UNEASINESS ABOUT MISS STONE

It Is Feared That She Will Be Murdered Even if the Ransom Is Paid.

UNUSUAL PRECAUTIONS

The Missionaries at Sanakov Are Now Negotiating With the Brigands for the Release of Miss Stone and Her Companion.

Sofia, Nov. 1.—The best method of transmitting the ransom demanded by the brigands for the release of Miss Stone, the abducted American missionary, and assuring the safety of the captives, are matters now engaging the attention of the Samakov missionaries, who are negotiating with the kidnappers.

It is felt that unusual precautions are necessary in order to safe-guard Miss Stone and others, as there undoubtedly is danger of the captives being murdered after the ransom is paid.

MISS STONE'S RELEASE. Constantinople, Nov. 1.—Negotiations with the captors of Miss Stone appear to be going on so successfully that her release seems now to be only a matter of a day. It is said that another letter, written two days ago, has been received from her.

THE SCHLEY BOARD OF INQUIRY.

Admiral Schley Will Correct His Testimony Some Time Next Week.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—The Schley court began proceedings today with the understanding that with the exception of some witnesses who will be recalled to correct their testimony next Monday, the last testimony would be taken before adjournment. There were only two witnesses on the list for today. Both were summoned by the department. Lieutenant John Hood, who commanded the dispatch boat Hawk during the Cuban campaign, was summoned for the purpose of relating his version of his interview with Admiral Schley off Cienfuegos. Sylvester Scovel was called to answer questions concerning the message which Captain Sigbee, of the St. Paul, is said to have megaphoned to the press boat Somers N. Smith on May 28. Photographer Hare testified that Captain Sigbee stated the Spanish fleet was not in the harbor of Santiago and gave the name of Scovel as one of the correspondents on the press boat. Admiral Schley said today that he would not be able to undertake the correction of his testimony before next week.

It is not now intended to call any witnesses in rebuttal and it is expected argument will begin soon after Admiral Schley concludes the correction of his testimony. Members of the tribunal are preparing to devote considerable time to the consideration of the testimony, for they have taken rooms in the city for this purpose. The testimony covers 1,600 printed pages. With additions yet to be made in the record it probably will run over 1,700 pages.

Judge Advocate Lemly announced that counsel has agreed on the order of the speeches in closing the case, subject to the sanction of the court. Hanna is to open for the department, and will be followed by Captain Parker and Mr. Rayner for Schley. Judge Advocate Lemly will close for the department. Admiral Dewey announced that this arrangement is satisfactory.

After Hood was excused, Captain Lemly stated he had more witness whom he desired to call on Monday owing to the fact that he was too ill to appear today.

It was also stated that Schley would again take the stand for the purpose of correcting his testimony.

Rayner said he would have no more witnesses, except the Admiral himself. Adjournment was taken until Monday. Scovel related his conversation with Sigbee by megaphone from the press boat Smith on May 27 or 28. He asked Sigbee: "Where is Cervera?" Sigbee replied: "I am not sure, but we caught an English collier trying to sneak into the harbor this morning."

Sigbee did not tell him that the Spaniards were not at Santiago. He would not swear that no such conversation took place, but nothing of the kind was said while he was conducting the conversation.

Lieutenant Hood was questioned on the point made by Schley that the commanding officer of the Dolphin had fled with the navy department memorandum in which he said: "Hood said that a good many officers do not believe that the Spaniards are there, at Cienfuegos, at all, but they can only surmise."

Hanna asked: "Did you make any report to the commanding officer of the Dolphin which would warrant the use of the language embodied in that memorandum?"

"I did make a report warranting stronger language than that."

His Predecessor is Removed for a Very Slight Cause.

Lisbon, Nov. 1.—Senor Horta Machado has been appointed Portuguese minister at Washington.

IT CAUSED SURPRISE. Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—The state department officials expressed surprise when told of the appointment of the new minister from Portugal, especially of the allegation that the change was made because of the premature announcement of President McKinley's death by Santo-Thyrsio, the former minister.

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 1.—If Attorney Bell can substantiate his case, the state of Texas will be nearly $85,000,000 ahead as a result of the prosecutions started by him under the anti-trust law. In addition, numerous other corporations have been reported guilty of anti-trust law violation, calling for penalties to the amount of $20,000,000.

THE DUKE AND DUCHESS HOME

A Brilliant Naval Pageant in Honor of Their Return to Great Britain's Shore.

TRIP AROUND THE WORLD

Immense Crowds Were Assembled Along the Sea Front and Cheers Mingled With Salutes as the King Met His Son and Daughter-in-Law.

Portsmouth, England, Nov. 1.—Today's naval pageant in honor of the return of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York was almost a reproduction of the ceremonial attending their departure. Immense crowds assembled along the sea front and cheers mingled with salutes as the royal yacht Victoria and Albert steamed to meet the Ophir. On board of the royal yacht, the king, in the undress uniform of an admiral, stood on the after-bridge at the salute, while the queen and children of the duke and duchess paraded the hurricane deck.

NAVAJO RESERVATION.

Attempts to Throw It Open to Timber and Mineral Lands.

Says a dispatch to the Denver papers from Gallup:

The Navajo Indian reservation, which occupies a vast stretch of finely timbered, highly mineralized land in northern Arizona and New Mexico, is a theater of much excitement these days. With the consent of Secretary Hitchcock, Isaac T. Hoff, a Pennsylvania millionaire, and James Worth of New York, representing the powerful glass trust, made a trip to the reservation not long ago, and held many conferences with the chiefs of the reservation concerning a timber, coal and mineral lease on the whole area. Many of the Indians, tempted by the offer of what seemed to them fabulous wealth, were openly in favor of the plan. The secretary of the interior had refused leases to many applicants, but would no longer withhold his consent, if the Indians were practically unanimous in their expression of opinion. It was about decided to hold a pow-wow and settle the matter. The Indian agent was opposed to the scheme, and exerted his influence to prevent hasty action by the Indians. The pow-wow was postponed, but may be called at any time.

In the meantime another agitation had resulted in more speedy action. The agent and a missionary, named Johnson, had succeeded in impressing the Indians with the importance of securing allotments of their own and building their own cottages and developing their own lands. Johnson and two of the most intelligent chiefs were dispatched to Washington to personally petition the department to allow the lands, allowing the Indians to choose by lot. The home-steads secured, thousands of acres will be thrown open to the public. It is probable that no action regarding the leasing scheme will be taken until the department has given an answer regarding the allotment proposition.

The Belle Royal Near Tres Piedras.

Judge A. Royal of Pueblo, was in Denver meeting with members of the Belle Royal Mining company of New Mexico. The company owns 90 acres of mineralized land fourteen miles from the narrow gauge of the Denver & Rio Grande extending to Santa Fe. The property is located in the Bromide district, a new mining region which is attracting capital of Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri and Pennsylvania. Assays taken across the vein of the Belle Royal give returns of fifteen to twenty-five ounces of copper, ten ounces of silver and smaller values in gold to the ton. Several car loads of rich ore have been shipped to the smelter at Pueblo, Colorado.

New Mexico Mining Stocks.

At the Boston Mining Exchange last week, 320 shares of Cochiti stock of the par value of $10 per share were sold at from $4.00 to $4.50 per share, and 500 shares of Santa Fe Gold and Copper company stock of a par value of $10 were sold at from $4.00 to $4.75 per share.

WERE SHOT DOWN FROM AMBUSH

A Dastardly Deed Near Waco, Texas, in Which a Man and His Wife Were the Victims.

THE MOTIVE SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN ROBBERY

Waco, Texas, Nov. 1.—J. W. McDonald and wife, Susan, were shot from ambush from the bank of the Brazos river near the Galls county line. Both were killed. They were fishing and were near their tent when fired upon. The murderer evidently was after money. A son, nine years old, was brought to this city. His head was badly lacerated, and he was in a dazed condition.

A PRIZE BUCK.

A New Mexico Woman Purchases an Angora for $1,050.

At the exhibition of and sale of Angora goat breeders at Kansas City, Missouri, this week, New Mexico secured the highest price Angora buck ever sold. Says the Kansas City Star: "The real enthusiasm of the show was at the sale. The ring was crowded to its utmost capacity and bidding was sharp and active. The first animal offered was a 3 year old prize winning buck owned and bred by C. P. Bailey & Son of San Jose, Cal., and was sold to Mrs. M. Armer of Kingston, Sierra county, New Mexico, said to be one of the largest breeders of Angora goats in America and one of the best judges of animals in the west. The contest was spirited from the beginning and pandemonium ensued when the price ran up to $1,050, the highest ever paid."

C. P. Bailey & Sons, who sold the goat, are among the most prominent goat breeders in the world. C. E. Bailey was one of the pioneers of the business in America. His son, Dr. W. J. Bailey, who is attending the show and sale, has become a recognized authority on the industry.

Last spring he visited Asia Minor and in spite of the strict guard enforced by the sultan to prevent the exportation of Angoras, at the risk of imprisonment and even the loss of his life, smuggled out, in a cargo of hay, a number of valuable goats with which to infuse new blood into his herd. He paid an average of $1,000 per head for them.

Pasha-Columbia, however, was not one of these. It is to the credit of American Angora breeders that he was dropped and raised on the Bailey ranch in California. He was sired by Pasha, one of the oldest imported bucks on the Bailey ranch. His dam was adjudged as the best nannie goat exhibited at the World's Fair in Chicago.

The goat breeders all pronounce Pasha-Columbia one of the best goats they have ever seen. The Bailey goats have won eight first prizes and two sweepstakes at this year's show, and others brought among the highest prices paid yesterday.

Mrs. Armer, the purchaser, owns a large ranch in New Mexico and attended last year's and this year's shows and sales. She is one of the most prominent and successful goat breeders in the country. She will use "Pasha-Columbia" in her herd and expects some of his get to prove big prize winners at the third annual show next year, which will likely be held in Kansas City.

It is an interesting fact that only one of the pure-bred cattle sold at the stock yards this week brought more than Pasha-Columbia. This was the Short-horn bull "Ingledwood," sold by Hanna & Co., of Dover, Kansas, to Forest Bros. & Dunham, of Niles, Ia., for $1,850. "Ingledwood," the great Hereford bull imported by the late K. B. Armour, brought only $1,000.

Money in Angora Goats.

F. W. Shuckhart & Sons have demonstrated that there is big money in the Angora goat industry for this territory. Mr. Shuckhart was in Las Vegas on Tuesday and related to friends his unusually successful venture. What was experiment has become to him a serious and profitable business.

Last January he purchased 350 head of Angora goats. This fall he sold 800 pounds of wool at 40 cents per pound, and after shearing 320 of his herd, and estimates that at least 3,000 pounds of wool was lost in shedding. Some of the wool was 34 inches in length and all of it was of delicate Angora silk fiber. His herd has now increased to 500 head. He lately sold 11 bucks for $400. He has more than cleared up the price of his herd in less than one year. The goats keep healthy and are easily reared. They pasture out all winter and are practically no expense.

Investing in New Mexico.

Says a letter from Gallup: "E. P. Ripley, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, passed through here last night on a special train to the Grand Canon of the Colorado. Edmund Burke, a Los Angeles promoter, E. L. Phillips, representing the Schlitz brewery interests, Congressman Sherman of New York, J. W. Babcock, a millionaire lumberman from Wisconsin, are directors in the New Mexico Lumber and Development company. Timber Expert Farr, who spent several days this month examining the timber in the Zuni mountains, accompanied the party. Mr. Burke has a lease ten miles square on the Navajo reservation for oil. The party went to Pueblo Bonita, 65 miles north of here. The immense beds of copper in the Zuni mountains are included in the present investigation, also concessions for mining coal in the northwestern part of the reservation. The party travels with a train of six special cars. The party represents $100,000,000 and has options on an immense amount of mineral, timber, coal and oil lands."

The Elks After the Montezuma.

It is given out on good authority that negotiations are now under way between the national lodge of Elks and the Santa Fe railroad for the purchase of the Montezuma hotel, located at the Hot Springs, six miles from Las Vegas. If the Elks get control of the buildings and grounds, they will make of it a sanitarium for their sick and afflicted members. At the next national meeting of the lodge the proposition will be considered. No better place could be selected as a sanitarium than the Montezuma with its magnificent buildings and grounds and ideal climate.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1.

New Mexico Demands Statehood of the 57th Congress.

Of Right and in Justice New Mexico Should Be a State.

It seems that there will be no deadlocks in the opinion of the Schley court of inquiry.

In addition to looking for tips the Pullman porters are now also looking for sympathy. They evidently want the earth.

The New Mexico anti-statehooders, although few in number, are making great noise. The three tailors of Tooley street, you will remember.

Grant county is forging to the front as the richest mining county in New Mexico. Grant county is alight when it comes to material resources.

In place of doing something for the progress and advancement of the people of New Mexico, the yellow sheets are doing all they can to do the people.

The yellow sheets of New Mexico are a good deal like flies. They buzz a great deal and bother a little and that is about as near as they get to accomplishing anything serious.

The yellow sheets and sore heads of New Mexico are trying very hard to work off a little political green goods on the people of New Mexico; but they are finding mighty few takers.

For a Spanish-American commonwealth, Cuba is keeping very quiet lately. Wonder how it will be after all the United States troops are withdrawn and the Cubans have their own way.

Experience is proving that some of the small counties in the territory are doing better than some of the larger counties. The fact speaks for itself and cannot be successfully contradicted.

The anti-statehooders of New Mexico claim that they are making history in their fight for statehood for the territory. Yes, and some people persist in making asses of themselves when there is no occasion for it.

The New Mexican declines to treat the attacks on the statehood movement in this territory seriously. The people who make them may be serious, but the vast majority of New Mexico's citizens differ from them.

It is a singular fact, but true nevertheless, that some of the alleged statehood men who are abusing the native people of this territory very strenuously could not make a living outside of the territory.

Land Commissioner A. A. Keen yesterday turned $3,371.81 into the common school fund as the proceeds for October of rentals for school sections in the territory. That is doing very well, and speaks highly for the business methods of the land commissioner's office.

Judge A. A. Freeman, of Carlsbad, Eddy county, judging from a recent letter on the statehood question published in the Argus of that town, seems very anxious that the people of the territory should not forget that he is one of them. He might have taken a better method of letting them know this, but then all men do not think alike.

The supreme court of Illinois has decided that the rich and powerful corporations of Chicago must pay taxes. Some of the corporation attorneys will now charge the court with corruption, just as the tax-dodgers and enemies of the public schools of New Mexico charge the present territorial administration with being corrupt because it is enforcing the laws and is endeavoring to compel tax-dodgers to make fair assessments and to pay needed taxes.

Mexico owes it to herself to exterminate the Yaquis, or else to transport them to some reservation where they would be out of harm's way. There is only one way to deal with Indians who break their treaties and promises and who murder settlers and that is to do as the United States did with Geronimo and others of his stripe, to hunt them down and to take them away from their mountain fastnesses to some spot where they are helpless and can be kept under strict surveillance.

President Roosevelt, according to reports from Washington, will embody in his message to congress recommendations for the reclamation of the arid lands of the west. His frequent visits to the Rocky Mountain region have acquainted the president with the needs and prospects of the arid states and the great benefit to the nation at large that a general reclamation of the arid lands would be. The west possesses in President Roosevelt the warmest friend it has ever had in the presidential chair.

The wise Democrats are quietly feeling the public pulse to discover to what practical political issue it would be the most responsive. Prosperity and the full dinner pail are still the best vote getters and upon these two factors the Republicans have a copy-right. Democratic issues and chances are slim until the next panic happens, and that may be a century off, or at least as long as the Republican party stays in its beaten pathway and gives business stability and the country prosperity.

Senator Clark gives assurance that there will be no decline in the price of copper, at least, not in the immediate future. Senator Clark is in a position to know. The demand for refined copper is as active as ever, while the supply is not keeping step with the demand.

It is a mighty dull day in the United States when there are not two or three bank safes blown open. Talk about bandits in Turkey, that class of worsted also exists in the United States, only their nefarious efforts lie in another direction, but they are evidently as successful in stealing the money direct as are the bandits who capture missionaries and hold them for a ransom.

President Roosevelt has filled the vacancy of the United States court of private land claims occasioned by the death of Judge Fuller by the appointment of another North Carolinian. The law under which the appointment was made declares that the judges of the U. S. court of private land claims must be citizens of states and therefore no New Mexico man applied for the position; although no doubt there are several men who would be very willing to fill it. Especially would some of the lawyer members of the sorehead gang like to sacrifice themselves and throw up their $100,000 per annum practices to fill such a place. But then the law forbids and they will therefore have to hang on to their enormous and lucrative practices and borrow as much money as they possibly can besides.

The people of New Mexico, that is the patriotic and loyal people, are united in asking the removal of Surveyor General Quinby Vance from the office in which he rattles around. It is too big for him. He has not the mental capacity of filling it as it should be filled. To be sure, the office is not a very desirable one; it only pays $2,000 per annum and its clerical force is under the civil service rules; but in other directions the office is important and a man who has the proper understanding of the needs of the territory and common sense enough to perform the duties of the office with courtesy and efficiency should be appointed. Two thousand dollars per annum while not an extravagant salary, is just $2,000 per annum too much for a man of Vance's mental caliber.

Farwell to the Pan-American Exposition.

Yesterday was the last day of the Pan-American exposition, today it is no more. Counting the cost, the life of the noblest president since Lincoln's day, and the millions of dollars, the volume of human effort, the question naturally asks itself: "Was it worth while?" The exposition passed out of existence bravely, with the flourish of trumpets and a burst of splendor, yet the United States will always think of it with much sadness and great regret. Still, President McKinley said that "Expositions are the timekeepers of progress," and if Buffalo and tame-dame surroundings received no great gain from the exposition yet it enabled the United States to show that it leads in industry and takes no rear rank in art and science.

Artistically the Buffalo exposition was as fine a thing as the Chicago exposition, as all who have seen both will testify. In its electrical effects the Buffalo fair was unquestionably the superior.

If the Buffalo enterprise did not "pay," it was because in the very nature of things no such enterprise can make a direct profit for its promoters. The great Chicago fair failed to do this; the coming Charleston and St. Louis expositions will almost certainly fail also. Public taste has gradually been educated up to extravagant anticipations, and besides, this whole exposition business has been heavily overdone. The time has now come when great fairs should be held only to commemorate really great occasions. St. Louis is fortunate that its world's fair of 1903 has for its inspiring motive the one hundredth anniversary of one of the noblest events in our history—the Louisiana Purchase, which added an empire to the national domain. The whole great west beyond the Mississippi is interested in making the St. Louis fair as successful as the splendid Columbian Exposition.

But it by no means follows that because the exposition company at Buffalo has met with a severe loss, the city itself has not profited by this undertaking. The very wide and effective advertisement which Buffalo has received cannot be worth a great deal to such an ambitious community. Hundreds of thousands of American citizens now know Buffalo as something more than a railway station and canal dock. Many of them have admired the city even more than the fair. They found a veritable metropolis, three-fourths as large as Boston, with a notably handsome business section, broad, straight thoroughfares, shaded avenues of stately houses, and every token of thrift, progressiveness and permanence. These crowds of visitors spent a great deal of money in Buffalo outside of the jurisdiction of the fair, as well as within its boundaries. These outside expenditures do not figure in the exposition accounts, but there can be no doubt that Buffalo as a whole is several million dollars richer now than if the fair had never been projected. This benefit, however, is very unevenly distributed. Not all branches of local business can profit from a fair. There is such a thing as an exposition fever. There was loud complaint all last summer in Buffalo that the alert and able captains of industry whom Buffalo had chosen to "run" her exposition were neglecting their own affairs, and that there was consequently an awkward halt in the great creative business enterprises that otherwise would surely have been undertaken.

However, no city tries a world's fair very often. Paris has been most given to this kind of thing, and its latest experiment has not been very encouraging. Buffalo will now be content to let Charleston and St. Louis have their turn. After all the vast amount of patient labor expended on the Buffalo enterprise and the really grand spectacle that was its outcome, it is melancholy to think that the thing for which the Pan-American Exposition of 1901 will be longest remembered is that there one of the best beloved American presidents was slain by an anarchist assassin.

BRIGHTER PROSPECTS.

The Outlook for the Future of New Mexico Is Certainly Most Encouraging.

San Marcial Bee.

In addition to the bright prospect of securing statehood, the present outlook for the future of New Mexico is most encouraging. It is a vast territory, with great diversity of resources, and its advancing strides are apt to be considered slow by those only acquainted with one locality. Such is not the case, however. There is a general movement all along the line, and there is today a better feeling in relation to New Mexico property and investments than ever before. Heretofore outside capital, which has come into the territory, has been chiefly in the channels of mining speculation, now it is attracted by our more substantial resources—land and the development of our agricultural and horticultural possibilities. The Bee considers this one of the most hopeful signs of the times. It means the bringing in of an active, industrious population, who come with the intention of making permanent homes in the new state—not a restless lot of nomads, who hope to make their pile by speculation, having little or no interest in the moral and intellectual condition of the country, who make few improvements and who are allured away by the first new excitement. The presence of a permanent, intelligent population, such as are coming to us now, and will be largely augmented under the rights of full citizenship, will soon work a vast change in the condition of affairs in this territory. Wealth will be produced from our rich valleys and mesa lands now untouched, as well as from our mines only partially developed, and it will furnish a substantial backing for the prosperous commercial centers and manufacturing towns. The development of the resources of the soil will lay a solid foundation for the future prosperity of the Sunshine State.

NEW MEXICO RAILROADS.

Good Prospects That New Mexico Will Secure a Better Railroad.

Denver Republican.

President Ripley of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad is reported to have said that the proposition to change the route of that road and make the main line pass through Santa Fe has been rejected after having been carefully gone over. This, if true, seems to dispose of the matter for a long time, if not forever. It would cost a large sum of money to make the change, and it is probable that the amount of traffic would not justify the expenditure.

Nevertheless, there is a good prospect that Santa Fe will secure a new road in the near future. What is to be known as the Santa Fe Central will probably be built next year from that town southeast to a connection with the Rock Island El Paso extension. This will give Santa Fe competition with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe to El Paso, and probably also at Albuquerque, since it is likely that a branch will be built to the last named town.

Denver also is interested in this enterprise because of its connection by way of the Denver & Rio Grande with Santa Fe. It will be let into the southeastern part of New Mexico and gain another route to El Paso and the Mexican border.

For the most part southeastern New Mexico has been isolated, lacking adequate railroad connection with the remainder of the country. It is a region of varied and in many respects valuable resources, and development of many of these will follow the construction of the railroads under consideration. It contains good mineral deposits, extensive stock ranges and some land that may be reclaimed by irrigation. The greater part of the latter, however, is in the Pecos valley, only the upper part of which will be touched by the Rock Island system.

Villainous Work.

Las Vegas Record.
It is well known that the two Democratic newspapers of Las Vegas are opposed to statehood and The Record is informed that they are primarily responsible for the defamatory article published in their sore-head "petite accident." It was hoped that the villainous slanders, which were sent to eastern senators and congressmen, would prejudice the national law-makers against giving New Mexico statehood. In other words, the yellow sheets were willing to defame the people of the territory to accomplish their vile designs, as they and their sore-head tool are now to lie about the responsibility for the filthy publication in order to shield themselves from the vengeance of an incensed people. Newspapers that would escape the consequences of their own infamous acts at the expense of a helpless woman are capable of descending to unfathomable meanness.

They All Agree With the New Mexican.

Deming Herald.
Major W. H. H. Llewellyn of Las Cruces, says that he is not a candidate for federal office. The major's head is level—Santa Fe New Mexican. The district attorneyship for Dona Ana, Otero, Luna, Grant and Sierra counties pays more money to its holder in a year than does any federal office in the territory. Of course the major's head is level—Lordsburg Liberal. And the major is sure of the office for the next eight years, anyway. Bet yer life the major's head isn't mountainous.

Improved Goats.

(Alamogordo News.)
Ralph S. Connell returned to Tularosa Tuesday from Old Mexico, with 2,000 head of improved goats, which he has placed upon his ranch above Tularosa, adjoining Mesquero reservation. During the coming week, he will receive a shipment of several hundred Angora bucks to be placed with his herd. These bucks cost several thousand dollars. Mr. Connell has also six full blood hounds which he intends working with his herd, as a protection against lobos and other wild animals.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by Which Drunkards Are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves—No Noxious Drugs—No Weakening of the Nerves.

A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liqueur Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodic or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "Home Gold Cure" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men! Children cure your husbands! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the tastes, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the cure administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they have discovered the "Home Gold Cure" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effective than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of $1. Address Dept. 2644, Edwin B. Giles & Company, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia, Pa. All correspondence strictly confidential.

Tragedy of Yet Wing

By Julia Truitt Bishop.

IT WAS a gray day, with rain about to fall. Miss Harvey fluttered in the door of the Chinese Mission, clad in gray and pink and with a bewitching childishness in her eyes, which she hoped might not lead to the undoing of Fung Yet Wing, who was waiting for her at his own especial deal table. Yet Wing had a smile of his own, and greeted her with it.
What Yet Wing's smile meant Miss Harvey did not know, for she had been teaching him only two years;
and to learn anything about the pupils of the Chinese Mission one must take time.

Yet Wing's books were in a neat little pile before him; his white cuffs were linked with gold buttons, his immaculate collar was brought together with a satin tie, which was adorned with the pretty wishbone pin she had given him for a Christmas present. Miss Harvey always looked him over complacently, until she came to the braid of long black hair which was coiled in a neat little coil at the top of his head, with a shaved area all around it. Miss Harvey always felt that her hold on Yet Wing lacked something of completeness while that coil of hair topped him off so conspicuously.

"Oh, you are always early, Yet Wing!" she cried, looking at him just a little. These Chinese were so peculiar, and she was in a flutter when she thought of the danger. It would never do to encourage anything like that—but now, were they to be blamed so dreadfully, if once in awhile—well, if they really learned to love some pretty girl who chanced to be their teacher? Neither was the girl to blame for being pretty.

Not that Miss Harvey would have this happen to her—oh, not for a thousand worlds. She would die of mortification, she said to herself as she puffed out the pink silk vest a little more and glanced at Yet Wing.
"Yet—me come en-ly," he said
with the same smile. "Me lakkee lean."

In another minute Yet Wing was laboriously getting through the Bible lesson for the day, each word going off with a sharp explosion, not unlike a train of fireworks:
"An—Jes—entled—an—pass—
flou—Jellicho."
"An—bee—hol—dewass—a—man—
name—Zachou—us—whiss—wass—
de—chie—amoung—de—pullicans—
an—he—wass—lich."

The fireworks exploded all along,
down to the end of the lesson.
"Now do you know what that means?" asked Miss Harvey.
"Yes—me not unnestan' Englias," said Yet Wing with calm readiness.

Miss Harvey did not understand what it meant, either, so she put her head to one side and cried archly:
"Oh, Yet Wing, what shall I do with you if you don't try to understand? Well, here is your reader—come now, read this."

Yet Wing bent his celestial countenance over the book and set an other train of explosions going:
"Once—dewass—a—man—who—had—a—"
"Now spell that next word," commanded Miss Harvey, in the cooing, kindergarten voice she had found so effective with him.

"P-l-e-t-t-y," spelled the pupil.
"Plitty."
"And do you know what that means?" chirped the teacher.
"Yes—like you," said Yet Wing, his smile widening into a grin.

"Like me! The ideal!" cried Miss Harvey. It had come at last—just as she feared. This was the Chinese method of informing a girl that she was beloved. She had unwittingly ruined Yet Wing's peace of mind.
How anxious she had been to avoid this, all the Sundays she had come here against her brother's wishes, to sit beside the little deal table and teach Yet Wing to read Bible lessons
he did not understand.

But while Yet Wing's poor little foolish dream was destined to be crushed, why should she wound him unnecessarily? Why should she not be as kind to him as she could be under the circumstances?
She looked at him gently, yet with melancholy. Perhaps she would ask him next Sunday for her sake to cut off that braid of hair. It would make her glad, and yet sorrowful, too, to know that he would do it without a moment's hesitation. There was something so pathetic about this hopeless love—a Chinaman—for a lady of her station—and she must be so careful not to encourage him.
Her brother would be so angry—and he had such a high temper, and was so disgustingly brutal when he began to talk about—about the things she did. But she would always say that it was not her fault, and it was not Yet Wing's. It was simply one of those things that could not be helped.

"It lains!" said Yet Wing, whose oriental eyes were turned toward the window.
"It rains every Sunday," said Miss Harvey, gently. "I shall have to wait until my maid brings my umbrella and cloak."
"What he name?" asked Yet Wing, with the guileless directness of his race. She smiled sadly. He was interested in everything that pertained to her.

"Her name is Annie," said Miss Harvey softly. "Here is the hymn, now sing, Yet Wing—'At The Cross.' Now sing your best for my sake."

In response to which timid plea
Your Face

antee.

Yet Wing was presently throwing great emotion into:
"Also—at an' did, my twissed,
An' did my loved die?
Would he lelete lat asied head
Fo' sluch a wolla is!
Atte cloas attie cloas, wha's fust saw leite!"

Yet Wing frowned mightily while he sang, for this English was truly a devilish language, and was not to be sung without great enlargement of the mouth.

It was all gone through with, even to the jerky concert of "Our Fader—
who aht—in—heben—" and Miss Harvey and her maid were hurrying homeward through the rain. Miss Harvey just felt that she must confide in some one or die.

"It has come about just as I feared, Annie," she said, tragically.
"My pupil has—has lost his mind, I suppose—and is half crazy about—about me! Did you ever hear of anything so absolutely preposterous?
Think of it! A—Chinese laundry-man! Wouldn't my brother be furious?"

"Well, faith, an' it 'ud be a great savin' of laundry bills," said Annie, who was from up Belfast way, and could see a bright side to everything.

Miss Harvey's just indignation kept her scornfully silent until they had reached home and gone into the side door. While Annie shook out the wet umbrella and stood in the rack, Miss Harvey glanced out of the window and suddenly screamed and sat down, clasping her hands.

"Look, Annie!" she cried; "look out of the window! Can that be—is that—Yet Wing?"

"It looks like the bilious heathen," said Annie, indignantly, after a hasty inspection of the figure that stood pensively under an awning on the opposite side of the street. "A pretty subject he is, to stand himself up in front of people's houses. Shall I go out an' shoot 'im away, Miss?"

"Oh, that would be too cruel!"
moaned Miss Harvey, walking up and down and wringing her hands desperately. "Oh, what shall I do? Was there ever anything so unfortunate?
He may begin to follow me about town—and perhaps sing under the windows—he has a very good voice—
but think how it would look. Oh, how unfortunate I am, to have—perhaps if I had worn plainer clothes to the Mission—but now the harm is done, and I will never forgive myself, never!"

"Well," suggested Annie, with an eye at the crack of the curtain, "your brother'll be home pretty soon, an'
it's my belief that he'll throw the brassy heathen over the courthouse.
An' anyway, the neighbors are rais-
in' the windows, now."

Miss Harvey screamed.
"Oh, Annie," she cried, "go and call him over and tell him that he must not stand there, looking at the house that way. Tell him that it troubles me—Me—and then I know he'll go."

Annie's trim figure disappeared;
and Yet Wing's teacher heard a sound of voices, which presently grew louder. She listened. Annie was saying with spirit:
"You just wait till I get Mike Finney a-holt of you, you slatin'-eyed—"
And at this point Annie came back,
her face crimson.

"Them that wants the Chinaman
can have him," she cried, indignantly.
"He's settin' there on the steps
like he meant to wait for the crack o' doom, an' if your brother comes he'll think doom's cracked."

This horrible possibility decided Miss Harvey. She puffed out the pink vest, dabbed both eyes with a little lace handkerchief, and went drooping to the door. Yet Wing still sat enthroned on the steps, placidly looking at the rain.

"Yet Wing," she murmured, weakly. Yet Wing arose and smiled.
"Ele come back?" was his enigmatic question.

"Yet Wing, you must go away," whispered Miss Harvey. "You must not come to my house any more. I am very sorry for you—I hope we will be friends—I shall still teach you, Yet Wing."

"You go away!" retorted Yet Wing, whom the gods had made mad. "Me come mally pretty gu!—An—nee—she teach me. Me no likes you fo' teachee—you too old. Me laif fo'
Annee."

When Miss Harvey went back into the house where Annie was holding the fort behind the sofa armed with a broom, she walked very straight and her look was severe.
"Has he gone?" questioned Annie,
tremblingly.

"He has gone," replied Miss Harvey, drily. "Annie, you need never come to the Mission after me again —never again. I find that you have a most unfortunate influence over those men. That poor, ignorant Yet Wing—there is no telling what harm has been done to him. He seems quite demented. Tell my brother he needn't wait dinner for me—I have a headache."

And Miss Harvey went to her own room, and locked the door, and sat down in the corner furthest from the mirror.

Wounded Vanity.
A woman cries ten times out of wounded vanity where she cries once out of really wounded feelings. And each one of the ten times does her good. Let your wounded vanity smart all that will, for vanity is a kind of "proud flesh" of the human soul that has to be treated with sharp caustic every little while to keep it from becoming an excrescence that will disfigure the whole character.—Ladies' Home Journal.

advised to try it at once. For fear that I might neglect it my friends sent to the village and got a bottle and made me promise that I would take it. I had been getting worse all the time.
I took three bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and ten vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and now the 'All Healing Salve,' which made a complete cure. It was slow but sure. I was taking the medicine about eight months.

A MURDER AT LORDSBURG.

In a Fight Over a Woman One Man Was Killed.

A shooting occurred at Lordsburg, Grant county, on Monday, which resulted in the death of one man. The trouble was caused by a woman who was living with a miner. She quarreled with him last Sunday, and left his home to go to the home of another. Monday morning, just after the men had gone to work, the man she had left came to her house and started to abuse her. Her new paramour had gone but a short distance, and, hearing screams, he went to the woman's assistance. He was met in the road by the other man, who drew a revolver from his pocket and shot once. The bullet took effect in the left shoulder joint and ranged down to the heart, causing death in a few hours. The murderer was arrested and placed in jail. There was talk of an attempt to lynch the murderer, but the authorities made such a strong showing of force that no demonstration was made.

THE EMBUDO TRAGEDY.

Further Details of the Murder of Ramona Rendon.

Juan Rendon, father of Ramona Rendon, the girl who two weeks ago was shot by her lover, Facundo Lovato, at Embudo, was in the city yesterday. He related that he was not home at the time the girl was shot. He had gone that morning to the Lovato home and told Facundo's father that Ramona did not desire to marry Facundo. The elder Lovato thereupon said: "All right, we cannot force the girl to marry my boy." Facundo came home several hours after and, upon being told by his father that the Rendon girl would not marry him, he mounted his horse and galloped to the Rendon home at Embudo Plaza. Only the girl and the mother were at home, sitting on opposite sides of the fireplace. Facundo stepped into the house and asked: "Ramona, are you going to marry me?" Ramona answered: "No, neither you nor any one else." Facundo thereupon drew his revolver and fired two shots at the girl, one entering her groin and leaving the body near her heart. The girl arose with a cry and ran toward the door, when Facundo fired two more shots, neither of them taking effect. He then mounted his horse and made for the mountains. It is supposed that he is hiding with relatives. The girl died a few hours after being shot. She was sixteen years of age. The Lovato boy is twenty years old. The girl's father yesterday swore out a bench warrant for the arrest of Lovato.
