OFFICIAL VOTE
IS ARRIVING

Correct Returns Sent to Mr. Jaffa by Registered Mail and Express

TEACHERS WOULD ORGANIZE

Those Who Instructed in Commercial Branches Will Be Here Nov. 15.

The official returns of the first state election in New Mexico are beginning to arrive at the office of Territorial Secretary Nathan Jaffa in the capitol. They are coming by express and by registered mail. In the absence of Territorial Secretary Jaffa, Assistant Secretary Edwin F. Coard is not opening any of the returns. Mr. Jaffa is expected back today from Roswell where he went to vote.

Valencia Did Well.
Colonel Jacobo Chavez, the insurance commissioner, is back from Los Lunas, Valencia county where he went to vote. He reports that Valencia will roll up a big majority for the Republican ticket.

Back From Dona Ana.
Territorial Engineer Charles D. Miller has returned from Dona Ana county where he says the Camino Real is practically completed from Rincon to the top of the mesa. Mr. Miller inspected roads and he seemed well pleased with his trip.

For the Treasury.
Territorial Treasurer Rufus J. Palen has received the following sums for the treasury: Cleofes Romero, warden of the penitentiary, convicts' earnings $889.41; B. J. Reagan, treasurer of Roosevelt county, $849.29; Game and Fish Warden Thomas P. Gable, $70.75.

Democratic County Treasurer Short.
Papers were today served upon the superintendent of insurance as attorney for the American Surety Co., of New York in a suit brought against them upon their bonds for $10,000.00 and $6,000.00 against the shortage of the former Treasurer Cabell H. Chevalier of Quay county in the sums of $11,445.40 and $3,288.06 respectively.

Educational Matters.
Secretary Rupert F. Asplund of the New Mexico Educational Association Nov. 15 to 18, but they will make an effort to effect a permanent organization here. There is no organization to effect a permanent organization here. There is no organization of such teachers in one body in the territory, but there seems no reason why they should not unite for their own benefit to discuss topics peculiarly interesting to teachers of commercial branches.

Forest Meeting.
A meeting of the supervisors in the New Mexico, Arizona, Arkansas and Florida forests was held in El Paso today for the purpose of instruction, and to decide on matters of economic administration of the forests under each. About thirty men were at this meeting, mostly supervisors, while there were three from the district office in Albuquerque, and two men from Washington D. C. F. C. W. Pooler, associate forester, of Albuquerque, and Arthur H. Zachau, supervisor of the Chiricahua national forest came during the day. The meeting will last nearly a week.

A number of the supervisors and rangers are expected here Tuesday evening for the meeting.

HOWARD PYLE, ARTIST AND AUTHOR, IS DEAD.

His "Wonder Clock" Fairy Tales and Quaint Illustrations Delighted Youngster 20 Years Ago.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) Florence, Italy, Nov. 9.—Howard Pyle, the American author and artist died here today of heart failure. He was 58 years of age.

Howard Pyle, the American illustrator and author, was born in Wilmington, Del., and was a pupil of the Art Students League in New York. His first outline drawings, in the spirit of Durer's woodcuts, especially his work for Robin Hood and Otto of the Silver Hand, established his reputation as one of the first of American illustrators, and were followed by admirable sketches of Colonial life in New England and New Amsterdam, in the portrayal of which he had no rival.

He is the author and illustrator of the Merry Adventures of Robin Hood, Pepper and Salt, Within the Capes, The Wonder Clock, The Rose of Paradise, Otto of the Silver Hand, A Modern Aladdin, Men of Iron, Jack Ballister's Fortunes, Twilight Land, The Garden Behind the Moon, Semper Idem; Rejected of Men.

LORD SHOLTO DOUGLAS DENIES HIS SUICIDE.

He Read in Last Night's Papers That His Body Had Been Found, in New York.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) Seattle, Wash., Nov. 9.—Lord Sholto Douglas, is in Seattle, perfectly well. He read in last night's papers that his body of a New York suicide had been identified as his, and decided not to contradict the report. Lord Sholto has been conducting a small cigar business in Seattle under his own name, but seeking to avoid notoriety.

Total	7075
McDonald's majority	1475

Unfavorable returns from Dona Ana, Colfax, Otero, Lincoln and other counties this morning soon wiped out the favorable margin that Holm O. Bursum seemed to have yesterday afternoon.

The splendid majorities in San Miguel and Rio Arriba counties did not help him much and as the New Mexican goes to press, McDonald's election by almost 2,000 majority is certain, and the chances of the other Republican candidates for election grow smaller as the McDonald lead increased. At this writing Frank W. Clancy alone seems surely elected with the chances also very favorable to R. P. Ervien and George Curry and some chance for all of the others. In Colfax county, the lead of the Republican state ticket over Bursum is 500, in San Miguel 400 and in Santa Fe county candidates like Frank W. Clancy are 223 ahead of the Bursum vote and in Bernalillo county, Clancy is ahead 523 of the Bursum vote.

San Miguel County.
At 3 o'clock this afternoon, with three precincts to hear from Holm O. Bursum had a majority of 874 in San Miguel county; A. B. Stroup of 1175 and Secundino Romero of 1235.

Albuquerque is Locoed.
Albuquerque, N. M., Nov. 9.—With a number of outlying districts still to be heard from, interest in returns from Tuesday's elections today centers in the close race of the Republicans and the Democrat-Progressive-Republican coalition for the control of the legislature which will elect two United States senators. Returns this morning gives the Republicans 37 out of 72 votes in joint assembly and the coalition 31 with four seats in doubt. Democrats admit, however, that there is a strong possibility of the Republicans winning all of the four seats still in doubt, which would give them a scant majority of ten. On the returns available this morning, the make up of the legislature is as follows:

Senate 14 Republicans, 9 Democrats and Progressive Republican one doubtful.

House, 23 Republicans, 22 Democrats and Progressive Republicans, three doubtful.

Should the coalition control the legislature, it is expected that one of the new senators will be a Democrat and the other a Progressive Republican. Places on the Democratic legislative ticket were divided between the two parties to the fusion.

That the entire Democratic state ticket, headed by W. C. McDonald for governor, as well as the two Democratic congressional candidates, H. B. Ferguson, and Paz Val Verde, will have majorities ranging between 2,000 and 3,000, seems probable.

Dona Ana County.
McDonald carried Dona Ana county by 98 majority. E. L. Medler, Republican for judge, carried it by 98 majority; Morgan O. Llewellyn, Democrat, for district attorney, carried it by 17. The Republicans elected the entire legislative ticket, H. B. Holt receiving 2 majority; Prescilliano Moreno 77 majority, and W. H. H. Llewellyn 147 majority. The Republicans elected the entire county ticket except probate clerk and probate judge, who were elected by Democrats. The Republican state ticket runs from 100 to 200 ahead of Bursum.

Colfax County.
Colfax county defeats Bursum by 400 but gives rest of Republican state ticket a majority.

Chaves County.
With five precincts to hear from Chaves county gives McDonald 1150

BUSINESS IS

Many Prominent Stocks Exceed Their Best Prices on Demand

TRADERS ARE EAGER BUYERS

American Cotton Oil Decides to Pass Semi-Annual Dividend.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) New York, Nov. 9.—Although approval by the court of the American Tobacco reorganization plan had been expected in Wall street, the movement of stocks today showed it had not been discounted entirely in the recent advance. Prices rose steadily but though the demand was heavy, the market was not unsettled by the movement. The largest trading was in the United States steel. This stock was bought in the belief that should the dissolution suit recently filed against the corporation be decided against, the effect on security holders, in the light of the Tobacco decision, would not be disastrous. Increased confidence was shown in the buying and a heavier outside business was reported. Trading diminished when the market eased off fractionally. Bear operators took stock offered and the list was rising briskly again. Union Pacific rose to 17 1/2 and a block of 7,000 shares of United States Steel was purchased at 61 7/8, after which it went to 62. Many prominent stocks exceeded their previous best prices and the whole market took on a buoyant appearance. Bonds were firm with the American Tobacco issues in heavy demand. The four jumped 1 to 91 1/2, and the sixes 2 1/8 to 117 1/8.

Excited buying characterized the operations in the middle stock market. Large purchasing orders were distributed all around the room and the market climbed steadily in the face of the enormous profit taking by last week's buyers. Traders who sold stocks confidently yesterday when the market was weak were the most eager buyers. United States Steel improved 1 3/8 to 63, Lehigh Valley 1 1/4 to 174 1/2; American Smelting 1 1/4 to 172; Union Pacific 17 1/2; International Harvester 4 to 111 1/2, and Reading to 150 3/8. The decision to pass the semi-annual dividend of 2 1/2 per cent on American Cotton Oil caused the surrender of the stocks to a two-point rise, but it did not fall below yesterday's closing. After reacting a slight fraction the whole list mounted to the highest again. Another slight selling movement was in progress at 2 o'clock. The close was buoyant.

Semi-Annual Dividend Passed.
New York, Nov. 9.—Directors of the American Cotton Oil Company today, passed the semi-annual dividend of 2 1/2 per cent on the common stock. The regular semi-annual dividend of 4 per cent on the preferred stock was declared.

INDIANS PLEAD FOR DANCES

Cheyennes and Kiowas Do Not Want to Abandon Custom

OPPOSED TO INDIAN AGENT

Governor Cruce Promises to Intercede for Them at Washington.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 9.—Smoothing under the threat of the Indian agent at Segar to abolish the "Willow" and the "Gift" dances of the Cheyenne and Kiowa tribes, a delegation of Indians headed by Chief Cloud and Chief Washee has successfully pleaded with Governor Cruce to intervene in their behalf at Washington.

The dances date from the time the Indians roamed the plains and the red men are loath to give them. They pooh-pooh the idea that gatherings on occasions of this character lead to trouble and declare that a fair measure of the white man's liberty is being denied.

The "Willow" dance, they said, is given when some brave decides to consecrate himself to certain services to the tribe, and it lasts about two days. Only the men participate painting their bodies as those of ancient costume. They usually feast at its conclusion.

"Gift" Dance.
The "gift" dance is participated in by several tribes and the squaws as well as the men take part. They are garbed in their best, and the dance is a very pretty custom, guests being loaded with presents as evidence of true Indian hospitality.

FIRST STATE
GOVERNOR

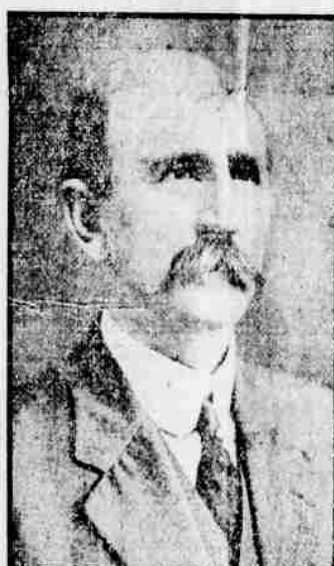

Career of William C. McDonald, Who Will Occupy Mansion

SAFE AND SOUND DEMOCRAT

Native of New York, He Made His Own Way in the World.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) New York, Nov. 9.—Although age 53 years, Born in New York. Worked on farm as boy. Mother died when he was four. Attended public schools. Taught school when 17 to earn his way through Cazenovia Seminary. Went to Fort Scott, Kansas, in 1880. Was admitted to the bar. Came to Las Vegas in 1880, and same year went to White Oaks. Worked in store. Took up surveying and mining engineering. Became manager of Carrizozo Ranch Company in 1890. Assessor, Lincoln county 1885 and 1886. Member of legislature 1890. County Commissioner 1904-1906. Chairman Board of County Commissioners 1905 and 1906. Chairman Democratic Central Committee of Territory 1910 and 1911 until nominated for governor. Has wife and daughter, 20 years old.

William C. McDonald elected governor of New Mexico was born on a farm near the little town of Jordanville, in the southern part of Herkimer county, New York, far from the shores of Otsego Lake. In 1858, His mother died when he was about four years old, and his younger years were spent on the farm and in attendance at the public school which was located about a mile from his home. He began teaching at the age of 17, after having attended a neighboring academy to complete his education at Cazenovia Seminary. He resumed teaching, and while engaged in teaching school he studied law though he never engaged in the practice.

Admitted to Bar in Kansas.
Mr. McDonald came west to Fort Scott, Kansas in the spring of 1880, and while there he was admitted to the bar. In the same year he came to Las Vegas from that place, he went overland to White Oaks where there was considerable excitement over gold discoveries which had been made there. He secured employment in a store owned by A. H. Jones, and the next year, 1881 he took up surveying and mining engineering work which he followed successfully until the summer of 1890 when he took charge of the Carrizozo ranch temporarily. In the fall of 1890 after he had been there a few months, he took charge of the ranch and he has been practically in the absolute control of the management of its affairs ever since.

"During this whole time," said Mr. McDonald, "I have never used a dollar for politics of any one's money except my own."

Held County Office.
He has been honored by the people of his county at different times by being elected to official positions. He was assessor of Lincoln county in 1885 and 1886; was elected as a member of the house of representatives of the twenty-ninth legislative assembly for the counties of Lincoln, Chaves and Eddy in the fall of 1890, and was elected as a member of the board of county commissioners of his county in 1904, serving as chairman of the board in 1905 and 1906. Last December he was elected in his absence and without his knowledge as chairman of the Democratic Central Committee.

Safe and Sound.
Mr. McDonald is a man of ability, well educated, of the strictest integrity and is possessed of a high sense of honor. He has resided for many

ANOTHER JUROR IS TAKEN ILL

Excused Talesman Sobbed, "It's Like Getting Out of Jail"

FIVE MEN ARE NOW SWORN

Further Alterations Are Suggested in Caring for the Jurors

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 9.—The spectre of sickness in the jury box confronted participants in the McNamara murder trial again today and it was said, might lead to further alterations in the method of caring for the jurors. N. M. Bryte, a talesman, passing his first night in the dormitory on the tenth floor of the hall of records reported this morning that he was ill and unable to walk to breakfast. He was taken in a street car. While Bryte's slight illness was not held of moment in itself, it has followed several other cases among talesmen in the four weeks that the trial has lasted. Court attaches suggested that it might be due in part to a mental impression citing the case of Talesman William F. Clark, excused yesterday for ill health, who broke down and wept after his release.

"It's like getting out of jail," he sobbed. "I can't tell you how I felt." J. B. Sexton, a real estate dealer, was accepted as cause by the state at the opening of court today. He was accepted yesterday by the defense, making the second man accepted for cause by both sides since the first three jurors were sworn. The other is Brewster C. Kenyon, a reputed capitalist.

Prospects Are Better.

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 9.—Two more talesmen were accepted as to course in the McNamara murder trial today. They are K. B. Sexton, real estate dealer; Clark McLain, banker. Howard E. Sweeting, a hotel manager, was excused because of his opposition to conviction in capital cases on circumstantial evidence. With three sworn jurors and one other talesman passed already, for cause prospects for getting a jury seemed better than heretofore. It was learned today that District Attorney Fredericks arranged with Indianapolis counsel to act for him with regard to acquiring books and papers of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers according to circumstances.

ORDER IN SPOKANE RATE

MEMORIAL TO ABE LINCOLN

The Log Cabin in which He Was Born Enshrined at Hodgenville

STANDS IN CENTER OF FARM

President Taft Accepts Monument on Behalf of the Nation.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) Hodgenville, Ky., Nov. 9.—Enshrining the Log Cabin in which Abraham Lincoln was born, an imposing granite memorial to him was dedicated here today and accepted for the nation by President Taft. The memorial stands in the center of the farm on which Lincoln's parents settled, after their long journey from Virginia.

Today's exercises, in a measure a continuation of those begun yesterday at Frankfort, where a statue to Lincoln was unveiled in the state capital. The ceremony, however, marked the consummation of a nationwide movement to convert the Lincoln birthplace into a national preserve. Throngs from all parts of the United States witnessed today's event. Former Governor Folk of Missouri, who is president of the Lincoln Farm Association, began the laudation of Lincoln and to this were added tributes by President Taft Governor Willson, Senator Borah and Major General Black, former commander of the Grand Army of the Republic.

MANCHU DYNASTY IS DOOMED

Royalists Only Hold Peking in North and Nanking in the South

BLOODY BATTLE AT LATTER

A Thousand Rebels Are Killed or Wounded in Assault on the City.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) Shanghai, Nov. 9.—Nanking in the south, and Peking in the north, appear tonight to be the remaining strongholds of the Manchus. Up to the present foreigners are safe. Foo Chow, the capital of Fo-Kien province, was turned over to the revolutionists today after little resistance. Wu Lin is likely to capitulate tonight. The Manchus still hold Nanking but they are outnumbered there to one by the revolutionists, who are awaiting supplies of ammunition before resuming the attack. The latter lost heavily yesterday without greatly damaging the enemy and today suspended operations.

The Americans, British and Germans have landed marines to protect the colonies where the foreigners have gathered.

Peking is Doomed.

Peking, Nov. 9.—The excitement is growing tonight. The residents of the Forbidden City are taking in great quantities of rice and other stores. Fifteen hundred infantry and cavalry of the Manchus first division who fled from Shi Kia Chung after the assassination of Gen. Wu Lu Cheng, arrived here today and entered the city. The legations consider that all hope for the Manchu dynasty has vanished.

All Quiet at Tien Tsin.

Tien Tsin, Nov. 9.—All was quiet here at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The city has not yet gone over to the revolutionists.

Fierce Fighting at Nanking.

Nanking, Nov. 9.—The Manchus and Revolutionists rested on their arms today. The loyal troops still held Purple Mountain, the city's stronghold. The besiegers are awaiting ammunition from Shanghai.

In yesterday's fighting, the revolutionists lost 1,000 killed and wounded. The Manchus were strongly entrenched and had six 3-inch guns. They had been very jealous of each other's positions and their quarrel had been taken up by their followers.

Dictator Proclaimed.

In an effort to control the situation Tan Tsinan, the Republican governor has been proclaimed dictator. But he is a scholar and not a leader and is reported as anxious to escape the responsibility. His family has left Chang Sha and some of the members of the provincial cabinet, including the head of the customs and the foreign minister have fled. Rioting and indiscriminate fighting are feared and the people are streaming to the country districts.

Women and Children Leave.

Foreign women and children have been ordered to leave Siang Tan and a similar order has been sent to Chang Te. Other important cities in this province have joined the revolt but in all of them the revolutionists are conducting the government peacefully.

Canton Proclaims Independence.

Hong Kong, Nov. 9.—Canton, the capital of Kwang Tung province, and the largest city in China, formally declared its independence at noon today, when the dragon flag was lowered and a salute in honor of the new government fired.

Attacks Too Soon.

The rebels captured Nantao in the Hunan district without bloodshed and ample ammunition. Toward night the invaders, who had attacked prematurely, ran short of powder and though desultory firing continued through the night, little damage was done on either side.

Rebels Outnumber Loyalists.

The revolutionists far outnumbered the imperialists and are being rapidly reinforced. Today they totaled approximately 25,000 men. Opposing them are about 6,000 Manchus. The outcome depends largely on the loyalty of the Manchus who are disheartened because of the attitude of the government at Peking. Foreigners are safe. The women and children have left the threatened districts and the Americans have found protection in the consulate grounds. The marines and blue jackets have landed from the United States cruiser New Orleans.

Republican Chieftains Murdered.

Chang Sha, Province of Hunan, China, Nov. 1, via Shanghai Nov. 9.—A condition bordering on anarchy exists here owing to the desperate rivalry of the revolutionary leaders, who took possession of the city a few days ago. The two most prominent Republican chieftains, Generals Chiao and Tseng were murdered by soldiers today.

Mukden Too is Rebellious.

The latest advices from Peking say that the situation is quiet there. Refugees are still pouring out of the gates. A cable from Niu Chwang, the chief port of Manchuria, predicts an uprising in Mukden shortly.

Fires at Fu Chow.

Amoy, China, Nov. 9.—The city of Fu Chow is today in the hands of the revolutionists. After taking it, they wiped out the entire Manchu district. The foreign settlements have not

STREET PLEASED WITH DECISION

It Relieves Uncertainty and Uneasiness on Stock Exchange

SLIGHT MODIFICATIONS MADE

Independents Began An Active Fight Against the Reorganization Plan.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—So much uneasiness had been felt last night by a hitch in the Tobacco Trust reorganization that the decision of the United States circuit court accepting the American Tobacco Company's plan was discussed in Wall Street today with manifestations of relief. The effect of the decision on the securities of the Tobacco Company and its subsidiaries was less interesting apparently, than the result in the general market. Although steps may be taken by the independent tobacco men to review the decision, yesterday's action of the circuit court, seems to have stopped talk of receiverships, a hush that has hovered over investors since the independents began their active fight against the reorganization plans proposed by the company.

Stock market operators as a rule, however, anticipated the action of the court ever since the attorney general indicated his approval of the scheme.

The slight modifications made by the court in the proposition submitted by the company, have brought forth no expression of disappointment or disapproval from the officers and counsel of the disintegrating trust.

COL. HENRY F. BOWERS
DIES IN IOWA.

Was Founder of American Protective Association and a Well Known Lawyer and Lecturer.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) Clinton, Iowa, Nov. 9.—Colonel Henry Francis Bowers, founder and for six years president of the American Protective Association died today, aged 74.

Colonel Bowers was born in Baltimore and was educated at home. He removed to Iowa and was deputy clerk of the courts, 1863; deputy recorder, 1869; county recorder 1870-1874. He was admitted to the bar in 1870 and practiced in the U. S. courts. He was a special aide-de-camp with rank of lieutenant-colonel on the staff of Governor Garret 1875-1882. He founded in 1887 the American Protective Association. He lectured in most of the larger American cities.

been disturbed, but fires have broken out in several sections of the native city, threatening its destruction. Fu Chow is one of the most important cities in the south having a population of 700,000. It is the seat of a naval arsenal, government shipyards, a mint, a school of navigation, and a large dry dock. The population is quiet today but a serious state of affairs is threatened, owing to the scarcity of provisions. Most of the city's supply junkies were captured by pirates in a spectacular raid yesterday, the entire crew of the ship being massacred. The American cruiser Albany arrived here today together with a Japanese destroyer.

Troops Revolt.

A revolt of troops in the village of Anheix, fifty miles north of this city, is causing trouble there. The soldiers have burned the magistrate's yamen and the provincial customs house.

Fighting Feared at Tien Tsin.

London, Nov. 9.—A dispatch from Tien Tsin says that the revolutionists this morning posted manifestos throughout the city declaring their intention of seizing Tien Tsin today. They called on all sympathizers to wear the white arm band of the revolutionary movement. The victory is still obstinate. The French consul endeavored without success to persuade him to leave his yamen, which he has surrounded with his guards. It is feared that desperate fighting will occur at this point.

British Warehouses Looted.

In Shanghai the situation becomes increasingly serious. The imperial government has disappeared and the foreign consuls are unable to recognize the self-constituted government, which, however, is maintaining order except across the river where the British warehouses are situated. These were looted this morning. The local police fled on the approach of the rioters.

Will Not Land Marines.

The consular body met today and considered the question of landing marines, but decided that this step would be unwise at present.

They announced that the foreign settlement was prepared for self-defense and that the revolutionists must maintain order in the neighboring districts. Otherwise foreigners must interfere.

Have No Funds.

The revolutionists hold the telegraph offices on the lower Yang Tse and some of these offices have been closed. Their managers absconded, taking with them what cash they had on hand. The government is reported to be without funds.

ET EGO IN ARCADIA.
Where are the loves of yesterday?
Sad and sweet is the old refrain;
Horace sang it half in play;
Villon in measures that throb with pain.
Life at the best is a tangled skein
We are the tools of time and chance.
Yet once on a time we lived in Spain,
And every heart has its old romance.
Where are the loves of yesterday?
Ah, for an hour of youth again—
Youth that was short as a month of May.
Youth with its pulsing blood and brain;
Too soon came autumn with mist and rain,
Too brief the dream, too short the dance;
Yet once on a time we lived in Spain,
And every heart has its old romance.

Where are the loves of yesterday?
Here is a note with a yellow stain,
And here in a book a withered spray
Of sweet aslyssum for years has lain.
But why regret? All things must wane,
Life's sweetest note, love's fondest glance.
Yet once on a time we lived in Spain,
And every heart has its old romance.

Jail Break at Deming.
Two men climbed over the stockade at the jail at Deming, Luna county, and escaped. They held up the sheriff and two of his deputies at the point of Winchester, took their keys away from them and released John Gates, charged with burglary. The men made for the Mexican border.

DESERVED TRIBUTE TO THE LIFE OF MRS. GABLE.
Beautiful Words of Reminiscence and Appreciation Spoken at Her Funeral.

The funeral services for Mrs. Thomas P. Gable were held from the family residence yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock and were attended by many people, both Spanish and American. It was a fitting tribute to the memory of a life that was fragrant with good works in behalf of any one whom she knew was in need.

Rev. B. McCollough, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was the minister in charge. A quartet from that church sang three selections that had been favorites of the deceased.

In conducting the services, Mr. McCollough spoke particularly from the twenty-third Psalm with particular reference to it in relation to the life of Mrs. Gable. After speaking of three divisions of the same as a psalm of Possession, of Peace through calm and storm, and of prospect for all of the future of life, he said that while Mrs. Gable was sick, it had been the comfort and stay of herself constantly. If she had repeated it once, she had repeated it hundreds of times. This was the secret of her beautiful life of charity and loving thought in behalf of others that had made her another Dorcas of good works. This was the secret why, in her hours of pain and misery, she bore it silently, submissively, hopelessly. The Lord was her Shepherd and was leading her. She was satisfied and therefore did not repine.

Said he: "Last night I requested one of my ladies who knew Mrs. Gable well to write out a little tribute to her life. And with her consent I shall read this tribute now." Mrs. L. A. Harvey was the author of the same.

"Mrs. Gable was a lovely home woman; she was devoted to its every interest. Her husband, her children and everything that pertained to their comfort and happiness absorbed her.

"She was fond of children, especially of boys, interested in them all—always amused at their cute or original sayings which she seemed never to forget. In her disposition she was a princess among story tellers. Her supply of droll sayings, ludicrous occurrences and witty stories seemed inexhaustible and she told them with a grace and ease that was captivating to all who heard them.

"She was devoted to her church and its interests. Until illness compelled it, her place there and at the prayer meeting was rarely vacant. She was warm in her sympathies, tender in her feelings and loved to administer to the wants of those who were needy.

"A great sorrow came to her a number of years ago, when 'Tod,' her only son, a bright boy just entering his teens was, after a short illness taken from earth. Several years later her daughter, a young lady of unusually sweet and beautiful character, entered the heavenly home. Now she is reunited with them—not lost to her loved ones or to her friends here—only gone on before them, through the gates into the beautiful city which lies just beyond."

"In reading over this beautiful tribute to the life of our departed friend, I thought of the advice of the old church father of long ago who said to one of his converts: 'When thou comest into this world, all around thee were laughing and thou alone wast crying. So live thou that when thou leavest it all around thee shall be mourning and thou alone shalt be rejoicing. And here we see an illustration of that very thought. This is our tribute to the life of Mrs. Gable.'"

HOME ENDORSEMENT.

Hundreds of Santa Fe Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement, the public expression of Santa Fe people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Santa Fe reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in faraway places. Read the following:

J. T. Sandoval, 115 Ortiz St., Santa Fe, N. Mex., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for two years and they have done me a world of good. A dull pain in the small of my back, sometimes extending into my bladder caused me a great deal of trouble particularly when I took cold. I was bothered mostly in the winter, and in addition to the pain in my back, there were symptoms of inflammation of the bladder. The kidney secretions were highly colored and when passed were attended with a scalding pain. I never used another remedy that acted as satisfactorily as Doan's Kidney Pills. They proved to be just the medicine my case required and the complete cure they brought has led me to recommend them on more than one occasion."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

IMPORTANCE OF PANAMA CANAL

Reviewed in Annual Report of Isthmian Canal Commission

CULEBRA CUT ALMOST READY

Elaborate Scheme for Lighting Waterway Is Fully Explained.

(By Special Teamed Wire to New Mexican) Washington, Nov. 9.—The great mechanical problems connected with the construction of the Panama Canal, which is to be opened to the government in January, 1915, pass in review in the annual report of the Isthmian Canal Commission just made public. The record of the year's achievements in the gigantic task that is being worked out by the Washington government, under Congressional appropriations that so far aggregate $293,561,486, includes:

Completion of almost three-quarters of Culebra Cut. Total excavation of material from Culebra during year 16,221,672 cubic yards at average cost of 58.8 cents per yard.

Big plan laid for canal terminals, including storage of fuel, fresh water and other supplies, repair facilities, etc. Pacific terminal to have dry-dock, storehouse and coaling stations.

Practical completion of plan of all locks.

Elaborate scheme for lighting the canal.

Safeguarding of the canal against big landslides.

The report treats the physical aspects of the big waterway with minute detail. Questions of tolls, form of government and character and extent of population to be permitted in the canal zone have been reported upon in advance sheets of the report already made public.

The locks have been a great problem. Designs for the approach walls at all locks, except one have been prepared. Contracts in force at the beginning of the fiscal year were practically completed and new contracts entered into for a vast amount of frames, valves, gates and other paraphernalia needed to put the canal into operation. More than 954 tons of castings were made on the isthmus.

Building of the great lock gates, each leaf of which is 54 feet 8 inches high—was expedited. At each lock entrance, strong fender chains attached to powerful springs will be installed to prevent ships from battering down the locks.

A floating caisson gate is being installed for use in closing the lock so as to enable workmen to repair the permanent locks and the bottom of sluices.

Canal illumination will be provided by range lights for establishing the direction of vessels on the longer tangents and by side lights a mile apart marking each side of the channel. Buoys and lighted beacons, built of reinforced concrete will abound.

Famous Culebra Cut is ten miles long and deep enough to receive the United States capitol, dome and all. From this cut, despite the enormous excavation during the year, on July 1, last, there remained 23,929,140 cubic yards to be excavated. Estimates of excavation necessary in this cut have been largely increased to allow for the great earth slides. Last year these slides that had to be removed from the canal cutting after it had been practically completed was 4,879,378 yards, or over thirty per cent of all the material removed from the cut.

These slides have occurred where the material excavated was left on a slope steeper than the permanent incline will be and the trouble is expected to cease when the natural slope of the canal banks is restored.

Breaks have occurred on both sides of the cut where the underlying rock is of poor quality and is broken up and squeezed upward by the pressure from beneath and from the sides interrupting the drainage and covering up the railroad track. To meet this condition, intermediate benches have been cut along the slopes to distribute the top weight and reduce the amount of material to be removed. It is declared that when the bottom grade of the canal is reached no further trouble need be anticipated as greater stability will be given by the water. "With both slides and breaks," the Commission says, "the question is one of ultimate amount of excavation, and whatever the feeling elsewhere there is no apprehension on the isthmus as to the final outcome among those acquainted with the facts." The commission thus answers predictions that the canal would be overwhelmed by gigantic landslides, preventing the execution of the project.

The Commission contends that it would be economical to terraced the banks everywhere in advance of the cutting of the canal because a large part of that expensive work might prove wholly unnecessary. Deepening of the cut and widening of the lower reaches has progressed satisfactorily with less interruption or interference on account of slides that at any time since trouble with them began. The slides have caused no increase in the total estimated cost of Culebra Cut. The Cucaracha slide covered 47.1 acres and the Culebra slide 46.6 acres.

A special board has recommended and planned facilities for the storage and furnishing of coal and other fuel for use both afloat and ashore; the furnishing of fresh water to shipping; the furnishing of adequate and convenient facilities for the repair of all vessels, as well as of all rolling stock, equipment and machinery ashore; and of store houses for materials and supplies other than fuel, after the completion of the canal.

The terminal docks will be so arranged as to admit of easy enlargement to meet development in business and size of ships. To begin with the dry docks will conform to the dimensions of the canal and the wharves will be 1,000 feet long.

The total appropriation made by Congress leave $81,639,531 of the estimated cost of canal yet to be appropriated.

For the first time, no contract laborers were brought to the isthmus during the year. There was a decided falling off in immigration, while many West Indian laborers have come into the bush and can no longer be relied upon for steady work.

LEADERS TO VISIT THE BOY SCOUTS.

General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, Founder and Chief Scout Comes To This Country Soon.

Preparations are being made by the leaders of the Boy Scouts of America to have in connection with the visit to this country of General Sir Robert Baden-Powell a thorough inspection of the patrols of boys throughout the country.

Baden-Powell will make a tour of the United States, lasting six weeks. He will deliver lectures on the Scout movement and talk to the boys in the leading cities from Boston to San Francisco.

On his trip he will be accompanied by James E. West, Executive Secretary of the Boy Scouts of America. It will be Mr. West's first trip to the different Boy Scout organizations. In the 20 or 30 big cities and in many small towns where Baden-Powell and West will go, there will be exhibits by the Boy Scouts for the benefit of the visitors.

Every phase of scouting will be exhibited. Baden-Powell will have an opportunity to see the tremendous spread of the Boy Scout movement in this country and to compare the skill the alertness and the general physical condition of the American boys with those of the English boys.

Secretary West will make his first formal inspection of the Boy Scouts of America. He will meet the boys personally and have many heart-to-heart talks with them.

Baden-Powell will arrive in New York in February and will be greeted by the members of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, Scout Masters and Boy Scouts. A dinner will be given in his honor by the Boy Scouts of America in New York. Baden-Powell will go first to Boston and then to Washington where he will meet President Taft, who is honorary president of the Boy Scouts of America. He will continue his trip west to San Francisco whence he will sail for Australia.

Secretary West will meet him at the pier in New York and leave him at the pier in San Francisco, after a journey of many thousand miles.

The tour of the two men will be the first national review, so to speak of the Boy Scouts of America. It is quite likely that in cities where the two men stop there will be gathered troops of Boy Scouts from nearby cities and towns so that as many Boy Scouts as possible will have an opportunity to see England's chief Scout and the Executive Secretary of the Boy Scouts of America.

Troop of Mounted Boy Scouts.

Mounted Boy Scouts are a novelty in this country. A troop of them has been organized under the auspices of the Boy Scouts of America in the Agricultural High School in Sparks, Maryland. It consists of three parols who have been enlisted by H. L. Edy, Scout Commissioner of Baltimore. The members are mostly farmer boys who are accustomed to rides of fifteen to twenty miles every day and from school. When the idea of forming Mounted Boy Scouts was suggested to them, they took it up eagerly. The boys are engaging in activities that have to do chiefly with horses, but they also are training for merit badges that have been arranged for boys who work on farms.

Prize Troop of Scouts in Granite Falls, Minn.

The troop of Boy Scouts of America in Granite Falls, Minnesota which is under the direction of Tolley Hartwick, won a prize recently as the best all round troop of Minnesota. The boys are hardy, alert, cheerful fellows, well versed in scoutcraft. They have camped out many weeks in summer, have taken long hikes and most of them are about to qualify as first-class scouts. They tramped all the way from Granite Falls to St. Paul, Minnesota, to attend the state encampment of the Boy Scouts and then hiked home making a round trip of 400 miles on foot. A splendid showing has been made in St. Paul that aroused the pride of the citizens of their home town, who presented them with a canoe and many other pieces of camp equipment. In all their expeditions the boys were under the careful charge of Scout Master Hartwick who proved his knowledge of scoutcraft because everyone of the scouts gained in weight, despite the hard work on the march.

Keen Scent of Blind Boy Scouts.

The blind Boy Scouts in the Kentucky Institution for Blind recently proved that they have a keener sense of smell than the other scouts in Louisville, Kentucky. The Boy Scouts who can see and the blind boys in Louisville were put to a test by Daniel Carter Beard, National Scout Commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America, along the line of which it is the aim of the leaders of the Scout movement to develop the boys. Beard who is a great favorite with the boys and who has fun in trying them out in various ways first took ten different vials. In each vial was a bit of ab-

Pains All Over!

"You are welcome," says Mrs. Nora Guffey, of Broken Arrow, Okla., "to use my letter in any way you want to, if it will induce some suffering woman to try Cardui. I had pains all over, and suffered with an abscess. Three physicians failed to relieve me. Since taking Cardui, I am in better health than ever before, and that means much to me, because I suffered many years with womanly troubles, of different kinds. What other treatments I tried, helped me for a few days only."

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

Don't wait, until you are taken down sick, before taking care of yourself. The small aches and pains, and other symptoms of womanly weakness and disease, always mean worse to follow, unless given quick treatment.

You would always keep Cardui handy, if you knew what quick and permanent relief it gives, where weakness and disease of the womanly system makes life seem hard to bear. Cardui has helped over a million women. Try it.

soberant cotton. The cotton in one vial for instance contained spirits of ammonia; another ginger; another kerosene; another peppermint. All the different substances were of the most ordinary kind. One vial, however, was a dummy. Each vial was numbered.

Beard gave 100 boys an opportunity to guess the contents of each vial. The best that any boy could see could do was to guess five of the odors. Some of the boys only guessed three. Then Beard took the vials to the institution for the blind and tried out the blind Boy Scouts. The majority of the boys guessed the vials correctly and caught the dummy. The average among the blind boys was eight. Very few of the blind boys were below six. Beard points out that the sense of smell of the blind boys was more accurately trained than that of boys who could see. He explains, however, that it is the aim of the Boy Scout Movement to train the senses of the boys to a still higher degree and says that the Boy Scouts should be ashamed of themselves if they let blind boys show up their proficiency.

Boy Scout Manual May Be Put in Belgian Language.

Parts of the manual of the Boy Scouts of America will be translated into the Belgian language. Harold Parfitt, Chief Scout of the Boy Scouts of Belgium has read the manual and has been so impressed with it as a handbook for boys that he has asked permission of the Executive Council of the Boy Scouts of America to translate part of it for the use of the Belgian boys. "The book," he writes, "is brimful of indispensable information and we would like to use some of it. Will you kindly put it before the council and let me know if they agree? It would be the means of advancing the movement in Europe." The Executive Board has complied with his request. The manual as was announced recently, also may be printed in Spanish.

Porto Rican Boys Appeal for a Scout Master.

The enthusiasm that the activities of the Boy Scout movement arouses in the boy and the importance of the Scout Master to the boys are vividly shown in a letter which Jose Santana of Manati, Porto Rico, wrote recently to the Secretary of War. He and ninety other scouts were without a Scout master. They appealed to the Secretary of War to get a Scout Master for them. Succinctly and pointedly Santana says: "An army without a leader is nothing; the same to us without a Scout master." Santana's letter which is remarkable in many ways follows: "The purpose of this letter is to tell you that the Boy Scouts of Manati are without a Scout Master. The favor we ask is to send us our dear Scout Master, M. L.

Oxenham. He is very good and did good work specially in scouting. We are in need of a Scout Master. The number of us now is ninety. We hope you will make this favor to us and oblige from you we remain,

"Perhaps it may be that we give a good service to the nation. Young men we are but now young men! We are ready such as the army of the Boy Scouts of America. We think you know the distance from Manati to San Juan. We have walked all that in a night without stopping and obtained second premium in first Insular Fair.

"Now Sir, telling again the matter of Oxenham perhaps you know him. We don't know. He is a native from Brooklyn, New York. You take some notice of him from National Quarters, N. Y. You think about an army without a leader is nothing; the same to us without a Scout Master.

"We wait from one decision from you and tell what you can do for us. In five days we are all in Post-office waiting for that pretty answer.

"Hon. Sir, Don't forget the favor we beg of you (Address) Jose Santana, Boy Scout of Manati."

J. F. Parker, 2021 No. 10th St., Ft. Smith, Ark., says that he had taken many kinds of kidney medicine, but did not get better until he took Foley Kidney Pills. No matter how long you have had kidney trouble, you will find quick and permanent benefit by the use of Foley Kidney Pills. Start taking them now.

PROPOSING TO BUILD LINE TO PECOS.

Fort Worth, Texas, Nov. 9.—It is believed in West Texas that the Southern Pacific Railroad purposes building and operating a branch line to extend from Marfa, on the main line of the Galveston, Houston & San Antonio Railway, in a northerly direction to Pecos. It is suggested the railroad is contemplating the purchase of the Pecos Valley Southern railroad, a line built out of Pecos a distance of fifteen to twenty miles to the Davis mountains, and then building between Fort Davis and Marfa. Failing to purchase the Pecos Valley Southern, the Southern Pacific may build all the way from Marfa to Pecos. Marfa and Fort Davis have offered the railroad a bonus of $100,000 to build and operate this line.

The development of the apple and fruit industry in the neighborhood of Fort Davis has assumed such large proportions, and alfalfa growing has come to be so important through irrigation as to make this proposed short line more attractive than heretofore, and the prospects are said to be good for the building of this railway.

Danderine

Grows hair and we can prove it

Hair Becomes Soft, Fluffy, Lustrous and Beautiful Immediately After a Danderine Hair Cleanse

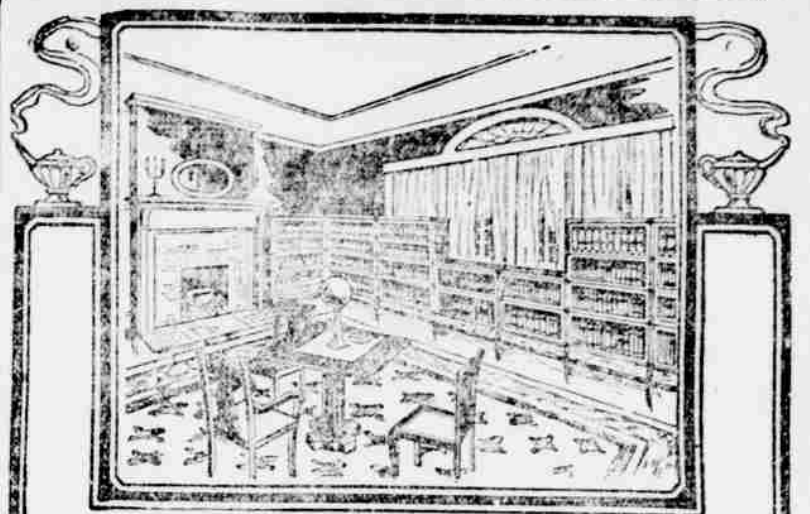

Get a 25 Cent Bottle Now and Forever Stop Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff

A little Danderine now will immediately double the beauty of your hair—No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Try as you will after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few week's use when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it, if you will just try a little Danderine. Real surprise awaits you.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF SANTA FE COUNTY.

The New Mexican is the oldest newspaper in New Mexico. It is sent to every postoffice in the Territory, and has a large and growing circulation among the intelligent and progressive people of the Southwest.

WILLIAM C. M. DONALD, GOVERNOR.

It might be worse. Mr. McDonald belongs to that wing of the Democratic party which is conservative, which is safe and sound, which while it is progressive, yet is not the follower of wild Socialist theories to which so large a part of Democracy has been lately addicted. Personally he is clean and competent and a man of large experience. He has a charming family.

With a Republican state legislature and a Republican supreme court and state officers, the Republicans are assured that New Mexico is Republican and will send Republican senators to Congress. As to the defeat of so worthy and unselfish a man as Holm O. Bursum, there can not be aught but regret. He is a victim of personal venom and spleen, not on the part of Democrats but on the part of some 3,000 Republicans in Colfax, Bernalillo and Sandoval counties, who in pursuing their own little selfish aims made a sacrifice of the best friend that they have.

BETTER BUSINESS CONDITIONS.

There are signs of improvement in the business situation. This is partly shown by the recovery in stocks, which in turn has imparted a better tone in other lines of business. The present ease in money is a potent factor in both financial and commercial recuperation. So, too, is the decline in prices which has recently affected nearly all commodities except meats. Moreover, retrenchment has been so severe and prolonged that stocks of merchandise in all parts of the country have become abnormally reduced. Lower prices and small stocks offer a combination which buyers can not indefinitely ignore.

American railroads have economized to a degree that cannot be continued much longer without impairment of efficiency or physical condition. They are already beginning to enter the market for equipment, having recently placed orders for 20,000 cars and 20,000 tons of steel rails, with other important orders pending. This is significant, for our railroads are usually among the largest and shrewdest buyers, and as the biggest consumers of iron and steel their action affects a wide range of interests.

The railroads have not felt business depression as keenly as predicted by railroad managers and others interested in the defense against government regulation. Dividends have been well maintained because traffic has really not contracted as much in volume as feared or pretended. In various lines of industry profits have been curtailed through increased expenses, but outside of the iron and textile interests there has been no great shrinkage in the volume of business. This is proved by railroad traffic returns.

The country has secured a bumper cotton crop and a big corn crop. Our foreign trade is in excellent shape, and the excess of exports during the past nine months reached the unusual amount of $320,000,000. The exports of manufactures alone are running at the record-breaking rate of a billion dollars per annum. At a recent big auction sale of rugs valued at $1,500,000 the demand was brisk and prices very satisfactory.

Big business has been disgruntled because its policies and plans have been interfered with by enforcement of the Sherman law. Big business, however, is rapidly recovering its equilibrium and getting into a more amiable frame of mind. Excessive industrial centralization has been restrained without bringing on the dire consequences predicted; property, it is discovered, will not be confiscated; production and consumption are going on regardless of the Sherman law, and it is only a question of time when adjustment to its requirements will be completed. The country has safely passed the crisis incidental to compliance with the law. There is one doubt less, now that the supreme court has interpreted the law, and this element of disturbance should hereafter gradually diminish in importance.

With a presidential election ahead political conditions are much unsettled, hence we may be obliged to endure a year of more or less agitation and disturbance. The problems of revising the tariff and checking excessive centralization of the money power are still pre-eminent in public opinion. Possibly the requirements of national revenue will prevent any radical changes in the tariff beyond the elimination of unnecessary protection in the textile and steel schedules. Our political action always proves less drastic than talk.

All things considered, the business outlook must be regarded as sounder and more cheerful than for many months, though not warranting any sudden change of position nor any return to excessive optimism. For the present it would seem sufficient to note that the business current appears to be about turning. Much will depend upon political developments in the future, and in this direction there is less reason for encouragement than might be desired. The New England election may throw interesting sidelight on the tariff fight.

REVISING THE TARIFF.

Facts and figures which will enable Congress to revise intelligently Schedule K will be submitted to that body with the opening of the session next month. With this action in the extra session as a precedent there can be no doubt that several members of Congress will go into that session with their minds made up as to how they will treat the report of the tariff board and the arbitrary action they will take. But the wise and honest statesman, no matter how prejudiced to protective tariff, will enter the halls of Congress with a free and unbiased mind, willing to treat the subject at least with the fair consideration merited by any plan which has been worked out on a reasonable basis.

No member of the present congress appreciates the fact more than does President Taft that Schedule K needs revising. With his innate honesty Mr. Taft openly and publicly admits possible. But he wants it revised in a manner which will disturb business least and consequently bring the least amount of inconvenience to the working classes for any disturbance of business conditions inevitably falls on this class. And to bring about the desired ends in the best interests of all classes and to the country as a whole the President realizes that revision of the tariff must be taken out of the hands of the politicians. A number of those very men who attempted to precipitously remove the tariff at the extra session were imbued with the same thoughts when they voted for the creation of the tariff board. Then why the change of front? Simply because the politician was allowed to overshadow the man in the wild scramble for position and popular effect in the extra session when a number of leaders in Congress had axes to grind in the coming political campaign, and they saw the opportunity to attract attention to themselves.

President Taft took the only wise course when he stood out as the defender of the business stability of this country and refused to allow these personally selfish politicians to upset the business of the country for their own gain and insisted that Congress wait until it had the facts gathered by the tariff board before it attempted to revise the tariff schedule. When this new system becomes sufficiently established, when the nation has at its command the statistics gathered by experts, the tariff can be adjusted to the exigencies of the times without the period of depression which has usually accompanied the tinkering by the politicians and which the country suffers with even the contemplation of the hammer and tongs methods employed by men after political records rather than the more illustrious honors of faithful service to their country.

To this end President Taft stood out against the majority of Congress and very properly exercised his veto power and if the members of Congress want to be honest to themselves, and to the people they represent and to their country, be they Democrats or Republicans, they will go to Washington in December in a receptive mood and prepared to hear the facts concerning the tariff gathered by a non-partisan board and act with an equally non-partisan spirit in adjusting the tariff schedules.

THE BOY IN THE SMALL TOWN.

At Olathe, Kans., a town now has been started over the question of permitting a billiard hall to remain in the city. The objection against the billiard hall is that it places a temptation in the way of boys. On the other hand there are some full grown men in Olathe who want to play billiards when they feel like it, and they insist that the parents of the boys ought to assume the obligation of keeping minors from the billiard hall.

The Olathe controversy is interesting only because it reflects the condition in small towns everywhere. At nearly every active election the issue in the smaller towns is whether or not there shall be billiard halls.

The complaint against the billiard hall in the small town is the same as that at Olathe. There is no other form of amusement offered for the boys, and therefore the billiard hall has become the natural loafing place for them. And a common loafing place makes common loafers out of the "town gangs."

But merely to close the billiard hall does not offer the solution the people of Olathe are looking for. The street corner would then become the civic center of Boyville, and the street corner is quite as bad or even worse than the town billiard hall.

There should be other places than the billiard hall and the saloon for the boy—places made more attractive to him than the billiard hall and the saloon. There are such places but they are closed the greater part of each day and for each week for no plausible reason that appeals to the New Mexican. Every church every school house, every public library, should be open 24 hours of each day, seven days in the week and should be equipped with those things that would attract young men and young women, instead of making it a painful and disagreeable duty to go there at all.

Civilization and Christianity are very crude until they become practical in that manner. Immense capital is locked up in a beautiful building, used only a few hours of the week, and then only by people who go there out of a sense of duty, instead of because it is a pleasure. The editor the other Sunday, in looking over a church full of people, counted only nine mature men, and only seven youths, and four of the sixteen were there because it was their duty to hand out hymn books. The Boy Scouts the Y. M. C. A., and other organizations which believe in the healthy, natural life, should find beautiful homes in these structures instead of being banished to cheerless tumble-down rooms or not existing at all for lack of suitable quarters. There is the solution of the boy problem, not in the abolishment of amusement places like billiard or pool halls.

JOURNAL OF EDUCATION.

The November number of the New Mexico Journal of Education is from press and both in appearance and contents is a fine number. Speaking of the annual convention of the New Mexico Educational Association at Santa Fe next week, it says: "This year to a very much larger degree than in former years, school boards will allow their teachers 'time off' to attend the New Mexico Educational Association without loss of pay. This is done on the assumption that there will be a return of some kind to the school and every teacher should feel in duty and honor bound to justify the recess occasioned in the school work. On returning from the Association, let a meeting of teachers, school officers and parents be held. Let each school teacher give a few minutes talk on that feature of the state meeting which shall have been of most interest and value to her. Have informal discussions on each topic by those present. Make local and practical application of the suggestions received. It may be possible to take advantage of the occasion to organize a Mothers' Club. School Improvement Association or some other improvement in the interest of the local schools."

MAIN TO REMAIN

PROHIBITION STATE.

Augusta, Me., Nov. 9.—Maine retains constitutional prohibition. Governor Plaisted and his council have decided to accept the corrections in the vote of four towns, cast in the special election in September, thus reversing the result as indicated on the face of the first official returns.

Returns on election day, September 11, indicated a majority of about 300 against the repeal of the prohibition amendment, but the later official count showed a majority of twenty-six for repeal.

CHICHESTER'S PILLS

THE DIAMOND BRAND. Indigestion, Acidity, Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Nervousness, Irritability, and all the ailments of the digestive system. Take one or two of these pills after each meal, and you will find them a most reliable and effective remedy. Sold by druggists everywhere.

CHILDREN INJURED

Ordinary Cathartics and Pills and Harsh Physic Cause Distressing Complaints.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given, except in emergency cases. Ordinary pills, cathartics and purgatives are apt to do more harm than good. They may cause griping, nausea and other distressing after effects that are frequently health-destroying.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as the safest and most dependable remedy which we know for constipation and associated disorders. We have such absolute faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowels, thus overcoming weakness and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies commonly and completely relieve constipation, except, of course, when of a surgical character. They also tend to overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition. Three sizes of packages, 10 cents, 25 cents and 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Santa Fe only at our store.—The Rexall Store. The Fischer Drug Co. 232 San Francisco St.

The Same Old Story.

"It's curious how habits fasten themselves on people. You know Wappley?"

"Yes."

"He's an enthusiastic fisherman, and always has a story to tell about some gigantic monster of the deep that he almost caught."

"I've heard him tell a lot of lies of that kind."

"Well, it seems that burglars broke into his house the other night and he got up and captured one of them—a little fellow—but you ought to hear him tell about the size of the one that got away."

Thackeray's Reckless Feet.

It may be feared that some people will find proof of Thackeray's possession of a lively sense of humor in the story that he once put his feet out of a hack window while riding through a Boston street.

When we consider the narrowness and crookedness of those thoroughfares, it isn't the humor, but the wild recklessness of Thackeray's feet that most impresses us.

He Knew His Business.

Proprietor of Millinery Shop—Why didn't that lady buy anything?

New Assistant—Because we hadn't got what she wanted.

Proprietor—You'll kindly remember in future, miss, that you're here to sell what I keep, and not what people want!—London Opinion.

HITTING BACK.

Mrs. Diggs—I am a true daughter of Eve.

Mrs. Wiggs—I'd like to know in what way? You can neither cook nor wash dishes.

Mrs. Diggs—Neither could Eve.

Feels Badly.

"A guilty conscience needs no sinner," observed the moralizer. "That's so," assented Deacon Flimmer. "When a pillar of the church secretes a quart bottle of whisky in his hip pocket he imagines he looks like a hunchback."

Wanted.

Mrs. Finefeather—Are you taking your husband abroad this year?

Mrs. Benton—No, I decided last year when he insisted I upon speaking of the Venetian gondolas as canal boats that the real charm of Europe is lost upon him.

Millionaire's Philosophy.

"But, doctor, do you really believe that it's harder to go through the eye of a needle for a rich man to enter heaven?"

"That is what the good book tells us."

"Then what's the use of trying?"—Exchange.

SOME NOTES ON NEVADA MINING DISTRICT.

The United States Geological Survey has recently published as Bulletin 414 "Notes on some mining districts in Humboldt County, Nevada," by F. L. Ransome. The bulletin is a reconnaissance report on some 7,000 square miles including the Seven Troughs, Rosebud, Star, Unionville, Humboldt, Fitting, Chafey, Kennedy, and Adelaide districts, also the Red Butte and the Copperfield or White Cloud district. Mr. Ransome discusses the geology, mineralogy and the mining operations of the region. His conclusion is that the southern portion of Humboldt county is part of a metallogenetic province characterized chiefly by the prevalence of antimonial ores or silver with numerous and widely scattered deposits of stibnite and cinnabar. There are in addition some deposits of gold-silver, copper and nickel cobalt ores. One deposition probably began immediately after the intrusion of the Triassic and Jurassic sediments in late Mesozoic time by a magma of generally granodioritic composition, comparable with that which invaded the rocks of the Sierra Nevada at the same period, and continued into the Tertiary. The known Tertiary deposits are essentially gold-silver ores and copper ores, but it is possible that some of the other types are also of Tertiary.

EXTREMELY COLD WEATHER IN CANADIAN NORTHWEST.
Price of Wheat is Therefore Hoisted, and Corn at First Weak, is Strengthened.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) Chicago, Ill., Nov. 9.—Extremely cold weather in the Canadian Northwest tended today to hoist the prices of wheat. The opening was a shade lower to 3-8c up. December started at 93 1/4 to 93 3/8c, unchanged to 1-8c, unchanged to 1-8c higher and advanced to 93 7/8c.

The close was steady with December 1 1/4 to 1-5c, net higher at 94 1/4 to 3-8c.

Corn at first inclined to be weak on the theory that the government report would generally be regarded as against the bears but commission buying brought about a rally. December opened 1-8 to 1-4c down at 62 7/8 to 63c and then rose to 63 1/8 to 1-4c.

The close was steady at 63 1/4 for May, a net gain of 1-8c.

In the oats crowd, traders were governed by the course of wheat. December started 1-8c higher, at 46 7/8c, touched 46 1-2c and advanced to 46 3/4c.

Strength in the hog market brought an improvement in quotations for packing house products. Initial sales were 2 1/2 to 12 1-2c up with May deliveries 16.30 to 16.37 1-2c for pork; 9.35 for lard, and 8.37 1-2c to 8.40 to 8.40 for ribs.

It has been said that nothing makes a man feel more like a "stuffed sausage"—with the skin pulled tight—than the average full-dress suit or tuxedo. This IS really true of the AVERAGE full dress or tuxedo—but simply because the right tailoring is not there. The ROYAL TAILORS are Evening Clothes Makers supreme. They have mastered the art of making a formal garment that is only formal in name, with all the stiffness and clammy feeling left out. A Royal Dress Suit or Tuxedo drapes gracefully, easily over the body lines, and gives the wearer a perfect "at home" feeling. A handsome FULL DRESS or TUXEDO with silk linings, from

MR. JEPSON'S GLIDE

By JOHN CHARLETON

"You'll have to give up some of those fool ideas of yours if you expect to marry me," said the Widow Long emphatically, when her fiancé held up to the door with a stout cane held in each hand. "I heard all about that accident of yours—and I'm not going to risk my future peace of mind by having you go against the scripture and go cavorting around into space!"

As she spoke the pretty widow skillfully assisted Bartholomew Jepson into her sitting room, carried his hat and overcoat into the next room, propped his wounded foot upon a comfortable foot-rest and poured out a great tumbler full of sweet cider. She did it all so quietly and deftly that it seemed like one continuous action instead of a variety of small ones.

She sat down opposite him in a low, comfortable rocking chair and picked up the long braid of colored rag strips she was making into a mat. She tossed the braid end to Bartholomew Jepson, and he who had often waited upon her in like manner, held it obediently while the widow's deft fingers flew back and forth, in and out, weaving the bright colored rag strips into a smooth flexible braid.

Bartholomew watched her with enchanted eyes. He admired her small, supple sun-browned fingers and when he lifted his admiring gaze to her dimpled face he expected to see the customary crinkly smile about her eyes and lips. Instead of the smile he was confronted with a frown—in a plain person one would have called it a scowl.

"What is the matter, Libbie?" he asked uneasily.

"Matter with what?" she demanded, shortly.

"With you? You look—er—out of sorts."

Libbie Long looked at him scornfully. "You heard what I said when you came in, Bartholomew Jepson—and you have the impudence to ask me what is the matter?"

Jepson cast his thoughts back to the moment of his entrance when Libbie had assisted him into her house. Surely, she had said something about not marrying him because of his crazy notion—that meant she disapproved of his attempts to conquer the air as other men were doing every day all over the country. He felt a resentment growing underneath his admiration for Libbie Long. Unconsciously—and unfortunately—he expressed his thoughts aloud.

She Did It All Quietly.

"I ain't been a bachelor for so many years as I have, to be dictated to now," he said.

"What?" demanded the pretty widow, sitting up very straight.

"I was thinking to myself," apologized Bartholomew suddenly.

"If that's the kind of thoughts you harbor, you better—" Mrs. Long paused significantly.

"I better?" asked Jepson excitedly. "Yes, you better!" flared Libbie.

"When I engaged myself to marry you, Bartholomew Jepson, I thought you were a sensible man, but I'd never seen you anywhere except in that bookstore of yours. I thought to myself that a man who keeps a bookstore couldn't help but be steady and quiet—and if anyone had told me that you'd be the first one in Kedar to try to fly through the air, I would have laughed in his face."

"I don't see anything funny in it," said Jepson, rather sourly. "That's the way in Kedar—they despise the sciences."

"Science indeed! I don't see much science about carrying a gliding machine to the roof of a house and trying to glide off to the ground without hurting yourself. You've broken three legs and a collar bone so far, besides spraining your ankle yesterday."

"It's in a great cause," protested Jepson, solemnly.

"Fiddle-de-dee!" and Libbie jerked the completed braid out of her lover's grasp and began to roll it into a big ball. Her eyes snapped dangerously. "You can choose between me and the old gliding machine!"

A most uncomfortable silence fell upon the room. Libbie rolled her ball vigorously and Bartholomew Jepson averted his eyes from her feet while Libbie's poll parrot on the stand in the corner cocked an inquisitive eye at his mistress.

"I can't give up the gliding machine," said Bartholomew with unexpected spirit in one usually so meek, and during an ominous silence he hobbled across the room, retrieved his hat and overcoat, managed to get into one and balance the other on his head.

"I wish you good day, Libbie," he said quietly, and went away.

"Fool!" shrieked the parrot angrily.

"Keep still, Polly!" chided Libbie Long. "I know I'm a fool, but oh, dear, I thought he would be easier to manage!"

"O-o-o-oh! Lawks!" shrieked the bird disgustedly and turned his back on his despondent mistress.

"I don't suppose he will ever come back," mused Libbie Long, as she sat there alone. "The way he spoke when I told him to choose between me and the gliding machine was as much as to say there were plenty of women in the world but only one gliding machine. Perhaps after he breaks a few more arms and legs he'll come to his senses," she ended plaintively, for she was sorry for herself. She spoke of Bartholomew Jepson's injuries much as if he had been a centipede instead of a biped.

So their engagement was suspended, so to speak, for the widow did not return the amethyst ring Bartholomew had placed upon her finger.

"Let him come after it," she murmured to herself every time she looked at it, and that was very often, for she continued to wear it on her engagement finger.

Bartholomew Jepson's house was situated on what was known as the Upper Bay road and Libbie Long's was on the Lower Bay road. Bartholomew's was built on a sort of plateau that shelved off perhaps 50 feet into Libbie Long's back yard. In front of the Jepson house there ran the Upper Bay road and the view of harbor and surrounding hillsides was beautiful. Libbie's house was very old and weather-beaten with wide chimneys and a mossy roof. After they were married Bartholomew and his bride had planned to sell the widow's old home and live in the Jepson house.

Several weeks passed away and the amateur glider recovered the use of his maimed ankle and once more they told stories of how "Batty" Jepson was practicing with his gliding machine. Those who watched said that they had seen him make several successful flights or glides from the ridgepole of his barn to the back doorway of his house.

Some festivity in the village diverted all attention from Mr. Jepson's efforts on the most brilliant moonlight night of the autumn. He had planned a daring glide. He was going to start from the roof of his house and glide gently and swiftly through the air to the Lower road. There was a broad space between the locust trees near Libbie Long's house that would admit of his free passage between them.

Bartholomew Jepson's glide was successful in more ways than one. He left the roof of his house, headed straight between the two tall trees, when a bat flew into his face; he veered suddenly and then losing control of himself plunged solidly downward, crashing through the Widow Long's frail roof, leaving a tearing hole in the shingles and landing plumply on a pile of feather beds in the attic.

When the frightened widow came into the attic, candle in hand, she stared at Bartholomew Jepson's pale face with consternation mingled with joy in her own.

"You see—I came—back, Libbie," smiled Bartholomew, for he had missed Libbie more than he dared acknowledge.

"Oh, you have hurt yourself again—where is it now?" bawled Libbie Long, absently permitting the glider to kiss her plump cheek.

"I expect—it's my heart this time," grinned Bartholomew with recovered spirits as he emerged from his feather nest.

His Pride Aroused.

The tramp leaned against the door jamb, while Miss Annabel Sheldon peered out at him through the screen, and he gazed past her at the kitchen table. "You look strong," said Miss Annabel. "Are you equal to the task of sawing and splitting half a cord of wood?"

"Equal to it, madam?" said the tramp. "The word is inadequate. I am superior to it, and a moment later the sunshine played on the door-jamb where his figure had so lately leaped and down in the road drifted a cloud of dust raised by his patient, plodding feet."

The Trouble.

"It seems King George and Queen Mary are in an acrobatic fix about their dread of the native way of riding in India."

"How so?"

"If they ride the native steed, they will have an elephant on their hands."

His Time ON.

"Is your husband working?"

"Sure he has a fine new job."

"What is he doing?"

"Working on a merry-go-round."

"Kin he get off often?"

"Whenever it stops."

Another Matter.

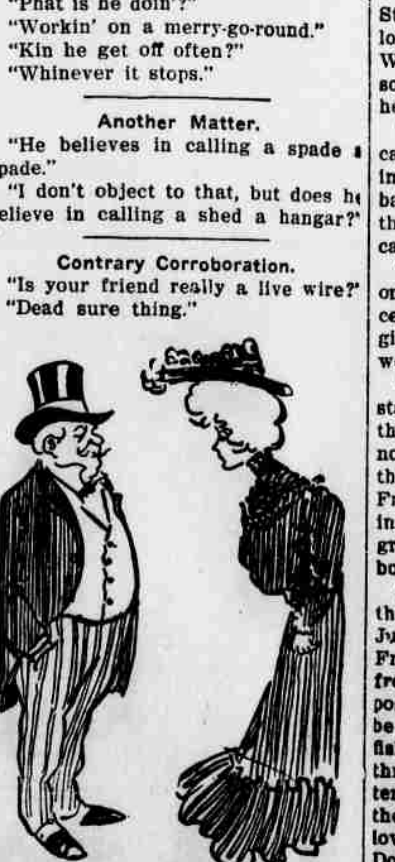

"He believes in calling a spade a spade."

"I don't object to that, but does he believe in calling a shed a hangar?"

Contrary Corroboration.

"Is your friend really a live wire?"

"Dead sure thing."

Miss Jones—I admire one thing about you very much. You never make any bluff about retiring from politics.

The Politician—I only worked that bluff once, but everybody became so delighted that it nearly took me a year to disprove the rumor.

CARSTAIR'S FRIEND

By LOUISE MERRIFIELD

"It's such a bully little retreat," Carstairs explained on the way up the valley from the station. "I haven't been here for several years, but I can taste the fish now from that lake."

"On your place?"

"Yep, all of it. Deer too, in season. Otter, coon, fox all sorts of game. And the house is a regular lodge. Six rooms, huge rock fire places, woods growing clear up to the doorstep. All I have to do is shut the door, and put on a padlock, and it's there when I care to come back to it, just as I left it."

"Hire a caretaker?" Street asked, casually. "I suppose you have to."

"Ten a year to the first neighbor down the road. French Canadian chap, very decent and awfully obliging, too." Carstairs beamed out at the landscape with the air of a homecoming baron. He was still young enough to take himself very seriously, even his vacations. Street did not answer. He was on the back seat of the rickety carry-all, they had picked up at the station below, and a good, solid sense of contentment flooded his whole being as the hill ranges unfolded in overlapping vistas, and the sunlight suffused the green forest about in golden glory. It was simply great, he decided, great of good old Carstairs to think of him, and bring him up for the season. He was meditating lazily how he could make it up to Carstairs when the wagon turned a bend in the road, and a beautiful sweep of lake lay before them, with wooded shores rising steeply on every side.

"Here is where we will rest and loaf and invite our souls, Rolly boy," Carstairs stood up to get a better view, and took off his hat in salute to the beauty of it all. In the distance, smoke curled up from a white rock chimney among the trees. But words died on the owner's lips. Not 15 paces away from them, standing perilously out on a log in the water was a girl, and she was fishing.

Street never forgot the picture she made, in a linen skirt, ankle length, a faded, old rose silk kimono to her waist, open at the throat, and short sleeved, and on her head a peaked Mexican hat, somewhat adrift. That was all they saw, except the long braid of heavy black hair that hung down her back.

Street stopped, for Carstairs was climbing out of the wagon, and deliberately making for the trespasser on his fish preserves.

"Can you direct us to the Carstairs place?" he asked, quite diplomatically. Street thought, considering.

She merely raised one tanned, rounded arm, and pointed towards the chimney.

"They call that house something of the sort, I believe."

"Fishing good?"

Then she did look up at him, grudgingly, appraisingly, looked also at the waiting carry-all, and its ancient driver, and at Street—longest, at Street.

"Sometimes," she said, gravely. "Mostly pickered and perch. I get all I need, though."

"Do you indeed?" remarked Carstairs, and he eyed her speculatively through his eye glasses. "Er—who owns the place yonder?"

"I don't know. I have rented it from the caretaker for the season, three months."

"You—you have rented it for the season from the caretaker?" Carstairs dropped his eye glasses, and recovered them helplessly. She bowed her head, and looked over at Street.

"Rent paid in advance," she added firmly. "There are several of us summing there."

"Are there? How delightful! I'm so glad you like it, you know, so awfully glad." Carstairs was floundering desperately. "Because, you see, I'm Carstairs myself, I—I bought the place a couple of years back."

"Did you?" she turned with a quick smile. "Why, then, you're our landlord, aren't you? I'm happy to meet you."

"Don't mention it," murmured Carstairs.

"Because, you know, we've been so inconvenienced. The roof leaks."

"It shall be repaired. My—yes, by Jove, my friend repairs roofs."

"Does he?" She smiled over at Street. "Does he repair wells also, and locks, and fireplaces that won't burn? We need help badly. I think it was so kind of you to come all the way up here to see if we were comfortable."

That was the final shot. Carstairs capitulated. After promising all the improvements desired, he climbed back into the carry-all, and ordered the driver to go to the house of the caretaker.

"You're not going to visit his sons on the girl in question, are you, Stacey?" Street asked. "She's a bully girl. I'll look after the roof and the well."

"Now, we'll divide up fairly at the start," Carstairs answered. "You take the roof, and I'll take the well. I'm not going to row with anybody over this godsend. We'll put up at the French Canadian house, and say nothing. Did you see her eyes, Rolly, great Scott, did you see her eyes, boy?"

That was the start. For two months through the long, hazy, lazy days of July and August they remained at the French Canadian shack half a mile from the lodge. They repaired every possible thing on the place that could be repaired. And above all, they rode, fished, walked and loafed with the three Kenyon girls. Two were sisters, Madeline and Lois, but it was their cousin both Carstairs and Street loved, the girl under the peaked hat, Dolly Kenyon. And comradesly, each waited for the other.

"You take first chance, Rolly," Carstairs would say. "You've got the right of way anyhow? Aren't you my guest? If circumstances were different, I could choke you and throw you to the fishes for bait, but hang it all, I'm your host. Why don't you ask her, and not the snow cover with?"

Street never forgot the picture she made, in a linen skirt, ankle length, a faded, old rose silk kimono to her waist, open at the throat, and short sleeved, and on her head a peaked Mexican hat, somewhat adrift. That was all they saw, except the long braid of heavy black hair that hung down her back.

Street stopped, for Carstairs was climbing out of the wagon, and deliberately making for the trespasser on his fish preserves.

"Can you direct us to the Carstairs place?" he asked, quite diplomatically. Street thought, considering.

She merely raised one tanned, rounded arm, and pointed towards the chimney.

"They call that house something of the sort, I believe."

"Fishing good?"

Then she did look up at him, grudgingly, appraisingly, looked also at the waiting carry-all, and its ancient driver, and at Street—longest, at Street.

"Sometimes," she said, gravely. "Mostly pickered and perch. I get all I need, though."

"Do you indeed?" remarked Carstairs, and he eyed her speculatively through his eye glasses. "Er—who owns the place yonder?"

"I don't know. I have rented it from the caretaker for the season, three months."

"You—you have rented it for the season from the caretaker?" Carstairs dropped his eye glasses, and recovered them helplessly. She bowed her head, and looked over at Street.

"Rent paid in advance," she added firmly. "There are several of us summing there."

"Are there? How delightful! I'm so glad you like it, you know, so awfully glad." Carstairs was floundering desperately. "Because, you see, I'm Carstairs myself, I—I bought the place a couple of years back."

"You don't do that to a friend, Stacey," smiled back Street. "Go ahead, and let the best man win, say I. I'm willing to take the chance. It's just fate's pure coyness anyhow. We always did have the same taste in life, old boy."

"I'd die for her," groaned Carstairs, dropping his eye glass out of sheer helpless nerve tension.

"I know. Street looked up at the clear night sky, and grinned. "I'd live for her."

It was the next week it happened. From the porch of the lodge the girls could look over the lake, and they saw the whole affair. The two had been out all the morning fishing in a light rowboat. Street was seated, Carstairs standing easily at the stern, when he seemed to lose his balance. At Lois' cry Dolly was on her feet instantly. She saw Carstairs fall backwards into the lake, and well did she know the depth, and treacherous undergrowth beneath the calm dark waters. Madeline started on a run down to the lake, but the Frenchman's for help. Lois half slipped to the floor in a dead faint, and still the other girl stood motionless and shocked watching the boat, watching Street as he took the dive after his friend. Then she too ran, but not after Madeline. Down at the shore was her own boat, a stocky, well built one, and she sent it out towards the other that floated empty on the water. It seemed as though her heart were choking her, that length of time when she waited for them to rise again, wondering if they would ever rise, if they might not be entangled at some awful depth in that still, dark lake that told no secrets.

And she leaned over the side of the boat and called, called the name that was in her thoughts always these days.

"Roland, Roland, I am here!"

It was the first thing Carstairs heard when he came up, clutching Street's shoulder, but he had nerve, this slim, English chap, and he helped to put Roland Street into the boat with her help, and got back himself.

"He's only a bit knocked out," he told her, when he could speak. "I went down all right, but a snag caught him on the head. Poor old boy, when he was trying to save me."

"Will he live, are you sure he'll live?"

Carstairs never forgot her tone or the look in her eyes, as she took Street's head on her lap and pushed back his wet curly hair. It was his answer.

"Sure as that I am alive myself," he said, fervently.

She smiled up at him, her eyes full of tears.

"I guess you know how—how very much I care," she faltered.

"I guess I do," answered Carstairs. "It's his winning. And he's a splendid old boy, Rolly is."

He paused, and attended to his ears. Street had opened his eyes, and they looked straight up into the girl's.

"Dolly," he began. "I tried to save him for you."

"And he saved you for me," she broke in, gently. "How big, and splendid your friendship is, Roland."

The two men looked at each other. To Street there came the knowledge of what had happened, how when death threatened both, each had willingly risked his life to save the other, and even with the wonder and sweetness of this other love breaking over him, he knew the bond that had held Carstairs true blue to him.

"I think I'll run back to town tomorrow, old boy," Carstairs remarked later, after they had changed clothing, and rested back at the shack.

"When we both went under—er—she called you. You don't mind, do you?" Street put out his hand.

"Passing the love of woman—" he said, slowly. "No, I don't mind. I'll wait up here awhile, until I can bring her back with me. You understand?"

"I understand," said Carstairs.

"Little Brothers and Big Brothers."

Writing under the above title in the current issue of Harper's Weekly, Charles Johnston tells of a movement for the reclamation of poor and wayward children by the seven or eight hundred members of the "Big Brothers" organization. "I have seen few things which do more credit to our common humanity," he writes, "than the confidence which that Big Brother has known how to inspire in his Little Brother. They pick up and brother these lads of the street who get 'pinched' and landed in the juvenile court. They keep the youngsters in the good path, and what is more than bushels of advice, they give them comradeship, affection, friendship, human love, making them feel that the heart of things is good. And it seems that, much as the Little Brothers get out of it, the Big Brothers get a good deal more."

Flying High.

"Pop, can you fly?"

"Why, of course not. What makes you ask such foolish questions?"

"Well, pop, why did Mrs. Habbie tell Mrs. Jaggsby the other night that you were a bird?"

Narrow-Minded Policy.

Here's a merchant who says, the moment his sales percentage stumbles: "I must cut down my advertising."

Would this same merchant take in his sign the moment it begins to rain? Unchanged.

"I met Dunkey today for the first time for years. He hasn't changed much."

"Oh, he hasn't changed at all, but he doesn't seem to realize it."

"How do you mean?"

"Oh, he's forever talking about 'what a fool he used to be.'—Red Hen."

Advertising Talks

KEEP AT IT, SAYS CHALMERS

Business Success Depends on Consistency and Thoroughness and Eye to Future.

Hugh Chalmers of Detroit, the man who quit a $72,000 a year job to enter the automobile manufacturing business and made good, told the Omaha Ad club at a banquet in that city the other evening of "The Principles of Business Success."

"It is easier to make goods than to sell them," said Mr. Chalmers, so the principles of business success, as far as his mind was concerned, are involved in successful salesmanship. Advertising and the personality of the salesman were the two points emphasized.

"Advertising and publicity are the two greatest builders of confidence known to the business man," he said. "A salesman can talk to only one or two people at the same time, so it might properly be said that salesmanship applies only to the individual, while advertising reaches the public as well, because by advertising you can reach hundreds and thousands and millions of people, while the salesman can reach only one or two at a time."

"Keep everlastingly at it. If I were dead sure that we had all our 1910 output sold and clear up to 1912, I would not spend a dollar less in advertising. My belief in business is not confined only to the time up to 1912, and I am a firm believer in keeping overboard. You have to deal with human nature, and it has always wanted and always will want those things which are hardest to get."

"You shut off the source of supply when you stop advertising. You must send the best possible appeal to a million minds and you must keep on appealing."

As for the salesman, Mr. Chalmers said the first essential was health, and the others, honesty, initiative, thorough knowledge of his business, tact, industry, sincerity, a mind receptive to suggestion, and enthusiasm.

"One thing has always helped me in my business," Mr. Chalmers said in closing. "I make it a point to keep before me the ten most important things I have to do. Every morning my stenographer has on my desk the ten most important things which I must attend to."

HOW HOMER ARRIVED.

When Homer first set out to write, His modesty was such That, though his stuff was pretty good, It never caught on much.

Until one day a friend remarked: "Old man, if you are wise, You'll drop this shrinking violet style And start to advertise."

He took the tip. . . . The Arzon Mall Next week came out with this:

OLYMPIC GAMES. WHAT HOMER THINKS. EXCLUSIVE CHAT. (DON'T MISS.)

He gave his views on every point That vexed the Grecian mind: His name each morning in the press You never failed to find.

So when the Odyssey appeared, It sold like anything. The Spartan serial rights brought in The ransom of a king.

And Homer, fingering his cheeks, Went out and blew it, said. Two oases to the dust of Bomoa Before he went to bed.

—London Globe.

The Advertising Argument.

Argumentative advertising produces the largest volume in the total of a year's business, provided the distribution of the article advertised has been thoroughly made.

Let the argument be as strong and conclusive as possible, using illustrations, whenever in good taste.

Selling goods by advertising is dependent on your ability to influence the judgment of the reader in your favor; and to do this successfully, the reader must feel that he has full opportunity for the exercise of his own judgment, even though his decision has unconsciously been brought about by the persuasive and logical character of your advertisement.—Frank A. Arnold in Suburban Life.

Advertising That Pays.

It is almost invariably the case that an advertiser will come back to the newspaper after he has tried every other medium. From the smallest to the greatest, the advertisers are finding out that the newspaper which goes into the home day after day and becomes in reality a member

Of the four precincts missing, Galisteo gave Bursum 59 majority; Ildefonso 31; Golden went 30 against him and San Pedro split even.

Colfax County.
Bursum is defeated by 250 votes in Colfax county. The state ticket otherwise runs 400 votes ahead of Bursum. E. C. Crampton is elected to the state senate. The Republican county ticket is elected except superintendent of schools and assessor. M. C. Pacheco for the House is also defeated. Reed Holloman is elected judge in the district and Remley district attorney.

Valencia County.
A telephone message from Los Lunas this afternoon declares that Valencia county has given Bursum 1575 majority, and the state ticket 1600 majority.

Bernalillo County.
The following are the Bernalillo county majorities: McDonald 1177;

E. C. de Baca 111; Antonio Lucero 1083; Frank Delgado 942; Marron 1126; White 984; McGill 654; Emerson 1631. The judgeship candidates received: Burkhardt 2631; Dunn 2781; Hanna 2830; Parker 1775; Roberts 1821; Wright 1778. For corporation council, Owen 2831; Seferino Martinez 2738; G. H. Gallegos, B. F. Pankey, Squire Hart, Bolesos Romero, A. C. Abeyta, C. J. Laughren, William M. McCoy, H. B. Holt, Gregory Page and J. M. Bowman.

A. A. Jones' Statement.

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon Chairman A. A. Jones of the Democratic Central committee made the following statement:

"From reports we have at hand we feel safe in claiming the election of W. C. McDonald and all of the Democratic supreme court ticket by four thousand majority and the entire state ticket by two thousand. Of course, we have no complete returns yet from any county, but these estimates are formed from reports received and judging by the 'drift' of things. The Democratic ticket polled ninety-five per cent of the Socialist vote for the judges of the supreme court and that accounts for the heavy majority we claim for the judicial ticket."

Mr. Jones has just returned here from Las Vegas and he says that Bursum probably carried San Miguel county by 750, and part of the Republican ticket was elected by about 900, from returns he heard there.
