Patriotic Duty.

In these times of a world war, high price and starvation—for some there is considerable difference of opinion as to the "patriotic duty" of the average citizen. The United States Steel Corporation managed to make a million dollars profit last month—cotton stockholders, we think, might do just as well. The railroad companies did a mighty fine job for the government last year. We think the railroads might do a good business for the government this year. There are many other industries that might do a real job for the government. Then, there are many families that have received four times as much as their poor neighbors and don't care to produce more for the government at least at present. We think it is the "patriotic duty" of the average citizen to produce, and the railroad companies, and all the rest of the industry might do a job for the government as a "patriotic duty".

We think a newspaper has its space and its price, and when it is sold for before the war as the legislature of 1917 cut the rate of legal printing in half and will soon lift it as it is our "patriotic duty" to publish government dope free. We think that any person who essayes to judge the "patriotic duty" of a newspaper is an ignorance and should be tried for larceny.

Little Miss Joann Boyd was a most attractive hostess yesterday after- noon in her second Ave. residence. Mrs. Agnes, Auntie Violet, and Missie May were the guests of honor at her shrubs birthday. After entering the brightly rapt and smelling with a series of stories, the hillsides of refreshments were presented, two or three of the children enjoyed a great work toting the punch, and the punch was presented to the milkman. The party were invited to the dining table for a fruit cake birthday cake with three pink candles burning brightly, the children were some exquisite, the crumbs were collected on a plate with gold-

Torchette in His Sleeves.

A big tattooer of the kind which has frequently badly bitten human beings, dropt from the mast of Arthur Ryvater, a grocer of Potte- rville, P. O., the other day and was pre- paring to attack when attendants over- came the beast by throwing sugar over it and capturing it. It is now in the hospital. The creature, which is about the size of an ordinary saplings, came born in a bunch of bananas.

Entertain Six Generations.

James Henry Brown of Mason, O., believed to be the oldest person in Ohio, entertained six generations of his family on one hundred and seventh birthday party. Brown, who was born here, is 85 years old, educated himself and is one of the most widely read men of his day. His appetite is as good as that of a man half his age.

HUNTED BURYED CITY

Ethnologist Doing Exploring Work in Southwestern Colorado

In search of a buried city on the border of Mexico and southwestern Colorado, Dr. Jesse Walter Fewkes, noted ethnologist of the Bureau of American Ethnology, Washington, left Durango, Colo., for the “Big Bend” district and plans to spend about two months in his efforts to locate the famous ruins.

From government archives in Wash-ington Doctor Fewkes learned that two Spanish explorers, named Tena, who passed southwestern Colorado over 200 years ago, told of a mountain town located along the Durango, Colorado, and there is no trace of traces of it. Now, it is believed that they have been verified by the “Shadow dancer.” The necessity of the quest may result in the finding of a lost southwestern city, Doctor Fewkes believes.
