Youths in Civil War Armies.

The fact that thousands of men are still alive who fought in the Civil war is perhaps one of the most illuminating facts which we can find about it. For it shows that boys, mere children, in fact, were impelled to enter the struggle by emotions strong enough to carry them through it, and it shows that the cause was desperate enough to need them.

WORK ON RED BLUFF
Further possible delay in starting the work of core drilling at the Red Bluff dam site was forecast by C. C. Treadwell of the contracting firm of Treadwell & Luderriden who was in Pecos Thursday en route to El Paso.

Mr. Treadwell stated that a fifth hole was to be drilled at the Rocky Arroyo, or Carlsbad third reservoir site, and that the Carlsbad people were endeavoring to make arrangements to have the entire dam site prospected while the drill is on the site, in order that specifications for the dam construction could be made. This is taken as an indication that the borings have proven the water soundness of that dam site.

Mr. Treadwell will learn Monday whether he will be required to wait longer at the Carlsbad site or move to the Red Bluff site. About seven days will be required for the move.—Pecos Gusher.

LAKEWOOD LOCALS

While looking for fish bait down opposite Globe last Sunday afternoon, Oliver Crozier discovered a big bob cat in a small cave, and being a boy and not knowing exactly what the thing was that was growling at him, he took a shot at it with a one-shooting .22 rifle, and fortunately, for Oliver, the bullet landed right between Mrs. Bob Cat's eyes and put her permanently out of business. Oliver then called to Lewis Angel, who was fishing nearby, and together they searched the small cave and found five baby bob cats, which they secured and brought to town, and gave them to a mother house cat at the home of Grant Knepple. The mother cat seems to be quite proud of her newly acquired family, and is taking care of the little bobs in an affectionate and motherly manner.

EDITORS OVER SMITH-McNARY BILL

Yakima, Washington, May 22.—Eleven Republican editors at a conference here have decided to telegraph President Harding and the Washington congressional delegation that unless the Smith-McNary bill is passed "they will no longer consider themselves, either by reason of past affiliations or the party's future promises, be bound to continue support of the national Republican party."

"Failure of the Republican majority in congress to pass the Smith-McNary bill will be regarded by us as an inexcusable breach of faith, on the part of the national Republican party," the editors declare.

A CALL FOR FLOWERS

Arrangements are about completed for the observance of Memorial Day in Carlsbad next Tuesday. The exercises are to be held in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and will take place in the Armory. After the program has been given there, flowers and wreaths will be taken to the cemetery and the graves of the thirty-five soldiers will be decorated by the Legionnaires. Any and all persons who have flowers that they will donate for this purpose, or who will make some wreaths for the soldier's graves, will please bring them to the Armory on that day where they will be cared for. Most of the roses that have given so much beauty to the yards and gardens this year will be gone by that time, but it is hoped that enough summer flowers can be secured from the patriotic citizens of the city to provide a bouquet for each soldier's grave.

If necessary, let us give the flowers to the soldiers and let our friends' graves go without, as Decoration Day only comes once a year and we have the entire year to tend the resting place of our dead. Many of the soldiers who are buried in our cemetery are those who died in the hospitals here, and are now lying far from their kindred and their homes. The least we can do is to decorate their last resting places on this day.

Let us "Shrine in our hearts those heroes of ours, and cover them over with beautiful flowers."

The trial of the quartet of bootleggers recently arrested by Sheriff Batton and his deputies, was conducted in Judge Gilbert's court at Artesia, last Saturday. The trial resulted in a fine of two hundred dollars and costs. They plead guilty. The names given were Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster, Messrs. Baker and Wilson. The liquor, some thirty-two cases, was ordered poured out on the ground.

F. L. Hancock, the engineer in charge of the paving recently installed in this city, left for his home in Denver, Colorado, Friday night of last week. Mr. Hancock was certainly "on the job" during all the time the work was in progress, and made many friends among the business men and others by his genial manner no less than by his strict attention to duty in his rather difficult line.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE LUNCHEON

The luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce was held Monday of this week instead of Thursday, which would have been the regular time, because of the members of the Chautauqua, who are now in the city. About twenty-five artists were present at the luncheon, each being the guest of some member of the Chamber of Commerce.

After the invocation by Reverend Lowry, all were seated at the long table, who could be accommodated, and several short tables were found to be inadequate for the large number present. Mine Host Weatherford and his wife spared no pains or expense in preparing the excellent menu served, and which all enjoyed.

Major Bujac spoke graceful words of welcome, to which the response was given by Mr. Horner, who took occasion to remark that he and the major did not always agree and had many arguments pro and con, but that there was one point they agreed on in their discussions about autocracy and that in the autocracy of friendship; he thinks the spirit of friendship and neighborliness has been exemplified in the treatment of the members of the Chautauqua since their arrival in our city. "Because the trail is long and sometimes wearisome, and the members of the company are like yourselves when bidding goodbye for some months to homefolks, we are the more appreciative of your kindly welcome and it affords a great incentive for service to be received as we have been received by the good people of Carlsbad."

A musical program was given by several of the artists present, and Miss Jane Goude, "The Girl of the Golden West," gave a humorous reading that brought forth a hearty round of applause.

Among others present was the State Educational Auditor, John Joerns, who was introduced and spoke briefly, followed by Avery Turner, Superintendent of the Santa Fe Railroad who said he was extremely gratified at being present and meeting so many of his old time friends. He is traveling with John Joerns, to give him his support and cooperation. The Santa Fe is vitally interested in the tax situation, as it pays an intense proportion of all the taxes paid in the state. So far as the schools go, we want every dollar to get the best results, the tax payers of the state want the best for the children of New Mexico, but they do not want the money to be wasted; that would be a detriment to the cause of education; he is much pleased at Mr. Joerns' attitude on the subject of placing a high standard of efficiency and capacity for the teachers of the state as many of the teachers in the schools have only eighth grade certificates; the taxes this year will likely remain stationary, as the county is going to lose in taxable property. Mr. Turner said further that he liked to preach economy. We need good roads as well as good schools in the state. The crying evil of this state is that good roads are built today, and let blow away tomorrow. The Santa Fe railroad wants the best results; the road can better pay the tax of $2,000.00 per mile than the people can pay what they are doing.

A. C. Keimath and Dr. Russell, both of Artesia and members of the school board of that city, were introduced and made brief talks, along the line already followed by Mr. Turner and Mr. Joerns. At the close of the address Major Bujac crossed the room and laid his hand on the shoulder of Captain Merchant, of Abilene and Carlsbad, and in a few eloquent words expressed the appreciation all felt in having this old soldier and business man present. After which the meeting adjourned.

A. D. Poteet has sold his farm in the Otis section and the likelihood is that he will move to some other locality, presumably California. The Poteets are one of the best families in the lower valley and their determination to leave this locality is regretted by all who have the privilege of their acquaintance.

John Joerns, state school superintendent of New Mexico, arrived in the City Sunday afternoon, and made his official visit to the school board of the city and county, and assisted in preparing the school budget for next year.

John Lowenbruck returned Saturday night from Douglas, Arizona, where he was called by the sudden and tragic death of his brother-in-law, William Heintz. The accident by which Mr. Heintz came to his death was rather peculiar. They had a gun standing behind the door, and the supposition is that the door blew shut and the gun fell, the bullet striking Mr. Heintz in the abdomen, ranging upward through the heart and lodging in the ceiling. Death was probably instantaneous. The first to discover the sad accident was Mrs. Heintz who on returning from church, was horrified to find the body of her husband lying on the floor. The deceased was a man of about forty-five years of age and a man of excellent character and enjoying the confidence and respect of his fellow townsmen to a remarkable degree. He was in the restaurant business and had acquired considerable means. Here in Carlsbad, where his wife taught school for several years and has a wide circle of friends, sympathy is intense.

Miss Sue Chilcoat, who underwent an operation for appendicitis, is said to be getting along nicely. The operation was performed last Friday afternoon at Eddy County Hospital. Miss Sue is one of the graduates of Carlsbad High School and intends to leave as soon as she has recovered for Las Vegas, to enter the Normal School for the summer course.

LESSON FOR MAY 23.

JEREMIAH SPEAKS BOLDLY FOR GOD.

LESSON TEXT.—Jer. 2.
GOLDEN TEXT.—Amend your ways and your doings, and obey the voice of the Lord.—Jer. 2:11.

REFERENCE MATERIAL.—II Sam.
12:1-14; I Kings 21:17-24; Jer. 7:1-15; Amos
6:1-6.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—The Story of a Brave Prophet.

JUNIOR TOPIC.—A Brave Prophet's Message.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—
Jeremiah Speaks Boldly for God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—
When and How Should Wrong Be Rebuked?

1. Jeremiah's Solemn Warning to Judah (vv. 1-7).

The Lord commanded him to stand in a conspicuous place in the temple and proclaim the judgment which was about to fall upon them because of their sins. The object was to provoke them to repentance (v. 5). If they would not repent, God would make the temple as Shiloh (v. 6). Just as Shiloh was once the dwelling place of the Lord and now fallen into decay and abandoned, so will it be with the temple. Jeremiah was sent to speak the words the Lord had told him and not to diminish a word.

II. Jeremiah on Trial (vv. 8-11).

1. Cause of Arrest (v. 8). It was for faithfully speaking all that the Lord had commanded. The one who speaks boldly what God commands shall be opposed. The time-server and self-seeker will not stand for such a ministry.

2. The Charge (vv. 8, 9). It was a capital crime. They said, "Thou shalt surely die." His guilt according to their charge was twofold: (1) Pretending to speak for God; (2) Speaking against the temple and the city. According to their charge he was guilty of blasphemy and sacrilege.

3. The Princes Sit in Judgment (vv. 10, 11). When the excitement reached the ears of the princes they came to judge of the merits of the case. Matters of state were not entirely in the hands of the priests and elders, but were partly controlled by members of the royal family.

III. Jeremiah's Defense (vv. 12-15).

1. Reiterates His Divine Commission (v. 12). He had nothing to deny, but to repeat what he had said. He plainly told them that in opposing him they were opposing God, for he was God's messenger.

2. His Exhortation (v. 13). He urged them to amend their ways and obey God, and God would not bring upon them judgment. Their threats did not cause him to suppress or soften his message.

3. He Gave Himself Up (v. 14). He did not resist the powers of government (Rom. 13:1). Knowing that he was sent of God he was content to trust God for deliverance. He did not fear what man could do unto him.

4. Warnings of Fatal Consequence (v. 15). He frankly told them that God had sent him and if they killed him they would be guilty of defying God. Resistance to God's prophet would be resistance to God. Woe would not only fall upon them, but the nation and city would suffer.

IV. Jeremiah Saved (vv. 16-24).

He was acquitted. God is able to raise up friends and advocates from the ranks of those who oppose us. All hearts are in God's hands.

1. Judgment of the Princes (v. 16). They pronounced him not guilty, as he had spoken in the name of the Lord. Jeremiah's words convinced them that he was speaking the truth.

2. Speech of the Elders (vv. 17-23). As the princes probably represented the king, so the elders represented the people.

The elders plead for Jeremiah and adduced several cases in illustration: (1) Micah (vv. 18, 19). Micah had prophesied against Jerusalem, but the king Hezekiah instead of putting him to death, repented and thus turned aside the punishment which was impending. (2) Urijah (vv. 20-23). Urijah prophesied against the city and land and thus incurred the wrath of Jehoiakim, who brought him back from Egypt whence he had fled and slew him.

Though all this was done, judgment was not thus thwarted. Killing God's prophets does not prevent God's judgment, but intensifies it. In the case of Hezekiah God's judgments were turned aside through heeding the words of the prophet, and in the case of Jehoiakim judgment fell upon the nation because of refusal and maltreatment of the prophet.

3. Rescued by Ahikam (v. 24). Ahikam must have been a man of influence such as to be able to interfere at such a time.

Friendship That Never Fails.

Suppose Jesus were in your company, would it not make life strong and pure and effective, full of power and sweetness and power and joy to have such a Friend always at hand? His is a companionship that never grows wearisome, and His is a friendship that never fails, and it reaches through time and eternity.

Envy Like a Fly.

Envy is like a fly that passes all a body's sounder parts and dwells upon the sores.—Chapman.

PECOS WHITE SOX ORGANIZE

At a meeting Tuesday night the fans of the town lined up for the 1933 season. Two officials were elected at this meeting. M. Eriengbach was elected manager, and M. Wadley was elected captain.

Five games are on the docket already: the first with Grandfalls this afternoon. Next Saturday Carlsbad will play here, and on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday the two teams will clash at Carlsbad.—Pecos Gusher.

Carlsbad Base Ball team under management of Ned Godby leaves early Saturday morning for Pecos, Texas, to play there Saturday afternoon, jumping back to Carlsbad for 3 games at Fireman's Park Sunday, Monday and Tuesday (Decoration Day). The Carlsbad club has been materially strengthened for this series of games. Buck Montgomery of Loving will pitch Saturday's games, with Nymeyer receiving him. For Sunday afternoon Pitcher Martin, of Artesia, will pitch for Carlsbad with the old reliable Allen Stewart catching. Morris, one of the best pitchers in the valley, will pitch Monday's game and a college man playing under an assumed name will pitch Decoration Day afternoon. The Big Boy (DeWitt Neal) who got 5 hits off Brown in one game last fall playing with Artesia, will bat 5th for Carlsbad in the three home games.

Editor's Note.—The fans can put this in their hat, Carlsbad may not win all three games but if they do not win with the line up their present manager has, it will be a surprise.

HAIL RUINS COTTON CROP

A heavy hail storm north of Pecos made it necessary to replant about 500 acres of cotton, but most of the seed necessary for this planting has been secured. Some hay was damaged by the hail, but most of it can be cut and used for feed.—Pecos Gusher.

Mrs. Roy Martin, the very efficient and enterprising teacher of Loving schools, will leave Monday for Las Vegas, to attend the summer sessions of the State Normal, that she may be better prepared for her fall work, she having again accepted the position of principal in the Loving schools for the coming year. Loving people are fortunate in having this up-to-date teacher at the head of their schools.

Melvin Bearup and family was in from the ranch in the mountains the fore part of the week and attended the sessions of Chautauqua while in town.

ST. EDWARDS EIGHTH GRADE GRADUATION HELD MONDAY

Monday morning the Eighth grade pupils of St. Edwards school held their commencement at the Crawford Theatre. There were four graduates and each had a prominent part on the program. A number of fine songs were rendered by different members of the school and church, which pleased all present, and there were other numbers such as dialogues, playlets, and other exercises which made a very varied and interesting program.

At the close, diplomas were presented to the four graduates, three girls and one boy, admitting them to the High School next fall, they having taken the State Eighth Grade examination.

In the playlet, "Murder Will Out", a number of girls in costume, appropriate to the play, gave an amusing sketch of an escape of school girls, in which Mary Mullane was the Negro servant, and Josephine Fessler as the Irish maid, made decided hits. Other parts well played were those taken by Katie Pope, Rena Genani and Edna Calvani.

Mary Nette Reed and Edna Calvani sang a beautiful duet, "Don't Forget Mother," which received hearty appreciation from the audience as did the number "Sweet Chiming Bells" by the choir and others by the boys and girls. The entire program deserved a much larger audience than it received.

This school, under the efficient management of Sister M. Adeline, has taken very high rank this year in penmanship, three of its students receiving a perfect 100 per cent in penmanship on the State Eighth Grade Examination, the papers being graded at the State Department of Education at Santa Fe.

Beside these Eighth Grade Diplomas, these students, Josephine Fessler, Margaret Bindel, Edna Calvani, and Joseph Boen each received a diploma for excellency in Penmanship awarded by the American Penman Association of New York City, upon manuscripts submitted.

In addition to the mentioned diplomas, Margaret Bindel, Edna Calvani, and Josephine Fessler each received a Students' Final Diploma on the Palmer Method of Business Writing, and Josephine Fessler and Margaret Bindel each received a certificate of the Palmer Method of Business writing in the advanced course.

Several members of the lower grades of the school also received smaller emblems of excellency on their penmanship. These diplomas and awards were granted altogether upon the character of this work submitted to the Palmer Company and speaks very highly of the instruction given these students by Sister M. Adeline in St. Edwards school.

The class and teacher visited County Supt. Geo. M. Brinton at his office on Tuesday morning of this week and after exhibiting these awards of merit, were complimented very highly upon their splendid work.

Memorial Day Gift

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Richard Peckham was a veteran of the Civil war. He always marched in the Memorial day parade. The parade was much larger than it had been for a number of years back. The men of the World War now marched, too.

Richard had always been a very active man, and he had taken part in many a celebration in the town. By day he sold cigars and cigarettes and fruit at the little stand in front of the small house where he and Mrs. Peckham had lived for so many years. But at night, oh, so often, he would dress in his best fireman suit or in his Civil war uniform as special town constable.

Richard could remember so many years back. He could remember when they had no such fire department as they had now, for example. Now they had a splendid firehouse too, above which was a clubroom for the firemen. What a magnificent place that was. They subscribed to several magazines, always there were some papers lying about on the great shiny table they had bought for the center of the room—to make it cozy and club-like, they had said.

How good it was to talk over the old days. There were some of the present men of the fire department who had remembered the old days. How they had pulled the hook and ladder up the great surrounding hills!

"I remember one cold night," Richard Peckham would begin a tale of former days, and so the story would be continued, a story of fighting against great odds, mighty hills, frightful cold and water that froze. They had motors now.

The new hook and ladder was new. It was a handsome hook and ladder. Richard Peckham admired it. Now he was merely an honorary member of the fire department, but a picture of him hung on the wall in the club and over it was the word "Hero." Oh, yes, Richard Peckham had had a splendid life; useful, brave, and the remembrance of it gave him great happiness.

The past was not the past with him. It was the present, too. It was always along with him, nudging him, as it were, and saying:

"Do you remember so and so?" And then Richard would smile at the thought. He was often smiling at his thoughts.

But since there had been these great improvements in the fire department they decided that they had no room for the old hook and ladder.

"We'll have to sell it to the junk man," they said. "He may give us ten dollars for it."

Richard had missed that meeting. Wasn't that just like a lot of young men with no sentiment, no feeling? They would sell that splendid hook and ladder which had been pulled up many a hill and which had saved many a life! It was sacrilege, sheer sacrilege.

"They're going to sell the old hook and ladder," he told Mrs. Peckham the next day. "Yes, ma, they're going to sell it. I wasn't at the meetin' last night, but I've heard how they've made all arrangements. If I only had room—" he broke off then, and his eyes filled with tears. Mrs. Peckham knew what it meant to her husband. It was almost something alive to him. Sell it for junk? It would break his heart.

Richard Peckham was getting dressed for the Memorial day parade. He was ready ahead of time. He knew that he would be.

"Richard," she came toward him, "before you start for the parade I want you to take a look in the yard. I've a little Memorial day present there for you—a real Memorial day present."

His heart was beating happily. Joyously, as he hurried along. But no, she couldn't have meant that. No one really knew how he loved it except himself. And besides the yard was too small. He had thought of that himself.

But there, in the yard, just squeezing in, as though it knew it was its only chance and had to do it, was the old hook and ladder. There it was and there it would be, not as junk but as having found a home.

"Oh, ma, ma," Richard cried, "I—I just can't say what I feel!"

Mrs. D. W. Duncan received a telegram from Bakersfield, California, Tuesday, which announced the death of an old time resident of Carlsbad, who will be remembered by many of our citizens, Mrs. Mollie Rancoe, wife of J. J. Rancoe. Her death occurred at the home of one of her sons, in Bakersfield, from diseases incident to old age, she having been ill for several years. At one time she lay sick at the home of her brother, D. W. Duncan, in this city, for an entire summer. She was about 74 years old and has several sons and one daughter, besides her husband, to mourn her passing. A good woman has gone to her reward.

A picnic and swim followed by a camp breakfast, honored the Chautauqua people Tuesday morning at the dam west of town. The morning was ideal for such an outing and the honor guests were more than pleased with the plans carried out so splendidly for their pleasure. About thirty in all were present.

The family of W. R. Hegler left Monday morning for their ranch home after spending Sunday in town attending the Chautauqua.

Miss Ethel Ross, who has been visiting friends in Carlsbad, will leave in a few days for El Paso, Texas, where she will join her brother, Frank W. Ross and wife, they having moved there a few weeks ago, from Lovings. The Current

The section at the right was cut from a new Cord of the same size. Careful measurements show that only 1/3 of the tread of the tire on the Yellow Cab has been worn away after this long, gruelling test. The carcass is intact after more than 11,000,000 revolutions.

Firestone Cords have averaged over 10,000 miles on Chicago Yellow Cabs (1,200 cabs all Firestone equipped). In thousands of instances, they have given from 18,000 to 30,000 miles.

Look at the tread—scientifically angled against skid, massive and heavy in the center where the wear comes, tapered at the edges to make steering easy and to protect the carcass against destructive hinging action of high tread edges. The carcass is air bag expanded to insure uniform tension and paralleling of every individual cord. It is double "gum dipped" to make sure that each cord is thoroughly insulated with rubber.

This is the reason why Firestone Cords unfailingly deliver extraordinary mileage. It explains the unanimous demand of thoughtful tire buyers for these values. The local Firestone dealer will continue to provide the personal service that makes Firestone tire comfort and economy complete.

CARLSBAD BAND ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Ray Soladay Chosen For Director
The members of the Carlsbad Band met last week and elected new officers for the ensuing year. H. M. Chilcoat is the new President of the organization; Chas. H. Jones, Secretary; and an executive committee composed of Ray Soladay, J. B. Lock, and J. T. Price. A constitution and by-laws were drawn up and adopted, the members of the Band signing up and agreeing to same. Taken altogether, this is the best start toward a permanent band organization attempted in Carlsbad for many years.

Soladay was chosen for director and has already assumed his duties. The first public concert under his direction will be given Saturday evening, the 27th, at 8:00 P. M., at the Band Stand.

Now that the Band has such an excellent start, it remains for the people of Carlsbad to show just a little more interest and enthusiasm, and attend these free concerts. The presence of a large crowd around the court house square will be a big incentive for the band to do its best.

The present line up on instrumentation is as follows: six cornets, three clarinets, five saxophones, four alto, one baritone, two basses, three trombones, and two drums, making twenty-five pieces in all. Some of the players are beginners in this line of work, but within a few weeks will be able to take part in the concerts.

The program for Saturday evening:

March, Washington Times.

Overture, Garden of Eden.

March, Colonial Queen.

Selection, Normandy.

March, Gloria.

Serenade, To Alice.

March, The Scout.

Star Spangled Banner.

CLOSE OF MISSION

St. Edwards congregation last Sunday listened to the last of a series of fourteen Mission sermons by Rev. Andrew Henze of Cincinnati, who preached to a full house each day at 7:30 A. M. and evening. Owing to the church being too small only Catholics were in attendance, but it is hoped the eloquent divine will return and that a larger place may be obtainable. At the last service last Sunday the father organized a society of the Holy Name of the congregation. This as a society in which the members promise to never take the name of God in vain, attend church every Sunday and receive the sacrament once each month.

HAY TRADE CONDITIONS OF THE WEEK

Light receipts of good grades of timothy at most markets has kept prices firm and steady generally for these descriptions. Lower grades predominate in the daily receipts and on these values have eased off and a weaker tendency is shown. Clover is dull and lower in most markets, and alfalfa and prairie weak. New hay is being offered in the southwest. Stocks generally are light, but the demand is limited. —Hay Trade Journal.

E. D. Westafer who has spent the winter with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Grant, in this city, left to go from here to Newton, Kansas, for a short stay, planning to remain there until after Memorial Day, he having been a soldier in the war between the states. He will go from Newton to Great Bend, Kansas, and from there continue his journey to Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. Although a resident of our city for only a few months Mr. Westafer has gained the esteem of our citizens to a remarkable degree, and his leaving is regretted by all who know him.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Zimmerman and children returned to this city from Jal, where Mrs. Zimmerman has been teaching school, getting in Saturday, the school closing Friday.

CHAUTAUQUA CLOSURE

The Redpath-Horner Chautauqua, which opened so auspiciously last Friday afternoon, finished its seven day session here last night. The attendance broke all previous records, and everyone present has only praise for the different performers, all of whom were artists in the best sense of the word, along their various lines.

Beginning with the Phillips Sisters, the Scotch Lassies, the first afternoon and evening good programs have followed each other in rapid succession. The lectures have been of the best, Dr. Hagerman leading off with his finished production "The Man With One Window", through the aggregation which contained such names as Everett Cooper, Geo. C. Aydlotte, Ruth Bryan Owen, and W. E. Wenner, whose plea for "A Square Deal for Jack" was alone worth the price of admission charged for the entire season. Harry J. Loane, who spoke on the subject of crime and criminals, gave a most wonderful exposure of the way that criminals are caught in the great cities, and brought out the fact that "they never get away" and incidentally told some truths that made his audience sit up and take notice.

The lecture by Frank P. Johnson, was full of fine thoughts along the line of community cooperation, which he thinks will eventually work out better things for all people, and said that we could not have a League of Nations until we had a league of neighbors.

Perhaps the number most generally enjoyed was "Daddy Grobeckers Yodlers" which furnished the entertainment one afternoon and evening. These are the original Swiss company, and they were surely given an ovation, being called before the curtain again and again, and kindly responding each time.

Jane Gould and Bernice Arthur, the former rejoicing in the title of "The Girl From the Golden West", and the latter being the baby of the company, an artist without a peer in her chosen instrument, the accordion. Her instrument, from which she extracts entrancing melody, was made especially for her, and looks too heavy for her tiny hands, but after hearing her play a few strains, she and the accordion seem to be one, so deftly she handles it.

Everett Kemp, is a great reader and entertainer, and is known as the man with a million dollar laugh. He scored a great success here in his exposition of Harold Bell Wright's masterpiece, "That Printer of Udell's". The consensus of opinion in Carlsbad is to the effect that Kemp is one of the best, if not the very best, of the men on the circuit. He will receive a warm welcome in Carlsbad when he comes again.

As a prelude to the afternoon lecture Thursday, the Campfire Girls gave their ceremonial in full uniform. Telling by different ones of their aims and work which they stress as noble and uplifting. At the close of the pretty number, boy scouts exemplified their first aid work and bound up a "broken" leg in fine shape and bandaged what might have represented a fractured skull. The part of the Campfire girls and the boy scouts was interesting in the extreme.

There is nothing we can say that would add to the lectures of Ruth Bryan Owen. Her talk was informal, and she had the manner of taking the entire large audience into her confidence, and talking as to friends.

We have purposely left that fine entertainer, Miss Jane Gould, until the last. Miss Gould is in a class of her own. Her Irish readings especially were screams and brought forth continuous applause. She is a typical western girl and simply radiates the spirit of the west. She has a wonderful power in imitation, and is herself a proof of what faith in oneself and a determined will can accomplish.

The two plays, "Friendly Enemies", and "Turn To The Right", with New York casts in both instances, were great plays and taught great lessons to all who heard them.

Last night, Laurant, with his wonderful magic brought the entertainment to a close, with a crowded house and a satisfied people.

The Armory where the Chautauqua was held was tastefully decorated with flags and pennants, and everything was done while the company was in Carlsbad to make them welcome and assure them of our appreciation of their stay among us.

A guarantee was signed early in the week which secures for Carlsbad the Chautauqua for next year.

Coley Jones has received his final equipment from the east, and on Wednesday of this week, opened the Cozy Corner for business. The place next door to the postoffice is small, but scrupulously clean and neat, and everybody who enters is extended a hearty welcome from the proprietor and his accommodating assistants. Their candies are of the very best, and their equipment for serving cold drinks and cream is excellent. Flowers were given as souvenirs to the callers on opening day and nearly every one in the city was wearing a fragrant carnation. We speak for the Cozy Corner, a liberal share of business in their line. They have taken over the magazine and paper business of the Corner Drug Store and will handle a full line of periodicals with their other goods.

Mrs. Babe Campbell, and Misses Gladys Jones and Maedean Campbell were visitors to Roswell this week going up on a shopping expedition Tuesday and remaining there until yesterday. The girls say they had a most delightful time.
