U.S. RAILROAD OWNERSHIP IS UNIONS' GOAL, HOOPER DECLARES IN AN ADDRESS

WARFARE BEING WAGED AGAINST TRAFFIC LINES IN THE NATION

Organized Labor Magazines
Contain Bitter Attacks on the Carriers, Management and Policies

CALCULATED TO STIR UP HATRED, IS CLAIM

Attempt to Destroy Faith in the Courts Is Treachery to the Republic, Chairman Asserts

Chicago, Dec. 2.—(By the Associated Press).—Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the United States railroad labor board, in a speech before the Illinois Bar association here tonight, charged that many railway union leaders are waging warfare against the roads with the purpose of destroying the industry and forwarding political campaign for government ownership.

"A large portion of the union materials which pass over my desk contain bitter attacks on the railroads, their managements and their policies," he said.

"These criticisms are not confined to matters of direct controversy between the railroads and the employees, but they cover every ground of attack that might be made by those outside of railroad employment."

"Nothing is left unsaid that seems to be calculated to stir up hatred among the employees and distrust and hostility among the people."

"Railroad labor organizations are largely committed to the plan of railroad operation, which is government ownership, with private operation in which the employees share the profits and losses, instead of profits, the owners, that is, the people, pay the taxes to pay the deficit."

"In their efforts to further government ownership employees are opposed to the transportation act and the railroad labor board," he said, because they feel that the successful adjustment of wages and working conditions and the gradual reduction of rates will lead to the postponement or prevention of government ownership.

"The pernicious doctrine that the courts are dominated by the rich and powerful is fed to an element of the public by means of deficient training and highly sensitized class consciousness, are peculiarly susceptible to its baneful influence."

"When a man becomes thoroughly naturalized with this distrust of the courts, he is no longer a good American citizen. His mind is befogged with dark suspicions and he surrenders a faceted grievance against his government. He is converted into a fit instrument of disloyalty and treason."

"The man who persistently labors to destroy the faith of the people in the courts, whether he is a bomb throwing anarchist or an United States congressman, is guilty of one of the most heinous crimes to the republic."

Our Constitution
There are men today who think that the drafting of our federal constitution required no expenditure of time, effort and talent than is necessary for the publication of one issue of a "yellow newspaper." They blatantly denounce the judiciary and threaten to make it subservient to the kaleidoscope changes in public sentiment reflected in successive congresses.

"Under such a system it might happen that the boll weevil, the army worm, the Hessian fly and the grasshopper, would set aside the national constitution, for a combination of such insectivorous pests will now and then elect a congress. On any fine No-

UNCOOKED EGG ROUTS 2 HARD BOILED ONES

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 2.—One uncooked egg routed two hard-boiled ones when it was attempted in a small grocery in an outlying district.

Two men entered the store at closing time and one of them, placing a dollar bill on the counter, asked Miss Esther Olson, aged 18, for half a dozen eggs. When she turned toward the men again an egg in each hand, one of them displayed a gun. Miss Olson let fly an egg, and screamed.

The egg, according to Miss Olson, struck the holdup man on the nose and splashed over his face. Startled by the onslaught and by the girl's call for help, the men bolted, leaving the dollar bill on the grocery counter.

INJURIES FATAL TO A WALSENBERG MINER

Trinidad, Colo., Dec. 2.—Ernest Hobbs, a coal miner of Walsenberg, Colo., one of four persons seriously injured Thursday night when two automobiles crashed on the north and south highway near here, died this morning at the local hospital. Hobbs sustained a fracture of the skull and other injuries. John Gonzales, one of the injured, is in a critical condition with a fractured skull, also Ernest Hill, 40, of the same town. The fourth person injured was Miss Iva Semlar, less seriously injured.

NATIONAL DEBT REDUCED

Washington, Dec. 2.—Treasury operations in the last 12 months resulted in a reduction of nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars in the national debt. Figures made public today showed the debt also had been cut $10,000,000 during November. At the end of the month the gross debt stood at $22,624,756,459.

PARTY LOYALTY CASE OF MUCH POLITICAL EVIL

Only Hope of Improvement
Lies in Not Adhering to Organizations, Gompers
Says in an Address

Washington, Dec. 2.—"To the unquestioning allegiance to party by which that obligation is placed upon principle and above country," said Judge J. W. Bolen, of the Oklahoma district court, in a charge against Governor J. B. A. Robertson of Oklahoma, issued a statement tonight declaring that "the observations convinced me that a republican courage of conviction, out of a spirit of personal ambition and heedlessly driven along by an ardent prejudice, was being industriously assisted by the Ku Klux Klan to deprive the good name and character of a democratic government."

Judge Bolen outlined his reasons for adjourning his court on the occasion of the trial of the governor's trial is set for December 12, and declared he had considerable evidence that convinced him that the Ku Klux Klan was organizing a jury to try the governor.

BOLSHEVIK EMBLEM IS HISSED IN ROME

Rome, Dec. 2.—Spectators watching the huge Fascist parade in Rome the end of last month were appalled to see a group of young Fascists dragging a flag after them in the dirt of the street. The evildoers, who were dressed in Fascist uniforms, were seen to be hissing at one square there were hisses, at which the Fascist standard and dragger picked up the emblem and waved it at the multitude. Then cheering broke out. It was the Red Flag of Bolshevism.

ARTESIA MAN IS MURDERED NEAR SEMINOLE, TEX.

Jim Urban's Body Is Found Buried in the Sand, After Being Burned; Robbery
the Motive

Special to The Journal.
Artesia, N. M., Dec. 2.—The body of Jim Urban, Artesia man who was murdered recently near Seminole, Texas, was buried today. The man had been murdered and his body buried in the sand after being burned. Coyotes had torn the body up and eaten most of the flesh. A ranchman discovered the body and Texas officers began an investigation.

Urban had been away from Artesia since November 1. His people identified the body by means of a scar on the man's skull and the buttons which were on his army overcoat. A local dentist also identified the man by his teeth. A bullet hole in the head indicated the cause of his death. According to reports, Urban had several hundred dollars on his person at the time of his death. His car is also missing. Mystery surrounds the affair although the officers are following several clues. His family know of no reason for the murder.

COUNTERFEITING GANG IS CAUGHT IT IS BELIEVED

Three Men in Custody Are Said to Have Been Involved in Production of
Bank of England Notes

New York, Dec. 2.—Secret service agents today arrested John Popovich of Los Angeles who, they said, carried a bag containing counterfeit English bank notes calling for 100,000 pounds. He was held for arraignment Monday.

Arrested in Los Angeles after banks had exchanged 9,000 pounds of counterfeit notes, Popovich was released because of lack of evidence. Later when the counterfeit money was found on Popovich's re-arrest was issued.

POPOVICH IS THIRD MAN ARRESTED IN THE CASE

Washington, Dec. 2.—Officials of the United States secret service declared tonight they had succeeded in rounding up another important gang of counterfeiters in the case of John Popovich of Los Angeles.

The arrest is the third in the case and the three men in custody are said to have been involved in the production of counterfeit bank notes of England. The other men arrested in connection with the case are: Oscar Simon of Los Angeles and Ivan Glavandovich.

Chief of the secret service declared that when Popovich was arrested, secret service agents found in his possession and in his hotel room, bank of England notes totaling more than $450,000. They also recovered a large quantity of counterfeit bank notes of England.

Glavandovich was declared by the secret service to have carried 110 counterfeit notes when he was arrested recently in Los Angeles. He had been connected with a bank.

JUDGE SAYS KLAN IS ORGANIZING A JURY TO TRY ROBERTSON

Ada, Okla., Dec. 2.—(By the Associated Press).—Judge J. W. Bolen, of the Oklahoma district court, in a charge against Governor J. B. A. Robertson of Oklahoma, issued a statement tonight declaring that "the observations convinced me that a republican courage of conviction, out of a spirit of personal ambition and heedlessly driven along by an ardent prejudice, was being industriously assisted by the Ku Klux Klan to deprive the good name and character of a democratic government."

Judge Bolen outlined his reasons for adjourning his court on the occasion of the trial of the governor's trial is set for December 12, and declared he had considerable evidence that convinced him that the Ku Klux Klan was organizing a jury to try the governor.

UNCLE OF BURGE NOW CHARGED WITH BRIBERY

Prescott, Ariz., Dec. 2.—Thomas W. Burge, acquitted by a jury here Thursday of a charge of murdering Ever Engle, former Phoenix orchard keeper, was re-arrested, at Phoenix, early yesterday morning and will be brought back here to face trial on a charge of stealing an automobile which Engle was driving at the time of the alleged crime and which was later found abandoned south of Phoenix. It was announced by Sheriff J. P. Dillon today.

D. O. Dunn, an uncle of Burge, is on trial here now on a charge of attempted bribery of a state senator in the case of the late Frank H. Milred, a member of the Burge jury, was arrested last night on a warrant signed by Sheriff Dillon, charging perjury in connection with Milred's answers to questions put in qualifying him for jury duty in the trial of Dunn, in which he was also a member of the jury panel.

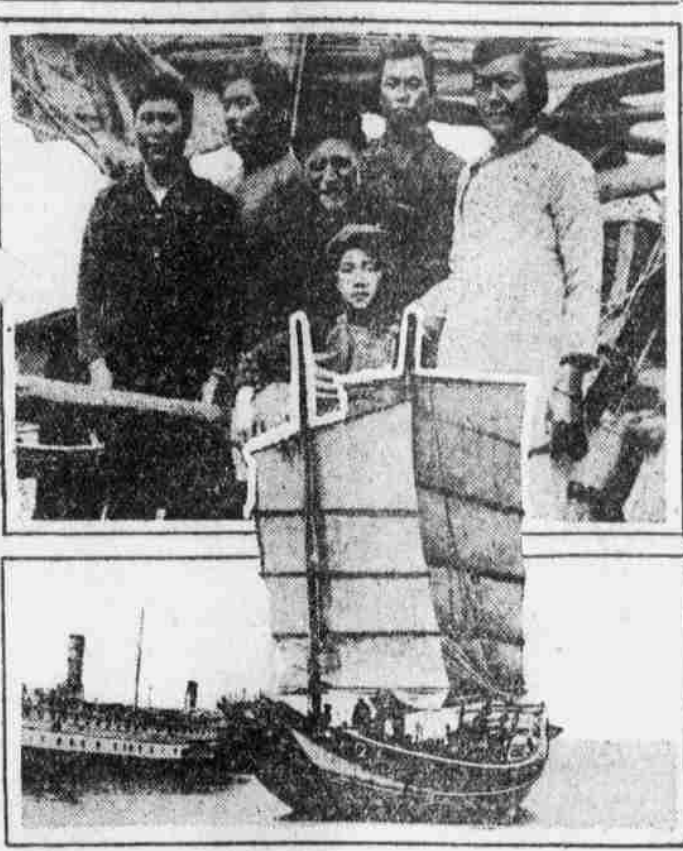

Ever Engle died in a Prescott hospital last July, a month after he had been found unconscious, beaten and stabbed in a ravine near a lonely road south of Prescott. The automobile which he had been driving when last seen was later found near Maricopa, 30 miles south of Phoenix.

Burge and William E. Acker were charged with the murder. Acker was tried first, convicted and sentenced to hang December 1 but was granted a stay of execution pending an appeal to the supreme court.

Acker appeared as a prosecution witness against Burge in the latter's trial which ended with a verdict of not guilty.

The warrant for Burge's re-arrest was signed yesterday and a request was sent to Albuquerque officials to take him into custody when he changed trains there last night. Burge was believed to be on his way to the home of relatives in Louisiana. Word that Burge had been arrested was received at the sheriff's office this morning.

TINY JUNK ARRIVES AT SEATTLE AFTER 87-DAY TRIP FROM CHINA

Captain Ward, his wife and son, and three of the crew of the "Tiny Junk" shown below.

Christopher Columbus' famous voyage in 1492 has nothing on the trip of Captain Ward, of the good ship "Tiny Junk" when it came to daring seamanship. Ward, with his wife and son and a small crew, set sail from China in a frail little craft, made of camphor wood and Chinese paper, 87 days later dropped anchor at Seattle.

THOMAS BURGE HELD HERE ON SECOND CHARGE

Acquitted Thursday at Prescott on Murder Charge Is Re-arrested by Local Officers on Wired Request

Thomas W. Burge, acquitted Thursday at Prescott, Arizona, on a murder charge, was re-arrested early yesterday morning at Phoenix on telegraphic request received from J. P. Dillon, sheriff of Prescott. Sheriff Tony Ortiz and Deputy Sheriff Nore Gutierrez and Louis Beach made the arrest. They took Burge from train No. 22 at Phoenix and returned with him to Phoenix. They reached the city about 2:30 yesterday morning and Burge was immediately lodged in the county jail.

The wire which Sheriff Dillon sent to Sheriff Ortiz stated that Burge was wanted at Prescott on a charge of murder. Press dispatches from Prescott, however, state the man is wanted there to answer a charge of stealing an automobile.

Yesterday morning Burge received a telegram from someone in Prescott, believed to be his attorney, urging him to fight extradition. Burge, who had been in Prescott, immediately after reading the telegram he announced to a representative of the Morning Journal that he would fight extradition and asked that he be put in jail here. Burge was taken to the county jail and an interview with Burge yesterday afternoon. He will probably defend Burge.

Sheriff Ortiz wired Sheriff Dillon in Phoenix that Burge had been arrested and was being held here. The latter wired in reply that an officer was on the way from Prescott to bring Burge back there. However, with the extradition, it is certain to be some time before he is returned to Prescott. If he is returned at all, it is understood that Mr. McGuinness intends to file habeas corpus proceedings tomorrow morning.

2 PERSONS DEAD IN A WRECK ON SANTA FE LINE

Train No. 22 Plunges Into an Open Switch Near Bakersfield, Calif., Several Are Injured

Fresno, Calif., Dec. 2.—Two persons were killed and several more seriously injured, when Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe passenger train No. 22, eastbound, plunged into an open switch a few miles west of Bakersfield early tonight.

A statement issued from the office of the division superintendent here today said the wreck was caused by deliberate tampering with the switch. The statement said that an investigation showed that the switch target had shown a clear track, but that the switch itself had been broken open and lined for a spur track.

18 INCHES OF SNOW FALL AT WILLIAMS DURING NOVEMBER

Williams, Ariz., Dec. 2.—Thanksgiving day found Williams under a nine-inch blanket of snow and the weather still unsettled. The storm started Tuesday night and the snow fell heavily during the next forty-eight hours. Garage report auto getting through over the highways east and west. No highways, 1921, recorded one half inch of snow, while November, 1922, reported eighteen inches.

NEW MOVEMENT BY PROGRESSIVE BLOC DECLARED 'NON-PARTISAN'

Purposes of the Organization
Declared to Be Legislative and Not Political

AID FOR FARMERS IS URGED BY SPEAKERS

Committee Is Appointed to Draft Resolutions Declaring for a Movement for Direct Primaries

Washington, Dec. 2.—The purposes of the new "progressive" movement inaugurated yesterday by the organization of the "progressive bloc" in congress, were declared formally to be legislative and not political in resolutions adopted today at a general public conference.

Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, who with Representative Huddleston, democrat of Alabama, called the conference under the auspices of the people's legislative service, presided over the general public gathering today which was attended by more than 100 members of congress, governors and other leaders. Representative Woodruff, republican, Michigan, was elected secretary.

The first resolution adopted declared that the movement was "non-partisan" and would devote itself to "consideration of devising methods and means for co-operation and support" of the general legislative program adopted yesterday by the new progressive congressional bloc. At the suggestion of President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, the resolutions had been amended to declare the movement "non-partisan" instead of "apolitical."

Time Appropriate
In opening the conference as chairman of the people's legislative service, Senator LaFollette said the time appeared opportune for the discussion of national and there seems to be a mandate growing out of election for a movement to advance the interests of the people. He declared organized labor, disgraced by the recent election, was the most encouraging thing in his experience.

"It is proposed," said Senator LaFollette, "that each legislative step shall be well grounded and not all at one stroke."

A committee on resolutions was appointed, headed by Frederic C. Howe, former immigration commissioner at New York. Other members included Senator Huddleston, of Alabama; Representative John M. Nelson, of Wisconsin; George L. Berry, president of the Pressmen's union; P. H. Callahan, Louisville; William H. Johnston, of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters; and Elizabeth Hauser, secretary of the National League of Women Voters; Anna Sheppard of Texas; Representative Huddleston, of Alabama; Representative John M. FORD APPROVES APPOINTMENT OF JAMES COUZENS

"Is the Best Who Could Have Been Picked" for Newberry's Seat in the Senate, He Declares

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 2.—Mayor James Couzens of Detroit, who next week will take the seat in the United States senate, relinquished by Truman H. Newberry, is "the best man who could have been picked for the job," in the opinion of Henry Ford, former employer of Couzens. "The seat to be taken by the Detroit mayor is the one sought four years ago by Mr. Ford, who was defeated at the polls by Mr. Newberry."

"Couzens is just the type of man needed in the senate, not only by Michigan, but by the whole country," the automobile manufacturer said in a statement tonight. "He is a man of immense wealth and yet he still has the welfare of the public at heart. He is independent and fearless and likes nothing better than a fight for the common people against the special interests, which for years have been getting an ever-tightening grip on our government, both state and national."

"There are two things upon which Mr. Couzens can be relied. He never will spend a nickel for political advantage, nor will he ever let a stupid party allegiance lead him into any situation or commit him to any policy that he believes is not for the good of all the people."

"If Senator Couzens, instead of attempting to bring about the passage of additional federal laws, will strive for the repeal of an overwhelming mass of obsolete and harmful legislation, he will perform not only a service of inestimable value to the country, but he will stand as one of the most constructive statesmen of his time."

Campaigns of the United States Steel Corporation employees against carelessness have saved 30,000 lives in 15 years, it is estimated.

Nearly Died on Birthday

"On my last birthday, eight months ago, I had another close call. We had just finished dinner. My stomach began to hurt me, a minute later I lay unconscious. Three doctors worked on me. I was soaked with a cold sweat when I came to. The next week, telling a friend about it and he advised trying May's Wonderful Remedy. Since taking a course of your medicine I have been able to eat anything. I have no more pains or bloating and am feeling better than for ten years." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. For sale by the Briggs pharmacy and druggists everywhere.—Adv.

SHOPLIFTERS FINED BY JUDGE AT CLOVIS

Clovis, N. M., Dec. 2.—Arthur Whittington and Rosie Hopkins, colored, were arrested by City Chief Doug Hammond Tuesday charged with shoplifting. They appeared before Judge Noble in the A. J. Rhodes store and also at Jackson Dry Goods company. When the officers got hot on their trails, the negro man, who had the garments, threw them in a garbage barrel on South Main street. The garments were secured and returned to the stores.

Judge Noble fined the man $50 and costs and the woman $25 on the man taking most of the blame for the theft.

PRINCE ANDREW HAILED BEFORE A COURT MARTIAL

Member of Greek Royal Family Charged With Contribution to Defeat of Troops in Asia Minor

London, Dec. 2.—Prince Andrew has been sentenced to perpetual banishment by the court martial sitting at Athens, according to a Reuters dispatch. In addition, he will suffer degradation in the army.

Athens, Dec. 2 (By the Associated Press).—Prince Andrew, brother of the former king, Constantine, was put on trial by the revolutionary committee today, on a charge of contributing to the Greek defeat in Asia Minor by ignoring orders sent to him by the general staff.

It was the first instance of a member of the royal family being haled before a court martial, but there were a few spectators in the house of parliament when the trial opened at 9 o'clock in the morning. This was attributed, however, not to a lack of interest, but to the short notice on which the court was convened.

The court martial was presided over by General Vlachopoulos. The court is composed of ten officers and the trial is purely of a military character. The witnesses, with the exception of one Greek war correspondent, are all military.

Prince Andrew replied to numerous questions put to him by the president and appeared to be deeply moved, but failed to give the impression of a general defense of his actions during the war. The trial is expected to last several days.

DAY'S TRIAL ON MURDER CHARGE BEGINS MONDAY

Editor of the Durango, Colo., Democrat Is Accused of Killing William L. Wood on Last April 24

Durango, Colo., Dec. 2.—Judge W. N. Seary of the district court of La Plata county today announced he had called in Judge J. C. Wiley of Del Norte, Colo., to preside at the trial of Red S. Day, editor and manager of the Durango Democrat, charged with killing William L. Wood, city editor of the Durango Herald on the main street here April 24 last. The trial is scheduled to begin next Monday.

Judge Seary announced he was withdrawing from the case for reasons which he considered sufficient to summon another trial judge.

Because of the prominence of the principals, officials expected it would take several days to get a jury.

Day, who is 47 years old, is a son of the late David T. Day, pioneer Colorado editor. Wood was 55 years of age. The shooting is alleged to have grown out of an editorial printed by the Herald charging that Day and his paper were not supporting the prohibition amendment.

WOMEN'S STYLES FOR SPRING ARE ON EXHIBITION

Longer Skirts and Shorter Jackets Will Grace the Boulevard Queen; Sleeves to Be Loose

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 2.—Longer skirts and shorter jackets will grace the boulevard queen in the spring of 1923, according to the styles shown here today at the annual convention of the National Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' association.

The straight line silhouette will remain but will be varied by draped blouse effects, flaring lines in sport and auto coats. Sleeves are to be loose and bell shaped on many coats and jackets will be gathered in narrow bands at the wrists. Plaids were shown in the sport coat types.

The low bloused jacket and boxy type of suit coat are being made for wear with a plain skirt or with a dress to constitute a three piece suit. In many instances the skirt is draped slightly and has an uneven hem line. Pocket and belt are cord, however, will be the most widely used for suits, manufacturers said.

The soft, clinging fabrics will give their grace to spring coats, which are of three types—wraps, capes and straight line coats, either with or without a blouse. Silk will appear in many of the dressier wraps.

Tan shades, beige and sand will rival navy. Gray stone, but wing are the new grey touch.

KELLER TO PRESENT CHARGES AGAINST DAUGHERTY MONDAY

Washington, Dec. 2.—Chairman Volstead announced tonight that the house judiciary committee would meet in open session Monday to give Representative Keller, republican of Minnesota, an opportunity to present in detail the charges on which he is asking for impeachment of Attorney General Daugherty.

The bill of particulars, forwarded to the committee yesterday by Representative Keller were considered informally at a conference of several members today, but no action was taken.

The meeting for Monday was arranged some weeks ago and the committee by resolution had requested Mr. Keller to file specific allegations, together with the names of witnesses by whom he would attempt to prove them.

It was indicated at the department of justice tonight that the attorney general would have a full and complete reply to make to the Keller charges but that he had not yet completed his examinations of them.

It is said that in one Havana theatre, each member of the audience is supplied with a small board and a wooden mallet to stimulate applause.

U. S. AND JAPAN LINE UP AGAINST STAND OF ISMET

Join With England, France and Italy Regarding Capitulations; Child Speaks
for America

Lausanne, Dec. 2.—America and Japan both lined up with Great Britain, France and Italy today when they took their stand against Ismet Pasha's contention that Turkey had wiped out all the capitulations or extra territorial rights for foreigners by declaring them null in October, 1914.

Richard Washburn Child, spokesman for the United States, said that if any legal dispute arises, the Washington government will be obliged to take the same position as the allied powers.

Hayashi Speaks for Japan
Baron Hayashi, for Japan, said he had great sympathy with Turkey's dislike for the capitulations because his government once labored under the same system. Japan, however, had taken twenty years to build up a legal system satisfactory to the foreign powers, and Turkey, he believed, would require the same time for the same work. He begged Ismet Pasha to consider this question with great seriousness.

Marquis Curzon, for Great Britain, Marquis di Gironi, for Italy, and M. Barrere and Bonnard, for France, also spoke in opposition to Ismet's contention that Turkey regards all the capitulations as void and will refuse anything in their place reflecting upon the sovereignty and independence of his country.

Marquis di Gironi opened the afternoon session, which was devoted to the capitulation question, with the explanation that the sultan first induced foreigners to enter into trade with Turkey by giving them special privileges and guarantees. The system worked admirably, and the capitulations later were confirmed in treaties.

The Italian spokesman declared the allies were willing to do their best to meet the Turkish objections to the special rights and privileges which foreigners enjoy in Turkey under guaranty of the treaties confirming the capitulations, but he explained that the foreigners were anxious for the protection of the enterprises which they have developed. He warned Ismet that he Turks will require much foreign assistance in the reconstruction of their country and therefore must consider the attitude of the foreign powers and financiers.

Ismet Explains Position
Ismet told the delegates that Turkey's resentment against the capitulations system was beyond the comprehension of foreigners. These special rights, he said, were no longer necessary, as the nationals of other countries were given adequate protection by the Turkish courts and other institutions and should not expect different treatment from that accorded Turkish subjects.

Lord Curzon supported the views of the preceding allied spokesmen and reviewed the legal aspects of the situation.

DROWNS HER DAUGHTER

Lawrence, Mass., Dec. 2.—After holding her 11 year old daughter under water in a bath tub in her home here until she was dead, Mrs. Rose Gelsler last night committed suicide by swallowing a tumbler full of poison and then turning on the gas. The bodies were found by the woman's husband, Christian Gelsler, a mill worker, when he returned from his work.

DROWNS HER DAUGHTER
THEN ENDS OWN LIFE

Lawrence, Mass., Dec. 2.—After holding her 11 year old daughter under water in a bath tub in her home here until she was dead, Mrs. Rose Gelsler last night committed suicide by swallowing a tumbler full of poison and then turning on the gas. The bodies were found by the woman's husband, Christian Gelsler, a mill worker, when he returned from his work.

The Italian spokesman declared the allies were willing to do their best to meet the Turkish objections to the special rights and privileges which foreigners enjoy in Turkey under guaranty of the treaties confirming the capitulations, but he explained that the foreigners were anxious for the protection of the enterprises which they have developed. He warned Ismet that he Turks will require much foreign assistance in the reconstruction of their country and therefore must consider the attitude of the foreign powers and financiers.

Ismet Explains Position
Ismet told the delegates that Turkey's resentment against the capitulations system was beyond the comprehension of foreigners. These special rights, he said, were no longer necessary, as the nationals of other countries were given adequate protection by the Turkish courts and other institutions and should not expect different treatment from that accorded Turkish subjects.

Lord Curzon supported the views of the preceding allied spokesmen and reviewed the legal aspects of the situation.

W. C. T. U. HOLDS STATE MEETING IN RATON, N. M.

Mrs. Strumquist of This City, President, Reports
Aid Promised for Frances
Willard School

Raton, N. M., Dec. 2.—The thirty-ninth annual convention of the New Mexico W. C. T. U. began its session here today in the Presbyterian church with a large attendance. Mrs. Anna Wilds Strumquist, of Albuquerque, state president and who recently returned from the world's convention in Philadelphia, as president.

Mrs. Strumquist reports that six states through local representatives and one lady in Canada have pledged support to the W. C. T. U. enterprise in New Mexico—the Frances W. Willard school in Santa Fe. Two girls from Arkansas, two from Kentucky and one from Kansas City are expected to enroll in the school, where there are now five Raton girls. News of this institution and New Mexico W. C. T. U. work was syndicated in a news service that reaches 2,500 newspapers. New departments of work to be financed by aid from the national organization are to be launched the coming year in New Mexico. The increase in membership and state activities occasioned New Mexico W. C. T. U. to be presented with a distinguished service banner and badge at the national convention. Six lecturers and organizers from other states and overseas will come to the Sunshine state the coming year.

Miss Bailey, from Australia, is expected to be a speaker at the Sunday evening service of the W. C. T. U., in which all churches will participate.

John Morrow, of Raton, recently elected to congress, will also speak.

The Monday morning session will convene at 8:30 in the Presbyterian church, the program including various reports and the election of officers. A noon luncheon will be given in the Methodist church basement by the united Aid societies of Raton. An afternoon session will also be held.

WAXMAKER IS KILLED

Philadelphia, Dec. 2.—Little change was noted in the last twelve hours in the condition of John Waxmaker, the Philadelphia and New York merchant, who is confined to his home by a serious cold.

CIRCUS STUNT CAUSE OF DEATH OF YOUTH

Clovis, N. M., Dec. 2.—A sad accident happened last Sunday near Fort Sumner when the 16-year-old son of Charles O'Neal was accidentally killed. Young O'Neal was throwing a target in the air and his brother-in-law, Joe Fischer, was shooting at it with a .22 caliber rifle when a shot accidentally hit the boy in the abdomen. The boy lived for several hours, but the wound struck vital organs and it was impossible to save his life.

FANSURGE POST SEASON 'CONTEST FOR HIGH SCHOOL

Much Agitation for Football
Contest Between Bulldogs and Either Roswell or Phoenix High School

There is considerable agitation about the city for a post-season football game between either Albuquerque high school and Phoenix high school or the local eleven and the Roswell high school team. Some are in favor of ignoring Roswell and playing Phoenix for the southwestern title while others want to see the locals in a return game with Roswell here.

Whichever view the factionists take all are in accord that the Albuquerque high school eleven which played Thanksgiving day is the greatest in the history of the school and an eleven which compares favorably with any high school eleven in the southwest today or any other day.

Whether or not either of the games which has been suggested is played, the players of that eleven have endeavored their names on the Albuquerque high school football roll of honor for all time. They will serve as an inspiration to the football youngsters who come after them. In after years other high school boys will speak with pride the names of Coach Addison Moore, Hugo Glom, Malcolm Long, Roybal, Glesman, Tolson, Orville Moore, Allen, Wilson, Matlock, Smith, Marron, Ward, Ceen and Holcomb.

The Albuquerque players distinguished themselves in three distinct ways Thursday afternoon. And each was alone sufficient to make every Albuquerquean proud of each and all of them.

First was the glorious victory scored over El Paso. After years of striving and thwarted hopes, that first victory alone would be sufficient to bring them undying fame, at least within the halls and on the campus of high school. The name of Hugo Glom will live long as the man who scored the first touchdown Albuquerque. Every Albuquerquean will remember the player who paved the way to that victory. Beside him will be the name of Roybal, perhaps the greatest heaver of forward passes of any high school team in the country, and of Malcolm Long, remarkable field general of the team.

But far more glorious than the victory was the magnificent exhibition of fighting spirit displayed in the fourth quarter the display which well earned the Albuquerque boys the nickname "Bulldogs." Apparently being sure to defeat before an overwhelming wave of El Paso offensive, the Bulldogs turned to grip the Tiger as only the bulldog can grip, turned that seemingly certain defeat into a triumphant victory and then continued to worry the Tiger as only the bulldog can worry and completely crush a conquered opponent.

Most glorious of all was the splendid display of sportsmanship offered by Albuquerque players, coupled with the fact that they met the foe worthy their mettle in this phase, in the splendid sportsman from El Paso. There was no single instance of unfair tactics or of unnecessary roughness by the Bulldogs and only one of roughness by the Tigers. And the latter was a quite pardonable one. Many other teams, those which consider victory paramount, might well have viewed Thursday's contest for the object lesson it carried.

Summing up the contest it is not to be wondered that all Albuquerque locks and eyes are turned to the do. It is not to be wondered that they want to see them in action again. The Albuquerque boys were tried in all essentials and gloriously proved themselves.

The game which Albuquerque high school played against El Paso would have given any collegiate eleven in the southwest trouble. Those who have seen both teams in action declare the El Paso high school has the edge on the Texas College eleven. Yet the latter eleven gave a 3 to 0 victory over Daniel Baker on Thanksgiving day, while Daniel Baker has given the strong college eleven of east Texas considerable trouble during the season.

The game which Albuquerque displayed Thursday would defeat Roswell—either here or on a neutral field—and would probably down Phoenix as well. If victory were required it came in a statement of Luther Coblentz, El Paso coach, after the Thursday game. He said that game between Albuquerque and Phoenix would prove a great contest and he would not be at all surprised if Albuquerque should win. Coming from the ever conservative Coblentz, such statement carries great weight.

There appears little chance for a return game with Roswell. Roswell High school did not "play the game" when the management refused to play here this year in spite of the fact that the game was scheduled for this city under the existing agreement. It is unlikely that now, knowing of the power Albuquerque now possesses, Roswell would consent to a game, except perhaps at Roswell. In fact, only a short time ago the Roswell management wrote Coach Moore flatly refusing to come to Albuquerque.

But it is quite possible that a game with Phoenix could be arranged. Judging Phoenix on its last record, it appears highly probable the team would be willing to play. And the attitude of local fans toward the affair appears to be such that only a little impetus would be required to assure the game.

The high school boys are willing to play an additional game with either eleven suggested, though they would prefer Roswell. Coach Moore is not eager for such game, owing to the fact that practice for basketball season opens tomorrow. However, he would consent to playing the game if it were arranged.

There is some talk also being made of a Roswell-Phoenix game, to be staged here. Such game is improbable for two reasons. First is that it would scarcely be such an attraction as to warrant the financial outlay necessary. And second is the determined stand which Roswell appears to have taken about playing games away from home. On comparative light over the games each played against Las Vegas Normal, Clayton has the edge.

There is more than a little feeling Albuquerque regarding Roswell's refusal to play here. It appears certain that unless Roswell comes here next year the game with Albuquerque will be cancelled. El Paso has already cancelled its schedule for the same reason.

It has been suggested that in view of the splendid response of the Bulldogs to the plea that they fight every moment of the game with El Paso, a few lines be added to the plea made. The responsibility belongs whence the suggestion came.

It is human enough in victorious fight. When the blood leaps hot and fast. To charge straight through and little heed. Whether that charge be the last!

But to sink in the depths of defeat's dead clutch. As despair's clutch grips the heart. Then to fiercely fight, till victory's won. That calls for a noble part!

So, honor the Fighting Bulldogs. They're heroes beyond our ken—And a word of praise is surely theirs: "They fought and played like Men!"

ATTEMPTS TO CURB LIQUOR CONSUMPTION PROTESTED AGAINST

Berlin, Dec. 2 (By the Associated Press).—More than 5,000 opponents of prohibition adopted a resolution at a mass meeting held today in protest against legislation which the federal ministry of economics is said to be preparing designed to curb the consumption of alcoholic liquors. The assembly constituted the first organized public attempt to combat the dry movement in Germany.

The resolution declared: "According to official statistics, the consumption of spirituous liquors now comprises only a fragment of that drunk by the German people before the war. The abstemious movement is striving not only to oppose, but far more to pave the way after the American pattern of making Germany completely dry."

San Francisco, Dec. 2.—Ammonia fumes were utilized by a so-called soft drink establishment today in an attempt to repel a raid by four prohibition agents, with the result that two of the agents were overcome. A bar tender was arrested on a charge of violating the Volstead act.

The fumes enveloped the agents as they rushed into the cellar of the establishment. Despite the suffocating fumes the agents seized several bottles of liquor for evidence, and then fought their way back to the open air.

BIG GAME MORE PLENTIFUL THAN IN MANY YEARS

There Is a Scarcity of Bucks
Now, and Also a Scarcity of Fawns This Season,
Gable States

Special to The Journal
Santa Fe, Dec. 2.—Big game is more plentiful in New Mexico this season than at any time during the last 10 years. It is shown by reports from all over the state. And more of it is being killed. Thomas P. Gable, state game and fish warden, said this afternoon.

There is a scarcity of bucks now, Mr. Gable said, and also a scarcity of fawns this season. There will soon follow a scarcity of deer. Better protection for deer ought to be provided for the next two years.

Mr. Gable has two plans for increased protection. One is to permit a hunter to kill one deer, either buck or doe.

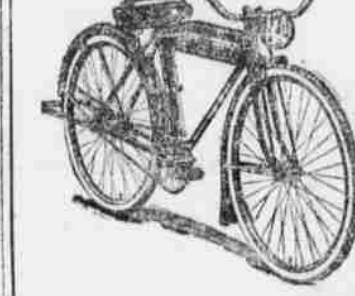

The other is to ask the legislature to provide a closed season on all big game for a period of two years. A great many sportsmen are in favor of the latter plan.

Enactment of a closed season will necessitate policing the state, Mr. Gable said. Merely to declare a closed season will avail little, he fears, without policing by deputy wardens.

Loss of the revenue derived from the sale of big game licenses will leave the department without funds for a force of wardens, but the funds may be made available if the legislature will divert the $15,000 a year which was appropriated for the construction and maintenance of a fish hatchery.

The $15,000 is derived from the tax on retail sales of gasoline. In order to make the close season effective, it will be necessary to prohibit the killing of turkey and grouse, as well as deer. Otherwise, a hunter might go into the mountains for turkey or grouse, and somehow get a deer. With a closed season on turkey and grouse, a hunter will be open to suspicion if he is found in the mountains.

Pimentos are raised in South America and Mexico, but it is said the best come from Jamaica.

TEJANO ROAD IS NOW OPENED TO PICNIC GROUNDS

Opens Up Splendid Camping Ground and Beautiful Scenic Drive for Albuquerqueans

Official announcement was made yesterday from the office of the District Forester that the Teano Road project is now completed. C. H. Klesan, engineer in charge of the project has either turned over or stored all of the equipment used on the road. Yesterday he certified it as open to travel over the entire distance and the official announcement of its being opened followed.

The general public took it for granted early in the construction of the road that had been completed. Finding that it did not meet with expectations many continued to take for granted what was not fact and thought it unfit for travel. It was scarcely fit for travel, according to the engineer, over some of the distance. But now the entire road is in splendid condition.

The Teano canyon road runs approximately eight miles along the mountain side, from the village of San Antonio. The road has no grade exceeding eight per cent and it opens up to Albuquerque one of the most attractive camping and picnic grounds possible and that within 31 miles.

The road, which has cost approximately $28,000 all furnished by the United States Forest Service, means much to Albuquerque. There has been no suitable camping or picnic ground in the vicinity before. The only grounds were along the river, where the dense swarms of mosquitoes and the consequent irritation eliminates most of the pleasure.

The end of the road as now completed is within five miles of the Ellis ranch. There is little doubt that the people of Albuquerque will make a determined effort to have this "missing link" completed. With the other four miles of road completed it will furnish a beautiful "loop drive" about Albuquerque by way of Placitas and Bernalillo.

In time this Teano project should develop into a road similar to the Rocky Mountain Park road at Denver. The natural scenic attractions of the Manzano National forest are far superior to the Rocky Mountain park. Its proximity to this growing city will permit Albuquerqueans of moderate means to escape the summer heat without having to leave the round trip can easily be made in one day, with ample time for lunch.

The view from the upper reaches of this road is easily worth the trip. The Gallinas mountains, 60 miles south, can easily be seen, while on a clear day Sierra Blanca, in the Mesquero Indian reservation, can be seen. The road may be reached by going west from Albuquerque through the Tijeras canyon, to the village of Tijeras, and from there going north to San Antonio. The road begins at that point and leads west into the mountains. There are numerous trails leading out from the road to the crest and it is only a mile from the road to the crest.

An immense cave has been discovered within a quarter mile of the road. It is at the forks of the Pina Canyon and Ellis Ranch trails. The cave has been explored to a depth of 300 feet. It is known to run deeper and is believed to extend a considerable distance into the mountain. It possesses the unique feature of being entirely dry and is the haunt of both bear and wildcat. Water has been developed at this point.

POULTRY EXPERT IS READY TO GIVE AID TO GROWERS HERE

Prof. H. B. Bardsley, poultry expert at the state agricultural college, will be here to attend the Bernalillo county show during three days of this week, will be at the disposal of the poultry raisers. Application made to County Agent Lee J. Reynolds will secure the services of Professor Bardsley for culling and visiting flocks and for information. Mr. Reynolds asks all persons interested to get their applications in during Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday.

SPANISH DISHES TO FEATURE THE STATE EXHIBIT

Albuquerque Girls Who Represent New Mexico at Denver Will Serve Enchiladas and Tortillas

Distinctively New Mexican will be the booth in which Misses Anita Springer and Pauline Maestas of Albuquerque, the champion home economics demonstrators of the state, will preside at the International Livestock show in Denver in January. The booth will be decorated in red chile hung in strings and in other articles suggestive of New Mexico. The girls will wear Spanish costumes and will serve enchiladas and tortillas, which they make after the old-fashioned recipes that made those dishes famous.

The girls are being drilled by Mrs. Maude Doty, county home economics demonstrator, and this week they will have additional instructions from Miss Alexander, state home economics demonstrator.

Demonstration teams from all the southwestern states will attend the Denver show. The Albuquerque girls won their right to represent New Mexico when they took first honors with their hot lunch demonstration at the contest of state boys' and girls' clubs at Las Cruces several weeks ago. In addition to the Spanish dishes the girls will present a model hot lunch.

Y. M. C. A. WILL OPEN CLINIC FOR PHYSICAL EXAMINATION OF BOYS

"Chief" Williams, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., announced yesterday that a boys' clinic will be opened immediately. The clinic is to be opened to conduct a physical examination of boys between the ages of 12 and 18.

Several doctors have volunteered their services to assist in the examinations. The examinations will start with boys who are members of the Y. M. C. A. If sufficient interest is displayed by boys who are not members and by their parents, the Y. M. C. A. will extend an invitation to all boys of the city between 12 and 18 years old.

The purpose of the clinic and examinations is to detect and point out methods for overcoming defects which are easy to overcome in youth but which become impossible to remedy after maturation. Directors of the clinic say that because a boy appears well is no sign that he is, as was shown in the late war, when thousands of men, considering their condition perfect, were turned down by the army physicians as being physically unfit.

It will not be the object of the clinic to correct physical defects. Its aim will rather be to discover irregularities which may impair the boys' health and development. Its purpose is considered complete when the report of the examination is sent to the boy's parents.

There will be no fee connected with the clinic, either in the examinations of Y. M. C. A. boys or in the event it is extended to include all boys in Albuquerque. Nor will the boys nor the parents be obligated in any way. The clinic is to be at the service of any boy, regardless of nationality.

COMING TO CRYSTAL WEDNESDAY NIGHT

"Take It From Me" with the same cast and chorus and production as a furor of approbation at the Forty-fourth Street Theater, New York and the Studebaker theater, Chicago, will appear here at the Crystal opera house Wednesday, December 5.

So often has it occurred that numbers of the same production have found their way into our midst that this is a most welcome bit of theatrical news.

We are promised catchy music, good fast comedy, pretty girls, and stunning clothes, all of which are contributory reasons why "Take It From Me" is breaking all house records hereabouts.

The book and lyrics are by Will B. Johnston, the famous cartoonist of the New York World, while the hitting melodies are by Will R. Anderson. Joseph M. Galtes, who gave us in the past the well remembered "Three Twins," is presenting his even greater success, "Take It From Me."—Adv.

LEST SANTA CLAUS MAY MISS SOME HOMES, ALBUQUERQUE CHILDREN TO MEET HIM AT ELKS' CHRISTMAS TREE

Santa Claus, strange as it may seem, sometimes misses a few homes in Albuquerque.

And still stranger, those homes often are the ones where his visit would be most welcome, and where he has been most ardently awaited by some little child. The homes Santa usually misses are those where father is out of work, or where mother is so sick that all the money father can make must go for doctor's bills and medicines. And where there is no father and no mother, somehow he rarely ever finds the children.

The Albuquerque Elks have found a way to avoid such tragedies of child life.

They have arranged to have all the children gather in front of their club at Fifth and Gold at 2:30 o'clock Christmas afternoon. And they have arranged to have Santa there at the same time. With all the children right there before him, there'll be no chance for Santa to miss a single one of them.

The pack that Santa will carry will overflow into huge trucks.

12TH ANNUAL SALE OF RED CROSS SEALS TO START ON SATURDAY

The twelfth annual sale of Red Cross seals in New Mexico will start here next Saturday. Although the Albuquerque chairman has not been chosen, the sale will be conducted largely by members of various women's clubs. Booths will probably be established in downtown stores, and schools will assist in the sales.

About 60 per cent of the proceeds from the sale will be used throughout the state for the prevention of tuberculosis among children. The remainder of the money, aside from the actual cost of the sale of seals will go toward putting the modern health crusade into all the New Mexico schools. The state Association of Child Welfare, the state bureau of public health, and the state bureau of child welfare, with the New Mexico Tuberculosis association, will all co-operate in working out the children's health program.

Boy Scouts of Troop 3 have volunteered to distribute the seal literature.

MAN BURNED IN MINE EXPLOSION AT MADRID DIES IN ALBUQUERQUE

Juan Perez, aged 54, who received burns in the explosion in a mine at Madrid, N. M., a week ago Saturday afternoon and who was brought to a local hospital for treatment, died yesterday. The body will be shipped to Madrid this morning on train No. 10, by Garcia and Sons, for burial.

The explosion has taken a toll of nine lives to date. Seven men were killed outright and two have died in Albuquerque where they were brought for treatment.

The National Library of Paris contains over 1,000,000 books and 150,000 manuscripts.

ALBUQUERQUEANS TALKED OF FOR TWO JUDGESHIPS

Botts Mentioned for Supreme Court if Davis Declines; Hervey for the New Federal Bench Job

There has been some speculation as to who will be offered the judgeship of the New Mexico supreme court caused by the resignation of Chief Justice Herbert Reynolds, in case Stephen B. Davis, Jr., of Las Vegas declines the appointment. Mr. Davis, who was a member of the supreme court for nearly a year after he resigned last August to seek the republican nomination for United States senator, has not made known whether he will accept the appointment.

It is reported here that C. M. Botts, attorney of this city may be offered the appointment if Mr. Davis refuses it. Harry S. Bowman of Santa Fe, attorney general, whose term expires on January 1, also has been mentioned. The name of Judge R. P. Barnes of this city, at present a member of the court by appointment, is heard mentioned in connection with a new appointment. Judge Barnes was defeated by Judge Samuel Bratton of Clovis in the recent election.

Appointment to the newly created United States judgeship for New Mexico is the subject of considerable comment. It is believed the appointment will be made before the end of this month. Most prominently mentioned are Judge David J. Leahy of Las Vegas and Gov. M. C. Mechem. Both have considerable support among the bar of the state. The name of S. B. Davis, Jr., of Las Vegas has been mentioned, as well as that of J. M. Hervey, former attorney general of New Mexico and at present a resident of Albuquerque and a member of the legal firm of Reid, Hervey & Iden. R. C. Reid of Roswell, who was legal advisor to Governor Lindsey and had charge of the administration of the selective service law during the war, also is talked of.

The new judgeship carries with it a life tenure and an annual salary of $7,500.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. LUCKETT TO BE HELD MONDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Lucile Luckett will be held at French's parlors at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. The Rev. T. E. Harvey officiating. The body will lie in state from 1 to 5 o'clock this afternoon. The pallbearers will be W. H. Black, Dan Lighton, K. Embrey, Albert Bradley, Vern Blake and Howard Gilbert. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

METROPOLITAN PLAYERS IN SUCCESSFUL OPENING AT CRYSTAL SHOWHOUSE

After having been thwarted for four days by Jupiter and Boros, assisted by the lesser "gods of storm" in "a combination in restraint of amusement," the Metropolitan players opened last night at the Crystal theater, in a successful production of "Three Wise Fools."

In spite of previous disappointments, occasioned by weather which delayed transports of props and costumes, there was a large audience present. And the antics of the young man who was trying to tell the truth for 24 hours, while engaged in business, together with the numerous humorous incidents which arose in connection with the truth telling, kept the audience in an uproar most of the time.

Billy Tripp, formerly juvenile with the Alcazar stock company in San Francisco, portrayed the young man who had wagered $10,000 that he could tell the truth for 24 hours. Mr. Tripp received numerous encores, while others of the supporting cast were also called back several times.

Owing to the fact that their engagement has been abbreviated, the Metropolitan players have selected their three best plays for the three nights they are to show. The company closes tomorrow night.

Tonight the offering will be "The Brat." This comedy is built around a young man who is both an artist and author. He goes to the police station to find a type for his story, and there encounters "The Brat." The story is filled with pathos and humor. It was long a Broadway success before going on the road last season. As a road show it has enjoyed the same success wherever played as it had in New York.

KILL TWO DEER

Clovis, N. M., Dec. 2.—A. E. Curran and W. H. Mersfelder have made about the best hunting record of anyone who have heard of this year. They left in early morning for the hills west of Tucuman and returned late that night with two fine bucks. Deer hunters have been exceptionally successful this year but this is a record for quick work at hunting.

Twelve Months of the Most Careful Buying Made Our Extensive Christmas Stock Possible.

DIRECTLY after the first of this year we began the pleasant task of gathering together the merchandise that comprises our extensive Christmas stock. The work continued until just a few days ago, and as a result new Christmas things are still arriving. A Christmas stock can be purchased in a few weeks of concentrated buying, so why this vast preparation? Here is the reason:

Our store has long been regarded as New Mexico's leading gift store. Each year we have striven to make it more worthy of the name. Meeting previous standards we have set does not satisfy us. We must outstrip our own records of service each season.

This year we are better prepared and better equipped to satisfy the gift seeker than ever before—THINK, THEN, HOW MUCH BETTER EQUIPPED WE ARE THAN ANY OTHER STORE IN THE STATE.

Our store has been re-arranged to a certain extent in the interest of better service in certain departments where demands are unusually heavy. Our regular staff of helpers has been supplemented in order to avoid congestion; in a word, every inch of our acre of sales-space is ready for the most satisfying service the state has ever seen.

It is impossible to go into detail regarding our Christmas displays. It is sufficient to say that the domestic and foreign markets have been carefully searched in your interest. A visit to the store with your gift list should minimize the effort you are usually called upon to put forth at this season.

THE SCHOOL OF LIFE

Dr. Theodore Soares, of the University of Chicago, in a recent address in which he declared that present day teaching in schools was "a cold storage theory of education," said:

"It is my opinion that to force any child to learn anything that he does not like, is engaging in an immoral process."

Undoubtedly Dr. Soares will find many who agree with him—among the children. "Why," he asks, "teach algebra?" Why build bridges, or railroads, or do any of the many things that have so commonplace a relation to our daily life? Dr. Soares may be right. Perhaps school children would prefer to be taught tennis, golf and bridge. The more we think about it, the more we are inclined to think that by teaching children what they like we should not only do away with some of the existing "immoral processes," but it might also result in the establishment of a new social order that would wipe out the existing evils between capital and labor, by doing away with capital. A generation of proficient athletes could be developed and daily competition for prizes might take the place of the present sordid grind for what is termed a living. The medium of exchange would be prizes instead of money and men would strive to accumulate medals of honor, instead of, as they do now, amassing worldly wealth.

Having provided school children with occupations which they like, what about the grown-up children who cannot but choose to learn what they do not like? The problem is an endless one. Children grow. The trouble with man has always been that he does not like what he learns and too often and too late wishes that he had learned what he did not like.

The fact is—and it is one that Dr. Soares and his pedagogical confreres will do well to recognize—that we are not taught anything; that we learn by a painful, if sometimes immoral, process of infiltration the real lessons of life, which cannot be calculated in terms of algebra nor understood in the terms of ancient history.

THE PENDULUM SWINGS

Five years ago Europe—and the world—mediated in anguished accents the need of a defensive front against the advance of bolshevism. Today, communism, through its third internationale, searches frantically for means to combat the tide of fascism. That is as it should be and as, in time, it was bound to be. "The Pendulum of history," said a great philosopher, "swings first to one extreme and then to the other."

So long as communism is only the goal of a fraction of the world's population, it is inevitable that it should flow back to its mean limits. So long as fascism is only the goal of a part of the population that, too, in time, must flow back to its boundaries. Fascism came into existence as a result of communism; the disease gave birth to the remedy.

Fascism is not far removed from normalcy; it is the existing order reduced to the terms of the small merchant and wage earner who does not believe in millennium, but clings pathetically to the practical need of three meals a day. Bolshevism in Italy brought starvation and chaos; fascism drove out communism, which has gone into hiding, and reasserts popular authority. There is only one weapon bolshevism can use to repel advances against it and recapture its superficial influence,—that is to abandon communism. The majority, where it is not held in subjection as it is in Russia, inevitably asserts its desires. Communism, on the fact of the facts, is not one of them. They have come to recognize the importance of the strong, natural wish of ambitious men and families to own property.

The tremendous lesson they have learned is that communism destroys initiative, ambition and incentive. It destroys manhood and womanhood. It destroys itself. Such a system could not possibly survive.

The Diary of Samuel Pepless
Nov. 26... Being unable to attend Sabbath day exercises, lay abed and read the Sunday paper. Reviewed football scores and made out two checkbooks, charging same to bad judgment... Ate too abundantly of dinner and spent balance of day in greater state of stupidity than usual... Received by special post ham from Kentucky.

Nov. 27... A dearth of mail when I expected much, vexed me... At five came the lady who types my letters on a writing machine, and the week's correspondence was dispatched on schedule as is my custom and habit of doing things, a trait which many in Albuquerque might adopt with advantage to themselves... Received by special post coarmental from Kentucky.

Nov. 28... A bath fatigued me. Felt I must have company in my misery so wrote the verse "Forehanded" which will probably make many others tired, too... Came Mr. John Finn who attempted to reconcile my cheque book figures with those of the bank. After much computation found the bank was correct... Received by special post sorghum molasses from Kentucky.

Nov. 29... Came the barber for the purpose of shingling my hair. Was undecided whether I would have it done after the fashion of John Barrymore or otherwise, but found I had no choice in the matter, the barber doing it as he pleased, as usual... Was told by the barber that a sand storm in University Heights was blowing paper all over the lowlands... Received by special post hominy from Kentucky.

Nov. 30... Thanksgiving, and realizing I had much to give thanks for, did so, and with right much fervency, too... Ate abundantly of a beautiful turkey dinner and was thankful for that... Had several callers and was thankful that they stayed not so long as to tire me... Viewed part of the Albuquerque-El Paso game at football from my sleeping porch, but was unable to see much because of the crowd and petrol buggies stationed between me and the contestants... Received by special post hickory nuts from Kentucky.

Dec. 1... Received by post a number of envelopes whose contents interested me little. Received by special post package from Kentucky which was meant to arrive yesterday. ETOAIN... SHIRDLU... : : HIC! HIC!

EASTERNE SAYS
BUREAU INDIAN
BILL IS UNJUST

Takes From Them the Land That They Have Rescued From the Desert, According to Harvard Man

Herbert J. Spinden, Peabody

museum, Harvard University, writing in the New York Times, declares that "the Bureau Indian land bill, which slipped through the senate, should not be allowed to pass the house for reasons, first, of common justice to wards of the nation; second, of material advantages to New Mexico and the entire southwest." His article follows:

"One of our most precious possessions—we should keep it tenderly and proudly." In these words Theodore Roosevelt characterized the arts of life and beauty created by the painted desert of the Southwest by the Pueblo Indians and our duty toward them. It was at Walpi. We had seen the Antelope race and had watched old Nanpeye paint mag on pots and at that moment we were filled with the immemorial drama of the snake dance. These ceremonial prayers for rain—to a desert people water means life—had struck a chilling note of unescapeable tragedy in the heart of the most frivolous observer. And now, after centuries of struggle and survival, the end of this beautiful and stimulating Indian life is in sight, at least in the State of New Mexico, for white men who vote want the pitiful trickles of water and the slender strips of irrigated greenness which the Indians cultivated.

The Bureau Indian land bill (senate bill 3455), which slipped through the senate, should not be allowed to pass the house for reasons, first, of common justice to wards of the nation; second, of material advantages to New Mexico and the entire southwest. The "reasons of material advantage, which I wish to stress, are vastly more important than the small parcels of Indian lands involved."

So many portions of this bill are iniquitous that amendments are impossible, but critical attention should be focused upon section 8, which plans to give a clean title to recent trespassers upon Indian lands, and in many instances trespassers upon the scanty water supply and small acreage under irrigation, not upon the open range. Outwardly, this section gives clean title to persons and corporations occupying Indian lands who present claims running back ten years before June 20, 1910, on secondary evidence. But these claims are to be accepted at their maximum of recent encroachment according to survey made in 1914-1916 in a planned defense of Indian rights. Such claimants, "with or without color of title, . . . shall be entitled to a decree in their favor for the whole of the land so claimed, and the district court shall in its decree segregate the said land from the said Pueblo grant. . . ."

It is true that an arrangement is suggested to give the lands to the Indians from other parts of the public domain or to compensation in cash. But it is well known that there are no open public lands containing water, and it is also well known that the Bureau of Indian Affairs, who present claims, are the Indians and disburbed through the Indian office would be no adequate return for the loss of a means of livelihood through agriculture. It is notorious that practically no water is now allowed to reach the Indian fields in several villages near Santa Fe, being drawn from the upper courses of the streams in spite of prior rights of the Indian villages. Starvation and misery are turning down the population, but the diminution of usable lands has more than kept pace with the decrease in population. The San Juan Pueblo grant, for instance, is 17,000 acres, but only 1,400 acres of this land amount 3,142 acres are in the hands of adverse claimants and only 588 acres left to support 430 Indians.

There are a few cases in which the adverse claimants have something to be said for them and such cases should be decided on their merits. Perhaps the same line could be made of the case of the Indians. But most of the claims are sheer steal, based upon no higher ethics than might makes right.

Water is the most valuable commodity in the world today. A pale reflection of it on moving picture screens makes a vast business. The tale of real emotions to be felt draws eager travelers to undertake long voyages. Such a fine culture as that of the Pueblo Indians, without doubt the most complete expression of a stimulating group psychology in arts and ceremonies to be found anywhere in America, should be conserved with tender care. It is an irreplaceable thing. The best crop of the southwest is scenery, and the slogan "Our National Playground" depends for much of its effect upon Indian contentment. The Pueblo villages are famous; musicians go to study the songs, painters to portray the life—and the petty produce of the small fields turned into the pockets of men who vote will not enrich the state or the nation.

Yet the Bureau Indian land bill, which is totally iniquitous, passed the senate. May public opinion stop the hand of the lower branch of congress.

Easter, Advent refers not alone to the first coming of Christ, but as well to his final coming to judge the world.
No certainty exists as to just when the season of Advent began to be observed. The first authoritative reference to it is in the Synod of Lerida in the year 524. Since the sixth century it has been recognized as the beginning of the Christian year. Among some western Christians it has been kept as a season of penitence during which dancing and festivities were forbidden, fasting enjoined and purple vestments worn in the church services. This strict rule is now somewhat relaxed. In the eastern churches Advent lasts from St. Martin's Day, November 11, and in the other churches from the Sunday nearest St. Andrew's Day, November 30, till Christmas.

France will teach farming by movies

Paris, Dec. 2.—A project to secure better instruction in farming for the peasants of France by the use of motion pictures has been approved by the cabinet.

An annual appropriation of 500,000 francs is available to buy picture machines for agricultural schools and community centers where the farmers will see the application of scientific methods to their work.

The money will be taken from the receipts of the paraffin tax. The machines operated under government contract at these prices.

HINTS FOR THE PREVENTION OF
FIRE OFFERED

Proper Precaution Will Either Eliminate Cause of Fires or Permit Control at Early Stage

By THE FIREMAN

It is now a well established fact that the majority of big fires occur during the night hours. This is due to the fact that during these hours they often gain considerable headway before being detected. During the day people are about and, excepting in cases of explosions, fires are usually detected before they have gone far. At the same time there is some one at hand to combat the flames as soon as they are detected.

Since serious fires do occur with the greatest frequency at night it is incumbent upon the business man, particularly to safeguard his property through the exercise of the approved precautions. He should never permit his place of business to be closed for the night without either making a round of inspection or having such inspection made by a trustworthy employee. Such inspection should take place the whole premises. It will require but a few minutes and is quite likely to prove time well spent.

If there is a basement, that should be inspected thoroughly and, preferably, last. The inspector should be careful to see that no inflammable rubbish has been left there, that there is a furnace, if there should be taken that nothing inflammable, such as kindling, boxes, etc., is left either close to the sides of the furnace or to the pipes. And such care should be exercised especially when the fire is banked. It is impossible to guess when a back draught may force down the flue and scatter hot ashes in front of the furnace. Sometimes such back draught will force the furnace doors open.

Care should be taken to deposit all ashes in a safe place. Often ashes thought to be extinguished still contain great heat below the surface and cause fires when placed in a container which is not fireproof or close to something which is inflammable.

Basement doors or traps should be closed. If there is an elevator it should be stopped at the first floor, where it will shut off most of the draught obtained in an open elevator shaft. Open shafts are also dangerous for firemen working in the building.

Persons in buildings of all sorts should take care that trash does not accumulate in out-of-the-way places. A regular inspection should be made of places where trash may accumulate, under stairs, tables, benches and in closets or places where careless persons may smoke and throw away their cigar or cigarette stubs, or drop the ashes from their pipes.

Swampings and trash gathered up after the accumulation of the day should never be left in a building overnight, unless it is in a metal container with a tight fitting lid. If it is left in a building, it should be heated with stoves the fire should be either extinguished at night or arranged so that at closing time it has almost burned out.

Every door and exit should be kept clear, as doors often cause considerable headway after the firemen arrive because of the delay in forcing an entrance through a door which is obstructed. Blocked stairways often have the same effect. If windows are kept clear it permits of passersby detecting fires much earlier than they can be discovered when the windows are blocked. Outside of doors and windows should be kept clear, so that a fire may start in trash outside the building and work through the door or windows.

Particular care should be taken in regard to electric connections. Be careful of the wiring in the building. A drop cord may be swung against something during the day and the insulation ripped off. A puff of wind at night may swing the naked wires against a box or other woodwork and cause a conflagration.

If people will start this inspection at once and continue for a short time they will soon fall into the habit. And as with all other details of business, they will shortly systematize it to suit the conditions of their particular building so that it will require a very short time to complete it. Such inspection may be the means of saving thousands of dollars.

ONLY 60 PER CENT OF GRADUATES HAVE WED

Colorado Springs, Colo., Dec. 2.—Only 60 per cent of the graduates of Colorado college, a co-ed institution situated here, have married, according to a questionnaire sent out some months ago by college officials. The replies to which have just been received.

Thirty hundred and twenty-five men and women have received degrees from the institution, statistics show. It is also pointed out that more Colorado college graduates live in Colorado than in any other state. Out of 500 alumni, 200 have never married, one hundred and fifty-five have married college graduates.

Out of 1,325 graduates, 112 have married each other and 57 have married former students.

BAPTISTS WILL ERECT BUILDING FOR ORPHANAGE

Present Structure at Portales Too Small to Accommodate Children; More Aid for College

The mission board of the Baptist state convention, at a meeting held recently, decided to purchase a new site and to erect permanent buildings for the Baptist orphanage at Portales. Negotiations for the purchase of the site are practically completed. Erection of the buildings will not be begun at once, though it is planned to build as soon as possible because the population of the orphanage has become too large for the present accommodations.

Plans for further financing the Montezuma Baptist college at Las Vegas also were approved. Appropriations were made for the supplementing of the salaries of mission workers. The work among the colored people of the state will be continued and work among the Spanish-Americans in the mission fields will be increased.

Rev. L. V. Sage of Farmington, who is well known in Albuquerque where he supplied the pulpit of the First Baptist church a year ago during the absence of Rev. T. F. Harvey, was elected state secretary by the B. Y. P. U. and will come here to take up his work at state convention headquarters in a short time. Miss Aretta Beswick of Liberty, Mo., who has been named to succeed Miss Lillian May as field secretary for the Women's Missionary union, will arrive on December 5. Miss May will become a missionary.

Rev. C. W. Stumph yesterday began his duties as secretary for the New Mexico Baptist convention, with headquarters here. Mr. Stumph also will act as editor for the Baptist New Mexican. He and his family will be located soon at 615 West Silver avenue, having come here from their former home in Clovis.

Rev. J. W. Bruner, who has been secretary here for the past five years, has gone with his family to Chickasha, Okla., where he will be pastor of a large Baptist church.

MANY HEAD OF STOCK GRAZED ON GOVT. LAND

Manzano National Forest Provides Pasture for 66,249 Cattle, Horses, Swine, Goats and Sheep

There are 66,249 head of live stock being grazed on the pasture of the Manzano national forest. This is the figure given in the official report submitted to the district forester yesterday. The Manzano forest pasture is probably the richest in this section. The stock pastured there consist principally of cattle, sheep and goats, with a few horses and swine.

The report shows that 10,112 cattle and horses are grazing under permits granted to 161 permittees. This is an average of 151 head to each permittee. Aside from those grazing under permits there are 2,312 cattle and horses and 15 swine given grazing free of charge. This stock belongs to 437 settlers and farmers. The forest service, with the purpose of helping the small stock holder, the farmer and settler, permits them to graze free of charge, not more than ten head of stock. This stock must be in actual use for domestic purposes.

In addition to the cattle and horses grazing under permits there were grazed under permit 51,457 sheep and goats by a total of 53 permittees, according to the official report. This is an average of 571 head for each permittee. Under the free provision of the forest service there are 852 milk goats grazed by 25 ranchers. The discrepancy in the limit figure is due to the fact that in this case 50 head of goats, with a pony or two, are considered equivalent, in grazing to 10 head of cattle or horses.

On the Fort Wingate division of the Manzano national forest there are 1,500 head of sheep and goats owned by Indians without charge. This free grazing is operated under a co-operative arrangement between the forest and Indian services. The 1,500 sheep and goats are owned by 25 Indians, an average of 60 head to each Indian stockman.

AUTHORITIES ARE ON TRAIL OF SLAYER OF A NEW JERSEY GIRL

Hackensack, N. J., Dec. 2.—The authorities on the trail of the murderer of Christine Harvish of Wallington, N. J., whose mutilated body was found yesterday in a field there, Prosecutor Hart declared today, in denying reports that a formal arrest had been made. He said that the foreman of the mill in which the murdered girl had been employed was questioned.

The police also investigated the tale of an aged couple who said they saw two men beat a young woman on a lonely road near Carlisle, Pa., last night.

The couple said they saw the man beat and knock down a girl, who arose and ran after them up the road to Wallington. The police declared the story provided a time discrepancy, since the alleged assault was declared to have taken place about 9 o'clock, while the girl was said not to have left the home of a relative here until at about half past ten o'clock.

MAY BE WAR IN 2 YEARS; BORAH SAYS IN SPEECH

Idaho Senator Favors Recognition of Russia as a Means of Averting Another European Conflict

Boston, Dec. 2.—Within two years, owing to the Near East situation, there may be another great war, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho said in an address here tonight.

His subject was "The Recognition of Russia," and he advocated that step by the United States as a means of averting another European conflict.

At the close of the senator's address the police guard at the hall was called on to prevent a riot when a questioner, who said his name was MacDonald, and that he was a world war veteran, mounted the stage. Amid shouts of "Put him out," Senator Borah insisted that the questioner be heard.

"Why is there no American flag displayed here?" MacDonald asked. "There is here," MacDonald answered.

Turmoil broke out afresh and many rushed for the stage to elect the stranger. Police intervened to protect him and the incident closed.

Senator Borah said, when peace was restored that wherever he appeared to speak there were "American principles if not flags."

Calling for unqualified recognition of the present government of Russia, he told the crowd that the recognition of a government did not necessarily carry approval of that country's institutions.

"Just as we eliminate suspicion and fear of other nations we shall return to conditions of peace," Senator Borah said. Every conference in Europe since the end of the world war has revolved about the Russian question. Within two years the Near East situation is likely to bring about another war. It is up to the people of the United States whose boys would be called on to fight in this war, to protest against the present policies at Washington in failing to try to avert such a catastrophe.

Two resolutions were adopted almost unanimously by the audience. One proposed by Professor Charles Skinner of Tufts college, called upon the president and secretary of state to provide for the restoration of trade relations with Russia. The other, presented by John Cadman of Boston urged congress to recognize the Russian soviet government.

NEW MEXICO CATTLE BEING TURNED ONTO CHIHUAHUA RANGES

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 2.—"Thousands of cattle from the drought-stricken districts of New Mexico are being turned on the ranges in Chihuahua," William R. Morley, rancher and banker of Dallas and Magdalen, N. M., stated Thursday night upon his arrival from Chihuahua where he has spent the past ten days overseeing the unloading and distribution of the stock.

While not pessimistic over the general stock condition in the southwest, Mr. Morley declared that the situation was still critical, but that with fair rains and snow reported during the past week in New Mexico indications were that stock wintered through would be able to get into good condition in the spring for market.

The banks and bankers of the southwest are doing everything in their power to assist the stockmen," he declared, and added that the efforts were not only being made in order to protect loans but to assist the industry as a whole.

Mr. Morley is one of the New Mexico bankers connected with the stock loan agency, which, through the assistance of the war finance corporation, conceived and is executing the plan to ship cattle from the drought sections of New Mexico to old Mexico. He stated that the plan, worked out by southwestern bankers and representatives of the war finance corporation in Albuquerque about two months ago for saving thousands of cattle from starvation by shipping to other ranges, is working out well with the co-operation of the railway companies, all of which have granted reduced rates to carry out the program.

KANSAS DEATH RATE FROM TYPHOID FEVER REDUCED 75 PER CENT

Lawrence, Kans., Dec. 2.—The death rate in Kansas from typhoid fever has been reduced 75 per cent, while the rate from tuberculosis is the lowest in the United States, according to the records of the State Water and Sewer Laboratory in Snow Hall at the University of Kansas.

The work of the Water and Sewer Laboratory at the university is said to rank among that of the eight best laboratories in the entire country. The great decrease in percentage of deaths is due in a great degree to the work of the Kansas laboratory in ferreting out the causes and checking them. Cities which have installed their plants under the plan adopted by the K. U. laboratory are Marion, Topeka, Salina, and Manhattan.

Besides the installation of water plants, the department inspects all bottled water used in the state, and it also examines and tests all of the ice sold.

BECKER BURIED HIS WIFE ALIVE, LOOKOUT STATES

New York Authorities Believe They Have Reconstructed Events Leading Up to a Woman's Murder

New York, Dec. 2.—With a signed statement from Reuben Norlin that he acted as a lookout while Abraham Becker knocked his wife unconscious and then buried her when she was still alive in a pit in his automobile park in the Bronx, authorities were confident tonight that they correctly reconstructed events leading up to the murder of Jennie Becker on April 7, last.

Becker is under indictment for the slaying. Albert Cohn, assistant district attorney, on returning from Norlin where the body was found, said tonight "Norlin looks like a principal in this case to me."

Norlin's confession, according to the police, stated that he accompanied Becker when the latter drove with his wife in a taxicab to the parking lot and then served as lookout because of his friendship for Becker.

Norlin's statement, authorities said, explain that on April 7 Becker drove the car into the welding yard, where he pretended engine trouble. Becker got out and then called to his wife to alight and look at the motor.

It was while looking under the hood, the authorities say, that Mrs. Becker was struck with a lead pipe. Then she was dragged 20 feet by the collar and thrown into the pit, it is charged.

While Norlin watched for intruders, Becker, it is alleged, filled in the pit, shoveling quicklime, earth and slabs of rock over the body.

Then standing on the ground, the two men are said to have shaken hands and pledged themselves to maintaining secrecy.

WAR CORRESPONDENT DIES
New York, Dec. 2.—William Raymond Hill, former war correspondent and one of the founders of the Friars club, died last night at Flushing, N. Y., after an illness of two years. He was 53 years old and came to New York 25 years ago from Hartford, his native city.

ALLEGED BANDIT IS WOUNDED BY EX-PATROLMAN

Section Hand Admits He Robbed to Buy Mother's Christmas Present; His Condition Is Critical

Denver, Colo., Dec. 2.—On a alleged bandit was shot, perhaps fatally, and more than $400 in cash stolen by bandits in four holdups staged in four hours in Denver tonight.

Lawrence H. Sharp, a section hand of Asquia, Colo., who told police he robbed to "buy mother Christmas presents," lies at the point of death at the county hospital. He confessed, officers say, to entering an automobile filling station, holding up the manager, Jewell C. Gunn and taking $32 in cash from the cash register.

As Sharp left the filling station William A. Cloud, a former patrolman, stopped near the scene. He opened fire on Sharp with his revolver. Cannon, who had secured a revolver, started in pursuit and fired twice at Sharp, who fell, wounded in the groin.

His condition, physicians declared, is critical.

When police returned to the station after investigating the case, they were sent to another filling station in another section of the city where an "extremely polite" bandit had held up, imprisoned and robbed Fred A. Comstock, taking $385 from the office safe.

A pedestrian was stopped near Denver's sunken gardens about an hour later by three bandits, one of whom carried a gun, and robbed him of $14, he reported to police.

After stopping Fred F. Martin, a special watchman, on his beat, robbed him of his watch, gun, night stick and $4 in cash, and fled in their automobile.

FORMER DENVER
BOY WINNER IN BOXING CONTEST
Oxford, England, Dec. 2.—E. A. Eagan of Yale and New College, Oxford, won the heavyweight championship of universities, hospitals and cadets, in the boxing contest which took place in the town hall tonight. He defeated C. F. Capper, royal military academy, on points in three rounds.

Denver, Dec. 2.—E. A. Eagan, named in a dispatch from Oxford, England, as winner of the heavyweight championship of universities, hospitals and cadets, is a former Denver boy, who obtained his start in athletic activities in a local amateur boxing tournament. Winning the light heavyweight championship in the tournament, he went to Yale, attended the Sheffield School of Science, and winning the amateur heavyweight championship of the United States. He captured Yale's first boxing team, when that sport was made a major athletic sport. During the war he won the light heavyweight championship of the A. E. F. He also participated in the last Olympic games. He was awarded a scholarship to Oxford last year.

COLORADO RIVER PACT ENDORSED BY ARIZONA MAN

Norviel Says Compact Means the Beginning of Greatest Development Enjoyed by Southwest

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 2.—W. S. Norviel, Arizona state water commissioner, and the state's representative on the Colorado river commission, tonight issued a statement endorsing the Colorado river compact signed last week at Santa Fe, N. M.

Mr. Norviel in his statement declared the compact "makes for the beginning of the greatest development and on the largest scale the southwest has ever enjoyed, at once removing long delays on account of litigation which has for years held up similar development on a much smaller scale in some of the states."

Mr. Norviel's statement is the first step in what, it is believed, will develop into a campaign on the part of sponsors of the measure to secure its ratification by the Arizona state legislature at its biennial session next January.

The opposition forces, under the leadership of George H. Maxwell, executive director of the national reclamation association, have already launched an attack to defeat ratification. Mr. Maxwell addressed several meetings in Phoenix this week in the campaign which he declares he will carry to every city and town in the state.

Las Vegas, N. M., Dec. 2.—The Thanksgiving dance given under the auspices of the associated charities and the welfare department of the Women's club was a success. The proceeds will be used exclusively for the charity cases of Greater Las Vegas and the Charities fund was replenished to the amount of $200.

MOTHER LOSES FIRST ROUND OF A LEGAL FIGHT FOR CHILDREN

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 2.—A young mother, said to have been induced by a sister to give up her home—a well-to-do husband and two small children—for the sake of a screen career, today lost the first round of a legal fight for the children, whose father, grief stricken, died here a month ago.

The mother is Mrs. Aloisia L. Puck of Los Angeles, widow of Anthony L. Puck, a local architect. Alleging that her children, Nancy Georgia, 12, and Anthony, 8, were being wrongfully detained by their grandmother, Mrs. Marie Puck of Duluth, the widow obtained a writ of habeas corpus, forcing the grandmother to appear in court and show why she should not return the children to their mother. Following the hearing today Judge H. A. Danler ruled that the children should remain in the custody of their grandmother until the court decided the question.

RATON BOY STRUCK BY A BULLET THAT GOES THROUGH BARN

Raton, N. M., Dec. 2.—While some boys were shooting at a target in the back yard of A. I. Dow on Thursday afternoon a bullet came through the boards and struck Frank Stemmer in the shoulder. The gun carried a .22 short cartridge, and it was not determined if it would shoot through the barn. The bullet was removed by the aid of X-ray.

RED LAKE FIELD GIVEN THOROUGH TESTS FOR OIL

Small Town Growing Up
About Camp in Socorro
County: Two More Wells
to Be Spudded In

A little town with its own water works and electric light and power plant is growing up about the oil drilling camp of the Texas Magdalena Oil company on the Red Lake structure not far from Magdalena, Socorro county. The company has found gas at two depths in its well. The log of the well so far has followed closely the predictions of geologists of the United States government who examined the field some time ago. The company recently has had eminent geologists make a second examination of the field, and has decided to locate two more wells. Rotary drills will be used in the new wells. The well now being sunk is operating under a cable drill. The company has a battery of 5,000 gallon tanks awaiting the bringing in of an oil well. At present these tanks are filled with water. The water system is supplied from a large reservoir formed by building a dam 14 feet high and 1,200 feet long across the lower end of a dry lake. A cloudburst in the mountains late in the summer filled the lake to overflowing. Thirty-two men live at the camp and include geologists, drillers, company officials and laborers. Colonel Charles P. O'Connor, representing the Texas Magdalena company, was here last night on his way to Denver. Colonel O'Connor said that his company is prepared to spend a large amount of money to give the field a thorough test.

Valverde to Resume
The Valverde Development company, which has been drilling on the La Joya grant in Socorro county, has prepared to resume work after a long delay caused by the loss of tools in its well.

A special program of home talent songs and vaudeville will also be given.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

GILBERT—Funeral services for Angelina Gilbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Gilbert, who died Thursday night, will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 802 South Third street, to the Sacred Heart church, where services will be held. Interment will be at San Bernardino cemetery. Garcia and Sons will have charge. The following will act as pall bearers: Miss Elise Chavez, Margaret Apodaca, Nickolas Gutierrez, Francisco Tenorio, Lucy Herman and Faustina Luna.

CHAVEZ—Funeral services for Jose Chavez, three years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Seledon Chavez, of 463 West Santa Fe avenue, were held yesterday afternoon from the family residence to San Jose cemetery. Garcia and Sons were in charge.

CHAVEZ—Natividad Chavez, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rafael Chavez, died yesterday morning at her parents' residence, at Los Padillas, after a short illness. She is survived by her parents and one brother. The funeral was held yesterday morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence. Burial was at Padillas cemetery. Crollott was in charge.

TAFOYA—Permenia S. de Tafuya, 22 years old, died yesterday morning at her residence at Alameda. She is survived by her husband and one child. Funeral arrangements are pending. Crollott is in charge.

BRIONES—Cipriano Briones, 47 years old, died last night at his residence, 1306 South Barlow road. He is survived by his widow and four children. The body was taken to Crollott's funeral parlors.

FIRE IN DUBLIN

STATE SOCIETY OF C. E. NAMES KNUDSEN HEAD

Albuquerque Minister Honored by Convention; $500 Pledged to Expand Work in New Mexico

Reorganization of the New Mexico Christian Endeavor Union was effected yesterday at the convention now in progress at the First Presbyterian church. One hundred forty-five delegates have registered and the enthusiasm for the expansion of the work of the society in the state has reached a high point. The officers elected by the union are:

President, Rev. A. M. Knudsen, Albuquerque; vice president, Ben White Davis, Las Cruces; secretary, Miss Madge Shepherd, Roswell; treasurer, George Bollman, Albuquerque.

Sanita Fe, Las Cruces and Roswell have extended invitations for the next convention, which will be held during the three days following Thanksgiving in 1923. The executive committee will choose the location.

Five hundred dollars was pledged for the work of the union throughout the state next year. This will be expended largely in securing inspirational speakers to visit the various cities and create enthusiasm for the work of the societies.

The convention was spent largely in a school of methods, conducted by C. C. Hamilton, field secretary, of Boston, and W. Roy Bree, southwestern secretary, of Arlington, Tex. The subjects studied were missionary, lookout prayer meeting, officers, social and publicity.

Last night's meeting was featured by an address by U. S. Villars of the American Red Cross. The delegates were taken yesterday afternoon for an auto ride about the city.

This morning the delegates will attend the churches of their choice. This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and this evening at 6:45 o'clock services will be held at the Presbyterian church. The evening service will begin with a model Christian Endeavor meeting and will be followed by 7:45 by a devotional service and addresses by Dr. E. Guy Talbot, C. C. Hamilton and W. Roy Bree.

Theaters Today

"B" Theater—Harry Carey at the "B" starring in "Brute Island"—a stirring, gripping drama of five reels, featuring the South Sea Islands; also presenting another episode of "The Blue Fox" and a reel of "Current Events."

Lyric Theater—Katherine MacDonald, popular film star, is the star in "Heroes and Husbands," presented by B. P. Schulberg, but a picture from the "First National" studio, also showing "The North Star Trail," an Oliver Curwood story.

Pastime Theater—Ethel Clayton one of the best stars to Albuquerque, is here starring in "If I Were King," also a reel of "Fox News" and Harold Lloyd in a comedy.

"BRUTE ISLAND" IS A STIRRING SOUTH SEA

"Brute Island," starring Harry Carey, is the current five-reel picture at the "B" theater, today and tomorrow.

It is a story of adventure without alloy. Its setting is the uncharted South Seas and Islands, where every man is a law unto himself, where fighting has no referee and success is to the strong. Its hero is a man who has had the best that civilization had to offer, and who, finding it bitter, set his back upon it and plunged with his whole soul into the business of forgetting it, with the result that he becomes the terror of the Solomon Islands, the symbol of lawlessness at its worst.

The portrayal of his career makes a picture that is full of tense situations, daring achievement and dramatic climax.

CHARLES CLARY IN CAST
"HEROES AND HUSBANDS";
NOW AT LYRIC THEATER

Charles Clary, a popular screen actor, has an important role in "Heroes and Husbands," a First National attraction starring Katherine MacDonald, which is now playing at the Lyric theater.

Mr. Clary is known for his ability to portray on the screen the modern successful business man, the accomplisher of big things in the commercial world and in "Heroes and Husbands" he has an opportunity to prove his experience at characterization of this sort in the part of a book publisher. In "Heroes and Husbands" Miss MacDonald has the role of a successful author, whose fiction is published by Mr. Clary and it is the mysterious shooting during the private theatrical performance of a play by Miss MacDonald at the publisher's Long Island home, that provides the thrilling moments that give to Charles Logue's story a nicely balanced plot.

ETHEL CLAYTON IN A
AT PASTIME THEATER

Back to the days of chivalry and romance you are carried by Ethel Clayton's big new production, "If I Were King," now holding forth at the Pastime Theater. It has the clash of sword play, of bold warriors and fair ladies and all the charming atmosphere of the quaint little mythical kingdom of the Balkans. It is an adventure, the central figure of which is an American girl. Wesley Ruggles directed the production, which is by all odds the most massive in settings and costumes in which Miss Clayton has ever appeared.

POLICE TUG ORDERED TO PURSUE STEAMER

New York, Dec. 2.—The police tug Manhattan was ordered to pursue the steamship Assyria and take from her, "using force if necessary," two deputy sheriffs who, when the ship sailed, were attempting to remove 4,000 cases of Scotch whiskey from a cargo of 11,500 cases, ordered deported by the federal prohibition department.

BENEFIT PERFORMANCE FOR FEDERATED SHOP CRAFTS.

The striking railroad shopmen of Albuquerque are going to put on an all-star entertainment at the Crystal theater, Wednesday, December 6, when two performances will be given.

There are to be two or more vaudeville acts, a two-reel comedy and one of the most talked of feature films yet shown on the screen, "THAT SOMETHING." The shopmen have not made many direct appeals to the public for assistance, and yet railroad workers are largely responsible for the business success of this country.

The entertainment promises to be well worth the admission charges and should be well patronized.—Adv.

ANTLERED HERD DINES ON DEER MEAT AT CLUB

More Than 200 Members of the Elks Lodge Enjoy a Feast of Venison Furnished
by Tom Linville

There were 200 or more members of the Elks lodge on hand last night to "polish off" the barbequed venison served in the banquet hall of the Elks club at Fifth and Gold. Service of venison started at nine o'clock and two hours later there were still members of the antlered herd—late comers—doing justice to the dark tender flesh of Tom Linville's buck. Tom's deer assayed approximately 200 pounds of meat, according to Charley Degele, chef at the Y. M. C. A. and member of the Elks. According to dietiticians, one pound of meat to the meal is more than enough for one person for a meal. There was just about that for each one last night. But it was none too much for the hungry gathering of the "Best People on Earth." After it was all over there was not a morsel remaining.

Before the venison was served the assembled Elks offered three rousing cheers for the member who was responsible for the feed—Tom Linville. Tom bowed his appreciation of the cheers and then the assault upon the victim of Tom's marksmanship began. The buck was prepared at a local bakery.

WOOL GROWERS WILL HOLD AN EXECUTIVE
MEETING IN CITY

The executive meeting of the New Mexico Wool Growers' association will be held here either shortly before or shortly after December 21, when the sheep sanitary board will hold its regular meeting. The wool growers will make arrangements for the annual convention, which will be held here probably in March.

SALE OF 300 MIRAGES THIS WEEK IS GOAL OF U. N. M. STUDENTS

The most beautiful girl in the University of New Mexico, also the most popular girl, will be announced at the school's annual Beauty ball to be held Friday night at the Masonic temple. The beauty contest, which has narrowed down to six girls, will be continued this week for votes. The girl receiving the most votes for beauty, and one receiving the most votes for popularity, will have a full page picture in the university annual, the Mirage. Twenty-five votes are given for one girl for beauty and one for popularity on the sale of every Mirage. Ten votes will be given with each ticket to the Beauty ball, and one vote for each girl may be bought at the university for ten cents.

The Beauty contest has narrowed down to three girls, all of whom are backed by sororities or girls organizations, as is the case with the three girls, now in the running for the popularity winner. Misses Pearl Byrns, Merle Strickland and Fay Strong are in the beauty race and Misses Helen Stowell, Dorothy Goeltz and Billie Loudon are in the popularity.

Besides the picture in the Mirage and the reign of beauties of the annual Beauty ball, a number of prizes will be given the winners. The prizes include leather vanities, gold dornines, pictures and candy. The White Lightning orchestra will play for the dance. An attempt will be made this week to sell 300 Mirages.

MEXICAN REBEL KILLED
Mexico City, Dec. 2.—Marrion Ferrer, for many months the most prominent rebel in the state of Oaxaca, has been killed in a battle with the federal troops under Francisco Gonzales, near Coxtilan, says a Pueblo dispatch to El Mundo. Numerous of his followers were killed and many surrendered.

Paris, Dec. 2 (by the Associated Press).—Eugene Criqui, the French phantom champion, tonight defeated Billy Matthews, England, in the seventeenth round with a technical knockout. The referee stopped the fight after the Englishman was down four times.

IMPORTANCE OF VEGETABLES IN OUR DAILY DIET

They Tend to Prevent or Correct the Disease Known as Anemia; Tend to Prevent Constipation

By DR. O. C. WEST
County Health Officer

The value of leafy green vegetables in our daily diet has not until recently been fully appreciated even by food experts. We know that they are desirable, but not until the vitamins were identified and certain ones found to be in vegetables, was it known just how essential the latter are. Most people eat vegetables but they do not eat enough of them. While vegetables are not a cheap source of energy for work as cereals they are less expensive as a rule than fruit.

Like fruit, vegetables tend to prevent or correct the disease known as anemia which is due to a lack of red corpuscles in the blood; they also tend to prevent constipation and its attendant ills. All vegetables contain valuable mineral matter needed to keep the blood in proper condition, and to build or renew bones and tissues. Hunger is often times due to the absence of vegetables in the previous meal, especially is this true in the case of children. Potatoes, baked or boiled or mashed, are used practically every day by everybody, but the green vegetables of all kinds should be more commonly used. Some kinds of pot greens such as chard, turnip tops, chard, spinach and lettuce should appear not less than three times a week in our menus, and a daily use of one or more of these is a very profitable investment.

Within recent years, the tomato has come into its own as a protective food. A protective food is one of those without which certain diseases like scurvy or rickets develop. Almost all vegetables except cabbage, cucumbers and corn should be used freely for children after the fifth year. For young children, vegetables should be thoroughly cooked and some times passed through a sieve.

Much valuable food material dissolves in the water in which vegetables are cooked. This decreases their food value, unless the water is used in making gravies or soups. If vegetables are steamed instead of boiled, much of the mineral content is saved.

Peas and beans contain more protein than any other vegetable and so they are used at times in place of meat, eggs, or fish. They must not be used exclusively to replace these, however. A large plate of peas or beans may be used in place of meat for dinner occasionally; eight or nine ounces of green peas or beans being about a quarter of a pound of beef of average composition.

As a class vegetables are notably lacking in fat. Hence the common sense practice of serving them with a fat such as butter or bacon. This not only improves their palatability, but makes up a good nutritive defect.

Some people look on fruit as a luxury, but there are very good reasons why we should eat fruit daily. All fruits contain certain salts of organic acids, which have a more or less stimulating action on the kidneys, and some of them, such as pears, figs, and prunes have a laxative effect. Physicians recommend that all babies of the age of six months should be given small amounts of mild fruit juice or tomato juice daily. This is particularly necessary in the case of infants fed on cow's milk or other prepared milk foods. Unless one of these juices are given, nutritional disturbances are a staple.

Bananas are a simple fresh fruit, high in food value, low in price and easy to procure. They are most digestible when fully ripe, that is when skins have darkened and the fruit is soft but firm. They are usually cheaper this way because the merchant knows they will not keep long afterwards. Next to bananas, apples are the most abundant market fruit. Their many and varied uses are too well known to require comment.

When we chew fibrous food such as raw fruit, it is said that we exert a pressure of from 100 to 150 pounds on the teeth. This insures a good circulation of blood and in turn causes the development of teeth and jaws.

Raw fruit also leaves the teeth freer from adhering matter than do soft foods. Hence it is wise to end a meal with raw fruit, since it not only acts as a cleanser of the teeth, but helps to preserve them by stimulating the secretion of a strongly alkaline saliva, which counteracts the effects of any fermenting particles of food which would otherwise remain.

TAG MANY CARS FOR TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS

Police tagged many automobiles yesterday for violations of the traffic ordinance. Yesterday was the day set for enforcement of the law which prohibits double parking. Many failed to take heed of the warning issued by the police and the result was that the officers, particularly Traffic Police, were kept busy as the proverbial bee, tying tags to cars drivers of which had failed to comply with the ordinance.

There were eleven cars tagged yesterday for violation of the ordinance. In ten of the eleven cases the double parking occurred on Central avenue. The other was on Fourth street. All eleven will be required to appear before Police Judge George Roddy tomorrow morning. Failure to answer the tag summons will mean that a warrant will be issued and a probable heavier fine.

Tomorrow morning the police propose to begin enforcement of the ordinance which prohibits parking for more than one hour within the restricted zone. For the purpose of enforcing this ordinance the traffic officers will chalk cars parked within the zone. Parking of more than an hour will mean tagging and consequent appearance in police court.

18 MINERS INJURED BY A GAS EXPLOSION

Girard, Ill., Dec. 2.—Eighteen coal miners were injured and the lives of about 200 others were imperiled by a gas explosion in the mine of the Illinois Coal and Coke company here this afternoon. The cause of the explosion had not been determined tonight.

Heroic work on the part of their fellow miners saved those in the shaft from death.

UNION MEN SAY THEY WERE TOLD JOB WAS "FAIR"

Misrepresentation Not Intentional But Affects Contracts Is Argument in Hotel Stock Suits

After hearing the evidence and argument upon which was submitted more than a dozen cases in which suits have been filed against union members for the collection of subscriptions to the hotel building fund, Justice W. W. McCallahan yesterday afternoon announced that he would reserve his decision until Monday morning. The court heard the suit against W. J. Shamphair, including evidence and argument, and by agreement it was decided to submit the other cases for hearing yesterday on the same evidence.

The union men offered witnesses to prove that they had been induced by Sidney M. Weil, M. J. Kestelle and others who solicited stock subscriptions, that the hotel could be built by union labor. The hotel company offered no evidence. Its attorney, W. A. Kelscher, made an argument on the points of law involved. He held that the contracts are legal and binding and contain no clause or notation relating to the manner in which the hotel was to be built, or by whom.

T. J. Mabry, attorney for the defendants, argued that the men were the victims of unintentional misrepresentation on the part of the promoters of the hotel project which nullified the notes. He said he believed that the promoters were sincere in their statements that the job would be done by union labor, but that something had occurred later to alter the situation. His clients, however, should not be forced to pay their subscriptions, because of this misrepresentation, no matter how unintentional it may have been, Mr. Mabry said.

The cases submitted are for from $100 to $200 in each instance. The defendants are W. D. Patterson, W. S. Klock, Charles LeFebvre, W. A. Belts, W. E. Powers, Carl W. Remmer, J. F. Stubbs, Earl Stevens, W. J. Baker, George J. Dingle, Ralph Dunbar, T. D. Cockran.

A large number of labor union members who signed for subscriptions will resist payment, Mr. Mabry said. The total will amount to perhaps $10,000. It was stated by both attorneys that no matter what the outcome of the trial yesterday, an appeal would be taken to the district court.

$250,000 FIRE LOSS
Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Eight firemen were overcome by gas and ammonia fumes while fighting a fire which damaged the Vendome hotel building to the extent of $250,000 tonight.

COPELAND TO ALIGN HIMSELF WITH WETS
New York, Dec. 2.—Dr. Royal S. Copeland, United States Senator-elect, announced today at a luncheon of the New York Press club he would align himself with the wets in congress. He said he would support the stand of Governor Edwards of New Jersey, also senator-elect, on the prohibition question.

"Governor Edwards has a most popular work to perform in the senate," Dr. Copeland said. "I am going to help Edwards in that. If he succeeds, there is no question about who will be the next president of the United States."

MISSION FOR MEN TO BEGIN TONIGHT AT CATHOLIC CHURCH

Large numbers of women and girls have been attending the mission at the Church of the Immaculate Conception during the past week by Rev. William Tierney and Joseph Conroy, Jesuits from Chicago. The women's mission will close this afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the papal benediction will be given.

This evening at the 7:30 o'clock services the mission for men will be begun and will continue during the week. At 6 o'clock and 9 o'clock each morning mass will be celebrated and a sermon will be preached. In the evening the principal sermon of the day will be preached. The morning services are open to both men and women.

The two missionary priests have been preaching a series of excellent sermons. On Thanksgiving morning over 1,000 persons attended the services at which prayers were offered for the welfare of the nation.

S. M. Long, cashier of the Socorro State bank, was here last night to meet Mrs. Long, who was on her way home from a visit in the east.

Mrs. Anna Wilcox Strumquist and Mrs. D. A. Porterfield of this city are in Raton attending the annual convention of the W. C. T. U.

George Calkins of Barton returned yesterday from Kansas City, where he had gone with a shipment of cattle. He is stopping over in Albuquerque on his return trip.

Frank A. Hubbell, Jr., returned Friday from Colorado, where he had gone to hunt a herd of milk cows. He brought back fifteen head of Holsteins.

Ben Harvey and Homer Jones of Thoreau and J. Moore of Crown Point were in the city yesterday on their way home after a hunting trip in the Black Range mountains. They brought back three bucks and two wild turkeys. Mr. Jones will stop over in Albuquerque for a few days to visit his mother, Mrs. Frank McVey, whose home is at 512 North Eleventh street.

The Y. M. C. A. will tomorrow begin a series of important committee meetings. E. V. Berry, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has a number of plans for the advancement of Y. M. C. A. work and wishes to have these plans taken up by the committee.

George Post, superintendent of construction for the Indian Irrigation service, left yesterday for a tour of inspection in the Navajo country. Most of his work will be in the vicinity of Shiprock.

Frank Maxwell of Carrizozo, has recently purchased the Pueblo Pardo ranch, near Gran Quivira including water, fences and other improvements. The purchase was made from L. H. Claunch, who has long been located on the Manzano forest. Maxwell will be granted temporary preference of pastures, etc., for three years. Later he will probably be granted permanent preference by the forest service.

Secretary E. V. Berry and one other strong bowler are to join the Princeton team in the Y. M. C. A. bowling league. Their addition will strengthen the team materially. Princeton rolls the Navy quintet tomorrow night.

J. P. Rush, arrested Tuesday evening on charges from Hutchinson, Kan., was released yesterday on further advice from Hutchinson. The first advice was that he had left his children there. The second wire stated that the county attorney refused to obtain a requisition for extradition. Police said last night Rush had stated he would return to Hutchinson of his own volition.

The fire department was called to answer an alarm at the New Republic cafe, second street and Central avenue, at 1 a. m. yesterday. The fire was beneath the roof and caused damage amounting to $400. Some of the occupants of the rooming house above the cafe left the building by way of the skylight and came down ladders. One Chinese occupant of the building slept through the fire and resulting commotion.

BRIDGE

Twenty table bridge was played Saturday afternoon by Mrs. George R. Craig and Mrs. H. Charles Reel, who were hostesses for one of the largest card parties of the season, entertaining at cards at the Woman's club, followed by a delightful tea. Potted plants were awarded as the card prize. The decorations were carried out in pink and white chrysanthemums. Following cards a number of additional guests came for tea. Assisting Mrs. Reel and Mrs. Craig were Mrs. Frank Schock and Misses Mary Reel, Helen Kimball, and Florence Hanson.

A number of visitors were entertained at dinner as guests of the patients of the Berglund sanatorium Thanksgiving. The dining-room was decorated with baskets of flowers and ferns. After dinner, games and music were followed by an auto ride.

The Junior Fortnightly club held their regular meeting Tuesday night at the Thompson-Nichols studio. After a short business meeting the program was given.

Fashion's Forecast

THE LOVABLE RAG DOLL
Novelties may come and novelties may go, but the demand for rag dolls goes on forever.

The rag doll illustrated could be made for about 35c, figuring muslin for doll at 20c per yard with gingham for the dress at the same price per yard and 10c for cotton or sawdust with which to stuff it.

The pattern No. C-113 cuts in sizes 16, 20 and 24 inches high. For doll 20 inches high requires 1/4 yard 27-inch material with 1/4 yard 36-inch material for dress. Price 15c, stamps or coin (coin preferred).

RIPPLING RHYMES

By Walt Mason

ANOTHER HE-MAN

Jackie Reuben pines his stony acres, but not because he likes that; he looks upon all men as fakers who boost the joys of tilling soil. He'd like to be a famed attorney and battle with his peers in court; but up the furrow he must journey, or feel himself a thorn in society. He'd like to be a leading banker, with bonds and money as his tools; but vainly does he scorn and hunker—he still must drive his claybank mules. He has his dreams of high endeavor, but as he tells he knows full well his dreams will find fulfillment never—he must have corn and hay to sell. His hands are strown with corn and blisters from mowing in his rocky hills; he must support his ailing sisters, who try each day new brands of pills. Without him they'd have no resources, and to the poorhouse they must go; so he pursues his humdrum course and shoves his mule team to and fro. When toiling with his plow and hater, he has a weary, tragic mien, but when he's with his aching sisters his face is bright, his smile serene. So all his days he'll go on sweating, a humble he-man, known to few, but never for an hour forgetting the dreams that never could come true.

Small movable pulpits in churches were introduced in the eleventh or twelfth century, episcopal thrones being used previously to that time.

Just the Dress

A good way to tint a dress another color and keep the lace insertion the original white is to melt a tablespoonful of paraffin and pour over the white lace completely covering it on both sides. When this is cold, tint as usual. When the dress is dry iron over the lace with a blotter protecting it on each side. It will come up beautifully fresh and white. The dress can then be pressed in the usual manner.

A STENOGRAPHER'S ROMANCE

NELLIE STRUGGLES WITH HER NEW PROBLEM

Chapter 66
The maid brought Nellie tea and toast, also a message from Donald Home hoping her headache would soon pass away. Later he sent her a box of roses, which she carefully thrust aside although he had been willfully extravagant in her purchase.

At night she lay wide-eyed, facing her problem—the age-old problem of love; of a girl giving her heart to one out of her station in life. She did not for a moment think it might be returned. It was a hopeless love, one that must be hidden from its object, from the world.

At times she felt a rush of joy that she loved; then anguish as she conjured up pictures of him married to someone, his cousin perhaps or one of her friends. A girl of his own kind, beautiful, clever, in society. The thought was torture. If he wouldn't marry she could bear it, she thought. He wouldn't belong to her, but neither would another woman possess him. When she looked in the mirror as she brushed her hair she was shocked at the ravages of the night. She looked ill. Deep circles under her eyes and pale cheeks made her very much away from the accident. She seldom used rouge, but now she dabbed a bit on her cheeks. She felt she could not bear any comments upon her looks, and Miss Jones, as well as Cora—whom she saw every day—would surely notice and ask if she were ill.

Miss Jones did notice, but wisely did nothing, simply remarking that Mr. Fallon had sent word he would remain at home that day, but would be down the day following.

"The elevator man said he had a very good call," she told Nellie. "Someone who saw the accident told him. But a 'miss' is as good as a mile, and he was fortunate to get off with only the shock. I can't understand him being careless; probably was thinking of something, so didn't see the other car."

After this explanation she gave Nellie work that kept her not only busy, but hustling.

"She'll get over it if she doesn't have time to think about him," she reasoned. "I hope Don will soon help. He's more than half in love with her now—perhaps—and middle-aged Miss Jones amused herself by giving a romance that ended when Nellie and Donald were happily married."

Nellie lunched with Cora, and in reply to her questions told of Mr. Fallon's accident.

"You must have frightened you when they brought him in," Cora said.

"I did—terribly—and Miss Jones too," Nellie admitted, then changed the subject, fearing more questions.

She was keeping a close hold upon herself. She would need to get her feelings under control before Mr. Fallon came back.

When Mr. Fallon appeared the next day, a little paler than usual, but otherwise appearing none the worse for his accident, he said:

"They frightened you, Miss Riley, bringing me in as they did. I am sorry."

"I thought you—were dead," she stammered.

"I'm not so easy killed," he smiled at her. "You fainted," he said, just for a moment. "Nellie had not thought he would recall her silly faint."

"I never fainted before," she naively added, then blushed because of the implication.

"You look a bit done up yet. Are you sure you are able to work?"

"Oh, yes," she returned eagerly, then in her old saucy manner: "You haven't any red cheeks either."

Mr. Fallon, Jr., laughed gaily, as he took a chair and looked over her face, and more than once that morning he stopped to gaze at the profile of the girl as she bent over her work—the girl who had fainted because of him—her fear for him—perhaps.

But Nellie never once looked at him. She was afraid he might read her secret; it was so new—so new. Her face, her eyes might tell him. To be continued.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

By Mrs. E. L. THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young lady in a small town and I am trying to finish grade school this coming spring. What would be a suitable graduation dress?

I have pimples and blackheads on my face. Could you please tell me what to do to remove them?

How old should a girl be before she receives gentleman company?

The school is giving a Thanksgiving program. Do you think it would be appropriate to wear a red wool middie and blue serge skirt?

ONE WHO WANTS TO KNOW
A white dress is worn for graduation unless the class decides to adopt some other dress at the time. To cure blackheads make an ointment of one ounce of soap lard and one ounce of ether; mix. At night scrub the face thoroughly with hot water, using a complexion or other soft brush. After wiping apply the mixture to each of the spots and let it remain on overnight. Wash off in the morning with hot water. Continue until the spots have disappeared. Then twice a week wash the face with this mixture, removing the liquid at once by rinsing with clear water. If there are large pores, wipe over each with a little alcohol.

For pimples the frequently appear with blackheads make an ointment of two grams of beta naphthol, twenty grams of sulphur precipitate and twenty grams of potato starch. Rub over the pimples at night, but never be and the same time as the blackhead mixture.

A girl should be seventeen or eighteen before she has gentleman company.

Ask your girl friends what they expect to wear to the school program and dress accordingly. Probably what you have in mind will be all right.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: For several months I went with a fellow who I deeply loved and who I thought loved me. Through a misunderstanding we parted. What a loss to me! But I have this fellow even though I know he doesn't deserve my love.

I have tried for the past few months to forget him—drop him out of my life forever, but to my utter disappointment I cannot.

What can you suggest?

I have had many invitations to go out with other fellows, but I simply cannot accept them. I always refuse.

Feeling as I do, do you think it best that I wait for him to return, as I really and truly think he is my mate, or shall I accept the next invitation I receive?

I am very unhappy all the time. Please advise me to the best advantage. LONELY.

To resist the circumstances of one's life is useless. Make the best of what comes to you. Try to learn the lesson life is trying to teach, and strive to be happy in the good things that are left for you to enjoy. Probably in later years you will be thankful that fate took a hand in your affairs and saved you from this young man whom you would marry if you had your choice.

No, I would not advise you to wait for him. To live in the past would be foolish. Accept invitations from other young men, and try to let time heal your wound and make up to you for this period of heartache.

Courage, little girl! Don't give up because misfortune seems to have crossed your path.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Today's menu is a good one for any day in the week, but is given more especially for a "special" occasion—Sunday or Thanksgiving.

Did you ever boil your potatoes in the oven? It is a good plan to get the water to boiling point on top of the fire, then put the potatoes in and salt them and put the pan, covered, in the oven. In this way you can utilize all the heat of the oven. The asparagus can be cooked tender in the oven, too.

Waffles: Four cups flour, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar, one tablespoon melted butter, milk to make a thick batter. Mix thoroughly and add two well-beaten eggs and two teaspoons of baking powder. Stir well and bake in waffle iron.

Chicken en Casserole: Chicken can be cooked in casseroles in several different ways. It can be cut up as for fricassees, cooked until tender, floured, seasoned and browned in the casserole. It can also be taken from the bones when tender, a cream sauce made with peppers chopped in it and baked. Still another way is to line the sides and bottom of the casserole with cooked rice, put creamed chicken in, then cover with more rice and bake until brown.

Snow Pudding—Two tablespoons gelatin, dissolved in one cup of cold water, add the juice of two lemons, one cup sugar and three cups boiling water. Let this stand until cold. Beat the whites of four eggs to a stiff froth, adding one tablespoon sugar. Whip the gelatin into the eggs a tablespoonful at a time. Put in a mold to harden. Sauce—Beat the yolks of the four eggs, sweeten with half a cup of sugar, add the grated rind of two lemons; stir in one pint of milk and cook until it thickens.

Welsh Raebit—Two tablespoons butter, melted; one large tablespoon flour, one-half teaspoon salt, paprika to taste, one pint milk. Mix as directed, let come to a boil and add one cup grated cheese, or cheese cut fine. In making rabbit this way it never curdles, but is smooth and nice. A well beaten egg can be added if desired. It can be served over toast or crackers, and makes a nice lunch or supper dish with baked potatoes.

ANOTHER GOOD CHEESE RECIPE

Cheese Toast: To one cup of grated cheese, add a teaspoon dry mustard, half a teaspoon of salt and half a teaspoon of paprika. Butter six slices of bread, spread with the seasoned cheese and place a slice of bacon on top of each. Then toast on the broiler under the flame in a gas oven. Until you have eaten one of these crisp, highly seasoned slices of toast you can have no idea how good they are.

Household Suggestions

Clear the Atmosphere
Open the kitchen window both top and bottom and see how quickly the room is cleared of smoke from frying.

A Double Purpose
Keep the strawberry hailer handy all the year 'round, as it is excellent for removing pin feathers from a fowl.

Dried Cake
If the sponge cake has dried out a bit, it can be sliced and served as a dessert with chocolate or lemon sauce poured over it.

Protect the Walls
It is well to arm oneself with a small piece of tin or a thin piece of wood, when washing the baseboard of a room. It can be slipped along as the woodwork is scrubbed and save many a mark on the wall-paper.

Just the Dress
A good way to tint a dress another color and keep the lace insertion the original white is to melt a tablespoonful of paraffin and pour over the white lace completely covering it on both sides. When this is cold, tint as usual. When the dress is dry iron over the lace with a blotter protecting it on each side. It will come up beautifully fresh and white. ON THIN ICE

By J. A. Waldron
Illustration by Lawrence Fellows

"She would have fallen if Sayles had not caught her."

"I shall be lonely while you are away, Agatha!" Berkeley Sayles was sending his wife off to a southern resort and had just kissed her. She found the kiss genuine, for she invited such a salute, but there was no dependency in Sayles's tone. "A pretty phrase, dear. But it isn't your habit to be lonely." Her maid, busy with the small luggage, smiled into a face she had opened. Both knew Sayles's philanthropic tendency. And Mrs. Sayles flirted a little herself in retaliation. "Oh, he's modern," she said. "We're going over all that. An enervating climate, with nothing whatever going on, would make a man's life a misery. I'll write you stimulating letters instead." "And you think that if I don't I shall be home the sooner, eh?" She smiled tantalizingly. "Why don't you come along?" "We've gone over all that. An enervating climate, with nothing whatever going on, would make a man's life a misery. I'll write you stimulating letters instead." "And you think that if I don't I shall be home the sooner, eh?" She realized left out. Well, dear, be as good as your word. separation may make us all the more fond of each other." They kissed again and parted with smiles in the conductor of the Southern Express cried: "All aboard!" All the Sayles servants except the chauffeur had been given a holiday for the period of Mrs. Sayles's absence. Sayles would live at his club. He would need the chauffeur, who was a circumspet person. As Sayles hurried back through the terminal to his motor he was attracted by a very pretty young woman who had just emerged from a telephone booth. He stopped to give her an admiring glance which she did not resent, although she did not respond to it. She hesitated a moment, and when he encouraged her pause she blushed, ran out and disappeared in a taxi. Nothing the number of the cab Sayles hurried to his motor and took the same direction, but following the car out of the question in his search for the taxi. Here friends commented upon his absence of mind. He was thinking more about the charming girl he had seen than about his wife speaking rudely and he determined to search for the attractive stranger. None but a man with time on his hands would think of such an improbable quest in New York. After luncheon Sayles sauntered through hotel after hotel persistently. The afternoon was spent as he entered one in the Thirties. Glancing into the women's waiting-room he saw the object of his search at a desk, writing. Taking a seat from which he could observe her, Sayles noted her eyes and nose. Her face was turned from him, but he knew its charm. She finally came out with several letters. As she was passing again from the hotel desk she slipped on the tiles and would have fallen if Sayles had not caught her. She had turned an ankle slightly. He helped her back to the waiting-room. "Thank you," she said with a smile. "I haven't met before." "I saw you at the terminal this morning and had the same notion. It's fortunate that we have met before. I'm lonely today, and hate to drive alone. Please join me here." He indicated the dining-room into which guests were swarming. There was a match in her eye. Perhaps a spirit of adventure moved her. She blushed. "Would that be conventional?" "The conventions are broken every day by persons who respect them. What could be wrong in our dining together here? We both feel sure we have met." "If I hadn't that Mrs. I couldn't think of it." She studied him a moment and seemed reassured. "Very well. Perhaps we shall remember where." Sayles was amazed at his success, but did not distrust the girl. Her last party was as apparent as her self-confidence. They went in to dinner and chatted upon many subjects. He found her astonishingly clever, and she was impressed by his ability to entertain. "I suppose you would like to know my name—something about me?" he finally asked. "No—no! Not yet! I want to see if I can recall. I'm sure I've seen you—your portrait." "You are not a public character. You must be mistaken as to the portrait. But you'll tell me something of yourself?" "Something—yes. But not my name yet. I have a week's absence from college, and an air my way was to my home in the west. I stopped in New York to stop a little, and to make a call." "Ah! Friends here?" "An aunt. A dear woman. Haven't seen her since she married. I want to surprise her. Tried to get her on the phone at the terminal. If you'll excuse me I'll phone again." They had finished dinner. "Certainly, I'll meet you in the lobby." As she disappeared Sayles called up his garage, ordered his chauffeur to drive at once to the hotel, and returned to the lobby, where the girl was waiting. "I'm just in. I'll almost always be," she said. "I'll try again later." "Wouldn't you like to see Fifth Avenue and some of the best streets at night?" he asked. "Let me be your escort. My motor will be outside in a moment. Afterward I can drive you to your aunt or back to the hotel." She hesitated. "Perhaps I have ventured too far already in dining with you." "Nonsense! I'm sure we shall remember where we've met. And you would enjoy the ride." "I know I should." Then suddenly, "Good night!" They entered his smart car at the door. The ride was enjoyable.

she was inquisitive and detached from all but the night. Sayles was inclined to become sentimental. After exploring the bright section of town they drew up in a quiet residence district in front of an imposing home. "A little surprise for you?" he said. "What place is this?" "Lima. I want you to see it." He fastened her in and switched on lights. "Lima—Lima?" She hesitated in the hall. "There seems to be no one at home." "Oh, it's all right. The folks are away." "Then, surely, I shouldn't stay. You must take me back to the hotel—at once—as you promised!" "In a moment!" Sayles walked over to a photograph and started a dance tune. "Don't just one dance!" He tried to take her to his arms. The girl broke away. "I can't dance with you—alone!" She looked about anxiously. Her eyes caught the portrait of a handsome woman on the wall. "Is that your wife?" "That's my Aunt Agatha!" In sterilizing milk bottles, one New York dealer loses $1,000,000 a year in bottles broken during the process because of poor construction. A Day With the Secretary of the Interior

The hot summer sun of Washington has risen over the trees that border Rock Creek park, and from his sleeping porch in one of the great family hotels that border that stream, has roused to his day's work the secretary of the interior. Bathed, shaved and clothed, the waiter has arranged his breakfast and it is eaten in the time that it takes to glance over the headlines of the Washington Post, which has been left at his door. Immediately he descends and enters his car and which swiftly drives him across the great Connecticut avenue bridge on his way to the department building. As they pass through the beautiful residential section Senator Borah is observed driving alone, his head bowed in his habitual attitude of thought, his great shaggy head crowned by the inevitable broad-brimmed black hat. A signal and the senator steps into the car, and the secretary and the secretary, long friends during their service in the senate of the United States, immediately plunge into the discussion of the matters in which both of them are interested. To-day it is the ever encroaching power of the British empire upon the oil reservoirs of the United States, a matter of concern to all intelligent thoughtful observers, and one which must in time be the most momentous to the industrial life of the nation. The senate building is reached and after promises of documents which will be used by the senator shortly, the car swings past the capitol down Pennsylvania avenue, by the treasury building, White House, state, war and navy buildings, stopping at the southeast corner of that enormous edifice, which houses but a part of the interior department work, gigantic as it is.

Safford at Work

In the meantime on the sixth floor of the building Charles Safford, administrative secretary, has for some time been at work. Charles is the buffer-in-chief as between the host of important people and the secretary. His long experience in Washington and wide acquaintance in officialdom has made it possible for him to immediately sift the wheat from the chaff and to save the secretary from the host of seekers after his attention whose business is of no moment to the nation or the department. Through Charles also ebb and flow the great mass of files and correspondence which come to the head of the department either from the various bureaus or direct. Long association with his chief has made it possible for him to handle, without further reference, a large proportion of the matters which pass through his hands. At a nearby desk the deputy secretary, Harry Cinn, is busy engaged in canning with rapid and expert eye, the files of the newspapers of the day, magazines, periodicals and Congressional Record. From this mass of literature he clips such articles as refer to the work of the department or that may be of interest or value, and these are pasted upon perforated sheets of heavy paper so that they may be easily read. In the great ante-room to the secretary's office has already congregated a considerable number of people awaiting his advent. Here is the solicitor of the department, Mr. Booth, under his arm a bundle of files pertaining to questions upon which he desires the assistance of his chief. Col. Miers, controller of the destiny of the magnificent empire of Alaska, stands with soldierly erectness discussing with the chief of the bureau of mines some of his peculiar problems. Col. Miers, a great engineer, has been drafted from the war department upon the Alaskan commission and now takes the place of three commissioners which might by law be appointed to administer this great public domain and save the country their salaries and expenses.

His acceptance of this work, according to the ruling of the controller, has vacated his office as lieutenant colonel of engineers and only by special act of congress, later to be passed, will he be able to resume his rightful place in the army.

Veteran of Reclamation

In one corner stands Judge Finney, the first assistant secretary, talking with Director Davis of the reclamation service. Genial, smiling and tireless, the first assistant secretary has a command of departmental law unequalled by any other person in the United States. The gray-haired chief of the reclamation service is a veteran of the reclamation, coming into the department when it was organized as chief engineer, and so conducting his office that today he is a director of the service with a world-wide reputation, and his advice is sought by the nations of the world whenever problems of reclamation are presented to them.

Besides these, a congressman or two, with their constituents are awaiting an audience, urgency seekers and the inevitable claim-seekers are patiently waiting for an opportunity to present themselves. Charles afford a glance over the day's calendar of appointments and remarked that "this will probably not be a very busy day" when Joe, the messenger of the secretary, announces his arrival. The business of the day has commenced.

Snatching a pile of correspondence and files and the calendar of appointments, the administrative secretary hurries into the big inner office where the secretary has just seated himself at his desk. A hurried glance over the correspondence and the quick perusal of such communications as appear to be urgent, the secretary has just seated himself at his desk. A hurried glance over the correspondence and the quick perusal of such communications as appear to be urgent, the secretary has just seated himself at his desk.

Another congressman desires to present two or three of his constituents, anxious to shake hands with the man who so ably controls the destinies of the west. A Woman Caller. The solicitor with a quizzical smile upon his face tells of a lady engaged in a lawsuit with the department, who has come more or less worthless tract of the public domain, who insists that before she can feel that she has had proper hearing or that justice is to be done, must speak to the secretary in person. The solicitor adds that apparently she believes that this is the only case in the world of any importance. With a slow smile lighting up his face the secretary remarks that without a doubt to her it is the only case of importance and requests him to have placed upon the engagement calendar an appointment as soon as possible so that the lady may accomplish her desires.

The hour has now arrived for a hearing of an appeal from the war minerals board and the representatives of the board and the applicants are about to enter when a senator walks into the office. It is an unwritten law in the department that a senator has the right of way and is allowed to see a cabinet officer at the first moment that he is disengaged. The parties to the appeal case then wait until this business has been transacted, and file in to present their case to the final judge in the matter. Secretary Fall at one time was judge of a district in New Mexico, noted for the great volume of its business, yet the matters purely judicial upon which he is required to pass, exceed in volume those of the entire district over which he presided. The hearing continues, but has not proceeded far until it appears that the appeal is based upon expeditions of money in and about the production of chromium used in making steel for war purposes. The secretary breaks in upon the statement being made, and a few questions fix the point in the controversy and elicit the facts upon which the appeal is based. Glancing to the files upon his desk, he turns to the representatives of the war minerals board and inquires why these facts have not been briefed. Upon being answered that they did not believe that these facts would justify payment under the law, they are quietly informed that the secretary will be the judge of what the law is and what he desires to know are the facts and if these facts are admitted the claimants must be recompensed. Being admitted by the bureau the hearing comes to an abrupt end, and the award is ordered.

The first assistant secretary presents for signatures opinions that have been written up by him in accordance with the decisions heretofore made. These decisions are models of clarity and brevity. They are signed, with the exception of one or two, which do not adequately convey an exposition of the law as the secretary sees it and they are returned for revision.

A Caller From Home. As Judge Finney turns to leave Mr. Safford enters and announces that a friend of the secretary's from out home is in the outer office. The secretary goes out and greets him with the warm handshake of the west, and receives the inevitable greeting: "I know you're very busy, but I didn't feel like I was leaving the way for the secretary. I am very busy," answers "The Judge," as he is known to homefolks, "but I want you to come back about 1 o'clock and have lunch with me and we can have a few minutes together."

In the meantime the commissioner of Indian affairs has piloted into the office a delegation of the wards of the government from one of the far western reservations and these are presented to him and in a few well-chosen words, through their interpreter. They have been told of the pleasure that the secretary finds in shaking their hands, and has given and received the formal salutations in conformity to the universal Indian customs and traditions, for long years of neighborly proximity to the Indians of the southwest has taught the secretary the proprieties of a meeting between the Indian and his friends.

Phone Buzzers Sound. A representative of one of the great newspapers of the United States has heard a rumor connected with the department and seeks verification or denial. As an explanation is being made, his telephone buzzer sounds. "Who is it?" the secretary asks. "It will be possible for him to know if it would be possible for you to dine with them on Wednesday evening. One member of the cabinet and two or three senators have already accepted." "Tell her that I am very sorry but that it is absolutely impossible for me to do so, as I have an engagement to dine with the governor of the state," says the secretary. "The polite avoidance of the truth is imperatively necessary if it is a cabinet officer should accept even a small proportion of the invitations presented to him he would be in no condition to properly fulfill the onerous labors connected with his office."

Finally the director of the reclamation service adds his opportunity, as the clock strikes noon. The people of the great reclamation projects have been sorely tried by the sudden decline of prices of agricultural products and are now facing payment of the construction charges which now seem almost impossible for them to meet. But each of the thirty and more projects have their individual circumstances which must be taken into consideration before the relief authorized by congress may be granted and the hour that is spent going over them, one by one, is too short to arrive at a complete conclusion.

Lunch Is Spread

Joe announces that in the little inner office lunch has been spread, and calling in the westerner who has returned, they proceed to investigate the dishes which have been brought down from the great cafeteria on the seventh floor where the hundreds of employees obtain their lunches which are served without profit, a considerable sum in these days of the high cost of living. During the progress of the lunch and while his guest is eating, he glances over the clippings that have been laid beside his plate. Three or four of these have attracted his attention and these he discusses for he knows that the opinions of his friends from the scenes of the activities of his department keep him in close touch with the human side of problems which are so often neglected by officialdom in Washington. Lanchester, over, he fills his pipe and stretches out upon a couch for fifteen minutes of relaxation and for the first real smoke of the day, for the cigars that he has consumed do not compare with the fragrance or satisfaction of the pleasures of the old pipe which he learned to love when he pounded the head of a drill as a young man in the mines of New Mexico. Too soon his visit is over and reluctantly he takes leave of his visitor, who, as he passes from the outer office, stops and shakes hands with Charles, remarking, "He's the one old judge, ain't he?"

Work Speeded Up

A bureau chief of the land office wishes to make report as to the progress in that department. Since taking office, by the insistence of the secretary, that department has speeded up until instead of an average of 2,000 cases disposed of a month the record shows that in one month 2,000 were brought to conclusion. In strict accordance with the secretary's policy, with all the snap, virility and breeziness of a Roosevelt. He has come to consult the valued and trusted friend of his father, upon a matter in which he feels the necessity of able and dispassionate counsel. Two such positive and capable men as Roosevelt and the secretary, long over the determination of the question in hand and the colonel leaves to give way to an imposing array of oil men interested in the California fields. Here the secretary, with the duty of administering this territory for the benefit of the navy, has driven a hard bargain for the United States and the lessees seek to modify some of the provisions of the contract. They present their cases, and to the mere observer, it conclusively appears that there is no possibility of them proceeding with any profit to themselves and that they are facing an actual loss in their operations. Their appeals, however, do not strike a responsive chord in the secretary's mind, for from the drawer in his desk he produces data, unquestioned in its authorities, which demolishes the contentions of the claimants and they depart empty handed, puzzled to know where the information of the secretary has been obtained which has so rudely destroyed their hopes and well-considered plans. Then follow in rapid succession conferences with the representatives of the commission on the budget, the reclassification of the employees, and the presentation of the intricate problems. A member of the Civil Service commission explains why certain employees have not been furnished upon request and why certain other transfers have not been made. There seems to be a lull, and Cinn, with notebook in hand, starts to take dictation even before he has had time to seat himself at the table.

Letters Are Answered

In rapid sentences letters are answered and memoranda given as there is but little time for this kind of work during the day. Even the most pressing letter is not finished when the chief of the bureau of mines, who has returned after waiting most of the morning, requests a moment of time. The dictation is interrupted until this business can be finished, but before it has been completed the leader of the house of representatives has appeared and other matters must give way before him. Legislation vital to the activities of the department and to the welfare of the great west is up or action before the congress. Expenditures are imperative and it must be determined to what extent the hard rule of economy which has been adopted, must be relaxed in order to provide for the most pressing necessities. The secretary naturally fights for his bureau, and his department, the householder conceding point after point only when compelled to do so by the disclosure of an absolute necessity. This long discussion is interrupted by the announcement that the personal aide of the president desires to deliver a message to the secretary. Excusing himself for a moment, he walks down the long office, receives the salute of the major and the low-spoken message from his chief executive. Finally, the legislative situation has been canvassed as thoroughly as the time will allow, and the hands of the clock point to six. An hour and a half before the close of the day the hundreds of clerks and officials of the department have occurred and throughout the vast building practically the only office in which activity continues is the office of the chief. Now for one-half hour he will be able to compose himself to going over the files that have all day been accumulating upon his desk and amending himself with the matters which will come up for his determination on the day following. A quarter of seven and as he is about to leave, Senator Cummings telephones from the war department and says that it will be possible for him to see him for a few minutes. The secretary will be glad to see him and five minutes later the presiding officer of the senate of the United States enters, an earnest conversation ensues and when the senator has finished it is decided to call it a day.

Black Hat Brushed

Joe has for an hour had the broad-brimmed black hat brushed and the black cane ready for the secretary's hand, and at 7:30 he receives them and steps into the elevator for his homeward journey. With a sigh of relief the force which has been compelled to wait with him hurry out. As he drives home his car is signaled by the tail senator from Indiana. Senator Wagoner is one of the great politicians of the senate. He explains that he has a dinner engagement at 8:30 but certain political matters are puzzling him and he wants a few minutes with one of the trusted advisors of the president. Past Rock Creek park, out Connecticut avenue until Chevy Chase is reached, across the Maryland line and back, politics are discussed until the senator is left at the door of his home. The electric lamps have long since been lighted when the secretary unlocks the door of his apartment and puts in an order for his dinner. During the course of this repast the telephone rings and the secretary of labor industries if he may come down for the evening. Secretary Davis has upon his mind the problems of the great coal strike and as a member of the coal commission he looks to Secretary Fall for advice and counsel and it is close to midnight before he has finished his conference.

Such is the life of a cabinet officer.

FIRST SALT MINE IN HUTCHINSON SECTION IS NOW BEING SUNK

Hutchinson, Kans., Dec. 2.—The first salt mine in this section of the state is now being sunk. It will cost about $1,000,000 to complete, it is said. The mine is to be 400 feet deep and will operate a vein of pure rock salt 18 feet thick. The shaft already has passed the 320 foot mark. Hutchinson long has held a reputation as a salt manufacturing center, but the product heretofore has come from brine pumped by means of wells.

working men and their wives were frequently all tired out in the evening, and a great many were weak, nervous and run-down. One had pains in the back and thought he had kidney trouble. Another had pains around the heart, palpitations and dizziness, and was sure he was suffering from heart disease. Still others had severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that three people out of every four were

AUTO OPPORTUNITIES

EIGHT BILLION FOR MOTORING; PEOPLE OF UNITED STATES SPEND THAT MUCH AND EVEN MORE YEARLY ON AUTOMOBILES

The financial side of the automobile business is interesting but puzzling. The best estimate of the annual expenditure on motor cars in this country for 1921 makes the total out to be 7,782 million dollars, distributed as follows:

New cars $1,448,000,000
Depreciation 1,800,000,000
Interest 295,000,000
Tires 450,000,000
Gasoline 825,000,000
Oil 175,000,000
Garage 552,000,000
Repairs and supplies 1,000,000,000
Insurance 185,000,000
Taxes 275,000,000
Drivers' salaries 600,000,000
Road maintenance 180,000,000

That is to say, we are spending approximately 8,000 million dollars a year on something that did not exist twenty-five years ago.

Where does the money come from? For what would this 8,000 million dollars be spent if there were no motor cars? When a man buys a car and spends, say, a thousand dollars a year on it in interest, depreciation and supplies, what does he economize on? Does he take it out of his savings or what he otherwise would have laid up for a rainy day? But savings and investments have also increased during this period. Does a family tree it owns a motor car spend less on clothing or food or theaters, books or summer resorts or golf? Or does it spend more? Is there a saving on shoe leather by using rubber tires? But more is spent on shoes and clothing than there used to be. So of almost everything else. The only lines in which a definite falling off can be discerned and ascribed to the introduction of the motor car is in crinoline, city stables and the like, but this is little compared with what is spent on motor cars and motoring.

The building of railroad mileage has been virtually at a standstill for a number of years, though the population and business activity of the country has been increasing. It may be said, then, that a large part of the money spent for motor transportation would otherwise have been put into spur-line railroads, electric railways, or else, which is more probable, there would have been much less in the way of transportation facilities available and consequently less wealth created. The creation of rail lines covering the network of highways over which motor cars travel would probably be prohibitive in cost.

A saving in the wages of farm workers has been another source of income for automobile investment. It has been a drift of farm population to the cities without a diminution of the volume of farm products. The decrease in labor has been taken care of by farm machinery, including motor transportation, which has tremendously increased the amount of time at the individual farmer's disposal as compared with the horse and buggy days.

Another source of possible saving is in city rents by removal to the suburbs and country, which would leave the difference in rent available for motor transportation. But city rents have not perceptibly fallen and there is also the extension of city deliveries into the vicinity to balance this economy.—Ewin E. Slosson in the World's Work.

GOODYEAR AWARDS GOLD SERVICE PINS TO OLD EMPLOYEES

After completing a five thousand mile trip, covering the various branches of the big tire company, A. P. Osterloh, vice-president and general manager of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company of California, returned to Los Angeles the other day.

A surprise was awaiting him upon his return, in the nature of a gold service pin designating his years of active service as a Goodyearite.

Shortly after the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company was founded back in 1898, the policy was put into effect of issuing gold service pins for five, ten, fifteen and twenty years continuous service with the company. In the California organization, there are eight-nine five-year service pin employees, seventy of whom are in the outside sales organization and nineteen in the Los Angeles general office. There are seventeen ten-year employees, ten of whom are in the outside sales organization and seven in the general office, as well as one fifteen-year employee, one of the western branch managers.

Mr. Osterloh, however, is one of three employees of the California company who has completed a score of years of continuous Goodyear service entitling them to the 20-year award.

Becoming associated with the tire company on October 22, 1902, as a general line salesman in the territory of ten Chicago branches, Mr. Osterloh was later made branch manager at Chicago, then manager of the Chicago district and later western sales manager.

In 1915 he was transferred to Akron as assistant secretary of the company and two years later was elected secretary.

When the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company of California was organized in 1919, his marked ability made him the natural selection to head the big western organization and he was transferred to Los Angeles as vice-president and general manager of the big western plant.

VALUE OF BUICK TOLD BY GENERAL SALES MANAGER

E. T. Strong, general sales manager of the Buick Motor company, Flint, Mich., writes as follows in the Buick Bulletin:

"Why has Buick steadily forged ahead in the automobile industry since the first Buick car was built twenty years ago?"

"Mainly because the experienced buyer of motor cars recognizes the value built into Buick and knows that Buick value cannot be duplicated, cannot be equaled in its completeness."

"The great majority of the thousands of Buick owners are buyers of just this type—buyers who know what they are buying and understand fully the basis of their selection. Seldom are they influenced by strong selling talks or highly advertised features. Their sole concern is value of proven worth, of merit that has been established by long and consistent performance."

"The truth is that Buick buyers invariably sell themselves, or rather the car sells itself to them. The good qualities of the car appeal to them, and the more they know of the advantages of Buick mechanism, the more they reason with themselves and weigh the various benefits accruing from Buick ownership, the more satisfied they are that Buick value is unequalled value. Such buyers have maintained the Buick standing in the industry."

The Trouble Shooter

TELLS YOU
what's wrong

By E. H. SCOTT

This is the third of a series of specially prepared and illustrated articles showing the ordinary automobile driver how to locate any engine trouble

When the Engine Will Not Start Ignition Troubles

1. Take a Spark Plug out of a cylinder, then open up the gap to TWICE the distance of the present gap. Now attach the wire to the Plug terminal again, then lay it on top of the cylinder in such a position, that when you turn the engine over, you can see the Plug Points. Make sure that the terminal with the wire attached DOES NOT touch the cylinder. Now turn the engine over smartly a few times while watching the points of the plug then—

If NO SPARK appears at the points of the Plug, or a spark only now and again, see that the Ignition Switch is ON, then proceed as shown in the illustration.

1st. Remove the wire leading from the center of the Distributor Head to the Coil.

2nd. Take off the Distributor Head by unscrewing the two small clips at the side.

3rd. Take off the Distributor Arm.

4. Make quite sure the Breaker Points are together. If they are open, turn the engine over by hand crank until you see the points CLOSE, then hold the end of the wire removed from the Distributor Head about 1/4" away from any metal part. Now with the point of the finger, open and close points while watching the end of the wire.

If NO SPARK appears at end of wire each time you open points, see A. If a spark APPEARS each time you open points, see B.

A

1. Turn on the lights and observe their appearance. If they are DULL, then examine the Battery connections. If connections are all right, have Battery re-charged. If, however, the lights are BRIGHT then—

2. Trace wire from Battery to Ignition Switch. See particularly that the connections at the back of the Switch are TIGHT, and that the wire has not rubbed through its covering or insulation at any point. If it is all right then—

3. Trace wire leading from the Ignition Switch to the Coil, making sure that it has not rubbed through at any point. If it looks all right then—

4. Examine the connections and wires leading from the Coil to the Contact Breaker and Distributor, to see that they are all connected and are TIGHT. If above are all SEEMINGLY correct then—

5. Test to see if either the Ignition Switch or the wires leading to the Battery are not internally defective. To do this, take a piece of insulated wire about 8 feet long, and connect one end to the terminal on the Battery which has attached to it the wire that leads to the Ignition Switch, and connect the other end of the wire to the terminal on the Coil which has attached to it the wire that leads through to the Switch. NOW test to see if there is a spark. If there is, and the engine now starts, have the Ignition Switch and wiring examined by an expert Ignition man. If, however, there is STILL no spark, see B.

B

1. Examine the Distributor Head to see that it is not wet or damp, and look carefully to see that there are no cracks or hurt hair like lines in it. If there are, fit a new Head. If the Distributor has flat metal segments, see that they are clean and bright. Use a little fine sand paper on the track if the segments are pitted or black looking. If, however, the Distributor is all right then—

2. Examine the Distributor Arm to see that it is not cracked where it fits in the shaft, and that the Contact has spring enough to make connection with the Carbon Contact in the center of the Distributor Head. If it is all right then—

3. Examine the Breaker Points. If they have a grey, frosty appearance, and come together squarely when points are CLOSED, DO NOT touch them. If the points are black looking and badly pitted, they will require dressing up. As they are generally made from tungsten metal which is too hard to file, they must be dressed up on an oil stone. The contact faces must be EXACTLY parallel. It is a delicate operation and it is better for the average man to have this job done by an expert Ignition man. Now—

4. Test the Gap between the points to see that it is correct. Consult the Instruction Book you got with car, if possible, to see what the EXACT gap should be. It varies a trifle, but is generally just about the thickness of an ordinary business card. Turn the engine over until the Cam on the Distributor shaft holds the points open at their WIDEST GAP. To adjust, loosen the lock nut on the FIXED contact screw, then by turning the screw in or out, get the correct gap. After adjusting the gap, tighten the lock nut, then check the gap again to see that it is correct AFTER THE LOCK NUT IS TIGHTENED UP. Now—

5. With the Breaker points in the CLOSED position, test the tension of the spring on the movable Arm with the point of the finger, seeing that it is not loose, broken or rusted, and is strong enough to snap the points into FIRM contact. If it appears to be sluggish in action, and the Arm fits into a fibre bushing, it may have swollen, making the shaft too tight to move freely. Very often with this trouble, the points stay open ALL the time. If, however, the Arm works quite freely then—

6. If when testing the Ignition by opening and closing the Breaker Points, you notice a very BRIGHT spark at the Breaker Points, but a VERY THIN spark or no spark at all at the end of the wire you are holding near metal part, your Condenser has broken down and will require expert attention. In any case, if after examining and adjusting as shown, there is still no difference in the Ignition, have it gone over by an expert Ignition man, as the fault is an internal one requiring his skill to remedy.

EFFORTS TO CREATE NEW RACING BODY NOT SUCCESSFUL

Attempts to organize a new racing body, to take over control of automobile racing from the supervision of the American Automobile association, are meeting with no encouragement on the Pacific coast, according to advices reaching A. A. A. headquarters from western newspapers.

Plans for a new organization were recently presented at a meeting of western managers by Richard Kennerdell, former chairman of the A. A. A. contest board and now allied with another organization.

A typical expression on this question comes from H. E. Patterson, manager of the Fresno (Calif.) Speedway:

"I can see no justification for a change," declared Mr. Patterson. "Under the control of the A. A. A., through its contest board, the auto racing game is one of the cleanest sports in the United States. It has not been commercialized and it has never been accused of any of the unsportsmanlike episodes that creep into almost every endeavor of speed or skill."

The American Automobile association has just been notified that plans have been completed for a new speedway at Atlantic City. This is to be a 1 1/2 mile speedway of board construction and the promoters are going to build a grandstand with a seating capacity of 150,000, which is the largest grandstand ever constructed. The grandstand alone will cost $2,700,000 in addition to the cost of the track. It is understood that the officials of the speedway will apply to the contest board for permission to hold a race on July 4, 1923.

The expression from the west and the proposed application from the east are taken by A. A. A. officials as just another evidence that the work of the A. A. A. in keeping the racing game clean for the past twenty years is meeting with the hearty approval and support of speedway managers and manufacturers in all parts of the United States.

A UNIFORM CAR TARIFF ABROAD MEETS WITH FAVOR

Sentiment in favor of uniform international tariffs on motor cars is gaining ground abroad. In the opinion of H. H. Rice, treasurer of the National Automobile chamber of commerce, who has just returned from the other side.

Mr. Rice talked with many leading motor vehicle manufacturers and dealers in Europe and Great Britain. He found that the new American motor tariff offering lower duties to those countries which favor the United States is creating a receptive attitude abroad. A good deal of protectionist sentiment remains, to be sure, but lower duties for United States automotive products are being seriously considered in many quarters. Spain, Italy, Belgium and Holland have already benefited from the new motor tariff. Formerly the United States duty was 45 per cent on automobiles costing over $2,000, but it is now as low as 25 per cent for the products of all countries which accord the United States equivalent treatment. Moreover, this tariff reduction clause in the final writing of the bill was made automatic, so that any reduction abroad wins immediate favorable treatment here without awaiting executive action.

OLDSMOBILE GETS GOOD POSITION AT NEW YORK SHOW

One of the choice positions at the New York Automobile show in January, 1923, will go to the Oldsmobile exhibit, according to Guy H. Pensley, general sales manager of the Olds Motor Works, Lansing, Mich., who has just returned from New York, where he attended the show drawings at the headquarters of the National Automobile chamber of commerce.

Choices were made, Mr. Pensley says, in accordance with the sales standing of the various makers and the Olds Motor Works was fortunate in securing an excellent space on the center aisle, near the main entrance of the building and on a corner where the exhibit will be accessible from two sides.

The Oldsmobile officials were equally as fortunate, Mr. Pensley says, in securing a position for the Chicago show.

INTERESTING FACTS PERTAINS TO GENERAL MOTORS DIVISIONS

In a pamphlet just off the press General Motors lists and describes its complete line of passenger automobiles. Some of the figures suggested by a tabulation of the information printed are of real interest.

The five divisions of the corporation that manufacture passenger cars are product a twenty-six individual types of cars, ranging in size from the two-passenger roadster to the seven-passenger Imperial limousine. Of all types, the five-passenger sedan is numerically the most popular; the divisions make seven different styles of this car. Next in popularity comes the two-passenger roadster, of which six styles are made. The familiar five-passenger touring car comes in five styles, one from each division. These figures are suggestive of the trend of manufacture, as showing the increasing popularity of the closed models.

If the passenger cars made by General Motors were on exhibition in one hall, with an example of each individual style manufactured, there would be forty-nine cars shown, divided as follows: Buick, 14; Cadillac, 10; Chevrolet, 5; Oakland, 6; Oldsmobile, 14. The corporation makes 18 cars of 8-cylinder engine; 15 of 6-cylinder engine; and 16 of 4-cylinder engine.

Besides its passenger cars, General Motors makes seven trucks, ranging from one ton to five tons, and three tractors, 3-ton, 10-ton and 15-ton.

In the wide range of price classes, the following figures are noted: $800 to $1,000, 11 cars; $1,000 to $1,500, 13 cars; $1,500 to $2,000, 13 cars; $2,000 to $2,500, 3 cars; $2,500 to $3,000, 6 cars; $3,000 to $3,500, 3 cars; $3,500 to $4,000, 3 cars; $4,000 to $4,500, 3 cars; above $4,500, one car, at $4,600.

Besides the details on vehicles, the pamphlet states briefly the scope of General Motors and its sixty-seven divisions, subsidiaries and affiliated companies, and its activities on this continent and overseas. Measured by its organization, facilities, financial position and volume of business, the corporation is the second largest industrial group in America.

MAXWELL CLOSED CAR PRODUCTION ON THE INCREASE

The Wood Motor Car company, handlers of the "good" Maxwell cars, has just received the following from the Detroit factory:

Maxwell Motor Corporation's closed-car production, which has shown steady gains throughout the year, has now reached a point higher than ever before in the history of the company, and the unusually large buying demand is forcing the Maxwell factories to work day and night, here are also substantial indications that even the present high mark may be exceeded within the next few months.

For the past year Maxwell closed models have held an exceptionally strong position in a market ruled by intense competition. Several times it was found necessary to increase production materially in the company's large body plants in Dayton, Ohio. And recently additions were made in the properties which permitted Maxwell organization to shoot at a manufacturing schedule that would more closely conform to steady and insistent buying demand. The present high closed-car output is the direct result of the greatly expanded resources for closed-car manufacture, it is pointed out by Arthur E. Barker, vice-president of the company, but even with this tremendous schedule it has been found necessary to make further increases, and in the past week the Maxwell factories have been in operation night, as well as days. There is every evidence that this condition will continue.

"Our increased facilities for building closed cars have made possible the attainment of what is believed to be the highest proportionate closed-car production ever recorded for a car of above the Maxwell price," said Mr. Barker. "And our plans for the next few months call for even more remarkable closed-car manufacturing developments in our factories."

"The Maxwell club coupe, a two-passenger enclosed vehicle that has found instant favor in the less than $1,000 class, is being turned out in increasing quantities each day. As soon as we are able to realize our production requirements in this model, I feel certain that our closed cars will represent an even greater proportion of our total schedule."

"The public response to this vehicle has been so wonderful that we are already warning dealers and motor car users to place orders well in advance."

It was also stated that all club coupes that could possibly be built in the first two months of its manufacture were sold in less than one week after the car was announced.

BIG REDUCTION IN PRICE FOR CADILLAC TOURING MACHINE

The Cadillac Motor Car company announces a reduction of $265 on its touring car and also reductions on its complete line of 10 type 81 models, which will be continued on an increased production schedule for 1923. The new price of the touring car is $2,365. This new price on the touring car represents a reduction amounting to $1,055 on this model in the last eleven months. Prices are effective December 1.

H. H. Rice, president and general manager of the company, issued the following statement regarding the reductions:

"The new prices are mainly the result of the large production and sales of the type 81 Cadillac during the last year, in which we have already sold more Cadillacs than in the best previous record year."

"The type 81 Cadillac proved so popular during this last year that we were forced time and again to revise upward our production schedule to meet the demand."

"The new prices are based on an even larger production schedule for 1923 than the record high production mark of last year and on the many economies in manufacturing made possible by our new factory."

"OPEN HOUSE" EXHIBIT OF ESSEX A SUCCESS

FARM INFORMATION SERVICE

Issued by the Extension Service, New Mexico Agricultural College, STATE COLLEGE, NEW MEXICO.

The essentials for the feeding of dairy cows are summarized by Professor O. C. Cunningham of the New Mexico Agricultural College, in the following brief statements:

1. Feed grain in proportion to milk production, giving Holscheim about 1 pound of grain for each 1 pound of milk, and Jersey or Guernsey about 1 pound of grain for each 2 pounds of milk.

2. Feed a balanced ration.

3. When it is necessary to make changes in the character of the ration, or to increase or decrease the amount, make such changes gradually.

4. Do not feed on the basis of the cow's appetite. The more costly feed is sometimes the more economical one.

5. Feed all the roughage a cow will clean up. A part or all of the feed is better as alfalfa or other legume.

6. Provide some succulent feed as silage or roots.

7. Feed sufficient hay and weeds as pasture becomes short, to keep up the milk flow. It will pay.

8. Feed and milk regularly.

9. Provide an abundance of pure water. Milk is about 87.5 per cent water and the cow's body about 85 per cent water.

10. Give free access to salt.

If an animal is properly cared for and furnished a ration that is wholesome, palatable and well balanced, there is no need of "stock foods," "tonics" or similar preparations. If an animal is sick, give it specific treatment to meet the conditions, rather than a "cure-all."

Eat More Eggs

There are no substitutes for eggs, and nothing can take their place in cooking. Every member of the family can eat and enjoy eggs without harm, which is true of some articles of food that are found on the table.

TREMENDOUS ROAD PROGRAM IN THE SOUTHERN STATES

Southern states have embarked upon a road building program involving the construction of several thousand miles of new hard surfaced roads, most of which will be asphalt. Florida, Texas, North Carolina, Tennessee and Missouri, especially, are building great stretches of asphalt roads.

The extent to which southern states are appropriating money for highway construction is reflected in statistics compiled by the Asphalt Association, New York, which show that during the first eight months of the present year 242 bond issues amounting to $48,458,650 have been sold in the sixteen southern states and the funds made available for road construction. Bonds sold in each state were as follows: Alabama, $4,330,000; Arkansas, $2,619,000; Florida, $6,636,000; Georgia, $2,906,000; Kentucky, $1,923,000; Louisiana, $2,726,000; Maryland, $2,319,000; Mississippi, $1,521,000; Missouri, $1,546,000; North Carolina, $2,502,000; Oklahoma, $1,023,000; South Carolina, $2,262,000; Tennessee, $2,054,000; Texas, $25,125,720; Virginia, $14,200,000; and West Virginia, $651,000.

CLINICS WILL AID DEALER IN KNOWING CARS THEY SELL

"The Overland Automobile Clinic" is the name of the new clinic building in the big Willoughby Overland building on Brookline avenue, Boston, Mass., for the benefit of the New England dealers.

"You know in medicine the only way you really find out about any or all ailments is to have clinics in the hospitals where the specialist and the leading doctors do the operating, or prescribe the treatment, while the juniors and the students stand around, watch and listen, getting the benefit of the knowledge of their superiors," says Manager A. S. Fitch.

ADVANCE OF AUTOS IS WONDER OF AGE

"Not so very many years ago the appearance of a horseless carriage upon the public streets was the signal for every one to line up at the curb, marvelling at the wonderful progress made in the mechanical arts that produced a mechanism that would run under its own power wherever its driver willed. The automobile of a score of years ago was a queer thing to look upon from present day standpoints, but to the public of that day it was a work of art."

"The marvelous advance of automotive industry is perhaps the greatest wonder of the commercial age. Electricity and the manufacture and control of the power that lights, heats and conveys us from place to place over interurban routes, traces its development back to the days of Franklin, Simon Ohm, Michael Faraday, Volta and others, and its advance was spread over a long period of years. The motor car of today is young in years, but has advanced remarkably."

"It was only about 15 years ago that the first factory began building motor cars," says Mr. Britain of the Buick Motor Car company, in discussing motor car development. "And yet today Buick stands with other more expensive cars in the quality class. The same man who built the first Buick is still at the helm, and they are doing just as they did then, putting everything into their product that experience and modern practice advise for the best results."

When the birds are protected from the extremes of weather, one can then obtain high egg production by proper feeding. In feeding the flock some form of animal feed is necessary. This can be supplied in either of the following forms: meat scraps, tankage or milk. All of these forms supply the necessary animal food and it is necessary to balance the feed properly with grain. The following is a good laying ration:

Scratch feed, 100 lb., wheat, 100 lb., cracked corn, and 100 lb. oats. Mash feed, 100 lb., bran, 100 lb., ground corn, 100 lb., ground oats, 50 lb. tankage (50 per cent protein).

In sections where milk or kaffir is grown it can replace the corn to very good advantage. In case meat scrap is used instead of tankage, use 100 pounds of the meat scrap. However, if the fowls have all the milk, either skim milk or buttermilk, they can drink it, it will entirely replace the meat scrap or tankage.

The scratch feed should be fed in a deep little of straw twice a day at the rate of 10 or 12 pounds a day for each 100 hens. Only a light feed (from 2 to 4 pounds) of scratch should be given in the morning. The mash should be left before the birds, so they will consume equal parts of mash and grain. In case the birds are not consuming enough mash, the amount of scratch feed should be decreased.

Letters have gone out to dealers and they pick out the bird they can attend. A certain number will be chosen every week. We shall take down a car and illustrate to them all the short cuts, the methods of repair, the faults of units—for even some units have faults—and in addition to our men detailing what they have learned through years of repair, men from the electrical factories will discuss coils, timers etc., oil men will tell about fuel, and so on, until the dealer and his service manager will know a great deal more about the cars they are handling than ever before.

"The time has come by when you order a carload of cars shipped to a dealer, and then forget him until another order is due him. You must reach out to help him solve all his problems, and keeping him out of trouble is the only way to meet the present day demand for transportation."

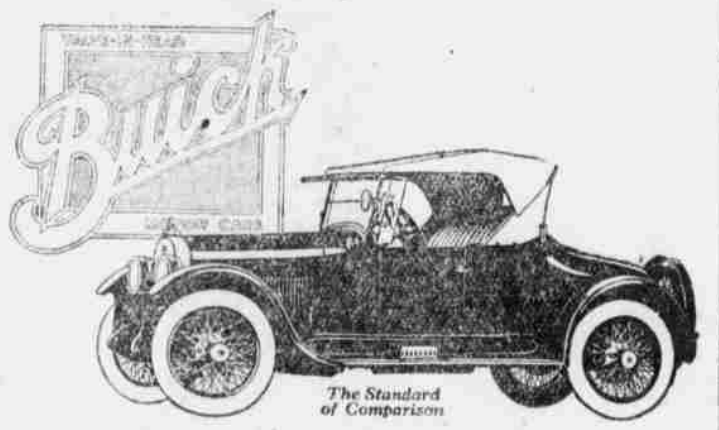

BARNYARD IS RAIDED AGAIN BY FASHION

Paris, Dec. 3.—Fashion, in her ever insistent search for novelty, again has invaded the barnyard. Rooster feathers have come back. They are the latest thing on smart Paris hats, and even on evening covers. All colors are used and when the rooster can't supply the shade, the dyer does. However, natural white and black are the most popular colors.

Rooster feathers probably are about as cheap a material as can be found, but their use on cloths has not lowered the price of bouffants. One little hat shop is displaying these "simple but smart" things at 750 francs, while other stores ask 500 and 600 francs.

MISSIONARY TO WEST SOUDAN WILL USE MOTORCYCLE IN WORK

Rev. J. H. Taylor, who is a representative of the Assembly of God, an interdenominational religious organization, with headquarters in Springfield, Mo., has sailed for Liverpool, England, from whence he will in turn embark for the French West Soudan, to resume mission work among the Mosi tribe, which numbers approximately 2,000,000, and is the tribe from which Battling Siki, the conqueror of Carpentier, originates. Mr. Taylor's headquarters are at Augustouga Haute Volta, French West Africa. He has been doing mission work among the Mosi nations for over eleven years. They are scattered along a territory of some 1,500 miles in length. In the past it has been his custom to make his visits afoot and it took him approximately two years to cover the territory from end to end. This time, however, he will carry back with him an Indian motorcycle, to use in his mission work and which he figures will enable him to quadruple his efforts in dispensing the gospel of Christianity among this heathen race. He says that the motorcycle is ideally adapted to follow the mountainous trails and to perfect roads and will take him to places that would be inaccessible to any other motor vehicle.
