Insurance department.

Created in 1905; previous reports were issued by the Insurance department of the Auditor's office. The first insurance law was passed in 1882. Under art. 11 of the constitution of New Mexico, the State corporation commission had full power and authority over insurance companies; in 1921 the legislature repealed the established Insurance department and placed all the powers and duties prescribed by the 1905 law in the State bank examiner; in 1925 the legislature created a Department of insurance within the Corporation commission; in 1947 the legislature created the State insurance board. The superintendent of insurance is charged with the execution of laws affecting the regulation and supervision of insurance companies authorized to transact insurance within the state.

Law Library.

Established in 1851, had its origin in a Congressional appropriation of $5,000 in Sept. 1850. The first books were bought in Washington, brought over the Santa Fe trail to Santa Fe in 1851. In the beginning the territorial secretary was the first territorial librarian; the second legislative assembly, 1852-53, separated the library from the secretary's office and provided for the appointment of a territorial librarian; office was vacant from 1857-69. In 1912 Gov. McDonald appointed W. T. Thornton as librarian claiming at the time that no woman could hold a state office. Court proceedings were brought and the decision was against the Governor's ruling; now under the control of the Supreme court.
