NEW COMPANY INCORPORATED

Major Lohman Passes Examination For Second Lieutenant, U. S. A.

Secretary R. F. Asplund of the New Mexico Educational Association stated today that arrangements may be made to have the teachers, who will be here to attend the convention of the New Mexico Educational Association next week, make an excursion to the Paye Cliffs near Espanola, on Saturday, Nov. 18, provided a hundred or more can be registered to make the trip. The excursion, including transportation to and from Espanola by rail and from Espanola to and from the cliffs (19 miles) by team will cost but $3 and a special train will be run if the required number can be procured.

These cliffs are of surpassing interest to scholars and tourists of the entire world and it is thought that the New Mexico educators, of all persons, should see them. Director Edgar L. Hewett of the School of American Archaeology is willing to lend his aid to the teachers to make the trip interesting. Dr. Hewett will be able to explain many points of interest and thus make the excursion a "personally conducted tour."

Returns in the Vault.

Official election returns continue to arrive at the secretary's office and all are promptly placed in the steel vault. They will not be opened until November 27, when the canvassing board, provided by the enabling act, meets to canvass these returns. This board consists of Governor Mills, Secretary Jaffa and Chief Justice Pope.

Major Lohman Passes.

Adjutant General A. S. Brooks today received a telegram from the East announcing that Major Eugene A. Lohman, instructor in military tactics at the Roswell Military Institute and regimental adjutant in the New Mexico National Guard, has passed the examination for second lieutenant in the U. S. army. Major Lohman is well known in the territory. He was very popular at the Las Vegas encampment, the guardsmen finding him an able and courteous instructor.

STATE OFFICERS ARE IN DOUBT

But Tide of McDonald Majorities Is Creeping Upward

REPUBLICAN CHANGES LESS

First Complete Returns From Individual Counties Arrive.

The Republicans have saved the legislature out of the wreck. The last doubt of two-thirds majority in the state senate has been dispelled by the election of H. B. Holt by two majority, which is the official majority. W. H. H. Llewellyn and Presiliano Moreno being also elected from Dona Ana county, but to the House.

A tabulation of eight counties, Santa Fe, San Miguel, Mora, Colfax, Otero, Bernalillo, San Juan and Taos, shows that the Republican state candidates lead the Bursum vote in those eight counties: Curry by 2555; Elfrigo Baca by 2265; Secundino Romero by 1192; Sargent 1547; Mirabal 1479; Clancy 2451; Stroup 1857; Ervin 1892; Parker 1960; Roberts 2101; Wright 1804; Armijo 1709; Williams 1855; Groves 1782.

The tide of McDonald majorities passed the 2,000 mark today with the arrival of the first of the complete county returns that from Mora, in which county, the Republicans lose one member of the House, while they elect Juan Navarro to the state Senate, and Blas Sanchez to the House. As the McDonald majority nears the 2,000 mark, the chances of the Republicans having elected the rest of their state ticket grow smaller, although in the four counties of Colfax, Mora, Santa Fe and Bernalillo, Maliquas Martinez is 230 ahead of the Bursum vote; Secundino Romero 613; W. G. Sargent 738; Sylvester Mirabal 553; Roberts 1659; Wright 1016; Parker 885 and Clancy 1323.

From some of the counties, like Santa Fe, no complete tabulation will be possible, as various election judges despite instructions to the contrary, sealed both poll books in the ballot boxes, or mailed both poll books to Secretary Jaffa, who cannot break the seal until the official canvass on November 27. On those offices on which the vote is very close, there may be no certainty until after that date, for Secretary Jaffa figures it will take a week to tabulate the returns. The legislature, however, is certain to be Republican, by two-thirds majority in the state senate and by eight votes and possibly more in the House. Every candidate of the Republican county ticket was elected by handsome majorities. There seems very little doubt that George Curry is elected to Congress and that possibly Elfrigo Baca will have more votes than H. B. Ferguson on the final count. But the Democrats threaten to contest if such is the case and before a Democratic House at Washington, a Republican stands very little show, although the Republicans threaten to retort in the legislature with contests on Democrats in whose districts it seems certain, that fraud was committed and by unseating them gain two-thirds control of both houses.

Mora County.

Complete returns give Mora county to H. O. Bursum by 190 majority. McNAMARA TRIAL GOES ON

A. Gribbling Testifies About An Alleged Swindling Subscription Scheme

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Los Angeles, Nov. 10.—After about three days of life, the "Era of Good Feeling" in the McNamara murder trial proved too much of a strain for opposing counsel and ended abruptly today with Attorney Clarence S. Darrow for the defense accusing District Attorney John D. Fredericks of unfairness and Fredericks suggesting that they could settle this question outside the court room. The collision seemed not to impede the progress of the trial and A. Gribbling, a retired harness maker, who said the Times once had "swindled" him with a subscription dictionary, was accepted as cause by both sides. J. M. Fluke, a retired farmer who said he believed the Times was dynamited was under examination when court recessed at noon.

HISTORIC NANKIN
BATHED IN BLOOD

Sun Sets Upon Scene of Butchery Unrivaled In Modern History

RAPINE, PILLAGE, SLAUGHTER

Twelve Thousand Loyal Manchus
Drive Back Immense
Rebel Hordes

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Nanking, Nov. 10.—Historic Nanking this evening lies in the shadows of the Manchus' butchery. The sun set upon a scene of fire, rapine, desolation and butchery unrivaled in modern history. Tonight 12,000 Manchus and Imperial old style soldiers hold Purple Hill where they are entrenched while from beneath their stronghold they are driving before them hordes of Chinese out of the city.

Students Take Legation.

Tokio Nov. 10.—Wang Hsila, the Chinese minister to Japan, has left his official residence here for parts unknown, in order to avoid a meeting with the three hundred young Chinese students who are in educational institutions here at government expense. The students have been left without funds owing to the cessation of remittances from Peking. Yesterday the students began looking for Minister Wang. When they found that he had decamped they took possession of the legation.

Big Battle Pending.

Peking, China, Nov. 10.—Believing that Yuan Shi Kai will arrive at the capital soon, the assembly has summoned Hsi-Liang, the former viceroy of Manchuria to meet him and is strenuously endeavoring to persuade General Chang Shao-Tsun, commander of the army division at Lanchow, to join the coalition.

The latest consular reports state that the Tartar general and the Manchus troops at Nanking are still holding out against the rebels and that a big battle is pending.

Final Battle Will Be Desperate.

The latter, numbering between 20,000 and 30,000 are important to check the slaughter or avenge the slain because of their lack of ammunition. Last night, the rebels made a demonstration but did little shooting and there were few fatalities. The main body of the reformers remained in camp three miles distant from the city, awaiting the arrival of ammunition. Reinforcements are coming from every direction. They are raw and ragged recruits but are determined and the final battle promises to be desperate.

Foreigners are being treated with the utmost consideration. When the gates were opened today, the people thronged toward the country, each carrying his belongings and driven by the imperialists. Soon afterward, the carnage began.

Nanking Terrorized.

Since the night of November 8 when the first attack was made by the revolutionists the Tartar general has endeavored to terrorize the inhabitants by wholesale executions of those whose queues had been cut off. But today when the order for a general slaughter was given the whole native city was invaded by the Manchus soldiers, who massacred men, women and children.

Foreign Protesters Laughed At.

A Chinese wearing foreign clothing immediately became a victim of his advanced taste, but foreigners were not molested. Their protests against the massacres, however, were disregarded and even laughed at.

Associated Press on the Spot.

The correspondents of the Associated Press worked throughout the day within the outer walls of the city, eight miles from the telegraph station, with which they communicated and to which they were permitted access through the courtesy of the railway officials.

Fires Everywhere.

Fires sprang up everywhere and a large section of the native city was burned. Tonight the Manchus, driven to bay and glutted with blood, having despoiled the goods of 200,000 inhabitants, watch the flaming city from the height of Purple Mountain and await the morrow.

BLOODY CLASHES

Two Italians Were Beheaded

ATTACKS ON ITALIAN LINES

Mohammedans Are Repulsed
With Loss of Thousand Men Killed.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—A message to the Italian war office at Rome from Tripoli dated November 8, forwarded to the embassy here, states that on November 7, two Italian regiments made reconnaissances on the Oriental frontier and found among the Arab dead and wounded, the bodies of some Turkish soldiers. On November 8, the battery at Fort Sidi Meay broke forth and put to flight large groups of Arabs. "Some battalions," the cablegram concludes, made a reconnaissance on the eastern side and found two Italians who had been beheaded."

A Bloody Clash.

Tripoli, Nov. 10.—Turkish artillery and Arab horsemen made several attacks on the Italian lines yesterday. The Italians fought their way to the trenches of the enemy, who temporarily retired but again attacked as the Italians were returning to their base. At night the Turks withdrew. The Italians sustained some casualties and the Arabs and Turks lost a thousand men.

No Mercy for Women or Babies.

Nanking, Nov. 10.—Innocent Chinese, leaving everything behind them, are fleeing, terror-stricken and destitute, to the shelter in the fields at the rear of the reform forces.

Even the aged and women with babies in arms were shown no mercy. Thousands of Chinese poured from the gates until at noon today it was estimated that fully 70,000 persons had escaped. Before midnight, 20,000 more, representing every class, the merchants, the gentry, and coolies, had got away.

Queens Victims Beheaded.

Meanwhile the Manchus scoured the narrow streets of the city, and the houses of wealthy merchants were sacked. Any useless victim was beheaded immediately.

Children Trampled Under Foot.

The correspondents of the Associated Press saw several women executed and their children stabbed and trampled under foot. The order appeared to be that any one wearing anything white which suggested the white badge worn by the reformers must be killed forthwith. A white pocket handkerchief marked the possessor for death. White shoes, which are worn by the Chinese as a sign of mourning, were a signal for the execution of the wearer.

Horrible Massacre.

The horror of the massacre cannot be described. An attempt tonight to estimate the number of innocent persons and non-combatants slain would be futile.

BEAUTIFUL LOCATION FOR FASHIONABLE SUBURB.

Fort Marcy Offers Suburb Site That Will Eventually Be Utilized.

The advantages that Santa Fe possesses in its site for becoming some day a large city are not fully appreciated unless one visits the various slopes and mesas that close in on the narrow valley in which the city of Santa Fe is built. With the building activities of the past years, locations like Buena Vista Heights and Fort Marcy have become the most desirable locations for residences in the city.

It may not have been this consideration that has induced ex-Governor L. Bradford Prince to make permanent and much needed improvements on top of Fort Marcy, the brow of which is pushed almost into the center of the city as is the Acropolis in Athens, but he is performing a very desirable service to the city nevertheless, for practically every tourist or visitor goes to the top of the old fort or should go, for from it is gained the most superb vista of snow-capped mountains, lovely vales, mesas and city to be had anywhere. One person, in his enthusiasm, has declared it the most beautiful view in the world, and even President Roosevelt, as he stood on the brow of the hill looking over the ancient, picturesque city uttered an exclamation of delight.

The improvements that have been made consist in the construction of a wide, well graded, well drained roadway that encircles the top of the hill, passing close by the bastion which is the highest point of the old fortifications and therefore of the hill. The earthworks, remarkably preserved despite their sixty or more years, lie to one side and will some day make a most beautiful park. The wide driveway encircles an almost flat mesa which could not be excelled for the location of cottages. The approaches to the hill have been put in much more passable condition and the city should not neglect to widen and grade the main road to the fort nor should it postpone the opening of

SENDS OUT CIRCULAR LETTER

Addresses to Every Governor and Republican State Committee.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—Walter L. Houser, chairman of the Progressive Republican campaign committee, has appeared through circular letter to the chairman of every Republican state committee in the United States, urging steps be taken to insure a Republican presidential primary in each state by law in the five states where it is provided for by statute and in other states by direction of the campaign committees.

In his letter, Chairman Houser calls attention to the resolution adopted at a conference of Progressive Republicans in Chicago last month favoring state primaries for candidates for president and vice president and urging state committees to provide that the people be given the right to express their choice for president before the national convention.

"The demand for popular selection of candidates for office," says Chairman Houser, "both state and national has become general. It is obvious that no nominee selected despite the wishes of the rank and file of the Republican party can inspire the confidence or command the united and enthusiastic support which will be necessary to Republican success in 1912."

Mr. Houser stated in the letter, which was mailed also to the governor, lieutenant governor, and speaker of the lower house in each state, that the friends of Senator LaFollette are ready to submit his name for nomination to a direct vote of the rank and file of the party.

Colorado Progressives Organize.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 10.—In accordance with resolutions adopted at the recent meeting of the National Progressive Republican League at Chicago, Progressive Republicans of Colorado have completed a permanent organization endorsed United States Senator R. M. LaFollette of Wisconsin for the Republican presidential nomination and passed resolutions calling for state-wide primaries for the expression of presidential choice. The organization declared for a presidential choice. The organization declared for a presidential primary law and endorsed the recall for all elective offices.

HEAVY SELLING TODAY ON STOCK EXCHANGE.

One Failure and Heavy Liquidation
in Gould Stocks—Bonds
Were Irregular.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
New York, Nov. 10.—Stocks accumulated from the recent advance were sold in large amounts today. For a time, the market was able to withstand the effect of the selling, owing to the counter influence of the commerce court's action in the freight rate case, but before the day was far advanced, prices began to weaken and the list became feverish.

Announcement of a stock exchange failure and severe liquidation in some of the Gould stocks on unfavorable rumors, precipitated heavy selling for both accounts in the second hour. Only a few issues, Lehigh Valley and St. Paul, held above yesterday's closing points, the remainder selling from a fraction to 3 points below. Walush preferred slumped 3 points, the four per cent bonds 2-5-8, Missouri Pacific 1-1-2, American Smelting Brooklyn Transit, Consolidated Gas Canadian Pacific, Delaware and Hudson, Erie, the first preferred, a point. Lackawanna was up 10 points, and American Cotton Oil preferred five, and American Woolen down 3. The decline culminated when Lehigh Valley was lifted 1-1-2, but the response elsewhere was feeble and the market sank back again.

Bonds were irregular. An increase of about 80,000 tons over last month in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation was without influence. The general market later on responded to the rapid bidding up of Lehigh Valley which sold 3 points beyond yesterday's closing, touching 176-7-8.

W. L. Stevens & Co. Fail.

New York, Nov. 10.—Announcement was made on the stock exchange this morning of the failure of the firm of W. L. Stevens & Co. The present firm was formed in April, 1910.

Another Firm Suspends.

New York, Nov. 10.—The suspension of the stock exchange firm of Ball & Whicler was announced this afternoon.

Reading rallied from 149 1-8 to 151 1-4, and there were recoveries of a point, from the lowest in Union Pacific, United States steel, and American Smelting. Lehigh Valley, which sold at 179 1-4, against 174 7-8, yesterday's closing was attended by rumors of a large extra dividend. This report was denied by Philadelphia interests. The general market did not follow up the rise in Lehigh Valley but began to sell off in spots.

The close was irregular.

The Democrats, "flushed with victory," held a torchlight procession last night, serenaded prominent Democrats and "Progressives," played funeral dirges in front of the New Mexican office listened to speeches by those serenaded and burnt in effigy the G. O. P.

They had a great time. Marching around the plaza, their torches blazing and the First Regiment band playing a stirring air, they proceeded up Palace avenue to the home of Mayor Arthur Seligman, chairman of the Democratic county committee. After serenading the mayor, the celebrators cheered and when the mayor came out on the porch, they cheered again. The mayor delivered a brief speech as follows:

Mayor Counsels Harmony.

"My friends, it gives me great pleasure to see you in such a happy mood, and well may you rejoice over the state-wide victory which is yours. The Democratic party has worked hard in this campaign and all of the workers deserve praise. In this county, the vote has gone against us, it is true but those

This Girl Recovered from Consumption

The mother of Edward's Alternative, which is doing so much good for Consumption, writes: "I am now perfectly well. I never felt better in all my life. I never have any pain, no cough, no night sweats, no hay-fever. Since a child of two years I have been ailing with lung trouble, which grew worse as I grew older. At the age of fourteen the doctor said if I could not be cured, I could surely die of Consumption. Every winter I would be sure to have either Bronchitis, Pleurisy, or Pneumonia. I had Typhoid Pneumonia one time. I had asthma of the stomach and bowels and had Hay Fever for the last few years. I have not anything of the kind this year. I will answer all letters sent to me, making a history of my case. From any one suffering from lung trouble, I can give you many thanks to you, your grateful friend, ETNA PLATH. Three years later reports still will. Edward's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain tobacco, opium or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to Edward's Alternative, Philadelphia, Pa. For more evidence. For sale by all leading druggists and by Zook's Pharmacy in Santa Fe.

SUMMER, GOOD-BYE.

Summer is going, is going away.
In raiment outwitting the loveliest bride
Ever that blushed on a bright bridal day
In pledging her vows to the youth
at her side,
Why should we weep at her going away
When she leaves all her bounty and cheer behind;
And skies are aglow at the close of
day,
And the breezes that blow are never unkind,
Arbors are luscious with clustering vine
And woodlands are lavish with nuts
from the tree;
The cones are formed on the evergreen pine,
And jealous kept honey is stole
from the bee.
Grain fields have yielded their plenti-fuous store,
And meadows have given their quota of hay;
Mines are now searched for the winter-loved ore;
So smile though the summer is going away.
Greet then, her sister the beautiful
Fall,
Who will linger with us till Winter
is here,
"Good-bye to the frost," till timid
Spring call;
Then welcome again to the sweet summer cheer.
Summer is going, is going away,
And the gown of her going's gorgeous in hue,
(Red, green and gold in a blending most gay);
So smile with good measure for summer smiles too.

Chicago Citizen.

AROUND THE STATE

Arrested for Drunkenness.
Eliseo Padilla was arrested at Las Vegas yesterday for drunkenness. He pleaded guilty.

Died of Hiccoughs.
Myron Hunn of Hiawatha, Kansas, died at the Miners' Hospital at Raton of a violent spell of hiccoughs.

Victim of Pneumonia.
Mrs. Grace Eve Phillips, wife of Fred Phillips, died at Las Vegas of pneumonia. She was a native of Colorado, 20 years of age, and lived the past eight years at Las Vegas. Besides the husband, two boys, aged three years and eighteen months respectively, survive.

Improvements on the Sugarite.
The grading camp that will do the three-fourths mile of work for the Raton and Eastern Sugarite canon was established yesterday and will begin business this week. The Sugarite spur will be straightened for the above named distance by the construction of a bridge over the Sugarite creek just above the site where the lower ice house stood and the building of a new line of track along the east side of the canon.—Raton Range.

Browne is Transferred.
M. G. Browne who has been connected with the Albuquerque office of the United States immigration bureau for some time, has received notice of his transfer to the station at Brownsville, Texas. Mr. Browne expects to leave very soon for his new post, but his family will remain in Albuquerque for some time.

The town of Belen is suddenly left preacherless so far as Protestant churches are concerned. Less than two weeks ago Rev. J. M. Shiner of the Methodist church was removed from the local charge of the conference and taken to Santa Fe where there was a vacancy. A few days ago the congregation of the Lutheran church was surprised to receive the resignation of its pastor, Rev. J. H. Utesch, who has served the church for some time, and his resignation was entirely unexpected. Now there is an unconfirmed report current that Rev. Mr. Carroll, rector of the Episcopal church of Belen will go elsewhere.

Castillo Had a Bad Fall.

What may develop into a serious case for the physicians occurred just north of Belen when a young man by the name of Castillo sustained a hard fall. He fell in such a manner that his left shoulder was dislocated. Dr. J. W. Beardsley was called to attend the injured man, and upon examination discovered that the shoulder was not dislocated but that the ball of the joint a bone about two inches in length had been broken off. The piece of bone which had been knocked entirely out of place, protruded into the flesh, causing the young man intense pain. Consultation did not result satisfactorily and consequently he was removed to Albuquerque for surgical treatment.

NATIONAL WOOL GROWERS' ASSOCIATION AT OMAHA.

Western Passenger Agents Make Special Rates for Forty-eighth Annual Convention.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 10.—Although the Western Passenger Association has refused to make special rates for the National Wool Growers Association or for the Christmas holidays, it has made a special rate for the National Wool Growers Association, which will hold its 48th annual convention in Omaha on December 14 to 16.

Realizing the magnitude of the association and the importance of the mammoth sheep show which will be held in conjunction with the convention, a two cent rate has been made in each direction in the Western Passenger Association territory. The same rate has also been granted from North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico, save from common points in Montana, where a flat rate of $40 will prevail, and in Utah where a rate of $42 from common points has been granted. Dates of sale begin on December 11.

More than 2,000 sheep growers will attend the convention, which will be the most important in the history of the association. Matters of interest will be discussed by men high in public life, who are interested vitally in legislation, which affects the wool grower and the consumer.

The sheep exhibition will be an object lesson for the shepherds of the future. Every flockmaster who misses this show will miss an opportunity to advance himself in the world of sheep industry.

By a happy arrangement the Omaha show and convention will be held the week following the International in Chicago. This makes it possible and also convenient for western and central state flockmen to attend the international, learn the lessons of this great show and then attend the Omaha meeting and show. For the first time in the history of the two associations, sheepmen will be privileged to attend both shows practically for one expense.

Entries for the sheep show have been pouring into the committee on arrangements, of which E. Buckingham, of the Omaha Stock Yard, is the dominating spirit. Mr. Buckingham states that every available foot of space in the gigantic auditorium, where the show will be held has been taken, and nearly as much space again could be sold.

(By Special Licensed Wire to New Mexican) Chicago, Ill., Nov. 10.—Confronted by figures showing the world's stock of wheat to be the largest with one exception in ten years, the majority of traders in the cereal jumped today to the bear side. The close was strong with December at 94 1-4c, a net loss of 1-8c. The opening was 3-8c to 3-4c down.

ALL YOU NEED IS A CASCARET TONIGHT

No Sick Headache, Biliious Stomach, Coated Tongue or Constipated Bowels by Morning.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, the biliousness, the indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out tonight and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse and regulate your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels. Then you will feel great. A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 19-cent box from any drug store means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Children love to take Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

December started at 93 5-8 to 94c, the same change from last night as the market taken altogether. A fall to 93 1-8c followed.

Corn declined in sympathy with wheat. December opened 3-8 to 3-4c lower to 62 1-2 to 62 5-8c and touched 62 3-8 to 1-2c.

The close was firm with December 63c, exactly the same as last night.

Although trade in oats was purely local, the market could not escape the influence of other grain. December started a shade to 1-8 to 1-4c off at 46 5-8 to 46 3-8c, and fell to 46 1-2 to 5-8c.

Higher prices for hogs seemed to counterbalance his general movement so far as provisions were concerned. First sales were 5c lower to 2 1-2 to 5c up with May deliveries 16.45 for pork, 9.82 1-2 to 9.55 for lard and 8.50 to 8.55 for ribs.

DON'T SAY YOU'RE OLD

You Can Feel Younger by Keeping Up Your Strength.

It is a mistake for elderly people to let themselves think they are getting old.

What if you would have had 60 or 70 birthdays? You can keep your mind young and active, and you can also feel younger than your age if you guard your bodily strength.

Mr. George B. Smith, aged 71, of Smithville, Ont., says that Vinol cured him of a case of stomach trouble of long standing, and that he now feels as strong and can do as good a day's work as he did thirty years ago, which he owes to Vinol. "I think it is worth its weight in gold for any ailment of aged people," says Mr. Smith.

This delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil strengthens and invigorates all feeble, run down people, and is the mainstay of thousands of old persons who say it has prolonged their lives. We guarantee that Vinol will do all that we say, and pay back your money if it does not. Capital Pharmacy, Santa Fe, N. M.

To cure an aching back, The pains of rheumatism, The tired-out feelings, You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

In most cases 'tis the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Mrs. Agripina de Gonzales, 462 Garcia St., Santa Fe, N. Mex., says: "In September, 1906, I used Doan's Kidney Pills for backache which had been a source of much annoyance. In the morning when I arose my back was so lame and painful that I could hardly stoop. I knew that my trouble was due to disordered kidneys and I was finally led to try Doan's Kidney Pills, by the good reports I heard about them. The contents of one box of this remedy drove away all my pains and I am happy to state that my cure has been permanent."

ROMANCE OF SANTA FE TRAIL

Williams Declares It Is Not Dead and That It Will Be Revived

PICTURESQUE OLD CAPITAL

The Writer Dwells Lovingly on the Terminus of the New Highway.

"The Coming Back of the Santa Fe Trail" is the latest of the series of articles on the Santa Fe Trail by Walter Williams, whose recent visit to Santa Fe after an auto trip over the entire trail, is pleasantly remembered.

The article is published in many newspapers and is a mighty good advertisement for Santa Fe. It is illustrated with pictures, one of them being a cut of the end of the Trail Marker in the Santa Fe Plaza, and another a group of pictures in which Governor Mills and Mayor Arthur Seligman loom up prominently. The article which is from the Globe Democrat, says:

Can the old trail come back? This is the question asked by dwellers along the Santa Fe Trail. This is the question which, thus asked, was answered in the affirmative.

The old trail had its beginnings in the years when the trapper was king. It had its days of gold and glory, its heroic age, and, then, swift coming as the railroad locomotive cast its shadow, the old trail had its decline and fall. Gravestones were erected in its memory, poets sung its requiem in bad verse and painters left on canvas glimpses of its departed greatness.

The old trail was no more. Colonel Henry Inman, soldier and author, wrote its history as one wrote the history of dead nations or dead men, saying for final word: "The old trail as a route of commerce was closed forever. The once great highway is now only a picture in the memory of the few who have traveled its weary course, following the windings of the silent Arkansas, on the portals that guard the rugged pathway leading to the shores of the blue Pacific." So said we all, perhaps not so poetically, but as emphatically. The old trail was dead. Peace to its alkali.

Then the automobile was discovered or invented or evolved itself. And the old trail came back.

Restored All at Once.

The return of the old trail to use as highway of commerce was not by slow process as the making of the beginning of the road of romance had been. Its resurrection was in a single day. The story is a chapter—almost the initial, keynote chapter in the road-building movement which is sweeping the West. (1) The automobile; (2) a newspaper or two, and, (3) the New Santa Fe Trail. A happy idea plus large publicity equals a cross-state thoroughfare. Thus ran the equation. To Kansas belongs the glory of the resurrection.

The automobile arrived. C. H. Scott of the Hutchinson (Kan.) News did not own an automobile, but he had friends who did own automobiles. He commented to write pieces for the paper about fixing up the roads. Ralph Faxon of the Garden City (Kan.) Telegram copied some of Scott's pieces and wrote some more pieces about good roads himself. The Arkansas Valley took notice. A meeting was held at Hutchinson, at the east end of the valley, in the center of the salt-mining region, to talk good roads. Where two or three dozen delegates had been expected, 200 came—business men, professional men, farmers, everybody. Such an assembling of representatives citizens—to talk, not politics or religion, but roads—astonished the promoters and the people who came. "That first meeting," said one who attended, "was like the stories of the population of heaven. We were surprised at the people who were there and were equally surprised at the people who were not there. The farmers, who are benefited most by good roads, were, with few notable exceptions absent." Later, however, the farmers came into the movement, and now it has no more loyal supporters than the farmers. The association, loosely organized, but effective, decided to promote a highway along the Arkansas Valley through to the Colorado line. We will call it the speedway, they said, these road builders, having the love of the automobile in mind. No, said another, having before him the fear of the farmer, we will call it the New Santa Fe Trail. It follows the line of the old trail. It should bear the old trail's name. By a narrow majority in committee this name won. To Elmer T. Peterson, editor of the Jacksonian at Cimarron, Kan., is due the naming of the road. He named the baby. It was a lusty infant. The next day actual roadmaking began across Kansas. Bankers went home and worked roads. Lawyers circulated petitions for rights of way. Merchants subscribed to road funds. Newspapers printed column upon column of road arguments. Within a month the New Santa Fe Trail was on the Kansas map. Colorado heard of the movement and joined it.

New Mexico, too, took notice of the trail's rebirth, and Missouri dedicated its first state highway on the trail. And now the wayfarer automobilist, though deaf and dumb may find his way over the New Santa Fe Trail from Missouri to the quaint old capital of the new state of New Mexico by the signboards along the road.

Both Trails Marked.

The Santa Fe trail and the New Santa Fe trail are both marked. In this is the chief excellence—aside from the actual surfacing of the road—bed—in the work of the associations. Most travelers wish to know where they are going, not merely that they are on the way. The old Santa Fe trail has been marked in the states of Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and New Mexico, by granite boulders, placed a few miles apart at notable, historic points along the old roadway. The granite markers generally bear a brief inscription setting forth that they were erected by the state and the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the words "Santa Fe Trail" with the dates. In some cases, notably at Trinidad, Colo.; Olathe, Kan., and Kansas City, Mo., they are more elaborate. The credit for the erection of these markers is due to the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. L. Bradford Prince of Santa Fe, N. M., wife of a former governor of that territory, made the first public suggestion of the marking of the old trail. Mrs. W. E. Stanley, wife of a former governor of Kansas, seconded the suggestion. The state societies and local organizations took the matter up. The legislatures of the four states made appropriations for the trail marking. The markers were put in place with appropriate ceremonies and the old trail can be traced by the granite boulders.

The new Santa Fe trail which follows as far as practicable the line of the old Santa Fe trail, is differently marked. The association selected as the official marker a modified form of the trade mark of the Santa Fe railway, through the permission of that road and added to it the words "New Santa Fe Trail." Arrows showing direction and, in some cases, figures to show distances, were added, and these placed on poles by the roadside. Another device for marking the new trail was that of the white rings on the telephone poles. At every turn in the road white rings were painted around the three poles nearest the turn, and again upon the first three telephone poles after the turn. Where there is a crossroad at which the trail does not turn the white rings are placed on poles on both sides of the crossroad to show that the trail traveler should go straight ahead. The permission of the telephone companies was easily obtained for thus marking the only reservation being that the white rings or bands should not obscure the numbers of the poles. This simple marking device which the New Santa Fe Trail Association has adopted and put into use makes it impossible to lose one's way on the new Santa Fe trail.

The new Santa Fe trail, as the old trail, is on the central transcontinental highway which Thomas Hart Benton, the great commoner of Missouri "Old Bullion" prophesied and described in the United States Senate more than a half century ago.

"There is a great route for the system of roads which should constitute a national central highway from the Mississippi to the Bay of San Francisco," said Senator Benton. "A good way and central—a better way than any not central that can be found in the United States."

"There is a class of topographical engineers older than the schools and more unerring than mathematicians. They are the wild animals—buffalo, elk, deer antelope and bear—which traverse the forests not by compass, but by instinct, which leads them always by the right way, to the lowest passes in the mountains, the shallow pastures in the forests, the best salt springs and the shortest practical lines between remote points. These are the first engineers to lay out a road in a new country. The Indians follow them and hence the buffalo road becomes a warpath. The white hunters follow the same trails in pursuing their game. After that the buffalo road becomes the wagon road of the white man and finally the macadamized road of the civilized man."

"The central highway fulfills another requirement of nationality. For a nation must contain people of all conditions, rich and poor; all modes of travel; some to whom time is everything and money nothing and who demand rapidity without regard to cost; others to whom money is an object and time is a subordinate consideration and who want a cheap conveyance, no matter how slow; others again who may choose to carry themselves, going on a horse or in a vehicle or on foot—all these will be accommodated on the proposed central highway."

BELL TELEPHONE BUYS EXCHANGE

Extensive Improvements Are to Be Made Here in the Spring

MR. SPARKS MAY REMAIN

He Says That Better Telephone Facilities Will Be Guaranteed.

The Santa Fe Telephone Exchange has been sold to the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company of Denver, better known as the "Bell System," and as a result, extensive improvements will be made to the telephone business in Santa Fe.

The deal was put through Wednesday following thirty days negotiation between Ishmall Sparks, proprietor and founder of the Santa Fe company and representatives of the Denver company, including Philip Hamlin, assistant to the president of that company, which is capitalized at $50,000,000.

Speaking of the deal Mr. Sparks declined to state the consideration which he said was not for publication but he added:

"The telephone subscribers of Santa Fe, who number 450 and all future subscribers, will get the benefit of this transaction which will mean that extensive improvements will be made for their interests. The telephone system will be extended, new capital will be brought here early in the spring and the telephone exchange will be enlarged. Better accommodations in every way will be given."

Mr. Sparks admitted that he may continue to remain with the company as the Santa Fe manager.

The exchange was started here 17 years ago by Mr. Sparks and its toll lines connect throughout the country, with long distance connection between St. Louis and Chicago.

Mr. Sparks is chairman of the board of county commissioners, and is former mayor of Santa Fe. He owns extensive mining interests near Santa Fe and has some valuable property in this city which he has chosen as his place of residence not on account of his health but as he says, "for business reasons."

HELPFUL HINTS ON HAIR HEALTH

Scalp and Hair Troubles Generally Caused by Carelessness.

Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a microbe which also produces baldness. Never use a comb or brush belonging to some one else. No matter how cleanly the owner may be, these articles may be infected with microbes, which will infect your scalp. It is far easier to catch hair microbes than it is to get rid of them, and a single stroke of an infected comb or brush may well lead to baldness. Never try on anybody else's hat. Many a hat band is a resting place for microbes.

If you happen to be troubled with dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair, or baldness, we have a remedy which we believe will completely relieve these troubles. We are so sure of this that we offer it to you with our understanding that it will cost you nothing for the trial. If it does not produce the result we claim, this remedy is called "33" Hair Tonic. We honestly believe it to be the most scientific remedy for scalp and hair troubles and we know of nothing else that equals it for effectiveness, because of the results it has produced in thousands of cases.

Reckall "33" Hair Tonic is devised to banish dandruff, restore natural color when its loss has been brought about by disease, and make the hair naturally silky, soft and glossy. It does this because it stimulates the hair follicles, destroys the germ matter and brings about a free, healthy circulation of blood, which nourishes the hair roots causing them to tighten and grow new hair. We want everybody who has any trouble with hair or scalp to know that we think that Reckall "33" Hair Tonic is the best hair tonic and restorative in existence, and no one should scoff at or doubt this statement until they have put our claims to a fair test, with the understanding that they pay us nothing for the remedy if it does not give full and complete satisfaction in every particular. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Reckall Remedies in Santa Fe only at our store—The Rexall Store, The Rexall Drug Co. 232 San Francisco St.

Baking Helps

Valuable Suggestions
By Mrs. Nevada Briggs, Expert of the Art of Baking, as taught by Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill
Helpful Cake Making Hints

Always sift flour and K C Baking Powder at least three times. The more sifting, the lighter the cake. Remember that! To cream butter and sugar quickly, warm the sugar slightly. Beat yolks of eggs with rotary beater. Whip whites of eggs with flat spoon whip. Water makes lighter cakes; milk makes richer cakes.

To mix a cake, first cream butter and sugar thoroughly, then add yolks, if used. Then alternately add moisture and flour that has been sifted with baking powder and stir until smooth and glossy, adding egg whites after thoroughly mixing.

Always use K C Baking Powder.

Biscuit Helps

Always sift flour and K C Baking Powder at least three times. Have shortening cold and firm. Mix dough as soft as it can be handled. The softer dough goes into the oven, the lighter the biscuit when it comes out. It is easier for K C Baking Powder to do its work in soft than in stiff dough. Mix biscuits very little. Do not knead. Stir up with spoon or knife and press in shape to roll on floured board.

With K C Baking Powder results are sure and certain. Ask your grocer for K C.

GREAT PHOSPHATE DEPOSITS IN ROCKY MOUNTAINS.

Survey Issues Report Showing Reserve Tonnage in Western States of Over Two Billion Tons.

When the great coal deposits of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and other states of the Appalachian region were being formed, many millions of years ago, in what the geologists term the Carboniferous age, there were also being accumulated in the Rocky Mountain region enormous mineral deposits which are of a widely different character but which may nevertheless play an economic part in the industrial development of the United States comparable even to that of coal. These are the phosphate deposits of Wyoming, Utah, Idaho and Montana, which are now known to contain hundreds of millions of tons of phosphate rock, constituting a most important artificial fertilizer. Until recently it had been generally assumed that the phosphate deposits of South Carolina, Florida, and Tennessee afforded an "inexhaustible" supply but recent estimates by the United States Geological Survey show that at the present rates of increase in phosphate mining these eastern deposits are likely to be exhausted within a generation.

Greatest Known Phosphate Deposits in Existence.

The discovery of the western phosphate beds therefore constituted a most important find, and though the first reconnaissance of these deposits by the Geological Survey show their considerable extent, the more detailed study and exploration, with additional discoveries made by the Survey during the last three years, has shown that the field is probably the greatest in the world. Recent geologic study of the phosphate-bearing strata indicate the probably still greater extension of the phosphate area. The northernmost portion of the beds first discovered was in Wyoming, but an outcrop of the same character and in the same geologic formation was found last year in Montana, some 160 miles further north, so that Survey geologists believe that workable phosphate beds may be found in many other places.

The Geological Survey has just published a bulletin embracing three reports on western phosphate fields, one covering a portion of the Idaho phosphate reserve, by R. W. Richards and G. R. Mansfield, another on rock phosphate near Melrose, Mont., by T. S. Gale and a third being a reconnaissance report on the phosphate deposits in western Montana by Elliot Blackwelder. The report by Messrs. Richards and Mansfield includes a detailed description of the Idaho field, the investigations having been made by townships, the outcrops examined and the tonnage of the high grade phosphate rock estimated. Tonnage estimates were made of the phosphate rock in nine townships, and in no township was there found to be less than approximately 60,000,000 tons of high-grade phosphate rock containing for the most part from 50 to 82 per cent phosphoric acid. Phosphate rock containing 60 to 65 per cent phosphoric acid is generally considered high grade.

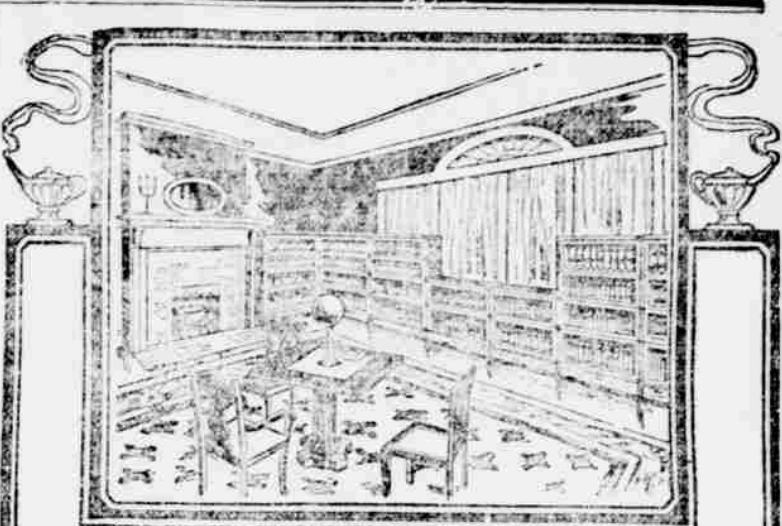

Nearly Three Hundred Million Tons in Single Township.

One of the townships examined contains an estimated 293,000,000 tons of phosphate rock, the net result of the Survey's work showing an approximate tonnage of 2,500,000 long tons with 70 per cent phosphoric acid. Nor does this include the tonnage of the Montana phosphate withdrawals, which aggregate nearly 34,000 acres.

Mr. Gale's report is a brief description of his discovery last year of the Montana deposits near Melrose withdrawals of which were immediately made by the President. The Survey's tests of a number of samples collected by Mr. Gale show the rock to be high grade, approximately equivalent to 75 per cent phosphoric acid. The thickness of beds are 6 or 8 feet in thickness. A 6-foot bed contains approximately 21,000 long tons to the acre.

"One of the most important considerations in connection with the discovery of phosphate rock in western Montana," says Mr. Gale, "is its significance as to the probable extent of the western phosphate field,

OFFICIAL PAPER OF SANTA FE COUNTY.

The New Mexican is the oldest newspaper in New Mexico. It is sent to every postoffice in the Territory, and has a large and growing circulation among the intelligent and progressive people of the Southwest.

GETTING INTO DEBT.

Ready money does not seem likely to give up its old-time habit of burning a hole in the pocket of its possessor. If the almost universal habit of running into debt is any proof of the disappearing propensities of volatile loose change. This trick seems to date from childhood days when the dime or quarter bestowed on us by benevolent but shortsighted uncles and aunts filled our youthful breasts with a vague unrest until the coins had found their way into the till of the nearest candy store or the coffers of the local showman.

The habit sticks. Older folk never quite overcome the temptation of "easy come and easy go" formed in these lullaby moments. Only those who have had to scrape their fortunes together with sweat and careful trading or by slow ledge-hammer blows realize the eternal truth that "many a mickle makes a muckle." The inauguration of postoffice savings banks is a wise method to encourage thrift and hobble the heels of the nimble dollar; yet we are inclined to think that on investigation we should find the sums so far deposited there represent hard laborious earnings rather than benevolences swiftly acquired.

Certainly in Santa Fe thrift is not made the object of special or particular worship. To be able to look the whole world in the face because you owe not any man still seems to be as it was in the days of Longfellow, a hobby peculiar to village blacksmiths. But then, as village blacksmiths are not usually found among the millionaires, we spy here a possible reason to be urged by the apologists for debt against too uncompromising a thriftiness. This is quite true of debt incurred on a large, sound and rational scale, coupled with ability, hard work and foresight.

Paying for a dead horse is a very different matter from exploiting one's credit in a legitimate enterprise with an eye on the future. The petty, unnecessary debts are the ones that the big earnest blacksmiths of the world are careful to avoid. Instead of looking the whole world in the face the easy-going debtor nourishes a grudge against society because those to whom he owes money have not the decency to forget the circumstance. Unpaid bills, unlike vintage wines and famous pictures, do not improve with age, and the careless borrower is consumed with indignation and develops symptoms of martyrdom when forced to pay for clothes after they have become threadbare or for furniture that has found its way to the junk shop. These are they who listen to the glib tongue of the Socialist, praying that in a general overthrow of society their little debts may be smothered under the ensuing avalanche.

By a strange perversion of first principles the haphazard borrower always reserves his strongest vital of wrath for those who have once lent him money, but had to discontinue the practice through the law of self-preservation. In comparison, the man who has never opened his heart or pocket at all becomes almost a good fellow. There was worldly wisdom in old Polonius's advice to his son: "Neither a borrower nor a lender be. For loan oft loses both itself and friend, And borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry."

However necessary it may have become under modern business conditions to consider credit a valuable asset and to use it accordingly, there can be no palliating the willful folly of lazy folk who carelessly incur obligations which they know beforehand they will be unable to meet. These men are not playing the game. They are jockeying the horses, leading from a sneak using spiked shoes in the scum, nitching at the head of the better instead of over the plate, shooting their quail on the ground and killing their mountain lions with poisoned meat. A good debtor is a good sportsman, and never dodges a dun.

COLLEGE GIRLS AS WIVES.

From two eastern colleges, Vassar and Swarthmore, come announcements by the proud principals that none of their graduates ever has figured in a divorce suit. And from the University of Washington at Seattle is heard the Pacific coast's answering cry that the divorce court matter aside, the west has physically the most perfect college girl in the world and hence the best wife material, says the San Francisco Chronicle.

It certainly is pleasant to know that our girls' colleges are turning out graduates calculated to make so many homes happy. But that this is the case is a fact not particularly difficult to explain. In the first place, the girl graduate is generally out of her teens before she leaves school and so is less likely to marry carelessly than some of her younger sisters. It is the hastily contracted marriages of persons not old enough to make a proper discrimination that most frequently leads to the divorce courts.

Still another reason for the girl graduate's comparative immunity from divorce is the fact that her college education has given her a sort of self-sufficiency, by which she is able to interest herself at home in case she should find other interests there lacking.

Unless there is a community of interest between a man and wife, married life has a tendency to become monotonous. In this fact lies an explanation of much of the dissatisfaction which some men feel with their wives when the latter seem too much engrossed with the trivialities of life with its small gossip and its unimportant details. But the woman who has gone through college has had opportunities to broaden her range of vision and can carry the mental journey with her husband beyond the small talk of the tea tables.

The college woman, too, can draw on interests outside of the home to keep her from ennui—and it is ennui in some form or other that is a fruitful source of divorces. There are many activities in which she can find refuge, such as church work, the welfare of children, aiding the spread of education and other things an interest in which follows easily from a college course.

But graduates of girls' colleges have not necessarily any monopoly of the opportunities for domestic happiness. Any intelligent young woman can easily make herself an agreeable and loved companion for a good husband and can find in her own resources the secret of banishing monotony from the household. If it has been her lot not to have had the educational advantages which her husband has had, she can, by application and the right sort of reading, easily bridge the gap sufficiently to satisfy and to make herself an interesting life partner.

GET BUSY, GENTLEMEN!

The Santa Fe Chamber of Commerce has done nothing toward the entertainment of the five hundred and more teachers from all parts of the territory who will be here next week. In fact, the Chamber of Commerce has not even held a meeting for some weeks and months, hasn't even a secretary, and is about as dead it seems, as such an institution can be. Perhaps, its members and officers will gain some inspiration from the following in the Kansas City Star:

Gentlemen, Kansas City is all right, and the Commercial Club is all right, only we must get busy and keep busy. If you have come to this room tonight feeling that this club has performed its mission and can rest on its laurels forget it. The Kansas City spirit still lives—and always will—from the inaugural speech of Mr. H. G. Moore, new president of the Commercial Club.

There is an old-fashioned "clarion note" to that declaration. And a clarion note is a mighty good thing to sound. There is every reason to believe, too, that Mr. Moore's hopeful and stimulating outline of things to be done in Kansas City will be backed up by good, efficient work.

Certainly there is no better spirit with which to begin an administration of constructive work than a spirit which refuses to "rest upon laurels." There is as much, there is more, to be done for Kansas City by Kansas City now than there ever was when the Commercial Club was in the very prime of its years of achievement. The greater the city the greater the need of such service as the Commercial Club can perform.

In his statement of work to be done, Mr. Moore very rightly mingled indiscriminately the purely business functions of his organization with, such civic activities as city planning—with its traffic ways, civic center and general municipal improvement. Any association of Kansas City men which is to measure up to its full usefulness must get in the game of the complete life of the city.

President Moore may feel assured—and, in fact, he seems to have a finely confident spirit—that his club cannot lead too fast for the people of Kansas City to follow. The citizens are eager to "whip up." The sure way to win their help and gratitude is to be on the job for progress all along the line. A year of work for all Kansas City will be the best possible boost for the Commercial Club.

THE SELF-RELIANT.

One of the greatest essays ever written was Emerson's "Self-reliance." Every young man and woman ought to read it regularly once a year. Here is a sample sentence: "To believe your own thought, to believe that what is true for you in your private heart is true for all men—that is genius."

Most men and women follow the fashions in thoughts, convictions, creeds and politics as much as in hats and shoes. They are cheerful conformists.

But the great men and women—those who break new paths and change the face of their times—believe the best their minds can conceive, then fight for it.

They are not afraid to be themselves.

WORK OF THE WEATHER BUREAU.

Secretary Wilson stated this week that every important meteorological change that occurred in the United States during the year was forecasted by the weather bureau long in advance. Storm warnings to lake, sea, coast, and West Indian stations and frost warnings for the sugar, trucking, tobacco, fruit, and cranberry regions were issued whenever conditions justified. These warnings were successful. Particular attention was given to the hurricanes of September and October, 1910, and a number of testimonials commending the work of the bureau in connection therewith were received. The warnings of the approach of cold waves resulted in the saving of growing crops and prevented injury to many shipments of perishable goods and to farm stock.

Owing to a large deficiency in the precipitation of the year over a considerable portion of the country, there was an absence of great floods, except in California, where, during February and March heavy winter snows and rains combined to cause floods, with resultant damage, estimated at $1,750,000. In July and October the smaller tributaries of the Ohio river were in flood as a result of heavy local rains. The damage to crops and other interests amounted to about $5,500,000.

"During the last two years the weather bureau has made systematic measurements of the amount of snowfall in the mountain regions of the west for the purpose of determining as accurately as possible the amount of water available for agricultural and commercial interests during the ensuing spring and summer seasons." The above statement was made today by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson.

Continuing, the secretary said: "In connection with the study of snowfall and its consequent runoff, a systematic snow survey was begun in the watershed of Maple Creek, near Springville, Utah. While the work was of an experimental nature, it is thought that within two years sufficient observations will have been obtained to permit of accurate forecasts of water supply from the winter snowfall. The system can also be extended to other and larger projects, and the work will be limited only by the amount of funds available for the purpose. The report on the preliminary campaign in the Maple Creek watershed has brought many expressions of commendation from farmers and hydraulic engineers."

MEXICO'S NEW ERA.

Sober-minded people throughout the United States will extend their good will to the Mexican people and their wishes for better days, now that our neighbors are making something in the way of a genuine democratic experiment at last.

It would be very difficult to analyze that state of mind which has prevailed among many newspaper writers in the United States, who have unmistakably welcomed turmoil in Mexico, and who have suggested that the Mexicans need their new administration.

There has been a shocking lack of sympathy in this point of view; and something resembling a low prejudice instead of that natural optimism which must be the law of every nation, if the world is to move forward. It is to be expected, of course that Mexico will have many a stressful period in days and years to come. The United States is an example of the fact that a government by the people does not mean smooth sailing. In that its people fought the most terrible war that was ever waged after the ballot had been adopted as the people's weapon.

Mexico will continue to have troubled days, at intervals—but it will press forward. This we must believe, if we are not ready to admit that a popular form of government is impossible.

And it is to be hoped that the humane and enlightened people in the United States will discourage the practice of magnifying those clashes which occur on the other side of the border, and that they will extend their friendliest thoughts toward a people who are trying to ascend the steep and thorny path of self-government.

THE SAMENESS OF HUMAN NATURE.

At ten o'clock on Tuesday evening, the New Mexican informed Colonel Ralph E. Twitchell and sent out a cypher dispatch stating that McDonald had been elected governor of New Mexico by two thousand majority. At midnight it posted a bulletin in front of the New Mexican office that he had been elected by 2,400 majority. This remarkably quick determination of the result of the election was obtained by comparing the returns from a score or so of scattered precincts with the returns for Delegate Andrews in 1908 and multiplying the result by the number of precincts in the territory. This law of proportion or of averages never seems to fail even when it comes to judging what seems so fickle a thing as human nature. In the last analysis, it proves that even human nature the world over is of almost mathematical sameness. Later partial returns in the lump from and by counties, which furnished no exact basis for comparison because they failed to give the returns precinct by precinct, caused the New Mexican to waver in its reliance in the result as worked out four hours after the polls had closed on Tuesday, but finally the early calculation has been verified and the law of averages and proportion was again vindicated.

REAL CAUSES.

One thing the election returns disprove to the gullible public and that is the story of frightful frauds perpetrated in coal camps and by big corporations through their employees. As a rule, the naturalized foreign vote in the coal camps of Colfax county was cast against the Republican ticket. As a rule, the employees of the Santa Fe railroad knifed Republican candidates.

There is nothing strange about this, for Socialism through labor unionism, is making remarkably rapid headway in the United States, and Socialism has been teaching that the Republican party represents capitalism, and therefore the enemy. Labor desires most the initiative, the referendum, the recall and similar tenets, and labor knew that the Democrats had declared for these things while the Republicans had not. There are many curious facts that might be garnered from analyzing the election returns as to the real causes that swayed the voters, some of them exceedingly uncomplimentary to our human honesty and wisdom, and others again emphasizing the flaws in the doctrines or conduct of parties and leaders. But as is said in Polly of the Circus: "The show's got to go on!" and business and politicians will rapidly adjust themselves to new conditions.

Of the 91,973,206 persons in the United States 81,732,687 or 88.9 per cent, are white. Of the remainder, 9,828,294 or thirty times the population of New Mexico is negro. The Indians, Chinese and Japanese altogether number only 411,285. The increase in negroes the past ten years was only 11.3 per cent, as against an increase of 22.3 per cent, or almost double for the white population. All talk of the negro or yellow or red peril, is therefore sheer nonsense.

After all, the governorship, while it is the spectacular position is not near as important as the legislature.

The New Mexico election returns are making victory a good deal easier for the Democrats of Arizona.

MONOTONY OF HAM AND EGGS

Man, Who Wanted Change While Wife Was Away, Could Not Break Himself of Old Habit.

A sad-eyed man with an Axminster countenance climbed upon a stool in a quick-flick place the other day and grasped the table of contents. The girl behind the counter put down a glass of water in front of him and waited for him to make up his mind what he wanted.

"Now that my wife's away for a day or two, I suppose I'll get a little change," he volunteered. "Out at our house it's just ham and eggs, ham and eggs, every day, every meal pretty near. A man gets sick and tired of one thing."

"I think a person does like a variety better," said the girl, smiling sweetly.

"Yes," he growled, as he began to run his eye up and down the program. He didn't seem to be able to sight anything that just struck him, and he pondered for some moments until he noticed that the girl was shifting from one foot to another waiting for his order.

"Oh, well," he grunted, taking another look, "gimme some—some, aw, gimme some ham and eggs!"

"Ham and!" the girl shouted back as she turned around to grin to herself.

Catching an Eavesdropper.

In rural New England districts the telephone takes the place of tea in the city as a place where women gather and retail gossip.

"It's a great blessing," especially if you're on a party line," said our hostess. "And we're all on party lines! Wait—"

She went to the instrument, called a number, and remarked, "That you, Bessie! What's this I hear 'bout you'd him breaking it off?"

We watched her smile as she listened to the answer. Then she said, "How'd I hear it? Why, Mrs. Asa Parker told me!"

She held the receiver free of her ear and beckoned us close. We heard distinctly an indignant voice exclaim, "Why, Sarah Bowers, I never said no such a thing!"

"I thought I'd catch her," said Mrs. Bowers, when the telephone conversation was closed. "As I told you, the phone's a great comfort to us all!"

Willie—No'm; but I knew I'd be tired tonight, so I prayed twice last night.

THE ELEMENT OF HONESTY IN ADVERTISING.

BY GEORGE S. BANTA, B. A.
Advertising is now not the unexpected thing of every legitimate business. We do not believe that a man has a burden of honest convictions about the merit of his goods if he refuses to say anything about them. It simply isn't human nature for a man to act that way.

And the converse of this statement is just as true, namely, that we look with suspicion upon a business operating "on the quiet." We would all suffer a nervous shock to meet with a man foolish enough to advertise a "shell game" because it would violate our instinctive feeling that the man who is seeking the light of publicity with his wares has something good to offer—something that you will want a second time.

I was told the other day by a friend of mine, a local furniture dealer, of a large shoe store in Chicago which does not advertising in the newspapers. It depends upon its location, one of the finest in the city, to bring it business. My friend thought that he was citing an example of a store that is making a great success without advertising. Yet, from the way in which he cited the instance, it was clear that in his own mind he recognized this as an exceptional case.

"But," you ask, "why should advertising my business make people look upon it more honorable and worthy of confidence?"

Listen. A man came into your office today whom you had never seen before. You dealt with him at arm's length because he was a stranger to you. A few minutes later a business man you see every day came in and your attitude toward him was entirely different from that you showed toward the stranger. With one you were acquainted from frequent meetings and intercourse. The other one you knew nothing about.

It is exactly the same with advertising. The first advertisement may not go far toward getting your business into the confidence of your community. But keep on! It won't be long until your honest newspaper messages will tell and will, before you realize it, give you a credit rating in the public mind that you would never think of parting with.

NOT ASHAMED OF HIS GOODS

Why One Business Man Advertised and Prefers Newspapers to Other Mediums.

This is the manner in which a Michigan business man explains why he advertises and why he uses newspapers in preference to any other medium:

"I advertise in the newspapers because I am not ashamed of my goods or my work and to let people know about myself, my store and my stock; because I cater to the intelligent class and they read the papers, and I believe in increasing my business; because I can talk to more people through the newspapers at a greater distance in less time and at a more reasonable price than in any other way; because my newspaper advertising has brought me greater returns for the least expenditure of any advertising I have done; because when I write an ad I am not too stingy to pay for placing it in the best possible medium or to have it inserted so it is attractive; because I know my ad is seen and read by every one in the house where the paper goes."

Successful Advertising.

The secret of successful advertising is in making a business of it, not occasionally, but all the time. It is necessary to have something worth advertising then advertise it right and results will follow. No amount of advertising will sell a thing nobody wants. The things offered must "make good" the advertisement. If you have no bargains to offer, you haven't learned your business. If you have, it is the province of an advertisement to call them to the attention of the buyer. An offer of a bargain, if made right, will attract the attention of the buyer and if the offer is made good, the next offer will be looked for. It is necessary to have the advertisement reach the possible customer. The country merchant has no better medium than a live local paper which goes into the homes in tributary country. Advertising pays if done right and backed up with the "goods."—Exchange.

An Observation.

"Ever notice it?" queried the man who asks questions on the installment plan.
"Did I ever notice what?" queried the innocent bystander.
"That the man who shakes hands the hardest is always the hardest to shake!" concluded the other.

Get an Evening Suit
That Makes You Feel Your Best

It has been said that nothing makes a man feel more like a "stuffed sausage"—with the skin pulled tight—than the average full-dress suit or tuxedo. This is really true of the AVERAGE full dress or tuxedo—but simply because the right tailoring is not there. The ROYAL TAILORS are Evening Clothes Makers supreme. They have mastered the art of making a formal garment that is only formal in name, with all the stiffness and clammy feeling left out. A Royal Dress Suit or Tuxedo drapes gracefully, easily over the body lines, and gives the wearer a perfect "at home" feeling. A handsome FULL DRESS or TUXEDO with silk linings, from

MISS KATRINA'S HALLOWE'EN

By MINNIE E. HICKS

Miss Katrina closed the door behind her, and stepped out into the darkness. The two pumpkin jack-o-lanterns grinned grotesquely at her from either side of the doorway and sounds of merriment floated to her from inside the house, but she heeded neither. She had wanted to have this night alone, but when the young people had asked permission to hold their annual Halloween party in her home, she had put aside her wish as selfish, and heartily thrown open her doors to the lads and lassies of the neighborhood. Still, Memory was not to be cheated of her trust, and as Miss Katrina moved about the rooms, starting games and seeing that no one was neglected, it persistently followed her and carried her back to a similar gathering of 15 years before. Now she knew that all was going well, and leaning against a pillar of the porch, she let Memory have its way.

Again a girl of 20, she played the time-honored games of Halloween at that other party, her partner always the man with the dark eyes whose glance rested so tenderly upon her. "Anybody can see that Dr. Clinton is in love with Katrina March," some one whispered. "But he needn't think there's any chance for him; she's refused some of the best around here."

Despite this opinion, when the walk home in the dim starlight was ended, Katrina had given her heart irrevocably into the keeping of the handsome young physician, at whom the people of that community looked askance because he had dared to come into their midst without exhibiting his family tree, or proving his claim to any ancestral acres. A bitter storm of opposition had greeted the news of Katrina's engagement, all the harder for her to bear because it vented itself in unjust invectives against her lover. Her mother might have yielded, but Mr. March was inexorable; and when one day the latter was found lying in the road with a bullet through his heart, for want of any tangible evidence, the finger of suspicion pointed to Dr. Clinton. There was nothing definite enough to lead to his arrest, but his life was rendered miserable, and, after using every possible means of tracing the perpetrator of the deed without avail, he went west, bidding his sweetheart wait until he could return to bestow upon her a name freed from the blot of suspicion. "Truth must triumph, my darling," he said as they parted: "it may take years, but we will try to be patient."

And so, filling the time by carrying love and sunshine into many darkened lives, using the sorrows of others as a bulwark against her own, lest it overwhelm her, Miss Katrina had waited for 15 years, while the silver crept in among her brown hairs, and in her deep eyes there grew the expression of one who watches for a ship that never comes.

"Miss Katrina! Miss Katrina! Where are you?" The door was flung open, and, with an effort to throw the spell of the old days, Miss Katrina turned to the eager group.

"It was so warm in the house," she said, "and I thought you wouldn't miss me."

"Oh, Miss Katrina!" chorused the girls reproachfully, as they gathered round her.

"It's nearly 12 o'clock," said Myrtle North, "the time when all sorts of things happen. Now, Miss Katrina, Elsie is to take this candle and go with you while you hold a mirror over the well and see your lover's face in it."

In spite of her protests, Miss Katrina was hurried from the house, mirror in hand, and just as the clock struck the hour, she and Elsie reached the old well, which yawned grimly in the flickering candle-light.

"Now, hold the glass up and look," whispered Elsie.

Miss Katrina raising the mirror obediently, but the next moment it slipped from her hands and was shattered on the stone curb of the well.

"Oh, it's broken," Elsie said helplessly, "and the wind is going to blow my candle out; I guess we'd better go back to the house."

own roof, thinking, not of the possible bad luck to which she referred, but of the face which had flashed out of the darkness and looked at her from the mirror a second before it had fallen to the ground.

"I am getting old," she said to herself, "old and fanciful."

Yet the face stood out clearly in her memory—the face of Maurice Clinton, stamped with the impress of time and with hair as plentifully sprinkled with silver as her own. "Just as he might look now," she murmured, "but, of course, it couldn't, couldn't be."

When the first light of the late November dawn stole into the room Miss Katrina, weary of futile attempts to sleep, was up and dressed. As she took a spray of cosmos from a vase on the bureau and fastened it in her hair the whistled melody of "Juanita" floated up from beneath the window. She knew the signal well and, without pausing to wonder or question, ran down the stairs and threw open the door to find herself face to face with Maurice Clinton.

For one breathless moment they looked deep, deep into each other's eyes.

"You have waited for me, my 'Trina,'" he said at length, taking her hand and drawing her into the parlor. "And you have come," she said. "Oh, I knew you would."

"Fate dropped into my hands the information which made it possible for me to come to you," he said, in a low tone, "read this, 'Trina.'"

He handed her a document drawn up in legal form and signed by two witnesses, the dying testimony of one John Denham, the purport of which was that on a certain day, while engaged in a hunting expedition, John Denham had, at a spot accurately described, shot and killed a man who came to be passing and of whose name the testator was ignorant. Denham was to start for Europe the following day, on a commission of great importance, and, knowing himself to be wholly innocent of crime, did not feel bound to incur the delay which a statement of facts would necessitate, and which would risk the high place in the business world just within his grasp. When, after almost fifteen years, failing health compelled his retirement from active life, the unhappy incident constantly recurred to his mind, tormenting him with the thought that some innocent person might be suffering for his carelessness and subsequent selfishness. As his attending physician Dr. Clinton summoned the lawyer at Denham's request, little dreaming that the matter which weighed so heavily on the sick man's conscience in any way concerned himself. When Denham died a few days later Dr. Clinton secured the paper from the lawyer and started at once for the place which still held his heart.

"I am so glad we know just how it was," Katrina said, with tears in her eyes.

"And now you will keep your promise," he said, taking her in his arms. The years of trouble seemed to slip far into the background, as these two renewed the vows made so long ago.

"I came too late to see you last night," he said, "but I could not rest so I wandered down the old orchard path and came out by the well just in time to see you there. What were you doing?"

"Trying to see my lover's face in the mirror," she whispered, "and I did."

He bent and kissed her tenderly, while outside the late chrysanthemums nodded to each other and the pumpkin jack-o-lanterns by the door grinned knowingly in the warm autumn sunshine.

Lesson in Etiquette. The captain was trying to impress upon the sailor the importance of saying "sir" in addressing his superior.

"How's her head?" he asked. "Nor-by-east," answered the old tar gruffly. Another trial was without success.

"Let me take the wheel," said the skipper, "and you ask me the question."

"Ow's her head?" roared the sailor. "Nor-by-east, sir," replied the captain.

Cissy's Debut

By MARION GORDON

Cissy Braden had just finished displaying a marvelous lace frock to an over-critical customer when Mme. Rosel sent for her. The well-known modiste sat in her private room impatiently tapping her porcelain teeth with a gold pencil when Cissy entered, still wearing the lace frock and looking like a young princess.

"Miss Braden," said Madame sharply, "I have a sudden call from Mrs. Givens of Fifth avenue—her daughter has ruined the coming out frock we delivered this morning—it caught fire in some way. You are to go up there at once with the white crepe de chine and fit Miss Givens so that she may wear it this afternoon. Ah, you are wearing the lace gown! She looked thoughtfully at Cissy's stately young form clothed in the perfect fitting frock that was worth a small fortune.

Madame's calculating eye did not bother with such unimportant details as Cissy Braden's perfect complexion and dainty features or the coronet of red-brown hair that matched her eyes. All the French woman noticed was the exquisitely fitting robe, and she was computing what price she might wring from Mrs. Givens if she sold it in place of the crepe de chine.

"Wear the lace robe up there under a long coat, Miss Braden," she said decisively. "Perhaps Miss Givens may take a fancy to it and buy that instead of the other."

"Very well, Madame," said Cissy. Madame looked at her watch. "You will go immediately," she commanded. "Javonne will call a taxicab."

Cissy fitted from the room and walked across the richly carpeted show rooms to the long narrow room which she occupied with the other models and alteration hands.

Gathering some sewing materials into a workbag she slipped on a long gray cloak, and, followed by the envious admiration of her fellow workers, Cissy went out to the waiting cab, bearing a huge white pasteboard box containing the crepe de chine gown for Miss Givens.

In front of the Givens mansion a red striped awning stretched a tunnel to the door.

Months afterward when Mme. Rosel sent her handbag to the church to convey the happy bride and groom from church, Owen Mungie whispered in the pretty ear of his wife:

"Cissy, darling, why do you always refer to the day I met you as your debut?"

Cissy blushed warmly and laid a finger on his ruddy cheek. "Ah," she said, tenderly, "it's because 'twas the day Miss Givens entered society and because 'twas the day—bless the same Owen, dear, that I first met you!"

One Vote for Kipling. A certain senator is an expert on mining law, but in the words of the Washington Post, "he is not up on literature." Some time ago he introduced a bill for the relief of a gallant Union soldier, named Mulvaney. Presently an eastern colleague went over to him.

"I am very glad you introduced that bill," he remarked. "Mulvaney and I are old friends."

"Is that so?" responded the western statesman. "I am pleased that you take an interest in him, and I hope that you will vote for the bill. I don't know him myself, but he has been highly recommended to me, and it seems to be a most deserving case."

"Yes," said the wicked colleague, warmly. "Mulvaney is the best fellow that ever lived, a lively, fighting, big-hearted, lovable, humorous Irishman. You will be surprised to know how often I have spent the days and nights with him in camp, and how much I enjoyed it. By the way, he added, 'I have another friend you ought to know. His name is Kipling—Rudyard Kipling.'"

"Never heard of him," said the Senator from the west, as he turned away, "but if you are going to introduce a bill for his relief, let me know. I'll help you all I can."

Getting Data. The detective was trying to find a clue to the destination of the runaway couple.

"You saw your young mistress leave the house at 9 o'clock last night?" he said.

"Yes, sir," answered the kitchen girl.

"What did she travel in?"

"A white hat, white slippers, and a pale blue gown, sir."

Soured. "I'm just crazy to play golf," said the enthusiastic summer girl.

"Most people are," muttered the mere man who had no ambition even partly to fill the presidential chair.

Our Fashions. "What do you think of Mrs. Smith's waist?"

"Well, she seems to have so much, and yet she hasn't any," London Opinion.

HE DECLINED AN INVITATION

Jinks Got His Letters Mixed and Employed Receives Scrawl He Intended for a Friend.

The following amusing incident showing the result of absence of mind when writing letters is quoted by a Birmingham paper.

The culprit, Jinks, received one day two letters by first post. One was from his friend, Jack Smith, asking him to play in a football match; the other was an invitation from his employer, whose name was also Smith, to spend the day at his home.

Now, Jinks had long admired from afar his employer's only daughter, and this invitation was most acceptable to him. He promptly set aside the football match and wrote a brief note of acceptance on an elaborate sheet of note paper, while to his other friend he sent a scrawl across an old half sheet.

The next morning Jinks was surprised to see Jack Smith burst into his room exclaiming, "Why, aren't you ready?"

"Ready? I wrote you I couldn't play."

"Nonsense! You wrote me a courteous note accepting my invitation. I took your excess politeness as a joke."

"Then the gunner got the scrawling for you!" Jinks gasped.

"What did you say, old man?"

"Dear Smith: Rats! I've something better on!"

Two of a Kind. "I find that my husband has been having the office boy call me up every day and mumble terms of endearment. That's a nice way to fool his wife. He's been going to the hall game."

"How is it that you didn't catch on to the voice?"

"Well, I'm busy at bridge every day, and I've been having the cook answer the telephone."

HIS GRIEF. Mrs. Benton Holme—Why, Tommy, you're a perfect little pig. Now, aren't you sorry you ate so much roast beef?

Tommy—Yes'm; cause I ain't got any room left for another plate of ice cream.

Rectifying an Error. Uncle Joe Cannon, at a dinner in Washington, said of speakers' errors: "All speakers make queer errors now and then. Usually, though, they correct them with address."

"Once, in the Illinois legislature, there were two men, Montague Harrison and Harrison Montague. The first was very short, the second very tall; but the speaker, during a debate, once addressed the former as the latter."

"He recovered himself, however, quickly. He said, with a chuckle: 'It is strange that I should take Harrison Montague for Montague Harrison—that I should make such a mistake as that—for there is as great a difference between you two gentlemen as there is between a horse chestnut and a chestnut horse.'"

He Understood. When the ice man came out of No. 27 he found a small boy sitting on one of his blocks of ice.

"Here!" he roared. "What are yer a-sittin' on that for? Git off of it!"

The small boy raised a tear-stained countenance. "Was yer ever a boy?" he queried, faintly.

"Of course I was!" fumed the man. "And did you never play truant?"

"Of course I did!" snarled the ice man. "Now, then, you—"

"An' when you got home did yer father never take a stick an'—"

A lump rose slowly in the ice man's throat.

"Sit where ye are, my little man!" he gulped. "I understand!"

Real Thing Wanted. "I want to talk to the office boy about that ball game yesterday," declared the junior partner.

"You read the accounts of the game," said the senior partner.

"That was the way the umpire saw it. I want to hear about the game as it really happened."

Co-Operative Economy. The wife—After all, Adolphus, this visit isn't going to be so expensive. With the half-dozen dresses I simply had to get, and your clothes cleaned and pressed, we'll manage splendidly.—Pathfinder.

The Spirit That Wins. Griggs—I admire Parker immensely. He has a hard time making both ends meet, but he's game from the word "Go."

Briggs—Game! Why, Parker looks upon the struggle with the wolf as a mere sporting event.

Mild Restriction. "Understand," said the Rhode Island judge to the fair divorcee, "you can't marry again in this state."

The lady smiled discreetly. All the spectators smiled discreetly. Even the judge hid his face behind a volume of recent decisions.

"Your honor," said the lady. "Well?"

"If I stroll across the state line into Massachusetts I can get back in time for tea, can't I?"

Whereupon the judge looked at his watch and promptly adjourned court.
