past as the machine boss or the wardheeler. Precisely as the boss brought upon American politics an unnecesary stigma and bad repute, so did the unscrupulous lobbyist tend to give legitimate business interests an undeserved reputation. It came to be believed that there must be something wrong about any proposition that was in need of a professional lobbyist. The result was that instead of helping desirable legislation, the lobbyist became a distinct detriment to any cause.

As Mr. Harding puts it, there is no reason on earth why business men should not speak out for themselves, instead of letting their interests be betrayed and misrepresented by the mysterious and devious methods of some pretentious lobbyist. He has had his day with the other quacks.

The power of the business man, when properly organized, should be recognized in New Mexico and should be felt when the next legislature comes to frame a new taxation and revenue law.

SAVE INSCRIPTION ROCK.

The story published in yesterday's Journal of the desecration being committed by vandals on the famous Inscription rock in western Valencia county, is one which should command the instant attention of every citizen of New Mexico who values the history and traditions of his state and which should compel immediate action by the authorities to save and protect one of the most priceless relics in existence today.

On Inscription rock are carved the names and the record of the achievements of a goodly number of the men who wrested this portion of North America from the savage and set up a civilization which has no superior in the world's history. The conquista-dores were more than romantic adventurers. They were empire builders, and their deeds constitute the early history of this state. Inscription rock itself is a page of history—one of the most precious and priceless that any community could possess.

A comparatively trivial sum of money is required to preserve this wonderful relic and save it from the thoughtless vandalism that threatens its entire destruction. Official red tape so far has prevented the appropriation of the amount necessary to accomplish this end. Official red tape should not be allowed longer to stand in the way. If the United States government and the state authorities are not willing and ready to give the needed amount, it should be forthcoming from private sources.

THE BANK FAILURE AT LAS CRUCES.

The failure of the First State bank at Las Cruces is regrettable, but it is fortunate that the New Mexico College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts had its deposit of $75,000 fully protected by surety bonds. Also, it is hoped that the depositors of the bank will lose nothing, though when banks close their doors, except in time of panic, it usually is because the assets are smaller than the liabilities, or are so shown after affairs are wound up by the receiver.

Without the slightest criticism of the board of regents for the course they have pursued in the handling of the funds of the college, the Journal wishes to call attention to the fact that if all of the state institutions were under the management of one board no one bank would have so large a deposit of the funds of any single institution.

The present board of regents simply followed precedent and deposited the money in a bank managed by men of the political faith of a majority of the regents. The custom is a bad one, just as it is bad to allow any phase of partisan politics to get mixed into the educational affairs of any state. It always has worked out disastrously, and always will.

PASSING OF THE LOBBYIST.

Word comes from both Chicago and Cleveland that the lobbyist has been cast upon the junk heap by American politics. John J. Arnold, vice president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, told the university students the other day, how Chicago business men brought about the ousting of the lobbyist. He outlined how business men had convinced themselves that what was good for Chicago was good for the whole state of Illinois. Out of this came an alliance of similar organizations in the cities of the state; and from this organization came a national organization of the commercial bodies in the cities of the union to bring about the passage of laws for the benefit of all instead of for the benefit of some locality.

The absurdity of the lobbyist and his trade was tersely summed up in a speech made recently in Cleveland by Senator-elect Warren G. Harding, of Ohio. Mr. Harding said:

"You hear more of the lobbyist about lobbyists than any other thing in public life. I have observed more can be accomplished by organization of citizens than by all the paid lobbyists.
Yet the foolish business men pay out money for professional lobbyists, when they can accomplish all that they should by speaking out for themselves."

The lobbyist is a political excrescence. He is as much a relic of the

The Storytellers

The Joyful Sound,
Took, the famous comedian, used to tell this story in his own inimitable manner:

"I was," said he, "in the Pitti gallery at Florence with John Billington.
We had been looking at the pictures all day. It was just going to tell Billington that I had had enough, when an Irish voice expressed the same idea.

"No, my darlin', I'll not go in there; I'm thundering tired av the whole thing."

"We turned around, and there was a typical Irishman gentleman taking to his wife.

"No, darlin', I'll sit here till ye come out; I'm tired av the whole show."

"He composed himself on a bench at the entrance of one of the side galleries.

"Here's a chance," I said to Billington.

"I had a catalog in my hand. Up I went to the Irishman and in the best bogus Italian I could invent I pretended to draw his attention to the subject of art."

"Ah, signor," I said, "Probalcino contra Carlo d'ulci, grandioso del sott."

"My good man," he replied in a brogue, "I don't understand a word-o' ye say; I'm an Irishman and can't speak your lingo."

"Ah, della, cutissimo," I said, shrugging my shoulders, "della farfario con amore."

"It's no good," he said, shaking his head.

He turned away wearily, and I said:

"Then, he jabsers, can ye tell me where I can get a glass of Orlish whiskey?"

"The saints save us!" he exclaimed.

"The change of expression in his face, the way he jumped to his feet, the man's delight when he found I was not an Italian, and, I think myself, was weary of sightseeing knew no bounds."

What She Reads Now.
Terrible times, these!

The other day an innocent-eyed young lady whose demeanor has always been sweet and gentle, went to a bookstore and returned with three volumes under her arm.

"What have you there?" she was asked by a male friend. Of course he expected for an answer the titles of three fluffy novels full of moonlight and love.

Instead the gentle young thing rattled off glibly:

"Oh, I've just bought 'Armies and Navies in the World War,' 'The Beginnings of the Great European Struggle,' and 'Battles of the War on Land and Sea.'"

"Ye gods," gasped the man, and then under his breath: "Sherman was right."

New Every Year.
"A little bit of hard times might do some good," said J. G. Phelps Stokes, the noted New York sociologist, "if it would curb the senseless extravagance of some of our ultra-rich. There's a story that contains more truth than caricature about an ultra-rich woman in her box at the opera.

"Has the war hit you?" another woman asked her.

With Scissors and Paste

THE DROWNED SAILOR.

Last night I saw my true love stand All shrouded by my bed.

He had my pocket in his hand; I knew that he was dead.

"Sweetheart, why stand you there so fast,

Why stand you there so grave?"
"I think," said he, "this hour's the last."

That you and I shall have.

"You gave me this from your fair breast,

"It never left me yet;
But now it dures not seek the nest Because it is so wet."

"The cold gray sea has covered it, Deep in the mud it lies, While over me the long weeds sit,
And veil my staring eyes."

"And there are German sailors laid Beside me in the deep,
We have no need of gun or blade United in our sleep."

"Cold is the bed that I lie on,
And deep beneath the swell, No voice is left to make my moan Or bid my love farewell."

Now I am widow that was wife—Would God that they could prove What law should rule without the strife.

That's robbed me of my love.
—Maurice Hewlett, in London Chronicle.

STILL THE JAWS WAG.

(New York Mail.)

The gumchewing habit seemed to have been shamed out of a considerable part of the population, and especially the female part of the population, by the fact that the typical Beverly girl on the stage, the lowestbrowed of the low-browed, the blattstern slattern, always comes on for her act chewing gum. The invariable association of this habit with the most unpleasant human type known to the stage must have suggested to many that it is not a pleasant thing to look at—or otherwise late cognizance of.
But recent observation seems to destroy the hope that gum-chewing is being relegated to the Bowers.

MARRIAGE BY PROXY.

(Lippincott's Magazine.)

At a marriage service performed some time ago in a little country church in Georgia, when the minister said in solemn tone, "Will thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" instead of the woman answering for herself, a gruff man's voice answered, "I will." The minister looked up much perplexed and paused. He repeated the sentence, and again the same gruff voice answered: "I will."
Again the minister looked up surprised and not knowing what to make of it, when one of the groomsmen at the end of the row said: "She is deaf.
I am answering for her."

THE UNIFORM SNEEZE.

(London Chronicle.)

The machine-like character of the German army, of which so much has been heard, did not escape the satircism of Riemann when he wrote his novel, "The Machine." He said, "The soldiers and politicians were under discussion." "Soldiers," he said, "have a much easier task than diplomats; they receive their instructions, and know exactly how far they have to command and obey." "The conditions of the life," he added, "show themselves in their outward demonstration. For instance, in the First Guards this is nothing less than marvelous.
In society you never hear one of them sneezing differently from the other."

A BIG HAUL BY THE JAPS.

(London Saturday Journal.)

No wonder Princess Louise of Battenberg, wife of our first sea lord, makes an appeal for the fishermen, mine-sweepers of the North Sea. They wear jackets and "mufflers" storm canvas thick stockings and woolen gloves. Day and night these men face perils that might well try the naval swimmer.
But they love the sea. The terrors of wind and wave exercise an extraordinary fascination for these brave fellows. In one March gale some years

Why the Far Northwestern Indian Is Not Understood by the White Man

"Your modern Indian," said Hubert Footner, the other day, when asked as to the part the redskin plays in present-day fiction, "is still a poet and a mystic, as were his forefathers, but he is no lover, never has been and never will be. He knows no love, and he knows no woman. He is in the make-up of the Indian, and for that reason it is hard for our writers to see him in his true light."

This difficult question of the American aborigine was brought up by Mr.
Footner in a recent book, for not only has he lived alone among them, making a careful firsthand study such as few white men have had the opportunity to make, but also because he has made use of the Indians, perhaps more than any present-day novelist.

"The trouble with most Indians in fiction," continued Mr. Footner, "is that they are endowed with our psychology, whereas, as a matter of fact, the psychology of the Indian is intensely different. It is a thing we do not understand, can never thoroughly understand, because the Indian's psychology is a thing we have little in common with us, and which has no relation, psychologically, to this modern time. The curse of the Indian where civilization encroaches upon him is his utter inability to adapt himself. He simply breaks up."

"The Indian is romantic," said the author, "intensely so. And he is a mystic, a lover of nature, and in his way a humorist. A few things one learns by infinite patience and study —at the source, and my effort has been always to portray the Indian I know—the Cree and the Salvi-—always as mysteries. That is their fascination."

"Stolidity is just another misconception, religiously fostered by the Indian himself before white men came to his real personality. That is why it is so hard for a white to study the real Indian."

"He is particularly sensitive to ridicule. Therefore, when a white man comes into an Indian camp all the natives close up like clams. Alone or with a single white man whom they have come to trust, it is another story.
Then they laugh and talk and gestic-ulate just like any other crowd of human beings. Moreover, there is a certain staidness about them which one comes to admire very much—but before white men this freezes into a sullen stolidity which we too often mistake for stupidity. They are particularly fond of practical jokes."

"But the real Indian comes out in the chase. That is the central theme of the Indian story, just as love is the central theme of a large part of our literature. It is a treat to hear an Indian tell the story of a mighty hunt. Living alone with the Indians,

JOY IN ONE'S WORK.

(Three Partners.)

The idea of joy in one's work has been often ridiculed but nevertheless it is fast taking root in the minds of many and proving its value and merit.
Today many things are done, many principles accepted, which were considered absurd or not considered at all a generation ago. To perform the day's work joyfully and joyously may not be possible in cases without effort, but the fact is being realized more and more that it is very much worth while to develop the habit.

This plan has no limitations or environment. Whether in the home, in the office, in the factory, or at recreation time, you can take cheerfulness and willingness and eagerness with you. The day's burdens are lightened, fatigue is kept at a distance, depression is not given a chance to get you in its clutch. Not only do you get good company for yourself, but for others. Your joy in what you are doing surrounds you and spreads to your associates. Disease is not the only thing which spreads.

It has been proved that anger and violent emotion cause for the time being a poisonous condition of the blood which is injurious. It must be equally true that facing the passing hour with a mouth turned up at the corners and a mind alert for the best that the day offers is beneficial. This is a pretty decent old world after all.
If we but trust it right, and surely if we face our obligations and our work, not with frowns but with gladness, it will give us a more kindly greeting and a helping hand to return.

THE FAIR-ODD CALL.

If out beyond the city's farthest edge There were no roads, that led Through sleepy towns, No winds to blow through any thorny hedge,
No pathways over hazel-tufted downs, I might not when the day begins, be sad Because I toil among the money mad.

If out beyond the distant hill there lay No valley graced by any winding stream,
And if no slim, white steeples far away Might mark the spots where drowsy hamlets dream, I could, perhaps, at midday be content,
Where striving millions at their tasks are bent.

If far away from noise and strife and care
There were no buds to swell, no waiting trees,
No mating birds to spill upon the air No liquid sweetness of their melodies,
I might, at sunset, be serene and proud Because a few had seen me in the crowd.

"SMILING DEVILS."

(T. P.'s Weekly.)

A German soldier interned in England is reported to have described our own soldiers as "smiling devils." The term is paradoxical and therefore capable of misleading. Devils do not smile; they sneer and grin and grimace. I do not think the German soldier meant that. What he really meant to say was that our men did their gruesome work cheerfully and without remorse, which means that
have no consciousness of defeat.

Tommy feels invincible, therefore he smiles. He may not love his enemies, but he does not hate them. Our prayer should be that he keep smiling. I have great faith in common sayings —they embody the wisdom of peoples.
"Keep smiling" is a common saying which embodies the unwritten law of life. You cannot smile and hate; you cannot hate and win. You can love and win and you can smile and win; and to win on such grounds is not to be a devil.

WHERE DO YOU BELONG?

The terms "highbrow" and "lowbrow" are often heard, but their meaning has been somewhat obscured.
A Chicago paper has come to describe the classes to which the terms are applicable. It has added highlights and lowlights to the classification as follows:

Highbrow—Browning, anthropology, economics, Bacon, the uplift, Gibson, Euripides, "eyether," pate de foie gras.

Low-highbrow—Municipal government, Kipling, socialism, Shakespeare, politics, Thackeray, taxation, golf, grand opera, "eyether," stocks and bonds, gin rickey.

High-lowbrow—Musical comedy, Richard Harding Davis, aubere, baseball, Anthony Hope, motion pictures, novels, Robert W. Chambers, purple socks.

Lowbrow—Ham sandwich, haven't come, pitch, melodrama, half oil, the Duchess, beer, George M. Cohen, chewing gum in public.

DON'T FUSS WITH MUSTARD PLASTERS!

Musterole Works Easier, Quicker and Without the Blister.

There's no sense in mixing up a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can so easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white MUSTEROLE.

MUSTEROLE is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of a pleasant white ointment. It takes the place of the out-of-date mustard plaster, and will not blister!

MUSTEROLE gives prompt relief from Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Tonsilitis, Croup, Stiff Neck, Asthma, Neuralgia, Headache, Congestion, Pleurisy, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Pains and Aches of the Back or Joints, Sprains, Sore Muscles, Bruises, Chil-

No liquid sweetness of their melodies,
I might, at sunset, be serene and
proud
crowd.

(T. P.'s Weekly.)

A German soldier interned in England is reported to have described our
able of misleading. Devils do not
smile; they sneer and grin and grim-
ace. I do not think the German soldier meant that. What he really
without remorse, which means that
have no consciousness of defeat.

Tommy feels invincible, therefore he smiles. He may not love his enemies, but he does not hate them. Our prayer should be that he keep smiling. I have great faith in common sayings
—they embody the wisdom of peoples.
"Keep smiling" is a common saying
life. You cannot smile and hate; you cannot hate and win. You can love
and win and you can smile and win;
be a devil.

WHERE DO YOU BELONG?

brow" are often heard, but their
meaning has been somewhat obscured.
A Chicago paper has come to
describe the classes to which the
terms are applicable. It has added highlights and lowlights to the classification as follows:

Highbrow—Browning, anthropology, economics, Bacon, the uplift, Gibson, Euripides, "eyether," pate
de foie gras.

Low-highbrow—Municipal government, Kipling, socialism, Shakespeare,
politics, Thackeray, taxation, golf,
grand opera, "eyether," stocks and
bonds, gin rickey.

High-lowbrow—Musical comedy,
Richard Harding Davis, aubere, base-
ball, Anthony Hope, motion pictures, novels, Robert W. Chambers, purple
socks.

Lowbrow—Ham sandwich, haven't come, pitch, melodrama, half oil, the Duchess, beer, George M. Cohen,
chewing gum in public.

DON'T FUSS WITH MUSTARD PLASTERS!

Musterole Works Easier, Quicker and Without the Blister.

There's no sense in mixing up a
mess of mustard, flour and water
when you can so easily relieve pain,
soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white MUSTEROLE.

MUSTEROLE is made of pure oil
of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of a pleasant white ointment.

OFFICIALS OF INSTITUTE MAKE TERM REPORTS

End of First Three Months Brings Out Interesting Statement From Department Heads at Roswell.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL
Roswell, N. M., Dec. 10.—The New Mexico Military Institute has just completed the first term in its year's academic work, the session being divided into three terms of three months each. The heads of the various departments have submitted their reports for the first ninety days.

The report submitted by the post surgeon and the physical director is one of especial interest. It is as follows:

New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, N. M., Dec. 7, 1914.
From the Surgeon, to Col. James W. Willson, Superintendent.

Subject: Physical condition of the corps of cadets, session 1914-1915.
September 7, 1914, to December 4, 1914, (or about ninety days).

Total number of cadets considered, 157.

The net increase in weight, per cadet, 5.66 pounds.

The net increase in height, per cadet, .66 inch.

The net increase in chest, per cadet, 1.9 inches.

The net increase in chest expansion, .54 inch.

The net decrease in waist measurement, 1.9 inches.

The general health conditions have been excellent. But four cadets have been confined to hospital, and this for the purpose of isolation, they having developed a mild, but contagious form of tonsillitis.

H. A. INGALLS,
Captain and Post Surgeon.

CAPT. C. M. RADEMACHER, Athletic Director.

LENOIR MADE SECRETARY OF COMMERCIAL CLUB IN EAST LAS VEGAS

East Las Vegas, N. M., Dec. 10.—

The Las Vegas Commercial club last night elected Phil H. LeNoir secretary of the organization. LeNoir was formerly the local Y. M. C. A. secretary and was connected with the Albuquerque Y. M. C. A. work a short time during the campaign for the "Y" building.

The Commercial club voted to mark the transcontinental highway at the point where the circle drive branches off near Raton. The cities of Wagon Mound, Maxwell and Springer will assist in the upkeep of the sign board.

The foregoing dispatch from Las Vegas will be read with much pleasure in Albuquerque, where Mr. LeNoir made many warm friends during the recent campaign for the erection of a Y. M. C. A. building. Of genial and attractive personality and fine business ability, it is believed here that the selection of Mr. LeNoir as secretary of the Las Vegas Commercial club is a particularly fortunate one for the club, and all who came in contact with him during his short stay in Albuquerque will wish him the highest measure of success in his new field.

ALLEGED HOLD-UP MAN PINCHED IN LAS VEGAS

East Las Vegas, N. M., Dec. 10.—

Miguel Baca was arrested last night by Sheriff Roman Gallegos on the charge of robbery. Baca sold a revolver to the bartender at the Bridger bar and while the purchaser was in the rear of the room it is alleged that Baca opened the cash register and removed $48.10 from the till. Olguin, the bartender, heard the cash register ring and rushed to the front of the saloon and stopped Baca holding him until the sheriff was called and had taken charge of the offender.

When Baca was searched he was found to have $35.75 in his pockets. It is supposed that he had an accomplice and divided the money with him.

Baca was given a hearing this afternoon before Justice of the Peace Felipe Baca y Garcia and was bound over to await the action of the grand jury. As there had been no charge of larceny against him Baca was placed under a $1,500 bond.

THREE CANVASES BY UFER ARE ACCEPTED BY FRISCO ART JURY

Santa Fe, Dec. 10.—Walter Ufer, whose art exhibit in the Palace of the Governors a few weeks ago, was one of the events of the year, this week had three of his large canvases of San Juan and Taos Indian subjects, accepted by the jury for the Panama-Pacific World's Fair Art Exhibit at San Francisco next year.

They were passed unanimously by the art jury with instructions to pay the artist a high tribute on the merit of his work.

Mr. Ufer is a Chicago artist who was sent to Taos by Mayor Carter Harrison and there established a studio in the home of Dr. T. P. Martin. Considering that altogether only twenty-two canvases were accepted in and around Chicago, the fact that three of them are by Mr. Ufer and all three New Mexico subjects, speaks well for his genius. Although he painted some fifty canvases at Taos this summer, he has sold nearly all of them, several remaining in Santa Fe having been purchased by ex-Mayor Arthur Seligman and John K. Stauffer.

Foreign Postal Service Resumed.
Santa Fe, Dec. 10.—Postmaster James L. Seligman has been officially notified that arrangements have been completed for the resumption of the dispatch of parcels post mail for Germany, Austria and Hungary, and that until further notice parcels post packages which conform to the prescribed conditions will be accepted for mailing to these countries.

Frank Cedar Attracts Attention.
Santa Fe, Dec. 10.—A piece of cedar that had grown into the exact shape and size of a large pineapple is being exhibited by T. P. Delgado, of the Santa Fe Lumber & Transfer Co., and is attracting some attention because of its unique structure.

STOCK EXCHANGE TRANSACTIONS SHOW UP WELL

for High Grade Securities Is Conspicuous Feature of Financial Situation.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADERS WIRE
New York, Dec. 10.—Continued broadening of the demand for high grade securities was the conspicuous feature of the general financial situation today both on the stock exchange and among bankers who are reporting large numbers of over-the-counter sales. There were signs of foreign liquidation, presumably for Germany, but this was taken without strain.

Both bonds and stocks of speculative quality moved irregularly but the extent was below that of recent active days. In the stock list submitted by the exchange the weakest feature was yesterday's dividend announcement.

Routing news included the November tonnage statement of the United States Steel corporation, which was more favorable than most forecasts and the government report which estimated the 1914-15 yield of cotton at almost 16,000,000 without interest. Should this promise be fulfilled the crop will be the largest in the history of the country, exceeding the last five years' average by almost 4,000 bales. Cotton options broke precipitately on publication of the report.

Leading steel mills, according to report, have increased their production thus far this month and indications of genuine betterment were offered by advances in some special products. Negotiations for the exportation of large quantities of rails and ties were still pending, likewise the filling of some substantial domestic orders.

Bankers were again in conference with representatives of European governments planning the placing of additional credits in this market, but no details concerning these projects were obtainable. Some of the prominent railway and industrial corporations also were said to have new financing in contemplation.

For the first time in several days railroads failed to show increasing strength, a fact that was associated with the recent defeat of the German fleet in the south Atlantic. More likely, however, it was due to a temporary cessation of demand for these remittances. London's markets were cheerful and the bank of England statement showed improvement over recent weeks.

CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE.
Chicago, Dec. 10.—Fear of grave damage having been done by frost in Argentina acted as more than an offset today for the bearish influence of the German market. The market, although much unsettled, closed 1/4 to 1/2 above last night. Corn scored a net gain of 1/4 to 1/2 to 3/4; oats finished 1/4 down to 1/4 to 1/2; and provisions at a decline of 1/2 to 3/4 to 2 1/2 to 2 3/4.

Notwithstanding the fact that the British victory did away with most if not all the danger of German interference with shipments to Liverpool, seemed to be made decided thin in England, where prices were reported as comparatively firm, owing to Argentine advices of frost damage. Bearish feeling in Chicago early was increased by rumors of the death of the kaiser, but when denials were promptly forthcoming the market made a sudden rebound and there was closer attention to estimates that 2,000,000 acres in the province of Buenos Aires had possibly suffered irreparable harm.

Later assertions that the Argentine damage reported had been greatly exaggerated led to a series of nervous price changes, but in the end the bulls held the advantage. Assurances of large export sales of flour at Minneapolis and of additional sales at Kansas City and St. Louis counted against the bears.

Declining receipts put strength into corn from the start. There was also evidence of a good call from seaboard exporters. The oats market had little action despite talk of 1,000,000 bushels having been taken for Europe. According to some observers the buying was to cover shortages on contracts rather than to apply on new export business.

Provisions ran lower, owing to a break in hog values.

Closing prices:
Wheat—Dec., $1.16; May, $1.20.
Corn—Dec., 62 1/2; May, 58 1/2.
Oats—Dec., 46 1/2; May, 51 1/2.
Pork—Jan., $12.90; May, $13.57.
Lard—Jan., $9.57; May, $9.92.
Ribs—Jan., $9.72; May, $10.02.

NEW MEXICO BOOK IS COMPREHENSIVE VOLUME

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL
Santa Fe, Dec. 10.—Some idea of the comprehensiveness of the New Mexico Exposition Souvenir book is to be noted from the table of contents compiled today.

The volume opens with the story of the New Mexico building at San Diego, followed by the publishers' introduction. Then comes an account of the work of the New Mexico exposition managers, a historical sketch of New Mexico, the Cliff City; New Mexico Indians; the Navajo Blanket; a New Mexico Institution; New Mexico Mission Churches; Palace of the Governors; New Mexico Historical and Archaeological Societies; the Land of the Horrific Desires; Mining and School of Mines; Higher Educational Institutions; Church Life in New Mexico; Women's Clubs and State Federation; Good Roads; New Mexico Scenery; Forests; the Game of New Mexico; the Forested Butte Dam; the Caribbea Project; the story of each of the twenty-six counties and of each of the larger towns and settlements, together with an account of the larger industrial enterprises.

More than five hundred half-tone cuts will illustrate the volume of almost 300 big quarto pages, beautifully bound, making altogether the finest account of the state, in fact of any state, that has ever been published.

Mining Statistics Made Public.
Santa Fe, Dec. 10.—The latest statistics of mineral production, just made public, show that Arizona continues to produce four times as much mineral as New Mexico, for New Mexico's annual production is given as $17,862,368, as against $70,875,027 in Arizona. However, New Mexico doubled its production in two years. Like Arizona, New Mexico's chief production was in copper, but unlike Arizona, New Mexico produced $5,585,352 worth of coal while Arizona had no coal. However, while New Mexico had one-fourth of the mineral production of Arizona, New Mexico mines paid only one-fourteenth as much taxes as did Arizona mines.

Big Revenue Stamps Received.
Santa Fe, Dec. 10.—Internal Revenue Collector Carpenter has at last received the higher denomination of internal revenue stamps, running as high as $50. It is also announced that persons purchasing documentary or proprietary stamps in $100 quantities will be allowed a discount of 1 per cent.
