(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexico) Guayaquil, Ecuador, Sept. 18.—President Estrada is seriously ill.

TAFT SOUNDS CAMPAIGN NOTE

Challenges His Old-Time Political Enemy William Jennings Bryan

ANTI-TRUST LAW IS GOOD

Opposed to Any Amendment That Would Imperil Victories Gained Thus Far.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexico) Detroit, Mich., Sept. 18.—President Taft, at a luncheon with the board of commerce here today, made the first of what may be termed the political speeches of his six weeks tour of the country. He took up the "trusts" and clearly outlined his views concerning them. He defended with vigor the decisions of the United States supreme court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco Trust cases and there was a distinct campaign note in Mr. Taft's challenge to his ancient political enemy, William Jennings Bryan, to point out what particular contract or restraint of trade he would condemn which would not be condemned within the definition of the statute as laid down by Mr. Chief Justice White.

Mr. Taft added rather significantly that persons who do not understand the decisions and really do not understand the law, have had a great deal to say about them. It was not fair to the court, he declared to say that it had read the word "reasonable" into the anti-trust statute.

"I am entirely opposed to an amendment of the anti-trust law," said the President. "It is now a valuable government asset and instrument. Tested and brought into beneficial use by twenty years of litigation and construction by the highest court, why should we imperil its usefulness by experiments?"

Cheers for Taft.
A crowd of several hundred persons gathered in the rain at the station and there was a cheer as the president's automobile whisked by.

Taft Was Once Newspaperman.
At the breakfast, where the president was entertained by Milton A. McRae, and fifty more newspaper editors and proprietors, he spoke briefly of his former connection with newspaper work in Cincinnati.

"I am starting on a long trip, gentlemen," said Mr. Taft, "and I ask your prayers both for my mental and physical well being. This trip, I may say, was not entered into malice aforethought. Some times when I contemplate it, I hold my breath. But, being in, I am going through with it."

Senator Smith Joins Party.
Senator William Alden Smith joined the president's party today and will make most of the trip through Michigan.

Grange Boycotts Taft.
Following breakfast, the president was taken by special trolley to Pontiac, where he was scheduled to make a brief address before returning to the state fair grounds to assist in opening the annual exhibition there. Two of the smaller granges of the state boycotted the fair this year because of the invitation extended to the president, basing their action on the president's reciprocity campaign.

Socialistic Agitation.
The outcry for amendments following the supreme court's decision, the President said, had resulted in proposals prepared without a real understanding of the law and he added that while the agitation might serve the purpose of promoting "unreasonable and unreasonable discontent, it certainly ought not to be considered seriously."

Mr. Taft referred to the fact that immediately after the trust decisions were handed down by the supreme court, Senator La Follette spread on the public records a quotation from one of the President's messages as being at variance with the "rule of reason" laid down by the court.

Downpour of Rain.
Mr. Taft reached Detroit early today after an all night's ride from Erie, Pa. He left his train in a downpour, but while breakfasting at the Detroit club, the clouds began to give way and there was a promise of sunshine for the outdoor events on the program.

THREE MEN BURIED IN MORNING STAR SHAFT.

Another Cave-in at Leadville Destroys Hope of Rescuing the Miners Who Are Alive.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexico) Leadville, Colo., Sept. 18.—Hope of recovering the three miners entombed in the Morning Star shaft was dashed today when another cave-in occurred. This will delay the rescue work for twenty-four hours. The prisoners are still in communication with the surface through 300 feet of 3-inch pipe, with nothing excepting blocks. They are in good spirits, despite the cold of which they have complained since the crumbling of the rotten timbers, last Saturday night. They talked frequently with their wives today. Mrs. Casli, wife of one of them, sent down the following note: "Dear Fred—Cheer up and be happy. We are on top, baby and I, doing everything to get you out. Don't be discouraged!" Today's cave-in occurred 40 feet below the original one.

Entombed Miners Safe.
Leadville, Colo., Sept. 18.—At noon the prospects were that the entombed miners would be rescued this afternoon according to the statement of State Mine Inspector Curley following an inspection of the shaft and the progress of the rescue work. Curley stated that a wall plate had become lodged at the second level, 225 feet from the surface, blocking the shaft and catching all the debris from the cave-in and from the 125 feet to where the men are entombed in a drift, the shaft is clear. The debris is being removed rapidly and as soon as the wall plate is reached, the cable will be attached and will be pulled up the shaft.

The delegation to Las Vegas will be instructed for Nathan Jaffa for governor.

Lund, asking the nominating committee to only choose delegates to the county convention who are favorable and who would give support to measures looking to and providing for the suppression of all traffic in intoxicating liquors into Chaves county was unanimously rejected.

WIFE WAS AT HIS SIDE

Was One of Leaders of Progressives in Kansas and Opposed to Ballinger.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexico) Dodge City, Kans., Sept. 18.—Edmond H. Madison, representative from the Seventh Kansas District in Congress, died at the breakfast table at his home here today.

Congressman Madison had not been in good health for a year, being a sufferer from stomach trouble, but at no time had his condition been alarming.

His Biography.

Edmond H. Madison (Republican, of Dodge City, Kans., Sept. 18, 1865; was educated in the common schools of Illinois, and at the age of 18 years began teaching school; in 1885 moved to Wichita, Kans., and began study of law in the office of G. W. C. Jones, and was admitted to practice in 1888; in the same year was elected county attorney of Ford county, Kans., and served two terms; was appointed judge of the thirty-first judicial district of Kansas, January 1, 1900, which position he held until September 17, 1906, when he resigned to become a candidate for Congress; was married December 12, 1906, to Miss Lou Vance, of Oklahoma City; was elected to the Sixtieth Congress, and re-elected to the Sixty-first Congress, receiving 26,315 votes, to 21,469 for Samuel I. Hale, Democrat, 1,419 for J. N. Brown, Socialist, and 893 for Harry R. Ross, Prohibitionist.

Wife Clashed Arms About Him.
Mr. Madison was attacked while eating with his wife. His wife hastened to aid him, but he died almost instantly her arms clasped about him. He did not utter a word after the first attack. A physician reached the house in a few minutes but death had preceded him. The cause was given as heart disease.

During the recent session of Congress he had taken an active part in the reciprocity debates. He was a member of the labor committee. A guard of thirty men camped last night on the ranch of Ramon Vela, a few miles above Mission. Raids are reported in the Hidalgo neighborhood. AVIATOR TAKES SERIOUS TUMBLE

C. P. Rodgers Crashes Into Tree and Has Narrow Escape From Death

HIS MACHINE BADLY BROKEN

Was Competing With James J. Ward For Transcontinental Prize.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexico) Middletown, N. Y., Sept. 18.—In attempting to resume his flight to the Pacific coast this morning, C. P. Rodgers crashed into a tree and fell with his aeroplane 35 feet to the ground. The air man received several scalp wounds, not serious, however, but his machine was wrecked so badly that he probably will be unable to fly until tomorrow. Rodgers stuck to his seat during the plunge, but was thrown out when the machine hit the ground and caught under one of the wings, just escaping being crushed to death by the heavy engine.

At first it was thought he was badly hurt, but after a physician dressed his wounds he went back to the scene of the accident and worked with his helpers ascertaining the amount of the damage. After the first inspection he said that if the engine could be repaired the other broken parts could be supplied from duplicates in his special train. Rodgers landed here at 6:10 o'clock yesterday evening, after making his first day's flight from Spearhead bay, about 80 miles, in one hour and fifty-three minutes. If all went well today he had hoped by Tuesday to pass his competitor, Jas. J. Ward, who is delayed at Oswego, N. Y., by an accident last Saturday.

Rodgers Returns to New York.
Middletown, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Realizing the helplessness of his machine, Rodgers said he would return to New York tonight, and make another start in a new aeroplane.

Will Have New Machine.
Middletown, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Later, Rodgers received telegrams which led him to say that he hoped to be able to resume his journey from here on Wednesday with practically a new machine.

Ward Flying Again.
Oswego, N. Y., Sept. 18.—With his new engine working splendidly, James J. Ward, the young coast to coast flyer, made a successful get-away from here at 10:42 today. Ward expects to reach Brantford, Canada, tonight.

Files Over Elmira.

Corning, Sept. 18.—Ward arrived here at 11:51 this morning, landing in a field north of this city. First he climbed over the business section of the town, flying high. He remained for luncheon.

Will Stay at Corning.
Corning, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Ward will not resume his flight until tomorrow.

GENERAL CARYL PRYCE FIGHTING FOR LIFE.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexico) Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 18.—Defeated in several preliminary moves, based on technicalities that were swept aside as soon as interposed, "General" Caryl Pryce, the British ex-insurrecto leader of Lower California, began a legal struggle with Mexico before United States Commissioner Van Dyke today to avoid being extradited to the Southern Republic for trial on charges of murder, robbery and arson.

The first witness for Mexico was Antonio Orfila, an interpreter for the court of the first instance of Lower California, who translated the complaints against Pryce. They charged that Pryce as leader of the rebel army, murdered former Vice Governor Larroque of Lower California, who was defeated in battle, robbed citizens of Mexico and burned several houses at Tia Juana. Pryce declared that if he is extradited he will be killed by Mexican rurales.

WHO WANTS TO GO TO LAS VEGAS.

If sixteen persons from Santa Fe club together to go to Las Vegas for the Republican convention, leaving here on the evening of September 27, they can secure a special Pullman car, which will serve as their home during the convention. Meals may be secured at the Castaneda, in front of which the car will be staid. It may be gotten at any other restaurant. Those desiring to take advantage of such an arrangement, must hand in their names to the New Mexican within the next few days. The car's to be decorated with streamers and will be incidentally quite an advertising stunt for Santa Fe.

GAMBLING ABOVE CHICAGO SALOON

Eight Thousand Participants In Pool For Betting on Baseball

THE NEW MEXICO MOUNTAINS

Peaks 13,000 Feet and More High Easily Climbed and Little Known.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—The investigation of gambling in Chicago and the connection of the police with it has disclosed a new variety of baseball fan—a young man who is not a rooter for any special club or league and is not interested in the results of the game. All he wants to know is how many runs will be made by the team he has drawn from a "blind" pool. The gas was found by a newspaper reporter in operation above a saloon in the stock yards' district. In one week there were eight thousand participants in the pool, each putting in fifty cents. The ticket having the name of the team-combination which makes the most runs in the week is the winner of the first prize; the second largest prize goes to the team making the smallest number. The purchaser of a ticket has no choice of the team that carries his money. That is decided by lot. There are twenty-two other prizes than the first two. Each ticket has six clubs, one for each week day, selected from the National and American Leagues. With sixteen teams and six days the number of combinations is limitless. Rain, postponements and double headers are part of the uncertainty. They are not taken into consideration in making the ticket. The promoters take ten per cent of the pool for their services. The highest amount won was $560. Most of the patrons are comparatively young men, and they flock to the room each afternoon to watch the "score" to see how their chances are running, not to see which club wins the game.

Grand Opera Getting Voices.

Ambitious students at the Chicago music schools are finding out now whether their voices are of grand opera calibre. Director N. B. Emanuel working every day to select a chorus for the Chicago Grand Opera company which opens its second season November 22. Director Emanuel is trying to surpass his record of last year of getting the prettiest grand opera chorus. He is optimistic. He says that the girls who are studying at the Chicago schools, representing nearly every state in the Union, are "all pretty and many of them have excellent voices." He smiles mysteriously when asked if he has discovered "a find" in the person of a young girl from the country, whose appearance at her first tryout caused a little titter among her more fashionably dressed sisters. "Isn't she pretty," he replied evasively. "You know I have an eye for pretty girls." Emanuel is doing the preliminary work pending the arrival in November of Andreas Dippel. The first opera will be "Samson and Delilah," followed by several German works, including "Die Walkure," "Lohengrin," and "Tristan and Isolde." Among the new operas will be Victor Herbert's "Nedoma," the two new operas of Wolf Ferrari, "The Secret of Suzanne," and "The Jewels of Madonna," and the spectacular French opera, "Quo Vadis."

Factory Inspections.

An evidence of the new attitude of employers to employees is the reception given by some of the largest employers in Illinois of the new campaign of State Factory Inspector Edgar T. Davies for cleanliness as a scientific safeguard against occupational diseases. The employers are co-operating willingly for both humanitarian reasons and from motives of self-interest, the experiences of several in the last few years showing that increased working efficiency is secured by clean and comfortable and attractive working conditions. "Government statistics," says Mr. Davies, "show that almost as many men are infected with occupational diseases as with tuberculosis. The death rate among workmen in Illinois has increased 300 per cent since this safety movement has got under way, within the last ten years. It will decrease still more. The movement has only started." Mr. Davies has issued orders to a number of large employers requiring them to provide lavatories, with hot and cold water, clean towels, soap, nail brushes, shower baths, dressing rooms with individual lockers, and further that the sweeping and cleaning of factories shall be done outside the regular working hours. Three Chicago corporations have expended, or are expending, nearly half a million dollars to provide more comfortable working conditions. They are the stockyards company, $250,000; the Pullman company, $165,000 and the Illinois Central railroad, $70,000.

Alpine Climbing.

Those residents of Chicago who have a taste for Alpine climbing have found another way to gratify that taste without crossing the ocean, in the new territory that is being opened up in the Canadian Rockies by the Grand Trunk Pacific railway. They have the added pleasure of exploring practically unknown mountain fastnesses that are within a week's travel

THE YEARS OF YOUTH.

I sit and watch the weary, weeping
weather,
The clustering raindrops thicken on
the pane;

I hear the waters and the wind complain
O for the years when we were young

The low gray clouds that shroud the lonely height,
Weigh on my heart that once had found them light,
O for the years when we were young
together.

Time, the implacable, has us in his tether,
And Memory's self turns traitor—when I seek
Her hoard of golden lore she will not speak—
Though still may fall a tide of haycyn
together.

O for the years when we were young
together,
With sun to glid such treasures as remain,
What Time has taken he cannot give again—
O for the years when we were young
together.

which he tried to hobble, died of his injuries at the Roswell hospital.

Grath and Miss Guadalupe Griego,

Another smallpox case has been reported at Lordsburg, Grant county.
This time it is a Texan, named Latham, who was taken down with the disease and is now at the tent detention hospital.

High School Reception.
Twenty-five hundred people attended a reception given at the Roswell High school to the teachers by the Roswell Mothers' Club of forty women who are proving of much assistance to the public school in that city.

Wants $25,000 Damages.
Mrs. Teofilo R. de Rivera has brought suit at El Paso against the Santa Fe railroad for $25,000 damages, suing on behalf of herself and five minor children. Her husband was killed on the railroad in New Mexico.

Water Shortage at Raton.
Raton is suffering from a water shortage and no relief is in sight.
Therefore Mayor J. J. Shuler has issued a proclamation that all irrigation and sprinkling must cease and that the use of water for domestic and sanitary purposes be economized.

Gambled for an Office.
The flip of a coin at Dexter, Chaves county, decided whether A. Durand of Dexter or J. E. Cody of Lake Arthur should make the race for the nomination of county commissioner on the Democratic ticket. Durand won and now his only opponent is M. Wilcox.

Blamed it on Drink.
The only excuse that Thomas G.
West of Louisville, Kentucky, could give for shooting Miss Hallie Weatherby, a 19-year-old school teacher, was that he had won $100 at a horse race and that he filled up on whiskey in celebration. As he passed Miss Weatherby in his auto, he jumped out of his automobile and took a shot at her. She recovered but he is now paying her $10,000 damages.

PRESIDENT TAFT ON TRUST EVIL

Defends Use of the Word
"Reasonable" by Supreme Court in Decision

PRESENT STATUTE IS AMPLE

No Distinction Can Be Made Between Good and Bad Trusts
by the Law.

(By Special Licensed Wire to New Mexican)
Detroit, Michigan, September 18.
Address of President Taft at Detroit, Michigan, on Trusts.

My Fellow Citizens:
I propose to take up the question which has occupied the attention of the American people for now twenty years, that of industrial combinations known as "Trusts." During the last year we have had two great decisions by the supreme court of the United States. They are epoch making, and the public has yet to realize the effect those decisions are certain to have. It is not that the construction which the court has put upon the act is different from that which most members of the profession, and most subordinate courts, and, indeed, the supreme court itself, had before indicated as the proper construction of the statute; but is that it is now, finally settled, by two fully considered decisions in respect to two of the largest and the most powerful of these combinations, what their illegality consists of, and how to be treated, in view of the finding that they are illegal and do violate the provisions of the so-called anti-trust or Sherman act.

Persons who do not understand the law have a great deal to say, which is intended to lead the public to the belief that in some way or other the supreme court has emasculated the statute and prevented its operation against objectionable and injurious trade combinations and conspiracies.
Nothing is further from the truth.
When the statute was passed in 1890, the expressions used in it to define its objects and what it was proposed therein to denounce as unlawful were not new but they were sufficiently broad and indefinite to require judicial construction to settle their meaning. Congress was dealing with a subject matter in respect to which it may be assumed that the legislators themselves were not clear as to the exact limitations of the meaning of the words in the statute they were passing. They knew there was an evil which they hoped to restrain by enactment of the law and they relied upon courts in their construction of the law to hedge about its operation such restrictions as would prevent the statute from being so wide in its application as to involve absurdity and the impracticable. The early decisions under the law cannot be said to have been fortunate. The decision in what is known as the sugar trust case—the Knight case—was really a retrograde step and one which seemed to limit much the operation of the statute. It encouraged the organization of combinations which the same court has since found to violate the statute. The case could not be effectively presented to the court because the record had not been properly made up and the questions arising were treated in the opinion in such a way as to give the impression that the operation of the law would be most restricted, because of limits of federal jurisdiction. Indeed, some law officers of the government did not hesitate to say that under this decision there was little hope of reaching the evil aimed at through the action.

It has required twenty years of litigation to make the statute clear. But now it is clear.
I shall not attempt to give it a close,
lower-like interpretation but I think it is not departing from the declaration of the court to say that they find any contract in restraint of trade, made for the purpose of excluding competition, controlling prices or of maintaining a monopoly, in part or in whole is contrary to the statute and is subject to objection and indictment under this statute in the Federal courts, where it affects interstate trade.

Now, I would like to ask Mr. Bryan or any of the other publicists and jurists who have been denouncing this opening as the surrender of the rights of the people and a usurpation of judicial power to tell the public what particular contract or restraint of interstate trade he would condemn which could not be condemned within this definition of the court. The difficulty with the literal construction of the statute is that it would denounce a great many minor or incidental restraints of trade which made the statute ridiculous and weakened its effect and lent support to criticisms and contemptuous treatment of the statute by those who were opposed to its passage and enforcement.

For instance, take the instance cited by a federal circuit judge in which he said that under the literal construction of the statute which must be enforced, if there were two persons, doing a wagon-express business across

CASCARETS CLEANSE LIVER AND BOWELS

No Biliouness, Headache, Sick, Sour Stomach, Indigestion, Coated Tongue or Constipation.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undig-ested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give you a thorough cleaning inside and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your drug gist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleaning, too.

MISS GERTRUDE JONES AND CLARENCE BOWLDS WED

They Were Married at 4:30 p. m. Yesterday at Bride's Home—Now on Wedding Tour.

With only their relatives and a few intimate friends let into the secret, Miss Ella Gertrude Jones and Clarence L. Bowlds were married at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the bride's home, 118 Guadalupe street.

The ring ceremony of the Presbyterian church was used by the pastor,
B. Z. McCullough, who officiated. Only a few of the near relatives witnessed the ceremony. Mrs. M. H. Roseberry a sister of the bride, and Mr. Fleming J. Bowlds of Raton, a brother of the groom, attended the couple. After the ceremony a sumptuous supper was served by Mrs. Jones.

The young couple left on the evening train for points in Kentucky and Missouri, where they will spend about three weeks visiting with relatives.
After that they will return and make their home in Santa Fe.

Miss Jones is one of Santa Fe's
most popular girls and was bookkeeper at Nathan Salmon's well known store. Mr. Bowlds is cashier of the Capital City Bank and is very popular in the younger set of the city. He has been prominent in athletics and was the organizer this year of the Santa Fe Tennis Club.

NEW MEXICO POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

He Certainly Would.
Bursum would make a good governor, and one who would reflect honor upon his party and his state.—Pecos Valley News.

Andrews the Choice.
If New Mexico people were to speak today individually, no other candidate could approach the plurality of Mr. Andrews as a candidate for senator.—Rio Grande Republican.

Patton Withdraws.
Harry L. Patton of Clovis has withdrawn as a candidate for the district judgeship on the Democratic ticket, leaving the field to John T. McClure of Roswell and George L. Reese of Portales.

The Liberal Votes for Bursum.
The Santa Fe New Mexican, the Silver City Enterprise, the Socorro Chieftain, and a number of other papers have endorsed H. O. Bursum for the nomination as governor. Call the roll. The LIBERAL votes "aye."—Western Liberal.

Senator Mills.
From different places in New Mexico one hears the name of Governor Mills mentioned in connection with a senatorship from the New State. A number of clubs and organizations have recommended him and his friends claim there seems little doubt but that he will be one of New Mexico's first senators in Washington.

H. O. Bursum for Governor.
Hon. H. O. Bursum appears to be the logical candidate for governor at the coming state election. Although several others are being mentioned for the governorship none of them are considered very seriously by the press of New Mexico.—The Spanish American.

Viljoen Deserts.
B. J. Viljoen, a Boer immigrant, who has been a disturbing factor in Dona Ana county and in Mexico, as he was in his home country and has been parading with E. C. Wade, Jr., as "The Progressive Republican party of Dona Ana county, has followed E. C. Wade, Jr., into the Democratic camp, whereat a sigh of relief goes up from the Republicans in southern New Mexico.

Victory for Organization.
The Republican organization won a victory in the Republican primaries in San Juan county on Saturday, when it defeated the insurgents by a vote of 205 to 26, electing 54 of the 60 delegates to the county convention pledged to Alexander Read for district attorney for San Juan, Rio Arriba and Santa Fe counties. This assures the domination of former Postmaster Fay as leader of the Republicans in San Juan county. A. M. Edwards who opposed Alexander Read for district attorney, lost his own precinct by 20 votes.

Bursum on First Ballot.
It now appears that H. O. Bursum will have more than the 164 votes conceded him last week on the first ballot in the state convention at Las Vegas. M. A. Otero's strength will be confined to Rio Arriba and Luna counties and a few scattering votes of friends. Secundino Romero will have the San Miguel and part of the Mora delegation. Nathan Jaffa is certain of Chaves county. Colfax county is hesitating and is said to be grooming a dark horse. All the other delegations will be practically for Bursum.

First County Ticket in the Field.
The Socialists of Torrance county, have put in the field the first county ticket and this example will be followed in every county in eastern New Mexico. It is expected that they will draw some three to four thousand votes from the Democrats and in case that the Democrats make some of the bad nominations that their machine is planning, may even elect some of their nominees. The ticket nominated by the Socialists at Estancia on Saturday is as follows: County commissioners, W. S. Kirk, Estancia, J. W. Hembrick, Willard; sheriff, John Chastian, Willard; assessor, R. E. Chapman, Mountainair; treasurer, S. W. Moore, Estancia; county clerk, J. A. Chapman, Willard; probate judge, John Berkshire, Estancia; superintendent of schools, J. S. Preston, Estancia; representative, T. S. Smith, McIntosh.

Not for the Poor Man.
It takes money to run for the nomination on the Democratic ticket in New Mexico and it is not to be wondered that there is no wild scramble for the various jobs before the primaries in Eddy county. Here are the assessments imposed upon the various candidates:

For treasurer and collector...$150.00
For sheriff...150.00
For probate clerk...150.00
For assessor...150.00
For Sup. Pub. Instruction...60.00
For probate judge...25.00
For commissioners...25.00
For surveyor...20.00

In addition to this milking there are nine newspapers in the county to be announced in and the regular round of campaign expenses, so that the general estimate of $1,000 as the total expense for each candidate is probably very reasonable. A poor man stands no show under such conditions and the Democrats in the face of it should drop that old fashioned talk about their being the party of the people, the common people. The man who can afford a thousand dollars to be a candidate before the Democratic primaries is a plutocrat, not one of the commonalty.—Pecos Valley News.

Eddy County Politics.
Carlsbad, N. M., Sept. 15.—Eddy county politics are still boiling. New Democratic candidates loom up while other candidates withdraw. A. R. O'Quinn has no opposition for county clerk and recorder and there is no likelihood of opposition. W. J. Russell has withdrawn, leaving the field clear for W. H. Merchant for Treasurer. M. C. Stewart is likely to have the field to himself for sheriff. There are two candidates for assessor, J. D. McBride of the Dayton Echo and J. W. Price. There are many candidates for county commissioner. In the first district: W. H. Woodwell, T. E. Jones and E. P. Brial; second district, J. H. Graham, will have at least one opponent. In the third district: L. G. Ryan and C. W. Beeman. The legislative ticket as far as announced: Dr. F. F. Doepf, of Carlsbad and M. P. Skeen of Artesia, for senator; and Hugh M. Gage of Hope, and Florence Love of the plains, representatives. The primaries are a month off and it is probable that more candidates will come forward before the canvass closes, October 14.

A Plain Man of the People.
Hon. H. O. Bursum is the logical candidate of the Republican party for the first governor of New Mexico. Public sentiment in favor of his candidacy is fast crystallizing all over the territory among the rank and file of the party, and here in Silver City and Grant county where he is perhaps better known than any other county in New Mexico unless it be Socorro, the sentiment appears unanimous in his favor. And no wonder. Ask any of the old timers in this section if they know "Burse" and they will answer with a glow in their eyes, "sure I know him. A great big hearted, honest, brainy fellow with a kind word for everybody, and sympathetic and tender as a child." And that is Holm O. Bursum. Just a plain man of the people, as honest as the day is long, true and loyal to his friends and his party, and above all, true to himself and to the plain people from whom he has risen. He would never betray his trust to those same people no matter what the temptation might be, and no one who knows Mr. Bursum well can doubt that fact for a moment.

CANADA DECIDES ON THURSDAY

Reciprocity With U. S. the Issue in Hotly Contested Election

CAMPAIGN DRAWS TO CLOSE

Conservatives Must Gain Twenty Two Seats to Thwart Pact With Uncle Sam.

(By Special Telegrams to New Mexican.)
The general elections of Canada, which will be held next Thursday, September 21, are expected to be decisive on Canada's attitude toward reciprocity between that country and the United States, and on the continuance in power of the Liberal party under the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The American Congress has already ratified the reciprocity agreement, and after a protracted deadlock in the Canadian Parliament the question of Canada's ratification was at last referred to the judgment of the people.

The elections occur simultaneously in all of the ten provinces which make up the Dominion of Canada. As originally constituted the Dominion was composed of Upper Canada, including the extensive English sections of Ontario, Lower Canada, including the extensive French sections of Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Later the British North American act of 1867 admitted British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, the northwest territories and Newfoundland, all of which are now a part of the Dominion of Canada, except Newfoundland, which did not take advantage of admission. More recently the western provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and the new Yukon territory have been added.

The elections are for the popular branch of the Dominion government, the House of Commons, consisting of 221 members, elected by ballot for five years. The strength of the two parties, Liberal and Conservative, at the time of the recent dissolution, was as follows:

Province.	Lib.	Conserv't
Ontario	35	51
Quebec	53	12
Nova Scotia	12	6
New Brunswick	11	2
Prince Edward Island	3	1
Manitoba	2	8
Saskatchewan	9	1
Alberta	4	3
British Columbia	2	5
Yukon Territory	1	—
	132	89

This gives the present Laurier government a normal majority of 43 out of a total membership of 221. To defeat the government the Conservative opposition must make a gain of 22 seats, while to carry on the government and organize the House they must make gains of at least 25.

Issues and Leaders.
Sir Wilfrid Laurier, now 70 years of age, has been Premier of the Dominion for over 15 years, since June, 1896, when his party, the Liberals, defeated the Conservatives under Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., known to Canadian politics as "the old war horse of Cumberland" from the name of his first constituency. In his native province of Nova Scotia. Sir Wilfrid is a French-Canadian, and his own province, Quebec, with its overwhelming French population has always given him strong support.

Sir Wilfrid has toured five of the nine Canadian provinces during the campaign, and everywhere he has maintained that the reciprocity agreement was a purely business transaction, and that the loyalty of Canada was not to be trafficked for any trade advantages.

The Conservative opposition has been under the leadership of Robert Laird Borden, of Halifax, who first challenged the reciprocity pact before the Canadian Parliament and afterwards carried the contest before the people. The grounds for this opposition are two-fold. On the one hand the Conservatives are high protectionists and they contend that the present agreement is but an entering wedge, while on the other hand they contend that trade under such a pact would create a community of interest between the United States and Canada which could not but weaken the British connection, and would eventually bring about the annexation of Canada to the United States.

During the campaign on the stump and in the newspapers, the utterances of President Taft that "Canada is at the parting of the ways" and that the tie binding Canada to the Empire was so slight as to be almost imperceptible, have been used to prove that the United States has ulterior designs on her Canadian neighbor, while the annexationist sentiments attributed to some American public men and newspapers have aroused the cry that reciprocity is the forerunner of annexation.

Ontario Province.
Ontario, the great industrial and agricultural province of Canada, has the largest population and the greatest number of seats at issue, 86 in all, as against 65 seats for Quebec, the next largest province. Ontario has been strongly Conservative for many years. The province was peopled in the early days by the United Empire Loyalists who fled from the thirteen colonies when the American revolution proved successful, and sought British territory to settle upon anew. To these people the annexation cry possesses a strong appeal, and the Opposition has had its emissaries hard at work in the United Empire Loyalist districts.

The brunt of the defence of the reciprocity measure had fallen upon George P. Graham, the minister of railways, who on the stump and through his newspaper has been making a vigorous campaign. Hon. Mackenzie King, the minister of labor, has also been active on behalf of the measure. William Patterson, one of the authors of the pact, is an old man, and he has been kept busy in his own constituency, while Sir Alan Aylesworth, who resigned a few days after dissolution as minister of justice, is precluded by deafness from taking as active a part as he would have liked in the campaign. High Guthrie, who seems slated as Aylesworth's successor, and A. G. Mackay, the Liberal leader in the provincial field, have also been among the most active supporters of reciprocity before the people of Ontario.

On the Opposition side, the economic and sentimental arguments against the measure have been set forth strongly by George Eulas Foster, the finance minister in the last Conservative administration, and other leading candidates of the opposition. Sir James Whitney, premier of Ontario, Frank Cochrane, minister of mines of that province, and W. J. Hanna, provincial secretary, have also taken a part in trying to defeat the pact and the government.

While the reciprocity pact is the main point of attack there are several charges of scandalous conduct in administration, and a number of local questions which have aroused heated controversy.

Province of Quebec.
The French-Canadian provinces of Quebec is considered the pivotal point in this contest, as it was prior to the time Sir Wilfrid Laurier came to power. In 1896 the Conservatives carried only 16 of the 65 seats. In 1900 they had only seven, while in 1904 and 1908 they carried eleven seats.

Since 1908 the political complexion has changed in the French province. In 1910 the government adopted the navy bill, by which it was decided to establish a Canadian navy, to be under the control of the Canadian government in times of peace, and to be of part of the British navy in time of war. The regular Conservative opposition under R. L. Borden proposed as an amendment a large cash contribution, to be used by the British admiralty to build dreadnoughts. The French Conservatives, led by F. D. Monk, of Montreal, objected to both proposals. They were backed by the group known as Nationalists, in the province of Quebec.

This Nationalist group, headed by Henri Bourassa and Armand Lavergne, former supporters of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the Canadian parliament, has consistently opposed any policy which would bring Canada into the foreign wars of the British Empire. Up to that time, though both men were members of the Quebec Legislature, they had kept out of the federal arena and had not attacked Laurier. With the raising of the naval issue, however, they began a series of public meetings and caused the signing of thousands of petitions protesting against the naval program.

Bourassa, who is a grandson of the late Louis Joseph Papineau, leader of the Canadian rebellion of 1837, is a man gifted with great oratorical powers and sways the masses by the vehemence of his appeals. He is especially effective in speaking French for he appeals to the people of that race to show themselves the equals of their English-speaking fellow-citizens in all things, and kindles their pride as no man, not even Sir Wilfrid Laurier, has ever done.

In this campaign Bourassa and Monk are working together. Monk is opposed to the reciprocity pact on economic ground; Bourassa says reciprocity is a minor issue, and was adopted by the government only to throw dust in the eyes of the electors.

and make them forget the naval program. Bourassa is not himself a candidate, but he has addressed meetings in most of the constituencies in the Montreal district. He has especially tried to visit the places where Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke in his first tour of Quebec province, to destroy the effect of his former leader's appeals.

The Nationalist combination has candidates, with Conservative support in many of the constituencies of the Montreal district, and in the other divisions the straight Conservatives have their own candidates, most of them being English-speaking.

The reciprocity cause is being upheld in the province of Quebec by Rodolphe Lemieux, minister of marine and fisheries, one of the most eloquent of Canadian platform speakers, and Hon. Sydney Fisher, minister of agriculture, who is especially active among the farmers. Dr. S. H. Beland, who has lately become postmaster general and the solicitor general, Hon. Jacques Bureau, are the other leaders among the government candidates.

MADE FLYING TRIP TO LABAJADA HILL.

Road in Splendid Condition—Santa Fe County Highways in Much Better Shape Than Formerly.

A party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Cartwright, sons Edward and George and daughter Miriam, Colonel and Mrs. E. C. Abbott, Mrs. W. H. Bartlett, H. B. Cartwright and Douglas Walker, went in two automobiles to La Bajada Hill yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock and had an outdoor afternoon supper there. Mr. Cartwright in discussing the road said: "The road between here and La Bajada Hill is in an excellent condition and were it traveled a little more, it would be one of the finest highways in the west."

"Not long ago, we made a trip down to Albuquerque and then to the Estancia valley, and there was not one place in the whole trip where we had to stop on account of bad roads. But one thing is certain, and that is that the roads in Santa Fe county are much better kept than those of either Bernalillo or Torrance county."

OFFICIAL PAPER OF SANTA FE COUNTY.

The New Mexican is the oldest newspaper in New Mexico. It is sent to every postoffice in the Territory, and has a large and growing circulation among the intelligent and progressive people of the Southwest.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR.

It is natural that the Republican party has some of the most capable men of New Mexico in office, either territorial or county; it follows consequently that some of its most acceptable candidates at the first state election will be present office holders.

But for governor of the new state, around whose nomination all other nominations center, it is meet that a man who is not a present office holder in the territory or in any county, be named. For sixty years, New Mexico has protested against having placed over it an executive who was named in Washington and not by the people of the commonwealth. Some exceedingly able and popular men have been appointed, but somehow the people resented it, because that executive himself, besides being chosen by an outsider, also influenced, to a greater or less extent, the selection and election of all the other territorial and county officers. Therefore, as the first mark of independence, the Republican party will nominate for the governor, a man who is neither a territorial nor county officer, a man who draws no salary provided by the taxpayers, a man taken direct from the fields of every day activity, a man who is a taxpayer and not a tax eater, and yet, a man who is turning gray in the service of his party, whose experience in office and in public affairs has been direct, intimate and efficient.

Go to the silent, vast ranges upon which graze the countless flocks of sheep, the numberless herds of cattle; sit by the glowing watch-fires at night around which are grouped the men of the plains, and listen to what they have to say. "We want for the first governor of the state a man who knows our conditions, our needs, one who has watched with us during the lonely night hours; who has been with us in the shearing pens, and camped with us when the snows were falling or the storms were raging, one who has been in the thick of the business, has experienced directly its vicissitudes. Is it a wonder that their eyes glister, that they warm with enthusiasm, when the name of Holm O. Bursum is mentioned to them? Holm O. Bursum is one of them; not a stock grower who sits in his eastern office clipping coupons, but a stock grower who has and is sharing the hardships of the magnificent but at times cruel range with them.

Go to the mining camps! Walk with the prospector, as with his burro and his grub-stake he threads his lonely way through canons and over rocky ridges. Descend the shafts and follow the drifts out of which the gold, the silver, the copper are taken; go into the coal camps, thread the intricate workings, where water drips, where the gloom abides, where danger lurks at every turn. There you will hear: "Give us a man who is a miner, who understands that mining is not merely picking up gold nuggets from the roadway; give us as the first chief executive of the state a man who can explain to capital that the hills and gulches of New Mexico are rich with mineral wealth. Give us a man like Holm O. Bursum, who in the Mogolons, who at Carthage, who in other mining camps has gone down the shafts with us; who has put his money into our mines; who has faith in the mineral wealth of the new state; who brings to his office an intimate and not merely a chance acquaintance of mining conditions in New Mexico." Naturally, their minds turn to Holm O. Bursum, who is one of them.

Go to the lodge halls of the railroads, or walk along the miles of gleaming track over what seem boundless deserts; speak to the sectionmen, to the brakemen, to the conductors and to the engineers. Give us a railroad for governor! Not merely a man who owns railroads and rides over them in a private car, but a man who has toiled as we have done, who has walked the track and who has helped to build. And here again, the men turn instinctively to Holm O. Bursum, who used pick and shovel on the right of way; who helped to build the first railroads in the commonwealth; who is possessed of an understanding born of direct experience of the railroad's desires and wants.

Then go into the counting rooms of large and small business; into the banks and mercantile establishments. There they desire a safe and sound businessman for the executive chair. And business has explicit confidence in Holm O. Bursum. He is and has been always, first of all, a businessman. His word is as good as his bond. The New Mexican violates no confidence when it tells that when Holm O. Bursum had been crowded into a corner by a political enemy who temporarily was in power; when weak-kneed friends were deserting him like rats leave a sinking ship; when he himself was bereft of all financial means and felt that he must begin life anew; when he frankly told his condition to a bank president, that bank, the most conservative in the Southwest, advanced him, and upon his signature alone, funds that ran into the thousands of dollars.

It was a mark of confidence that in itself was magnificent, and that was not misplaced, although it was only recently that the last cent was paid. Holm O. Bursum is above all the business man's candidate.

But follow again into the offices of against Holm O. Bursum? Analyze them, discuss them, measure them by the facts in the case, separate from them envy and resentment, and misunderstanding and hatred, and what remains of them? Nothing. They are like the zephyrs of a quiet evening seeking to sweep away the Sangre de Christo range.

Holm O. Bursum is a man of the people; he may not be the beloved dandy of the drawing room of silk stocking reformers; but he is a man who towers in character, in moral strength, in capacity, in capability, in statesmanship far above his detractors. He is the man of the hour; he is the man whom the Republican party will call from the range, from the mines, from the business office, from his home, to shape the destinies of the new state for the next five years. The Republican party, the state, the people, are to be congratulated upon having such a man, such a leader, at this hour of fate.

Theodore Roosevelt had men of the Bursum type in mind, when he wrote: "We are a vigorous, masterful people, and the man who is to do good work in our country must not only be a good man, but, also, emphatically a man. We must have the qualities of courage, of hardihood, of power to hold one's own in the hurly-burly of actual life. We must have manliness, courage, strength, resolution, joined to decency and morality, or we shall make but poor work of it."

Holm O. Bursum has been through the mills of life; he has been through the fire and in the crucible, and he has emerged a man's man; an answer to the cry: "God Give us men!" "Men who their duties know, "But know their rights, and, knowing, dare maintain."

THE BALANCE WHEEL.

"What is Fame?" one might well ask upon seeing ex-Governor William T. Thornton's name as "C. H." Thornton, on the title page of a new Democratic organ, called "The Balance Wheel," issued at Albuquerque and evidently intended to supply what the Democratic party of New Mexico so apparently lacks and so sadly needs, a balance wheel. Ex-Governor Thornton, the last Democratic governor that the Democracy had, appears as one of the contributing editors, and so does T. J. Mahary, who in his home town, Clovis, spells his name "Mahary." The editor-in-chief is Hugh J. Collins, and Hon. Charles A. Spiess, when it declares editorially:

"When it was suggested that the provisions of the Flood resolution would improve the constitution of New Mexico the president, with clenched fist said: 'I don't believe it. I am opposed to any change after people of New Mexico have approved their constitution by eighteen thousand majority. I believe it is an unnecessary humiliation to require them to vote again.'"

The "Balance Wheel" is well printed and serves at least this good purpose, of giving definiteness to Democratic doctrine in New Mexico. Before this, when a Democrat was quoted, he would indignantly deny that he said this or that, or that the Democratic party believes such a thing. But now, with an official organ, putting on black and white what is and what is not Democratic doctrine, it will be much easier for the Republican party to meet the issues raised.

Both of the Las Cruces English papers have come out strongly for H. O. Bursum for governor. Says the Rio Grande Republican on Saturday, in its editorial page: "It seems that H. O. Bursum is practically certain of the nomination for governor on the first ballot in the convention. He is a man whose hands are clean, a man deserving the honor and the reward of the governorship because of his work for the party and the people. As state chairman he has administered the affairs of the party in a manner that is worthy of commendation. As a citizen and a Republican he has worked to the interests of our new state and has asked no reward. He expressed himself as being willing to stand aside if the party desired to honor Luna or some other older member, thereby showing his generosity and modesty."

A subject of much interest in New Mexico, where there is conflict between the Reclamation Service and private enterprise, over the tying up of the waters of the Rio Grande and its tributaries has been assigned to F. G. Tracy of Carlsbad at the public lands convention at Denver on October 3. It is "Private Irrigation Enterprise Compared With Government Regulation." There is no doubt that the facts and figures that will be presented by Mr. Tracy will not only be interesting but also accurate and authoritative and that they will give rise to discussion that will be echoed as far east as the national capital.

The Democratic Estancia Daily News remarked: "One great trouble with this country is that so many of our promising young men who ought to be purchasing substantial overalls at 69 cents are going down to the tailor's and ordering two piece blue serge suits at $25." This is true blue Democratic free trade doctrine. As long as the British importers and the Democratic leaders such as Hinky Dink, Finny Connors, Bathhouse John and the ward heelers of Tammany can wear broadcloth, why let the yokels who do the voting, be satisfied with 69 cent overalls.

Democratic ideas in eastern New Mexico seem to be of the wild-haired variety. R. E. Brown advertises in a paper that the report that he owns stock in a bank is a vile slander and is being circulated to hurt his candidacy for a nomination on the Democratic ticket. In a region, where it is a crime to be a stockholder in a bank, there is not much hope for political regeneration.

SUNMOUNT.

Carefully and unostentatiously, Sunmount Sanatorium, on the outskirts of the city, has been doing an important work for humanity and for Santa Fe. This city, which advertises itself as a health resort, especially for those ill with tuberculosis, has but meager facilities for the scientific out of door treatment of consumption, except for this splendid institution and tent city which should receive all the encouragement and support possible from every person in this part of New Mexico. Besides affording a home and treatment for the health-seeker, at prices less than those demanded elsewhere in sanatoria, it has been gathering data for the treatment in this altitude and climate of the dread disease, that are invaluable for all time to come and that dispel some of the current notions that are repeated even in medical circles.

This is apparent from a triennial report just from the press of the New Mexican Printing Company and which forms a neatly illustrated pamphlet, that incidentally advertises Santa Fe and its peerless climate. It discloses the remarkable result of hundred per cent of cures of cases in the first or incipient stage, treated for three or more months at Sunmount. In the second stage, the cures recorded are 53.8 per cent, cases in which the progress of the disease was arrested 38.4 per cent, and improvement but not cured or arrested in 7.6 per cent of the cases. Not a single death occurred in these two classes. Naturally, of patients received in the third or last stage, results are not favorable, although to a physician it will seem nothing short of a miracle to read that even in that stage, 11.5 per cent were cured, 25 per cent had the progress of the disease arrested and 40.3 per cent showed improvement.

It has been confirmed at Sunmount that altitude decreases tendency toward hemorrhage, this being contrary to the popular belief, that hemorrhages increase in high altitudes. Says the report:

"Our low percentage of hemorrhage cases is due to our high altitude. The records of other sanatoria in high altitudes corroborate our statement that contrary to common opinion, hemorrhage is a much less frequent complication in a high altitude than in a low one. It is not uncommon for a patient having continuous hemorrhages on the trip west, to have them cease on reaching an altitude without a later recurrence. Our observations have led us to conclude that the blood pressure is increased in tubercular patients in this altitude. The average for first stage cases was 133mm, second stages 123mm, third stage cases 114 mm.

"It is gratifying to know that by modern climatic and institutional treatment, tuberculosis, which only a few years ago was considered incurable, can be pronounced apparently cured in over four-fifths of incipient cases, over one-half of second stage cases and over one-tenth of third stage cases. It is to be regretted that more early stage cases do not avail themselves of sanatorium and climatic treatment when the disease can be easily overcome instead of waiting until it is a question of a protracted convalescence if an arrest or cure can be secured at all.

"Many aids in the treatment of tuberculosis have come and gone, but climate and altitude have held their place in the successful treatment of tuberculosis since the days of the ancients. The results of climatic treatment are tangible. The patient having unsuccessfully striven under skilled treatment in an unfavorable climate to regain his health and regaining it under similar treatment in a favorable climate, knows as well as the physician that climate is the determining factor in his recovery. The value of climate can be readily understood when one realizes that in any locality patients do better in some seasons than in others. The favorable climates are those in which good weather predominates. Our climate is a pleasant, bracing one all the year around having cool summers and moderate winters and a large amount of sunshine at all seasons. An all around climate presents the advantage that a patient who is improving does not have to leave on account of extremes of weather at any season with a possible set back. The

His Grace, the Most Rev. J. B. Pitaval, archbishop of the archdiocese of Santa Fe, arrived in New York Saturday and preached there yesterday. He will spend several weeks in New York preaching in the cathedral and the various large churches. Then he will come to his home here, probably by the end of October.
Norman L. King, captain Company F, First Regiment, New Mexico National Guard, has returned from Camp Perry and the East where he visited friends. Captain King was in charge of the rifle team which New Mexico sent to the national rifle shoot at Camp Perry and which beat eight state coming only a few points behind New York.

August B. Browne, head of the firm of Britton & Gray of Washington, D. C., is the guest today of Judge John R. McPhee. Mr. Browne is on his way to the coast and was in Santa Fe 22 years ago. He notes the decided changes and improvements and was especially impressed with the New Mexico Museum and Archaeological School. Mr. Browne was an enthusiastic friend of New Mexico in the fight for statehood and helped materially in bringing about the desirable result.

of their own firesides. Some of those who sought relief from a summer in the city have returned from the Yellow Head Pass country enthusiastic over its beauties. The Grand Trunk is steadily pushing its rails from Edmonton westward through the foot hills to the Yellow Head Pass, while the western end is being just as steadily pushed eastward towards the pass. By next year the rails will have reached the newly discovered mecca for mountain lovers, and the trip to it will not be so long. It is likely that many more will take advantage of the opportunity to explore the new territory before it becomes too popular and while there remains the novelty of being "pioneers." One man is especially enthusiastic over the country around Lake Maligne, which is reached from Henry House about 225 west of Edmonton. "Lake Maligne," he says, "is a beautiful mountain lake about 18 miles long and the most picturesque of any I have seen in either Canada or the United States. Some of the mountains around it are nearly 12,000 feet high and are covered with great ice fields and glaciers that add greatly to their beauty." New Mexico too reached by the Santa Fe has mountain peaks near Santa Fe 13,000 feet high and easily climbed.

"Nailing the Sham"
DON'T take our word for it, don't take the Royal Tailors' word for it. Make the test yourself. It is very simple. We invite it.
When we say that every "Royal" fabric is absolutely all pure wool, we mean pure wool in the most exacting and literal sense; we mean total freedom from sleazy, adulteration, cotton or wool substitutes. The Royal Tailors stand alone as the one tailoring house that not only specifically guarantees each fabric to be wool--and wool alone--but invites the acid test on every fabric we show. This will prove to you incontrovertibly that the woolen you buy is all pure wool. The Royal Tailors are preeminently in a class by themselves. We claim to be a "Master" in the art of measuring, as we have taken lessons in the Royal Shop at first hands.
Needless to say "Satisfaction Guaranteed."

100 PER CENT HAVE BEEN CURED

Report of Sunmount Sanatorium Shows Value of Climatic Treatment

PATIENTS SHOULD COME EARLY

Tuberculosis in the First Stages Readily Yields to Dry Bracing Air.

That all or one hundred per cent of patients suffering with tuberculosis of the first stage and remaining here three months or more are reported discharged as cured, is the interesting statement of the report of Sunmount Sanatorium which has recently been issued.

This statement speaks volumes for the benefits of this climate which is being recognized more and more in the medical world as presenting ideal conditions for the treatment of lung and throat troubles.

Says the report "It is gratifying to know that by modern climatic and institutional treatment, tuberculosis, which only a few years ago was considered incurable, can be pronounced apparently cured in over four-fifths of incipient cases and over one-half of second stage cases and over one-tenth of third stage cases. It is to be regretted that more early stage cases do not avail themselves of sanatorium and climatic treatment, when the disease can be easily overcome instead of waiting until it is a question of a protracted convalescence if an arrest or cure can be procured at all."

High Altitude.
The report shows that this myth about high altitude being dangerous for tuberculosis patients needs exploding for it says: "Our low percentage of hemorrhage (3.9) is due to our high altitude. The records of other sanatoria in high altitudes corroborate our statement as contrary to common opinion, hemorrhage is a much less frequent complication in a high altitude than in a low one. It is not uncommon for a patient having continuous hemorrhages on the trip west to have them cease on reaching an altitude without a later recurrence."

Climate Is Fate.
While "climate is fate," in many cases it is most assuredly so in the treatment of tuberculosis. The report says "Many fads in the treatment of tuberculosis have come and gone, but climate and altitude have held their place in the successful treatment of tuberculosis since the days of the ancients. The results of climatic treatment are tangible. . . . The value of climate can be readily understood when one realizes that in any locality patients do better in some seasons than in others."

Reaction Set In.
The "foreword" of the report calls attention to the fact that this institution like many other sanatoria has received patients from the east suffering with the second or third stages of tuberculosis because of the "anti-climate" theory. This theory that one can thrive as well in one climate as another is being exploded and patients in the first stages are being sent to the Southwest. . . . Santa Fe's climate is described as "a pleasant, bracing one ALL THE YEAR around having cool summers, moderate winters and a large amount of sunshine in all seasons."

It is hoped by Santa Feans that this little booklet will be the means of bringing from the East many incipient cases of tuberculosis to this fortunately situated city and resulting in a permanent cure in every case.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right one, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon."—MRS. SALLY MULLEN, 2728 N. B. St., Elwood, Ind.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periods pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration. If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS.

He is too big mentally and physically to do little petty things whether for party advantage or through personal favoritism, and New Mexico people will have a man in the gubernatorial chair to whom they can point with pride and say, "he is our governor" and mean it in every sense of the word.—Silver City Enterprise.

Democratic Primaries.

The Democratic Central Committee met on Saturday afternoon at the court house, Chairman Arthur Seligman, presiding. Adolph P. Hill was secretary. There was a fairly good attendance. The date for the primaries was set for Saturday, September 30, at 4 p. m., in the rural precincts, and 7:30 in the evening in the city precincts. The convention will be held on Monday, October 2, at 10 a. m. The committee recommended that two sets of delegates be named, one for the state convention and the other for the district convention, unless the same set of delegates should be decided upon for both purposes. The basis of representation will be one delegate for each 25 or fraction over 15 of the 1908 election.

Water Not to Blame.

Fie, Don Kedzie!

There are ructions in school circles at Duncan. It is charged that the school teacher, Clarence Wiggs has been kissing some of the pretty school girls. Wiggs indignantly denies it. He ought to be hung if he did not. The girl denies it. Mrs. Wiggs says she does not believe it. Some ugly, old, grey headed brutes, who could not get near enough to a pretty girl to touch her, let alone kiss her, swear it is all true. Sour grapes. Pretty school girls are made to kiss, and if they are lucky enough to have a young, good looking school teacher he is a brute if he does not do the kissing nature intended he should.—Western Liberal.

a state line and they united in a partnership, the union in the partnership would be a restraint of interstate trade in violation of the statute. Such a result is a reduction, an absurdum, and no one who is in favor of making the statute effective for the purposes for which it was passed and had any intelligent appreciation of what the statute was intended to accomplish and which it meant, would contend for such a construction. It is true that in one of the decisions of the supreme court there was a statement made that the term "reasonable" could not be introduced into the statute because congress had not put it there, but the very same court, and the very same judge, when a case arose presenting a restraint of trade that must be condemned as unlawful if a literal meaning were to be given to the statute, said in so many words that it must be reasonably construed and that it must not be held to include contracts that were merely incidental restraints of trade and were not made for that purpose. In one of these cases a man owned some steamboats that did an interstate business on the Ohio river. He wished to sell out. He did sell out and in the sale of the steamboats he wished to sell the good will of the line he had been running. Accordingly, he stipulated that he would not himself engage in that business between those same points for a certain number of years. This was interstate business and his contract was in restraint of trade, but the supreme court held that it was a mere incidental restraint, incidental to the sale of the good will, and so was not within the statute. This would have been the same, in common law, where from time immemorial such a restraint as this has been held to be reasonable, because limited to the necessity of preserving the good will which the vendor was selling and which but for such an agreement would be worth nothing. In other words, the supreme court in this case gave a reasonable construction to the statute and eliminated from its operation those harmless, useful, incidental restraints growing out of lawful contracts which are made for an entirely different purpose from that of controlling prices or maintaining a monopoly but suppressing competition and which have always been recognized as properly enforceable by courts of both law and equity.

I repeat again, that in spite of all the denunciations that we have heard of the difficulties of the supreme court in the Standard Oil and the Tobacco cases, there is not one who has criticized them that can formulate a contract in restraint of trade that ought to come within the statute that does not come within it under the decision of the supreme court. It is said that the supreme court has read something into the statute that was not there before; that it has inserted the word "reasonable" before restraints of trade when the same court has said that this could not be properly done, because congress had evidently not intended to include such a limiting word in the statute. This is not fair to the court. It is true that the court, in the early days of the construction of the statute had said that it could not limit the statute in effect by excluding from its operation what was deemed reasonable at common law. But as other cases arose it found it necessary to make exceptions to the literal operation of the words "restraint of trade" and it did so by excepting what was minor or incidental, or indirect and including only those cases where the chief object of the contract or combination was the restraint. In so doing the court said that it must give the statute a reasonable construction and not one leading to absurd or ridiculous results.

In the last two cases the court did not change the substance of the reasoning and scope of the previous decisions, but only treated the exceptions previously treated "incidental and indirect." As excluded from the operation from the statute light of reason, i. e. in conformity to the evil sought to be reached. Now in what way has this injured the public well? What combination or arrangements can escape this interpretation that any sensible man would wish to have condemned? Did the court not condemn the Standard Oil Company, the father of all trusts, in the history of which every form of criminality was practiced? Did it not, on the other hand, condemn the tobacco trust, of much later origin and framed under the advice of cunning counsel for the very purposes of evading the condemnation of the statute and at the same time securing and enjoying the monopoly, the framers of the statute intended to prevent, to punish?

Now I desire to call attention to a very broad distinction that many persons have failed to perceive within the reasonable construction of the statute which the supreme court has insisted upon and the introduction of the word "reasonable" in the statute so as to lead to a result by which combinations for the purpose of restraining trade with a view to controlling prices and maintaining a monopoly could be held to be reasonable and thus lawful. Until the decision of the supreme court in these last two cases there was a clearly defined hope in the minds of many business men who had reached the conclusion that it was impossible to conduct business on a free competitive basis, and that it was necessary to secure monopolized control of prices and competition in order to make business reasonably profitable, that in some way or other the statute could be construed as to apply only to reasonable monopolies and unreasonable exclusion of competition and control of prices. In my message of January 7, 1910, on the interstate commerce trust laws and federal incorporation, I used this language:

"Many people conducting great businesses have cherished a hope and a belief that in some way or other a line may be withdrawn between 'Good Trusts' and 'Bad Trusts' and it is possible by amendment to the anti-trust law to make a distinction under which good combinations may be permitted to organize, suppress competition, control prices and do it all legally, if only they do not abuse the power by taking too great profit out of the business. They point with force to certain notorious trusts as having grown into power through criminal methods by use of illegal rebates and plain cheating, and various acts of business dishonesty or morality, and urge the establishment of some legal lines of separation by which 'Criminal Trusts' of this kind can be punished, and they, on the other hand, be permitted under the law to carry on the business. Now the public and especially the business public ought to rid themselves of the idea that such a distinction is practicable or can be introduced in the statute. Certainly under the present anti-trust law no such distinction exists. It has been proposed, however, that the word 'reasonable' should be made a part of the statute, and then that it should be left to the court to say what is a reasonable suppression of competition or monopoly. I venture to think that this is to put into the hands of the trusts power which will make it impossible to condemn at judgment. It is to thrust you to burden the courts that have no precedent.

Again, for those who have given up free competition as an economic force, that ought to be encouraged or enforced, and who are utterly opposed to the spirit of the anti-trust law, we have frequently heard the question: 'Well, suppose you convict combinations, under the statute law, what can you do?' The court has got the issue and the queries presented by the doubters and scoffers. It has vindicated the majesty of the law, has illustrated the wonderful elasticity and adaptability and remedy by injunction in equity, and has at the same time manifested a due regard for the welfare of the innocent business man and the people at large, who in cataclysm caused by the confiscation of such capital as is involved in these combinations and a suspension of the legitimate part of their business, would be buried with them in a common ruin.

The courts have exhibited courage in facing the necessary results in enforcing the statute, that instead of prompting attack on them ought to make every American proud.

The decision of the supreme court is in the highest interest of the public and I am glad to think that business men who have been violating the trust law are now being made to see the necessity of putting their houses in order, changing their original organizations, giving up the idea that it is necessary to control markets in order to make profits, and reverting to the old principle of free competition, in which all limit upon it to prevent its being excessive must be self-imposed by the good sense of the competitor and not by any arrangement or contract between competitors or secret stipulation or wink or nod.

The decision of the supreme court as it grows to be understood in the near future will be a signal for the voluntary breaking up of all combinations in restraint of trade within the inhibition of the statute, and will, I hope, lead to complete revolution of feeling on the part of the business men of this country and to a clear understanding by them of the limitations that must be imposed by them upon any business combinations made by them in the future. The operation of the statute has illustrated the slowness of judicial pressure, and of this I have often made complaint, but in the settlement of issues of this importance two decades are no great length of time, and if in that period we shall have stamped out the evil which would certainly have carried us to socialism as a reaction from the vicious control of the few, the time spent, the effort and the litigation are worth the cost.

LIMOUSINE AND LIMITED

By M. J. PHILLIPS

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

Jimmie Bennett knew something would happen if he took out the limousine on so beautiful an early summer day. But there was nothing else for it. James Bennett, Sr., had the touring car and the chauffeur; the runabout was out of the question; and the electric had a broken spring.

There was shopping to do—his mother and sister both said so, tragically. Out came the limousine and with Jimmie, feeling like a taxicab driver, at the wheel, they sped off downtown bright and early in the morning.

Jimmie was looting on the cushions opposite a famous hat shop which is near the Union station. He amused himself by watching the route of motors and people up and down the busy street.

He also kept a patronizing eye on the suburban trains that shuttled back and forth behind the iron fence. And he nodded commendation when the Cosmopolitan limited breezed majestically into the great station.

The Cosmopolitan, with ponderous exhausts, was on its way again when a whirlwind of dainty skirts projected itself across the stone threshold of the station and headed for Jimmie.

He straightened to attention when a pretty, pleading face was upturned to him.

"I must catch that train," said the girl, hurriedly. "My aunt's on it, with my ticket. I stepped off to get a book at the station. Doesn't it stop again? I'll pay you double—"

"Jump in here, beside me," commanded Jimmie.

His mother and sister were forgotten as the car hitched around in the crowded thoroughfare and began to hum up Division street. Jimmie remembered that the big train always stopped at a junction quite across the city. There was no time to explain to his passenger that he was not running a taxi, even if he wanted to do so. Such an explanation was far from his desires. For the passenger was the most charming girl he had seen in many a day.

She was bareheaded and the air ruffled her bright, crinkly hair as it streamed past. The book she had left the train to buy was clasped in both hands. Excitement and rapid motion had whipped a wildrose tint into her cheeks. Jimmie could not decide from her hurried glances whether her eyes were blue or gray; but he knew they were large and eloquently expressive.

She leaned towards him. "There's another station, isn't there? Will we reach it in time?"

"I don't know," returned Jimmie, "whether we can make it or not."

He pressed down his foot hard, for there was an open space in the street there. A motorcycle policeman, chugging toward them slowly, raised a warning hand. Jimmie smiled, and pressed down again. The officer circled smartly and started in pursuit.

The limousine did nobly. It attained a speed of which Jimmie did not believe it capable. He kept the horn going constantly.

Horse-drawn vehicles turned into side streets, while other motors made way, hastily. Pedestrians crossing the street stopped the walk with surprising agility.

It was the horn which nearly caused Jimmie's undoing. Another motorcycle officer looked back over his shoulder when he heard it. He saw the lunging car, and behind it the wildly waving white-gloved hand of his pursuing colleague. He stopped, dismounted, and threw his machine across the pavement.

He had chosen his stand well. To the left were the car tracks, and to the right was the curb. The motorcycle, broadside on, seemed to block the path effectually.

Jimmie's foot almost gave over its pressure. Then his eyes gleamed and his jaws snapped.

"Hang on!" he commanded tersely. The girl dropped the book in her lap without question and gripped convenient projections. Jimmie sounded the horn insistently. The policeman refused to budge. He still kept the commanding arm rigidly in the air.

Ten yards from the officer Jimmie averted to the right. The big car rose for a moment on two wheels. Then it hit the curb drunkenly, spurned the walk for a few feet and dropped back into the roadway with a crashing of glass.

The rear hub brushed the motorcycle tire as the car shot past. The second outraged motorcyclist joined the first in pursuit.

There were other incidents, more or less exciting, of that mad dash. Jimmie never slackened speed, for the stooping motorcycle policemen were skimming doggedly along behind.

But the limited, with no obstructions in the way, had gone even faster. As they swooped down toward the junction the train moved slowly away.

The girl gave a despairing little moan. "Oh, we've missed it!" she cried.

"Not yet," encouraged Jimmie. For in a flash of inspiration he felt that there was one more chance. Ahead a few blocks the railroad tracks encroached on the street, occupying the left side of it for some distance. There was no fence or other obstruction between the pavement and the rails. They ran along parallel. And the rear vestibule of the train was open.

Car after car of the limited slid past. At last came the observation car, the rear vestibule still open. He edged over until the running board and the car step were a scant two inches apart. The speed of train and motor were identical.

"Now!" he shouted. She rose composedly, tossed her book into the vestibule, caught the brass handles of the car and stepped across. It was almost absurdly easy, for Jimmie's handling of the car was masterly. In two seconds she was safe aboard.

As the scandalized face of the porter appeared in the rear door of the Pullman Jimmie's passenger smiled on him radiantly.

She screamed above the roar of the train: "We'll be back—in—two—weeks. Watch—for—us!"

Mrs. Cordella Mainwaring raised a formidable lorgnette. "So this is the young man who ran his cab over a policeman and chased people up lamp-posts, is it?" she said, quizzically. "You seem to be an exponent of the modern creed of 'get there, sir.'"

"Yes, ma'am," said the blushing Jimmie.

Mrs. Mainwaring continued her scrutiny. "You said he was handsome, Dorothy. I believe you were right, my dear."

"Auntie!" said the girl, blushing, too.

"What is your name, young man?" asked Mrs. Mainwaring.

"James Bennett."

The dowager lowered her lorgnette in surprise. "Not a son of the great James Bennett?"

"I believe that's what they call him," smiled Jimmie.

"Well!" said Mrs. Mainwaring. "Well! I flirted desperately with him thirty years ago. And your mother was my best friend until you went west. Is she in town?"

"Yes," said the eager Jimmie, "and I'd like to have you go up there. You must be Mrs. Mainwaring. I've heard her speak of you often."

"We are going," returned the dowager, with instant decision. "I intended stopping off merely to thank you, but I must see your people, now I'm here, James. But you surely don't drive a taxi!"

Jimmie shook his head. "It was the limousine. Mother and my sister wanted to come downtown, and the other cars were in use or broken."

"This is your car?" said Mrs. Mainwaring, when they were outside the station. "Dorothy, my dear, sit up there with Mr. Bennett. I like plenty of room."

When, as they sped decorously through the streets, she noticed the way Jimmie leaned toward her niece; how his voice took on a tone confidential, almost caressing, as he spoke to her; how Dorothy glanced up responsively, stealing long looks at the bronzed, wholesome face when he was busy with the car—when she noticed all these things, the dowager nodded her crown of white hair, well pleased.

For Mrs. Mainwaring was an incorrigible matchmaker.

SAYS GIRLS ARE TOO FORWARD

Visiting Literary Frenchman Deplores the Conditions Which He Asserts Exist Today.

That well-known critic and literary man in general, M. Rene Doumic, member of the French academy, has been going assiduously to the Paris theaters of late and is becoming greatly alarmed. His alarm is of the young girl of today. He says:

"She isn't what she used to be; she doesn't mind mamma and papa; she does pretty well what she pleases. 'The type that stands out is that of the modern young girl. One recognizes her immediately on account of the freedom of her ways, her contempt for conventions, the audacity of her remarks, and the lively court that she pays to young men. At a genuinely Parisian play, when we see the most recklessly dressed actress of all make her entrance on the stage with the latest bit of slang on her lips and proceed to scorch the boards, we say to ourselves, without a shadow of hesitation:

"'Ah! Here's the ingenue.'"

"The more we move forward the more the family crumbles. It tends to become a nondescript, a thing for which some day no word will be found in our language. Those who govern us hasten this disintegration with all their power. Therein lies the danger. What will become of the young girl when that which we now call the family has disappeared? What kind of young girl shall we have when every young girl is born an orphan?"

The Game.

"There is no use giving you a check, my dear. My bank account is overdrawn."

"Well, give it to me anyway, George. And say, make it for $500. I want to pull it out of my shopping bag with my handkerchief at the bridge game this afternoon."

Profitable Advertising.

The only advertising that is really profitable—in the true sense of profit—is that which creates a sentiment of identification; advertising which so identifies your store with the goods you sell that when people think of that class of goods they think of your store, and of no other.—Thomas E. Dockrell.

Advertising Talks

DO NOT USE "BIRD SHOT" AD METHODS

By GEORGE S. SANTA.

Too many merchants with a small appropriation for advertising are merely aping the methods of advertisers who spend ten or twenty times as much for the same purpose in the same community. Such a course is illogical and positively wasteful, in the majority of cases. Because the big advertiser uses two or three or more newspapers is no sign that another merchant will only succeed if he uses the same number. Nor is it a sign that he should spend a few dollars for calendars, a few for signs, a few for mailing cards, and finally contribute a few to the "scheme" man whom the big advertiser quietly takes to the door and bids adieu with a push.

The advertiser needs to remember that his whole purpose is to produce an impression upon the mind of the public. To indulge in a figure of speech, this public mind is just like a coat of armor and the advertiser is trying to puncture it with his advertising. You would not take a shotgun and load it with bird shot if you wanted to make an impression on a piece of steel. You would get the hardest bullet you could find and then put your whole ammunition into the charge. Too many advertisers use "bird-shot" methods and, as a result, spatter away all of their money to little avail.

Concentrate your advertising. If you do not have much to spend, cut out everything else and take more space in the best paper in your town. Use large advertisements with attractive illustrations and make every advertisement a live message about your store and your business. Whatever you do, do with force enough to produce an impression. Don't imitate, but be yourself. Take a pride in advertising in your own way. Remember, you have a lot of people to reach and you need to go after them with a logical course of advertising. It does not matter that no one else writes his advertisements the way that you do nor that you insist on having a certain kind of display that no one else has. That is something to be proud of, because you may be sure it will pay you far better than any imitation you might get up on the best known advertising in the country.

THIS AN AGE OF ADVERTISING

Professional Men Becoming More Liberal in Their Views—A Tale From London.

Almost any ordinary modern business would die before it was born if it were forbidden to advertise. Yet there is a so-called "code of ethics" among certain professional classes that forbids all special advertising and practically all advertising at all, except by an ordinary business card in the daily paper. The "regulars" in medicine are particularly sensitive on this point, often both to their detriment and to that of their would-be patients, especially when the patients are strangers. One reason for this, of course, is the flood advertising so often done by quack doctors of various kinds; but the advertising of useless nostrums is hardly a good reason for not advertising things that are genuine, whether medicines, physicians, or what not.

The Missouri Dental association is reported as having taken action lately to permit its members hereafter to advertise without losing professional caste, and the public generally, while having no particular personal interest in the matter, is likely to approve the action. Advertising has become so popular and so nearly universal that most people are not likely to be in sympathy with the idea that the man who advertises, whatever be his business or profession, is on a lower professional plain than the man who does not.

This is eminently an advertising age, and whoever has a really good thing, from a sermon down to a toothpick, need not fear to make it known. A story is told of a man in London reading in an American paper of a particular kind of penholder that he had long wanted. He immediately wrote to the American merchant for several of them, but had to wait for them several weeks, as the merchant had to get a new supply from the manufacturer. When they came, at last, he found that they were made only three doors from his London lodgings. But, as he said, "I did not know that, so I bought them from the man who advertised."

A Successful Orchardist—Cowboy
Detective C. A. Siringo has a fine ranch near Santa Fe and while he has planted only one acre in fruit he has so much of the luscious article that he is feeding it to the chickens. The detective brought some of the peaches and sugar pears to town today and they were as luscious as any tasted here.

Baptism at Presbyterian Church—Yesterday at the morning services in the Presbyterian church, the three months old son, Garland Wortherington of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. P. Clark, was christened by the minister, Rev. B. Z.
McCullough. Mr. and Mrs. Clark are recently from Ballston, Va., and are employed at the government Indian school.

Peaches, two cents per pound. Inquire at Duval Orchard on Weber avenue.

Make Road Map—Wilson W. Mills, in making one of the trips between here and Las Vegas in the governor's automobile, also made a splendid map of the road which was drafted by Henry Shaw of Las Vegas. A copy of the map may be seen in Fischer's window. It is a neat piece of workmanship and would be a valuable guide to the tourist via automobile.

Nathan Salmon was pleased with the results of his great stock reducing sale but he was not satisfied. He still has a bunch of bargains that he will part with and he has decided to run the great stock reducing sale for ten more days. Now then get busy and take your pick of what is left.
Price is no object, everything must go.

Elks' Break Ground—Ground was broken this morning for the new Elks' Home on Lincoln avenue which will be one of the most beautiful mission style buildings in the southwest.

TWO BANK FAILURES
AFFECT STOCK MARKET.

President's Anti-Trust Speech Also Caused Uneasiness and Securities Drop.

(By Special Licensed Wire to New Mexican)
New York, Sept. 18.—Gains made by stock during the advance on Saturday were gradually lost in this morning's trading. Reading was almost the only active stock which by noon had not fallen to the low point of the previous session. The decline was attributed in large part to uneasiness as to the nature of President Taft's speech in Detroit later in the day, which was expected to contain references to corporation.

The failure of a bank in Philadelphia, and one in Cincinnati, had unfavorable sentimental affect. Bonds were irregular.

The bank had a state charter and did mostly a savings business. In a statement given out by officials, they claim that all depositors are fully protected and that there will be no loss.
A big crowd early gathered in front of the bank, but there was no disorder.

Losses Made Up.
New York, Sept. 18.—Trading became almost motionless after prices had rallied about half a point from their low level of the forenoon. An inquiry for stocks developed late in the day and nearly all of the previous losses were made up.

The market closed irregular. When speculative sentiment had overcome the early pessimism, the market made good progress upward and before the close, prices were ruling on a par with last week's figures or above. Room shorts bought to cover as the tendency became definitely upward and the bulls met with little opposition in marking up the list.

Near the end scattered profit taking caused some fractional reactions.

CLOVIS COUNCIL REFUSES TO BANISH RED LIGHT.

Bulgin Closes Sensational Revival
Meetings in Wide-Open Democratic County Seat.

Clovis, N. M., Sept. 18.—One hundred and fifty of the leading church people of Clovis, including fifty ministers' wives and wives of leading business men, led by Evangelist Bulgin, went to the red light district of Clovis and pleaded with the fallen women to change their ways of living and give their hearts to God. None of the stained women seemed to be much touched by the pleading of their visitors. At the last meeting of the city council a petition was presented, signed by 1,800 people to oust the red light district, but by a vote of three to two the petition was laid on the table. Feeling on the question is running high. Evangelist Bulgin in referring to the contest for the Democratic nomination for district judge between John T. McClure of Roswell and George L. Reese of Portales, said: "Through good authority I am informed that Judge Reese has been fighting the saloons for eight years and that he has been a great factor in ridding Portales, his home town, of the deadly liquor. Now you church people find out how the saloons will vote on all the candidates and vote on the other side." The revival meetings closed yesterday.
