For Delegate to Congress

B. S. RODEY,
of Bernalillo County.

Let's get registered and excited about politics.

The next fair will be the first annual exposition of the state of New Mexico.

The great coal strike is virtually ended, the questions at issue to be settled by arbitration.

Venezuela this week had a battle which is reported the greatest in the history of that turbulent country.

The Citizen worked hard for six months to help make the territorial fair a credit and benefit to this city.

Sir Thomas Lipton is building another Shamrock, and will again try to capture the queen's cup from America.

Filipinos are impressed with the belief that what makes the Americans always victorious is the queer drinks
they bring over with them from America.

On the strike commission appointed by the president is a general, a judge,
a mining engineer who is also an editor, a business man, a labor leader
and a bishop.

The Hague arbitration court in the Pius fund case has ordered Mexico to pay to the United States nearly $1,500,- 000. It seems that Piety, like virtue, is its own reward.

The twenty-second annual territorial fair will close tonight. It is a success in every way, and all the visitors praise the arrangements for their pleasure and comfort.

President O'Reilly and Secretary
McCanna, and in fact everybody concerned, deserve great credit for their untiring work for the territorial fair.
To C. C. Hall, more than any other individual citizen, much of the success of the fair is due.

The time has passed for sneering at the Salvation Army. Whatever we may think of its methods, everyone must recognize the great practical good it is doing in the world. As between these builders and the knickers who merely criticize, the world will not be long in choosing.

To El Paso: Your team put up gilt-edged base ball, and most of us are really glad you won. The people of this city know good sport and take their medicine like little men. Every good play made by the El Paso team and they never made any other kind was cheered to the echo by the crowds assembled. El Paso helped to make the territorial fair a success, and New Mexico will be at the midwinter carnival.

ROOSEVELT'S TRIUMPH.

The greatest, though not the most spectacular industrial strike of modern times is now practically settled, and the credit belongs to Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States. Had it not been for his tact, intelligence and persistence, his practical knowledge of men and affairs,
says the Denver Republican, the conditions which were daily becoming more critical would necessarily have led to a disastrous outcome. For over five months the struggle persisted, miners and operators every day drifting farther apart and every day becoming more firmly convinced of the fundamental soundness of their respective positions. The sending forward into the anthracite coal region of the whole state militia added an electric element to the outlook which, coupled with the irresponsible and lawless spirit manifested here and there by the strikers,
gave no happy augury of the outcome.
While the consumers stood helplessly
by the struggle was rapidly degenerating into a test of brute strength in which one side hoped to wear out the other, regardless of the dangers that intervened or the calamities which might directly or indirectly befall.

Disinclined to use whatever power
the law placed in his hands except as the last possible resort, the president intervened not officially, but with all the prestige of his official position. He entered neither to one side nor to the other. He himself made a close firsthand study of the situation and soon reached the conclusion that in all industrial disputes between American citizens there is an intermediate ground of fairness, equity and decency which can honorably be occupied. It was not for him either to indicate or occupy the ground, but he felt it to be his duty to hold the balance of justice firmly between the contending parties.
The vital thing was to secure a peaceful reopening of all the mines and the return of the men to work. If the precise terms could not be agreed upon,
and that fact speedily developed, then to leave the solution of the points in dispute to a committee composed of men who would command the respect and confidence not only of the disputants, but of the whole American people. In every direction he was eminently successful without resorting to harsh or extreme measures, or exercising any of those arbitrary powers which, while the law may justify, a large section of the public resent.

SOUTHWESTERN Brewery and Ice Company

INCORPORATED 1885

The first brewery in Albuquerque was built by Ferdinand Selva, in 1885, and two years later the Southwestern Brewery & Ice company was organized and incorporated to succeed to the business. In 1889 and 1890, respectively, Jacob and Henry Loeb, formerly of the great breweries of St. Louis, came to Albuquerque and purchased the local brewery.

The plant was originally small, but its capacity was adequate to every demand, and it was not until after the Loeb became interested in the business that it grew to proportions demanding an expansion of facilities. In 1898, less than ten years after they purchased the original plant, the Loeb laid the foundations for their present imposing buildings, and the old brewery and ice plant were abandoned immediately upon completing and equipping the buildings.

As it stands today, the brewery is the finest in the southwest. It has a capacity of 40,000 barrels of beer per annum, and the ice plant has a capacity of thirty tons a day, besides refrigerating the company's cellars, etc. The buildings are handsome brick structures, resembling the great breweries of the east, and the equipment is modern throughout. A bottling plant is maintained in connection, and has a capacity of a thousand bottles per hour. A feature of this plant is the new automatic bottle washer, by means of which 20,000 bottles a day may be thoroughly cleansed. This machine washes sixteen bottles at a time, and was installed at a cost of $500.

The brewery and ice plant, with the grounds, cover more than half a block, and, being immediately on the railroad track, are advantageously situated for forwarding. The company receives patronage from all over New Mexico and Arizona, and the item of transfer salvage is an important consideration. Beer and ice are shipped as far as Kingman, Ariz., on the west, south to El Paso, Deming, Silver City and Tucson, and north into Colorado.

In view of the fact that many brewers, owing to the high price of malt, substitute inferior ingredients, it is well to state that the Southwestern Brewery & Ice company does use malt and rarely has less than 1,500 bushels on hand. No adulterants are used, and the result is apparent in the brew, which is of clear amber color, of superior flavor and of the highest grade of excellence.

The process of brewing is no less interesting than instructive, and, as the general public is not informed on the subject, it may be well to present an explanation herewith. The process begins in the brew house, which, in the instance of the Southwestern Brewery & Ice company, is a three-story structure. On the top floor is a mill for grinding the malt; immediately under this is the malt hopper, beside which is a hot water tank, and below these is the mash tub, which has a capacity of 125 barrels. The mash tub is on the ground floor, where are also the engine and a large kettle.

After the malt has been ground, the water in the hot water tank is heated and a certain portion turned into the mash tub. The mash machine is then started and the proper amount of ground malt is let in through the hopper, which communicates with the mash tub. After about a half an hour of stirring with the great steam rake, which is the feature of the mash machine, the mash is allowed to settle. After an hour more water, of a higher temperature than that first admitted, is let into the mash tub, and the mash machine is started again. This time it runs only a quarter of an hour, after which the mash is heated by steam to its final temperature. The mash machine is then put in motion for another twenty minutes, after which the mash has a rest of an hour. The malt "wort," or extract, is then pumped into the brew kettle, in which there is a steam coil, and after being boiled for two hours and a half, hops are added in three different portions. After the boiling is finished the mash tub is cleaned out, and the hop wort is drawn off into that receptacle, from which it is pumped up to the surface cooler, in an adjoining structure, and thence to what is known as a laudolot cooler.

From the coolers the liquid passes to the settling vat, which is on the fourth floor of the main structure. When it has thoroughly settled it is drawn off to the fermentation vats on the floor below, where the temperature is a few degrees lower than on the fourth floor, which is kept at about 41 degrees F. There are a great many vats in the fermentation room, filled with beer in the various stages of fermentation, and as rapidly as the liquid is thoroughly fermented it is drawn off to the Ruh vats on the second floor, where the temperature is still lower, for maturing. From this room the beer passes to immense vats in the cold storage room, on the ground floor, where the temperature is only a few degrees above freezing. These vats contain about 75,000 gallons of beer, and are the source from which the supply is drawn for the daily shipments and deliveries.

The entire process, from the brew-house to the cold storage cellars, requires about six months, practically all of which time is spent in the maturing vats. The quality of the brew is determined not only by the ingredients and the proportions in which they are mixed, but, as well, by the temperatures maintained during the various stages of the process.

The company brews three or four times a week and fully two-thirds of the output is shipped to points outside of Albuquerque. The leading commercial brand is "Pilsener," and it has a wide sale in Albuquerque, being handled by the Alvarado and other fine bars of the city, besides being sold extensively to the family trade; but the Bavarian and Bohemian beers brewed by the company are quite as popular among connoisseurs, and "Culmacker," a very dark beer, is extensively used as a tonic.

The new ice plant was built the present year. A fine "Vilter" compressor has been installed. Double distilled water is used for making the ice, and the blocks are frozen in deep cans of 400 pounds capacity. The cans are submerged in brine through which ammonia pipes are run, and a traveling crane is run over the cans to lift them when the blocks are solid. As above stated, the capacity is thirty tons a day besides the refrigeration of the company's cellars.

Jacob and Henry Loeb are natives of Bavaria, but have been in the United States since boyhood. They are experienced brewers and do their own brewing. In a few years, by industry and honorable dealing, they have built up a business that covers the entire southwest with its trade, and, beginning with a primitive plant, have erected a modern brewery and ice factory valued at upwards of $100,000.

WILLIAM FARR.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats.

William Farr conducts the largest wholesale and retail meat business of any butcher in the southwest. He established his business in 1889, and since that time has built up a trade that demands the best of facilities. Accordingly, he has spared no expense in the equipment of his place, and there is not another establishment of the kind in the territory that compares to the shop and factory he conducts at 217 South Second street.

Some idea of the magnitude of Mr. Farr's business may be had from the fact that, to supply his trade requires the slaughter of eighty fat hogs, 150 sheep, 150 hogs and as many veal calves as he can buy every month. At the present season New Mexico range stock supplies the demand for cattle, but during the greater part of the year heaves are shipped in from other states. The sheep are all grown in this and adjoining counties. Hogs and calves are bought both locally and are shipped in from other places, in instances remote from Albuquerque.

Mr. Farr does his own slaughtering, and has an abattoir situated on the outskirts of the city. It is provided with every appliance for handling the hogs, sheep, hogs, etc., and the utmost regard for cleanliness is observed from the time the animals are slaughtered until the emats hang in the refrigerators at the shop. After ten days in cold storage, meats are ready for the block, and the tenderest viands of prime beef, mutton, pork and veal are sold right in Mr. Farr's shop.

Besides the fresh meats above noted, Mr. Farr has venison, other game, poultry, fish and oysters in season, and carries all kinds of smoked and cured meats, sausage, etc. All smoked and cured meats sold are the product of his own smoke-house and curing room, and he has a steam sausage factory of large capacity. He also makes his own lard, which is put up in tin buckets, bearing his name. He makes a specialty of this product, in which his business is so large that he maintains a box factory, where cans and buckets are boxed for shipment. His finer grades of lard are equal to the best brands of commerce. He will make a specialty of mince meat during the present fall and winter.

Mr. Farr's shop is exceptional in many respects. The average butcher shop has the odor of the meat, whether tainted or fresh, and if it is not offensive it is nevertheless pronounced. There is no odor to be detected in his shop. Everything is kept immaculately clean, and the effect is to remove all factory evidence of the meat shop. The refrigerator is both the finest and the largest in the territory. The forward section has a capacity for half a car of meat, the middle room accommodates twice that quantity, and the rear compartment will hold a half car of pork. All meats are brought in through the back and are placed in position in the refrigerator by being suspended on hooks attached to rollers on overhead rails and being pushed along until the desired spot is reached, where they are left.

William Farr is a native of Missouri, but lived nearly all his life until he came to Albuquerque, in California. He has been here for twenty years, and during that time has built up a trade that covers the entire territory and a portion of Arizona. He is a man of praiseworthy public spirit, and takes the initiative in all enterprises designed for the public weal.

EXHIBITION HALL.

More About the Exhibits Found on Display in the Hall.

The Wetherell Bros., of Pueblo Bonito, N. M., have a very pretty exhibit at the floral hall. The booth is small but the artistic arrangement of Navajo blankets gives it a pleasing appearance. Inside are piles of blankets of rich and striking patterns. Across from this is a neat display of burnt leather pillow cases, banners and other articles made by the Sioux Indians by the Navajo Blanket Stores Co., of Denver, Colo.

San Juan County.

Fruits and vegetables of an appetizing nature fill the tables of the San Juan county exhibit. More than thirty varieties of fine apples are shown. The apples are arranged in such a manner that the first glance gets the attention of the fair goer. Along the wall are boxes packed with apples just as they are prepared for shipment. They show that great pains are taken with the shipping of their fruit.

Evaporated fruits are exhibited in boxes covered with glass. The manner of preparation demonstrates the attention that is given to their fruits. A large evaporating plant has just been installed at Farmington. Pears, grapes, peaches, plums and quinces, such as any country would feel proud of are exhibited.

Thirty-six varieties of jellies in sealed glass jars and sections of honey are shown.

Of vegetables the San Juan people rank in the top line. Only a few exhibits were brought with them. A march of 200 miles across mountains would have a deteriorating effect upon the vegetables. Pumpkins, squashes, sugar beets of a large percentage of sugar, tomatoes, potatoes, etc., all take an active part in making the display a success. The exhibit is in charge of George H. Browne, who is to be complimented on his selection of fine varieties.

Jerome Copper Mines.

The fine exhibit of the Jerome copper mines, which has been attracting much popular attention took off the first honors for best exhibit of copper ore.

It is claimed by many mining experts that the specimens on exhibit are the finest ever shown here, and the only one that has ever compared with the ore from the Calumet Hecla copper mines of Lake Michigan, which are said to be the richest copper mines in the world.

John R. Dunlap, of the United States geological survey, who is collecting minerals for the St. Louis world's fair, has asked the company for this exhibit for the St. Louis fair. He is a judge of ores and speaks highly of this exhibit. The mine is located at San Acacio, about thirty miles from Albuquerque. The owners are highly elated over their good showing here.

Other Exhibits.

The Jones mining district located in the Oscura mountains have sent in an immense block of iron ore, that is 69 per cent iron. It is claimed to be the richest ore ever exhibited in New Mexico.

A large number of specimens of copper ore, rich in gold and silver, were put on exhibition by the New Placer Mining company.

J. Korber & Co. are well represented by carriages and buggies of the latest styles. The Columbus buggy, which has a universal reputation is on exhibition.

The Southwestern Brewing and Ice company have an excellent showing of their famous lager beer. As beverage dispensers they rank first.

A glass show case containing sixteen brands of fine Havana cigars, manufactured by the Kirister Bros., occupy a prominent position among the displays at the floral hall.

Van Camp's prettily decorated booth has a crowd around it at all hours. The famous beans are the attraction. Ten cases were given out Thursday, and each day the output increases. Mrs. Weaver the congenial lady in attendance treats everyone with courtesy as well as beans.

The booth is decorated by the striking posters of the German girl and boy and the girl going to market.

Drawings from models free hand, essays on various interesting subjects, fancy paper work, colored maps and fine specimens of writing adorn the booth of the Presbyterian Mission School.

The Territorial University was represented by the demonstration of practical methods in instruction in the rocks and minerals.

Students E. E. Jones and W. R. Atheson were demonstrators at the booth.

The science of lithology comes under the study of geology. It is practically a new science for finding the composition of rocks without the use of chemicals, which was thought to be the only way of determining the composition.

A lithological lathe for making rock sections was in operation. This display was made upon the request of the people, who wished to investigate this new science.

The normal university was represented by art work, bench work, chip carving carpenter work, cardboard construction work. The primary, and first to fifth grades were also represented by rapid work construction, hand work and other work that demonstrated the ability to produce good work.

The Hyde Exploring Expedition's fine display of Navajo blankets, rugs and other curios, under the management of A. B. McGaffey, is much admired.

Mining at Las Vegas.

The contracts for furnishing copper ore to the leaching plant to be erected at Las Vegas have been signed by A. R. Quinley, John Baker and M. Greenberger. The contract specifies 150 tons a day and is made on a four per cent basis so that if the ore goes above that the contract price is higher. If the ore falls below four per cent, the contract is lower.

The sand which comes from the ore is composed of fine crystals and is particularly adapted for the manufacture of plate glass. The officers of the company have taken up with a Pittsburg firm the project of locating a glass factory in Las Vegas.

FOR LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

Saturnino Pinard Named From the District Composed of Mora, Colfax
and Union.

A meeting of delegates from the counties of Mora, Colfax and Union for the purpose of nominating a republican candidate for the legislative council from the counties above named, which was held at Raton, was fully attended. Saturnino Pinard, of Union county, was nominated as the candidate for the position. It is the custom of the two great political parties in that district to make the nomination for this position from the counties in rotation. Union county was entitled to the nomination this time, and therefore it went to a citizen of that county.

Saturnino Pinard is a young man, well known throughout the district, and who has with credit filled the position of sheriff of his county. The chances of his election are very good.

ALVARADO.

The City's Greatest Ornament—Museum and Indian Collection Rooms

Albuquerque has every reason to feel proud of the Alvarado, with its antique Spanish architecture, constituting the most unique and thoroughly equipped hotel in the southwest. All credit is due the Santa Fe, who so generously made Albuquerque the possessor of an institution of this kind, and under the excellent management of Fred Harvey it is complete in all its appointments. But their ambition was higher than the building of a beautiful hotel, and in consequence a building containing an unrivalled Indian collection and museum, which any of our great cities would be proud of, were installed.

Fred Harvey is to be complimented in collecting with judicious care, articles of such great rarity and variety, most of which some of our national museums would consider splendid acquisitions.

The collection rooms are unique on account of the artistic arrangement of a great variety of rare and valuable articles. This beautiful and artistic effect undoubtedly could only be obtained through selection from a large and valuable stock.

The arrangement of the general display room appeals to the artistic sense of every visitor. Large blankets of the characteristic designs of the Indians are arranged in a striking manner on the floor; large tables are covered with pottery made by the different tribes; the walls are adorned with rare old blankets, baskets, beaded wearing apparel, etc., so arranged as to make this room a most beautiful sight.

The next room which is of particular interest in this locality is the Spanish room, which contains articles of greatest value from old Spanish missions: old tapestry, swords, Maximilian china and many other articles used by the Spanish in bygone days.

A room containing relics from Samoa, Maori, British New Guinea and other of the South Sea Islands is a great attraction for those who are more familiar with our own Indian production.

Large cupboards filled with a great variety of Navajo blankets intersected by cozy corners decorated with Indian war bonnets, beaded leggings, wampum bags and other articles which at some time adorned the great warriors and their squaws constitute the artistic arrangement of the modern blanket room.

The beautiful decorations of the room containing old blankets, pottery, etc., is about to be despoiled to make a place for the Indian blanket weavers, basket and pottery makers, silversmiths and other skilled Indian workmen, who are to become an important feature of this department.

In addition to this there is the ethnological and archeological museum, which contains specimens relating to the life and customs of Western American Indians, past and present, and also the prehistoric pottery and other articles excavated from the ruins of the Cliff dwellers.

The collection in the museum cannot be purchased. All these articles were carefully selected by Dr. Dorsey, the noted collector of the Columbian museum. The work of classification is now under way and when this is completed a printed catalogue will be issued describing everything in detail. New features will be added constantly. The name Albuquerque is becoming identified with Indian collections and curios. The tourists who make trips of sight seeing through the southwest, leave the city carrying with them the memory of having seen the greatest collection of this kind in the world.

W. M. Borrowdale, the Magdalena druggist, is in the city taking in the fair and buying supplies.

Last night, at 10:45 o'clock, an alarm of fire was turned in and the fire department hurriedly responded.

The call was for the corner of Second street and Railroad avenue, and when the firemen reached that place they found the stand, used by the Elks for the disposal of confetti, in flames.

The decorations were allowed to burn themselves out, and in consequence no water was turned on. It is thought that some mischievous individual, not content on throwing confetti, thought of more lively excitement and applied a match to the decorations.

Manuel S. Pino Withdraws from Race for Representative.

Manuel S. Pino, of Mangus, who was nominated by the republican Socorro county convention as a candidate for member of the house of representatives of the thirty-fifth legislative assembly, has withdrawn from the ticket and the republican county central committee has filled the vacancy by placing upon the ticket the name of Domingo A. Ortega, of Sabinal. This, it is believed, will strengthen the republican ticket in the river precincts, where there is a very heavy vote.

CARVER HAS CONFESSED.

Admits His Part in the Robbery During Which George Wright Was Killed.

Charles Carver, the son of the hardware merchant of Alamosa, who is under arrest charged with being one of those who participated in the robbery of the Elk saloon at Alamosa, in which George Wright was killed, has made a full confession. His arrest caused great surprise and his friends claim he was drawn into the plot and was not responsible for the death of Wright. A large crowd of Alamosa people met the train from Creede Wednesday night, as it was reported one of the men had been arrested and would be brought in at that time. Every car was searched but no suspect was found. The mob threatened dire vengeance on any one who would be brought in.

POLICE COURT.

Two men named Cooper and McVay were sent up for thirty days for stealing a pair of gloves from Mike Mandell's clothing store. They were released yesterday morning with a warning to leave town, but they abused the privilege and now they are paying for it. Lumber Business Growing.

The Alamogordo & Sacramento Mountain Railway company has let the contract for the extension of the line about four and a half miles which will take it to the head of Russian canyon. Work has commenced on the grade. The extension will open up a new area of timber and from the terminus of the line the New Mexico Lumber and Lumber company will extend tramways down the entire length of Russian canyon.

About forty per cent more lumber is being handled at Alamogordo this year than last and it is being shipped as far as Hutchinson, Kan., for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad and a large amount is being sent to the Mexican Central railroad.
