At the conclusion of the roll call Chairman Bursum stated that as many matters of importance would be under discussion by the committee, before taking action he would request all those present not members of the committee and not press representatives, to absent themselves from the meeting and at the suggestion of the chair quite a large number of citizens filed out of the room. Chairman Bursum, before making the above request, made a strong argument in favor of harmony, and predicting a rousing victory for the republican party at the fall election.

Convention Sept. 29. The chair stated that it would be in order to proceed to the fixing of time and naming of place when the convention to nominate a delegate to the Sixtieth congress would be held.

Mr. Luna moved that the time for holding the convention be the 29th of September, 1906. This motion was seconded by Mr. Van Patten and was carried.

Mr. Romero made a motion that Las Vegas be selected as the place for holding said convention. Santa Fe was named by Mr. Read and Albuquerque by Mr. Childers. After some discussion by the members Las Vegas was chosen unanimously.

Appointing Resolutions. The question of apportionment as the basis of representation to the territorial convention was then taken up and after discussion Mr. Hughes offered the following:

"That the representation be based on one delegate for each 150 votes and fraction over 75, cast in the last election for Delegate Andrews." It was seconded.

Mr. Childers offered an amendment to the effect that the apportionment be on the votes cast at the last general election for members of the council in each county, and when two members were elected from any one county, in that event the apportionment be based on the vote of the member receiving all the more appreciated because all of you being fellow associates and fellow workers of the same political faith, and fellow committeemen of the republican party, are in a position to judge as to the actions of your servant.

"I am glad that the committee feels satisfied; that in itself is a greater compensation than I could possibly receive in any other manner. I thank you from the bottom of my heart, and I assure you that it will be my best efforts to show that your confidence will not be violated."

"Gentlemen, I thank you." Delegate Andrews Endorsed. Mr. Romero offered the following resolution, and on motion of Mr. Hughes, duly seconded, it was unanimously adopted:

"We endorse and approve most heartily the able, efficient and unselfish services rendered to the people of New Mexico by Delegate Andrews, and we especially congratulate our delegate in congress upon the success attending his efforts by which an appropriation of $100,000 was secured for a public building in Albuquerque."

"We congratulate our chairman, Hon. H. O. Bursum, upon his efficient management of the affairs of this committee, and hereby renew our confidence in him as a safe political counselor and worthy in every respect of the position he holds."

Mr. Luna then offered the following resolution, and on being read, Mr. Childers moved that same be adopted, which was duly seconded. The resolution is as follows:

"Be it resolved, by the republican central committee of the territory of New Mexico, now assembled, that we most heartily endorse and approve of tion by reason of republican votes going to other than the republican candidate, and asked that San Miguel county be allowed three additional delegates to the next convention. The motion of Mr. Read, as amended by Mr. Romero, was then put to a vote and carried—45 to 4.

Mr. Spiess offered an amendment that they strike out from the resolution under consideration all that part of the resolution referring to statehood.

Mr. Prichard offered the following substitute:

Favor Joint Statehood. "Be it resolved, by the republican central committee, now assembled, that we most heartily endorse and approve the national administration of President Roosevelt."

The Luna resolution was then put to the convention and it was adopted. The substitute was voted on and the roll call showed as follows: Fourteen in the affirmative and thirty-six in the negative, and the chair declared the substitute lost.

Other Business Transacted. Mr. Read offered a resolution, calling for the appointment of a committee of five to confer with a like committee appointed by the democratic territorial central committee, looking to the promotion of joint statehood. The resolution was carried by a vote of 40 to 8.

Mr. Luna made a motion that all county conventions, for electing delegates to the territorial convention, should be held at least three days before the date of the territorial convention.

On motion of Mr. Luna the committee adjourned to meet at Las Vegas September 29, 1906, at 10 o'clock a. m.

PREMIUM LIST FOR BABY SHOW

Being Sent Out by Fair Association—Plenty of Prizes.

FOR TWO-YEAR OLD BABIES

No Older Ones Being Eligible—Western Amusement Co. Attractions.

The premium list for the baby show to be held here during the twenty-sixth annual territorial fair has been issued and is now being sent out to many residents of the territory by the fair association.

No baby over two years old September 1st will be eligible to enter the competition, but for those who enter there will be a large number of prizes, so many, in fact, that almost every toddler will have an excellent opportunity of winning a prize. Three judges will be chosen from out of the city to decide the contest and as the prizes are to be awarded on points, there will be little, if any, chance for favoritism to be shown, so mothers may rest assured that their babies will get a "square deal."

Press notices from Lamar, Colo., where the Western Amusement company exhibited last week, speak very highly of this organization that is to furnish the street attractions for the coming fair, as do the papers of Rocky Ford, Colo., where the amusement company is exhibiting this week.

The sensational parachute race between a man, a woman and a monkey still continues to be the feature sensation with the amusement company, and their act is said to be thrilling in the extreme. Prof. King, America's chief balloonist, his wife, and a monkey, make hazardous ascensions together, Prof. King taking the monkey with him. At a signal Prof. King cuts the monkey loose in a small parachute and cuts loose himself at the same time his wife does. The race to earth with the parachutes then begins, the winner being the one that reaches terra firma first. Often, it is said, the wise monkey wins.

Another feature of the Western Amusement company is the Egyptian pained, an elaborate illusion show direct from London, England, that is housed in a tent 200 feet in dimension. It portrays the life of H. Rider Haggard's famous fiction character, "She," and is said to be really wonderful.

"Hale's Tours of the World," another illusion, in which one enjoys all the sensations of a trip by rail around the world, is one of the strongest exhibits at the foremost part of the country. One of these attractions will be seen with the Western Amusement company.

Plans for the flower parade still continues to go forward with rapidly, and it begins to look as though this year's parade would be the most brilliant yet. Mr. Barkley, the manager of this feature of the fair, announces that a large number of business firms and individuals have signified their intentions of entering, and that it will be a hummer goes without saying.

Plans for the flower parade and wood convention are practically completed. Almost all of the delegates from the different counties of the territory have been appointed. The board of county commissioners of San Miguel county recently appointed the following to attend the convention, which convenes here September 18:

Expansión Gardens, precinct No. 10; Secundino Romero, Las Vegas; Jose D. Gutierrez, Sabino; Antonio Gonzalez, Cornudas; Luciano Maes, Escondido; Isidoro V. Gallegos, East Las Vegas; A. A. Sema, Las Vegas; Cleofe Garcia, Socorro; Filadelfo Baca, Las Vegas and Octaviano Segura of Pecos.

BIG THINGS ARE EXPECTED AT WHITE OAKS

Col. George W. Prichard of White Oaks, Lincoln county, was a visitor to the office of The Evening Citizen, while in the city attending the meeting of the Territorial Republican Central committee, held here yesterday.

Since leaving the office of the attorney general, the colonel has been devoting a good deal of his time to his mining properties in Lincoln county. Speaking of the White Oaks district, he said:

"The camp is about to take on a new life. For a year or more very little active work has been done there, except that there are no valuable mines, but because of the apparent indifference of the owners of them to push work on their properties. It is now proposed to take up the work in earnest, and I predict some important revelations in the way of new discoveries during the fall. New people with plenty of capital behind them have become interested in several properties at White Oaks, and now blood, you know, infused into anything always starts it boiling. The White Oaks camp has been a boiling, producing camp from the time of its discovery. Other camps have come and gone, but the White Oaks has steadily yielded good returns while the mines were being worked. There are opportunities in the camp for the making of bigger mines than ever, not excepting the Old Abe, North Home Stake and Little Mack, all of which are well known as wealth producers."

UNION MEN WON'T WAIT IN PARTY PRISON FOR RIGHTS. SAYS SAMUEL GOMPERS

PRESIDENT OF THE FEDERATION OF LABOR EXPLAINS WHY TRADE UNIONS ARE GOING INTO POLITICS NOW, INSTEAD OF FORMING A PARTY OF THEIR OWN — THE PRESENT MOVEMENT MERELY AN AWAKENING — AMERICANS THE WORST PARTY RIDDEN PEOPLE ON EARTH — THE ENGLISH LABOR VICTORY — WHAT THE UNIONS HAVE DONE FOR THE WORKING PEOPLE.

(By Giles Gardner.)
Special Correspondence.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—Union labor's new political activity does not look to the formation of a labor party, but to the formation of a labor party, said the statement of Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor.

The purpose of the movement, says Mr. Gompers, is to have labor take action as a class, helping labor's friends and defeating when possible its enemies, irrespective of party. "This is not a new movement on the part of the trades unions of America," said Mr. Gompers. "It is simply that some of the cobwebs are to be swept away from the minds of those who think as they do. As long ago as in the national convention of 1886, the American Federation of Labor declared that the time had arrived when the working people should decide upon the necessity of united action as citizens at the ballot box."

"These present were urged to support an independent political movement or coalition. At numerous labor conventions held since then similar resolutions have been passed."

President Gompers says that the present movement is merely an awakening. The unorganized labor people have lately come to the conclusion that they have been trifled with by members and leaders of the two great parties, and that they must take a more aggressive stand for the election of men who will represent their interests. This awakening of the labor interests first gave evidence of its widespread character and determined purpose in the presentation of a bill of grievances to President Roosevelt, the president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives last winter.

"Labor has never yet formed parties or undertaken to form one but has been content to let the politicians out of their hands by a lot of facts, theories and self seekers," continued President Gompers, "and thus perverted from its true labor interests and working class characteristics. This is true the whole world over."

President Gompers says that it is a mistake to suppose that there is a labor party in Great Britain. The recent strengthening of the labor group in parliament was accomplished, he says, by concerted and independent action on the part of union labor voters. President Gompers said:

"There is no worse party ridden people in the whole world than are the people of the United States," said Mr. Gompers. "It is nothing but party, party—your party and my party. It is the abomination of American politics. Men vote for their party regardless of what their party stands for.

"The truth is the trade union congress appointed a committee and called it the labor representative committee, the duty of which was to try to secure the election of labor men to parliament, regardless of party, and endeavor that could not be done, to secure the defeat of those who stood hostile to labor interests of Great Britain. As a matter of fact, in many districts where the members of the liberal party were returned, they were returned only because of the support which they received from the labor men, and vice versa."

"If labor is to wait until the millennium, if we are going to wait until labor elects a majority of the legislature and a governor and then a president of the United States, who shall appoint the justice of the supreme court of the United States I am afraid we are going to wait a long time."

"Trade unions don't propose to wait a long time to secure material improvement in their conditions. They want and will have them now and in the continually recurring future. We will resort to politics whenever it will bring us advantage, whenever it will bring the labor movement a step farther."

In speaking of labor's grievances against the party in power and particularly the republicans in congress Mr. Gompers said:

"What did organized labor get from congress? It was interested in several bills; it argued, presented data, attended hearings, when the session came to an end and was the result of this work? There was no result. The eight-hour bill, the anti-injunction bill, and other bills tending to the rights and lives of men, women and children, had again been juggled with, but none of them passed and there was no prospect of any satisfactory action on any of them at the next session. The game is an old one."

It is the boast of Mr. Gompers that union labor has already demonstrated its ability to make and unmake the regular party candidates and has a long list of laws—good laws—to its credit. Said Mr. Gompers:

"Over thirty years ago the trade unionists secured the establishment of the bureau of labor statistics in Massachusetts. It was the first bureau of the kind ever established in the world. Since then bureau of labor statistics have been established in many states."

"It was the demand of our federation which compelled many states to establish inspectors of factories, shops, mills, mines and tenements."

"At the demand of organized labor child labor laws have been placed upon the statute books of our several states. It is our movement which seeks for the final and absolute abolition of child labor."

"It was our federation which secured to the seamen, for the first time in history, the right of ownership in themselves; the right to quit his work when his vessel was in safe harbor."

"Who defeated the Philippine bill? Who let the members of the Cigar Makers' International union? Who but the representatives of the trade unions secured the eight-hour law which was put upon the statute books by the proclamation of President Grant. The whole story in itself—the eight-hour law—extended to the several states of the union—was accomplished without political action."

"Trade unionists by their political action abolished slavery in Hawaii. Hawaii would have been annexed to the United States with slavery existing there, if it had not been for the representatives of the American Federation of Labor who insisted upon an amendment to the then pending bill for the annexation providing for the abolition of slavery in Hawaii, and it was accomplished. When Porto Rico became annexed to the United States the old Spanish law that any effort of two or more men to secure an increase of wages was a conspiracy to raise the price of labor. Through the action of the American trade unionists we secured its change."

"We have secured lien laws which guarantee a man his wages when he has worked. The breaker boys who work in the mines of Pennsylvania were liberated through the miners' strike and the public conscience was so shocked that one of the best child labor laws in the country was passed in Pennsylvania."

"In addition to these our unions have secured laws covering mining, safety appliances, pumps, car coupling laws to protect railroad men from being smashed between the cars which they are trying to couple; laws for blowers to carry off the dust from the poller and the buffer in the works and in machine shops, together with others too numerous to mention."

POLITICS CONDUCTED IN THE INTEREST OF CLASS

By G. C. COLLINS

President of the Trades and Labor Assembly of St. Paul, Minn.

There are numerous reasons why the wage earners should be organized and should go into politics. The activity of the National Manufacturers' association and Citizens' alliance in their effort to defame and discredit the organized workers is one, and this alone should arouse the workers to the danger that threatens them, for what effects the union man will eventually effect the union man.

During the last session of congress a measure advocated by labor became a law. Corporation interests had them killed, amended or buried by antagonistic committees.

It is said that legislation in behalf of the organized workers would be class legislation. But is not politics in the interest of class? Are not nearly all laws for the benefit of class? No interest that is not represented in law making bodies, state or national, can hope to secure measures that will benefit it.

There is not a representative of labor in congress today. Lawyers there are by the score, bankers, professional politicians and perhaps a few farmers, but those who create legitimate wealth, the wage-earners, must depend on others to legislate for them.

SAYS THE LABOR VOTE IS A JEST IN POLITICS

By FRANK J. WEBER

Business Agent of the Milwaukee Federated Trades Council and the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, and General Organizer of the American Federation of Labor.

The submitting of the bill of grievances by members of the American Federation of Labor to Messrs. Roosevelt, Frye and Cannon has been the means of disseminating among the organized workers the fact that through the division of their votes between the republican and democratic parties their influence in governmental affairs is practically nothing, and that the "labor vote" is really a jest in American politics.

Up to the present time organized labor has accomplished little or nothing in politics for the reason that it has had little or no definite idea of what it wanted to obtain through political action. When the workingmen of the country have a known and common object in view, one that can be understood by all, the means of obtaining it will not be difficult to find. The masses of our state and coun-

There are two million trade union voters in the United States. The trouble has been to get them to vote as a unit. If they can be brought to do so there will not be so many millionaires in the United States senate, so many corporation-controlled members in the house of representatives. Capital must treat the organized workmen fairly or the result will be to drive them to socialism, and, perhaps, revolution.

The time or the boycott and the bludgeon has passed. The time for the ballot was arrived. We have only to look to New Zealand, where pauperism has been wiped out of existence by labor influence in politics, to see what can be accomplished in this

BALLOT INSTEAD OF THE BOYCOTT OR BLUDGEON

By GILBERT W. DICKSON

President of the Federation of Labor, Detroit, Mich.

New methods are necessary if the labor union is to survive the onslaughts of the socialists, who are in slaughtering made up of its enemies. Since the employers, by building up unions of their own, have flattered us by that imitation which is considered the sincerest form of flattery, we must also realize that our past experiences have enabled them to avoid many of the obstacles that confronted us in the earlier period of our formation. We blazed the way. By following it the employers have been enabled to do in a few months what has taken us years of patient endeavor to achieve.

Once they met our organized ranks with unorganized resistance, but even then their financial superiority prevented the advantage from being as great in our favor as it would otherwise have been. Again, through political influence, which capital has ever recognized as a potent force, our employers have mitigated the advantage of our superiority in numbers.

Labor's salvation lies in entering politics and in voting as a unit. In using the term "politics," I use it in its broader sense, devoid of partyanship. I feel that labor cannot consistently be republican or democratic, but must at all times be labor. The trade unionist who places his cause above mere party politics was already enjoying a glimpse of the light which will lead us out of industrial bondage.

The time or the boycott and the bludgeon has passed. The time for the ballot was arrived. We have only to look to New Zealand, where pauperism has been wiped out of existence by labor influence in politics, to see what can be accomplished in this

GILBERT W. DICKSON.

Let us remember that compromise has always been the mother of tragedy, and that all the favors the workers have received from their masters in all ages have but made them the inhabitants of a slave world. The capitalist masters of our time see on the wall the handwriting foretelling the doom of their class. When the wage workers shall become so educated that they, too, will organize for unity of action, both industrially and politically, that day is the day when shall sound the death knell of the capitalist class.

I am a socialist, but I do not care what name you give to the principles I advocate.

WASHINGTON WIT OVER SPELLING

OF PRESIDENT'S ADOPTION OF SIMPLIFIED SPELLING

Movement in Ohio Politics Which May Retire Both Foraker and Dick From Senatorial Seats.

(By Sheldon S. Cline.)
Special Correspondence.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—Has the thought-to-be invincible Roosevelt been hoist on the petard of spelling reform? Is phoneticism or anti-phoneticism to become an issue between the parties?

It is easy to imagine aspirants for presidential honors asking these questions of themselves. And what a boundless field for speculation it opens up! If Mr. Roosevelt is to be the republican nominee in 1908, as a great many good people are convinced he will be, a decent regard for the feelings of the country would require that the national platform be written phonetically, thus officially committing the republican party to the Carnegie school of spelling. And there would opportunity knock at the democratic door. A straight out plank in the democratic platform, declaring against any presidential monkeying with the king's English would rally to the cause goodness knows how many republican voters who had a hard enough time learning spelling once, and who would rather call a democratic administration than tackle the job again.

Of course, it may come to such a pass as this, but just now spelling reform is paramount. Tariff reform isn't one, two, three. Stimulation of the railroads has become a cheap and common thing alongside the regulation of vowels and consonants. Even the matter of governmental ownership of transportation lines has been forced to a rear seat by the question of Mr. Roosevelt's ownership of the English language.

A prominent senator suggests that the greatest about face known to future generations as "Roosevelt, the Regulator." He forced congress to regulate railroad rates, and congress claims it really enjoyed the job; he issued a proclamation for the regulation of the size of American families, and a good many American women made no pretense of enjoying it; and now he has set out to regulate the English language, despite the clamoring of pedantic professors and the howlings of the British lion. What have the English got to say, anyhow, about his English? Shall we write, Not in old England, but in young America, is planted the seed that is to save the tongue of Shakespeare from joining the ghastly legion where march the Greek, the Latin, the Hebrew, and other languages that have no place in the world of things that are the days of the strenuous life, and there is nothing from a man's religion to the color of his hair, that may not be made the subject of managerial supervision.

There may be those who will assume that the foregoing was written in a spirit of levity. Without animation or denial as to that, here is something that is presented in all seriousness: When congress convenes next fall there is likely to be the very danger of a time over Mr. Roosevelt's spelling reform. The executive departments, of course, will spell phonetically, as the president directs. But the president cannot direct as to how congress shall do its spelling. At least congress is not obliged to obey his direction.

A situation will be presented of communications from the president and the executive departments going to congress spelled phonetically, and when they are printed by order of congress, in the Record, or otherwise, they will reappear in old fashioned English. The public printer cannot do the printing of congress in the Carnegie-Roosevelt style, unless congress by resolution so direct. It is not to be doubted that some zealous friend of the administration will insist on the use of house style in resolution. These Pandora's boxes will open, and there will be a debate fit for the gods and the laughter of the nations. Imagine the smooth, oily, stinging, biting, sarcasm of John Sharp Williams; think of the javelin thrusts and hammer blows of Hon. Tillman; look forward to the ponderous arguments of Joe Bailey as to the constitutionality of through or thru. And when you think of these things, does the suggestion that phoneticism may become an issue between the parties sound so shockingly out of place?

And if Williams and Tillman and Bailey attack the president's spelling reform, will not Lodge and Knox and Spooner rush to its defense? And what else, pray you, is required to create a political issue, than the plants of one party arguing for and the glads of the other party arguing against a thing?

So far as human eyes can discern on the horizon of the future which the energy of a Roosevelt has made so full of promise of spectacular things, there is just one chance that the republican party may see a standing for, and the democratic party against, reforming the English language. It lies in the possibility that there may be effected that realignment of the parties of which we have heard so much. If a considerable faction of republican refuse to endorse Carnegieism and a considerable faction of the democrats refuse to oppose it, then may come the breakup which other issues have threatened, but never achieved.

these were confuted up all the passions capable of being aroused in the human breast. But what was slavery or water rights alongside those of that? Did the government of the people, for the people and by the people pass through the ordeal of civil war and the bitterness of reconstruction only to be crushed to smithereens on the rock of blood or kiss?

So busy was Washington, official, non-official and secret, best discussing the spelling reform order that not much attention has been paid to the actors on the stage of politics. Yet in several of the states there are contests well worth the watching.

But in Ohio a serious piece is on the boards, under the caption "The Throne of the Senators; or, The Wicked Mr. Burton, Mr. Burton, who is known as a scholar in politics and who has managed to keep his hands clean and his name untarnished even in congress, has conceived the idea that the endorsement of the state convention should be less enthusiastic in the case of Senators Foraker and Dick than it should be in the case of President Roosevelt. The senators are modest gentlemen and don't ask a state hurrah or a solitary hand-clasp more than the president gets, but they want every adjective that goes to any other man, Roosevelt or otherwise, and they mean to have it or fight."

Of course, there is more back of this than the mere question of how enthusiastically somebody shall be endorsed. Endorsement was merely selected as a peg to hang a scrap on. There is involved the leadership of the Ohio republican party and possibly Ohio's attitude toward the next presidential election. The prospects of Secretary Taft undoubtedly will be affected, although both sides deny that there is any fight for or against him.

The main issue would seem to be whether Senator Dick is to be deposed from the throne of the state machine. Burton gives publicity to the opinion that republican chances of success at the polls would be enhanced if some man other than Dick were at the head of the organization. Then the republican revolutionists in Ohio rallied around Burton and he now has a fighting position, that promises to make things exceedingly lively at the state convention on September 11 and 12. This is Burton's first fight in the field of state politics, and he enters the arena under peculiarly auspicious circumstances. He has around him no thought of his own immediate political future. The democrats up in Cleveland think so well of him that they are not going to oppose his re-election to congress, so he can stay dragons to his heart's content, without bothering about their feelings.

However entertaining and diverting the Ohio fight may be to outsiders, it is a mighty serious thing for the two Ohio senators. Should Burton and his forces triumph at the Dayton convention, there will be a new deal at hand. It would probably mean the retirement of both Foraker and Dick when their present senatorial terms expire, though an exception might be made in the case of the former. The late Senator Vest of Missouri described the protective tariff as an "independent state of greed."

It is not, however, the personal fortune of either Jerome or Hearst that interests democrats in Washington. It is the involved issue of the things for which Hearst stands. Democratic senators and representatives in town, and a good many of them have just now for consultation at campaign headquarters. They agreed that there is in the New York contest the possibility of far reaching influence on the democratic party. If Hearst captures the New York democracy, they point out, he will be a figure in the party's national council that cannot be ignored, and the doctrines or which he stands will have to be recognized in greater or lesser degree.

The almost daily changes in the New York situation are watched as closely in Washington as they are in the Empire state. A week or ten days ago Hearst's chance of securing the democratic nomination for governor was regarded as at least a 3 to 1 shot. The odds have been dropping since, and are now money propositions.

MAY HAVE TO FACE CHARGE OF MURDER
A dispatch from Pueblo, says: Frank Tambling, a representative of a Denver employment agent, may be called upon to face the charge of murdering a teamster at La Orosita, N. M., some time ago. Tambling brought a number of men to Pueblo last week to go to work in the southern part of the state. The job failed to materialize and he was arrested and taken to Denver. It is claimed that a pay check owned by the missing and supposed murdered teamster was cashed in Pueblo by Tambling at the store of the McCord, Chapman & Over Mercantile company. The Denver police have been asked to hold Tambling for the census officials and it is understood that Mexican authorities are also after him.
