LUNA COUNTY IS PROSPEROUS

Shows Gain in Assessment
Roll of $24,793 Over
Last Year

THE CATTLE SANITARY BOARD

Victor Culberson Succeeds W.
H. Jack from Silver City,
Grant County.

Governor Mills has appointed William J. Linwood, of Colfax county; W. C. McDonald of Lincoln county; Charles L. Ballard of Chaves county; Victor Culberson of Grant county; W. W. Cox of Dona Ana county and E. F. Pankey of Santa Fe county, members of the Cattle Sanitary Board of New Mexico.

Notary Public Appointed.
Governor Mills today appointed Frank R. Trimble of Mountainair, Torrance county, a notary public.

Land Entries.
The following are the land entries at Santa Fe land office: Epifanio Ullbarri, Lucia; Martin Lopez, Park View; Luisita Chavez y Mora, Leyba; Basil A. Lobb, Willard; Isaac B. Wyatt, Vaughn; Silvano Rael, Arroyo Hondo.

Back From Carrizozo.
Captain Fred Fornoff of the New Mexico Mounted Police is back from Carrizozo where he attended the hearing given George W. Zink, the Roswell Jeweler charged with killing deer out of season. The case will come up October 23.

Luna County Has Gain.
Luna county shows a gain in its tax roll over last year. The assessment in 1910 was $2,152,673 and in 1911 $2,177,460; a gain of $24,793. Among the items of increase are agricultural lands, $65,630; improvements on the same, $34,405; city or town lots, $6,630; improvements on these lots, $19,494. In the decrease column are grazing lands, $41,276; improvements on these lands, $27,052; mineral lands, $6,260; surface improvements of mines, $3,000; cattle, $18,220.

CUP OF COFFEE DOUBLES IN PRICE.

Both Sugar and Berry Have Advanced Hundred Per Cent in Few Months.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Chicago, Sept. 20.—With the further increase of a quarter of a cent a pound yesterday in sugar, it dawned on Chicago that a cup of coffee now costs twice as much as it did a short time ago.

The Brazilian berry now costs fifteen cents a pound as against seven cents a short time ago. Sugar prices are also doubled, the price to consumers being eight cents a pound. The increased cost of coffee is due to the action of the Brazilian government in placing an arbitrary value upon its principal product instead of the economic value based on the cost of production and the demand.

Short Beet Crop.
A shortage in the sugar beet crop of Germany and the cane crop of the southern part of the United States, combined with a heavy demand of sugar for canning purposes is responsible for the great increase in the cost of that article.

Cup Three Cents Now.
New York, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Recent advances in the price of sugar, coffee and milk have led Bowery eating houses to order an advance in the price of coffee from one cent a cup to three cents.

WARRANTS OUT IN COATESVILLE LYCHING.

Two Members of Mob Charged With Murder and Two Policemen
With Manslaughter.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Coatesville, Pa., Sept. 20.—The most important development in the negro lynching case came today when warrants charging two members of the mob with murder and two policemen with involuntary manslaughter, were issued by Judge Butler on the recommendation of the special grand jury. The jurors were discharged. They had been in session for three weeks and it had been charged that they were reluctant to take action.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN WANTS TO GO TO CONGRESS.

Formal Announcement From His Farm Is Expected in Course of Few Days.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Boston, Mass., Sept. 20.—John L. Sullivan, former world's champion, will, it is said, seek the Democratic nomination for Congress. Formal announcement from his Massachusetts farm is expected within a few days. Eight years ago, Sullivan went in for the "simple life," and has ever since been a quiet country squire on the little farm he purchased near Boston.

HAS EASY DAY AT MARQUETTE

Morning and Then Addressed Crowds.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Marquette, Mich., Sept. 20.—With the conclusion of his visit to Marquette, President Taft today turned southward to the lower peninsula of Michigan and to Illinois and the states beyond the Mississippi river, where next week he will invade the real "insurgent country."

The program of the president's here made it rather an easy day for him. He was the guest of Alton T. Roberts over night and after breakfast, was the central figure in a parade through the city.

Other features of the day were the president's address to a mass meeting and a luncheon for him.

Mr. Taft is anxiously awaiting the outcome of the Canadian election held tomorrow. Until then he expects to say nothing further on reciprocity although he is in a part of the country intensely interested in that subject. While he has said little about tomorrow's elections, it is believed he expects the Canadian government to be sustained, insuring the passage of the bill through parliament.

Taft a Wise Progressive.
Marquette, Mich., Sept. 20.—President Taft today listened to an attack on "spurious progressives" and "shifty politicians" by Representative Young of Michigan while he was waiting to address a throng of several thousand people gathered under a big three ring circus tent brought from Chicago for the occasion. He praised President Taft as a "wise, prudent and consistent progressive," and his remarks were loudly cheered. The president did not allow Mr. Young a lead. He said he had intended to praise the congressman here among his own people but he was afraid after all the nice things Mr. Young had said about him, there would be a suggestion of collusion.

Taft is All Right.
"You're all right," yelled a man in the rear of the crowd. "I'm glad to be assured," called the President in reply.

Representative Young referred to Mr. Taft as the greatest living representative of "genuine, constructive progressiveness."

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 20.—Frank Conley and Joe Rivers were matched today to fight twenty rounds at the Vernon Arena on October 14. The fight is to take place regardless of the outcome of the Conley-Kilbane match scheduled for September 30.

CAR STRIKE

Fifteen Hundred Employees

pany Walked Out

Demand 25 and 30 Cents an Hour for Motormen and Conductors.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Detroit, Mich., Sept. 20.—Fifteen hundred employees of the Detroit United Railway Company went on strike this morning and no street car left the barns. The men get 22, 25 and 28 cents an hour. They ask 25 and 30 cents an hour.

There is not a dissenting vote on the strike proposition. State fair officials were out early, anxious and worried about the conditions at the fair grounds. With the big fair under way only two days and with thousands of people expected today and all the rest of the week, it means to them a great loss.

Out of the 2,400 men employed by the company, 1,700 are members of the association. The remaining 700 are men who have been employed by the company for less than 90 days and who are not entitled to membership until they have worked that length of time. The men assert, however, the 700 men will go out.

SON BELIEVED DEAD RETURNS

But Mother Who had Collected Insurance Refuses to Own Him

HE HAD SERVED IN PEN.

Declares He Had Been Hit Over
Head and Then Railroaded Into Prison.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Niles, Mich., Sept. 20.—Still claiming to be the son of Mrs. Estella Kimmel, but denounced by her as an impersonator of her son for whose death she received insurance money, the man who came from the Auburn, N. Y., penitentiary and was identified by scores of people as George Alfred Kimmel, was uncertain whether he would attempt to see his "mother."

"Kimmel" who says he disappeared thirteen years ago, and now returns after $5,000 life insurance had been paid Mrs. Kimmel for his death, said he had no motive in returning other than love for his mother.

"I do not want to cheat anyone out of the $20,000 additional life insurance which my relatives would receive if they could prove I am dead," said Kimmel.

"But I am not dead. After being knocked on the head in what appeared to be an attempt to put me out of business, after being sent to the Auburn penitentiary for five years or a charge of stealing 25 cents and after otherwise being so badly treated that my mind is almost gone, I desired to come home. It was impossible for me to pretend for the rest of my life that I was dead just so that somebody could enjoy $25,000."

If my mother will not recognize me, I will not force her to. All my friends here know I am the real George Kimmel. So does my mother know I am not an impostor. "When I disappeared from home thirteen years ago, undoubtedly my family did think I was dead. Seven years later my brother proved in court that there was evidence to show I was dead. One insurance company promptly paid her $5,000 but another company holding a $25,000 policy appeared and said they would locate me."

They did find me in jail. Then my mother heard of it but she refused to change her position. Four years ago they brought us face to face in Auburn penitentiary. My mother appeared not to recognize me. While we were talking the guards stepped aside and I whispered in my mother's ear: "What am I to call you if not mother?" She looked at me in silence and then whispered, "when we are alone, call me mother."

"That was an outburst of mother love which she could not suppress. Afterwards she appeared to regret it. I wonder whether that impulse will reassert itself of whether, while acknowledged by my friends, I am forever to be disowned by my mother."

"Kimmel" today was still at the home of Mrs. Harry T. Fox who recognized him as a cousin. He said his mother would have to call on him if she wanted to see him.

A Dramatic Meeting.

Niles, Mich., Sept. 20.—Stepping back from the proffered embrace of the man who claims to be her son, Mrs. Estella Kimmel today faced him for the first time since their dramatic meeting in the prison at Auburn, N. Y., four years ago.

"Why mother, don't you know me? The man who claims to be George Alfred Kimmel exclaimed as the woman entered the home of a cousin where the man of mystery has been acknowledged as a relative. As he spoke, he stepped forward with arms extended but the woman recoiled and responded sharply:

"I am not so sure about that."

Cross Examination.

Then she subjected "Kimmel" to a cross examination that went into details of her son's early life and school days in Niles. She asked him also, why, if he was her son, he had not written to her during the many years he was away from his birth place.

The interview was, if anything, more dramatic than the former meeting between the two. Earlier in the day, the man had reiterated his claims to identify as Kimmel and had declared that if his mother wished to see him she would have to call on him.

When they came face to face, he made the first advances and after her refusal, exclaimed: "How can you say any such thing, mother?" Then they stood down facing each other, and the fire of questions began behind closed doors. He was asked his age, birth place, several questions about his father, where he went to school, and why and when he left Niles and what circumstances had prevented him from informing those at home of his whereabouts and actions.

Mrs. Kimmel in Doubt.

Mrs. Kimmel is not ready to deny flatly that the man is her son, neither will she admit that his claims are just. When she saw him in Auburn she was emphatic in her denunciation of his claims.

Former acquaintances of the woman are divided as to the identity of the man. Some asserted that he has readily recalled happenings of boyhood but others declared today that he was an impostor.

GROSSCUP WANTS MORE FREEDOM

He Has Been Shadowed Incessantly for the Past
Two Years

SECRET AGENT FOLLOWED HIM

Nothing to Hide in My Public or Private Life, the Judge Declares.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Chicago, Ill., Sept. 20.—Following the formal announcement yesterday by U. S. Circuit Judge Peter S. Grosscup that he would resign from the Federal bench, he confirmed today a report that he had been under surveillance for two years by some unfriendly agency whose motive he could not give. He said he had nothing to conceal from the public and that the shadowing did not cause him to resign. His motive was more personal and political freedom, he said.

It developed that the man who has directed this inquiry is Laurence Ritchie, a former operator in the government secret service, employed by an eastern magazine. He has done little else for two years.

So persistent was the pursuit that when the judge went abroad a year ago last spring, he was not allowed to go alone. A "shadow" is said to have followed him all the way to Europe and back. The agency that directed Ritchie's activities could not be learned.

"Do you know whom Ritchie has been working for?" the judge was asked.

"I heard at one time that he was working for the government," replied the jurist.

"That I believe is untrue. I also heard that he was working for a magazine. There is nothing either in my private or professional life that I am afraid of having investigated. I have nothing to conceal."

Places

FOR "LEGITIMATE" EXPENSES

Orators For and Against Reciprocity by the Hundreds Talking to Day.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 20.—The final day of the campaign for the election of members to the twelfth parliament of Canada is notable for the unprecedented activity of both political parties, orators for and against reciprocity being scheduled to speak at hundreds of places all over Canada this afternoon and evening. The Liberals and Conservatives are actively engaged in preparation to bring out their full vote and a final distribution of cash for legitimate expenses is being made today.

Can't Hire Vehicles.
The Canadian law forbids a political party to hire vehicles to convey electors to the polls but the use of conveyances of all kinds is being donated for tomorrow.

Elections will be held in 214 of the 221 constituencies. Three Liberals already have been elected by acclamation. They are Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Quebec east; J. A. Ehlert, of Two Mountains; and Wm. G. German, of Welland County, Ontario. Mr. German is an avowed opponent of reciprocity however. In four other districts, the elections have been determined. These are Gaspe, Chicoutimi-Saguenay, Quebec, Thunder Bay, and Rainy River, Ontario, and the Yukon.

OLYMPIC AND CRUISER COLLIDE

Largest Passenger-Carrying Vessels in the World
Badly Damaged

HAD 3,000 PERSONS ABOARD

Beached on a Mud Flat of Isle of Wight and Then Towed in Harbor.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Coves, Sept. 20.—The White Star line steamer Olympic, the biggest passenger-carrying vessel in the world, was in collision with the British protected Cruiser Hawke, near Osborne Bay, on the north side of the Isle of Wight this afternoon and was so badly damaged that her Captain E. J. Smith, beached her on a mud bank in the Coves roadstead. Later, she was released and returned to Southampton.

Captain Smith immediately after the accident, signaled for assistance to Portsmouth, from where tugs were sent promptly to the scene.

At the same time, assurance was given that the passengers were in no danger. The Hawke was damaged, but less seriously and anchored close by the steamer until the Olympic, cleared off the mud bank and set out on her return to Southampton. The Hawke then started southward under her own steam. The cruiser's bows were crumpled by the impact and her plates torn to the water line.

The Olympic sailed from Southampton at 11:25 o'clock bound for New York by way of Cherbourg and Queenstown. She sailed with the largest list of first class passengers that ever started across the Atlantic in one ship. The first cabin passengers numbered 742, twenty four more than her best previous record. Among them were between 20 and 30 American millionaires and something like $200,000 had been paid in passage money.

All told, there were nearly 3,000 persons on board.

In the collision the Olympic was struck on the starboard quarter and a large hole was stove in. When the vessels separated after the impact, it was seen that the Olympic was crippled and Captain Smith immediately ordered her beached.

In-Rush of Sea Stopped.
Southampton, Sept. 20.—The Olympic, the proudest of the White Star Company's trans-Atlantic liners, and the biggest passenger vessel afloat, returned to this port this afternoon four hours after she sailed for New York with a hole in her starboard quarter, but with her more than two thousand passengers unharmed. The passengers had an exciting story to tell of a collision with the British cruiser Hawke off the Isle of Wight.

In-Rush of Sea Stopped.
The steamer took considerable water and it was at first thought it would be necessary to beach her, and Captain Smith made for a mud bank in the Coves roadstead. The prompt closing of the collision doors however, effectually stopped the in-rush of the sea and her commander, convinced that there was no immediate danger, brought his vessel about and head for Southampton.

Was Not Beached.
Watchers at Coves saw the steamer moving toward the shore, then stopping, and, believing that she had been beached, sent out the report to this effect.

The Olympic, as she drew away from the cruiser, exhibited an ugly hole in to which great quantities of water poured. Captain Smith ordered the collision doors closed and turned his vessel toward the beach. At the same time he signalled for assistance to Portsmouth and Coves, both of which port sent tugs, but their aid was not required.

Made Port Without Aid.
A quick examination showed that the Olympic was still sea-worthy and she was brought about and steamed slowly for this port. The Hawke was also able to make port without aid. There was considerable excitement but no panic on board the liner, the passengers of which were quickly reassured by the officers. The weather was somewhat thick and there was a rain squall at the time of the accident, but the haze was not sufficient to obscure either vessel.

Later when she drew away, it was supposed that the liner had been floated without assistance.

Cruiser Was Speeding.
The Olympic was off Osborne Bay on the north coast of the Isle of Wight enroute for Cherbourg, her first stop on the way to Queenstown and New York when the accident occurred. An eye witness of the collision said later that the Hawke was undergoing steam trials following extensive repairs at Portsmouth and was traveling at great speed when she overtook the Olympic.

Drawn in by Suction.
The cruiser was passing the liner to starboard when suddenly the former drew in and crashed into the steamer's quarter about 20 feet from the stern. This witness thought the warship had been drawn against the other vessel by the suction. After the impact the Hawke drew astern and her crew threw the collision mats over a badly damaged bow.

HARVESTER TRUST MAY DISSOLVE

If It Does So Soon Government Will Not Bring Suit Against It.

UP TO THE DIRECTORS NOW

Four Parent Companies May Be Brought Into Existence
Again.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—That the government is ready to permit the International Harvester Company voluntarily to readjust its organization to conform to recent interpretations of the Sherman law became known here today. Pending the result of conferences between Attorney General Wickersham and attorneys for the company, the threatened dissolution is being delayed.

Up to the Directors.
Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—Negotiations looking to an understanding between the government and the company which were begun in Washington last summer by Edgar A. Bancroft, general counsel for the harvester company, later were continued at Cedarhurst, L. I., where Attorney General Wickersham has been spending the summer. They reached the stage, it is said, where it will be necessary for Mr. Bancroft to refer the question of re-organization to the company's board of directors.

Suit Planned.
Financial circles recently have heard persistent reports that the government was ready to bring an antitrust suit against the company. Some papers necessary for court proceedings were prepared.

The attitude of board of directors of the Harvester Company is expected to be communicated to the department of justice in about a month. The next regular meeting of the directors is scheduled to be held in October 21.

Not New Departure.
The negotiations which Attorney General Wickersham has been carrying on with officials of the Harvester company do not constitute an entirely new departure in federal regulations of corporations, although the proceeding is of a character only recently instituted.

Details of the negotiations between Messrs. Wickersham and Bancroft have not been allowed to become public, although it is known that as one condition to non-prosecution the government insists on the business of the trust being separated into the four corporations which first composed it.

Must Divide in Four.
They were the McCormick Harvester Machine Company, the Deering Harvester Company, the Milwaukee Harvester Company, and the Plano Manufacturing Company. These four companies were the first to be acquired by the International Harvester Company, when it was formed in New Jersey in 1902, and capitalised at $120,000,000 of which $60,000,000 was paid in cash. The other $60,000,000 of stock was issued for real estate, plants, and physical inventories.

General Blanco has been with Francisco I. Madero in his campaign in Yucatan and will return at once to Casas Grandes and get his army. Official notice of the order has been received by Blanco's paymaster in Juarez.

REQUISITION TO BE ISSUED FOR MCFARLAND.

He Must Return to California on the Charge of Embezzling Ten Thousand Dollars.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 20.—Andrew MacFarland, formerly an insurance man of San Francisco and known for his tangled matrimonial affairs, must return to California and face the charge of embezzling $10,000 brought by Miss Ethel C. Groom, who was his fourth wife.

After a hearing granted J. J. Greeley, MacFarland's attorney, at the governor's office today, it was announced that requisition papers would be issued.

Greeley made the point that Miss Groom and MacFarland had joint access to the safe deposit box from which it is alleged the $10,000 was taken.

ALL SANTA FE TO GIVE WELCOME

Elaborate Preparations Made to Entertain Democratic Delegates

CLARK AND FOLK ARE COMING

Stream of Bunting and Banners to Run from Depot to Palace Hotel.

Santa Fe will extend a royal welcome to the delegates to the State Democratic Convention here October 3.

This has been determined at a meeting of the chairman of the various committees recently appointed and of others interested.

No expense will be spared to put the city in gala attire which will be seen during the day and myriads of electric lights will do welcome at night.

A monster arch is to be erected at the southwest corner of the plaza. It will be 16 feet wide and as many high, with two columns with a cap and base. There will be many lights of red, white and blue which will outline the words "WELCOME TO THE STATE CAPITAL."

In the hall of representatives where the convention will meet there will be pennants which will spell the words "WELCOME TO SANTA FE, THE STATE CAPITAL." These pennants will be of yellow and white, which are the state colors.

On the speaker's desk will be yellow and white flowers with ferns in front. Flags throughout the hall will welcome the delegates as will thousands of streamers of the national colors.

Standards eight feet high for each of the 26 counties will be seen in the convention hall.

500 Badges.
Five hundred badges will be provided, 400 for the delegates and 100 for the members of committees entertaining them. To each badge will be two streamers of yellow and white satin and on top a rosette of the national colors.

Extensive Decorations.
The ladies of the decoration committee will see that a stream of bunting will flow from the depot to the Palace hotel, along Montezuma avenue, San Francisco street and out Washington avenue.

Band Concert.
The entertainment committee will provide music during the convention. A band concert will be given in the plaza the first or second night and this will doubtless prove one of the attractive evenings during the convention.

Champ Clark Coming.
Word has been received that Champ Clark, speaker of the house of representatives, will be here during the Democratic convention as will also former Governor Joseph W. Folk of Missouri, and often mentioned as candidate for the Presidency.

Bureau of Information.
In order that the delegates and visitors will not have to lose time learning about the sights of Santa Fe, the hotels, etc., a bureau of information will be placed at the northwest corner of the plaza not far from the office of the New Mexican and in it will be a dispenser of information and a typewriting machine and a telephone for the use of visitors.

Printed cards and circulars will tell about hotels, rates and cab fares.

The Elks, the Beavers, Santa Fe Club and the Masons will keep open house during the convention and appoint committees to entertain the delegates.

Two hundred rooms have been placed at the disposal of the committee and any one who has rooms for rent should notify John W. Mayes or Harry D. Moulton.

FINE NEW MODERN SCHOOL AT LAMY.

Every Up-to-date Feature in Ventilation, Lighting and Heating Is Adopted.

Superintendent of Public Instruction J. E. Clark is much pleased with the fact that the school district of Lamy is putting up a thoroughly modern public school house. County School Superintendent John V. Conway, Directors Roque Tudague, Juan Sanchez and Patricio Chavez deserve much credit for this fact. T. W. Hanna has given a fine lot 200 feet square in the new townsite overlooking the entire village. The modern system of lighting and ventilation will be embodied in the plan and the dimensions and appearance of the school are given in the accompanying cuts. Many other school districts in the Territory are putting up modern buildings.

IN LONESOMENESS.

By Friedrich Nietzsche. . . .
The cawing crows
Townward on whirling pinions
room;

Soon come the snows—
Thrice happy now who hath a home!
Thou gazest backwards—oh, how long!

Thou fool, why dare
Ere winter come, this world of wrong?

This world—a gate
To myriad deserts dumb and hoar!
Who lost through fate
What thou hath lost, shall rest no more.

Now stand'st thou pale,
A frozen pilgrimage thy doom,
Like smoke whose trail
Cold and still colder skies consume.
Fly, bird, and screech
Like desert-fowl thy song apart!

Hide out of reach,
Fool! in grim ice thy bleeding heart.
The cawing crows
Townward on whirling pinions
room;

Soon come the snows—
Woe unto him who hath no home!

FOLKS PAST FIFTY MUST USE CASCARETS

What Glasses Are to Weak Eyes, Cas-carets Are to Weak Bowels—A 10
Cent Box Will Truly Amaze You

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets.
One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics.
You may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

New Brown Bread Recipe

Never soggy—Easily made

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Nearly everybody likes Boston brown bread, but so many have experienced trouble with its being soggy, they have become discouraged. Here is a new recipe that cannot fail if the few simple directions are carefully followed. You will be delighted with the results.

K C Brown Bread
One and one-half cup yellow cornmeal; 1 1/2 cup entire-wheat flour; 1 teaspoon salt; 1 1/2 cup sweet milk; 1/2 cup molasses; 5 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder.

Sift together, threetimes, meal, flour, salt and baking powder. Mix molasses and sweet milk and stir into dry ingredients to make a smooth batter. Turn into two empty K C Baking Powder boxes, thoroughly buttered, and let steam three hours. This bread is particularly good to serve with salads or raw oysters; also at breakfast, as toast of all kinds.

Raisins or currants may be added,
though some prefer it without.

Readers of this paper may obtain The Cook's Book containing this and 89 other delicious recipes free by sending the colored certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the Jacobs Mfg. Co., Chicago. Send lower the gradient and shorten many of the curves between the two towns, a distance of about 10-12 miles, but will not reduce the distance. There will be no interruption of train service while the work is being done.

The contract specifies that the work shall begin October 1 and shall be finished by May 1.

Fair Weather Predicted.—Fair

CHAMP CLARK IN KENTUCKY

Makes Address at Lawrenceburg Near Which Place He Was Born

IS HOPEFUL FOR DEMOCRACY

But Declares That Eternal Vigilance is Price of Victory at the Polls.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)

Lawrenceburg, Ky. September 20.—"Triumphant Democracy is now the resounding theme of every tongue. After 17 years of wandering in the Wilderness we this day stand upon Mount Victory and look into the Promised Land which we will enter and possess in 1912." So declared Champ Clark, speaker of the National

House of Representatives, in an address here today. Mr. Clark was born near Lawrenceburg, March 7, 1850, and until today has not been there since he taught a country school. Continuing his message to Democracy the speaker said:

"The greatest statesman that ever lived, bar none, Thomas Jefferson, said: 'Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.' It is also the price of success at the polls. I commend it most cheerfully and earnestly to Democrats all over the land."

Mr. Clark reviewed conditions in both parties, referred to the Democratic victory of 1910, and the various congressional fights, and said that "had the Republicans in the 61st Congress honestly redeemed the promise made in the campaign of 1909, to revise the tariff downward, they would have made their party invincible, but wise Democrats are not in favor of standing still or of depending on Republican factionalism to give us the victory next fall. On the contrary, we shall continue as we have begun, press forward, advance our banners, keep everlastingly pounding them, pass more good bills, until we have carried out our entire program and force the President to sign or veto meritorious Democratic measures, which are designed to promote the prosperity, happiness and safety of the American people. That is a policy which will win and which deserves to win."

"The great battle of 1912 must be fought on the splendid record of the Democrats in this congress and upon that record we can win not only next year, but for years to come."

"Duty is the sublimest word in our vocabulary. To do one's duty honestly, faithfully, courageously and patriotically is the greatest achievement in statesmanship or in any other field of human endeavor. To their eternal credit be it said that the Democrats of the 62nd Congress at the extraordinary session discharged their duty to the utmost and deserve well of the country."

Mr. Clark reviewed some of the party accomplishments, and said: "What we did at the extraordinary session is only an earnest of what we will accomplish at the next two regular sessions."

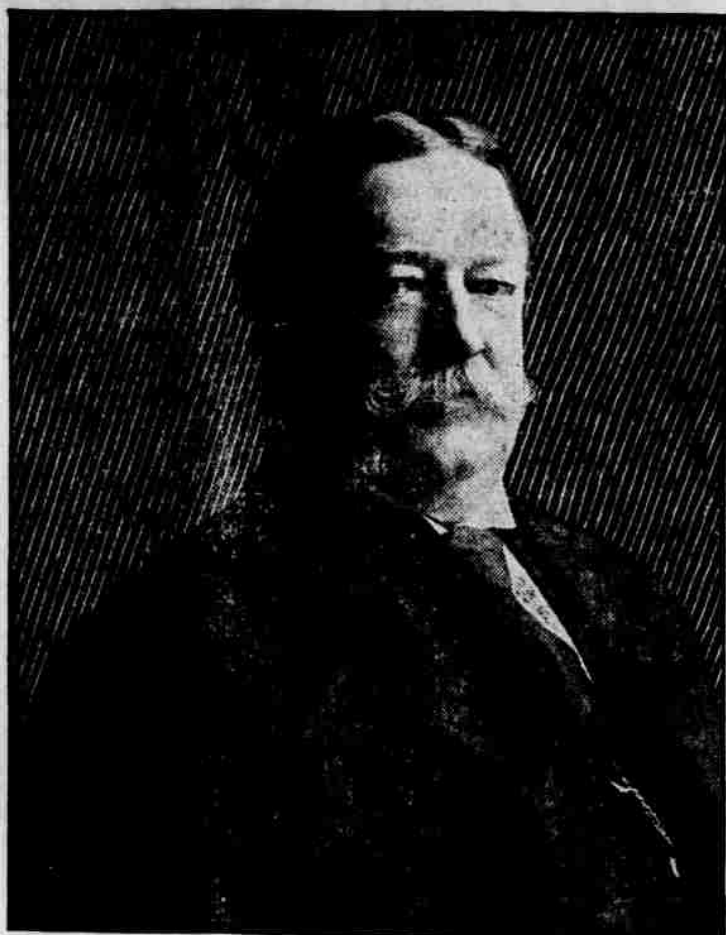

"The very best and most important result of the extraordinary session was that we formed the habit of acting and pulling together and have come to take pride in so doing."

"In this connection it should be stated that the Democrats in the House of the 62nd Congress, aided by some Republicans, passed the Reciprocity bill, as they had done in the 61st. President Taft, with all the power, prestige and patronage of his mighty office could in neither Congress muster a majority of the Republican representatives to his aid, which shows that the gulf separating the Republican factions is as wide and deep and impassable as that which separated Dives and Lazarus."

"We did not pass the Reciprocity Bill to please President Taft, but because it will help to lower the tariff. But defective as it is, the Reciprocity Bill is a step in the right direction—that is, in the direction of reducing the high protective tariff to a revenue basis. That's one reason why Democrats supported it. Another reason is that we believe it will benefit the American people, and at the same time, benefit our Canadian neighbors. True, President Taft, exercising ruthlessly a power which King George V could not exercise without being driven out of the three kingdoms, vetoed not only our Farmers Free List bill and our tariff bills, but also the joint resolution admitting Arizona and New Mexico."

"The President's veto of the statehood resolution was made upon doubtful constitutional authority. After an enabling act is passed and after a territory, in conformity therewith, has adopted a constitution providing a Republican form of government, she is entitled to admission. In his veto, the president claims that the principal point at issue was the Recall, particularly the recall of judges. He is entirely mistaken. He raised a far greater and more far-reaching question and took the wrong side of it, and that is whether a state has the right to adopt for itself such constitution as it desires, subject, of course, to the constitution of the United States, and provided it establishes for itself by its constitution, a Republican form of government. The American people who love a square deal, will not permit him to shift the issue from the great question of a state's having the right to adopt any sort of constitution which suits it within the limitations named to a petty squabble about the recall."

"The provisions to go into a state constitution do not depend, under the Federal constitution upon the whim, prejudice or taste of the man who happens to occupy the White House, or of the men who happen to be representatives or senators in congress, but upon the will of the voters of the state itself; but the President seems to be laboring under the delusion that he knows better what the people of Arizona need and desire than they know themselves, and that his wishes and desires rather than theirs should be incorporated into their constitution, which is a queer opinion to be entertained by an American president."

"Taft is a Wise, Prudent and Consistent Progressive," Said Congressman Smith Today.

Referring to President Taft's veto of the various tariff bills, Mr. Clark said:

"His action makes it as clear as the sun shining at mid-day in a cloudless sky that the people can hope for no relief from tariff extortions at the hands of the Republican party, but must look to us for relief from the monstrous load which they are now carrying."

"The language of the President's veto message raises a very grave question. He seems to think that congress should not consider or pass any tariff bills except such as he recommends, which is reversing the 'modus operandi' of making tariff bills provided for by the Fathers of the Republic. The assumption that congress shall neither consider nor pass a tariff bill until recommended by the President is not only absurd but is revolutionary, utterly subversive of our theory of legislation, if submitted to, will be only another long step in the process of usurpation which in late years has so greatly increased the powers of the executive at the expense of the legislative branch of government."

"For the last thirty-odd years the enormously increased patronage of the executive has increased his power to an extent never dreamed of by the founders of the Republic and which should set men to seriously thinking as to whether much power in the hands of one man is entirely salutary."

"It is written: 'By their fruits, ye shall know them.' That test for human conduct was established by the highest authority. By it, Democrats are willing to be judged for it is a fair and just standard. By it, we stand or fall. We feel certain that a verdict in our favor will be rendered by the grand inquest of the American people. We await that verdict with supreme confidence."

GUARANTEE NECESSARY FOR "THE BARRIER."

Rex Beach's latest and greatest success, "The Barrier," so ably dramatized by Eugene Presbury, of "Raffles" fame, is scheduled to stop in this city for one performance, on the date of October 6th, provided sufficient patronage can be pledged in advance to warrant the managers at New York to sign contracts.

Every city in the west, outside the week stands, are resorting to this method of securing this sterling attraction, and if two hundred or more of the better class of theatre-goers signify their willingness to take the usual number of seats, contract will be signed, and the sale of seats will open one day in advance for the benefit of those who assist manager Stanton in bringing the "Barrier" here. The agent will arrive in town shortly to size up the possibilities of success. Lists can be found at Fischer's Drug store and at the Box office at the Elks Theatre.

House of Representatives, in an address here today. Mr. Clark was born near Lawrenceburg, March 7, 1850, and until today has not been there since he taught a country school.

Continuing his message to Democracy the speaker said:

"Democrats everywhere are cheerful, hopeful, confident, united and aggressive, while our Republican friends are sad, hopeless, despondent, on the defensive and split into bitter factions constantly at each other's throats. From ocean to ocean they are fighting each other like cats of Killkenny. President Taft leading the Standpat faction, while Senator Robert Marion LaFollette—'Fighting Bob,' as his followers love to call him—heads the Insurgents. With them it is war to the knife and the knife to the hilt."

"They are so thoroughly destroying each other that sometimes it seems that all we have to do is to stand still and see the salvation of the Lord; and would have secured another lease of power. The masses of the people without regard to party affiliations are honest, and they demand honesty and candor in public men."

"One of the chief reasons why we won in 1910, was that the Democrats and Insurgent Republicans in Congress kept constantly hammering on the broken promises of the Republican standpaters, on their gross perfidy to their pledges, and upon their scorn of the righteous demands of the people. We appealed to the country on that record, and won an astonishing victory which, let us hope, is only the beginning of a long series of victories for lower taxes, for greater economies and for better government."

"The new Democratic House has made a record so splendid as to surprise our friends and dumbfound our enemies. No house has in a generation achieved so much constructive legislation of such a beneficial charac-

THE GARDENS OF SANTA FE.

Never before were the gardens of Santa Fe such glorious visions as they are this year. Early in spring, they were aglow with purple and white lilacs. Before these had passed, cherry, peach and apricot blossoms hovered over them like a mist, like vast clouds. Tulips, hyacinths, daffodils in profusion covered the borders of lawns. Midsummer found California poppies and a whole host of various colored blossoms but most of all roses, whose fragrance filled the night and pervaded the day. Autumn has brought cosmos dahlias, asters and chrysanthemums, and there are gardens in Santa Fe whose chrysanthemums rival those of the hot-houses of the South and East. All year too, the faithful sweet peas put forth myriads of blossoms. Orchards are crowned with a fruitfulness that has given every one who wants a plenty. If any particular thing were to be picked out as having been the greatest jewel in Santa Fe's crown of beauty, this year it would be the gardens and orchards.

Now has come the time to plan for next year; to prepare the flower beds for even greater delight than they have been the past few months. Great satisfaction there is in this planning; in the planting of bulbs and waiting for the first breaking forth of beauty in the spring. Says Helen Ring Robinson:

I believe in magic—white magic, not black.

I believe in the magic of good thought; and wholesome laughter. Make the Sign of the Cross in the air with them, Friendly Reader, and the devil will turn tail and run away, helter-skelter.

I believe in the magic of the open window and the open door and the open heart—with light and God and gladness streaming through them.

I believe in the magic of the woodland—a green thought in a green shade—soft, furry creatures twinkling through quiet spaces, the note of the hermit-thrush swelling from a pine tree, "Holy! Holy! Holy! Eternal, Almighty!"

I believe in the magic of childhood in whose young lives this gray old world is eternally new created.

And more and more as the years roll on do I believe in the magic of gardens.

I believe that as we turn over the brown earth in the springtime and the sharp little pale green points of the earliest plants come pushing through it, that every bud and green point and striving bud breathes out magic—always magic, white magic.

And when the time for blossoming roses has come, when gray vines have changed to green mists and then to fragrant pink showers—the magic of the garden, the lure of the garden makes dead hopes come alive again, makes hearts grow wider and heads grow kinder, makes thoughts more gracious and love more tender.

If you would learn the full truth about magic, throw away all the old books on the subject that have been written by mediaeval monks and Indian pundits, and make yourself a garden, Friendly Reader.

Now is the true time for garden-building, the "finishing" is the only part that need be left for the springtime. And not even in rose time does the white magic of gardens seem more vibrant to me than in this mellow autumn days when spading and planting and planning in my own garden. I gather seeds and cut away dead vines or yellow stalks that mar its ripened beauty, not grieving for rosy days that are past not dreading gray shadows of frosts or snows, content in the present joy of glorious white thistle dahlias and the fragrant billows of my mignonette bed.

Glad of the friendliness of flowers, mine through my garden's magic. Content and glad that because of this magic garden, I know I may write above my flowery borders, even as they fade and wither and perish: "Resurgam!" "I shall rise again."

ALL THERE IS TO IT.

Before becoming heated in an argument over the Bernalillo factional fight, remember three things:

If Frank Hubbell were to die today, the scrap would go on just as merrily as before.

If W. H. Gillenwater were to be sent to Siberia for ten years, the factional fight would wax as warm as ever before.

DOES IT PAY?

The Scientific American is responsible for the statement that one German chemical company spent "millions of dollars" in experiments to make artificial indigo. It succeeded finally, and today has a monopoly in that line of trade. American firms would be just as enterprising—until lately, "Big Business" has been attacked from every side, by an unremitting public, by a subversive government, by lawmakers seeking to be popular. "Big Business" is folding its tents, preparing to move silently away to climes where enterprise is not a crime, is not a transgression of the law.

The United Shoe Company, for instance, has spent millions in acquiring patents of shoe making machinery, has made great improvement thereon; has made possible the manufacture of shoes at prices which forty or fifty years ago would have been deemed impossible. But it has now fallen under the ban of the law. It is charged that in developing this great enterprise, it has transgressed the anti-trust law; that if it is driven out of business, shoes can be made five cents a pair cheaper than at present. The officers of the company have been indicted, and if found guilty, may be sent to the penitentiary, besides being mulcted heavily in fines. Perhaps, this is right, is just, is proper, but it will not induce any person, or any company, to do as the German Chemical Company has done, spend millions of dollars in experiments to discover some method by which a necessity or a luxury can be put on the market much more cheaply than today.

Word is brought to the New Mexican, that all that the so-called Santa Fe county Progressive League, demands is merely that businessmen be nominated for assessor and for county commissioner from Santa Fe district. That is a reasonable demand and one that the Republican county convention, no doubt, would have adopted even if it had not been made by the Progressive League. The New Mexican has already suggested a number of businessmen available for those two posts and there are others. However, it must be remembered, that the Republican party can make no pacts, no combination, no agreements without the voters. The Progressive League may be governed by a committee, but the Republican party of Santa Fe county belongs to the voters, and they have the final say. If it is agreeable to them that certain businessmen shall be nominated for those two places, and the New Mexican believes they will, then all difficulties will be out of the way, but until the primaries have been held and the delegates are named and have assembled in convention, no one is authorized to speak for the Republican party in promising political jobs, whether it is to businessmen, progressives, standpaters or to any one else.

The Farmington Times-Hustler, with malice, excoriates the Republican party because a resolution was offered at the recent session of the Republican Territorial central committee, advising county conventions not to adopt resolutions involving state or national issues, until after the Republican voters of the entire state have spoken through the convention at Las Vegas, on the theory that the voters of the entire state, are in better position to speak on state and national issues, than any isolated group of voters. But the Farmington Times-Hustler fails to state, that the resolution was never reported out of committee, received not a single vote, was not even considered. Granting that the resolution was voted, was not its rejection virtue? One proposition carries with it the other.

AN ORGANIZER AND EXECUTIVE. In the governor's chair of New Mexico, during the five years that mark the beginning of the state, it is especially desirable that a man of executive and administrative training, a man who is by nature and training an organizer, is placed. The Republican party has several men, who are well qualified by their experience and by their natural ability, and pre-eminent among them, is Holm O. Bursum.

Although he is no "paid office holder" at present his mature years have been given to a large extent to the service of the public in one capacity or the other. It was not service that paid high in dollars and cents but it was responsible service. It was service that demanded initiative, courage, statesmanship, executive and administrative ability of a high order. Just as he became intimately acquainted with the resources of the territory, with the need of its workingmen, its industries and its activities, by being a mining man, a stock man, a railroad man, a railroad constructor, a farmer, a merchant and a businessman, so he has fitted himself for various stages of public life by faithful service as a sheriff, as a public road builder, as a member of the legislature, by holding territorial administrative office, by taking a leading part in the deliberations of the constitutional assembly. None of these places paid him financially, he served in them at a personal and monetary sacrifice, just as he did the past seven years as chairman of the Republican territorial central committee which put him in nominal and actual leadership of the party and centered upon himself all the attacks, all the abuse, all the vituperations that enemies could invent against a man who defeated them again and again in political battle in which they felt themselves certain of victory.

This has been unselfish service on the part of Holm O. Bursum, it has been unremunerative service, but it has been noble and distinguished service, and has paid the Republican party large in prestige, in power, in success. Surely, if any man deserves well from the hands of that party, it is Holm O. Bursum, and surely it has prepared him fully to serve successfully as chief executive of the state, whose political fortune he has helped to mould for the past seven years and which he has served publicly and privately with such distinction and with such unselfishness.

Do not forget the Republican primaries on Friday evening. No Republican voter, unless illness prevents, will fail to attend and there register his party will. Unless he does it there, how shall the county convention and its delegates learn of that will, where else shall they get their authority? It is the primary that must dictate the policy and not any outside force, whether it calls itself progressive or standpat; whether it is some powerful leader or some rump convention. If the Republican party is to adopt new policies, it must do so through the primaries, for the primaries record the will of the voter and the will of the voter is supreme.

RIO ARRIBA COUNTY DELEGATION UNINSTRUCTED

Will be for Otero on First Ballot and Favors Alexander Read for District Attorney.

Espanola, N. M., Sept. 20.—The Republican county convention today was an enthusiastic and well attended gathering. Sixteen delegates to the State Convention at Las Vegas were chosen and while they were not instructed, they will cast their first ballot for Ex-Governor M. A. Otero. However, the convention endorsed William G. Sargent for state auditor, and Alexander Read for district attorney. The same delegates that are named for the convention at Las Vegas are also named for the district convention at Santa Fe. As San Juan county has already instructed for Alexander Read, he is certain of nomination for district attorney for Santa Fe, Rio Arriba and San Juan counties. Ex-Governor L. Bradford Prince, Hon. Thomas D. Burns, Colonel Venecio Jaramillo, District Attorney Alexander Read and other leaders of the county were in attendance and declared that Rio Arriba county will give a record breaking majority for the ticket on November 7.

The delegates named are: T. D. Burns, Ed. Sargent, Alexander Read, Benigno Hernandez, O. O. Carr, A. D. Vargas, Venecio Jaramillo, John Sargent, M. A. Gonzales, Silviano Roybal, L. B. Prince, Julian Trujillo, Jose Amado Lucero, Narciso Sanchez, Pleasant Hill and W. G. Turley.

OTERO DELEGATES DEFEATED IN SIERRA COUNTY.

Men Selected Will Vote for Bursum on First Ballot—Blue Ballot is Endorsed.

At the Republican county convention held at Hillsboro, Sierra county yesterday, delegates who will vote for Holm O. Bursum on the first ballot in the state convention at Las Vegas, defeated the nominees favorable to the candidacy of Ex-Governor M. A. Otero. The delegates chosen were: F. H. Winston of Fairview; H. A. Wolford, of Hillsboro; Robert Martin of Cuchillo; Watson of Engle, and W. H. Bucher of Hillsboro. A resolution was adopted endorsing the blue ballot.

EDITORIAL FLASHES

The Liberal received this week the biennial report of the superintendent of public instruction, which is a most interesting document to all people interested in the schools. It contains numerous statistics that are of interest and detailed statistics as to the receipts and expenditures of many of the schools. The most interesting statistics of this nature were blanks in the report of the Lordsburg school. They covered such items as the amount the district received from taxes, from tuition and interest, miscellaneous, poll tax, fines, licenses and apportionment; the amount paid for salaries, fuel, miscellaneous and supplies; the total cost of tuition per capita on the basis of attendance. The Liberal would suggest that if there be added to the studies taught in the school a course of bookkeeping, and that the members of the board be required to take this course they might acquire enough wisdom so they could keep the books of the district in an intelligent manner, and be able to inform the state superintendent, the tax payers, and the people interested in the school in regard to the cost of running the school, and what the money is spent for. It is entirely possible that the directors do not want the people to have this information, and if this is the case they are entirely successful in the present manner of conducting the school affairs.—Western Liberal.

AN OUTING.

The picnic crowds are on the way—I see them passing up the street. All in a mood for holiday, With hampers full of things to eat.

The picnic train is pulling out, With deafening cries of shrill delight; But all seem crushed, or just about, When they come tolling home at night.

The little children, erst so gay, Are just as cross as they can be, And parents in sad dismay Are doleful sighs, forsooth, to see.

The aftermath is rather sad—Down from that stuffy picnic train Climb families so tired, dead, They vow they'll never go again.

THE PIG SQUEALED.

Bones—My brother got sixty days for stealing a pig.

Sambo—How did they know he stole it?

Bones—The pig squealed on him.

MORA COUNTY WILL GIVE EIGHT BURSUM DELEGATES.

Political Pot is Boiling Over, Says a Correspondent. Roberts for Supreme Judge.

Mora, N. M., Sept. 20.
The political pot in this county is boiling over and good many candidates are in the field for nominations: Juan Navarro and E. H. Biernbaum, are the strongest for State Senate. The nomination will most likely go to Navarro. Simon Vorenberg of Wagon Mound will be the choice for representative from the central part of the county and either Frank A. or E. J. H. Roy, will be the candidates from the eastern end of the county. Thus the legislative positions will be pretty well divided over the three most important points of the county such as Roy, Wagon Mound and Mora. The county aspirants are as follows: For probate judge, Patricio Sanchez; for county clerk, A. S. Bushkevitz; for sheriff, F. S. Ortega; for assessor, Tito Melendez; for treasurer and collector, John R. Strong; for superintendent of schools, Blas Sanchez; for surveyor, William Brumage or Durham Surin; for county commissioners, Juan de Mata Mares, Andres Gandert and Severo Lucero. There are other candidates mentioned from all parts of the county, but it is very likely that the ones mentioned will be the successful nominees in the convention at Mora. The delegation of the county to the state convention will be divided in two for the Governorship. Mr. Bursum will get eight and Mr. Romero seven.
Hon. Clarence J. Roberts will be endorsed by the Republicans of Mora county, for supreme court judge; Captain David J. Leahy for district judge, C. W. G. Ward, for district attorney. Governor Mills is the favorite for the U. S. Senate.

BEWARE OF ALLEGED "DEAF-MUTE" BEGGARS.

Professor W. O'CONNOR SAYS Most of Them Are Fakers and Should be Handed Over to Police.

A few days ago an alleged "deaf mute beggar" was in the city holding up passersby with a plea for money to allow him to go to some school for the deaf or offering some other excuse for soliciting alms.

Prof. W. O. Conner, superintendent of the New Mexico School for the Deaf, stated today that ninety nine per cent of the deaf beggars are frauds and says he has not seen one who was really deaf or mute for the past ten years. "Nearly all deaf mutes are educated to make a good living," he continued, "and they do make their own way. When you see a man on the street corner posing as deaf or unable to talk and soliciting alms, put him down as a fraud unless you are sure he is really otherwise. It is easy to detect a real deaf mute. That person is able to talk some language by gestures but the fakir in Santa Fe the other day was ludicrous in the attempts he made to fool the public. He had no conception of the deaf-mute language."

One Man's Way

By KATE CLEVES

Ann Rose looked at Dick Foster from innocent gray eyes. "And is it as bad as all that?" she asked lightly when he had concluded his tale of love with a hint that life would be unbearable without her.

"As bad as what?" he asked quickly, resenting the half-hidden raillery in her voice.

"That life will be empty without poor little me?"

"Oh—that! Why, Miss Ann, you know we always add that—for good measure." There was a hurt look in her eyes as he arose from the bench and looked down at her.

Ann bit her lip and hung her head. She hated to dismiss Dick Foster, but after this, of course, he would join the train of the other disconsolates. "I am very sorry," she began with just the right degree of pathos in her voice when his laugh cut her words short.

"Well?" she asked haughtily, rising and facing him.

"I beg your pardon, Ann, but I will spare you further pain. You were about to say that you are sorry that you cannot love me in return but that you will ever be my life-long friend."

There was a curious hesitation in her voice when she answered. "Why—yes—I believe I was about to make that remark. How clever you are, Mr. Foster, but I suppose you've had lots of experience," she smiled ironically.

"Heaps," he answered with more cheerfulness than Ann Rose deemed proper under the circumstances. Indeed, Dick Foster's proposal of marriage had gone off in an entirely different manner from what Ann had planned for. Ann Rose was a most thoroughgoing little flirt and the list of her disconsolate suitors would have made a long voting list.

"I'm rather popular that way, you know."

"What way?"

"Oh, being refused; and you see I am easily flattered and if a girl acts as if she were interested in me I up (or down, if you please) and propose to her on the spot! Witness this evening."

"And so I acted as if I were interested in you?" stormed Ann turning on him like a small whirlwind.

"Yes," he said, looking her steadily in the eyes; "you did."

Ann Rose laughed softly, but only a loving eye would have discerned the trembling pulse in her pretty white throat and heard the faintest suspicion of a quaver in her voice when she spoke again.

"Then you were merely flattered by my interest? And the rest of it—was false? You didn't mean it?"

He hesitated a moment. "What part do you refer to?" He had folded his arms across his broad chest and was looking down at her from sparkling dark eyes.

She flushed rosy. "You know—about your regard for me." And the pulse in her throat fluttered more widely.

"Regard? Was that the word?"

"Love then," she flashed. "What difference does it make when you didn't mean any of it?"

Foster was silent. His eyes seemed to be reading her face, now slightly turned from him. He scanned the crown of golden brown hair, the delicate arch of dark brows, the curling sweep of long lashes against her cheek and he did not overlook the pulse at her throat. His eyes grew tender, but his lips did not lose their decision.

He held out his hand. "Perhaps you will say good-bye and wish me God-speed," he said quietly.

She turned quickly. "You are not going away?"

"Merely for a few months. My newspaper has ordered me to the Mexican border."

"Will there be fighting and danger?"

"I'm afraid not," taking her hand.

"Good-bye."

"Good-bye and good luck," returned Ann, wondering why he did not respond to the friendly pressure of her hand.

There was a vague little chill at her heart as she furtively watched him striding down the street, his tall form towering above the other men. "I hate him—how I hate him!" she cried with sudden passion as she turned back to the room.

So it was whispered about that the invulnerable Dick Foster had succumbed to the wiles of Ann Rose and that she had sent him to join the great army of the rejected. People shook their heads and prophesied disaster for whichever Ann.

"We'll meet her match some day," they held each other and finally the remark reached Ann's ears. When she reached home she locked herself in her room and drenched her pillow with tears.

Several months afterward Dick Foster came home, browner, graver, bigger than ever, but he did not go to see Ann Rose until she sent for him. "I want to hear about the war," she said as she shook hands with him.

"There wasn't a real war, so there is nothing to relate," he smiled down at her.

Ann didn't like that detached smile. It savored of indifference to her own charms and she had noted it before in other old suitors when they had come to announce their engagement to another girl.

"I suppose you will stay home now," she suggested as she gave him a cup of tea.

"I must," he said frankly. "I'm going to be married, you know, and there's a lot to do beforehand."

"Congratulations," returned Ann Rose without an instant's hesitation. "Is it to be soon?"

"Thanks. On the nineteenth of next month," answered Foster promptly.

He arose and set his cup and saucer on the table. Again he was looking down at Ann in that curious, detached way and she was conscious that he saw her paleness and that he noted she had grown thinner during his absence. This vexed her proud spirit and she spoke with added vivacity.

"You will give up your nomadic life now and become a staid reporter—or an editor—or something like that?"

He laughed uneasily. "Oh, no, I think not. We shall travel wherever my paper sends me. I believe I am to be ordered to Turkey before long."

She drew a sharp breath. "Turkey!" The most fascinating country in the world. How long—she paused and bit her lip angrily.

"It's likely to be hot at this season," Foster covered her embarrassment.

Ann Rose stood there, a brave smile on her face, telling herself that all the tortures she was undergoing were merely the justly deserved punishment of a coquette. She remembered the stern warnings of a maiden aunt who made her home with the Roses and she knew that the prophecy had been fulfilled.

"You'll suffer yet, Ann," Miss Laidlaw had groaned dimly. "Just think of all the estimable young men whom you have driven to drink or suicide."

"Why should I think of them?" Ann retorted indignantly. "Not one man has ever been driven to ruin through love of me nor has one ever committed suicide."

"Ann Rose, you are shocking—it is almost sacrilegious to speak of marriage in that manner!"

But Ann had wickedly laughed and flitted away out of earshot, but not soon enough to miss hearing her aunt's prophecy that one day the first would fall in love with some man who would break her heart.

"Fiddle-de-dee, I have no heart," muttered Ann Rose over her shoulder and had promptly forgotten all about the incident until it came back to her this evening as she faced Dick Foster and heard him say that he was going to be married.

The door opened suddenly and Mr. Rose thrust in an excited red face framed in white hair.

"Did you ask to see me, Foster?" he demanded hurriedly.

For answer Dick reached forth a long arm and dragged the astonished banker into the room.

"Yes, sir," he said respectfully. "Ann and I love each other and want to get married. What do you say, sir?"

Like a flash his arm was about Ann's swaying form and he caught her close to his heart as he faced Mr. Rose's surprised, but not displeased face. Ann clung to his arm.

"What do I say, eh? Well, I say that any respectable young chap who can catch my butterfly deserves to keep her. Now I've just ten minutes to make that Chicago train and the car is at the door." He swung Dick's hand, patted his shoulder and then kissed his daughter hurriedly. He dashed from the room to once more thrust his head into the room.

"I forgot—bless you, my children," he shouted and disappeared.

Rousing Response.

At a provincial theater not long since the curtain rose on an empty stage in the second act, and by and by a meek looking young man with a dust coat slung over his arm came on and loudly called: "Uncle, uncle!"

According to the book of the play he should have received no answer to his call, and after an appropriate pause he should have gone on with the monologue. But a graceless "god" in the gallery took upon himself to answer the actor.

"All right, I'm coming in a moment; how much do you want on it?" he shouted.

The effect on the audience may be imagined.—Tit-Bits.

His Meaning.

"You are certainly a good looking, Mrs. Jinx."

"You flatterer! You like blondes, then?"

DOUBTFUL VALUE OF SPITBALL PITCHERS

Cy Morgan, One of Connie Mack's Southpaws.

The spitball pitcher has won many a game, but it is a question whether he has won any more for having developed the spitball. Maybe he has, but pitchers of the first class who don't use the moist curves and who are just as capable as their damp delivery contemporaries are too numerous to mention. Such pitchers as Ford and Walsh have done wonders with the spitter, but with their physique, knowledge of pitching and natural ability wouldn't they have been fully as effective in the long run had they stuck to regular methods of serving slants and shoots?

Anyway, it is a striking fact that in the biggest of all baseball prizes, the post season series for the world's championship, spitball pitchers have played but a slight part. As a matter of fact they have not been very prominent on pennant winning teams of either league, and since 1903, when the present world's series began, the only spitball pitcher who has figured in a world's series is Ed Walsh of the Chicago White Sox.

Walsh took part in two of the games the White Sox won from the Cubs, and as much as any one man helped win the prize in 1906 for the American league; but he is the only one of the anointed ball set who ever cut any figure in a world's series. Cy Morgan helped the Athletics win the pennant last year, but Mack didn't use him at all in the games in which the American leaguers gave such an artistic and thorough trimming to the pride of the National league. The spitball pitcher is not a useless unit in any whole, but he is by no means a necessity.

President Charles Somers, of the Cleveland American league club, paid Larry Lajoie when he was crippled $600 apiece for base hits. Larry made four pinch hits in the two months and a half he was out of the game. Three of them won games. Figuring his salary at $4,000 for six months, he drew $2,400 for those four bingles. Now Lajoie is back in the game and his bingles are coming cheaper to the Naps.

Players Escape Fatality.

The wreck of the Federal Express near Bridgeport, Conn., a few days ago, and the escape of the St. Louis baseball club has drawn attention to the fact that never in the history of professional baseball has a player been killed in a traveling accident. GOOD DOCTOR A NECESSITY

And He Should Advise So That People May Locate Him, Declares F. L. Fletcher.

F. Irving Fletcher has made out an interesting case on "Why Doctors Should Advise." Mr. Fletcher is one of New York's clever advertising writers and has shown ability also as a short story writer. When asked to contribute on this subject of doctors for the Freeman Advertising Talks he sent in the following splendid story:

Should doctors advertise? Emphatically, yes! The day is passing when a shingle and a smattering of Latin will suffice. Think of the doctors who, outside of a speaking acquaintance with materia medica, don't know any more about the science of medicine, broadly applied, than a woodpecker does about the rule of three.

Get it out of your head that the medical profession has not the same proportion of incompetents as any other profession. There are good plumbers and bad, good doctors and bad. And don't overlook the fact that, while a man can survive a bad piece of plumbing, a bad piece of doctoring is liable to finish him altogether.

It is a profession in which there is no come back. This is reason enough why a man should be careful in his selection of a doctor, and reason enough why a good doctor should be broadminded enough to take the public into his confidence.

If I want to insure the title to my house I employ a reputable title company. If I want to insure my life I buy protection from a reputable insurance company. I know that such-and-such a title company advertises and is pledged to make good. I know the same of the insurance company.

Now, on the other hand, if my diaphragm slips a cog or my liver isn't on schedule time, what protection have I? The first doctor available is called in. I don't know him. I don't know whether he intends to experiment on me or not. I don't know whether he will keep me in bed as long as he can, first, because he needs experience, and second, because he needs the money.

When a man's appendix develops a tendency to be fashionable it is not natural that he should want to employ the best talent available? Now, there must be a number of excellent doctors who have removed a large percentage of appendices—without removing their owners. Who are they and where do they live?

Undignified for doctors to advertise? Nonsense. It is a duty. If I were a doctor I would be ashamed to keep my mouth shut in face of the daily columns of obituaries.

And if it be argued that a doctor wants only a limited number of patrons, why should not half a dozen doctors, resident in one building, as they often are, under sign a plain, unvarnished statement of their records, methods, experience, hours and fees?

Some day, of course, when good doctors advertise, instead of "Dead of pneumonia at 43," the average obituary will run like this: "Died unexpectedly at 188—causes unknown."

A good doctor is a necessity, if only to show us the error of our ways of living. But, instead of hiding behind a shingle and a fog of Latin, doesn't he come into the open and advertise?

You might as well tell the insurance man that you are so healthy you will drop the policy for a few years as to stop advertising because the orders are piling up.

Truth in Advertising.

John E. Powers entered Wanamaker's Philadelphia store in 1880, where he introduced a new style of advertising. There was no love lost between him and Mr. Wanamaker. But his advertising was successful. One day Mr. Wanamaker said to Mr. Powers: "You are the most impudent man I ever saw."

"I am sure you didn't hire me for my manners," replied Mr. Powers. Powers said he did not know how to advertise when he became interested in the Wanamaker store, but he had one qualification, he did not lie.

"I believe there is a way to interest people before they see the goods, and for nine months I strove to find a better way. I used a single column in type and style of a child's book. It was the plainest sort of reading. The paragraphs were short and crisp. Whatever a woman would like to read about in that particular day I wrote about in a way I thought would please her. I wrote just as I would talk to her. It was new and gossip. But I told the truth. I kept close to the ten commandments. I didn't tell everything I knew. It was not necessary. But what I said was the exact truth. There was not even a step in the direction of a lie."

"Made in Germany." Perhaps "I wonder if these ruins are very ancient," murmured the professor. "Not so very," said the experienced member of the party. "They have been put up since I was here last year."

STOCK MARKET RALLIED AFTER WEAK OPENING

Circumstantial Reports That Wages in Steel Trade Would be Cut and of Prosecutions.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) New York, N. Y., Sept. 20.--Announcement that the Federal government would permit the International Harvester company to adapt itself to the requirements of the Sherman law, without bringing suit for dissolution, effected a marked change in sentiment and the market became stronger after a heavy pronounced weakness early in the session. Heavy selling of United States Steel, and the refusal of the Inter-state Commerce Commission to suspend the Minnesota freight rates at the request of eastern railroads, were the most depressing factors, and most of the standard railroad stocks sold a trifle above yesterday's closing. Steel got back to 64 7-8, or within 1-8 of yesterday's final price.

International Harvester also made up virtually all of its losses.

Bonds were easy.

The market closed firm. U. S. Steel 5's went down 3-14 to 100, with wide gaps between transactions before the support became effective enough to check the demoralization in the United States Steel securities.

Circumstantial reports were circulated that wages in the steel trade would be cut. Fears of government prosecution of various industrial combinations were reflected in the widespread weakness in this class of stocks.

Rallies of a point or more were in many issues before the session ended.

That Caused Prices to Weaken--Corn Was Easy, Oats Swung Downward--Provisions Bearish.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) Chicago, Ill., Sept. 20.--The principal reason for weakness in the wheat market today was that owing to improved prospects, new wheat was continuing to arrive freely from the interior both of Germany and France. The opening here was 1-3 to 3-8@ 1-2 cent lower with December at 95 1-2 to 95 5-8, a loss of 1-4 to 3-8. The close was steady with December 95 7-8.

Favorable weather made corn easy. December opened 1-4 to 3-8 off at 63 5-8@ 3-4. The close was easy at Oats swung downward as a result of sympathy with other grain. December started 1-8@ 1-4 at 45.

Provisions had a somewhat bearish tone in harmony with conditions at the yards. First sales were 5c lower to 2-12 up, January at 15.02 1-2 for pork; 8.85@8.87 1-2 to 8.87 1-2 for lard and 7.95 for ribs.
