WEEKLY CROP BULLETIN.

The Crop Reports from the Various Correspondents.

Santa Fe, July 2.—United States department of agriculture.

Climate and crop bulletin of the weather bureau, New Mexico section.

Unusually high temperatures prevailed during the past week, with moderate showers confined principally to the higher mountain ranges.

Local streams are getting low and in some localities irrigation water is becoming scarce, but ditches under the Rio Grande are still well supplied.

Where water has been sufficient growing crops made rapid progress under the influence of the warm weather, but crops depending on rain for moisture are suffering seriously from the hot and dry weather. As yet stock generally is in excellent condition, but range grass is drying up rapidly and in many localities water holes have dried. On the whole, however, crop and stock prospects are quite promising at this writing as the "rainy season" should be close at hand.

The following remarks are selected from the reports of correspondents.

Alamogordo.—J. C. Dunn.—The hot weather of the last two weeks has been very hard on all kinds of crops.

Water is very low in the about nine the trees look dry. Mountain rains in the last two days, however, will help the flow of water. No complaint about the heat.

Andrews.—A. S. Warren.—Hot with high winds and no rains; everything is very dry.

Bluewater.—J. S. Van Doren.—A good growing week; all grain doing well.

Corn is just beginning a good growth.

First cutting of alfalfa done, with a good yield. Outside pastures begin to show the want of rain. Cattle and sheep still in fine condition, and everything promises a good season. Highest temperature, 101; lowest, 44; no rain.

Dixon (Rio Arriba county).—E. G.

Whitney.—Wheat is just heading out.

Corn is about five inches high, and is rolling fast with rain. On account of the drought all crops making very slow growth. Streams are very low and there is insufficient water for irrigation. Unless rain comes soon all crops will be an entire failure.

East Las Vegas.—Jno. Thornhill.—

Hot and dry; this has been the hottest week for four years. All field crops are badly in need of rain; grass on the prairies is drying up and water is getting scarce. Crops recover slowly from the effects of the severe last storm of the 21st of June.

Espanola.—P. H. Leese.—Hot and dry; vegetation under ditches looking fine.

The range is drying up rapidly. Water getting low in the Santa Cruz creek, but the Rio Grande still running high. A very heavy first cutting of alfalfa all ready. Wheat producing the best crop in years.

Fruitland.—C. J. Collier.—An exceptionally good growing week. Warm nights, no wind, and an abundance of water and sunshine. Corn growing rapidly; wheat is in the milk. Second cutting of alfalfa growing nicely; watermelons ready to blossom; cherries still being picked. The range needs rain.

Gallinas Springs.—Jas. E. Whitmore.

—Fine growing week for grass and alfalfa. Outside pastures about four inches deep a few miles east of here,

Cure for Cholera Infantum—Never

During last May an infant child of our neighbor, suffering from cholera in-hopes of recovery. I took a bottle them I felt sure it would do good. It was used according to directions. In two days the child had fully recover-

A Money Order With a History.

Sixteen years ago a letter with a postal money order in it was sent to Mrs. John Clark, of this city, and in the same letter was a circular letter went to F. A. Manzanares, in some peculiar manner the letter to Mrs.

Clark was folded in the one to Mr.

Manzanares. The circular when received was lightly tossed aside and nothing was thought of it. However, one day this week one of Mr. Manzanares' boys was looking over some of the old letters and among others found this one. On opening it he found Mrs.

Clark's letter and reported it to his father, who in turn turned it over to Mrs. Clark who had the money order cashied.—Las Vegas Optic.

FOURTH OF JULY SQUIDS.

A Few Accidents to Several of the City's Youngsters.

Fred, Craig, with other foundry employees, celebrated the Fourth in firing small cannons manufactured at the foundry and they made south Albuquerque noisy. Yesterday Fred, put in an extra charge and set the powder on a nearby fire. The cannon. The shot shook the foundations for squares and sent pieces of the can whirling in all directions, a piece of which struck Fred's left temple and tore a gash in the face and head. It was thought the left eye was permanently injured, but it was learned this morning that the eye will be all right in a few days. Fred expects to return to work in a week or ten days.

Cortez Quikell, the bright little son of Col. Ed. Quikell, was one of the young Americans that believed in a noisy Fourth. So, on the evening before the natal day he got himself a piece of gas pipe and rigged out a cannon. At "Hawley's on the Corner," where a lot of boys had congregated, young Quikell planted his cannon in the street, applied a lighter match and the reverberations were so strong that the flag on the postoffice waved to and fro. When the smoke cleared away from the cannon, where the cannon had been set, but an investigation revealed the fact that the gas pipe had blown through one of Hawley's plate glass windows, barely missing the head of Raymond Stamm, who was a clerk at Hawley's.

James H. Wroth, Jr., the interesting eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Wroth, will remember the Fourth of July, 1901. He was up bright and early yesterday morning and he boarded the corner of Fifth street and Copper avenue in good fashion. He had all kinds of fire-crackers and the little misadventure of his neighborhood did him for his bravery. Finally, one good-sized cracker failed to explode as quickly as Jimmie desired and he investigated, with the result that just as he was down on his knees to ascertain the cause the fire-cracker exploded and one of Jimmie's eyes like-wise his face, is pretty badly powdered. He will, however, be all right in a short time, and will be on hand with much larger fire-crackers next Fourth of July.

Over on the corner of Sixth street and Tenth avenue, Joe Walton thought he was having a regular birthday celebration, for all the fire-crackers he used were presented to him by neighbors and his parents, and he made every body in that vicinity fear for their life, so much so that he was in using the fire-crackers. Besides several fingers burned, he got off very lucky.

The shop employees, with their wives, families and sweethearts, divided themselves into several picnic parties and the day was spent in "Orange" grove, eight miles above the city and in Bear canyon and at Camp Alamo in the Santa Mountains.

They report having enjoyed themselves to their heart's content, nothing occurring to mar the pleasure of any one in either of the picnic parties.

In the evening several hundred people wound their way to the pretty Robinson city park on west Copper avenue, where the new Italian band, under the leadership of Prof. B. Ramirez, gave a free concert. The members of the band have only been practicing the past few months, and last night each and every member gave evidence that they possessed the material for the making of a first-class brass band.

The new manager was a resident of Albuquerque years ago, and his old friends are pleased to see him back among them again. J. C. Brown, the auditor of the system, is now at the local house, checking in the new manager.

KILLED BY A BEAR.

Seferino Jaramillo's Body Torn to Threads by a Female Bear.

While herding a flock of sheep for Policarpo Arjimo on the range between Colabietta and Ojo San Francisco, about thirty-five miles north of Albuquerque, Seferino Jaramillo was attacked by a large female bear and her two cubs last Tuesday. Jaramillo was assisted in taking care of the herd by a small boy, but when the old bear made her onslaught on the man the little fellow made his escape to a ranch some distance away and the occupants of what had happened. A couple of men went to the place as directed by the boy and found Jaramillo lying on the ground, unconscious, with his head and body frightfully scratched and torn. They placed him in a wagon and started for his home in Los Duranos, north of old Albuquerque, but he died yesterday morning of his injuries while en route. The men came on to this place with the dead body and did not arrive at the late home of the deceased until midnight last night, when it was turned over to the charge of his family. The left side of the body was badly lacerated from the shoulder to the hip and the man's head was so horribly mutilated by the bear's claws and teeth that it was scarcely recognized as a portion of a human. The mangled remains having ridden in the hot sun nearly all of yesterday were in a bad state of putrefaction when they arrived here this morning, and as a result it was necessary to bury them as quickly as possible. A brief funeral service was conducted at an early hour this morning by Rev. Father Persons and the interment was made in San Ignacio cemetery.

Seferino Jaramillo was about 50 years of age and was a man well respected by all the residents of Duranos. He was the father of seven
