

8-17-2018

KUNM Interviews Jennifer Moore about refugees, asylum, and international law

Jennifer Moore

University of New Mexico - Main Campus

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalrepository.unm.edu/law_facultyscholarship

 Part of the Human Rights Law Commons, and the Immigration Law Commons

Recommended Citation

Jennifer Moore, KUNM Interviews Jennifer Moore about refugees, asylum, and international law, University Showcase (2018).

Available at: http://digitalrepository.unm.edu/law_facultyscholarship/652

This Video is brought to you for free and open access by the School of Law at UNM Digital Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in Faculty Scholarship by an authorized administrator of UNM Digital Repository. For more information, please contact disc@unm.edu.

SCHOOL
OF LAW

SMALL SCHOOL.
BIG VALUE.

<http://www.kunm.org/post/how-us-ignores-immigration-and-asylum-laws>

KUNM Interviews Jennifer Moore about refugees, asylum, and international law

How The U.S. Ignores Immigration And Asylum Laws by Megan Kamerick

KUNM, University Showcase
March 3, 2015

Immigrant. Refugee. Asylum. These are words we've been hearing a lot this year. But what are the laws around refugees in the United States and internationally and is the U.S. following its legal obligations? On this episode of University Showcase, we talk with Professor Jennifer Moore. She's an expert on refugee law and teaches it at UNM.

Moore co-authored one of the first law school text books on refugee law. Prior to joining UNM in 1995, she worked with the United Nations High Commission on Refugees in West Africa and in Washington D.C. She also did work for UNHCR in Croatia on post-conflict reconstruction, and she was a Fulbright Scholar in Tanzania teaching human rights law. Last year she received the Sarah Belle Brown Community Service Award from UNM for her "inspirational example of advocacy and social responsiveness."

Listen to Audio: <https://libvideo.unm.edu/?q=node/989>

Caption: Jennifer Moore with women peacebuilders in Uganda.
By Fred Ngomokwe / Courtesy Jennifer Moore