THE BLOCKADE OF SANTIAGO

Captain Allen Was the First to Know of the Presence of Spanish Ships in That Harbor.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONY

It Was Known on May 20 Already That Cervera and His Fleet Were at Santiago and Admiral Sampson Dispatched a Boat to Notify Admiral Schley.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—Captain Cervera, Admiral Sampson's chief of staff during the war, continued his testimony before the Schley court of inquiry today under cross-examination by Mr. Rayner. Other witnesses were Lieutenant Sidney A. Staunton, Chadwick's principal assistant, and Lieutenant Nathan C. Twining, officer aboard the Iowa during the Santiago campaign.

Captain Lemly said that he expected to conclude the presentation of the government's side of the case on Monday. It is understood that Rayner is prepared to immediately begin the introduction of Schley's witnesses and press the case forward rapidly.

Lieutenant Commander Staunton related the particulars of his securing information of the presence of Cervera's fleet at Santiago. He said that while the fleet under Sampson lay at Key West on the morning of May 20, he went ashore. While in the office of Commodore Remy, he said, Captain Allen, of the signal service, told him that he had received information of the presence of the Spanish fleet at Santiago, which he believed to be correct. The information came from an employee of the telegraph office at Havana, who could only send his information after 6 o'clock, when others were absent from the office there. Captain Allen had, witness said, asked that great secrecy be observed for the protection of the operator, only agreeing that the commander-in-chief and staff should be informed. Later witness returned from Key West and received confirmatory information.

Staunton then stated that next morning, May 21, the fleet proceeded to blockade Havana, Sampson being satisfied the information concerning the presence of the fleet at Santiago was correct. The admiral accordingly had called up the Hawk and forwarded his dispatches to Commodore Schley.

"To the best of my knowledge, the Hawk was the first and only vessel that carried that memorandum," said the witness.

A LITTLE SPAT.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—Just before the Schley court of inquiry adjourned, Judge Advocate Lemly made some remarks about the conduct of Rayner, Schley's chief counsel, which the latter resented. Rayner attempted to introduce a statement prepared in regard to the speed of the vessels of the flying squadron. Lemly objected, saying some statements Rayner made were inaccurate. To this Rayner responded: "If the counsel makes that statement outside of court it is false." Before the court adjourned an explanation was made on both sides, which, Admiral Dewey said, was satisfactory.

SCHIEPER CAPTURED.

NOW IN TURKEY.

Miss Stone Has Been Taken by Her Captors Upon the Sultan's Territory.

New York, Oct. 12.—According to the Sofia correspondent of the World, the Bulgarian police are assured that Miss Ellen M. Stone, the kidnapped American missionary, has been conducted by 20 brigands close to the village of Iakurita, in Turkish territory.

HOPE FOR RELEASE.
Constantinople, Oct. 12.—Since the brigands who abducted Miss Stone were located on the mountain at Gultepe, the approach of troops induced them to change their retreat. They are now hiding on the Turkish-Bulgarian frontier, ready to cross to either side, as circumstances may demand.

The decision to suspend the movements of the troops was partially due to the difficulties of operating in the mountainous country, and partly owing to the fear that further advance might endanger the life of Miss Stone, hence the American desire to negotiate for the payment of the ransom. It is hoped this will result in the release of Miss Stone in a few days.

PAT CROWE MAKES AN OFFER

He Merely Asks That the Reward of $50,000 Hanging Over His Head Be Withdrawn.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE PENDING

Chief of Police Donahue of the Omaha Police Force Waives the Reward and Says That Crowe Is Less Than $500 Miles from Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 12.—Chief of Police Donahue received from Patrick Crowe, through a friend of the latter, an offer to surrender himself and stand trial in the courts if the reward of $50,000 hanging over his head for the alleged kidnapping of Edward A. Cudahy, Jr., is withdrawn. The chief of police is negotiating with him for his surrender.

Chief Donahue made a counter offer to waive the reward himself, saying nobody else could secure it. The chief says Crowe is less than 500 miles from Omaha, and not with his relatives. Edward A. Cudahy, Sr., was asked if the reward offered for Crowe would be withdrawn. He said: "Yes, we will do anything to secure Crowe. I still believe Crowe was one of the abductors of my son, but if he surrenders he shall have a fair trial."

A HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Santa Fe Should Have More Modern Fire Apparatus.

Fire last evening destroyed the residence of A. Seyffert on Cathedral street near the Santa Fe river, and badly gutted a two-story, unoccupied dwelling house in the rear of the Seyffert residence. Both houses are the property of the Roman Catholic diocese. Mrs. Seyffert was busy in the kitchen shortly after six o'clock in the evening, ironing some clothes. She went toward the front of the house a few minutes later and to her horror saw that the parlor was in flames, probably started by the explosion of a coal oil lamp. She hurriedly took her children, who had already been put to bed in another room and had barely time to leave the house. The fire alarm was sounded but the fire department seemed unprepared and the building together with every bit of furniture was destroyed and the two-story building in the rear was on fire, with flames shooting from the roof and from the side before the fire department did any effective work. Mr. Seyffert has some insurance on his furniture but the church authorities carried no insurance on the buildings. The damage is $2,000. A very large crowd watched the fire. It is evident that Santa Fe needs a steam fire engine and well drilled fire department as well as a place where all the fire apparatus can be kept in first class order.

The English mission conference then resumed its work. The standing committees began to make their reports and these were adopted. The treasurer's report showed a decided gain in a financial respect. The statistical report showed a marked gain in church membership. Several new churches have been organized. Conference will adjourn on Monday morning when the appointments will be read.

EXTRA TARIFF DUTIES PRONOUNCED LEGAL

The Government Has a Right to Place a Higher Duty on Russian Sugar in Order to Protect American Sugar Against Russian Bounties.

A DECISION IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 12.—Judge Morris of the United States district court, decided that the extra tariff duty levied on sugar imported from Russia into the United States is legal. The decision was rendered in the case of A. E. Downs against the government, in which it was contended that no bounty was paid by Russia on sugars manufactured there. Judge Morris in his decision held that inducements to refiners held out by the Russian government are equivalent to bounties.

HIS LIBERTY BUT SHORT.

Montenegro, Who Escaped from the Penitentiary Thursday, Was Recaptured Last Night.

When you see it in the New Mexican it is so. Yesterday the New Mexican predicted that Juan Montenegro, a convict who worked as a trusty in the penitentiary gardens and who ran off Thursday afternoon with another man's horse, would be quickly recaptured. The prediction proved true and yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock Montenegro was captured by one of the penitentiary guards in the mountains a few miles from the city. The horse had gotten away from him and returned yesterday morning to its accustomed stable. The iron doors of the penitentiary opened hospitably to receive Montenegro again, and it may be presumed that just now he is enjoying a diet of bread and water and probably received a deserved although not appreciated beating. The chances are that the charge of horse stealing will be brought up against Montenegro and that in addition to losing his good time record he will be tried upon that charge. The moral of this little tale is, leave well enough alone. When you are a trusty and have but a few months to serve your time, and then step forth a better man, a wiser man, a more experienced man, to commence life over again. The little incident again proves that the New Mexican's assertion, that Superintendent Bursum is the right man in the right place, is correct.

GREAT PROMISE FOR SANTA FE

The Santa Fe Intends to Build Its Main Line by Way of This City.

CUT-OFF TO COST $4,000,000

Engineers Are in the Field Now Making Surveys and Construction on the Cut-off Is to Commence Within Sixty Days.

Says the Denver Evening Post: "By changing forty miles of its line in New Mexico the Santa Fe will spend nearly $4,000,000. This vast sum, however, will be saved in less than six years on expenses now necessary to repair its present line because of washouts."

"The contemplated change in route will place Santa Fe on the main line of the road which bears its name instead of a branch road eighteen miles long."

"J. W. Kendrick, third vice president, and H. U. Mudge, general manager of the Santa Fe, left Denver yesterday for a trip over the new road."

"The change in route of the Santa Fe has been deemed necessary because of frequent costly washouts and cloudbursts which have swept away the track and greatly delayed traffic."

"Between Las Vegas and San Pedro the Santa Fe follows a creek. It is in the Gloria mountains and the frequent heavy rains and cloudbursts transform the stream into a river that sweeps all before it."

"Gloria is 7,422 feet, while Las Vegas is 6,383 feet, and Albuquerque is 4,935 feet. Aside from getting away from the stream the engineers have established an easier grade. The new line will begin near Las Vegas and will be built higher up in the mountains, where it cannot be reached by any stream. It will place Santa Fe on the main line and connect it with the present main line at San Pedro."

"The work will cost an enormous sum, because it is forced through the mountains. There is a great deal of blasting in its construction and when finished it will be, it is said, one of the finest pieces of mountain railroads in the United States."

"Ever since the construction of the Santa Fe the road has suffered from washouts in the section between Las Vegas and San Pedro. Last spring the road was washed out and gangs of men were speedily put to work to replace the track. For four days there was no through traffic. One week after the track had been replaced there was another cloudburst and again the track was swept away. This time it required five days to repair the damage."

"The suspension of through traffic and the cost of the repairs is estimated to have cost the Santa Fe fully $1,000,000. Every spring traffic is frequently delayed for one or two days. It is the most treacherous section of the Santa Fe."

"It is reported in Denver that work of constructing the new line will begin within sixty days, although there is no official confirmation of the report."

There are a few minor errors in the above article from the Denver Evening Post as to names and locations. If the statements in the article are true, and the New Mexican hopes they are, Santa Fe in a few years will again be the largest and most important city in the territory. If the cut-off shall be built, and there is reason to believe that such will be the case, much of the credit for this great boom to Santa Fe is due to this paper, which has editorially and in its columns and by personal letters called the attention of the directing officials of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway to the project and has worked for it many years. If the statements in the article above are too strongly stated and if the company is only looking into the advisability of the move, the New Mexican will keep on agitating the subject until success crowns its efforts. This is another instance that the New Mexican is at all times working hard and in the right direction for the advancement, growth and prosperity of this city, this county and the territory of New Mexico. Fair minded and decent citizens acknowledge this fact.

THE THEATRICAL SEASON.

If Citizens Are Liberal Good Troupes Will Visit the City.

A. M. Dettelbach has leased the court house for the theatrical season of 1901 and 1902, and is now arranging to put in a new stage and scenery, which have been already ordered so that he is in position to contract for all troupes on the Crawford circuit, numbering about 50. Mr. Dettelbach is also negotiating with Rice's Grand Opera company for a season of two nights in Santa Fe during November and will get this troupe if the citizens of Santa Fe will subscribe for 200 tickets at $1.50 each for the opening night. This must be done at once and lists will be placed in Ireland's drug store. One half of the subscription must be paid for at the time of signing and the balance when the tickets are ready for delivery and the box seat open for seats. The sale will commence on Monday, October 14. Mr. Dettelbach hopes to have the support of the citizens in this movement as it will enable him to place the best troupes before them during the season and also give him a chance to make a showing for a new house next season.

The Third Term President.

This is the question that has been discussed very earnestly by our political leaders during the past few months. Some claim it would be a wise move, while others claim that to break the old "two term tradition" would result disastrously. In private life, however, there is a more important question under consideration, and that is the best way to regain health. If you suffer from dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness or liver and kidney troubles, there is a medicine that will restore your health, and this is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. For fifty years it has been recognized as the best stomach strengthener and health builder in the world. It will tone up the system and induce sound sleep. Be sure to try it.

A TYPICAL SOUTH AMERICAN STORE.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sunday River, Cape Colony, conducted a store typical of South Africa, as which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about 25 miles from the nearest town.

Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of 30 miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps 60. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

HEAVEN.

O city builded not by human hands, And stretching far beyond all reach of thought, Whose myriad mansions, beautiful and grand, Are far beyond what human hands have wrought.

That city hath no need of sun or moon, No dawn there breaks nor evening shadows fall;

'Tis one unbroken and eternal noon, The glory of the Christ doth light it all.

In that bright home shall come no grief or pain, Nothing to mar the perfect bliss that reigns Within the heart of all who enter in. Up from the throne ascends the glad new song.

That only the redeemed from earth can sing— "All blessing, glory, praise and power be long Unto the Lamb, our Saviour and our King!"

This earth of ours is full of beauty rare— What else could be when made by God's own hand?

Yet all these beauties but dim shadows are Of the transcendent glories of that land. No human eye hath seen, nor ear hath heard, Nor boldest human heart hath e'er conceived The wealth of blessedness to be conferred On those who have the victory achieved.

There bloom in faded beauty fruits and flowers, No human tongue may speak or pen record, And there the Tree of Life, with mystic powers, Is no more guarded by the flaming sword, Joy in its fulness sweeps through every soul.

And love enraptures every quickened power, A sweet and willing service prompts the soul, And praise crowns all as fruits and flowers.

O city of God and Saviour King, From which we catch at times some straggling gleam, That 'till thought faint surpasses everything.

Of which our brightest earth-born thought can dream, When on our sight at last its glories stream, New clothed upon, in spotless robes arrayed, How mean will then these earthly baubles seem.

With which among the shadows here we play! —William G. Haesslebarth, in Christian Work.

A COINCIDENCE

By Kate Dickinson Sweetser

(From Town and Country, New York, Reprinted by Permission.)

THE child Agatha counted buttons, and by so doing became the unconscious arbiter of a destiny.

The years of Agatha's life were as many as were the fingers on one of her plump hands, and during this short time she had always been a teller of fortunes, doling out husbands to such as were the happy possessors of buttons.

For those poor creatures who had yielded to a mandate from far-off Paris, and accepted hooks and eyes as gown-fastenings, Agatha could do nothing—not the ghost of a husband could she conjure up without the help of her little round allis.

Had you not a single one in sight you were doomed to spinsterhood, but if one—just one—could be found among the folds of your draperies, you were saved, and Agatha's fat forefinger would be laid upon it, while her shrill little voice would announce triumphantly: "Rich, man!"—looking into your eyes to find a reflection of the joy in her own dancing blue ones at having so satisfactorily—thanks to the button—settled your fortune.

The result of a two-button fortune she always announced with a falling inflection, and the corners of her mouth would droop in copy of the expression she had seen on older faces when "poor man" was found to be their portion.

At "beggan man" her voice invariably grew sad and low, and if you were foolish enough to display four buttons, the chubby finger would touch the fatal one mournfully, while a pitying voice would murmur, as she shook her golden curls, "thief," begging your pardon for the cruel truth; but again happy smiles would chase away the sadness if doctor, lawyer, merchant or chief fell to your lot. Two, three and four were the only fortunes that troubled the little lady.

Oh, but it was a thrilling game to play! It was a grief to the child Agatha that so seldom could she indulge in it, owing to the disappearance of buttons from the feminine horizon.

But now and again it would chance that some one great enough to resist the decree of fashion would drift her way and display the longed-for fastenings. To such a one Agatha would turn with screams of delight, while the chubby hands would touch the buttons lovingly, and the childish voice ring out in words of prophecy.

It was a matinee day at the opera house, and an enthusiastic throng was surging through the entrance gate, attracted by the name, "Carmen."

The house was crowded to the doors, and when the curtain rose on the Sevilla Square there was not a vacant seat to be had, and scarcely an unfilled box. No. 11 grand tier, however, was empty, and many of those standing turned envious eyes up to its comfortable seats. For a matinee the audience was brilliant, and one could see many well-known faces from the "smart set" as well as the suburban seat holders and real music lovers. Functions of every sort had been sacrificed for the idol of the hour, the cigarette girl, "Carmen," and the house was gay with handsome women and resplendent costumes.

In several boxes of the grand tier there were children, and one framed a pretty, much-noticed picture. In it sat golden-haired Agatha and her blue-eyed brother. Arms around each other they sat, fresh and dainty and sweet, unconscious of everything except the bewilderment of color and sound on the stage. The box adjoining that in which the children sat was No. 11, and was unoccupied until the intermission between the second and third acts, when a young woman entered it. She was alone, and seated herself with such an air of languid indifference to operas in general and to "Carmen" in particular that one wondered for what reason she chose to lend her presence to the scene. She did not even raise her lorgnet and sweep the house with an inventorying glance. Many glasses, however, were leveled at her. Even in the family circle there was a murmur of recognition. Sydenham Willoughby's laughter was familiar to all classes of society, for reporters heralded her doings and printed her portrait when there was the slightest excuse for it—and often when there was none, because she was a beauty as well as an heiress. Leaning back in her seat she was a ravishing vision. Her black velvet costume was in sharp contrast to the ivory-whiteness of her skin, and there was an unusual charm in her expression and manner, which her air of unconcern heightened.

The curtain rose. There was twilight and fire-glow in the smugger's stronghold. The audience drew quiet breaths while the strains of the exquisite prelude sounded. Elinore Willoughby looked on as one who, seeing, sees not, and having ears, hears not. She had not drifted to the opera house that day, nor yet had she come to hear "Carmen" for the twentieth time. Each motif and action she could anticipate, but for her there was no motive of any importance except that which was the key to her own personal affair. The singers might have been puppets, might have left the stage, the audience might have dispersed—and she would scarcely have taken note of it. She only saw before her those scenes which for many days had been filling her mental vision.

She had come to the opera for freedom, to think, to decide, to avoid questioning eyes and jesting voices, for her world was waiting breathless to hear the truth. The solitude of her own room was oppressive—she craved the aloneness that only a crowd can give. To come to a decision—why should she? Life was pure pleasure as it had been—why must it change? She was possessed with a feeling of profound irritation that all the potentialities of wealth and beauty which before had shielded her from every annoyance now availed nothing. Decision could not be bought nor put aside on any pretext. What should she do? Which should it be? Pros and cons presented themselves in quick succession. Moods as varying as the colors in a bubble claimed her for their own. What should she do?

In the stage twilight Mercedes and Frequita shuffled cards and read their destinies in clear tones. To Elinore the recitative brought only the familiar voice of one in her mind-picture; "L'omo che amaro amaro!" (Him I loved and will love ever!)" Before Elinore there stood a form, young and strong and masterful, with a proud joy in smile and gesture. There was moonlight—the dash of waves over the rocks—a woman's promise given.

"Un amor di Carmen non pua durar!" ("Carmen's love does not last!")

Quickly Elinore's first mind-picture gave place to a more brilliant one, and in it she was central figure against a background of the luxuries she loved. She saw a retinue of attendants, thoroughbred horses, rare jewels, houses and lands—beside her small, bent and insignificant—the master of it all. With nervous restlessness she changed her position, feeling that emotion was overmastering the voice of clear reason. The curtain fell on the twilight scene, the lights flashed high again. Elinore drew herself up in dignified erectness as if to defy the weakness that was enticing her, and spoke with in herself.

"It is right and best. The other would be madness. I should be unhappy—yet even the thought shrank back unfinished in the presence of a great truth. Hush!—the first violin—the haunting, thrilling Toreador music! Over her nature swept a second wave of stern resolve. And yet the eternal feminine still asserted itself. Resolved—irresolute; firm, undecided—Elinore paused, for one irresolute moment before the irrevocable amen of her choice should be said.

In the adjoining box a plainly-gowned woman had entered, was seating herself with the children, beside golden-haired Agatha. Turning to her with a quick scream of joy, Agatha's chubby finger alid down the front of the plain black waist, from one button to another, while the sweet, shrill voice rang out: "Rich man!—Poor man!—Oh, auntie, auntie, it's poor man!"

Everyone who saw, and heard, and understood, smiled; some who had counted buttons in a long gone childhood, sighed; but the person who sat alone in No. 11 grand tier neither smiled nor sighed. Turning startled eyes upon the little fortune teller, Elinore Willoughby's resolve gave way before the sacred featherweight of omen to which her heart was ready to respond.

The child Agatha counted buttons, and by so doing became the unconscious arbiter of a destiny.

Training

Is indispensable to athletic success. In training, much stress is laid upon diet; careful attention to the quantity and quality of the food eaten with regularity of meals.

That is the secret of strength for every man. No man can be stronger than his stomach. The careless and irregular eating of business men, causes disease of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. There can be no sound health until these diseases are cured.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and enables the body to be built up into vigorous health by the assimilation of the nutrition extracted from food.

"I was taken with the grippe, which resulted in heart and stomach trouble," writes Mr. T. R. Cudde, of Montana. "I was unable to do anything but eat, and I was unable to take any food. I had been told that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was a good medicine, and I had bought a bottle. I feel thankful to God for the benefit I have received from Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I can highly recommend it to all persons as a good and safe medicine."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

A SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Although a silver wedding anniversary is one of the great festive events in family life, yet Judge and Mrs. McFie had decided to pass by this great event
in their lives, which occurred on Wednesday of this week, without a formal celebration. They sent out no invitations and endeavored to keep quiet the date of the anniversary owing to the official position that Judge McFie holds, which his delicate sense of honor feared, might be construed by some to mean that they should remember the occasion with suitable gifts. But man proposes and his friends often dispose, for the silver wedding anniversary of Judge and Mrs. McFie was not allowed to pass by without manifestations of the high regard in which they are held by all of their acquaintances and friends. During the day came congratulations from every side,
baskets of flowers from Mr. and Mrs.
Bergere, Mayor and Mrs. Amado Chaves, Mrs. H. O. Bursum, a basket of choice fruit from Mrs. N. B. Laughlin and other tokens of love and esteem.
Then came beautiful presents in silver and in the evening a surprise visit by Governor and Mrs. Otero, the members of the bar and the court officials. A handsome chest, with artistic decorations in gold, and containing a complete set of sterling silver ware, some 50 or more pieces, was presented to the happy couple by the members of the bar and the court officials. The presentation card was beautifully engrossed.
Solicitor General E. L. Bartlett made a most eloquent and fitting address of congratulation on behalf of the bar, the keynote of which was a tribute to Judge McFie's character which he declared "as sterling as the silver presented to Mrs. McFie and him." District Clerk A. M. Bergere spoke on behalf of the court officials,
after which Judge McFie, deeply touched, made a heartfelt reply. There were other presents in sterling silver,
a bonbonniere by Governor and Mrs.
Otero, a solid silver preserve spoon by Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Bursum, a Denver souvenir spoon by Adjutant General and Mrs. W. H. Whitman, a five piece silver tea set by Mr. and Mrs.
John Brockman of Los Angeles, a silver berry spoon by Mildred and Fanny Dudley of Denver, a silver jewelry box to Mrs. McFie and a framed portrait of President McKinley to Judge McFie, by their daughter, Miss Maud McFie, and also presents from the other children of Judge and Mrs.
McFie. Judge McFie remembered his bride of 25 years ago with a splendid silver set, tray and candelabrum.

The donors of the chest of silverware
on behalf of the members of the bar and the court officials were: E. L.
Bartlett, G. W. Knaebel, B. M. Road,
E. C. Abbott, W. H. Pope, Max. Frost,
Alexander Read, N. B. Laughlin, R. C.
Gortner, A. B. Renahan, J. D. Sena, W.
J. McPherson, A. M. Bergere and Mar-celino Garcia.

Light refreshments were served after the presentation and several hours were spent in listening to selections of music and to social intercourse. At 10 o'clock, Judge and Mrs. McFie were escorted to the home of District Clerk and Mrs. A. M. Bergere, where an elegant repast was served and several hours more spent most delightfully with music and social diversions. It was a happy and auspicious occasion indeed whose memory will always be a bright and pleasant one to Judge and Mrs. McFie and those who spent the evening with them.

Judge and Mrs. McFie, nee Mary
Steele, were married at Coulterville, Ills., on October 9, 1876, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. They boarded the train at 7 o'clock in the evening of the same day for the Centennial exposition at Philadelphia. They made a tour of the states before returning home to Coulterville, where Judge McFie was at that time practicing law. Judge and Mrs. McFie came to the territory in the year 1884, where Judge McFie for eight years has been an associate justice of the New Mexico supreme court, and is respected and honored by the territory
as but few men before have been honored and respected. Mrs. McFie still has in her possession a large piece of the wedding cake which graced the

MINOR CITY TOPICS

Exchange: W. P. Gould and wife, Cerrillos; A. C. Gonzales, Clayton.

substantial kind in Santa Fe this year than in any previous year in the city's history.

Every Exertion a Task

There is failure of the strength to do and the power to endure; a feeling of weakness all over the body.

The vital functions are impaired, food does not nourish, and the whole system is run down.

A medicine that strengthens the stomach, perfects digestion, invigorates and tones is needed.

What Hood's Sarsaparilla did for Mrs. L. B.
Garland, Shady, Tenn., it has done for others.
She took it when she was all run down—
without appetite, losing flesh, and unable to do her work. It restored her appetite, increased her weight, and made her well and strong.
This is her own unsolicited statement.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Promises to cure and keeps the promise. The earlier treatment is begun the better—begin it today.

ties will remove from the Catron block to make room for the offices of the cupy the offices of Hon. B. M. Read on Palace avenue.

dress in the Presbyterian church at 4

ious Work at Ocean Grove." In consequence of this service, the Presbyterian church will be closed in the eve-

This morning the temperature was lower than it has been since May, the thermometer at 6 o'clock indicating 36 degrees. Thin ice had formed in exposed places. Snow and freezing temperature, that is a killing frost, are predicted for tonight by the weather bureau. The maximum temperature yesterday was 60 degrees and the minimum 39 degrees.

Charles Jones, a young man who came here from St. Louis two days ago in the last stages of consumption, died
this morning at the Palace hotel.
Shortly before his death he was told that he was a very sick man. He answered: "Oh, no, I do not feel bad, I am only a little tired from the trip here." His remains were taken in charge by Undertaker Charles Wagner and will be shipped to the home of the deceased at Mt. Clair, Mo.

District Attorney E. C. Abbott proposes to bring separate suits against delinquent tax payers for the years 1899 and 1900. There is much money due from tax payers, who can well afford to pay their taxes for those years, and the district attorney proposes to test the law and find out if taxes in this county, due from habitual tax dodgers who are fully able to pay, can be collected or not. The present state of affairs in tax matters in Santa Fe county is one of great injustice, as habitual tax dodgers escape the payment of taxes, whereas honest citizens pay such right along.
When the suits are brought it will be found that some of the loudest howlers
like Berger et al., are the worst offenders.

Parties will do well to order their meat for Sunday dinner at A. Bischoff, Fink's old stand. Phone 84.
