Orders Are Also Issued by Kemal for Suspension of Preparation for War in the Thrace District.

KEMALISTS ASK AN ARMISTICE MEETING

General Feeling in Paris Is That the Danger Point in the Near East Situation Is Past.

Constantinople, Oct. 1 (by the Associated Press).—Orders for cessation of military movements in the Chanak region of Asiatic Turkey and for the suspension of the activities of the Turkish irregular forces in Thrace have been issued by Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Turkish nationalist leader.

TURKS AGREE TO AN ARMISTICE MEETING

Constantinople, Oct. 1 (by the Associated Press).—The Turkish nationalist authorities have agreed to an armistice conference in Mudania on Tuesday and have requested the allied high commissioners to appoint delegates. The nationalists will be represented by Ismet Pasha and possibly by Hamid Bey.

Paris, Oct. 1 (by the Associated

Paris tonight is that the danger point in the Near East situation is past. The withdrawal of the Turks from Eren Keui, and as semi-officially reported, also from their positions at Chanak, is accepted as proof of the Angora government's readiness to comply with the allied desires.

Great Britain is given credit in French official quarters with having held a dignified and firm attitude, which has greatly contributed to the solution of the difficulity. At the same time Mustafa Kemal is praised for having shown a conciliatory attitude, which, it is hoped, the British will not overlook, as the Kemalists will have evacuated the neutral zone first.

SENATOR BURSUM MAY TOUR THE STATE WITH REPUBLICAN SPEAKERS

Santa Fe, Oct. 1.—After having traveled the length of the state, Judge S. B. Davis, Jr., republican nominee for United States senator, and Mrs. Adeline Otero-Warren, nominee for representative in congress, had a breathing spell Sunday, preparatory to a hard trip through the southwest. Between the meeting at Alamogordo Saturday night and the night meeting at Las Cruces on Monday night, October 2, the party had no engagements except to visit some of the Dona Ana county precincts Monday.

October 3 and 4 will be spent in Silver City and the surrounding camps, including Tyrone and Fort Bayard, and either Hurley or Santa Rita.

Lordsburg will be visited in the afternoon of October 5, with a night meeting at Deming. Luna county is normally democratic by about 200, but in the special elec-

Twenty-three years ago in a Boston hotel two traveling men spent the night together. One took his Bible, read a chapter and prayed. That man was Nicholson. His com-companion was so impressed that plans were made for a Christian organization among traveling men and the Gideon organization resulted.

ST. LOUIS MAN SOLVES THE POP BOTTLE MYSTERY

Gets Tickets to World Series, Check for $100 and Transportation to and From the Big Contest.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—(By the Associated Press)—James P. Hon, a St. Louis salesman, is the luckiest baseball fan in the world tonight. Thousands may lose sleep and scramble for precious world series pastboards—but not Mr. Hon. He has tickets right now, a personal check for $100 from Ban Johnson, president of the American League and round trip transportation between St. Louis and New York. All that because he solved "the pop bottle mystery."

Fleider Whitey Witt of the Yankees, was struck on the head by a pop bottle in the recent "crucial" series between New York and St. Louis. He was so badly injured he had to be carried off the field. Several rewards were offered for the identity of the thrower of the bottle. It was right then that Mr. Hon up and solved the mystery. It was a poor day for Whitey Witt but a lucky one for Hon. He wrote a letter to President Johnson explaining just how the accident happened. Witt, he said, while running stepped on the neck of the bottle, causing it to fly and strike him in the head. Mr. Johnson was so pleased with Hon's explanation that he sent him the reward, the tickets and railroad transportation. And in addition to that his employers, Morris and company have given him leave of absence at full pay to attend the games.

MENNONITES MOVING FROM CANADA TO NEW HOMES IN OLD MEXICO

El Paso, Texas, Oct. 1.—Separate from the settlement of 1,600 Mennonites at San Antonio, Chihuahua, which is to be augmented by many thousands more this fall and winter, all from Canada, is a settlement just in the making on the Santa Clara ranch 39 miles from Agua Nueva, near Chihuahua City.

The land, belonging to the Mennonites on the Santa Clara ranch, was owned by David Russek, Chihuahua leading banker, who is to construct 25 miles of railroad to the colony's holdings of 150,000 acres.

These Mennonites are from Canada, also, the same as the ones in the San Antonio settlement. Another congregation from Canada has purchased 50,000 acres on the Santa Clara ranch, and expects to migrate this fall.

JUAREZ RESUMES BUSINESS AFTER REVOLT; 59 MEN WILL BE TRIED

general as if attempting to read their fate in his glance.

Three alleged "rattlers" trapped with these men were executed in the second patio Saturday morning. Many could see them fall. All heard the report of the rifles in the hands of the firing squad.

Whether they, too, were to be executed was to be decided by a military court.

"I think it best to take them to Chihuahua City for trial," General Martinez announced today.

Civilians were to be tried in the federal court in Juarez, he said.

Prisoners accused of participating in plots or uprisings against the government shall be tried within seventy-two hours after capture, under Mexican law.

Sergeant is Tried. In the meantime, the first formal court martial proceeding in connection with the revolt began early this morning. First Sergeant Francisco Castro was the accused. Several witnesses were heard before noon. The sergeant was charged with failure to perform his duty. He was in command of the guard at the barracks when the uprising occurred.

At the same time witnesses were being questioned in an effort to get the inside story of the cause of the uprising and why records of the regiment were destroyed by fire. Because the pay rolls and other papers are missing, it has been impossible so far to ascertain the exact number of men involved in the mutiny.

General Martinez said today that it was believed only 100 men of the forty-third regiment revolted.

"Many were on sick leave some were at their homes and were on leave," he explained. "For this reason it will be some time before we know the number and names of the missing men."

59 Under Arrest. Fifty-four soldiers were under arrest at headquarters late today as the search for others still at large was continued.

All officers of the regiment who reported to military headquarters are on duty. Three officers were missing. They were Captain Feliciano Valverde, leader of the uprising; Captain Jose Robles and Captain Antonio Cranston.

The great border zone of hide-and-seek got under way early today. With their uniforms powdered white with alkali dust and faces streaked with perspiration, hard riding troopers followed trails of fleeing insurgents over the rough, scorching plains that start at the edge of the city.

Reports that a band of revolutionists were in the vicinity of the Rio Grande, at least six miles down the valley, were received at 7 a. m. by General Eugenio Martinez, commander of the northern military zone. He immediately ordered 50 soldiers to make investigation and bring in the suspects.

Plans Are Known. Revolutionists on the American side of the border had planned to send an expedition into Chihuahua southward from Juarez early this morning, Mexican federal authorities said the plans were known.

The insurgents, well equipped, were to have crossed at 4 a. m. But the revolt of 150 men of the forty-third regiment in Juarez preempted United States agents to move swiftly to round up the alleged plotters in El Paso.

Mexican federal authorities declared they had no knowledge of the revolt and the plans of the El Paso revolutionists had no connection.

A party searching for rebels in the hills northwest of the city, which included Alderman Clemente Garcia, found three saddled horses and a coat opposite the smelter. Footprints led to the river's edge.

After the mounts and saddles had been returned to police headquarters they were identified as those taken from the forty-third regimental stables by Captain Valverde. Colonel Manuel Espinosa, commander of the forty-third regiment, said the saddles and horses were his. One of the animals was wounded.

Valverde in El Paso? Juarez authorities said that Captain Valverde probably was in or near El Paso, as he has relatives here. He was born and reared in Vinton, according to a despatch received from that place, and lived there until about 12 years ago. His father owned considerable property

A FREE BOOKLET ON SCHOOL LUNCHES FOR ALL READERS

Uncle Sam has issued a free booklet to aid mothers and teachers in preparing the right kind of food for school children.

The Journal is going to do its share in this worthy and necessary undertaking by securing a copy for everyone who sends his name and address to our Washington Bureau.

It is highly important to give special care to this subject because over one-fifth of the entire population of the United States is in daily attendance in the schools of the nation.

To have an apt pupil it is necessary to have a healthy one. The child who is fed correctly will think clearly when he is grown.

Every mother and teacher should write today for a copy of this new booklet which contains various hints of fare for the school lunch, suggestions as to the proper method of packing and recipes for sandwiches, cookies, salads and sweets.

Fill out and mail the coupon below, enclosing two cents in stamps for return postage. Write your name and address clearly. Be sure to send your letter to Washington, not to Albuquerque, N. M.

FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director, The Albuquerque Journal, Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

DECEASED MINER'S FRIENDS SEARCHING FOR HIS RELATIVES

Special to The Journal. Las Cruces, N. M., Oct. 1.—Friends of Robert Anderson, veteran mining man and owner of the oldest mine in New Mexico, who died in an El Paso hospital September 29, are searching for his relatives, who are heirs to a fortune estimated at from $150,000 to $200,000.

Anderson came to the southwest from New York in 1881. He located the Anderson-Apache Copper Mining company's properties near Hachita, N. M., which have been in continuous operation since 1885. He was the principal owner of five claims and 100 acres which produced $200,000, mostly high-grade copper and some silver in 1917. The property is reported to show 200,000 tons of low-grade copper ore, with 40,000 tons blocked out for stopping. He was also the principal owner of the American mine near Hachita.

C. F. Dunesan, of El Paso, friend of the dead man, said that Anderson occasionally spoke of having a sister in the east, "but so far," he

THREAT OF WAR ABROAD ACTS AS CURB ON BUYING

Car Loading Statistics Show Another New High Record for the Year; Railroad Earnings Fluctuate.

New York, Oct. 1.—(By the Associated Press).—Further evidence of improvement in the financial and industrial situations during the past week found an offset as far as business and financial sentiment concerned in the foreign market. The possibility of war between Turkey and Great Britain, despite the fact that conservative quarters are skeptical as to an actual outbreak of hostilities, acted as a curb on buying.

Industrial activity at home showed a further recovery from the effects of the strike. The steel industry was reported to be operating at a rate close to 70 per cent of capacity. Coal supplies are no longer a limiting factor, having been replaced in this respect by the scarcity of suitable freight cars.

Further settlements have been made between individual railroads and their shippers. The latest car loadings statistics, those for the week ended September 16, show another new high record for the year, the total being 945,919 cars.

Some disappointment has been expressed over August railroad earnings. A number of the roads show deficits and others heavy losses in both gross and net income as compared with August a year ago. On the other hand, some roads show improvement.

The rather unsatisfactory nature of statements has been expected in the best quarters. September earnings are expected to be considerably better, while the roads are still buying equipment liberally.

Wheat prices are continuing to fluctuate with the war news, but covering of shorts in the expiring September brought some strength into the market. There are signs that the grain trade is beginning to feel the shortage of railroad equipment.

A firmly tone has persisted in the money market, although call money has eased off materially after the flurry caused by tax payment operations.

The principal feature of the federal reserve statement is a continuation of the holdings of acceptances brought in the open markets by the reserve banks. The system's reserve ratio remains practically unchanged.

The bandits entered the home through a window and at the point of guns commanded eight members of the dinner party, including the Arnolds to give up their valuables. THE EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING IS EXACT SCIENCE

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—Advertising as a force is not new. It is very old, as old as the race itself, but advertising methods are constantly changing as improvements are discovered and introduced. Applied advertising is the latest method to be adopted by progressive business men. After years of wasteful, misdirected effort, they have learned to apply their advertising to selected markets instead of scattering it extravagantly broadcast.

They are aware that the buying habits of the people in various sections of the country differ widely because of well known differences in local conditions. They know that in many cases climate has an important influence upon the sale of a product. So they study their markets first.

If a man is the maker of electrical appliances, he must consider the fact that in one section of the country 75 per cent of the population live in electrically wired homes, while in another only 8.4 per cent enjoy this advantage. He must also bear in mind that many communities are supplied with electric current only during the night time. If he is a manufacturer of automobiles or automobile appliances he must know the per capita distribution of cars, which is as high as one for every 12 persons in one section and as low as one for every 31 persons in another.

The manufacturer of a luxury must select his markets with the aid of figures showing income tax returns, bank clearings, wages, rents, and other statistics of earning and spending power. On the other hand, the maker of a laundry soap or appliance will be chiefly interested in the character of the community. For instance, a soap maker, for instance, has popularized his product in Jacksonville, Fla., where the water is extremely hard, by advertising "The Only Soap Will Leave No Soap Scum on Water."

The expert business man of today will not consider placing an advertising contract until he has made a preliminary investigation of market conditions showing him the opportunity for a successful section. For selling people the kind of goods they want and can use, and giving him an idea of the amount of business he can expect. Then when he has made a preliminary investigation of market conditions, he sets aside a certain percentage for advertising costs. In other words, he distributes his advertising according to a budget plan.

Reduced to Science.

Contrast this method with all the others that have gone before it, and you perceive that advertising at last appears to have been reduced to an exact science. Originally, advertising was regarded as the art of making known; later, it became the art of making known to the largest number of people, and today it has become the combined art and science of making known to the largest number of people.

The first form of advertising developed by the race was probably gossip. The early cave men doubtless depended largely upon their wives to advertise their prowess and possessions. Women, because of their natural loquacity, inquisitiveness and practicality, it is thought, did the advertising for their tribes. The tribal artists were also advertisers, as they made known in pictures from the customs, pursuits and possessions of their clans.

Later on when the art of lettering was developed, the poster advertisement was introduced. The Greeks and Romans were especially fond of this form of publicity, and the thoroughfares of some of their cities—namely Pompeii and Herculaneum—were lined with picturesque hoardings announcing plays and gladiatorial shows; describing the joys of the fresh and salt baths, and informing the public of real estate sales, of articles lost and found, of the disappearance of runaway slaves and of absconding debtors, and of the latest police regulations.

The public crier also held a position of great importance and dignity in ancient days. He was a personage who made his rounds in state accompanied by a musician and delivered announcements with flowery eloquence. Through the middle ages the office of public crier was likewise held in high esteem, but as commerce expanded the position deteriorated until eventually hawkers and employed apprentices took over the greatest part of this work, making their announcements directly to the public.

Press Advertising Noiseless.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the average city of medieval times was not the quiet haven romance has painted it, but was quite as noisy as any modern metropolis. Compared to the incessant, raucous clamor of the street hawkers and apprentices of those days, indeed, the roar of our twentieth century street traffic is probably mild. Press advertising has greatly mitigated the noise of our modern cities. Back in the eighteenth century people lived in a perpetual babel of advertising.

The birth of press advertising dates from 1477 when William Caxton introduced his printing press into England. He started out by printing advertising posters and pasting them on the walls of taverns, town halls and churches, where they created a tremendous sensation. Printed pamphlets and sheets were the next step until the civil war, between Charles I and Cromwell, when the need for news concerning the combatants of both sides became so acute that weekly journals came into existence as a matter of course. It is recorded that one Nathaniel Butler was the first editor to accept a trade announcement, thereby inventing one of the greatest sources of revenue ever known.

The importance of Mr. Butler's example was not lost upon his colleagues, and the acceptance of trade announcements soon became a general practice. Even the early American journals contained advertisements of merchandise, such as tobacco, boots, horses and slaves. All of these were of extremely modest size, seldom occupying more than four or five lines of inconspicuous print. At that time, no one dreamed of the possibility of a full-page ad. Indeed, the development of advertising on a large scale was due less to the ingenuity of men than to accident.

In his book on "Scientific Distribution," Mr. Charles Frederick Higham tells an amusing story of how an early publisher of the New York Ledger, Mr. Robert Bonner, happened to discover the value of a large-spaced ad. Mr. Bonner, it seems, wrote a modest advertisement for the New York Herald containing only eight words—"Read Mrs. Southworth's New Story in the Ledger," and marked it for one line. His penmanship was so illegible, however, that the Herald mistook his "one line" for "one page." Next morning, therefore, the poor man was horrified to behold an entire page of the Herald devoted to the seemingly interminable repetition of his eight-word line.

As he did not have money enough to pay for so large an advertisement, he rushed hastily around to the Herald office, hoping to have the mistake corrected. But it was too late. Then, suddenly, an avalanche of orders began pouring in for the Ledger, completely exhausting the first edition so that another had to be printed at top speed. Instead of being financially embarrassed, Mr. Bonner actually made money on his full-page ad. Incidentally, he learned the tremendous pulling power of large-spaced newspaper advertising—a lesson he never forgot.

After several early experiments of this kind, advertising not only began to take on greater size and boldness, but advertising itself started spreading out until finally it came to be distributed upon a national scale. At first, national advertising was thought to be practical only through the medium of magazines, but in the past decade national newspaper advertising has come to be recognized as the most economical and efficacious advertising method that has ever been invented, because it can be applied to specific markets.

AUTOMOBILES CRASH

Pueblo, Colo., Oct. 1.—Traveling, according to witnesses, at a high rate of speed, a car driven by Frank Rozar, of Colorado Springs, crashed into a car driven by E. E. Stockstill, of this city, early tonight on the Colorado Springs-Pueblo highway, injuring D. E. Williams, of Colorado Springs, an occupant of the Rozar car, and a six-year-old girl, daughter of Mrs. K. Kastner, of Pueblo, who were in the Stockstill car. The Rozar car turned turtle after hitting the other car. The injured were treated and sent to their homes, neither being seriously hurt.

AUTOMOBILE FOOT IS LATEST AFFLICTION

Chicago, Oct. 1.—A brand new affliction—the automobile foot—was disclosed today by Dr. Charles Cross of San Francisco, here to attend the convention of physical therapists. It is caused, he declared, by holding the foot for prolonged periods on the accelerator pedal. The lesion caused by this strain, he said, is usually located at the second toe. Sensations of pain occur across the ball of the foot, alternately increasing and decreasing until it causes alarm, according to the physician.

"Limousine foot," Dr. Cross added, is something entirely different and is caused by not enough use of the feet in walking.

DENY RUMORS OF FINDING DIRKS IN JERSEY HOME

Number of Bullet Wounds Found in Bodies of Murdered Couple May Be Determined at Autopsy.

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 1.—Rumors that two dirks had been found in the home of Matthew Sullivan, caretaker of the Phillips Farm by detectives investigating the double shooting two weeks ago of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Protestant Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist and Mrs. James Milla, were denied by the police today. Detectives said that the weapons were ordinary kitchen knives.

The medical report covering the condition of the bodies when they were found in the Somerset county orchard, still lacks a statement regarding the number of bullet wounds found in Dr. Hall's body. This may be completed tomorrow when an autopsy is expected to be performed.

The authorities have intimated that new lines of investigation may develop from investigation given in the eight unsigned and undressed letters which, it was definitely established yesterday, were in the pockets of Mr. Hall when his body was found.

The authorities have declined to comment on the contents of these letters beyond declaring that they are derogatory to certain members of the congregation.

MAN FOUND POSING AS WOMAN AT N. Y. HOTEL

New York, Oct. 1.—A guest who registered last Friday as "Betty Berg, Okadale, L. I." at a hotel conducted exclusively for women, was arrested today and declared by the police to be William Berg, a Norwegian cook 35 years old.

Berg, who is an extreme blonde type, was made up to look like a large, fairly attractive woman and had obtained a room at the hotel without difficulty. The clerk became suspicious of him and detectives were called in today. The arrest followed.

Berg readily told who he was, said he just finished a season's job as cook at the Sportsmen's club at Okadale, Long Island, and was in town looking for work. His trunk contained a complete wardrobe of feminine apparel, the police say.

3 FOREST FIRES BURNING TOWARD MINNESOTA PARK

Several Farm Buildings Are Saved by Fighters; Wind Will Menace Millions of Feet of Timber.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 1.—Three forest fires tonight were threatening Itasca state park in northern Minnesota, according to word received at the state forester's office and W. T. Cox, state forester, was expected to arrive at the park late tonight to take charge there.

The fires have not reached the park, it was said, but are burning in that direction and wind would menace millions of feet of state-owned timber.

Reports from Pequot are to the effect that the fires in that section are out of control, so far as confining them to the woods are concerned, and are running in grass, headed for the highlands. The fire is not progressing in the direction of the town. At Ten Mile Lake, the fire fighters put in a strenuous day, with the result that several farm buildings which were in the path of fires in that section were saved.

Many fires are reported in the vicinity of Brainerd and Aitkin, as well as Bemidji. Weather conditions tonight are such that it is anticipated that much headway will be made in checking the fires.

HORNSBY CLOUTS WAY TO FAME IN SENIOR LEAGUE

Cardinals' Star Finished the Season With an Average of .401; Breaks Record of Long Standing.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals, today batted himself into the hall of fame among the select 400 hitters, the first man in the National League to accomplish the feat since 1899 when Ed Deleahanty of the Philadelphia "club" won the batting honors with an average of .408. Hornsby's mark for the season is .401. This is the third consecutive year the St. Louis star has won the batting championship of the senior major league circuit.

Hornsby's name will be recorded along with those of R. Barnes of Chicago, who hit .403 in 1876; Cap. A. C. Anson, Chicago who finished with .407 in 1879, and who in 1887 made a mark of .421; J. Stenzel, Pittsburgh, who made a mark of .409 in 1893; Hughie Duffy of Boston, with .438 in 1894; Jess Burkett, who won the championship in 1895 and 1896 with marks of .423 and .410 while a member of the Cleveland club; Willie Keeler, who topped the hitters with .432 while with Brooklyn in 1897 and Ed Deleahanty, the last of the 400 hitters until the present day.

The new member of the select circles missed his goal last season when he went into a batting slump at the tail end of the season and failed to get a hit in his last eight times at bat. His average fell to .397. The year previous he topped the hitters with an average of .370.

Cleveland, 6; Detroit, 5. Cleveland closed the season by defeating Detroit, 6 to 5, today.

LOBOS SQUARING AWAY FOR GAME WITH DENVER U

Colorado Grid Warriors Expected to Prove Strongest Aggregation Ever Booked to Invade State.

Having discovered in the Indian game Saturday the faults that need correction in the Lobo football machine, and having had the opportunity to observe most of his new men in action under fire, Coach Johnson of this week to making his football machine as near perfect for the game with Denver university next Saturday as is possible.

A victory over Denver university will give the Lobos almost unlimited prestige, for this year Denver university is picked by dopsters to win the Rocky mountain conference championship, and to beat a team of that caliber will be more than an ordinary victory.

But victory over Denver university is not a thing to be looked forward to with confidence. It is rather, something to be hoped for, and something to be worked for with never tiring effort. Coach Johnson pointed out to his warriors Saturday night. With a much stronger line than last year, and with what is characterized by Ed Lyons of the Denver Times as "the most quantitative and qualitative backfield material the institution has offered of late years." The Denver U. team which confronts the Lobo eleven on Varsity field next Saturday afternoon will in all probability be by far the strongest football team that has ever invaded New Mexico.

10 INDICTMENTS RETURNED AND 2 NO TRUE BILLS

Grand Jury in Guadalupe County Completes Work; Court Brings Suit to Collect $15,000 Bond.

Special to The Journal
Santa Rosa, N. M., Oct. 1.—On motion of District Attorney Luis E. Armiño of Las Vegas, the district court, has brought suit to collect the bond of $15,000 given three years ago by Lon Seymour, following his conviction of murder in the second degree and sentence of from 25 to 20 years in the state penitentiary. The bond is signed by 12 prominent citizens of Guadalupe county. Seymour furnished the bond when he appealed to the supreme court. He failed to perfect the appeal, and is believed to be in Texas.

At the fall term of court, presided over by Judge David J. Leahy of Las Vegas and which was held last week, the grand jury returned ten indictments and two no true bills.

The following cases were disposed of:
A verdict of not guilty was returned in the trial of Cruz Beltran, charged with the larceny of clothing of the value of over $10 from the store of Amado Perea at Vaughn.

Primitivo Pacheco was acquitted by a directed verdict, of the charge of larceny of wool from the warehouse at Duro. The evidence failed to connect Pacheco with the theft. Francisco Leyba and Cornelio Maes, who are suspected of the theft, have never been apprehended.

Antonio Salas, charged with assault with words on Jose Delgado, was adjudged guilty and fined $1 and costs. The case was tried without jury.

In the case of Isidro Anaya, charged with assault and battery upon Charles Gerhardt, editor of a newspaper, which was tried without jury, Judge Leahy assessed a fine of $5 and costs, but suspended collection on good behavior.

The testimony showed that Anaya had struck the editor one blow on the mouth following an argument about an article in Gerhardt's paper that Anaya considered a reflection on the Spanish-American people. Gerhardt admitted that some parts of the article were exaggerated and really not true.

Raymond Truitt pleaded guilty to theft and was sentenced to not less than one year in the state penitentiary.

The court quashed the indictment charging Jose Valentin Gutierrez with assault with a deadly weapon.

J. R. McKinley, indicted on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for the first day of the April term of court.

The suit of Lulu Roberts against the board of education of Puerta de Luna, was dismissed by the court. Miss Roberts alleged that she had been engaged to teach the Puerta de Luna school at a salary of $125 a month, and that at the end of three months and a few days she was discharged, with 30 days notice. She brought suit to collect five months' salary. The judge held that the school board's contract gave it the right to dismiss the teacher on 30 days' notice, and that the legal amount the board was allowed to contract for was $110 a month, which made the contract void.

Mr. Seth gave notice of an appeal in behalf of Bennett, and the court overruled this motion. Mr. Miller, assistant U. S. district attorney, contended that he could see nothing in a cattle charge against Spradlin; that it had nothing to do with the case involving a conspiracy to get Spradlin's land away from him which he had taken up under the soldier homestead act.

10 INDICTMENTS RETURNED AND 2 NO TRUE BILLS

Grand Jury in Guadalupe County Completes Work; Court Brings Suit to Collect $15,000 Bond.

Special to The Journal
Santa Rosa, N. M., Oct. 1.—On motion of District Attorney Luis E. Armiño of Las Vegas, the district court, has brought suit to collect the bond of $15,000 given three years ago by Lon Seymour, following his conviction of murder in the second degree and sentence of from 25 to 20 years in the state penitentiary. The bond is signed by 12 prominent citizens of Guadalupe county. Seymour furnished the bond when he appealed to the supreme court. He failed to perfect the appeal, and is believed to be in Texas.

At the fall term of court, presided over by Judge David J. Leahy of Las Vegas and which was held last week, the grand jury returned ten indictments and two no true bills.

The following cases were disposed of:
A verdict of not guilty was returned in the trial of Cruz Beltran, charged with the larceny of clothing of the value of over $10 from the store of Amado Perea at Vaughn.

Primitivo Pacheco was acquitted by a directed verdict, of the charge of larceny of wool from the warehouse at Duro. The evidence failed to connect Pacheco with the theft. Francisco Leyba and Cornelio Maes, who are suspected of the theft, have never been apprehended.

Antonio Salas, charged with assault with words on Jose Delgado, was adjudged guilty and fined $1 and costs. The case was tried without jury.

In the case of Isidro Anaya, charged with assault and battery upon Charles Gerhardt, editor of a newspaper, which was tried without jury, Judge Leahy assessed a fine of $5 and costs, but suspended collection on good behavior.

The testimony showed that Anaya had struck the editor one blow on the mouth following an argument about an article in Gerhardt's paper that Anaya considered a reflection on the Spanish-American people. Gerhardt admitted that some parts of the article were exaggerated and really not true.

Raymond Truitt pleaded guilty to theft and was sentenced to not less than one year in the state penitentiary.

The court quashed the indictment charging Jose Valentin Gutierrez with assault with a deadly weapon.

J. R. McKinley, indicted on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for the first day of the April term of court.

The suit of Lulu Roberts against the board of education of Puerta de Luna, was dismissed by the court. Miss Roberts alleged that she had been engaged to teach the Puerta de Luna school at a salary of $125 a month, and that at the end of three months and a few days she was discharged, with 30 days notice. She brought suit to collect five months' salary. The judge held that the school board's contract gave it the right to dismiss the teacher on 30 days' notice, and that the legal amount the board was allowed to contract for was $110 a month, which made the contract void.

Mr. Seth gave notice of an appeal in behalf of Bennett, and the court overruled this motion. Mr. Miller, assistant U. S. district attorney, contended that he could see nothing in a cattle charge against Spradlin; that it had nothing to do with the case involving a conspiracy to get Spradlin's land away from him which he had taken up under the soldier homestead act.

A SUMMER SERENADE

(TODAY'S SHORT STORY) by Ad Schuster

Tony Dallo had romance and a sense of humor. In his eyes was that roughish light which invites participation in a secret joke and in his clothes a touch of the artist. No one at the little lake resort had seen him before but all admitted he was the handsomest man in the colony.

Within a week after Tony's arrival at Fair Lake he was a friend of everyone. The women asked "Mr. Dallo" to untie boats and string hammocks and, with the easy flow of conversation that comes with vacation, the younger ones sang out invitations for "To-nee" to join the dances, dances and bonfire parties. It was a new life for the young man who greeted his popularity with a joyful laugh and outdid himself in being agreeable.

"Ethel," said Mrs. Clemmons, one of the camp members who was at an honored place of seniority through ten successive visits, "of course we all like this Mr. Dallo, but—don't become too interested in him. Remember, this is his first year here, no one knows anything about him and you will admit, in some ways he is just a little—crude."

"It is someone you talk about like this each year," Ethel replied. "You ought to know that summer flirtations are never serious. Tony is lots of fun here, but when we go home I will never see or think of him again." She looked thoughtfully at the water and admitted a moment of regret.

Tony and Ethel went fishing and explored the trails. They met the mail train and saw the vacation weeks through like happy children. Then he announced he was leaving back.

"Do you know," the girl said, "you have never told me what it is you do in New York or anything about yourself. Don't you feel you are good enough friends?"

In the moment of silence Tony grateful to the night which hid his embarrassment, turned many things over in his mind, half decided on open confession and half on a new life for his summer and yet—had he done it before. Somehow, though, there was something about the girl and this was the most painful awakening of all. He rowed vigorously in silence—then, while the boat slid noiselessly forward under the impulse, rested his oars and answered:

"I make my living with my voice. In the summer each year

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am writing you in regard to MARGIE. When I was three years old my eye was injured and became badly crossed. The doctors said glasses would correct it. I wore them until I was thirteen, when I went blind and was taken to a blind school where I received some education and was treated until I could see again.

I married when nineteen a good but poor man. We lived often apart. My eye as it worried me. One day I saw an ad in a Chicago paper where eyes could be straightened free if done before the students. I went and had my eyes fixed on the same day. It is much better and all it cost was my fare. I came home too soon when I should have stayed and so it is not perfect but hardly noticeable.

I will give my address to you and the address of the specialist so that if MARGIE writes to you she can get them.

Thank you so much for your letter. If MARGIE writes to me I will certainly furnish her with the two addresses you so kindly sent. At present I do not know how to communicate with her.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Ten years ago I was married, but the result was very unhappy. It seems to me trouble started the first week after our marriage. My husband proved to be a man who had many lady friends and he insisted on the privilege of seeing them just as much after marriage as before. After a year a little baby girl was born to us, and even this did not make my husband any more faithful. My little daughter and I were left at home night after night while he spent money on women.

My heart was broken and just when I decided I would have to leave him, he left me. He found another woman he thought he wanted to marry and he asked me to get a divorce. I have been brought up to feel that it is sinful to get a divorce, and so of course I refused. He left me anyway and I had to go home to my parents so that mother could take care of the baby while I worked.

In the eight years that my husband and I have been separated I have only heard from him four times and then it was to ask again that I divorce him. Now something has happened which makes me want a divorce. I long to be free so that I can marry him. He knows my story and he doesn't care except that it hurts him to think I have treated him in such a way.

I am simply lost and don't know what to do. Do you think I should get the divorce and be free to marry the man I love, or should I stick to my old belief that divorce is wrong?

FRYING PAN AND FIRE. Personally I do not consider divorce wrong; the greater sin lies in hasty marriages and loveless unions. You seem to have the best thing life can offer—a good love, and I believe you should make it possible to marry again. To abstain from divorce will not benefit any one, but it will hurt many. Divorce and remarriage will bring happiness into your own life and to the life of the man you love; surely such a thing cannot be sinful.

Soft Velvet, Tan Crepe With Brown Embroidery

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN

ONE does not need to say that velvet is the fabric for the ultra smart fall dress—every fashionable shop evidences this. The exquisite shades and soft beauty of today's velvet made it much favored, and when it is skillfully made in smart design it is especially desirable.

The blouse portion is cut to give a long waistline effect, yet evidences a slight blouse tendency. This, one surmises, is wholly to bring out the beauty of the velvet.

The sleeves are of Canton crepe in tan color and achieve an air of distinction through their embroidery, which is brown in couching-stitch effect. The dress slips over the head, the opening being at the underarm.

AMUNDSEN WILL ATTEMPT TO FLY TO SPITZBERGEN

Arctic Explorer and His Pilot Will Hop Off From Wainwright, Alaska, Late in May or Early in June.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 1.—Word direct from Capt. Roald Amundsen that he and his pilot, Lieut. O. Omdahl, will hop off from Wainwright, Alaska, the latter part of May or the first of June to fly across the North Pole to Spitzbergen was brought to Seattle today by a school teacher at Wainwright.

Amundsen plans, Ward said, to make the flight of approximately 1,700 miles across the polar solitudes in one jump, carrying for subsistence only a thermos bottle of hot tea and a sandwich. When he left Wainwright, Ward said, Amundsen and Omdahl were cabin boys on the beach near the school. They are well supplied with food and fuel for the winter, having killed two whales, some walrus and seal, and having a reindeer herd of 4,000 animals and a coal mine nearby.

By the middle of May, according to Ward, the days are so long in that latitude that it is practicable to make photographs at night.

The schooner Maud, Amundsen's exploration ship, according to Ward, is drifting northward in the ice floe at such speed that the explorer was of the opinion it might cross the pole and reach Spitzbergen in a year, though it might take longer. The Maud is provisioned for seven years.

It was expressly declared at the meeting that there would be no affiliation with the old western federation of miners.

BOLT OF LIGHTNING SETS FIRE TO OIL TANK; $250,000 LOSS

San Francisco, Oct. 1.—Lightning early today struck two 55,000 barrel tanks at the Union Oil company's tank farm, 15 miles from here on San Pablo bay and set them afire. One contained crude oil and the other a refined product. The damage several hours later was estimated at $250,000.

The bolt came during the first thunder storm in this region in many months. One section of the roof of one tank, a piece of heavy metal about 20 by 30 feet, was thrown more than 50 feet. The fire, it was said, might burn many hours. Employees at the tank farm devoted themselves to keeping other tanks from taking fire. They were assisted by a west wind which blew the flames away from the main plant at the farm, distant some 400 feet from the burning tanks.

"Tille" Walker of the Philadelphia Athletics was second in the American league with 37, while Ruth who started playing this season in late June owing to a suspension, ranked fourth among the major league sluggers, having 35.

Hornsby's 1922 home-run record fell 17 short of equalling the record breaking total of 58 four-base hits batted out by Ruth in 1921.

St. Louis, Oct. 1 (by the Associated Press).—"Pep" Hornsby, star second baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals with 42 home runs to his credit this season, has succeeded "Babe" Ruth of the New York Yankees as the home-run "king."

Kenny Williams of the St. Louis Browns, ran Hornsby a close race throughout the season for the circuit-climbing honors of the major leagues and was second with 39, leading the American league.

"Tille" Walker of the Philadelphia Athletics was second in the American league with 37, while Ruth who started playing this season in late June owing to a suspension, ranked fourth among the major league sluggers, having 35.

Hornsby's 1922 home-run record fell 17 short of equalling the record breaking total of 58 four-base hits batted out by Ruth in 1921.

PEDDLERS OF DRUGS AVOID MARKED COINS

El Paso, Texas, Oct. 1.—Ill-legal peddlers of drugs have watched silver money they take in so closely that federal officers have quit trying to catch the peddlers with marked coins. The officers have learned, too, that the peddlers will demand 95 cents in change when a dollar they suspect is marked is offered them. The federal law forbids defacing American money, and the officers get nowhere by rubbing indelibles on the coins, or even marking bills.

The sellers are too suspicious now, and closely examine every bill or coin before accepting it. The officers have other ways to catch them, however, which they are not publishing.

BOLT OF LIGHTNING SETS FIRE TO OIL TANK; $250,000 LOSS

San Francisco, Oct. 1.—Lightning early today struck two 55,000 barrel tanks at the Union Oil company's tank farm, 15 miles from here on San Pablo bay and set them afire. One contained crude oil and the other a refined product. The damage several hours later was estimated at $250,000.

The bolt came during the first thunder storm in this region in many months. One section of the roof of one tank, a piece of heavy metal about 20 by 30 feet, was thrown more than 50 feet. The fire, it was said, might burn many hours. Employees at the tank farm devoted themselves to keeping other tanks from taking fire. They were assisted by a west wind which blew the flames away from the main plant at the farm, distant some 400 feet from the burning tanks.

FIRE IN SMYRNA. Smyrna, Oct. 1 (by the Associated Press).—Another fire in the residential quarter of Smyrna today destroyed 25 buildings. It is reported that several Armenians, fearing they would be blamed for the fire, threw themselves in the flames.

ONE OF THE MAIN ISSUES.

The coming election is to be decided largely upon state and national issues. It is important that voters keep this clearly in mind and that they do not lose sight of the fact that the interests of the State, whether they are represented in the national Congress or at the state capital, are one and the same. A state Senator would not think of deciding any question with reference to its effect on the people of Rhode Island or Illinois. His constituents are entitled to first consideration. On this point there can be no division of opinion. This fundamental principle of representation is not altered by the fact that a Senator sits in Washington.

On the most vital issue affecting this state's welfare, a protective tariff to secure the leading industry of New Mexico, Senator Jones betrayed his people by placing party fealty above their best interests. He voted against a protective tariff. Defending his vote before the voters, he said recently:

"I have kept the faith with my people, the people of New Mexico and not with the manufacturing interests of the east which already have grown shamefully rich at the expense of the defenseless public," he exclaimed. "And when you cast your vote for United States senator, I want you to decide whether you want one who has kept the faith with his people and has no apologies for such a course or one who is showing an apparent tendency to stand by the manufacturing interests of his native state of Connecticut."

In other words, Senator Jones tells his people, the people of New Mexico, that he has saved them from growing "shamefully rich at the expense of the defenseless public," by voting against a measure which was for the best interest of the people whom he was supposed to represent. But if, by his vote, Senator Jones had made his people, the people of New Mexico, "shamefully" poor, by reason of their inability to sell their wool in competition with foreign wool, what apology would he have had to offer them? And whom was Senator Jones representing in the United States Senate, if not the people of New Mexico, who have no desire to become "shamefully rich, but who insist that their leading industry shall have that protection that is necessary to its very life.

The people of this state are not so much concerned whether one party or another is represented in Congress, as that the interests of New Mexico shall be watchfully guarded.

FROM POLITICS TO FICTION

Not daunted by his defeat for the mayoralty of New York last fall, Henry H. Curran has turned from the field of active politics to writing stories, the material for which is to be taken from more than ten years' experience as a city official.

Mr. Curran, an excellent example of a young man who did not wait for opportunity but created it and through perseverance achieved success and rose from obscurity to a place of high esteem among his people. As a boy he did manual labor while he attended the public school and later worked his way through one of the leading universities and graduated with honors. At the same time that he was studying law, he worked as a reporter on a New York newspaper. He then entered politics and served his city in some of its highest offices for ten years. Henry Curran has a passion for the kind of politics that stands for public service. The country needs more men of his type and he performs a great service in recording his experience, from which others may draw the lessons of a useful life.

Curran's first story, which appears in the October number of Scribner's magazine, is called "Hey, Toolan's Marchin'!" His characters are types that he has known and worked with. To depict them he has drawn upon his experience in writing gained as a newspaper man before politics beckoned to him. While the story is purely narrative, those who like a little moral with their fiction may study over this speech which Mr. Curran has put in the mouth of the father of one of his characters, a successful business man:

"My boy, I hope you'll go in for government. We're living in a different day from those I grew up in, and now we need our best men in government, not in business. We've done it all in business. Why, look at our country leading the world, but not in government. And we won't be safe until our young men, who can lead, go into government and come to lead there, too. There's your chance, my boy, and there's your duty. I don't know how to tell you to go about it—I never knew much about politics—but I know we're mighty hard up for a few real leaders. Think it over."

Think it over!

TODAY'S BEST THOUGHT

OUR COUNTRY, OUR WHOLE COUNTRY AND NOTHING BUT OUR COUNTRY.

Let our age be the age of improvement. In a day of peace let us advance the arts of peace and the works of peace. Let us develop the resources of our land, call forth its powers, build up its institutions, promote all its great interests, and see whether we also, in our day and generation, may not perform something worthy to be remembered. Let us cultivate a true spirit of union and harmony. In pursuing the great objects which our condition points out to us, let us act under a settled conviction, and an habitual feeling that these states are our country. Let our conceptions be enlarged to the circle of our duties. Let us extend our ideas over the whole of the vast field in which we are called to act. Let our objects be our country, our whole country. And, by the blessing of God, may that country itself become a vast and splendid monument, not of oppression and terror, but of wisdom, of peace, and of liberty, upon which the world may gaze with admiration forever!

Little Bennis

Me and P. de Simkins was standing in front of the front stand wishing I've lived somewhere were all we had to do to get the different root off of the different trees was pick it off, and some lady stopped pushing a baby carriage past, saying, 'O show, I've come out without my pocketbook again. I wonder if you boys would be so kind as to mind this baby while I run and get my pocketbook, I'll only be a minute.'

Good rite, suppose she don't come back again, maybe she's one of those ladies you read about that ask people to mind their baby and then don't come back any more, and then the people half to adopt the baby just as if it was theirs, good rite, I said.

Holey smokes, I'm not going to adopt it, look at it, it's a heck of a looking kid, Puds sed. Which it was, being a barrel-headed baby with a mouth wide open as if it was proud of it, me saying, 'O I don't know, I've saw worse, maybe ween you take it home your mother will be glad to have it.'

O, is that so, well maybe your mother will woen you take it home, Puds sed, and I sed, You've got a porch to keep it on, if we had a porch I'd be glad to take it home.

Nothing doing, you've got as much rite to it as I have, so if anybody takes it you'll take it, look at it, its looking at you, you can see it likes you the best any way.

Course crazy, its looking at you, I sed, Which jey then it started to look cross eyed and I would've adopted it for a million dollars, and me and Puds started to have a farse argument about which one we'd take the lady we would mind it first, and just as we was starting to call each other names the lady came back and gave us a dime between us and took the baby away from us, as if she was just as satisfied to have the baby as wat us 2 was to have the dime.

BUILDING SHOWS AN INCREASE IN 11TH DISTRICT

Trade Reports Continue to Evince an Optimistic Tone; Fairly Prosperous Season is Already Here.

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 1.—Sustained progress in the industrial improvement of the southwest marked the trend of developments in the closing month of summer, according to the monthly review of business and industrial condition in the Eleventh Federal Reserve district for August, made public by the Federal Reserve bank of Dallas today.

"Trade reports, on the eve of the annual movement of the cotton crop, continued to evince the optimistic tone which has characterized them for several months past, and what is more to the point, are now accompanied and supported by sales statistics which afford ample proof of the fact that a fairly prosperous season is already here," the report states.

There is abundant testimony from all sections of the cotton belt that this year's crop cost even less to produce than last year's which was quite an inexpensive crop itself, it is pointed out.

The report further summarizes: "The exceptional activity in trade at this time is largely accounted for by the unusually early marketing of the cotton crop this year."

Cotton Ginned.

The amount of cotton ginned in Texas prior to September 1 was well above the average of previous years.

Early returns from the cotton crop are being reflected in the rise of bank deposits and the shrinkage of loanable funds. Deposits in Dallas under date of September 15 reflected a gain of 25 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago, with gains being reported by banks elsewhere in the district.

Crop conditions concerned chiefly by the prolonged drought together with very high temperatures in practically every section of the district, responsible for more than the usual amount of mid-summer deterioration in the cotton crop during August; the boll weevils, on the other hand being held in check by the dry weather and high temperatures, with less from this source comparatively light; the appearance of the leaf worm, working damage to young cotton, the worm, together with the drought rendering a "top crop" improbable. Late corn was affected by the drought and the yield was materially reduced; also grain sorghums in the west and southwest suffered greatly from the drought. Excellent progress has been made in picking and ginning, with weather conditions ideal. The ginners' report, issued by the bureau of census, discloses the fact that prior to September 1, there had been 550,000 bales ginned in Texas as compared to 415,000 bales during the corresponding period of 1921. This seems to be exceptionally heavy, it is remarked, as ginning last year were heavier than usual during that period.

Indications are that winter feed crops will be good. Rains, which have fallen in Arizona and western New Mexico, have replenished stock water and have been beneficial to the ranges. Further deterioration, on the other hand, has taken place in eastern and southern New Mexico, where the precipitation has been very light. The Texas range territory continues dry, but the grass is fairly good except in the upper panhandle and Trans-Pecos sections of Texas as well as most of central and eastern New Mexico. With the exception of cattle in the South Plains region, livestock are in good condition.

Prices on all classes of livestock worked to lower levels during August, and still lower prices are being quoted on most classes at the end of the second week in September.

A broad seasonal demand characterized the wholesale trade situation during August. The monthly volume of sales in every line of trade reflected an increase over sales of the previous month and the same month a year ago. A more confident feeling pervades the business community as there is a general belief in trade circles that a need for merchandise exists among retailers and consumers. Prices in most lines remained firm and items in some lines have reflected an upward trend.

The opening of the fall buying season in practically all centers during the first week in August met with unusual success. Sales of eleven firms reflected an increase of 48 per cent over the previous month and 19.4 over the same month a year ago.

There was an increase of 3.5 per cent over July sales, while continuing quietness in trade circles distribution owing to its being vacation month.

The August volume of business at the principal cities of the district, measured by debit and credit accounts, continued its downward trend, making a decline both as compared with the preceding month and the same month last year. The weekly average of debit and credit accounts amounted to $113,473,000 during August, compared to $121,602,000 during July, and $123,201,000 during August, 1921, a decrease of 2.5 per cent from July debit and 3.3 per cent from debit for August, 1921.

Reports from 112 banks which operate a savings department reflected an increase of 2 per cent over August 31, 1921, and an increase of 12.9 per cent over August 31, 1921.

Pine mills had a sharp increase in production.

Building operations showed a material decrease.

INCREASE IN THEIR DEATH RATE ALARMS NEW MEXICO INDIANS

El Paso, Texas, Oct. 1.—Indians near the San Ildefonso pueblo near Santa Fe, N. M., are alarmed at the increase in the death rate, and believing it to be due to the violation of an ancient tribal tradition that they should not migrate northward.

They are trying to stop the migration by building homes on the south side of the river, and crossing the highway, building homes on the south side of it, according to Dr. E. C. Prentiss, scientist of El Paso, who has just returned from a trip in New Mexico.

"If the death rate of this tribe is not abated," he said, "soon the tribe will be extinct, which now has no more than 100 members."

17 ENROLLED IN THE PART TIME CLASSES AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

Seventeen persons have enrolled for the high school part-time classes. Superintendent John Milne has announced. The enrollment represents employees from almost every kind of business in the city. Reading, spelling, writing, arithmetic, English, manual training and domestic science are among the subjects now being taught, but it is expected that a large number of other subjects will be added within a short time as they are requested by the pupils.

Albuquerque is crowded for school room at present, but with the completion of the new school buildings in the near future, more space will be available for special courses and it is expected that by that time many employers, including women who employ maids, will realize the advantage of having their employees become more efficient through special study of the type offered by the part-time courses.

There have been many inquiries from older people among the married men and women for elementary subjects; two stenographers for home economics; two young teachers for Spanish; one government clerk wanting to be prepared for university entrance. Their hours were such that they will wait for evening classes to form later in the year.

Those enrolled are putting in from one to three hours each day, improving the opportunity for more education. This department is under the supervision of Miss E. Myrtle Plant.

PRACTICAL WORK BEING DONE BY CLASSES AT H. S.

Vocational Study Is Being Featured by the Albuquerque High School; Course Proves Attractive.

Full time vocational classes for preparatory machinists at the Albuquerque high school are proving very popular this year with pupils and are being featured by the school officials. Aside from the strict mechanical features, classes are being held in connection with the course in English, algebra and geometry. Students have a choice of two of these subjects along with their shop work, one hour and ten minutes being given to the related subjects and the academic subjects, the other fifty per cent of the day being spent in actual shop work. A brief outline of the work as carried on so far in trade drawing, trade science and shop work was given by School Superintendent John Milne yesterday as follows:

Trade Drawing. Trade drawing classes opened with a discussion of the exact needs of mechanics. They determined that a mechanic should be able to read and interpret drawings and be able to make a rough sketch and put in dimensions for the purpose of conveying information. For a matter of refinement only and not as an absolute necessity, a mechanic should be able to make a mechanical drawing. Blue print reading has been going on for some time, conventional symbols and representation being discussed as they are met with in the blue prints. No effort is being made to make drawings or sketches at this time. Material for this reading is obtained from the files of the school shop, architects' offices and various shops and plants in Albuquerque.

Trade Science. A short discussion of the exact needs brought out the fact that a mechanic is not particularly interested in the atom or molecule, mass or matter, and various other theoretical suppositions, but he is more interested in the practical application of various scientific laws.

Work was started immediately in the composition of forces. Various machines in the shop were used as example in the problems which were all worked out graphically, being the easiest to understand and not requiring the use of higher mathematics. The resolution of forces is being worked out at the present time, the same practical methods being used.

Shop Work. The ordinary work of a machine shop is being carried on. Lathe, shaper, drill press, turret lathe, assembly, disassembly and bench work. All the various shop projects are being carried out. The vocational class has been organized as a separate class, distinct from other high school classes, has elected officers, athletic manager, publicity man and orchestra leader. The class was instigated in the launching of a Mechanics' club which includes members of the printing department and woodworking department. The purpose of this club is to promote a better understanding of the industrial trades by discussion carried on by individual members of the club at the same time having a little recreation in the way of small supper after its meetings.

The vocational work is being conducted under the following instructors: F. McGee, Jr., trade drawing; trade science and machine shop work; Alice Lease, vocational English and vocational algebra; Louise Wilkinson, vocational geometry.

FAULTY STOVES CAUSE OF MANY FIRES IN CITY

Fire Chief Urges Citizens to Start the Fire Prevention Week Right by Inspecting Stoves and Flues.

"One of the best ways to start fire prevention week right, is to see to it that your stoves are properly put up and that the flues are clean," declared City Fire Chief Robert Henderson last night when discussing the fire prevention activities planned for the week. Seven per cent of the fires in Albuquerque last year were caused by faulty stoves or dirty flues," he set up stoves or dirty flues," he set up and expressed his opinion that all of these could have been avoided by the owners exercising a little care when the stoves were set up.

Chief Henderson pointed out that many people paper over the flue hole in a room which is not to have a stove connected with the flue. He advised that the paper be removed from the flue cap, as in any event, the paper will be scorched and may start a fire.

"Stoves should be set at least three feet away from any wood partition or lath or plaster and if they must be set nearer than that, a metal shield should be placed with at least one inch between it and the partition or wall," Chief Henderson stated.

"Don't start the first hot fire in any of the stoves or fire places without having some one around the house to watch outside to see what the result is going to be," Chief Henderson advises, and urges that all persons should wait, if possible, until just after a rain before starting the first fires, or better yet, start them during the rain.

BORDER WOLVES REDUCED TO 2 IN THIS STATE

But two known wolves exist in the vicinity of the Mexican border in the United States, due to the recent campaign which has been organized by the federal Biological survey and in which land owners in that section are offering the closest type of cooperation. E. L. Pineau, of the biological survey announced yesterday. Mr. Pineau returned from the border yesterday and reports that three wolf control associations have been formed by American land owners on this side of the border. The outfits which have formed the associations are the Alamo Huaco, Benton Palomas, Diamond "A", Garafondo, Vega and Ballard.

Three federal hunters are now engaged in the wolf drive and ten wolves have been killed since the drive started about September 1. Cooperation on the Mexican side of the international line is expected to obtain good results and it is hoped that the coming wolf drive from old Mexico will be effectively stopped.

Near the international boundary, old Mexico is overrun by wolves which are a terror to cattle and which each November drift into the United States and scatter throughout New Mexico and Arizona, destroying the results of the continuous predatory animal campaign here. Mexico land owners have promised cooperation and it is expected that this year practically every wolf will be killed before he advances very far into United States.
