THE CHRONOLOGY, by the National Security Archive (New York: Warner Books, 1987), is now available in paperback at book shops throughout the country, or by direct request from the publisher. (Price: $5.95.) An excerpt from the book cover follows: "The Documented Day-by-Day Account of the Secret Military Assistance to Iran and the Contras: Covering the period from January 1980 to the present televised hearings, it gathers and organizes information from hundreds of published and previously unpublished sources, including government documents obtained under the Freedom of Information Act, letters and memos from international figures, and extracts from the reports of the Tower Commission and the Senate Intelligence Committee-revealing the full story of the scandal for the first time. It features: a who's who listing for every person significantly involved in the scandal, reproductions of actual key documents, a glossary of important terms, a complete and comprehensive index, and 8 pages of photographs." The National Security Archive is an independent organization based in Washington, DC.
