PRESIDENT HAS ACTED TO PLACE LIMIT ON SMALL TYPE WARSHIPS

Harding Has Been Engaged for Several Months With the Question of Negotiating With Big Powers

CALIFORNIA SOLON GIVES INFORMATION

Sub-Committee Had Not Consulted the Chief Executive Prior to Presentation of the Measure

Washington, Dec. 14.—President Harding, according to a statement made in the house today, "has been engaged for several months" with the question of negotiating with the big powers abroad, relative to limiting the construction of warships under 10,000 tons, which he is requested to do under a provision of the navy supply bill.

This information as to the reported attitude of the president was given by Representative Linberger, republican, California, during a brief flurry of debate while Chairman Kelley of the sub-committee, in charge of the measure, was seeking to explain the reasons for the request. It was admitted, by a surprise to the committee, that the president had not been consulted prior to presentation of the bill.

Mr. Kelley had just declared that while the arms conference had afforded a not unimportant opportunity for the general staff of the navy had recommended a projected program, under the 10,000 ton limitation, entailing the expenditure of $231,000,000.

"The gentleman is requesting the president to do something which we and every one knows he has been engaged in doing for several months past," interrupted Mr. Linberger.

"I would prefer to leave to the president the question of whether or not he is doing something that he has been doing for months," he replied.

"The only other reference to the president was made by Representative Byrnes, South Carolina, ranking democrat of the sub-committee, who said he did not know what Mr. Linberger had told the house. 'The president now is at work upon some plan for the calling of another conference for limitation of armaments.'"

"I assume that the gentleman has the information from the president," Mr. Byrnes added, "and I am delighted to know that is true. I must say that I should value the information more and about it I feel more confident than I do if I could have the gentleman state that he did not get it from the president. So far as I am concerned, it is my dearest hope that it is correct."

Many questions were directed at Mr. Kelley by the committee, but he had done in the matter of naval reduction.

"I do not think any nation has undertaken to destroy any of its ships, although the British navy has scrapped some of its old ships, which she had already been to scrap before the conference," he said.

Chairman Butler of the naval committee broke into the discussion. "We have accomplished just this by this," he said. "We have traded the sixteen-inch gun and two eight-inch guns, and Representative Britten, Illinois, ranking republican of the committee, declared 'we have lost the opportunity to become the first naval power and we shall probably be the second or third.'"

Generally, the bill had easy sailing. Mr. Byrnes and Representative Oliver, democrat, Alabama, another member of the sub-committee, discussed the measure in detail and explained how the conference had affected the building programs. Mr. Oliver said that out of ten battleships and six battle cruisers authorized by the 1916 program, only three would be retained by the navy under the arms treaty.

Taking up the bill item by item the house had covered one-fourth of the distance when it quit to-morrow while an election contest is given right of way.

BALFOUR POLICY IS FLOORED BY BRITISH LEADER

Bonar Law Favors Adjustment of Inter-Allied Debts
by an All Cancellation,
He Tells Commons

London, Dec. 14.—Premier Bonar Law in an important statement in the house of commons today declared frankly for the policy of the Balfour note, which advocated an adjustment of inter-allied debts by an all round cancellation, England, on her part, surrendering her share of reparations to be paid by Germany.

Thus the prime minister indicated that the government, despite its first declaration that the Balfour note no longer existed so far as the present British govern-ment is concerned and that it would not consider itself bound by it, feels impelled to the same policy as the previous government.

The remainder of Mr. Bonar Law's speech was devoted to a discussion of the reparations and the United States—France, a plea for moderation in dealing with Germany on the ground that the country is already on the verge of collapse; to America, a call for help and co-operation in settling the difficult problems of reparations and inter-allied debts.

Another important phase of his speech was the dark picture drawn of the economic situation and industrial future, should the much hoped for improvement in trade not materialize.

The prime minister showed the utmost anxiety that there should be no misunderstanding of British feelings towards both France and the United States and said that it was only England's difficult position he was making clear. Eng-land was burdened with very heavy taxation, which was a clog on industrial enterprise, resulting in terrible unemployment—a problem that made it necessary, first, that there should be no military occupation of German territory, which would still further handicap European trade without producing results in cash, and, second, com-pelled him frankly to face the fact that England was unable to pay the American debt if she received nothing from Europe.

Strong points in the speech were the unfairness of the view that because England had made sacri-fices to pay her debts, while others who had made no such sacri-fices escaped, and the warning that too sudden deflation in Ger-many might produce a revolution, a complete breakdown from which other countries are already suffer-ing.

In the subsequent debate the most noteworthy contribution was by James Macdonald, the labor leader. Mr. Lloyd George also spoke but confined himself to a brief expression of complete approval of Mr. Bonar Law's speech.

Mr. Macdonald, on the contrary, gave a complete elucidation of the policy of the labor party.

GEORGE HARVEY COMING TO U. S. FOR SHORT STAY

Anxiety About His Wife's
Health Is the Reason
Ascribed for the Trip to America at This Time

London, Dec. 14 (by the As-sociated Press).—The American am-bassador, Colonel George Harvey, is returning to the United States almost immediately for a short visit. The reason ascribed for his visit is his anxiety about his wife's health, which has been un-satisfactory lately. The ambassador desires to give her a much needed rest.

WASHINGTON OFFICIALS DECLINE TO COMMENT

Washington, Dec. 14 (by the As-sociated Press).—Word of the re-turn of Ambassador Harvey to this country for a short visit was re-ceived unexpectedly in Washing-ton and officials would not com-ment upon it in the light of an on-going investigation into the at-tacking of the ambassador's car. It is believed the ambassador will undoubtedly confer with President Harding, Secretary Hughes, Sec-etary Mellon and perhaps other government officials on different subjects, especially those affecting the relations of the United States with Great Britain and Europe.

The Washington government has made no secret of its interest in European problems and its con-cern at the sudden breach among the allies due to their inability to find a mutually accepted basis of action regarding German repara-tions. It has been stated on White House authority that the Wash-ington administration has not been inactive with respect to such prob-lems nor lacked intimate pictures of what was transpiring abroad. It has also been said repeatedly by White House officials that the United States is anxious to help in adjustment of Europe's vexing questions if any way can be found to do so without entangling this country politically with disputes not its own.

Presumably the ambassador will be back at his London post before the allied premiers resume their reparations discussion after the year end. If so he will, without question be able to communicate the views of the American govern-ment on all the matters with which the premiers must deal should it prove that the Washington govern-ment has seen what it hopes might afford a way out of the reparations difficulty. The ambassador would in all probability be directed to sound out European feeling in ad-vance of any formal suggestion.

EFFORT WILL BE MADE TO HURRY LEGISLATION TO ASSIST FARMERS

Senate Champions of the Proposal Will Attempt to Set Aside the Administration Shipping Bill

TEST TO COME NOT LATER THAN MONDAY

Marine Subsidy Measure Is Under Another Day's Fire
From Fletcher; Lafollette
Speaks Today

Washington, Dec. 14.—Plans were made today by senate cham-pions of farm credits legislation to bring to a head earlier than first scheduled their effort to set aside the administration shipping bill in the senate. The test, it was said, might be made tomorrow or Sat-urday and not later than Monday, with the result in doubt, in view of the new program of the agrarian group.

Instead of waiting for the senate banking committee to report a gen-eral farm credits bill, members of the farm bloc who also are oppo-nents of the shipping measure laid plans today to urge the Norris ag-ricultural export corporation bill for immediate consideration to the temporary displacement of the shipping bill.

Committee Meets Today
The senate agricultural commit-tee was called to meet tomorrow to act on the Norris bill. Commit-tee members said they expected the bill to be reported favorably to-morrow Saturday and declared they would urge its being given immediate right of way in the senate.

Administration leaders promised to resist such a movement.

Chairman Jones of the com-merce committee, in charge of the shipping bill, and other admin-istration leaders have announced their readiness to lay aside the shipping bill when the general farm credits bill is ready for con-sideration, but they are against giving way to the Norris export bill. They declared the Norris bill would not hinder the support of the shipping measure or the agricultural export corporation bill that is assured for the general farm credits program.

Chairman Jones today made an unsuccessful effort to launch the senate sessions by an hour to ex-pedite the shipping bill. Demo-crats objected to his request that the senate meet an hour earlier than usual because it would inter-fere with committee considering the farm credits legislation. A compromise was reached, however, by which routine business is to be dispensed with tomorrow without requiring the senate to meet ear-lier.

Attacks Shipping Bill
The shipping measure was under another day's fire today from Sen-ator Fletcher of Florida, ranking democrat of the commerce com-mittee, and tomorrow Senator La-follette, republican, Wisconsin, is to open his attack on the measure. While the shipping bill was being debated in the senate, the bank-ing and agricultural committees con-ducted work on the farm credits measure.

HAPPENINGS AT WASHINGTON IN TABLOID FORM

The day in Washington.—The census bureau reported that cotton consumption in November was the greatest in any month since October, 1917.

Hearings on oil and gasoline prices were resumed by a senate manufacturers sub-committee, with W. C. Taggart, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey as a witness.

Secretary Dwyer announced that drilling of oil gas wells to pre-vent draining of oil reserves on the Navajo and Hopi lands in California would proceed immediately.

Secretary Wallace, in testimony before the Interstate Commerce commission, supported the appli-cation of the western states for lower transportation rates on hay and grain.

President Harding, in a letter read at the national council of the National Marketing asso-ciations, endorsed their activi-ties as an effective means of pro-viding relief to agriculture. Sec-etary Wallace also endorsed them.

Two senate committee hearings on various forms of credit propo-sals continued with Eugene Meyer, Jr., director of the War Finance corporation, among the witnesses urging enactment of relief legisla-tion.

A resolution was offered in the house by Representative Newton of Missouri, endorsed by 20 other republican representatives, for a seventy million dollar appropriation to relieve famine conditions in Germany and Austria.

The house, beginning considera-tion of the naval appropriation bill, was told by Representative Linberger, republican of Cali-fornia, that President Harding has been engaged with the question of negotiating with the big powers for a limitation in construction of smaller craft. Representative Kelley, republican of Michigan, in charge of the measure, said the navy department had recommended a construction program costing $281,000,000.

Representative Keller, republic-an of Minnesota, refused to pro-ceed further before the house in-dustrial committee with his im-peachment charges against Atter-ney General Daugherty, declaring the proceedings were a "comic opera." He was summoned to ap-pear before the committee to give testimony under oath as to his charges of high crimes and misde-means against Mr. Daugherty.

37 PLANES WILL JOIN IN SEARCH FOR LOST FLYERS

Largest Fleet Ever Sent Aloft on a Similar Mission Will Hunt for Aviator Marshall and Webber

San Diego, Calif., Dec. 14.—Sov-iet-American planes, manned by the pilot of the army's aerial forest patrol fliers and the most skilled cross country pilots in the air squadron or the Pacific battle fleet, will take wing from North Island here tomorrow to assist in the search for Colonel Francis C. Marshall and Lieutenant C. L. Webber, missing aviators.

The fleet is said to be the largest ever sent aloft on a mission of this kind at one time. The addition of the de Havillands leaving tomorrow will bring the total of airplanes in the search to 37.

Eighteen planes from the 1st squadron arrived here from Chris-tian Field, San Francisco, today. Five more are expected early to-morrow. These and four navy planes will comprise the fleet to be sent here.

NIGHT QUARTERS ARE ORDERED ESTABLISHED

San Francisco, Dec. 14.—Virtu-ally every available airplane flew off the army base at Crissy Field to aid in the search for Colonel Francis C. Marshall and Lieutenant C. L. Webber, army aviators, who are believed lost somewhere along the Mexican border. It was an-nounced today by Major George H. Brett, commander of the air ser-vice in the ninth corps area.

A plan for a recon-naissance of the border was consid-ered by the border himself came in contact with the stream, the full contents of the boiler emptied it-self into the coach. Many of those within died without know-ing what happened. It is believed. Members of the board of inquiry included Humble citizens and rail-road officials.

WILL RESUME SEARCH WHEN WEATHER CLEARS

Nogales, Ariz., Dec. 14.—Rainy and cloudy weather prevented ex-tended expeditions by the airplanes engaged in the search for Colonel Francis C. Marshall and Lieuten-ant C. L. Webber today.

A plan for a recon-naissance of the border was consid-ered by the border himself came in contact with the stream, the full contents of the boiler emptied it-self into the coach. Many of those within died without know-ing what happened. It is believed. Members of the board of inquiry included Humble citizens and rail-road officials.

The board found that the regular crews of both the switch engine and passenger train were blame-less for the wreck. It was estab-lished that the crew had left the switch engine spotted in the usual place and clear of the main line in short time before the accident. The engine then was moved by some unknown party and, while switching, the passenger train ap-proached before the engine was clear.

18 PERSONS ARE KILLED IN TRAIN CRASH IN TEXAS

Board of Inquiry Sitting at Humble Is Said to Have Developed Some Startling
Testimony

Houston, Texas, Dec. 14.—While the death toll in Wednesday's rail-tragedy at Humble increased to 18 today, a board of inquiry sitting at Humble developed some startling testimony, according to rail officials.

Witnesses before that body tes-tified that the throttle of the switch engine sidetracked at 10 p. m. Wednesday, or Houston, East and West Texas passenger train No. 28, was found open after the crash. Other witnesses said that the locomotive was moving slowly away from the main line intersec-tion at the moment of impact.

J. H. Smith, aged watchman, in charge of the switch engine, could not be found to testify after the accident. He was taken to a hos-pital in Houston. His injuries proved slight and he left soon afterwards. He is being sought by sheriff's officers to give his testi-mony.

While the death toll increased to 18, the number of injured was 14. Of these, little hope is held out for three.

Of the dead, nine succumbed after being brought to Houston hospitals for treatment.

Based on testimony obtained by the board it was found that a two-inch pipe leading from the water tender to the boiler was stripped from its mooring alongside the en-gine, spotting steam and hot water. The engine then came in contact with the stream, the full contents of the boiler emptied it-self into the coach. Many of those within died without know-ing what happened. It is believed.

Members of the board of inquiry included Humble citizens and rail-road officials.

The board found that the regular crews of both the switch engine and passenger train were blame-less for the wreck. It was estab-lished that the crew had left the switch engine spotted in the usual place and clear of the main line in short time before the accident. The engine then was moved by some unknown party and, while switching, the passenger train ap-proached before the engine was clear.

RUSSIAN COMMUNIST LEADER IS ARRESTED
Rome, Dec. 14.—M. Zinovieff, the Russian communist leader, has been arrested in Bologna, accord-ing to the Giornale d'Italia.

Zinovieff was taken into cus-tody while aboard a train bound from Trieste to Rome. He was coming to the capital, according to the newspaper, in an effort to bring about a union between the Maximist and communists in order to present a solid revolution-ary front against the fascist gov-ernment.

According to the Giornale d'Italia, M. Zinovieff protested at his seizure, declaring he was not the bolshevik leader, as was sup-posed, but in reality, former im-perial counselor under the czar. It is alleged he told different stories to the Triest and Bologna police.

No confirmation of the Giornale d'Italia's report is available from any source. Zinovieff is one of Lenin's closest and most trusted associates.

With $3,000,000 alone appropri-ated the state of New Mexico will not receive more than $30,000 for its share of national forest devel-opment purposes and about $23,000 for use on the main highways crossing the forests. Under the act of Congress of November 6 of last year the state of New Mexico received $435,000 for forest main highways.

WALLACE URGES CUT RATES FOR FARM PRODUCTS

Will Be a Readjustment of Industrial and Agricultural Production Unless a Reduction Is Made

Washington, Dec. 14.—There will be a general readjustment of industrial and agricultural pro-duction in the United States unless some reductions are made by rail-roads in rates on agricultural prod-ucts, Secretary Wallace of the ag-ricultural department testified to-day at a hearing before the Inter-state Commerce commission. The hearing was on an application of western states for a reduction in the rates on grain, grain products and hay.

The agricultural industry is pass-ing through a crisis, is just as in the worst ever experienced, Sec-etary Wallace said. Prices on the products of farms have been low-ered during previous depression, but they have never been so low when compared to the prices of things which farmers buy.

"I do not wish to say that in-creased freight rates are a burden for the farmer's condition, but they do add an additional bur-den," he asserted.

"While agriculture, as a whole, is better off than it was a year ago, in the territory covered by this case, the grain and hay producing sections of the west, conditions are not good. If the rates stay as they are, the result will be a pro-duction of surplus crops and a readjustment in agriculture and industry of this country. It will be, for instance, the effort of all the eastern states to increase production of such crops as grain and hay in their own territory rather than to take them from pro-ducing areas in the west.

"As a matter of national econ-omy, would it be better to have the surplus of such crops be sold at a loss to the farmer, or to have them become self-sustaining in the supply of these bulky commodities?"

Commissioner Meyer asked.

"Of course, there is an argument on both sides," Secretary Wallace responded. "But personally I do not believe that it would be well to shut off the western supply by maintaining high freight rates. One result of such a policy would be to install a system of supplying the Atlantic seaboard consumers with products from Argentina, South America, and the world gen-erally. That would not up to us the task of maintaining the free-dom of the seas and it might de-velop schisms between the east and west in tariff quarrels and other details. I would not care to go into here."

"Freight rates are not the en-tire trouble," Secretary Wallace said. "But if the depression con-tinues, farmers will leave the farm."

Commissioner Meyer asked if in Mr. Wallace's judgment the price of commodities ought to be con-trolled in making the railroad rates on these commodities. The sec-etary replied that in his opinion, this factor certainly should go into the making of rates.

Secretary Wallace agreed that prices of farm products have ad-vanced substantially in recent weeks, but said he did not consider the advance sufficient to change his views of rate requirements.

RAILWAY OPERATOR FRACTURES SKULL IN MOTORCYCLE CRASH

Baton, N. M., Dec. 14.—William Day, operator for the Santa Fe at Wootton station, who was injured recently while riding on his motor-cycle on the state highway, is re-ported to have sustained a frac-ture of the skull and a broken nose, besides bodily injuries. The accident occurred near Gallinas canyon when the motorcycle crash-ed into an embankment. Passen-gers by the train and taken to the Santa Fe hospital at La Junta.

FOREST ROADS APPROPRIATION CUT BY BUREAU

Amount of $6,500,000 Authorized by Congress Is Reduced to $3,000,000
by Bureau of Budget

Under the postoffice appropria-tions act of June 19, 1922, con-gress authorized an appropriation of $6,500,000 for national forest roads and trails. Congress hav-ing authorized the appropriation of this amount, many people gained the impression that the full amount would actually be appro-priated for this purpose.

However, such is not the case. It would require additional legis-lation to actually appropriate the money. And the bureau of the budget, after analyzing the esti-mates of the various departments recommended to congress an ap-propriation of only $3,000,000 for national forest roads and trails, ac-cording to the official publication of the forest service and forest patches received from Washington.

This tremendous reduction is ap-parently in keeping with the pol-icy of the administration on re-trenchment. However, it is going to prove a serious blow to the west-ern states, which contain the greatest area of the national forest. It will leave an entirely in-sufficient amount for building roads within the forests.

It will prove a blow to these states in road construction. Here-fore the states, particularly those containing large forest areas, have relied upon federal appropriations for constructing these roads.

New Mexico will be particularly hard hit by the serious reduction. There are several sections of the primary road system of this state crossing the forests. In the ab-sence of liberal federal appropria-tions covering the forests, con-struction of these sections of road will have to be deferred.

The forest service has relied upon road and trail appropriations for use in opening up the timber and forest resources of the state to them. A great deal has been accomplished along this line but it is only infinitesimal com-pared to the needs of the state.

Without liberal federal forest road and trail appropriations the forest service would not have been in a position to build the splendid road into the Manzana national forest through the Toleno canyon. This road will prove a great boon to the people of Albuquerque in furnishing beautiful recreational grounds. It will also facilitate the administration of the Manzana forest.

With $3,000,000 alone appropri-ated the state of New Mexico will not receive more than $30,000 for its share of national forest devel-opment purposes and about $23,000 for use on the main highways crossing the forests. Under the act of Congress of November 6 of last year the state of New Mexico received $435,000 for forest main highways.

"I found six men in the middle of the crowd and they were being pushed about by the crowd. Three of them were still breathing, I think."

"Did you see anything else of wounded or dead men?"

"Yes, we drove down the road in an automobile and saw four more dead—one of them was hanging to a tree."

Mr. Lantz said that he could not identify any of those he had seen with guns except Herbert Walker, who is not one of the defendants in the present case, an indictment against him having been set aside at the time of the prosecution.

Objection Sustained
I. N. Lewis, corroborated his brother's testimony regarding the finding of the bodies. He also told of having had a conversation with him. An objection by the defense to a question regarding the nature of the conversation was sustained by the court. He was permitted to say, however, that they met Wal-ker an hour before he found the bodies.

WINTER RANGES ARE REVISED IN WESTERN STATES

Snow and Rain Have Improved Conditions; Marketing of Cattle for the Fall Is Nearly Completed

Denver, Dec. 14.—Winter ranges in the western states have been improved generally since Novem-ber 1. In the north chiefly by snow and in the south by rain and com-paratively high temperatures, ac-cording to a statement issued here today by the crop and livestock estimate bureau of the department of agriculture. The rains in the south not only have provided wa-ter for stock but have aided the growth of wheat which will be available for grazing and in Texas, grass has also been benefited.

The average condition of ranges in the western states for December 1, compared with 81 per cent on No-vember 1. The condition of en-tire averaged 83 per cent of normal compared with 78 per cent on No-vember 1 while the condition of sheep on December 1 was 83, the same as one month earlier.

Hay and other feed are report-ably in good condition. Prospective needs in South Dakota and Ne-braska, but the supply either is deficient or scarcely equal to needs in Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Col-orado and Oklahoma. In Oklaho-ma cattle were put on winter feed about 10 days earlier than usual.

Marketing of cattle for the fall season is nearly completed and is reported to have been much heavier than usual, although en-dered in some extent by the short-age of cars. Financial conditions scarcely or pastures in some re-gions are not so good as they were a year ago. The heavy snow covering the ranges have forced cattle on the market despite prices which were not satisfactory to producers. The number of cat-tle supported for shipment by the Colorado state board of health, for the first ten months of 1922, was 279,000, compared to 247,000 for the corresponding period of last year.

In New Mexico 375,000 were in-spected compared to 294,000 for ten months last year.

In Arizona the fall shipments for cattle totaled 160,000, compared to 101,000 in 1921, and 112,000 in 1920.

Sheep in the west are reported to be in good condition and to have improved in the last month.

COTTON CONSUMED

Washington, Dec. 14.—Cotton consumed during December amounted to 577,561 bales of lint and 53,322 of linters, compared with 537,840 of lint and 42,496 of linters in October this year and 527,910 of lint and 57,949 of lint-ers in November last year, the census bureau announced today.

According to government offi-cials Kiel declared he received $2,100 in cash as his share of the proceeds of the robbery. He said he had spent all of the money and officials say he furnished a list showing he had expended the money in the following manner:

Out stock bought at Trinidad, $650; debt, $160; railroad trans-portion while escaping from offi-cers, $750; lost playing poker, $300; clothes, $65; miscellaneous, $172.

TENSE AUDIENCE HEARS STORIES OF SLAYING OF NON-UNION MEN

Witnesses Tell of Prisoners
Being Shot Down in Cold
Blood During the Rioting
at Herrin, Ill.

SEVERAL WERE TIED TOGETHER WITH ROPES
At Least Two of the Defendants Are Identified
From the Stand as Having Been Mob Members

Marion, Ill., Dec. 14 (by the As-sociated Press).—The march of several hundred armed men driv-ing before them through the streets of Herrin, six bloodstained prisoners and the later finding of twenty bodies were described to the jury by several witnesses to-day at the trial of five men in connection with riot.

Before a tense audience which packed the somber, dimly-lighted court room to the doors and over-flowed into the stairway leading to it and the corridors below, wit-nesses for the state pointed out three of the defendants as men they knew while being driven to their hands the morning of the tragedy.

Six of the bodies, according to the testimony of J. Marshall Lantz, a Herrin state dealer, and T. N. Lantz, his brother, who is a blacksmith and a member of the United Mine Workers of America, were bound together with a single rope about their necks. Fourteen other dead or injured victims were found just outside the Herrin cem-tery on the outskirts of the town they testified.

Prisoners Driven Ahead
Marshall Lantz, the first of the two to take the stand, testified to seeing a crowd of several hundred men passing before his house in Herrin during the morning of June 22, the day of the killing. He said that the crowd was shouting and singing and looked like a mob and that "about six prisoners with ropes about their necks being driven ahead." Later, he said, he had gone with his brother through the woods at the edge of the village.

"But did you see in the woods any of the men who had been shot down and some armed men," he replied and added that he had then gone toward the city cemetery.

"What did you find there?" asked Deles Dux, state's attorney.

"I found six men in the middle of the crowd and they were being pushed about by the crowd. Three of them were still breathing, I think."

"Did you see anything else of wounded or dead men?"

"Yes, we drove down the road in an automobile and saw four more dead—one of them was hanging to a tree."

Mr. Lantz said that he could not identify any of those he had seen with guns except Herbert Walker, who is not one of the defendants in the present case, an indictment against him having been set aside at the time of the prosecution.

Objection Sustained
I. N. Lewis, corroborated his brother's testimony regarding the finding of the bodies. He also told of having had a conversation with him. An objection by the defense to a question regarding the nature of the conversation was sustained by the court. He was permitted to say, however, that they met Wal-ker an hour before he found the bodies.

George Harrison, who has a farm at Herrin, near the scene of the slaying, told of seeing a group of about twenty-five men with a single prisoner near his farm.

"They started south with the prisoner and shot him down when he ran," he said.

Later the witness testified he saw another group of about twelve armed men enter a clump of woods with two prisoners. Then he heard shots, he added.

Points Out Grace
Mr. Harrison pointed out Bert Grace, a defendant, as one of the men he had seen with a gun in his hand. He also said he had seen Otis Maynard and Dallas Mc-Cree, neither of whom is a defend-ant. Maynard, he said, had no gun.

McCree, according to the wit-ness, with three other men whom he was unable to identify, came up to his barn and told him they wanted to go through the lot "to show him the mob whom he had let loose."

"What else did he say?" Har-ri-son was asked and replied:

He said: "We shot two of them before we let them go."

Another witness, Lawrence Beare, a Herrin truck driver, pointed out from the stand Joe Carnahan, a defendant, as a mem-ber of the mob whom he had seen carrying a pistol.

EITEL ENTERS PLEA OF GUILTY TO CHARGE OF ROBBERY THE MAELS

Denver, Colo., Dec. 14.—Abner Eitel, arrested in Kansas

TO CALL KELLER AS WITNESS IN DAUGHERTY CASE

Representative Refuses to Participate Further But the Committee Will Go on With the Probe

Washington, Dec. 14.—Representative Keller of Minnesota, refused late today to participate further in the hearings before the house judiciary committee on the impeachment charges brought by him against Attorney General Daugherty. Characterizing the hearings as "comic opera performance" he declared he would be untrue to his responsibility as a member of the committee if he continued further in a "barefaced attempt to whitewash Harry M. Daugherty."

Immediately after he announced his withdrawal, the session was adjourned and without leaving his place, voted to go on with the hearings; to subpoena Mr. Keller as a witness, put him under oath and question him as to reasons for his charges or high crimes and misdemeanors against the attorney general. Later he was summoned formally by the house sergeant at arms to appear before the committee at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Turn Comes Suddenly
This turn in the proceedings came with dramatic suddenness and was attended by a tumult and uproar seldom witnessed in a congressional committee room. After absenting himself much of the day, Mr. Keller appeared with a prepared statement in his hand and announced he desired to read it to the committee. He was refused the opportunity, but later made public the statement, which dealt in detail with his reasons for refusing to go on and embodied a demand that the committee favorably report his resolution to the house so that he might present his evidence "to an unbiased committee in the proper way."

"I reiterate now," the statement said, "that I am in possession of the evidence ample to prove Harry M. Daugherty guilty of all the high crimes and misdemeanors with which I have charged him."

Mr. Keller came into the committee room after a brief suspension of the hearing, requested by Jackson S. Ralston, counsel for Mr. Keller, so that he might confer with the minority members. When Mr. Keller asked to be heard, Paul Howland, counsel for Mr. Daugherty, demanded that the committee proceed with the hearing in the regular order agreed upon unless Mr. Keller desired to give testimony, in which event he should be sworn.

Announcing that he did not care to be sworn, Mr. Keller said his statement had to do with the "conduct of this hearing" and he demanded the right to read it.

"Is it your object to lecture the committee?" inquired Representative Goodknight of West Virginia.

"I may" was the response.

A General Hubbub
There was a general hubbub in which Chairman Volstead directed Mr. Keller to "sit down."

"I refuse to sit down," shouted Mr. Keller. "I want to read this letter and I submit it to you now," he said, as he strode rapidly to Mr. Volstead's desk upon which he laid the letter.

"Look here," shouted the chairman, "you haven't any right to control this proceeding; the committee controls it."

As Mr. Keller insisted upon being heard, Mr. Volstead again ordered him to take his seat.

"Do you refuse to hear?" shouted Mr. Keller.

"Well, we will have you sworn you can't leave this committee," the chairman returned.

"It is improper for you to say that," rejoined Mr. Keller. "I will say to you now that if I cannot be heard on this statement I refuse to proceed any more in this hearing. Nor do I expect to present any more evidence. I am through with you unless I can present this statement."

"That is just exactly what we expected from you from the start," give us a subpoena for Mr. Keller and let the sergeant at arms serve it on him. He is insulting this committee and trying to run it to suit himself."

Attorney Ralston then announced that in view of the contents of the letter submitted by Mr. Keller, "there is nothing for me to do but withdraw my appearance from the committee, which I do, thanking you for your personal courtesy to me."

"A Grandstand Play"
Representative Yates, republican, Illinois, declared that Keller's course was a "grandstand play, no staged and intended." Several other members declared that the hearings should go on and that Mr. Keller should be summoned and required to tell about his knowledge concerning his charges against Mr. Daugherty.

Mr. Howland also urged that the proceedings go forward, declaring that the attorney general had a right to demand it.

Finally the matter was put to a vote and the motion to continue carried Chairman Volstead remarking that if Mr. Keller "can produce evidence, we will go on as best we can."

In his statement addressed to the committee, Mr. Keller said he had made his decision to have nothing further to do with "these white washing proceedings" after consultation with his advisors, among them Samuel Untermyer of New York. Along with his statement, he made public a letter from Mr. Untermyer, who, writing under date of yesterday, said he "must refuse absolutely to have any connection with this manifestly biased, prejudiced white washing performance."

Ten Specific Complaints.
Mr. Keller set forth ten specific complaints against committee action. These included:

That every important decision by the committee as to procedure had been made in secret and without opportunity for himself or his counsel to be heard in advance.

That these secret operations had restricted him in presenting his evidence in the order in which it could be most "expeditiously and effectively" presented and that also they had taken from him the right to call his witnesses without first notifying the committee as to what they would testify.

That the committee had failed to comply with his request for the production of documents from the justice and other federal departments so that he might obtain from them, in advance, important evidence in support of his charges.

That the committee had "arrogated" to itself the right to determine what documents should be or should not be admitted into evidence by a "secret examination" of such documents.

That the committee had announced that it would "in secret and without opportunity for hearing or argument, correct the official record," by striking out such testimony as the committee might deem irrelevant.

That the committee had "one rule of procedure for the defense and another rule for the prosecution."

Seemingly Private Papers
That the hearing room at all times had been "crowded with official and unofficial representatives of the accused attorney general" that some of these agents have looked over my shoulder and spied upon my private papers and that others have surrounded my clerks and associates in the room and spied upon their conversation and interfered with their effort to assist me."

That the record of the hearings "is full of remarks of the committee that indicate bias and prejudgment of the case."

Before Mr. Keller announced his withdrawal, the committee completed the hearing of testimony on the second of the fourteen specifications that alleging failure to enforce the safety appliance acts, Thomas Stephenson, counsel for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, and Arthur Lovell, vice president of that organization, testified as to effective motive power on the railroads and their effort to obtain enforcement of the safety appliance laws by the department of justice.

HALF A MILLION HEAD OF CATTLE MOVED IN YEAR

Shipments Were Unusually Heavy During the Last Twelve Months Due to Extremely Dry Weather

Santa Fe, Dec. 14.—A movement of more than 500,000 head of cattle occurred in New Mexico during the fiscal year ending November 30, it is shown in the annual report which the cattle sanitary board has filed with Gov. M. C. McChesney. This movement was more than 100,000 head in excess of the movement during the previous year, and 10,000 head greater than the largest movement in the last 10 years. The heavy movement is attributed to the drought.

M. G. Keenan, secretary, who signs the report, declares that on the ranges there are increasing herds of wild horses, which practically have no market value. He recommends action by the legislature to rid the ranges of these wild horses, which are now numerous enough to form a serious nuisance.

Report of the sheep sanitary board, prepared by John B. Robertson, secretary, shows the condition of sheep to have varied from poor to good, according to location. Sheepmen generally are in better condition at the close of the year than at the close of the previous year. In spite of the drought, the condition of the industry is more prosperous, because prices of wool and lambs were nearly double the prices of the previous year.

Health of the sheep has been good, few cases of scabies being reported. No estimate of the number of sheep is given for the year, but there has been no general order for dipping. The sheep are counted at the dipping.

ORTIZ ARRESTED IN A RAID ON A SANTA FE HOUSE

County Assessor and Member of the Council, and Four Others, to Have a Preliminary Saturday

Santa Fe, Dec. 14.—Marcelino A. Ortiz, county assessor and member of the Santa Fe city council, was arrested late last night when a raid was made on a house which he is said to own, on De Vargas street. With Nicmaro Baca, M. V. Dohrer and Zeke Goode, described by the officers as "professional gamblers," Ortiz was lodged in the county jail, charged with violating the state anti-gambling law and with conducting a house of prostitution. All four were released this morning on bond, and will be given a preliminary hearing on Saturday afternoon.

Led by A. M. Edwards, assistant attorney general and assistant district attorney, the raiding device was made up of R. C. Bangs and T. J. Brooks, federal prohibition enforcement officers, and W. H. Wright, a special deputy sheriff. Wright is operating under direction of, and in co-operation with, the district attorney's office.

Officers report that liquor was found in the raid, and that federal charge for violation of the prohibition laws may be filed later. Several persons, listed by the officers as "suckers" in the game, were released, the raiding device and paraphernalia found in the place were seized by the officers.

Mr. Edwards said this afternoon that he not only had not been able to get any co-operation from the sheriff and the city marshal, but that he could not even trust them with knowledge of his plans, because he feared they would "tip off" the suspected parties.

Juan Shoemaker is sheriff, Benito Alarid is city marshal. Neither one participated in the raid.

CHILD WRITES THAT SANTA HAS NOT VISITED HER HOME FOR TWO YEARS—WILL HE COME THIS YEAR?

Did you know that there is a child in Albuquerque whom Santa Claus has not visited for two years, though she confidently expected him on two Christmas mornings? Did you know that there are children in Albuquerque whose wants are so simple and whose needs are so great that they almost forget to ask for toys, so badly do they need shoes and clothing? Perhaps they have forgotten, or never knew, what toys are.

Some of them, with a child's lack of knowledge of the cost of things, ask for presents that Santa probably never can bring. A little boy who has been unable to walk for several months because of rheumatism, wants a bicycle, now that he can use his legs. He says, if Santa Claus cannot afford to bring a bicycle, he will be satisfied with a pair of roller skates. "Mamma says we cannot afford a bicycle," his letter to Santa Claus goes on, "because Pappa has been out of work for so long, but maybe you can bring us one."

Postmaster Spitz, realizing that letters to Santa Claus that go to the dead letter office take with each of them the hope of childish hearts and that their non-delivery to the patron saint of the Christmas is the cause of many a youthful tragedy, has arranged to deliver to the Elks Community Christmas Tree committee all letters addressed to Santa Claus. The Elks will see to it that Santa answers the letters, as they have a way of communicating with him direct by wireless.

The Morning Journal, which is giving its co-operation to the raising of a fund for Santa's shopping for the Elks tree, will publish some of these letters from time to time. The names of the children are deleted from the letters, but if any person wishes to bring Santa to any of these homes he can obtain the names and addresses from the Morning Journal or from the Elks committee at the club house.

Following are some of the more interesting letters.

PROHIBITION IS A FLAT FAILURE PARKER ASSERTS

Governor of Louisiana Would Abolish the Saloon and Permit Light Wines and Beer to Be Sold

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Dec. 14.—The country was urged to turn its attention to the development of its resources by Governor Thomas E. Campbell of Arizona in an address before nearly a score of chief executives attending the fourteenth annual convention of governors, who opened here today. The day was given over to consideration of farm legislation and industrial problems.

"We have all been looking for untapped sources of taxation for the last few years and have tapped these resources until the burden has become too heavy," Governor Campbell said. "We now should hunt up new ways to create new wealth rather than hunt new ways to tax the old."

The idea, he added, was represented in the Smith-McNary bill calling for $350,000,000 for reclamation purposes. He said he favored the treaty between Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Nevada, California and Arizona, now before the various legislatures for ratification, which would bring about utilization of the waters of the Colorado river for reclamation of desert land.

Proposed Deep Waterway Governor J. A. O. Preuss of Minnesota discussed the St. Lawrence deep waterway, asserting that westerners felt some persons in New York were feeling a narrow view of the situation.

New Yorkers, he said, seemed to believe that this country was built up for the benefit of New York and that they were justified in taking toll off western farmers by blocking a plan for shipping grain direct to the various parts of the world, instead of through New York.

He ridiculed the suggestion that the waterways proposal was advanced for the benefit of power companies, declaring the 18 western states could not all be in the employ of electric companies.

He then invited the delegates to sign resolutions adopted at a recent Chicago conference of 18 governors, urging President Harding to aid the project.

Prohibition and the Ku Klux Klan were considered prominently at the governors' meeting tonight.

Denounces Klan Governor John M. Parker of Louisiana, in an address, declared prohibition was a flat failure and denounced the Ku Klux Klan. He was joined in his attack on the secret organization by Governor Oleott of Oregon, who referred to the Klan as a national menace.

The Louisiana governor said he referred to the subject of prohibition because of the intention of President Harding to call the governors in conference next month to "settle the matter of prohibition enforcement." Declaring that prohibition was almost a farce, he said that it was infinitely better to abolish the saloon, permit light wines and beer to be sold, and have the government regulate the manufacture and distribution of liquor with penalties for those who defied clear and explicit liquor laws. Both the prohibition question and the Ku Klux Klan, Mr. Parker said, were black clouds threatening law and order.

Listen, World!

WRITTEN AND ILLUSTRATED BY Elsie Robinson

This talk is about youngsters. Let it be known before we start that I am the grovelling slave of every young thing on earth, be it brown, black, white, red or yellow. However, this has not prevented me from accumulating a few facts about the juvenile tribe. Therefore, let us discourse on the Dual Personality of our Household Treasures, as evinced by their angelic behavior when some stranger takes them in hand, and their perfectly fiendish manners when confined within the sanctity of the home.

What mother has not known the exasperation of being told the following: "Why, Willie is a perfect darling if you know how to manage him! Look how wonderfully he behaves with ME! I thought you said he wouldn't eat baked potatoes?" He simply devoured them when I cooked them and asked for more. And I'm sure I don't see why you complain about his lack of tidiness! Why, the precious child picked up every single one of his toys without my saying a word. Of course I don't want to hurt your feelings, but really don't you suppose if you tried to understand him better...? Etc! etc!

Needless to say this delightful report on young William loses some of its brilliancy when Willie becomes a regular visitor and drops his company manners. He is "going good" because he was entrained with the delight of a new situation. His appetite for novelty was satisfied and he did not need to raise a rumpus to escape boredom.

Come to think of it, wouldn't we all "be good" and have much prettier manners if we played we were company officers? Intimacy certainly does rub off the varnish of politeness. But suppose we took vacations from each other now and then and went visiting? Not long visits which would disturb the domestic program, but little excursions into other lives and interests.

How about introducing more strangers into our homes and more new and strange ideas? Or stopping to realize that we all are truly strangers one to another from the day of our birth to our death, and showing due consideration for that.

We believe Mr. Hohenzollern got married again because he would have somebody around who would have to listen to him read from his book.—New York Tribune.

PRISONERS REBEL AT CUTTING MEALS FROM THREE TO TWO DAILY

Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 14.—Announcement of a reduction from three to two meals a day resulted in a demonstration by prisoners in the Lincoln Heights jail today.

When the lunch hour passed without lunch, the hundred prisoners, led, the police said, by 25 men said to be Industrial Workers of the World, serving short terms for picketing, raised red flags from the tanks and beat upon the cell doors and walls.

The ten guards on duty at that branch of the city jail were unable to quell the disturbance, so help was sent from Central, Hollywood and Hollenbeck Heights stations.

With the arrival of the reinforcements the trouble soon ended.

MARKETING OF FARM PRODUCTS TOPIC AT MEET

Endorsement of Co-Operative Selling Is Endorsed by Harding, Wallace, Klein and Many Others

Washington, Dec. 14.—Endorsement of co-operative marketing was expressed by President Harding, Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture, and Dr. Julius Klein, chief of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, and by a number of representatives of farmers' organizations, at the first meeting today of the National Council of Farmers Co-operative Marketing Associations. National organizations marketing major commodities were represented by several hundred delegates from thirty-five states.

In a message of greeting, read by Senator Ernst, republican, Kentucky, the president declared he knew of "no single movement that promises more help towards the present relief and the permanent settlement of agricultural conditions" than the co-operative organization of farmers to market their products.

The system, Secretary Wallace said, should act to avoid glutting markets with farm products and at the same time to obviate periods of scarcity, thus preventing both ruinously low prices to producers and high costs to consumers.

"If we can avoid these periods of feast and famine," he added, "the farmers will benefit more by a fairly stable price and the consumers will be able to buy what they need at more reasonable prices. Hence, as I see it, the organization and successful conduct of farmers co-operative associations result in a benefit both to the farmers and the people who consume the products."

The department of agriculture regards marketing as an essential part of production, he said, "and it seems to us just as much our business to help the farmer market his crop intelligently and get fair prices for them as it is to help him produce them in the first place. A productive agriculture must be a prosperous agriculture."

Declaring he wanted the government to do "everything within reason and sound procedure" for the aid of the farmers, President Harding said he was "filled with confidence that the farmers shall themselves co-operate to make the government's efforts doubly efficacious."

Advocates of co-operation in the council's efforts were made in behalf of their organizations by Walter Petet of Texas, for the National Farm Bureau Federation, Representative John C. Ketchum of Michigan, former officer of the National Grange, and W. C. Lanson of Kansas of the Farmers Union of America.

Arion Sapio of San Francisco, general counsel for the co-operative associations, told the delegates the principle of co-operation "was the merchandising of crops rather than 'dumping' them, utilization by the producers of the practice of spreading sales over a longer period to increase returns, and the prevention of high prices to consumers by obviating periods of scarcity. He said co-operative marketing was possible with every crop but had not progressed far with the great wheat crops because of the lack of leadership."

Carl Williams, president of the American Cotton Growers' exchange, said $50,000 would have been added to the buying power of cotton producers this year had they not been forced to "dump" their crop on the market. He added that, since July 1920, more than 150,000 cotton growers had signed contracts in marketing associations.

Fashion's Forecast

A SHIRT THAT WILL STAND WEAR

For hard wear, a man's shirt must be made of a durable material and with the parts that wear out first, re-enforced. This shirt which was designed with the workman especially in mind, is made with applied front and back yokes and one-piece full-length sleeves.

Plannel, khaki tan, chambray and cheviot shirtings are excellent materials to use. If you made this shirt of engineer chambray at 25c per yard it would cost about 90c.

The pattern cuts in sizes 14½, 15½, 16, 16½, 17, 17½, 18, 18½ and 19 inches neck measure. Size 15½ requires 3½ yards 36-inch material. Price 15c, stamps or coin (coin preferred).

Order patterns by number. Send all orders direct to Fashion Department, Albuquerque Morning Journal, 230 South Wells street, Chicago, Ill.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

When Renovating Fur
Use the blade of a safety razor for the cutting. Cut on the wrong side, not quite through, and then pull apart.

Old Potatoes Like New
Add a slice of lemon to the water in which old potatoes are boiled. It will prevent them from becoming discolored.

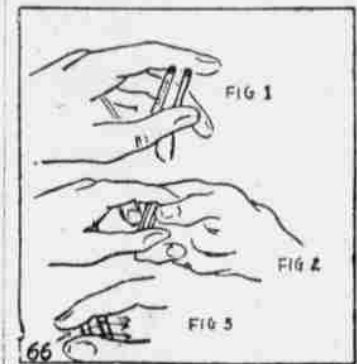

Envelopes as Holders
Excellent holders for tapes and buttons are the envelopes with transparent name spaces. A neat sewing table drawer is the result.

Will Whiten Wood
A little common soda added to the water with which you wash the sink board will keep the wood very white and free from stains.

To Tint Curtains
Add saffron to the rinsing water when washing ecur curtains. It will make them much prettier and softer shade than when coffee is used.

Does Double Duty
Iron the small pieces, such as handkerchiefs, napkins and collars, on top of the sheets and you will save a great deal of time and fuel.

After-Dinner Tricks

No. 66—The Mystic Matches
A pair of paper matches are shown by printing on one side, but to be blank on the other. They are held by the ends between the left thumb and forefinger. The right thumb and forefinger take the matches at the center and turn them over, but the printing is still uppermost, no matter how often they are turned.
The secret is a half twist made by drawing back the thumb a trifle. Thus every time the matches are turned over they make a complete twist, which saves the same side on top. The twist is indetectible, as the turning of the matches makes it unnoticeable.

AN ENGAGEMENT RING AND HAPPINESS

Chapter II

Seated beside him in his car, Nellie gave herself up to her happiness. He had torn to shreds her every objection. Surely he was wiser than she and, if he could see no complications in their mating, she ought to trust him and take the good the gods had provided her.

At a famous jeweler's they selected a ring. He laughed gaily at Nellie's modest taste, her look of almost awe as the salesman named the price of the beautiful stones he displayed. At last they agreed upon a medium sized diamond of purest water and when he slipped it on her finger, after they entered the car, he kissed both the ring and her finger.

"For luck, and her happiness," he said. Then they took a drive through the park while he told her over and over of his love; how it had grown daily as he watched her. And it was a very proud and happy girl he left at Mrs. Doty's door.

Alone, many of her misgivings returned, but not for long. She was too happy. And the ring on her finger seemed to promise permanence of that happiness.

She wouldn't take it off—not so soon—as she turned the stone around on the inside while at dinner. But afterward when she went in to tell Mrs. Roberts it sparkled its intelligence before she opened her mouth.

"You look very happy, Nellie. Have you something to tell me?" "Indeed I have! The most wonderful thing in the world." Then with many blushes she told her story of how she had at first refused to listen because of the difference in their station; of her fears, and of his brushing them away like cobwebs. "I told him all about myself, everything, but he said nothing mattered save that we loved each other. Then he took me to buy my ring. Isn't it lovely?"

"Very dear, and I am very glad of your happiness. Yet the old lady's eyes were troubled. I suppose you'll be leaving the office at once."

"He, Mr. George, wanted me to. But I told him I should stay until I earned enough to buy some new clothes. I wouldn't take anything from him before—not money. And I won't get married until I have things so he won't be ashamed of me."

"I don't think from what you have told me of him he ever would be that. Nellie. But I admire your independence. He will respect you for it, I am sure. Will you tell me others?" Meaning the boarders.

"No, I can't help it, if they suspect, but I shan't tell anyone but you—and perhaps Donald. He'll be glad for me."

Would he? Mrs. Roberts wondered. She knew that of late he had been more hopeful; that he was building air castles that when utterly demolished would cause him much sorrow. But she said nothing. Nellie now was beyond his reach.

For an hour Nellie chatted of her happiness, then lived with her emotions she crept off to bed, to sleep and dream of her Mr. George, of diamond engagement rings; of a marriage ceremony.

And in Mrs. Roberts's room, Donald, coming in late and hoping to find Nellie there, was having his hopes crushed. Mrs. Roberts told him of the engagement, of Nellie's happiness. By and by he too went to his room, but not to sleep. All night he sat by the window, fighting the sorrow that has come upon him, the destruction of his hopes. Nellie never must know—but how was he to bear it?

"You have wealth, position, everything! Why couldn't I have her?" he murmured. Yet when he saw Nellie it was in even, comradely terms he congratulated her; wished her all the happiness in the world. "I knew you would be pleased," she said, blushing. "You and Mrs. Roberts are the only ones I shall tell—here in the house. Of course I shall tell Cora and Gladys at telling me I should have asked her advice." And Nellie laughed heartily at the conceit.

"She loves him all right," Donald said, and if he had no nose for noses, he would have said so. "And, of course, he loves her. No one could help it."

Tomorrow—An Upsetting Visit from Dorothy Fallon.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a young man for nine months and he has asked me what I would like to have him give me for a Christmas present. I would love to have a wrist watch, but I do not know whether it would be correct for me to ask him for it since we are not engaged. I don't even know how much he expects to spend on my present. What would you advise?

MARIAN.

Tell the young man you want him to use his own judgment in selecting a gift. It would be far more correct for you to ask for a wrist watch, because it is not permissible to give jewelry before betrothal.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married for fifteen years. We have two children. My wife and I got along nicely until she started going to night dances. I don't think it is just the proper thing for a wife to do without her husband. I have requested her to refrain from going, but she refuses to listen to me.

I am willing to go other places with her, but I don't care for dances. She will not go anywhere with me, but she is on reason why I couldn't have a good time together. We have a little home and have a good job. I give her plenty of clothes, plenty to eat and money to spend, but she is not satisfied. I have tried every way to make conditions the best at all times. Now I am growing tired of her foolishness. She is old enough to realize what the duty of a wife is. She always wants to go out with others and not with her husband and children.

I may have my faults, however. I am willing at all times to be reasonable and will be under all conditions. I think it is a terrible thing to dissolve or break up a home. I would rather endure, but I think I have gone the limit. She knows that the people she goes out with are questionable. But it is useless for me to say anything to her because she would just cut me out. I will appreciate advice.

H. H. M.

You have told your story, but you have only given your point of view and not mentioned anything about your wife's attitude or complaints which would help me to solve your problem. There are two things I noticed in your letter which makes me feel you are not tactful in your relationship to her. First you speak of her being old enough to realize a wife's duty. Wives have heard about their duty for many generations, in fact since the world began, and at last they are beginning to resent the very word. Since you provide well for your wife, you have done your duty in a way, but you cannot expect to have her give up her individuality and think and do just what you think suitable. Perhaps you were selfish and did not give her the recreation she needed and therefore she rebelled and started to attend dances. My advice is to take dancing lessons and then invite her to go with you.

You have also said that you are willing to be reasonable at all times and under all conditions. That is a matter of point of view because your wife probably considers herself just as reasonable. As a matter of fact the most unreasonable people are those who are sure they are right and cannot understand the attitude of the other.

Don't try to be master of your wife. If she insists on going to dances, let her go. The sooner she feels her freedom and lack of interference from you, the sooner she will be willing to please you. Court her again and take her places you think she would enjoy. Let her see that her opinion in matters means something to you.

DOG HILL PARAGRAPHS

By GEORGE BINGHAM

Now the New Year is advancing with the noise of bells and drums, and we find its shape enshrining, and indorse it as it comes. We have recollections of the year that's in decline; for the new things we are grateful, old things must take in their sign. With a new year in the saddle there is due a brighter day, and we'll gambol and skeddadle gladly on our sunlit way. It will be a fruitful season, and the gentle rains will fall on the ground we planted peas on, and the vines that climb the wall. Everything we touch will flourish, in the new year's warming smile, and the gaudy dreams we nourish will come true in gorgeous style. We'll have credit at the butcher's and a stand-off everywhere, and the coin we want to fakers will come back, with some to spare. For the new year comes to burish every hope we have possessed, and our setting hens will furnish eighteen chickens to a nest. Oh, the new year is a winner, it's with fairy traits endowed, and we'll purchase from the under (unconscious) that makes us proud; and no ill will come to peevish. In our luck there'll be no hitch, and our maiden aunts will leave us legacies that make us rich. So we gambol and we skeddadle, fill the air with happy whoops, for the new year's at the portal, and the old one loops the loops.

BRAKES JAMMED ON LATE SEASON PLAYERS' SALES

Transfer of Baseball Stars
Cannot Be Made, Without Waiver, After June 15,
Club Owners Decide

New York, Dec. 14.—Major league baseball magnates in joint session today jammed the brakes on late season sales and deals and checked for a final time the outcry against the "buying of players." This was accomplished by the passing of a rule which prevents the transferring of players from one club to another in the major leagues without waiver process after June 15.

Heretofore, such deals were possible up to August 1. Under the new regulation the manager of a team after June 15 cannot increase the playing strength of his club except by purchase of players from the minor leagues.

To effect this rule, the clubs next season will be permitted to carry a roster of forty players up to June 15 in place of May 15 and the additional month will enable them to experiment and ascertain the value of younger players who heretofore have been shunted back to the minors unless they flashed stardom during the first month of the pennant race. An effort to increase the maximum number of players permitted any one club previous to June 15 from forty to fifty was lost after the National league had voted in favor of it and the American against it, when Commissioner Landis voted in the negative. However, major league clubs hereafter will be permitted to permit a player being held under option for three years in place of two was defeated.

Outstanding changes in the code governing the regulation of the National and American leagues from the standpoint of the fan. Several other changes were made but they pertained to the technical and legislative side of the game.

There was no discussion of the suggested return to nine games in place of the present seven in the world's series and no agreement was reached between the two leagues to open upon the same day next season.

As the situation stands at present, the National is to begin on Tuesday, April 17, and the American league on Wednesday, April 18. It appeared to be the general opinion, however, that when the schedule committee meets in February this confusion of opening dates may be rectified.

It was decided that the drafting rules should be amended to permit the drafting season to commence the first day of the world's series each year and that the draft meeting shall be held in the city where the first world's series game is played.

It was also resolved that the major and minor league meetings for next year should be held in Chicago the second week in December.

The so-called barnstorming situation, which resulted in the suspension of Babe Ruth and other players early last season, was remedied by the adoption of a rule that no player shall participate in exhibition games after October 31 and that all future contracts between players and clubs shall contain this provision.

World series regulations came in for considerable discussion and it was provided that in the future Commissioner Landis, and the president, or some other official of the home club, should decide when weather and ground conditions were suitable for a game.

Once the game was started, however, the right to suspend, postpone or call such game would rest entirely with the umpires.

Compensation to umpires in such world series games was changed from a percentage of the players' share to a flat sum of $2,000 each per series. Last fall, under the percentage plan, the umpires received about $1,800 each.

A proposal advanced through the National Minor League association by the Eastern, Southern and Texas leagues that the draft price be increased from $4,000 to $5,000, was defeated but it was decided that hereafter club securing a player by draft should pay immediately and in full the draft price in place of the 50 per cent now stipulated.

The gambling evil in baseball was discussed and betting and pools were denounced. The cooperation of all clubs, public officials and spectators was urged to stamp out the evil.

But Fred Says "No"

Fred Crollott, county clerk, is beginning to gain a reputation of being an obstacle in the machinery of progress, at least in the young couple's of the love affairs of young couples.

Every so often a couple is eager to be married. But they fail to meet with the strict requirements of the law in some respect and Fred Crollott at once becomes "the fly in the ointment" of marriage.

At least that is the way the prospective bride and groom regard him.

In one instance it was necessary for an ardent young man of 69 to go to the courts in order to obtain a guardian for the damsel of his choice. She claimed to be sweet 16.

Now the season of merriment is upon us. It is the season which is supposed to suffice the whole world with the spirit of kindness.

The season when all the world is kind and the hearts of all are supposed to be softened.

But has it softened the heart of County Clerk Fred Crollott in reference to the laws governing marriage? Not a whit. Only Tuesday he shattered a bright young marriage—at least shattered the attempted consummation, which was to have been marriage.

The fair maiden who wished to be married entered the office of the county clerk, accompanied by the young man who wanted to bestow upon her the Mrs. degree. She slipped her request and her mother, who accompanied the couple, said she consented to the marriage.

So Stella Garcia, who presides over marriage licenses, swung the book around for the girl to enter her name. They did not get around to the boy and his name was missed.

"Grace Neal" had been entered in the book when Fred Crollott noticed the transaction from far over in the corner. Fred dashed to the counter with all the verve of the chargers ridden by the Six Hundred at Balaklava.

"Why that girl can't get married!" he spluttered. "She isn't old enough, is she? How, what, how old is she, why, she?"

The mother replied that the girl is 14 but that she gave her consent to the daughter's marriage. "I don't care about that," said Fred. "The law says she's got to be 16 and she can't get married!"

And so Fred "gummed" the machinery again and another young couple had seen their bubble of prospective married life burst.

TURKEY TO JOIN NATIONS LEAGUE LEADERS STATE

Insist on the Deportation
From Constantinople of the Supreme Patriarch of the Greek Church

Lausanne, Dec. 14 (By the Associated Press).—Although Turkey was conciliatory today on the great question of accepting some form of supervision from without on the general treatment of the Christian populations inhabiting Turkey, she proved adamant in insisting upon the deportation from Constantinople of the supreme patriarch of the Greek orthodox church. This is one of the most important issues of the Lausanne conference.

At the meeting of the sub-committee on the exchange of populations this afternoon, the allied delegates somewhat diffidently brought up the question of the Greek patriarch knowing full well the dangers surrounding any discussion of this delicate religious problem. Immediately the Ottoman representatives insisted that the patriarch must go because he had been mixing in politics to the detriment of the Ottoman state.

A debate of considerable acerbity ensued. The Greek delegates warned the sub-committee that Greece would never agree to the deportation of the patriarch and would probably refuse to sign any treaty which authorized such a step. The meeting was somewhat hastily adjourned, but another attempt to reach an agreement will be made in a day or two.

By announcing today her intention of joining the league of nations, as soon as peace is signed at Lausanne, Turkey virtually admitted she would accept the league of nations' supervision over the Christian populations in Turkey. The powers have been advocating the appointment of a special international commission to exercise control over the status of the Greeks, Armenians and other Christians in Turkey; but are happy over Turkey's willingness to accept supervision by the league.

The sub-committee for the study of the future administration of the straits of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus is steadily making progress though several points still remain unadjusted. Today's developments, despite the Turkish implacability on the question of the patriarch and the exchange of populations, has created the impression that peace really will be signed at Lausanne.

Lord Curzon said he expected Turkey would join the league of nations in a few weeks which means that the Lausanne document, barring the unexpected, should be drafted and disposed of before the middle of January.

Give $50 Toward Elks Municipal Christmas Tree; Mrs. Hudson Tells About Poster Advertising

The Rotary club at its regular weekly luncheon yesterday voted $50 to the Elks Community Christmas Tree fund. Mrs. Rose K. Hudson gave an interesting talk on "Poster Board Advertising." Mrs. Hudson said that a great improvement has been made by postmen in the field of outdoor advertising during the past few years. Over 3,500 towns and cities are represented in the poster association, which has for its object the maintenance of sightly boards and guaranteeing to the advertiser the worth of his money and to the public complete safety.

Mrs. Hudson said the poster advertising business occupies a legitimate field and delivers legitimate adequate advertising messages for its patrons.

The club passed unanimously a resolution expressing its confidence in the integrity of Richard K. Guest.

Miss Robson is very happy in her new part of "Harriet Breen" and her conception of the part is perfect.

"Harriet Breen" is an odd character in every way but she can well afford to have her little idiosyncrasies as she is conceded to be not only the richest woman in the country, but the greatest financier.

She is the main pillar of Wall street and she is never happier than when she is "getting the best" of William Remington, a well known lawyer, which happens frequently.

Miss Robson is at her best in an extremely tense climax. Curtain at 8 o'clock.

Give Him a Gift That He'll Wear

The joke about the Christmas tie that's never worn except in the presence of the giver is becoming ancient and is almost forgotten. Women are buying men's gifts in men's stores. In the store, if possible, where the man buys his own haberdashery and where his tastes are known.

People find it easy to select men's gifts at the Guarantee. This store caters to men of better-than-ordinary taste. The haberdashery must be right or we'd lose most of our customers—and still people find that good taste does not necessarily mean higher prices. It's all in the selection.

The gambling evil in baseball was discussed and betting and pools were denounced. The cooperation of all clubs, public officials and spectators was urged to stamp out the evil.

CORNELL STOPS YALE AND MOVES UP ON NAVY FIVE

"Big Red" Team Still Has Possible Chance to Overtake Leaders; Bollman Has High Game

Although slipping badly in the second game, the Cornell bowling team went well in the opening and closing contests and took two of the three games rolled against Yale last night on the Y. M. C. A. alleys. The double victory gives Cornell a strangle hold on second place in the Y. M. C. A. Bowling League and leaves them with a possible chance remaining to overtake the leading Navy team.

However, the slip in that second game leaves the Cornell crew with nothing more than the chance of a tie in a mathematical possibility. Navy and Cornell each have three games remaining to be played. Cornell meets Princeton on Monday night and Navy meets Army the following night. If Cornell should win all three from the "Berry Pickers" and the "Gobs" drop its trio of games to Army, Cornell and Navy will finish in a deadlock for first place.

But there is little likelihood of such result, obtaining. Princeton has failed to win a game since the season opened but on the very law of averages alone they are due to take at least one Monday night. And Manager Berry has gradually strengthened his team so that the showing of the quintet has been better with each match. One of his additions, Blake, has suddenly come through to deliver in his true form, which is above 170, while another is just about due for a brace of at least twenty pins to the game.

On top of this Berry has added Bill Karman to his crew to replace the one really weak man on the team. Karman is a normal 190 bowler and when the regular tournament opens will make the high average men step right along to keep pace with him. With Karman added the "Berry Pickers" may completely upset the hope by taking three in a row from Cornell. At any rate they figure to cop at least the one needed to clinch the title for the "Gobs."

And even if the "Berry Pickers" maintain the same perfect losing average they have to date there is scarce a chance the Navy men will drop all three to the Soldiers. On form to date it would appear almost impossible for Navy to lose all three unless the entire team should suddenly be afflicted with spavin, charley horse, ring-bone or the rabies.

Purpose? No! "Whadda yuh mean, purpose," says Grand Chief Dumb-bell Alma Peterson. "We're just dumb-bells, that's all." The organizers hope to organize every state in the union. "There are plenty of eligibles," says Miss Peterson.

Bollman of the Yale team copied high single for the game last night and won the high game prize for the week, with a score of 215 in the last game. Every, his team mate, was right at his heels, with 212 in the same game and eased out in front of Bollman's 551.

OGLE JONES IS ELECTED CAPT. OF LOBO TEAM

Popular Football Star Will Lead University of New Mexico Basketball Quintet This Season

Ogle Jones football player extraordinary and powerful basketball forward, will lead the basketball team of the University of New Mexico throughout the 1922-1923 season. Jones was elected to the captaincy at the football banquet held last night at the university.

Ogle Jones has proved himself during the past two football seasons one of the greatest backfield men ever turned out in the southwest. In carrying the ball he has not been excelled even by his brother, Sewell, by Grant Mann, Snake, Slomaker, Billy, Hoo, Hobbs, McCarry or any of the other "greats." His defensive play has equaled his running with the ball. And both a year ago and this season he has been selected on the all-southwestern last year as left halfback and this year as right halfback.

Ogle's football play has been of such high class that it would scarcely be correct to say that his basketball play has equaled his remarkable work on the gridiron. Yet it has measured well up to it. With his ability as a leader combined with his play it is self-evident that the selection of Jones as captain was a happy one.

Jones will have a strong quintet to lead this year. He will have all of last year's team intact. As running mate at the forward post, Jones will have Horan, speedster of the 1921-1922 quintet. Betty and Dow, carriers of last year's team, will be at the pivot and Stowell and E. Bryan, stalwart guards of a season ago, will care for the defense.

In addition to these men from last year the Lobos will have available Hammond and Benjamin of the Albuquerque high school squad last season. Of the squad of thirty which has turned out there is further promising material. With this timber and such a capable leader as Ogle Jones the prospects for Coach Johnson turning out the championship quintet of the southwest are bright.

Johnson is drilling his squad daily in preparation for the opening of the season, which will be after the holidays. Practice games with the high school Bulldogs and other local teams will probably be arranged before the regular season opens.

At the banquet last night it was announced that an effort is being made to arrange a football game with the Texas A. and M. in addition to the other important games already arranged for next season. It is proposed to play the A. and M. game at College Station, Tex., if arranged.

The University of Montana has already been scheduled to play here next Thanksgiving. In order to make room for this game the scheduled for Sunday afternoon has been advanced to November 11, Armistice day. Arizona will be played here November 17, while the Texas College of Mines will be played at El Paso and the West Texas Normal at Canyon, Tex.

TOMMY MURPHY AND MIKE VASQUEZ MEET AT JUAREZ MONDAY

Young Tommy Murphy and "Indian Mike" Vasquez will appear in the headline of the boxing bill which Jim Erwin will offer patrons of boxing in the Ford arena, at Juarez, Mexico, next Monday night. The bout was originally scheduled for Sunday afternoon but has been postponed until Monday night because of a big bull fight being staged in Juarez Sunday afternoon. Murphy and Vasquez are carded to go in a 12 rounder at catch weights.

There is more than a little local interest in this match because of the fact that Vasquez was one of the principals in the main event of the last boxing show staged here at the armory. Further interest is given in the fact that Young Tommy Murphy is expected to appear in bouts which are proposed to be staged here in the near future. Other boxers on the same card, including Dal Hawkins, are also expected to appear on the proposed local cards.

Young Tommy Murphy is known as "The Pride of Port Bliss." He is easily the best performer at Port Bliss at present and has defeated all opponents he has met during the past year, including men with good records. He and Vasquez met in a previous engagement and Vasquez won. But Murphy has improved since then and many pick him to win Monday night.

Vasquez made a big impression in his appearance here. In spite of having to work in a ring which was in such condition that boxers should not have been permitted to enter it, he showed himself a clever boxer. He also proved himself an aggressive, sturdy performer, with a bulky build.

Many local fans have expressed themselves as being anxious to see Vasquez in action again and also to see Murphy work with the four good Indians. If their fight in Juarez Monday night warrants it, there is quite a possibility the two will be matched to fight here.

JUNIOR PLAY AT HIGH SCHOOL IS HIT OF SEASON

"Captain Kidd, Jr." Is Presented by a Splendid Cast Under the Direction of John D. Burton

"Captain Kidd, Jr." as presented by the Junior class of the high school last night under the very capable direction of John D. Burton, was one of the biggest hits of the season. The farcical adventure was a winner in the first place, and having the splendid cast and an able director, there was nothing left but the putting it over in a great way that most certainly accomplished.

An outline of the plot and the names of all the characters has already been given, but a few words must be said of the heavier parts and the professional way in which these young people put the play across.

"Jim Anderson," played by William Van Vleet, was a good-looking hero, true lover, and the author who made good. "Andrew MacTavish," as played by Wilson Keim, pictured the old man trying to help his friends, granddaughter and anyone else who might happen into his book store or pass a friendly word with him. The part of the old man was hard, but carried out to the letter. "Mary MacTavish," the peppy and at times saucy granddaughter, seemed to have the business head of the firm, of "MacTavish and company," she being "The Company," as the old man put it. This part was carried cleverly by Eunice Herkenhoff.

"Lemuel Bush" and his wife, "Lulu," and "Samuel Dicken," acted by Clifford Howell, Gladys Karlovic and Lee Farr were particularly fine in their respective parts of the old but precarious farmer and his wife and the country constable. The two men were sifty "terracotta chews." Harold Lloyd and his horn rimmed spectacles had nothing on "William Carleton," which part was most cleverly played by Donald Croeno. He was one of the big hits of the show. At a most trying part of the performance, precise, dainty and proper William broke forth with the exclamation—"Well, I'll be Damned." He took the house by storm. "George Brent" and "Marion Fenton" by William Glass and Helen Kay did well in their parts.

Others who helped to make the adventure the success it was were: Robert Fitzgerald, Albert Kool, Ronald Gray, Maxwell Watts, Lawrence Milne and John Skellon. The High school orchestra, numbering twenty-two pieces, played during intermissions. Miss Florence Samuels is the director.

C. M. BOTTIS RESIGNS FROM SCHOOL BOARD; SIMMS IS SUCCESSOR

C. M. Bottis, president of the board of education, last night tendered his resignation from the board, both as president and as member. The resignation was accepted by the board, holding its regular monthly meeting at the high school.

Mr. Bottis has recently been appointed to the supreme court bench. His resignation from the board of education was because of this appointment. He felt that his judicial duties would prevent his devoting to the board of education the time required of other member or president.

John P. Simms, law partner of Mr. Bottis, was appointed to fill the vacancy as member of the board until the next regular election, which will be held in the spring. No election of president was made.

The president to succeed Mr. Bottis will be elected at the next regular meeting of the board, when Mr. Simms will be present and a full board available for the election.

Bills for the past month were paid and other monthly business transacted at the meeting last night.

THE HOME IN THE CITY, IN
ATE, TAKES THE MORNING
PTION BOOKS ARE OPEN

Malicious rumors are being circulated both verbally and in print that myself and some associates are engaging in an effort to injure the welfare and future of the Albuquerque Hotel Company. These vicious attacks have been made on me often, and I have heretofore refrained from answering them in any manner, treating them with the contempt that they deserve. I believe, however, that the stockholders and citizens are entitled to a statement of the situation from me, both as to why I have continued to interest myself in the project, and why the apparent bitterness on the part of certain persons toward my connection with the project should continue.

Sidney Weil originally proposed a plan for the building of a hotel which involved a $6,000 advertising fund, and a $25,000 cash bonus, to be subscribed and thereafter a company to be organized to build a hotel, with the $25,000 to be given as a bonus to the leaser of the hotel.

The Kiwanis Club appointed a hotel committee (there had been numerous previous ones) and I was asked to become a member thereof. I first declined but after urgent solicitation accepted the position with the proviso that my acceptance would involve the building of a hotel as I did not wish to be a member of useless committees. After full discussion the Weil plan was abandoned in its entirety, and a plan which I submitted, exactly as it has been carried out, was substituted in its place. The members of the Committee at my suggestion, incorporated a hotel company; all subscribed and with the exception of Mr. Weil, paid $200.00 each. Louis Ifield was appointed President, I was appointed Secretary, and Sidney Weil was appointed drive manager and publicity agent, from which action came the general conception that he, and not the others, was responsible for the hotel project and its successful completion.

Energetic work was carried on, and Mr. Ilfeld and myself raised $30,000 for the hotel project in the two days before the commencement of the drive, and which insured its success, and the funds were successfully raised.

The purpose of the project as stated in speeches by Ilfeld, Weil and myself, at the Labor Temple, Armory and elsewhere, was to provide employment for Albuquerque workmen and to provide accommodations for tourists who wished to stay in the city; with the assurance that we were satisfied that the project would be made to pay 8% per cent on its capital, from the day the hotel was opened.

About this time the first cloud on the horizon arose. An effort by Weil was made to inject into the project the possibility of selling the controlling interest, or leasing the hotel to some party in Chicago, who was an adventurer and had been ejected from the Society of Illinois Architects. I vigorously fought this proposal and everything else that did not involve the building of the hotel by Albuquerque workmen and the ownership, operation and profit of it remaining in Albuquerque hands. By means of a public agitation and misrepresentation of the facts and a crooked election, wherein more votes were cast than were in existence, and where stockholders' votes were cast by other people without their knowledge, I was ejected from the Board of Directors, altho I was the largest fully paid stockholder of record at that time.

Following my elimination as Director, the contract was let to an outside contractor, and outside workmen employed, as is common knowledge, and Albuquerque workmen were deprived of the benefit that we intended when the Company was organized. Attempts have been made to lease the hotel at an unremunerative rental, to business associates or relatives of one of the directors, and at this time a new lease is being submitted to the directors with the recommendations of Weil, etc., which provides for an annual rental of $10,000 for three years, and some negligible store rents, (which does not equal the taxes, insurance and depreciation on the building) followed by a rental of $26,500 annually thereafter for fifteen years, which in turn will not ever provide for ANY DIVIDENDS ON THE COMMON STOCK, after allowing for the customary and real depreciation charges. This lease if executed would make the common stock worth little or nothing, and ruin the future possibilities of the company, and I notified some of the directors that this third attempt to defraud the stockholders of their dividends would be met by an injunction on my part as a stockholder, and would be exposed in every possible manner.

Whatever service I rendered the hotel company, and they were considerable, were free of charge; I own no real estate within a mile of the location chosen; I have never benefited directly or indirectly in the building of the hotel, any more than any other citizen does in anything that builds up his home town. In regard to Weil, however, contrary to the public conception, the company defrays a salary to his uncle Maurice Klein, $125.00—salary for two or three stenographers, several telephones, part of his office rent, and his traveling expenses while he attempts to negotiate these foolish leases. Few if any of the directors have paid for their stock in full, although urging everybody else to do so.

With the exception of the frustrated cheap lensing schemes, I believe the company has been capably and economically administered, and recommend that subscribers pay their subscriptions, as the project must be completed, but no person should be re-elected as a Director unless he will pledge himself not to vote for the execution of any lease which pays less than 8% on the preferred and common stock, after providing for depreciation, insurance, income tax and other necessary allowances. To do this requires a rental of $45,000 a year and any lease providing for any less amount is both dishonest and unprofitable. If there is any need of the hotel at all, it should naturally pay interest on its cost price.

As far as my own transactions of stock in this company is concerned, I purchased and paid one hundred cents on the dollar, for 1,500 shares of stock. It is one of my regular businesses to buy and sell stocks and bonds; I have purchased other hotel stock in the transaction of my regular business, and am today the largest individual owner of stock in the company.

I do not believe in permanent community ownership of any enterprise. Successful institutions must be controlled and operated by a small group of men who have sufficient money at stake to justify their continued efforts. If the ownership of the hotel continues in a thousand different people, the principle of "what is everybody's business is nobody's business" will apply, and failure will follow. If it gets into the hands of any group of legitimate business men, it will succeed; I am not particularly interested in being one of the group, but the story that community ownership is essential, is ridiculous and untrue. Who would buy stock, or deposit money in a community-owned bank. Witness the Dakota State Bank tragedy. Point out to me any small community-owned business, and I will point out to you a business failure.

These self-interested protectors of the stockholders attempt to infer that my connection with any enterprise will ruin its possibilities for profit. My record as a builder of Albuquerque and the dividend-paying record of the institutions with which I am and have been connected, speaks for itself, and will compare with that of any one of the directors.

In conclusion, and as a further evidence of my earnest desires that the company shall succeed, I make this offer:
I will vote and work for the re-election of every director who will publicly pledge himself that he will not be a party to the execution of any lease which pays a yearly rental of less than $45,000 for ten years. I pledge my word that I can produce that amount of net income for the company from the project. LET EVERY STOCKHOLDER REFUSE TO VOTE FOR ANY DIRECTOR WHO WILL NOT PLEDGE HIMSELF TO DO THIS.

WISDOM FROM AFAR

Nowhere have we noticed the fundamental reason in back of America's attitude toward Europe so well set forth as in so distant a neighbor, the Sidney Morning Herald.

Specifically referring to the war debts, the Morning Herald says: "No doubt if she could see her way to remit those debts the position of Europe would be immensely improved. But can we fairly expect her to do this without some assurance of a quid pro quo, not in the material sense, but in the shape of a genuine attempt to heal the antagonisms which still distract Europe and to bring an era of peace and stability?"

This is an enlightened understanding of American psychology which never has seemed to penetrate European heads. It states, in an unprejudiced source, exactly the value this country sets on the foreign obligations to her and points out the moral investment those debts represent.

What particularly galls Americans is the thought that money owed to this country and even interest owed on that money, is used for selfish purposes which eventually in every instance lead to hostilities, distress and impoverishment which, in turn, appeal to the United States for relief. The vast sums this country has subscribed for aid to war-sufferers—often in wars with which America had no concern, as in Anatolia—never has been regarded as other than a moral investment; nor is there any thought of cent for cent return on the part of the givers.

But so long as Europe shows no disposition to economy, but adds monthly to its destruction of resources by wars which are neither in the cause of liberty nor of self-defense, just so long this country is bound to feel that the money owed to it must remain as a load which, in time, must compel recognition, a thought-review of the disasters of destructive extravagance, and a new spirit of self-help as the first step to liquidating obligations.

TOO MUCH POLITICS

Whatever merits may have been possessed by the so-called Dyer anti-lynching bill, its death in the Senate was no surprise. The measure was doomed from the day of its introduction and it is doubtful if its proponents, although they were in a position to expect a majority, ever expected it to become a law.

Many of those who voted for the proposal in the House expressed grave doubts as to its constitutionality and graver doubts as to whether it was practicable. Yet they were willing to pass the responsibility to the Senate, the President, the Supreme Court or the law enforcement agencies, rather than chance the loss of votes which might result from voting their convictions.

The bill met its death through the agency of a democratic filibuster, and an agreement among republican leaders who found their views of the legal and political advisability of the bill in conflict, were more than willing to let it die rather than face a record vote on it.

CHRISTMAS WINDOWS

Store window dressing become an art attains its climax in the pre-holiday period. What would the Main Street or Central Avenue of any village or the shopping centers of the great cities be without the decorations and illuminations of the store fronts? The streets without store windows seem dull and dead in contrast. Where the windows are the throngs pass and repass, pause, attracted by the display, to see the latest novelty, to admire the beauty of the exhibit or the artistic effect produced by the skill and taste of the decorator.

Many of the windows, too, are simply expressions of the beautiful in which merchandising is eclipsed by the spell of art, but the inspiration thus provided finds reflection in countless homes and in mutual benefit.

BY THE WAY.

TODAY'S BEST THOUGHT

There are also smiling and gentle views, lake and wood, hills against an evening sky, the glow of dawn behind dark pine trees, golden wheat fields, laughing brooks that do but soothe and caress the spirit. With these one may live year after year, continually refreshed, continually discovering some new loveliness, never overworn, never utterly swept from one's memory, keeping firm hold of the thread of personality. And if one requires sublimity and terror to teach the immensity of the Eternal plan, the huge scope of the Universal Spirit, one needs, too, the more tender and charming reminders of the essential helpfulness and simple friendliness in life.

Wall Street

New York, Dec. 14.—Professional operators for the decline, acting on the belief that the recent advance had been overdone, attempted to unsettle prices in today's stock market, but were only partially successful. They succeeded in depressing a few speculative favorites such as Baldwin and Studebaker, but fresh buying power in other quarters made rising prices highly irregular with the gains outnumbering the losses.

Sterling exchange, which has been one of the features of recent markets because of its remarkable rise, held steady today around $4.63 1/2. Opinion of financial experts is divided as to whether British government manipulation was responsible for the recent jump but there is general belief that the rate is headed back to par as a result of the constant improvement in the British trade balance and the stabilization of Britain's domestic financial affairs.

Steel shares were bid up in rapid fashion during the last hour, buying being influenced by encouraging prospects for business during the first quarter of 1923 contained in the weekly trade reviews. Crucible was pushed up four points to 72, but the rapid rise of this issue, being accompanied by reports of renewed activity of the old pool in that stock. United States Steel common touched 100 and then slipped back to 98, while Bethlehem B closed 1 1/2 higher. Reports of increased production by farm implement manufacturers caused a flurry of buying in International Harvester, which jumped four points to 91 1/2, and cancelled half of its gain before the close.

Mixed changes took place in the minor group which was featured by the broadening demand for Reading and Chesapeake & Ohio. Reading registered a net gain of 1 1/2, and Jersey Central, which is encouraging prospects for business, was up three. New York Central got down as low as 92 1/2 but rallied to 93 at the close.

A bear raid against Piley Virgily caused a slump of ten points, half of which was recovered later. National Lead, which had been bid up in speculative anticipation of a stock dividend, dropped as low as 21 1/2, or 3 1/2 below yesterday's high, when the directors adjourned today without taking any stock dividend action. It rallied to 24 1/2 on the day. Marine preferred registered a net loss of 2 1/2 points on reports that the ship subsidy bill would be sidetracked in congress in favor of the farm credits measure. General Asphalt recovered 2 1/2 and the preferred 3 1/2 from yesterday's heaviness. Baltimore & Ohio common and preferred closed 3 1/2 and 3 1/2 lower and Studebaker 3 1/2. Total sales were $81,000 shares.

Cash money held at 4 1/2 per cent through the session; this money was slightly lower with profit 90-day maturities being arranged at 4 1/2 per cent with 5 per cent the ruling rate for the longer maturities and 4 1/2 for the 20-day period. Commercial paper trading was quiet, with no change in rates.

French exchange was quite active, with most of the business being done around 218 or 219. Other rates were irregular. German exchange improved slightly, despite the unprecedented weekly increase of 92 billion marks in note circulation.

GRAIN

Chicago Board of Trade

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Received general clearing carried wheat, corn and oats today to fresh top price record prices for the season. Sleet in Kansas and predictions of a heavy snow in the north, with stimulating demand in the wheat market. Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 5c higher, May 1.13 1/2 to 1.14 1/2, and July 1.14 1/2 to 1.15 1/2. Corn gained 1/2 to 3/4 to 2c and oats 1/2 to 3/4 to 2c. In provisions the outcome ranged from 2c decline to 10c advance.

It was only in the last hour trading that the upward swing of the wheat market became pronounced. Before that time prices had averaged lower with profit taking sales a feature and the buying restrained in view of unresponsiveness apparent in Liverpool to yesterday's advance on this side of the Atlantic. On the decline here, however, offerings diminished and commission house demand increased, bulls putting stress on talk of prospective damage to the domestic winter crop.

Reports that Minneapolis mills had disposed of 50,000 barrels of flour today and were buying wheat here on the setbacks in price had considerable influence as an aid to the bull side of the wheat market at the last. Besides, the Argentine harvest was reported as being delayed, and no heavy movement of new wheat from Argentina looked for until the end of January.

Shorts in the corn market were hurriedly a result of heavy buying on the part of a big elevator interest. Relative smallness of stocks of corn here attracted notice, and so too did falling off in primary receipts as compared with a year ago.

Oats followed corn.

Washington, Dec. 14.—The Standard Oil company of New Jersey, constraining the supreme court's dissolution decree by which it was cut off from its former corporate holdings as a final expression of the public will on the subject of monopolistic control "has conducted its business under the conditions of free active competition," W. C. Teagle, president of the company declared in a statement prepared for submission to the senate manufacturers' committee today on completion of its investigation of 256 firms.

Going exhaustively into conditions which have arisen in the industry since the dissolution decree, with particular relation to the New Jersey company, Mr. Teagle declared his company had observed market was easy owing to weakness of new values.

the decree "in good faith both in letter and in spirit, adding:

"I want to say with all emphasis that the Standard Oil company of New Jersey is not a party to any combination, agreement or arrangement of oil or material, the selling prices of its products."

Mr. Teagle said he wanted to "protest against the characterization of this company as any of the 'big oil groups' as if the old association of Standard Oil companies existed today, or as if this company constituted a part of any group of other companies subject to common control."

Discussing competitive conditions in the industry today, Mr. Teagle stated that the "strategic location" in respect to transportation facilities which Standard Oil plant was given in the economic development of the original company was now "the barrier to the competition among the separate units."

Geographical considerations, he said, "limited the extent" to which New Jersey company can compete with its former subsidiaries. The competition open to this company, with its former subsidiaries, Mr. Teagle said, was limited by the fact of transportation to three companies—the Standard Oil company of New York, the Atlantic Refining company and the Standard Oil company of Kentucky. He pointed out that the production of refined petroleum products, Mr. Teagle said, that the dominant factor in the domestic marketing situation was the shipments of refiners in the mid-continent, including Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas. This production, he said, constituted an "enormous flowing supply," which was not tied to any market or shipped to territory where local prices would bring the best return. It was this competition, he added with which every one engaged in marketing gasoline must reckon.

Domestic Marketing
"Our domestic marketing at all points is conducted under conditions of the keenest competition," Mr. Teagle stated, "and in addition to the large number of jobbers drawing their supplies from time to time from the cheapest source, the Gulf, Texas and other large companies maintain and operate extensive marketing distributing facilities in the states in which we are now operating."

Mr. Teagle stated that in these states with a total of 4,841 marketing and distributing stations, his company maintained only 776, or 16.1 per cent which supplied, however, he said, a little more than a third of the total consumption in the area.

Turning to profits of the New Jersey company, Mr. Teagle testified that its earnings, including those of subsidiary companies, averaged for the years 1920 and 1921 and the first six months of 1922 at the rate of 9.6 per cent per annum on "net assets" and aggregated $213,759,713.

The dividend, Mr. Teagle testified, was paid to stockholders, the committee was told he had not changed since the dissolution and the business since then has paid them an average of 4.4 per cent per annum on "net assets" for the two and one-half years ended last June 30. Mr. Teagle said common dividends aggregating $49,274,912.50, or an average of 2.33 per cent per annum on net assets over this period was paid.

Net Earnings
Net earnings of the company and affiliated organizations for 1920 and 1921, and the estimated earnings for the first six months of 1922 were grouped by Mr. Teagle as follows:

From foreign business $47,312,585, from collateral business, $12,470,449, and from domestic oil $23,924,779.

"The Standard Oil company of New Jersey," Mr. Teagle continued, "has earned during the two and one-half years ended June 30, 1922, a total of $53,530,412 from its domestic oil business. During the same period we have run through our domestic refineries a total of 171,467,211 barrels of oil. The average retail price for gasoline equivalent to 21 cents per barrel."

What do the earnings shown to the eventual purchaser of a gallon of our products, and what of each dollar paid to the Standard Oil company (New Jersey) represents profits to this company? This is a phase of the matter about which there is generally a very erroneous impression, I. e., that enormous profits are being made out of the oil business.

"The gross sales of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey and its domestic subsidiaries in their domestic oil business during the two and one-half years referred to were $1,516,292,315 and the profits from that business were $55,930,479, or 3.66 per cent.
