New Mexico demands Statehood from the Fifty-Seventh Congress.
FRIDAY, DEC. 6.

Ex-Senator S. W. Dorsey is building a railroad in southern Arizona.

District Attorney Clancy should make a heroic effort to collect the delinquent taxes in this county.

With proper irrigation, the Rio Grande valley in New Mexico would support a half million of people.

Crescens will trot his last race in this city on Christmas day. On January 1 he will be withdrawn from the track and used for breeding purposes.

Strange things sometimes happen in this territory. J. F. Manning, of Las Vegas, poses in Washington as secretary of the reform league of New Mexico.

While a majority of the local dealers of this city buy their family necessities in other cities, it is almost useless to urge the people to patronize home merchants.

The Chinese Six companies are said to have issued a proclamation offering a tribute of $1 on every Chinese in the country, to form a fund to fight against the re-enactment of the exclusion law.

President Roosevelt struck the right chord when he declared against private water monopolies. The question has a very definite application to the question of irrigation in the Rio Grande valley.

On Thanksgiving day, Governor Otero pardoned a man from the penitentiary who had served twenty-two years. Since his incarceration the territory has become gridlocked with railroads; towns and cities have been built, and civilization has taken possession of the wilds of the territory.

IRRIGATION LAWS.
President Roosevelt clearly grasps the problems of law conflict and justly affirms that no other part of the national irrigation problem is more important than the complete revision of all the laws on the matter of water rights in accordance with the experience, the needs, and the particular conditions of the arid regions. The present chaotic condition is highly detrimental to development, and benefits nobody. The president holds that no national irrigation scheme should take cognizance of private ends or desires or benefits, but should concern itself solely with the public good.

EL PASO'S SCHEME.
Senator Culberson and Congressman Stephens, of Texas, have both introduced bills to provide for what is termed the equitable distribution of the waters of the Rio Grande between the United States and Mexico, and for the purpose of building an international dam and reservoir at El Paso. The bills provide that there shall be no appropriation and storage of the waters of the Rio Grande or its tributaries to which others have right by prior appropriation, and no person guilty of unlawfully appropriating and storing these waters shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both. The bill also authorizes the secretary of state to proceed with the consideration of a treaty between the United States and Mexico providing for the dam.

FAVORS NEW MEXICO.
A dispatch from Washington says that Senator Ekins has introduced a New Mexico admission bill. The dispatch further says: "It is just twenty-six years since, as delegates from New Mexico, he presented the first of the army of bills for enabling acts for that territory, which have failed because of persistent republican hostility to their admission. The senator says he is going to do everything he can this year for New Mexico, and there is undoubtedly a better chance than for some years. It is not regarded as a good sign that the president, of whose support much has been expected, omitted all reference to admission of any of the territories in his message. It is, however, certain that Mr. Roosevelt looks with more favor on New Mexico than the other aspiring territories. If a bill is passed admitting New Mexico, it will be promptly signed by him."

THE CATTLE RANGE.
The pronounced attitude of the officials at Washington on the all-absorbing subject of irrigation in the west gives evidence that the western states will soon begin to feel the march of civilization and the influx of the husbandmen who lay the foundation and maintain the populated sections. Then the great herds of cattle that have been roaming over the millions of acres of public domain will be reduced to farm herds of a better grade. The rangeland will become stock farms, like their brethren in the northern and eastern states, who have found it more profitable to raise a 2-year-old steer to weigh 1,100 to 1,200 pounds than holding it until 4 years old and getting no better weight.

With the irrigation matter under public control adjusted, there will follow the giving of attention to the individual control of the ranges by some sort of vested right, which will mean lease from the government. This subject is being given more and

DEMING DOINGS.
Sad Death of a Young Man—Work on Bisbee Road Crossing.
OTHER LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Special Correspondence.
Deming, N. M., Dec. 5.—Mr. Bowers, a young gentleman recently from the east in search of health, caught cold by imprudently exposing himself to the night air in going to church Sunday before last, and immediately went down rapidly. His fiancée, Miss Howell, was telegraphed for, and arrived yesterday morning. But he had died Tuesday afternoon, and she could only return east with the body, leaving last night on the Santa Fe.

Work has been commenced on the new crossing of the Bisbee road. Beginning just south of their present yards, the road will run a little west of north, crossing the Southern Pacific track above the round house and tapping the Santa Fe track at the commencement of the Silver City. Messrs. Ben and Will Burnside were down Tuesday from Santa Rita and Silver City, respectively, to be present at the wedding reception of their brother John, an incidentally to celebrate their father's 70th birthday on the same evening. They returned to their respective homes. John Burnside and his bride will leave this afternoon for Texas, where they will visit friends and relatives for several weeks before returning to live at Santa Rita.

H. J. Clifford, the expert for the Federal Copper company of New York and El Paso, went up to Santa Rita yesterday, examining the San Jose mines, which they are thinking of buying. If Mr. Clifford reports favorably, as he usually will, Tuesday for Bakersfield on one of the Victorio Ranch company's cattle trains. He is lately from the east and believes in making the most of anything "new under the sun." As this adventure undoubtedly is for him.

The Southern Pacific west bound train, yesterday, was delayed here for some two hours by a freight car, which had jumped the track between here and Lordsburg.

Real estate is going steadily up here. No boom, but a gradual rise by merit. What is Deming is having, and is glad of it.

It is now largely talked and apparently upon good authority, that Deming is to be the location of the big Phelps-Dodge smelter. Even El Paso papers concede this, and the nearness of this company's great flux-copper mines at Hanover and facility for getting it easily would certainly point to that course as the wise one.

FIREMAN CHARLES WYNKOOP.
He Distinguished Himself at the City Hall Fire, Denver—Brother of Harmon Wynkoop.

A few days ago the handsome city hall of Denver was almost totally destroyed by fire, and in order to save the building, the firemen were extremely daring in their work. None, however, distinguished himself as a hero more so than Charles Wynkoop, and the picture of the young man and gave him the benefit of the following mention:
"Close to the business with which he is connected, the hero of the city hall fire, and credit is due him for the rescue of five firemen. The firemen had entered the building by the rear door, and were on the narrow ledge, when one of the cupolas fell in. Their escape was cut off and they were obliged to call for help. The five men were standing on a stone ledge less than two feet wide, a long distance from the ground, with their backs to the flames on either side which were growing hotter every minute. A ladder was raised, but it was not long enough to reach the ledge. Wynkoop, mounted to the top of the ladder, carrying with him a pomper ladder, which he heaved to the fourth floor. A coil of rope was passed up to him, which he threw to the five men above him. They fastened it securely and then swung down to the ladders below, where they were helped to the ground."

The hero of the city hall fire, Denver, is a son of the late Major Wynkoop, of Santa Fe, and brother of the Harmon Wynkoop, foreman of the Harmon Company, who also a brother of Frank M. Wynkoop, who formerly published a mining weekly, the Blaud, but now of Denver, where he has gained quite a reputation as a poet.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.
The name of the new clerk at the clothing store of E. L. Washburn is J. A. Beale.

Dr. J. S. Easterday, who was on the sick list the past few days, is up and around among his patients today.

Peter Marron, from Mount Pleasant, Pa., arrived last night, and will visit his brother, Mayor O. N. Marron, for a few weeks.

There is some activity in real estate in this city. Options are being obtained and property is changing hands. A sign of good times, this.

Mrs. M. F. Nightingale and daughter, Miss Alice, are expected here in a few days from Albuquerque and will visit Albuquerque relatives for a short time.

There will be a regular meeting of the A. O. U. E. S. on the evening of December 6. Election of officers. By order of worthy matron, Laura Fluke, secretary.

Mrs. W. H. Springer, in response to a telegram received yesterday, announcing the death of ex-Pasadena Conductor C. A. Berry, left last night for Los Angeles, Cal.

The New Mexican says: Mrs. W. R. Baird, of Albuquerque, who came in from Las Vegas last evening, left this forenoon over the Denver & Rio Grande railroad for La Jara, Colo.

Capt. W. C. Reid, assistant United States attorney, who was in Deming yesterday attending the preliminary hearing of Mock Ring, passed through this city today on his return to Las Vegas.

FEAST OF LIGHTS.
An Ancient Jewish Festival With Interesting Origin.
On Thursday evening, December 5, or, according to the Jewish calendar, the 25th of Kislev, the Feast of Lights began and lasts eight days. The festival is post-Biblical and the accounts can be found in the apocryphal books of the first and second Maccabees. The festival is based on the following historical facts:
In 167 B. C. E. the altar at Jerusalem was polluted and offerings to Olympian Zeus were placed upon it; the people were forced to bend the knee to this false deity. However, a deliverer arose in the person of Judas Maccabees, who, with a handful of men, waged bitter warfare against the tyrant Antiochus Epiphanes, and in 164 B. C. E. had regained Jerusalem and its altar and rededicated it on the 25th day of Kislev.

There is much discussion as to the origin of the name of the festival. Some would have it from an Arabic word meaning "a hammer," and thus signifying that they struck the enemy with a hammer, while others, perhaps more truly, say that on the banner which they unfurled there were written the Hebrew words which mean "Who is like unto Thee, O God, the mighty," and the first letter of each word would form the word "Maccabees." Either derivation gives us an insight into the character of the leaders, and we undoubtedly gain the true knowledge of them by uniting both derivations and beholding them as mighty warriors who joined with their prowess a deep religious feeling.

The feast is celebrated eight days because the dedication of every altar lasted eight days and there were eight days added on this occasion because of the extraordinary event. However, it is not out of place to mention here a beautiful Talmudical conceit, which runs as follows: During all the trials and tribulations there rested securely a small cruse of holy oil, that was neither consumed nor defiled. When the temple was rededicated and the men were cleansing it, they found this oil, and, although they thought that it would not last one day, it lasted eight days, and, therefore, the feast is celebrated eight days.

It is strictly a home festival and is celebrated by the lighting of candles, which Josephus tells us signify power and freedom.

If you are in doubt as to what to get that little boy for a holiday gift, call and see what we have in our boys department, and we wager that you will be able to find something acceptable, useful and inexpensive. Simon Stern, the Railroad Avenue Clothier.

Methodist Officers.
Last evening, at the Lead Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Superintendent, F. S. Grant; assistant superintendent, B. F. Davis; superintendent of primary department, Miss Editha Nichols; secretary, Mr. Buckwall; treasurer, Miss Laura Connelly; librarian, Miss Clara Fiekert; assistant librarian, Miss Clara Dinwiddie; missionary treasurer, Mrs. H. M. Pratt; chorister, Miss Elizabeth Goodin; organist, Miss Etta Grant. The secretary was authorized to appoint an assistant. The Sunday school has been very successful the last year under Mr. Grant's administration, and now taxes to the utmost the capacity of the church and parsonage. The young men's class, with Miss Coltrane as teacher, and the young ladies' class, with Mr. Anderson as teacher, are really great societies of young people.

Mortuary Matters.
At 4:30 o'clock this morning, James J. Abell died at the home of his father, No. 101 East Lead Avenue, after several days' illness with typhoid fever. He was 72 years and 3 months old today. His mother's death occurred on November 8 as a result of typhoid fever, and it is supposed the little boy contracted the disease at that time. The funeral services will be held at the late home Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, and Rev. Father Mandall will officiate, after which the little body will be laid to rest by the side of the mother in Santa Barbara cemetery. J. W. Edwards will have charge of the funeral arrangements.

Ubaldo E. Sedillo, infant son of Ubaldo E. Sedillo, died this morning Thursday evening at 9 o'clock, in Barajas. The funeral, which was in charge of F. O. Strong, was held this morning in the church of Immaculate Conception. Rev. Father Mandall officiating. Interment was made in Santa Barbara.

Crescent Lithographs.
T. J. Shink, the advertising committee of the Albuquerque Driving Association, received this morning handsome lithographs of Crescents, famous trotter, and he is around advertising the fact that the water heater will be here on Christmas day to give an exhibition trot at the fair grounds in the afternoon.

That Wool Purchase.
A. J. Crawford, who is one of the most extensive wool buyers of central New Mexico, and Ben. Bohne returned late yesterday afternoon from the William McIntosh sheep ranch near Chilli. Mr. Crawford recently purchased the McIntosh merino wool out of 200,000 pounds, and while in the mountains he made arrangements with countrymen to bring the wool into the city. It will take ninety wagons, of four horses to each wagon, and the first caravan will leave Chilli next Monday morning.
