The Heads of Five Shopmen's Unions Must Appear in Court

UNCLE SAM IS TAKING A HAND

Two Hundred Minor Officials Will Have to Go to Danville

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican)
Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 30.—Heads of the five shophmen's unions on strike on the Harriman railroad lines who received subpoenas yesterday to appear before the federal district court of eastern Illinois, in what they believe to be a government suit, will be represented in Danville, Ill., by coun-

Besides the heads of the five unions on strike on the Harriman lines for months in an endeavor to secure the recognition of their federation about 200 minor union officials and employees were named in the summons.

not a lawyer," Mr. Ryan said, "and do not understand this action. Rumors that the railroad would bring action under the Sherman law is all I have to go by. We all hope to get the straight of it Monday."

Question Whether Its Use May Be Permitted in Food Stuffs Will Then Be Decided.

(By Special Licensed Wire to New Mexico.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—The Pure Food decision prohibiting the use of saccharine in food stuffs, which was to have become effective on July 1, last, but which was extended until January 1, 1912, again has been extended, this time until February 1, 1912. The extension was made by the board of agriculture, treasury and commerce, and labor, as the board of appeal in pure food cases and to whom the saccharine food cases and to whom the modification of the original decision, more time in which to consider the question of whether or not it will be

In several states satisfactory laws have replaced the oldtime drastic legislation impossible of enforcement.

"Without some profit allowed by law there will be but few lenders, and those principally bad men who will break through the law, and make a profit, and then will endeavor to indemnify themselves from the danger of the penalty by making that profit exorbitant."

Briefly stated, the program of the remedial loan movement includes the organization in all cities of competitive loan societies of a social nature

Satisfactory laws will deal fairly with all parties concerned, recognizing the element in our financial system, to be legalised, regulated and controlled allowing reasonable interest rates and proper supervision, and adequately protecting the borrower from unjust charges and dishonest practices.

MRS. LARAMORE TELLS TROUBLES

Lady in Goodwater Describes Her Distressing Experience and Tells How She Was Finally Relieved.

Goodwater, Mo.—"Ever since I was a little girl," says Mrs. Riley Laramore,
"I was a great sufferer from dyspepsia.
I suffered misery after eating, and had terrible heartburn.

I thought I had to suffer this way as long as I lived, but when I began to take Thedford's Black-Draught, in small doses, every night, the heartburn was all gone in a few days, and I could eat without distress.

I took two small packages in all, and although that was some time ago, the dyspepsia has not returned.

I speak a good word for Thedford's
Black-Draught whenever I have the opportunity."

If eating causes distress, we urge you to try Thedford's Black-Draught. It cleanses the system, helps the stomach to digest its food, regulates the bowels, and stimulates the liver.

It acts gently and is without bad after-effects. Try it. Price 25c.

THE OLD AND THE NEW.
(By Joel Chandler Harris, in Uncle Remus' Home Magazine.)

I Clasp the hands of those who are
going,
Kiss the lips that are raised to be
kissed,
For the life of the Old Year is flowing
And melting away in the mist.

II Greet the New Year with music and laughter,
Let the Old pass away with a tear,
For we shall remember hereafter
The many who die with the year.

III
And the songs of the children of Sorrow Shall unite with the echoes of mirth
Ere the sweet, glad sun of tomorrow
Smiles down on the night-smitten earth.

IX
And the meek, stricken daughters of Anguish Shall lift their sharp burthens of pain,
And long, as they linger and lan-
guish,
For Christ's blessed presence again.

V
For time hath struck down the heart's idols—
The fairest, the dearest have died,
And Death hath gone grimly to
bridals,
And claimed the first kiss of the bride.

VI
But the glory of noon and the gray-light
Are gathered and mingled in one,
And the darkness of dawn and the daylight
Precede the approach of the sun.

VII
A poor mother-bird is often lifted
From the storm-shaken bough
Where she clung
And cruelly driven and drifted Far away from her nest full of young.

VIII
But the wild storm that buffets and harrides
This lone bird about in the west
Lifts up on its bosom and carries
Another bird safe to her nest.

IX
Ah! the span of the heavens is spacious—
Clear sight is vouchsafed to the blind:
The bitterest griefs are made gracious,
The cruellest fate rendered kind.

X
Clasp the hands of those who are
going,
Kiss the lips that are raised to be
kissed,
For the life of the Old Year is flow-

And melting away in the mist.

Professor Tinsley expects to make a specialty on this excursion, of the matter of livestock raising and dairying in New Mexico and the lectures and demonstrations along this line will be of particular interest. It is recognized that the immediate phase of the development of the dry land districts in the state must be along the line of feeding livestock, cattle, hogs, poultry, and dairy cows, and the necessity of establishing these industries in the districts where conditions are most favorable will be strongly emphasized.

The Children's Meetings.

The children's meetings to be held at every stop where practicable, promise to be a most interesting feature of the itinerary. In many places the schools will be dismissed and the teachers will take the pupils to the train, arrangements to this effect having already been made at Las Cruces, Roswell and elsewhere. At Roswell a Farmers' Institute is to be held during the week in which the train arrives there, and it will undoubtedly get one of its biggest ovations in the Pecos Valley city, as the members of the institute, the Roswell Commercial Club, the members of the Fruit Growers' Association and the school superintendent are all going to co-operate to make the occasion a success.

At Deming, dodgers will be scattered all over the Mimbres valley the Saturday before the arrival of the train and it is expected that the whole population will turn out en masse.
The car will be in Santa Fe on January 15.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES.

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Santa Fe women know how the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells, distressing urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of dropsy or Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only. They attack kidney diseases by striking at the cause. Here's proof of it in a Santa Fe woman's words:

Mrs. Deedelia J. de Quintana, College St., Santa Fe, N. Mex., says: "Several years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and I was cured of a bad attack of kidney complaint. At that time a statement appeared in the local papers, telling of my experience and I now take pleasure in confirming all that was then said in their praise. I had pains in my back that made it difficult for me to stoop and there were other troubles which plainly showed that my kidneys were at fault. Soon after I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, improvement was noticeable and the contents of two boxes, not only restored my kidneys to their normal condition but also removed the pain from my back. I am glad to say that during the time that has since passed, my cure has been permanent."

EXPLORATION OF THE DEAD SEA

Scientific Expedition to Be Dispatched by University of Berlin

WONDERS OF INLAND LAKE

Fish Can Live in Some Portions of It and Not in Others.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican) Jerusalem, Palestine, Dec. 29.—An expedition, the purpose of which is to thoroughly explore the Dead Sea and its environs under the leadership of Dr. Bruhl of the University of Berlin, has just arrived from Europe and continued to the scene of its future operations.

The motives of the expedition, so it is emphatically averred by Dr. Bruhl, are purely scientific, with absolutely no elements of commercialism entering into its ultimate object. Its members are, with the exception of a man from Copenhagen and possibly another from Sweden, all German scientists and engineers.

The expedition was organized in Germany several months ago and seems to be most thoroughly equipped scientifically and otherwise. It is financed by private subscriptions, a few members paying their share of the expense while among the contributors several leading Zionists figure very prominently.

The work of exploration will consist in the major part of sounding the depth of various sections of the lake as well as analyzing the unique and complex composition of the waters, studying its shores, investigating the nature of the different minerals that are said to abound in that region, exploring, as far as it is possible, the channels of the many rivers and hot water streams, apart from the Jordan, which flows into the Sea from both the eastern and western mountain ranges that hem its shores, examining and classifying the varieties of fish that exist in large numbers only in the extreme southeastern section of the lake which consists mainly of shallows and marshes. It must be remembered in this connection that it has always been firmly maintained by those who visited the Dead Sea and wrote treatises about it long ago that no fish of any kind can make their habitat in any part of it and this long-established belief was given the death blow only recently by a pleasure party of Americans long resident in the country who visited the southern end of the lake and discovered fish.

So it remains for the members of the German expedition to arrive at the causes which undoubtedly must be due to varying conditions of chemical composition of the water that makes it possible for fish to live in certain sections of the lake and not in others; and, in short, to find out everything about this strange body of water from scientific standpoints that is worth knowing.

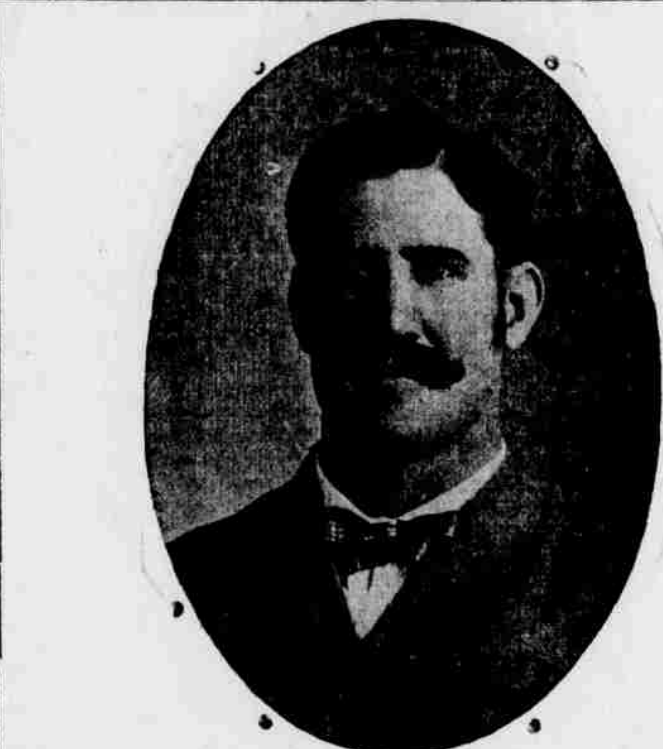

In order to better facilitate its operations the expedition has chartered a little steam vessel for a space of three months with the proviso that at the option of Dr. Bruhl the lease may be extended for an indefinite period.

What ultimate political or commercial motives, if any, underlie the surface of the enterprise time only can show.

This is by no means the first attempt made to explore the Dead Sea region. Indeed, the honor of priority in this direction belongs to the doughty Lieutenant W. F. Lynch of the American Navy, who, as early as the year 1848 spent considerable time in research and exploration of that region at the expense of the American Government and at a great risk to his person, for in those days facilities for travel were of the crudest and guard people did not know how to guard against the ravages of malaria, to say nothing of the predatory marauding Gedouin, now under effective control by the Turks, but who were then a lot of lawless, aggressive bands.

Despite all these hardships and difficulties Lieutenant Lynch was fairly successful in taking measurements as well as soundings of different parts of the lake. To him, moreover, belongs the credit of being the first man to travel in a little boat from the Sea of Galilee down the River Jordan to the Dead Sea.

According to the lieutenant's narrative, the lake measures some forty-six miles from north to south and from six to twelve miles east and EZEQUIEL C. DE BACA—Elected Lieutenant Governor of New Mexico.

(By Courtesy of B. M. Read, Author of Illustrated History of New Mexico.)

Age 47 years.
Born at Las Vegas.
Educated in Jesuit College.
Public school teacher.
Railway Mail Clerk.
Deputy District Clerk.
Editor.
Business Manager of La Voz del Pueblo.
Member of Supreme Lodge of Fraternal Union.
Grand Master and Secretary of Fraternal Union.
Married.

Those who have observed the suavity and tact with which Ezequiel C. de Baca, elected lieutenant governor, has presided over recent turbulent Democratic state conventions, are certain that he will have no difficulty in presiding over so sedate a body as the Senate of the first legislature of the State of New Mexico, a duty which falls to his lot as lieutenant governor.

Mr. de Baca was born at Las Vegas on November 1, 1864. He was educated in Las Vegas College conducted by the Jesuit Fathers, the same institution from which his partner in newspaper work, State Secretary Elect Antonio Lucero, graduated. In the early eighties, Mr. de Baca taught public school and then went into the railway mail service, one of the most difficult branches of the public work. He served four years as deputy district clerk at Las Vegas and assumed associate editorship of La Voz del Pueblo of which Mr. Lucero is the editor. At present, Mr. de Baca is business manager and one of the stockholders of the printing firm.

Mr. de Baca is a member of the Supreme Lodge of the Fraternal Union, was Fraternal Master of the Las Vegas Lodge for four years and is its present secretary.

Mr. de Baca is married.

SANTA FE PASSENGER TRAIN IS SIDE-SWIPED.

Westbound Number 9 Compelled to Lie Over in Albuquerque Yards All Night.

Albuquerque, N. M., Dec. 29.—Westbound Santa Fe passenger train Number 9 left for the coast yesterday morning at 7:25, after the passengers had breakfasted here, little the worse for the accident in which the train figured a short distance below the Abao yard office at 1:30 yesterday morning. Number 9, shortly after pulling out, sideswiped a freight train which was slow in pulling into the clear at the stockyards. The engine of the passenger train was somewhat banged up, the headlight knocked off and otherwise defaced and a number of cars were badly raked along one side, but none of them derailed. The train was brought back here while five overturned cars of the freight were pulled out of the way and the track repaired, the line being open at 5:30. It was decided at that time to hold the train for breakfast here and the departure was made at 7:25.

It Never Flickers

The long winter evenings give a woman a splendid chance for sewing or embroidery; but her eyes suffer from the strain unless she has a good light.

The Rayo is the best lamp made.

It gives a strong, diffused light that is remarkably easy on the eyes. There is no glare to it; no flicker. It lights up a whole room.

The Rayo is an economical lamp, too.

You get the most possible light-value for the oil burned; and the Rayo itself is a low-priced lamp. Yet it is a handsome lamp—an ornament to any room in the home.

The Rayo Lamp is easily lighted without removing shade or chimney; easy to clean and rewick. Made of solid brass, nickel-plated; also in numerous other styles and finishes.

Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo lamps; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of the Continental Oil Company (Incorporated)

OFFICIAL PAPER OF SANTA FE COUNTY.

The New Mexican is the oldest newspaper in New Mexico. It is sent to every postoffice in the Territory, and has a large and growing circulation among the intelligent and progressive people of the Southwest.

THE BLUE BALLOT.

The Blue Ballot Amendment was defeated in only seven out of the twenty-six counties of the Territory. Dona Ana, Rio Arriba, Sandoval, San Miguel, Santa Fe, Taos, and Valencia, all Spanish-American counties. But even among those seven, it was only Valencia county that gave a decisive majority against it, while in counties like Rio Arriba, the majority against it was only 3 out of a total vote of more than 3,000. Spanish-American counties like Mora, Guadalupe, Socorro, Torrance and Union voted for it, the last named by two-thirds majority.

All this bears out the claim that the New Mexican had gauged the popular opinion on this subject correctly. Before the Las Vegas convention, the New Mexican repeatedly warned the Republican party against taking the stand against the Blue Ballot amendment and up to the last hour at Las Vegas, its editor together with Ex-Governor George Curry and Judge A. B. Fall pleaded with leaders and delegates against what they deemed a fatal tactical mistake. The result tells its own tale and proves that in New Mexico, political leaders dare not be reactionary and cannot hope to carry an unpopular policy in the teeth of a popular storm, even in counties which they thought they could dominate. Perhaps, if the New Mexican's advice had been taken the Republicans, instead of a two-thirds victory would have elected their entire ticket. Certainly, they would be in a more impregnable position today and would have occupied better vantage ground in the next campaign, had they left the Blue Ballot Amendment out of the platform altogether.

It is true, the Blue Ballot amendment was a shrewd Democratic game at which the Republicans in their anxiety for statehood had permitted themselves to be outplayed by the Democrats at Washington, but after they had lost there, the part of political wisdom would have been to let the voters decide at the polls without any party pronouncement against one view or the other.

There is another aspect to the Blue Ballot victory. The immense majority by which the amendment was carried also proves the strength of the Prohibition sentiment in New Mexico, for it was the vigorous fight of the Prohibitionists for a more easily amended constitution so that they might write Prohibition into the state constitution at the first opportunity, that swept the commonwealth. It was not from insurrectionary Bernalillo county nor in Colfax county that the great majority for the Blue Ballot amendment came, nor was it from Sandoval county, which while it flopped into the Democratic-Progressive column, yet gave a majority against the Blue Ballot amendment, but it was in the Prohibition county of Chaves that it had more than 2,000 majority out of a vote of less than 2,500; in Prohibition Roosevelt county where it had over a thousand majority out of less than 1,400 votes; in Prohibition San Juan county where it had a thousand majority in less than 1,400 votes; in Prohibition Eddy county where the majority was more than 1,400 out of a few more than 1,500 votes; in Curry county where the majority was 900 out of 1,400 votes and in Quay county, also, with prohibition leanings, that the majority exceeded 1,100.

The great majority of over 12,000 out of less than 60,000 votes for the Blue Ballot amendment was a tremendous Prohibition victory, that offsets many of the serious mistakes that fanatical leaders in that movement have made in late years.

The New Mexican has an idea that President Taft will issue his statehood proclamation as a New Year's gift, not awaiting the arrival of the certified returns, but satisfying himself with telegraphic advice that the canvass had been completed according to the terms of the Enabling Act.

A DREAM FULFILLED.

For many years, the directors of the New Mexican Printing Company have had in mind the building of a modern home for their plant which is the best equipped in New Mexico. Today the dream of years has come true, and the New Mexican occupies a home of its own, a home that for substantial, modern solidity and arrangement, is unsurpassed in the Southwest. Within a few steps of the Plaza, on West Palace Avenue, convenient to the business and residence center of the ancient city, has been reared a steel and concrete building, well lighted, perfectly heated and ventilated, with ample sanitary equipment, practically fire-proof and arranged with an eye to the comfort of employees as well as to economy in production. The plant consists of six units divided by glass partitions: Business office, Bindery, Press Room, Job Composing Room, Newspaper Room, and Editorial Office, each occupying a well-lighted room, with concrete floors and ceilings, toilet rooms, steam heat, elevator and hoist, telephones and everything that makes for convenience. In the Business Office room is found the leased wire operator and the Postal Telegraph and also for the city office of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad. Adjoining the editorial room, is a private office. Furnishings will be substantial and elegant although it may take a week or two before everything will be in place.

The exterior of the building is of pleasing design from the plans of Architect I. H. Rapp. To the west the company has forty feet of ground that will be put into lawn and shade trees. To the east is Sheridan street, forty feet wide; in front, Palace Avenue, sixty feet wide, and to the rear ample ground, so that the structure can never be deprived of light and air even though right across Sheridan street, the government puts up the quarter million dollar federal building planned for Santa Fe, and across Palace Avenue, at the corner of the Plaza, there is reared the large Department Store spoken of, and the corner of Palace and Grant avenues be reserved for a modern office building. The New Mexican Printing company the past fifty years has paid out more than $1,000,000 in wages to its employees and today represents an investment of $100,000, giving the City of Santa Fe its most important industry with a payroll that adds materially to the money in circulation locally.

The present management feels that to a certain degree the New Mexican belongs to the community, to the people, to whom it looks for support and loyal co-operation, and invites any and every one who may be interested, to visit it in its new home.

The Census Bureau revealed the other day that the U. S. spends annually more than $50,000,000 for fur goods. Today it tells of the nation's millinery bill which reaches the astounding total of $55,894,000 a year. But large as that sum is in the aggregate, it can readily be figured out that each of the 40,000,000 women in the United States, who have arrived at the millinery age, average only $2 in their expenditures for headgear. As many of them use slightly more than that amount annually there must be a large number who do entirely without millinery creations. The manufacture of millinery and lace goods is carried on in 1579 establishments, which employ 45,000 persons and the capital invested is $35,705,000. Of course, this does not include the thousands of millinery stores which trim hats and deal in millinery, but only factories. Almost $22,000,000 is expended annually for wages and salaries in these manufacturing establishments.

The New Mexican learns that the 260 county officials, Republican, Democratic and Progressive, of New Mexico, are already organizing a lobby to work for a general increase of salaries for county officers. Each county official-elect is to whack up $30 as a starter to pay for the lobby. This would realize the fat sum of $7,500, sufficient to tickle the fancy of any paid lobbyist. Many county salaries are too meager, it is true, but the taxpayers are hardly in the mood at this time to stand for any general raid on the strong box of the commonwealth or of each county. Statehood will bring many new expenses, the tax rate is limited by the constitution and only the strictest economy will prevent the McDonald administration from being wrecked on financial rocks.

INCREASED ASSOCIATED PRESS SERVICE.

Beginning with New Year, the New Mexican at considerable expense, will increase its Leased Wire Associated Press Service 33 1-3 per cent. Only a few months ago, the full leased wire service for the hours from 11:30 to 2:30 was secured, lifting the New Mexican from the small city class to that of daily papers published in cities of 50,000 and more people. After New Year there will be no news item of any importance in the world that will not be covered in detail in the news columns. Most events of consequence happen in the day time, for the world is at work during the day-light hours, and most of it sleeps at night. The evening paper, therefore as a rule prints the important news first; the morning paper refreshes most of it and embellishes it with unessential details. The Associated Press is the greatest news-gathering agency of the world and if you want to know about the news, while it is happening, watch the New Mexican's Bulletin Board, and then at supper time, read the story and the details in the New Mexican. Of course, this improvement in the New Mexican's news service is made possible only through the loyal support of the progressive businessmen of Santa Fe who realize that a good newspaper is the best possible advertising medium for the Capital, and the most potent means in the upbuilding of the community.

THE PRINTING BUSINESS.

The printing business is one of the large industries of the United States. Only a few have more capital invested, employ more hands or pay out more in wages. The Census Bureau says today that there are 31,445 printing offices in the United States that have invested in their capital amounting to $588,346,000 and pay out in salaries and wages $268,086,000. The value of the product is given at $737,876,000, but in reality has by this time reached the billion dollar mark. There are 22,142 publications of which 2,692 are daily papers with an aggregate circulation of 25,000,000 copies each day. There are 15,097 weekly newspapers with an aggregate circulation of 40,882,000 copies each week. The monthlies number 2,491 and circulate 63,280,000 copies. At the same time there were printed in the census year, 54,620 books to the number of 161,000,000 copies.

It costs money to establish a printing plant, and still more money to keep it running, daily newspapers especially being inveterate consumers of the coin of the realm. The greater part of the money in the printing business goes into wages, in which it differs from many other industries, and why it suffers most from long credits and delinquent subscribers, for the payroll must be met every week and even in establishments in small cities, such as the New Mexican, this is an item that runs well upward of $30,000 a year.

It was in 1847 that the first number of the Santa Fe New Mexican appeared, but during the turbulent years that followed, it was suspended, and it was in 1863 that Manderfield and Tucker issued the first copy of the present day New Mexican. The New Mexican will therefore at the end of next year celebrate its fiftieth anniversary. The New Mexican is the oldest daily paper south of Denver, west of Topeka and east of San Francisco. Even here in this ancient city, there are few institutions outside of the Catholic church, the Masonic lodge, Loretto Academy, St. Michael's College, that have survived fifty years and yet, today, are more vigorous and youthful than they have been at any time before.

The New Mexican knows of no better New Year's resolution than a resolve to live the Golden Rule as it was pronounced by the Great Prophet almost two thousand years ago.

SCIENCE OF CITY BUILDING

Many Cities Desert the Topsy Method of Expansion and Begin to Reach Out.

There are certain cities, big and small, that are deserting the Topsy method of just growing, says Harper's Weekly. They are being gently and persistently pushed along toward greatness. To use an invidious metaphor, they are picking factories from their less wakeful neighbors and planting them in their own towns; they are causing the transfer of hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of business from the somnolent cities and, in this time of reforms, are boasting of their remarkable progress in population.

The way the thing is done may be aptly illustrated by the manner in which Poughkeepsie obtained an automobile factory. The secretary read in a newspaper that an Italian company was thinking of locating a factory in this country. Without waiting for the owners to have a chance to look the country over and decide for themselves, the secretary pounced upon them and talked Poughkeepsie, talked it hard and convincingly. He invited them to come up and see the place, and when he got them took them all over the town and showed them the schools and churches, the parks and workingmen's houses, told them about the railroad facilities and rates. Then he took them to the very spot that he had picked out in advance where they could build. He pictured the factory to them, pointed to the homes their men would live in, told them how low the taxes were and how healthful was the air. When they went away the visitors had every good point about Poughkeepsie throbbing in their heads in 100 different forms, and consequently they straightway came back and built their factory in Poughkeepsie.

MAKE WASTE PLACES BLOOM

Railway Station Garden Is Latest Move Toward the City Beautiful.

During the last few years a new kind of garden has come into being in the shape of the railway station garden. It is tended by members of the staff, and is usually a picture of neatness, and often of beauty as well. The small, tidy beds, or long narrow borders edged with white stones, are often glorious masses of color, without one jarring note. At some country stations the name of the place is worked out in flowers or small shrubs, and should the traveler by chance fall into conversation with the presiding genius of the garden he will find that a remark on the neatness and prettiness of the scheme of decoration will be much appreciated. In their season, roses—usually red or white or yellow Ramblers—bloom luxuriantly at many a wayside stopping place and transform the station itself into a "thing of beauty."—London Globe.

South America's Worst Brigands.
 I made many expeditions from Potosi into the surrounding country, writes W. Hilton-Simpson in the Wide World. The Indians here are the notorious Almacas, likewise descendants of the Incas, and the worst brigands in South America. Their principal occupation is murder and theft, and until quite recently they sacrificed their prisoners to the gods, and then partook of their flesh. As regards savagery, they easily excel all other tribes. The sacrificial victim was not merely butchered, as happens in most similar cases; he was bound, and then the flesh was torn off his living body and eaten by men, women and children. If, in the process of being tortured, as much as a moan escaped his lips, the bones of the victim were thrown away; but if, on the contrary, he was stoic enough to be silent, the bones were collected and set up on a pile of rocks to be worshipped. It is still within the memory of living men that human meat was sold among the Almacas.

Mother Dug Grave for Boys.
 Argo, Colo.—Just as she finished digging a grave for her three boys, Mrs. Anna Covie was taken in charge and sent to the County hospital. She had borrowed a spade from a neighbor and told him she was going to dig a grave for her children and bury them alive. He watched her until the grave was ready, and then notified the police. The woman had dressed the boys for the occasion.

C., where he is out fitting an expedition which will sail on January 3 for Guatemala, Central America, and consummate the romance which began here many months ago. The bride will accompany her former chief to the scene of the excavation of the ancient temple-city of Quirigua.

Among the monuments of the ancient palaces, surrounded by the luxuriant vegetation of a tropical jungle, the two spend their honeymoon undisturbed by the confusion of a modern civilization. It is fitting, though a little surprising, that the learned archaeologist and his charming bride should find romance in the dust of a civilization that passed away before the dawn of history.

The bride and bridegroom are too well known here to need further notice and their host of friends in Santa Fe have expressed their delight at the event.

A Busy Vacation for the Club.

The Young People's Social Club has had a most busy week since the last day of school before Christmas holidays. Functions galore have been given by them and for them. The first of these was the Christmas party at the home of Miss Dorothy Safford on Palace avenue last Saturday. There was a large Christmas tree in the parlor decorated by the girls, and each one present received a pretty gift from it.

Sunday night the club went to midnight mass at the Cathedral and Monday night Miss Madeline Mills had a few of its members over while she lighted a beautiful Christmas tree in the dining room at the Executive Mansion.

Tuesday evening, the club was royally entertained by Miss Miriam Cartwright and a few guests were invited. An old fashioned taffy-pull made the evening pass pleasantly.

Wednesday night, Miss Madeline Mills entertained the club at the Executive Mansion where they danced until midnight. Delicious refreshments were served and pretty favors were given to each guest.

Thursday night Mr. and Mrs. John W. March entertained the club and a few guests at cards. The affair was in honor of Miss Katherine Chaves who is the guest of Mrs. March. Miss Chaves was formerly a Santa Fe girl but now resides at Albuquerque with her father, Amado Chaves, a prominent resident of that city.

Yesterday afternoon the club was entertained by Mr. Jose Diaz, one of the members, at the home of Dr. Diaz. The young people danced until late in the afternoon when toothsome refreshments were served.

Tonight Mr. Bernard Spitz will entertain them and a royal time is expected, and tomorrow night, which will be New Year's eve, the young people will meet and welcome the new year in. The end of all these events will probably wind up with Mr. Morton Seligman's party at the home of his parents on Hillside avenue next Monday evening. Next week the club will meet to elect a new president, as John W. Roberts who was president for two terms, will leave the city tonight for Washington, D. C. as private secretary to Congressman-Elect George Curry.

COLD AIR IS ALWAYS BEST

A British Scientist Dispel Some of Ventilation Fallacies

AMERICAN VOTES IN ENGLAND

Prehistoric Peruvian Gold Ornaments Sold in London at Auction.

(By Special Leased Wire to New Mexican.) London, Dec. 29.—The gold relics recovered from Lake Guatavita, one of the five sacred lakes of the ancient Inca kingdom of Chibcha in the Colombian Andes, have been sold here at an antiquarian auction. The ornaments, which were thrown into the lake as offerings to the divinities supposed to inhabit its waters, are splendid specimens of the craftsmanship of the ancient Peruvians. The most valuable piece was a breastplate of pure beaten gold shaped as a dried hide and embossed with a warrior's head. One of the most beautiful pieces was a coiled snake of gold with the head welded on. The collection also contained a statue of the goddess Chibcha in fine gold and two gold drinking bowls.

American Citizen Voted in England. Michael Hymas, an American citizen, has voted for twelve years in England and it was not until he was elected a member of the Edmonton Board of Guardians that it was discovered that he owned property in America and was a naturalized citizen of the United States. Hymas was born in London but he spent ten years in America. On his return to England twelve years ago he became a householder and as such has voted continuously since. When he learned that in the eye of the law he was still an American citizen he resigned from the Board and applied for readmission papers to this country. They have just been granted by the Home Office and Hymas will contest for the vacancy which his resignation made on the Board.

Cold Air is Best. Dr. Leonard Hill, who has just completed a series of remarkable experiments at the London hospital, contends that still air in hot rooms cannot be kept pure no matter what the system of ventilation is.

Dr. Hill is a lecturer on physiology at the London Hospital and for some time he has devoted himself to the study of the effect of subterranean work on human beings. His work emphasized the danger of bringing divers out of the water too quickly and his suggestions have done much to make their coming less hazardous.

As the result of his most recent experiments Dr. Hill contends that ventilation is not a question of the chemical purity of the air, but of the evils of the air which arises entirely from their excessive heat and humidity or their excessive dryness and to a certain extent from the offensive smell.

The ideal temperature for a room in which a number of people are gathered is from 57 to 60 degrees, he says. According to the rules of the Home Office only 1 to 2 per cent of carbonic acid should be allowed in a room, but Dr. Hill states that 20 to 30 parts per thousand will do no harm if the air is kept cool.

The experiments took place in a chamber eight feet high and four and one-half feet square. In this small space, Dr. Hill crammed eight healthy medical students and sealed them in. They remained there half an hour until the chamber contained 4 to 5 per cent of carbonic acid and 15 per cent of oxygen. The temperature rose to 85 degrees and as the air became saturated with moisture the students became intensely hot and uncomfortable. When they were examined their pulse showed an acceleration beyond what would be normally experienced in a cool place. The doctor then set a number of electric fans in the top of the chamber in motion. The students in a short time were able to endure the heat and even to work in comparative comfort in spite of the close confinement and the high percentage of carbonic acid in the air. This was because the air at 85 degrees was cooler than the bodies of the subjects and while in brisk motion it was sufficient to make them quite comfortable.

Dr. Hill in his lecture on the result of the experiments declared that the age of heating houses and trains in winter was codding the race and tending to break down the natural defensive mechanism of the body, rendering it thereby more liable to illness. He said:

"Cold air makes us more active to warm ourselves, makes us do more breathing and gives us a better appetite. The system is toned up and we take in more food and oxygen. Hot, dry air dries up the throat, and makes people prone to infective disease. In America, where they pump dry air in to their schools there is a very high rate of diphtheria. Instead of having artificial methods of keeping our rooms hot we ought to have means for keeping them cool."

AN ALARM AT NIGHT.

That strikes terror to the entire household is the loud, hoarse and metallic cough of croup. No mistaking it, and fortunate then the lucky parents who keep Foley's Honey and Tar Compound on hand. H. W. Casselman, Canton, N. Y., says: "It is worth its weight in gold. Our little children are troubled with croup and hoarseness, and all we give them is Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. I always have a bottle of it in the house." Sold by all druggists.

Backache

Is only one of many symptoms which some women endure through weakness or displacement of the womanly organs. Mrs. Lizzie White of Memphis, Tenn., wrote Dr. R. V. Pierce, as follows:

"At times I was hardly able to be on my feet. I believe I had every pain and ache a woman could have. Had a very bad case. Internal organs were very much diseased and my back was very weak. I suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, in fact, I suffered all over. This was my condition when I wrote to you for advice. After taking your 'Favorite Prescription' for about three months can say that my health was never better."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. Tones and builds up the nerves. Do not permit a dishonest dealer to substitute for this medicine which has a record of 40 years of cures. "No, thank you, I want what I ask for."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets induce mild natural bowel movement once a day.

Plays AND Players

A host of holiday social events and the fact that "Paid in Full" had been played here last season accounts for the small attendance at the performance last night at the Elks' theatre. The faithful were there, however, and spent an enjoyable two hours witnessing Eugene Walter's portrayal of contemporary American life. "Paid in Full" is the essence of realism and its presentation of the temptations, weakness and sordid details of every day life make a dismal impression on the mind of the thoughtful theatre-goer. In its economic and psychological problems as well as moral aspect this drama is vitally interesting to the student of sociology.

Act one discloses the interior of the regulation flat Greater New York. Joseph Brooks, collector for the Latin-American Steamship Company, complains of the penuriousness of his employer, Captain Williams, while he assists his wife with her household duties. A salary of $18 per week has not been raised as the young collector expected and in consequence he accuses his wife of passive protest against his lot and pictures the place that would have been hers had she married Jimsey Smith, the superintendent of the steamship line who had been an old flame of hers and whose salary has just been raised to $5000 a year. The disgruntled employee hints at the questionable means by which Captain Williams, the old time skipper of a South Sea trader, procured his money.

After the collector leaves for the downtown office, his employer, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Harris, who is the wife of Captain Williams' partner, and his sister-in-law, Beth, arrive in the captain's motor car and are being entertained when Joe returns. Unaware of his presence the old Salt remarks that it is a pity that Mrs. Brooks is not better off. This is too much for the fiery young husband who denounces him for a close fistled old villain. The interposition of his wife, Emma, alone save him from the punishment of the powerful old sailor.

After this scene Jimsey tries to quiet the troubled waters by inviting Joe and Emma to the play. Joe is further incensed, however, and declines with asperity what he calls "charity," and declares he will not go unless he can play the part of host. Jimsey suggests that they go alone and bids them good night. The couple go to the theatre, but it takes part of the employer's money to pay for the entertainment.

In act two, Joe and Emma are found living in a fashionable hotel on money that Joe has procured, as he tells his wife, through a raise in salary. Captain Williams and Jimsey are away in South America, but the wily old skipper returns unexpectedly because he has long suspected his collector of dishonesty. An examination of the books discloses the embezzlement and the truth becomes known to Emma through the confession of the defaulter. At this point Joe reveals himself in all his peridy by urging his wife to sell her honor if need be to the Captain, that he may escape the consequences of his deed.

In act three Jimsey tries to settle the account but the skipper refuses money saying that he will yet make some people change their unfavorable opinion of him. Learning that Emma is coming to see the Captain the same night in his bachelor apartments, Jimsey leaves with a threat to shoot the Captain if he does not treat her with due respect.

Emma comes to fulfill her mission, but the old sailor receives her in his "first cabin" filled with the running lights, wheel and other trophies from his first schooner and from foreign countries. He guesses the peridy of the husband and puts the wife to the supreme test. She declares that he may kill her, but that she will not make a shameful bargain with him. Here the rough old son of Neptune discloses the heart of gold under the rough exterior. Delighted that he has found her all that he had thought, he gives her a written release for her husband. There are only two kinds of women, he declares, the good and the bad, all good or all bad.

Act four finds the defaulter and his wife face to face in their apartments discloses the scorn of a superior woman and the weakness of an infamous man. They part forever. Edna Brooks, the leading woman as Emma Brooks, the wife of the collector, was a charming young wife and carries her quotational part with ease. She is an accomplished actress.

Mrs. Harris, May Estelle, mother-in-law of the collector, and wife of the late partner of Captain Williams, is the popular comic paper conception of a mother-in-law and is a fair match for the weaking her daughter has married.

Beth, (Constance Pullman), the sister of Emma, is a pretty type of brunette and was the ideal of the sweet girl graduate who carried some of her book learning home with her. She would "top Jimsey in the midst of an exciting recital to correct his grammar."

The leading man, Leslie Bassett played the part of Joseph Brooks, the defaulter, with much consummate skill that one could but rejoice at his downfall. From start to finish, he was the "nasty" weaking, abusive to his friends, brutal with his wife and false to his employer. He succeeded so well in his part that his audience detested his very sight on the stage.

The part of Captain Williams, president of the Latin-American Steamship Company, and a former foremast hand, was played by George Bancroft in a way that brought the smell of salt air and tar into the theatre. The part was a strong one but was well sustained by Mr. Bancroft.

Sato, the Japanese valet of Captain Williams was played by David Manning. His lines consisted of a few choice "cuss" words and unintelligible expressions.

The costuming was simple as were the scenic effects. "The music, which was furnished by the local orchestra, was appreciated as it always is, and was of the usual excellent quality, although constant theatregoers would appreciate now and then, a newer selection."

Monday, January 1st, will be the feast of the Circumcision. This feast is kept in memory of the Circumcision of Christ, the day upon which He was made a member of the church of God's ancient people, and upon which He was formally given the name which is above every name—Jesus. Circumcision in the Jewish church corresponds to baptism in the Christian. It was the way in which infants were brought into covenant relation to God and dedicated to His service. It was observed on the eighth day after the child's birth. It is significant that Mary and Joseph to whom God entrusted the care of His Son were careful to observe every rite and ceremony of their religion with regard to Him. It never occurred to them that it would be a good thing to let Him grow up, and choose His religion for Himself, as many parents

In these days think they should do for Him. His place of abode, His clothes, His food, His teachers and many other things. They did not think that on the most important of all subjects—they were to exercise less care. There was but one true religion in their opinion and they chose that religion for Him. They never dreamed of letting Him grow up, and then decide whether He wished to be a Jew or a heathen; whether He was to worship the God of Abraham, or some deity of Greece or Rome! They knew their duty too well. What an example they are in this to some parents in these days! The celebrated Dean Swift once remarked to a lady who told him that she intended to let her child decide for himself on religious affairs, "Well, madam, if you will not instruct your child—the devil will."

NATION TRYING TO SAVE COD

Steam Trawler Has Made Fearful Inroads on Supply of Fish—Government Takes Steps.

Gloucester, Mass.—At last the codfish, the most important food product in the history of Massachusetts, has begun to succumb to the onslaught of steam trawlers until now the United States has stepped in to conserve the fish.

Millions of cod fry have been set free under direction of Superintendent Corliss at the hatchery of the United States bureau of fisheries here.

Working since last December, the hatchery has in this way taken charge of some 132,000,000 cod eggs and has hatched successfully and distributed more than 90,000,000 fry all along the coast in Ipswich Bay and Massachusetts Bay.

If only half of these manage to escape their natural enemies for three years and reach the market size of from two to three pounds, they will represent something like a hundred million pounds of cod.

"Cod eggs in water at a temperature of 40 degrees will hatch in seventeen days," said Mr. Corliss, "and during the hatching season there we have them in all stages, planting them as fry and as fingerlings."

"Running, as we do, at full capacity to handle the eggs which are collected on board the commercial fishing boats, there is no room to keep the young cod up to the stage of growth known as fingerling, or a length of three or four inches."

"In distributing these fish we put them on the natural spawning grounds of the cod. Thus they go at once into deep water, where I think they are better able to take care of themselves than in shallow water near the shore."

"The question has been asked as to whether these fish hatched here and planted in Massachusetts waters remain in this vicinity. That is a difficult question to answer, for the cod is, of course, a migratory fish. I believe, however, that while the cod on this coast may disappear at times, they simply go away to feeding grounds which the fishermen do not happen to know. Then when fishing chances are very great that the fish are of the same stock that frequented the grounds before."

MANY OFFERS OF MARRIAGE

Most Beautiful Girl in Rome Declines All Proposals, Content With Being "Queen of Beauty."

Rome.—Although Palmira Ceccani says she does not want to wear orange blossoms just yet, this newly selected "Queen of Beauty" is receiving so many offers of marriage every day and such a multitude of requests from leading artists for permission to paint her portrait, that her family has taken her away from town in order to save her from importunities.

Arrayed in the robes of her high "office," with the magnificent tiara of precious gems that one of Rome's daily newspapers donated in perpetuity to the winner of the beauty contest "Queen" Palmira is the happiest woman in the land, and her joy is justified, for the contest brought forward an astonishing number of striking beauties. Indeed, the public, which by its ballots selected the queen, was embarrassed by the richness of the sight.

Other cities of continental Europe had long held annual beauty contests, so when the management of the exhibition now being held here asked the innocent question, "who is the most beautiful girl in Rome?" there was such a quick response that a huge and dangerous problem was on their hands before they knew it.

Each to select a princess and two maids of honor by popular vote. Then from these princesses a queen was selected, each person who presented a ticket at the exhibition gate being entitled to one vote.

A unique and highly interesting feature of the contest was that local pride found expression in the giving of all manner of presents to the district candidates. These were placed in shop windows and great crowds went from district to district to see them. They made of the occasion a "Roman holiday" of the happiest kind.

$50,000 FOR NOT SMOKING

Man of 25 Keeps Agreement With Millionaire Father and Receives Substantial Reward.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Because he did not smoke before reaching the age of twenty-five Don Gates, son of A. H. Gates, a millionaire of South Pasadena, the other day received $50,000 as a present from his parent.

Fifteen years ago the elder Gates, head of the Gates Lumber company, of Arkansas, entered into a solemn agreement with his three sons Charles, the oldest, was seventeen; Don was ten, and Fred, now a student of Stanford university, was only five years of age. Their father agreed to give each a certain percentage of his business if they refrained from smoking until their twenty-fifth birthday was reached.

Charles reached the required age seven years ago, after denying himself tobacco in all forms, and he received his share on his twenty-fifth birthday. Two years ago he smoked for the first time.

Praiseworthy Seamanhip.

A remarkable rescue was effected recently when a sailor fell overboard from the steamship Baron Minto during a voyage from Japan to Hong Kong. When about midway between the ports the vessel was struck by a typhoon and took very heavy seas on board, and during the storm a Lascar seaman was washed from the bridge deck. The sea was too high to launch a boat, so Captain Baillie turned the vessel round, and steaming back, picked the man up by means of a rope, none the worse for his 15 minutes' immersion. Considering the large size of the vessel (4,537 tons gross) this was an exceedingly creditable piece of seamanhip.

"BEST ON EARTH"

This is the verdict of R. J. Howell, Tracey, O., who bought Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for his wife. "Her case was the worst I have ever seen, and looked like a sure case of consumption. Her lungs were sore and she coughed almost incessantly and her voice was hoarse and weak. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound brought relief at once and less than three bottles effected a complete cure." Sold by all druggists.

Thursday noon Mrs. A. B. Renehan entertained at luncheon for Mrs. Nathan Jaffa, at her home on Palace avenue. The decorations were red and green carnations. Those present were: Mrs. Jaffa, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Alchem, Mrs. James Seligman, Mrs. Arthur Seligman, Mrs. Cartwright, Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Ervin, Mrs. E. C. Abbott, Mrs. Fiske, Mrs. Bergere and Mrs. Sparks.

The Fifteen Club held its regular meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. J. Palen. Mrs. Hurt was present as a guest besides the members of the club. A program was given beginning with quotations appropriate to the holiday season. Mrs. Asplund reviewed "The Weary Lady", by Ida Parbel; Mrs. Walter read a story, "The Happy Day", by Eleanor Halowell Abbott and the meeting closed with a discussion of current events.

J. Bond Francisco, the noted artist of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Francisco are the guests of Mrs. N. B. Laughlin on Don Gaspar Avenue during the holidays. Mr. Francisco is widely known for his work in oil and has received many honors both at home and abroad. "La Matija" one of the best known of his paintings was recently sold in Los Angeles for $2,000 and is hung in one of the fashionable downtown club rooms of that city.

Chamber of Commerce Will Meet—There will be a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce next Tuesday night in the assembly room of the Palace.

Matters of vital interest to the city are to be discussed and everyone is urged to be present.

Cold Wave Tonight—The snow came last night while Santa Fe was asleep but the precipitation amounted to only one twenty-fifth of an inch. The day yesterday was perfect with a maximum temperature of 40 degrees and a minimum of 13 degrees and lots of sunshine. But for tonight another cold wave is promised although today was sunshiny.

Presented With a Fob—John W. Robert, who has up to the present been the president of the Young People's Social Club, but who leaves the city as the secretary to George Curry, Congressman-elect, for Washington, D. C. tonight, was presented with a gold watch fob by the club. The fob is a handsome gold seal engraved with the name of the retiring member and the monogram of the club.

Gave an Assumed Name—A man who gave the name of John Alexander was arrested last night by Night Officer Ward on the charge of drunkenness and when summoned before Judge D. R. Murray this morning pleaded guilty and was released on the payment of the costs. It is said that the man is a notary public of this county and for that reason gave an assumed name.—Las Vegas Optic.

A SUCCESS.

Through the columns of the press of other cities where the production has been seen it would seem that "The Lion and the Mouse" is considered the strongest play that the brilliant author, Chas. Klein, has ever written.

Happy New Year, 1912!

OLD YEAR, FAREWELL! 1911 has passed away. Its sands are full run. It has slipped into the vistas of the past, bearing with it our joys and sorrows, pleasures and profit, loss and gain, burying them all in the sepulchre of time.

Farewell, Old Year, Farewell—But Hark!

"Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring out the false, ring in the true."

And so we say to our many friends, A Happy, Happy New Year

And here's hoping that 1912 may have naught but happiness in store for you!
