PREFACE

With this issue, the New Mexico Law Review begins publication of an annual survey of New Mexico law. It is our hope that a yearly volume of this type will provide our readers with a regular overview of developments in the law of this state.

This Survey year runs from April, 1979 through March, 1980; this closing date coincides with the end of the legislative session. The substantive legal topics covered were determined after review of the cases decided and statutes passed during the year. Coverage is not exhaustive, however, and the topics surveyed undoubtedly will vary somewhat from year to year.

The authors of the articles appearing in this issue have chosen to work in a number of different styles and formats. We encouraged this diversity and hope that the reader will appreciate the efforts of these contributors as much as we do.
