PLEA OF PRISONERS BEFORE THE BAR Judge Abbot Hands Out Justice to the Guilty With Gratitude.

GRAY MAKES PLAINTIVE APPEAL

(Saturday, May 5.) The first prisoner to be sentenced this morning was J. D. Farmer, who over a year ago assaulted a man by the name of Sitter, a carpenter, with a saw, breaking it in two and otherwise disfiguring his side. Sitter was not doing some work according to the refined taste of Farmer, and the quarrel ensued.

"Did you ever go into any difficulty like this before?" was Judge Abbot's first question to the prisoner. "No, sir," was the answer. "How much of a family have you?" was the next question of the court. "Two children, sir; one 19 and one 12 years old," came the answer.

"Well, we had better make it $25 and costs." "I object if the court please," said Attorney Burkhardt, appearing for the prisoner. "This prisoner pleaded guilty with the understanding that he would be extended clemency. Ten dollars would be a heavy fine for him. I'm in favor of withdrawing the plea of guilty."

"All right," said the judge. "We'll allow it, but I couldn't think of reducing the fine. Ten dollars is insignificant. I wouldn't have it go out to the public at that." The prisoner was convicted by his attorney, and the plea of guilty was not withdrawn. The order was made so that the commitment would not be issued by sixty days, thus allowing the prisoner two months in which to pay up.

Eduardo Apodaca—$50 and Fifty Days.

According to District Attorney Duran, Apodaca struck a citizen of Duran on the head with a geological specimen—just what kind, he did not know. The wound inflicted, though of little consequence, was one that might in some cases prove fatal. The prisoner had pleaded guilty to assault and battery, and had then thrown himself on the mercy of the court. Apodaca is the name, who at this time of court, had been acquitted on the charge of rape. In both cases it was a very evident that drink had been the primary cause of Apodaca's downfall.

"What did you strike that man for?" queried the court. "An old score," was the answer. "Had you been drinking?" "Yes, sir."

"I wonder if you realize that you have gotten in serious trouble by too much drink. Are you married?" "No, sir." "What do you do for a living?" "Labor." On recommendation of the district attorney, the light sentence of a fine of $50 and fifty days and costs, was given Apodaca, the jail sentence to be suspended pending good behavior. District Attorney Clancy suggested that probably the only way Apodaca would have of paying his fine would be by some one hiring him and advancing him the money, following out some of the old customs of the country.

Frank Jones—$50 and Costs. Frank Jones, the young man who took a pistol from a show case at the Whitney company's store, while a clerk was watching him, pleaded guilty to larceny of a shop and was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs. Jones was also given some food for thought by the court: "How long have you been in jail?" "Two months, sir," was the plaintive answer.

"How does it happen that you didn't tell me the truth about having worked in Russia?" We want to know, you gave us there, and the first says that they never had the name of Frank Jones on their books. What have you to say for yourself?" "Well, judge, you see, I was in the show business—that's how I happen to have two names."

"Yes, you are evidently a young man going around drinking and throwing yourself away, and I suppose you are going to do it in the quietest possible way," said Judge Abbot. "When you get out of this trouble, you ought to conclude that you have been on the wrong side of the law, and take the opposite one." With that, Judge Abbot called for another prisoner.

S. L. Gray is Released. It was a touching scene that presented itself in the court room, when Gray, the confidence man, was called to the bar. In it stood a young man with a newspaper education. Every countenance of his companions bore the marks of good breeding, intelligence, gotten only by application and education, was stamped on every feature. His clothes fit, and they were clean, despite the wear of four months in the county jail.

"How long have you been in jail?" the judge inquired of the prisoner. "I was with some fellow that the prisoner answered: 'Since January, judge.'"

Then Deputy Sheriff Heys was called upon to Gray's behavior, while in jail.

"He's been a model prisoner, your honor," said the deputy. "He did a good deal of work around the jail, such as painting."

"He didn't paint it red, did he?" queried the court.

"Yes, sir, the paint was red," was the answer.

Then Attorney T. M. Wilkerson made his appeal for clemency for his client.

"I don't want to send him to the pen," responded the court. "Do you think that the punishment you have received is well soaked in, so it will wash off the first rain?"

"I was with some fellow that the prisoner answered: 'Since January, judge.'"

Then Deputy Sheriff Heys was called upon to Gray's behavior, while in jail.

"He's been a model prisoner, your honor," said the deputy. "He did a good deal of work around the jail, such as painting."

The Whites have sought social prestige, but real old fashioned home happiness seems to have slipped from them in recent years, a mockery of the wealth that has replaced their early poverty.

UNIVERSITY BOYS MEET DEFEAT AT HANDS OF HUSKY FARMERS OF MESILLA PARK WHO WIN BY A SCORE OF 22 TO 26 IN POINTS.

Yesterday on the coaches' field, the University of New Mexico track team, went down to defeat before the onslaughts of their enemies, the "farmers" of the Agricultural and Mechanical college, at Mesilla Park, in the dual spring meet, by the decisive score of 22 to 26.

Alford and Allen of the University did good work, landing first in the pole vault and 220-yard hurdle race and 880-yard run, but in every other event the husky farmers walked away from the University boys as though they were tired.

Allen, in the 880-yard run, which he made in 2 minutes, 14 seconds, lowered the territorial record for this distance. Following a tie at the events, with winners, records, etc.

INDIAN INSPECTOR BEEDE AT SANTA FE HAS BEEN NEARLY FORTY YEARS OF SERVICE—FIRST APPOINTMENT UNDER GRANT'S ADMINISTRATION.

After almost continuous labor in the Indian service for nearly forty years, Cyrus Beede, Indian inspector, who is in Santa Fe inspecting the United States Indian training school and the condition of Indians in New Mexico, is still as active in his duties as the original and busily engaged in looking to their welfare as at any time in the last two score years. His present trip to the Capital City is for the purpose of taking testimony in a dispute between the Santa Clara Indians in regard to their troubles in their pueblo government. He has spent some time in this investigation, and the testimony and his report will be forwarded by him to Washington.

Thursday he visited Nampa, going from there to Espanola, and thence back to Santa Fe.

Inspector Beede was one of the first members of the Quaker church to enter the Indian service during Grant's first term, when that president inaugurated his Quaker policy, immediately after the Civil war. Unlike many others appointed at that time, he has remained in the service ever since.

On his present visit to Santa Fe, he attended the commencement exercises at the United States Indian training school last Wednesday night and was greatly interested and pleased.

WHERE IS WALTER L. KLEIN? WAS HERE IN THE WINTER OF 1906—HIS MOTHER ANXIOUS TO HEAR FROM HIM.

If Walter L. Klein is in Albuquerque, or should he read the subjoined letter, he will be bringing a burden from the mind of his mother by promptly letting her know his present whereabouts. The mother's letter reads as follows:

Albuquerque, N. M., April 24. Hon. H. J. Hargreaves, Governor of New Mexico.

Dear Sir—Pardon me for addressing you, but I am so anxious to know something about my son's whereabouts, that I appeal to you for assistance in helping to locate him.

My son, Walter L. Klein, who is in Albuquerque, also in Old Albuquerque, New Mexico, during the winter of 1906, up to about January or February of this year. I have several letters from him from that time. When I last heard from him he was in Pueblo, I. T. That was in March, 1905. From that time he wrote he would go to Kingston, Ariz.

I thought if some one could be found in Albuquerque who knew my son when there, he could then perhaps find out if he left New Mexico alone or with some other person, and in that way learn where he may now be located. He corresponded regularly with me. I fear something has happened to him. Thanking you in advance for your kind favor, I am,

MRS. D. A. KLEIN.

C. V. Plant, a young railroad employee of Gallup, was here last Saturday, and yesterday spent the day with friends in Bear canyon. He returned to Gallup last night.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER

New York, May 2.—The warm weather of last week in New York brought out the summer fashions in all their beauty, and one is too busy with their many good points to say which is the loveliest to choose from. All kinds and descriptions of fabrics are fashionable, and the variations in styles are as diverse as the fabrics.

A great many suits for the between season are made of chiffon, broad cloth, and an extremely smart costume for the spring and cool summer days was made of this material in which the popular over dress

TRIM BLOUSE

As the season advances blouses become trimmer, and fit more closely to the figure. In this fashion is made a handsome white Japanese silk waist, which is rich with hand embroidery done in white floss.

Garlands of dainty flowers outline the tucked yoke and appear in the double pleated panel which is carried to the embroidered stock. The back of the blouse has a shallow ruche, which is finished with the hand work in less elaborate design. The top of the sleeves are tucked, and the same trimming is here used.

Two soft kid bands of white are used to form the belt. This is wide in the back and narrowed to a point in front. The bands are joined by gold braid and small gilt buttons.

Princess style was used for the skirt, in combination with a short fancy Eton jacket. The skirt was elaborately braided with three different kinds of braid, and the coat was decorated in the same manner with a fancy silk beautifully embroidered.

showing in the front. Any body who could make a very plain costume a very dressy affair by this means, and braiding is so easy to put on that the veriest amateur can soon learn to do it.

Velvet is another material that is much worn from the very harsh weaves to the soft silky and soft in finish, and, although made on the same looms as the heavier goods, braiding is seldom seen on them as a trimming, being a much too heavy form of decoration. Pinks of velvet, silk, satin, tulle, and plaiting are considered more appropriate for the garment of the evening dress; yet, if for the street, they are usually made with the Eton jacket or bolero.

Indeed, Dame Fashion has decreed that all street costumes must have some sort of jacket, of lace or solid embroidery, even though it be the most absurdly little affair; but a jacket of some sort it must have, and here is another fact, every jacket must have a few buttons on it; velvet covered ones on cloth and linen, or jeweled ones on silk or lingerie styles, and those that are flat and of silver for the long street coats.

Even the shirt, better trimmed with whole rows of buttons up and down the front and back closing.

The long street coat of last season is dying the death and those who wear long coats must follow on a new half length model, most attractive.

Indeed, that is quite different from anything that has so far appeared, and the worst of the matter is that the old coat cannot be remodeled after it. Of course, we all know that this is one of those sharp little tricks of the designers and modistes, who always try to take for themselves extra work and pay—when creating a new style.

The extra silk coat is a most practical and economical garment for new outfit, as it can be worn with almost any sort of gown, and needs almost no alteration to match. It can also be made into an extremely dressy affair by the addition of lace, collars and cuffs for those formal occasions, or a simple, smart, and comfortable for everyday wear; and in black it is suitable for any and every kind of duty.

There seems to be a penchant for decorating the thin fabrics with many touches of varied sizes around the skirt—band run, they must be, but it hardly do not have too many, and better still, have them run from the belt to the foot, which will decrease the size of the wearer. Flat flowers, with scalloped edges, are much liked for the light weight materials, and many of these scalloped edges are outlined with a very narrow ruffling of silk. Then again, many of the middle dresses and coats of gauze, net, and crepe, have bands of Irish or Cluny lace, with intricate decorations by means of beautifully embroidered lace medallions, and some of the wide flounces, of the same material as the dress, are heavily embroidered; none for those who wish the dress for occasions when such decorations would be out of place, an extremely plain skirt and blouse, having only a lace collar and cuffs, would be in good taste, and quite as good style.

To the woman who must consider ways and means, Dame Fashion has been good. As she now considers the thin wash materials as suitable as the more expensive textures. These thin fabrics may be found in all colors and weaves, and the range in price is from 12 up, and many pretty ones may be bought for even lower prices. Thus, with some pieces of lace and ribbons, picked up at a bargain, you may have, if you can do the sewing yourself, a very chic gown for little money.

One of the new ways to decorate the summer dress is to drape the bodice with ribbon, in fitch fashion. The ribbons grow more beautiful every day, and they are used in all sorts of ways, sashes, fichus, girdles, belts, flounces, and chums, at the front of the bodice.

The most popular ribbon just now used in millinery, are those in black and white stripes, and they are most effective on the little black gowns with the addition of a black or white wing or quill standing straight up at the side.

The colored blouses are not so fashionable as they were last year, but those in white have not decreased one whit in popular favor. One of the ideas in the using of lines, heavily embroidered, for little jackets, to be worn with skirts of lace, lace and muslin. Handkerchief linen is more used than ever; not only are blouses made of this dainty fabric, but the skirts also are equally decorated with it and are covered with embroidery, medallions, "set in," are lavishly used in its make up.

Lace is, for the thinner materials, considered, it is certainly much the cheapest way to buy them.

For evening suits the white worsteds are a great deal used, and very smart they are, when made with the jaunty Eton. They are not so unpractical as would appear at first sight, for they are easily cleaned and because of their durability may be restored to almost their pristine freshness. The old fashioned evening suit or sailor dress is now seldom seen, for every woman now is distinctly "tailor made" in all her outer garments.

For traveling there are two materials that are perhaps above all others most suitable, the English moire and the Panama. The yare especially fashionable in gray, but color (gray being the fashionable color this season) or in gray and white checks. Very pretty suits of two toned gray checks are seen in many dresses with touches of color in the shape of blue, red or green collars and cuffs; and nearly all the gowns thus made have an extra decoration or braid either straight or elaborate, according to the taste of the wearers.

The touch of gold has by no means "gone out." It is with us in the fold of the skirt, in the blouse, in belts, in part construction, even in the cuffs, and a line of it under the more sombre colored blouses of a faint pattern worked out with its shining glint.

If you are buying a new silk dress, do not buy a Panama, for it has not lost all its prestige. Instead get a Tussor, which is quite as pretty as the above, and comes with the same threads that are so popular in this season. Or, if preferred, there are the Hurlingham and Rayns, which are by far the most fashionable silks for the evening. They are very durable, and moreover, they are very stylish. They may be made in all fashionable colors. The Tussor comes in a wide range of tints, but of all, the pastel shades are the most beautiful, with white flowers pinned upon them. Of course, a darker shade would be more suitable, if one must make the dress a serious affair, for all fashionable colors. WHY EMIGRANTS BY TENS OF THOUSANDS ARE FLOCKING TO THE AMERICAN SHORES

THE STORY TOLD IN INTERVIEWS SECURED BY THE NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT OF THIS NEWSPAPER WITH EMIGRANTS AT ELLIS ISLAND — TO ESCAPE DESPOTISM AND FEARFUL OF REVOLUTION.

By Martin E. Paw.

New York, May 2.—Ten thousand refugees from Russia, fleeing from the scourge of despotism and threatening revolution, are enlisting the nation's sympathy at the Ellis Island immigration station in this port every day.

Of this number more than two-thirds are Russian Jews, hundreds of

"If there had been any chance of a revolution I would have stayed to fight with my brothers, but I do not believe the peasants will ever fight until they are armed as well as the Cossacks. I considered with my father, and he gave me the savings of his lifetime to come here and bring my wife, and if I am successful, in sending money home. I will send for my father in a year or so."

them arriving absolutely penniless, homeless, and not a few friendless. The Russian Christians coming here, are, for the most part, of revolutionary tendencies, and they say they fled from their native land to forestall arrest or possible exile after government officials had discovered their participation in the revolutionary movement. With bright faces and hopeful hearts, these rough peasants, heavily laden with their possessions, most of them, and a few accompanied by their wives, are turning toward the great fields of the northwest.

Leon Kuikowski, a peasant fellow, wearing high leather boots and a peasant's cap, and bearing upon his arm his pink checked bride, came in a vessel that carried 3,000 emigrants to these shores. The day recently featured to his coat, showed that he was bound for the wheat fields of South Dakota. He is 27 years old. Through an interpreter he told his story to me.

"I come from the district of Kiev, where there has been much trouble," he said. "In Russia they will not let us have enough land to raise crops to feed us, and to raise means that we must either submit to starvation and oppression or die for demanding our rights."

their allies, the common story of milk and honey flowing through the streets of New York and white bread growing on the trees. The Russian peasant takes no stock in such nonsense; he knows that he must work for a living here as he did in Russia.

Kuikowski, when questioned concerning his idea of a free country, was hazy to the point of stupidity. He had no idea of what the electoral system meant, but that it was something very fine was shown by his continual repetition of a word in Russian corresponding with "good."

"Here I will earn in a week what I could not earn in half a year in my country. It is not as if I earn two rubles in Russia in a week means slavery and back-breaking work night and day. Then the Cossacks would shoot if we must pay it out in taxes. In America that is not so. You have no taxes and sometimes men may have 20 acres of land to cultivate. In that not free? Here the government men will not steal our provisions and we may have our own house. That, in Russia, is impossible."

"I will never return to Russia unless I hear that my brothers have arms with which to successfully revolt, and then I will go back and join the revolution. I love Russia and would die for her if my dying would help my country."

Pinchus Feltz, a Jewish boy of 17 years, of fine physique and with a handsome curly head and big brown eyes, was detained temporarily at Ellis Island because his destination was Chicago, possessed only $1 and had no friends to call upon. In the detention bureau he told this story: "My father and mother were murdered by soldiers during the last massacre in Kishineff. I was afraid of the soldiers and hid in a bin in the cellar of our house. When I came up at night and found my father and mother dead, I lost my fear, and loading a gun, went up into the second story of the house and watched through the window for Cossacks."

"The next morning they came and I fired into the crowd. I loaded the gun as quickly as I could and fired again. Three times I did this, and every time I shot, I saw a Cossack fall. I know I killed five and hurt others. They came to our house and broke down the doors, but I was again hiding in the bin in the cellar and they did not find me."

"I got money from my uncle and came to this country to get work in a store. I am going to learn the English language and then perhaps I can go to school. I should like to be a doctor."

Pressel Bodys, a Jewish woman with two small children, arrived at the Ellis Island station with $5 cents. She was bound to Seattle, there to join her husband, whose address she did not have. A Jewish society assisted her. She said that she was compelled to give up all her jewelry to Russian officers before she could pass over the frontier, but this loss to her was nothing compared to the loss of her feather bed, which she said was stolen from her in Antwerp.

To your opinion, the Water Supply company has the right to place a meter in every house of four rooms or less served by them?"

To which question the city attorney answered "Yes."

According to this, despite the fact that it is plainly stipulated in the franchise that a four-room house shall not pay over 50 cents per month for water, the Water Supply company, if acting on the opinion of City Attorney Hickey, can compel consumers living in four-room houses, three-room houses, or even a one-room house, for the matter of that, to put in a meter, the minimum charge for which is $1.50 per month, a difference to the unfortunate patron of the Water Supply company of 50 cents per month.

Alderman Hayden of the fire committee reported the fire department in excellent condition and that but very little additional equipment was needed, with the exception of some hose, he was recommending the immediate purchase of 1,000 feet of hose. The report was adopted and the fire committee instructed to purchase the hose at once.

Alderman Isherwood of the water committee made a report on the extension of mains on south Walter street. He said the water committee had taken the matter up with the Water Supply company and that they informed the committee that work on the extension would commence as soon as pipes they had ordered arrived.

He also made a protest against the continued violation of the speed limit ordinance, with regard to driving over the Coal Avenue viaduct faster than a walk, saying that one-third of the coal and other wagons went over the bridge at a trot. Alderman Heaven protested that his coal wagons never went over a trot, but agreed that the ordinance was being violated. Alderman Isherwood favored the repealing of the ordinance and the matter was referred to the street committee for a report as to whether the ordinance should be repealed or enforced.

An ordinance providing plans and specifications for fire escapes, for the guidance of the building inspector was passed and referred to the fire committee. The ordinance specifies that the fire escape shall be of iron with wide stairs and necessary platforms, and that they shall serve two or more windows.

SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS BY ALDERMAN HARRISON

Alderman Harrison asked City Attorney Hickey for an opinion as to whether the Water Supply company had the right to place meters in both sides of a double house, owned by one man, or in each of two connected houses owned by one man, to which the city attorney replied that after consulting the committee he was of the opinion that the Water Supply company had the right to place a meter in the house of each connected house, irrespective of whom the property owner was.

"Then I am, I understand," asked Alderman Harrison, "that according

An are light was asked for and granted for the corner of Fourth street and Silver avenue in front of St. John's Episcopal church.

The bills of election judges and clerks and members of the board of registration in the recent city election were presented, approved and ordered paid.

Property owners on the west side petitioned for the enforcement of the ordinance regulating houses of ill fame; the petition being referred to the police committee without discussion.

R. McCanna of the Fair association, and Secretary Rosenwald, asked the council for a fund for lighting the streets next fall during the fair, and also for the privilege of using the streets for parades, private parties, etc. The latter being granted at last night's meeting, but the appropriation for lights being referred to the finance committee for consideration.

A representative of the local Elks lodge was before the council and asked that the city furnish the marching sticks which will attend the meeting of the grand lodge at Denver in July, with a band as a means of advertising the city of Albuquerque. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

Alderman Harrison asked if the council would make an appropriation for weekly concerts in Robinson park, by the First Regiment band. Alderman Heaven moved that the matter be referred to the finance committee. No action was taken on the matter.

CONSIDER PLANS FOR CITY HALL BUILDING

At the conclusion of the regular session of the city council last evening the council went into a committee of the whole to consider plans for the erection of the new city hall building. Building Inspector Whitcomb, Chief of Police McMillen, Fire Chief Bartleson, Mayor McKee and five aldermen gathered around the plans submitted by Alderman Heaven and the building committee and discussed the matter for a solid hour.

Building Inspector Whitcomb submitted plans drawn by a contractor who was present, but who took no part in the discussion, by which the contractor agreed to erect a city hall building for $250,000, including 200,000 for all city officials and the paid department, including in the latter the chief of police, the fire department and two in the women's department, the fire department, according to the plans, to be housed in a separate building to cost less than $10,000.

By a vote of three to two, Alderman Harrison and Leonard, having drawn before the building plan came up for discussion, the proposition to erect two buildings was carried. Alderman Heaven and Leonard voting against the motion, they desiring but one building.

The council, after a little further discussion, instructed the building committee to advertise in The Evening Citizen for competitive plans for the erection of the new buildings. It is thought probable that by July 1 actual work on the structures can be commenced.

PROSPECTOR FINDS NEW RUBBER PLANT

BENJAMIN F. SPENCER OF DENVER MAKES LUCKY DISCOVERY IN NEW MEXICO.

(Tuesday, May 2.)

Benjamin F. Spencer, of Denver, Colo., a prospector well known throughout New Mexico, is a visitor in Las Vegas. Mr. Spencer is in that city for a few days attending to business matters relative to the introduction of a product which he claims an excellent substitute for rubber, and which he confidently believes will revolutionize the rubber industry, says the Optic.

On September 23, 1902, while he was riding around Graham, N. M., he accidentally overturned his lunch basket, containing a supply of drinking water. That part of the territory being extremely arid the prospectus now deprived of what water he had brought with him and becoming thirsty he began searching for what is known as the Oregon grape fruit. The Oregon grape fruit has a purple leaf and a red blossom, and when chewed makes a thick, but could not find any of the three plants. However, he came across a root resembling the grapefruit, being yellow with a cottony fuzz on top. Spencer chewed it when he found it tasteless and therefore non-poisonous. After a short time he found that he had a spongy ball in his mouth, which, when he chewed it, he found it to be a rubbery substance. For three days he chewed this plant until he had accumulated a ball so large as a hen egg. Denver chemists whom he had analyzed the sample tested it and pronounced it suitable for rubber goods. Extensive experiments with the plant took place the day after the discovery that it was a good substitute for rubber.

Mr. Spencer at once set about forming a company to develop his find, but in the meantime a Denver capitalist, who had heard of the prospecting discovery of the plant had patented the product as a new article of commerce. Thereupon the prospector entered into a contract with the Western Patent Cane Rubber company of Santa Fe, N. M., and a patent for the product was requested from Washington. The contract of patent for the same article led to litigation and after a fight in the courts lasting over three years, the rightful owner won the suit.

If the product really proves a substitute for rubber, there is no limit to the value of the plant. It can be obtained and treated for one-fourth of the price of para rubber. Bicycle tires can be made from it, and it withstands vulcanization. Now that Mr. Spencer has won his fight, a factory will be established in New Mexico and others will be allowed to operate under a royalty system.

Mr. Mahoney, who is a wholesale and retail hardware and furniture dealer, will, as soon as the brick are made, erect a two-story, granite building on the site now occupied by his store, which location he has occupied continuously for twenty years.

DIES NEAR TRACK AT CHAPPELLE, N. M.

J. C. Jones, the harness maker of Bridge street, Las Vegas, was the man found dead along the Santa Fe track near Chapelle, fifteen miles south of this city Saturday afternoon, says the Las Vegas Optic.

The unfortunate man was demented and it is the supposition that he had started on his way to California, where he had announced for some weeks that he was going, when death overtook him.

Raymond Caseliano, section foreman of the Santa Fe, found him lying dead some distance clear of the track, four miles north of Chapelle, early Saturday afternoon. There was no mark nor bruise upon his body, and it is very unlikely that he was killed by a train. The remains were removed to Chappelle and an inquest was held by the local justice of the peace, but the verdict has not been learned. His remains were buried at that place, as he had no money, and no one took sufficient interest in him to have him brought back to this city.

He had been drinking quite heavily in this city Friday and was seen here late that night. The supposition is that he started to walk to California in his intoxicated condition, and becoming exhausted, laid down beside the track and expired from natural causes.

KNOWS THAT WHEELS WORK BACKWARD.

John Robert Wolberg Toner was brought to the insane asylum from Prescott, where the Phoenix Gazette writes he is insane and knows it. For many months he has felt the affliction coming on him. Day after day, step by step, he has watched with wild terror the gradual eclipse of his intellect. Toner is a Dane and came to this country about a quarter of a century ago, and remained until 1906, when he went to California. While residing there he noticed that his mind was failing, and he has gradually come to an almost hopeless condition. He knows that he is crazy but can't help himself. Toner is not quarrelsome and strange to say, does not appear to have any special inclinations. It is only a thing that he has more rational enough to realize the progress of the disease upon his mind.

MINERS' HOSPITAL MAY BE OPENED.

Plans are now being contemplated for the opening of the miners' hospital, which has an wing laid aside for lack of funds. The building is a handsome and convenient structure for the purpose, and the site is ideal. While the appropriations were made for the building, not enough funds were included for the installing of the necessary furniture and fixtures and fixing up the grounds. Now, however, additional funds are forthcoming, and it is the desire of our citizens to actually open the hospital for use. It is believed desirable to place the institution in the hands of some organization that would take the responsibility of its care and administration. It has been suggested that arrangements be made to have the hospital of miners or some like organization undertake the care of the hospital and the work in connection, and steps will be taken immediately by the hospital board to this end. It is hoped that the hospital will be opened under competent management, and our business men will aid in every possible way to place the establishment on a sound basis.

CAN ENTER PRIVATE HOMES

Assessors and Deputies Can Do So in Order to Ascertain Value of Property.

OPINION FROM ATTORNEY ABBOTT

Assistant Attorney General E. C. Abbott of Santa Fe has rendered an opinion in the question of the right and power of the county assessors and their deputies to enter private dwellings and business places for the purpose of ascertaining the value and extent of personal property subject to taxation under the laws of the territory. The assistant attorney general holds that such power and right exist and that assessors and their deputies may enter private dwellings and business houses at will in order to ascertain what duty.

The New Mexico, published as the capital, in its comments on the opinion, disagrees with Mr. Abbott and believes the subject to be of sufficient importance to be taken into court. The opinion of the assistant attorney general in this matter is based, in the opinion of that paper, too much upon generalities. It was understood that this matter of ascertaining valuations of personal property would not be enforced, but later that paper learned that the intention of the authorities was to go ahead with it. If this is done, it should be the case in every county in the territory; for should not be made of one and flesh of the other.

The opinion reads:

Santa Fe, May 4, 1905.

The Honorable H. J. Hagerman, Governor of New Mexico.

Sir:—In compliance with your request, I have examined the territorial laws to determine whether or not the county assessor has the right personally to examine the private property of the citizens of the county and enter the houses in order to examine the personal property while making an assessment as required by law.

Sec. 4018 of the Compiled laws of 1897, provides that "All property in this territory, not exempt by law, shall be subject to taxation."

Sec. 4022 of the compiled laws of 1897, provides that "The assessor is required, between the first day in March and the first day in May, of each year, to ascertain the names of all taxable inhabitants, and all property in his county subject to taxation. To this end he shall visit each precinct in the county, and exact from each person a statement in writing, or list, showing separately:

The above sections is amended by section 2 of the session laws of 1899, chapter 32, by adding thereto the following words: "And such assessor shall file with the lists of each precinct his affidavit, stating the time when he visited such precinct, how long he visited there attending to his official duties, together with a list of the persons assessed and of each such assessment was made from the original lists and personal knowledge, and not taken from any previous list."

Sec. 22 of chapter 22 of the laws of 1899, prescribes a penalty of removal from office for the failure of any officer referred to in above act who shall fail or omit to perform any of the official duties as prescribed.

It is the duty of the assessor and his deputies to ascertain all property in his county subject to taxation, and next to make an affidavit to be filed with the tax lists of each precinct, that such assessment was made from the original lists and personal knowledge and not taken from any previous list. The original lists referred to being the tax lists made by the tax payers as required by section 4022 of the compiled laws of 1897 and section 4022, compiled laws of 1897. It is therefore the duty of the assessor to verify the original lists made by the taxpayers so that he can make the affidavit as above required in section 2, chapter 22 of session laws of 1899. If he has not the personal knowledge, it becomes his duty to examine the personal property wherever it may be situated.

The authorities hold that the return of the assessor by the law in compliance with statute is not conclusive upon the assessing officers, but only evidence for their information. It is their duty to every case to discover and list all the property for which the tax payer is liable for taxation, and to exercise their own judgment in fixing its value, using every means of information available to them for the purpose. English and American Encyclopedia of Law, Volume 27, page 670 and authorities there cited.

It is therefore my opinion that the assessor, under the territorial laws, has the right to personally examine the private property of the citizens of the county, wherever the same may be located, for the purpose of taxation.

Very respectfully,

E. C. ABBOTT.

Assistant Attorney General.

Another Provision of Revenue Law.

In connection with the above the following section of the revenue law of interest in the matter.

Sec. 4039, chapter 22 of Laws of 1899.

In case any live stock or other personal property be brought into the territory after the last day of March of any year, and before the first Monday in June of such year, it shall be subject to taxation in this territory for such year and shall be assessed by the same manner as other property.

TRAMPS SUSPECTED OF ROBBERY AT SANTA ROSA.

E. P. Dozier's drug store at Santa Rosa, was burglarized and about $100 worth of goods stolen, consisting of knives, razors, eyeglasses, combs, etc., and a general miscellany of small goods, suitable for hoboing one's way through the country, says the Sun. Several hoboos were arrested but no goods were found on them. The goods evidently went out of town with a gang, who took a night freight west. All the hoboos in town have been lined up and suspicious ones landed in jail. Mr. Dozier offers $25 reward for the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties.

Colonel W. S. Howells, of the Albuquerque Eastern Railway company, was a passenger for Santa Fe this morning. The colonel says that General Forester of Pennsylvania, will be in the territory within a few weeks or even less time, and that the general is coming for no other purpose but to prepare for the completion of the Albuquerque Eastern.

Mr. G. F. Artore has gone to California for a short visit.

SANTA FE ROAD WILL SINK DEEP WELL.

The Estancia News is reliably informed that an attempt by artesian water is to be made at Willard as soon as the machinery can be gotten on the ground. Chief Engineer Ker, during the course of his remarks while at Willard last week, said that the Santa Fe company had set aside $25,000 for the purpose of sinking a deep well at that point, in the hope of obtaining artesian water. Machinery will be brought in and set to work at once. He further explained that the water would be used to irrigate the lands being sold to El Paso, the grade being sufficient that gravity is all that is necessary to carry it. At El Paso it will be raised into an elevated tank by pumping, when gravity will again carry the water on through pipes to El Paso or Yucatan.

This is a great undertaking, but when the Santa Fe undertakes anything it is not done by halves. It is the general opinion that artesian water will be struck at a reasonable depth, but if not, there is no doubt that plenty of water can be had. The well will be watched with interest throughout the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Trotter left on the limited yesterday for California. They will visit San Francisco first, and then Los Angeles. Mr. Trotter expects to return in about ten days or two weeks, but Mrs. Trotter will remain at Los Angeles for sometime.
