IN DEFENSE OF GENERAL FUNSTON

Representative Curtis of Kansas Says That General Funston Captured the New George Washington.

THE OLEOMARGARINE BILL

The Millers of Kansas Ask the Senate to Make Reciprocal Concessions to Foreign Nations in Order to Give Them Relief from Threatened Illnesses.

Washington, April 28.—In the house today the naval appropriation bill was reported, and the house then resumed consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill.

Curtis, Kansas, made a brief but fervent defense of General Funston against the criticism to which he has been subjected. "The people of Kansas," he began, "are proud of the brave and daring record of the gallant General Funston (applause on the Republican side). He has been criticized here for an act which for daring of conception and execution ranks with the greatest feats at arms—he captured the new George Washington, Aguinaldo."

If another had accomplished what Funston did, he said, the Democrats would have made him their candidate for president.

Sibley, Pennsylvania, followed with a bitter denunciation of General Jacob Smith. Said he: "I have heard of Timor, the Tartar, and the Saracen scourge, but, thank God, it took 18 centuries after Calvary to produce General Smith. He admits he issued orders to make Samar a howling wilderness and to kill all over 10 years of age. Such a man should not be permitted to stay in the army until the sun goes down. He disgraced not only himself, but every man who wears the uniform of his country. I hope there is enough courage, patriotism and Christianity at the other end of the avenue to see that he is stripped of his uniform within 48 hours."

Sibley was vigorously applauded by the Democrats and by some of the Republicans.

Williams, Mississippi, heartily endorsed Sibley's onslaught upon Smith, whom he described as a "brute in uniform."

"But, I am a little afraid," he continued, "he does not strike the evil in the right quarter. It is the system which should be struck at, not the man who unconsciously carries out the spirit of the system. Wherever there is a war of conquest against a weak and inferior colored people, deeds of brutality naturally occur."

SENATE.

Washington, April 28.—When the senate convened today, Harris, Kansas, presented the following telegram received from the Kansas Millers' Association:

"The Kansas millers, on account of foreign discrimination, with the best wheat in the world at their door, are not producing over one-third their full capacity. Unless your committee on foreign relations can give us relief through reciprocal concessions, placing our mills on an equal basis with foreign mills, many of our mills will shut down indefinitely, and some of them be forced to the wall. In our distress, we look to our senator for relief." The telegram was referred to the committee on foreign relations.

The senate also in the house amendments to the oleomargarine bill, which passed the measure and sends it to the president.

Teller's amendment to the renovated butter section of the bill as passed by the senate, defines a butter trust, and provides that a tax of 10 per cent shall be imposed upon the products, capital and assets of such trust. It was defeated, 25 to 28.

At 2 o'clock the senate took up the Philippines government bill, and Fitzsimmons, North Carolina, addressed the senate in opposition to the measure.

After some further debate on miscellaneous topics, the general debate was closed and the bill read for amendment under the five minute rule.

The senate agreed to the conference report on the Chinese exclusion bill.

CONFERENCE AGREES.

Washington, April 28.—The conference on the Chinese exclusion bill have reached a complete agreement. It strikes out that portion of the senate bill limiting the extension of all existing laws to the life of the present treaty and re-enacts them so far as not inconsistent with treaty obligations until otherwise provided by law and extends the laws to the island territory as far as applicable. It allows the Chinese to enter for exposition purposes and retains the provision regarding certification in the Philippine Islands.

CONSTABULARY AMBUSHED

Five Men of the Native Constabulary Surprised Near Manila by a Force of Thirty Ladrones.

COURT MARTIAL OF SMITH

Major Walter Testifies That General Smith Gave Him Orders to Kill and Burn and to Make Samar a Howling Wilderness—Insurrection in Samar Ended.

Manila, April 28.—Five men of the constabulary have been ambushed at San Juan del Monte, near Manila. One of the party was killed, and one injured. The Filipino band consisted of 30 ladrones, well armed, most of them carrying Mauser rifles. A force of the constabulary is scouring the neighborhood for the bandits.

THE SMITH COURT MARTIAL.

Manila, April 28.—The trial by court martial of General Jacob H. Smith on the charge of conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline, was resumed here today. Major Littleton and W. T. Waller of the marine corps, testified to receiving from General Smith orders to "kill and burn" and to render Samar a "howling wilderness," previously referred to in these dispatches. The natives of Samar, said Major Waller, were more treacherous and implacable than the tribesmen of the Soudan. Without Smith's drastic measures, the war there would not have been ended yet. Smith never intended killing women or children. Corporal Pritchard of the 9th infantry, who took part in the fight at Gandara, testified that he saw boys 12 years of age, fighting and slaying with bolos. Others told of the ferocity of Samar natives.

THE INSURRECTION ENDED.

Manila, April 28.—The surrender of insurgents in the island of Samar, headed by General Guevarra, was officially effected. It is believed the insurrection in Samar is ended.

He left the army at Cairo, Illinois, where he sang in a theater, acted in operas, and played at DeBar's theater, St. Louis, in 1885. His first appearance in New York was in 1871. He joined Daly's company in 1874. For a number of years he starred in his own company in Edgewood Folks, Felix McCassick, A Poor Relation and Peaceful Valley. He made his home at Minneapolis, Minnesota, in late years.

The Bromide District.

J. P. Rinker, superintendent of the Danbury group of claims in the Bromide district, Rio Arriba county, was a passenger for Denver on Saturday, where he will select a steam hoisting plant for these properties. The Payroll, one of the group, will be sunk another 100 feet, and is already in a fine body of copper and gold ore. St. Michael's and New Mexican copper properties have consolidated, and their Gold Pan shaft is now in fine ore. A rich strike was made last week in the Mineral Point. A large body of ore was found running better than $100.

Albuquerque Wants Better Rates.

Messrs. Bladé, Gorman, Morehouse and Roe of the traffic department of the Santa Fe railway, are returning from an official trip over the Texas lines and Pecos Valley road and were at Albuquerque on Saturday consulting with the board of merchants in reference to lower rates for Albuquerque so as to enable Albuquerque merchants to compete with El Paso, which has had the benefit of both a lower local and through rate.

A Lime Kiln Near Farmington.

A short time ago a prospector named E. K. Hill announced that he had discovered lime near Farmington, San Juan county. William Ross afterward interested himself with Mr. Hill and a kiln was built and filled with the rock, and the result is as fine white lime as can be produced anywhere. This is of great importance, as heretofore all lime had to be hauled from Durango by wagon, a distance of sixty miles.

THE DRIFT FENCES.

They Positively Must Be Removed from the Public Domain by July 1.

Senator Patterson called on President Roosevelt by appointment Saturday morning to discuss a bill for the extension of his order which requires fences upon the public domain to be immediately taken down, and failing to do which, violators to be prosecuted in the courts.

After the situation had been considered pro and con, the president decided that he would extend the time for the removal of fences until July 1, and said that the order would be issued immediately after the cabinet meeting on Thursday next. At the same time the president made it clear that there would be no further extension, whether in individual cases or generally. The law being upon the statute books, he feels it to be his duty to enforce it, and the only reason for leniency now is that it has stood so long practically as a dead letter that there might be individual cases of serious hardship should the order be immediately put into effect. The president also said that he had numerous complaints from settlers and small cattlemen all over the arid regions, that their rights were entitled to the fullest sympathy of the executive.

Senator Patterson says that the president left no room to doubt that he means precisely what he says about enforcing the order for the removal of fences rigidly and impartially after July 1, and that it is quite well enough for those who have fences to understand that July 1 will be the last day of grace.

Senator Gibson has introduced a bill authorizing the secretary of the interior to restore to public entry lands embraced in whole or in part within the segregations for reservoirs. The bill provides that lands heretofore included within reservations for reservoir purposes, made in accordance with the law approved October 2, 1888, and subsequent acts, may, in the discretion of the secretary, be thrown open to entry and settlement under the land laws as though such reservations had never been made, provided that it has been ascertained by the secretary that such lands are not needed for reservoir purposes and cannot probably be used in future for such purposes.

It is rumored at the capital that an attempt will be made to attach as an amendment to the irrigation bill the bill introduced by Representative Grosvenor and reported from the committee on mines, which provides for the endowment of schools of mines for the different states and territories. This bill stands little chance of passing as an independent proposition, and it has been asserted that the speaker made a suggestion to its friends that it be added to the irrigation bill. The money for endowment of schools of mines is to be derived from the sale of public land and it has been opposed by friends of the Henshrough-Newlands irrigation bill on the ground that it will cause too heavy an inroad on the funds realized from the sale of public lands and that the necessity and demand for it is not comparable with that for irrigation legislation.

THE NAVY IS NOT FORMIDABLE

Comparatively Few of the Ships of This Nation Have Any Real Fighting Value.

NAVAL APPROPRIATION BILL

Germany is Outstripping Uncle Sam—Nearly $60,000,000 Asked for the Present Year By the House Naval Committee Whose Report Was Presented Today.

Washington, April 28.—The naval program for 1903, as presented by the naval appropriation bill and accompanying the report filed today by Chairman Foss of the house naval committee, does not take as optimistic a view of our naval progress as is generally held. Foss points out that comparatively few of our ships have any real fighting value. He accompanies this with a statement of the enormous naval armament and programs of other countries, particularly Germany. It is shown by the report that the total number of vessels built and building is 138, at a total cost of $235,082,209. Of these, Foss says, few have any real fighting value. Our naval prowess lies almost entirely in our 18 battleships, 8 armored cruisers and 21 protected cruisers. The rest of the ships cut little figure in actual war. A detailed statement shows that the appropriation bill carries $77,659,336, which is slightly below the appropriation made last year.

CHILDERS ACQUITTED.

The Jury at Las Cruces on Saturday Evening Returned a Verdict of Not Guilty in This Sensational Case.

The defense closed its testimony in the Childers trial for the murder of Hefflin at Las Cruces on Friday evening. The principal witness for the defense was Childers' brother-in-law, Walter Savidge, about 20 years of age. He testified that he was holding Childers, and that during that time Hefflin fired. He testified that the testimony of the three eye-witnesses for the prosecution was not correct, and that from the position they were in at the time of the shooting, it would have been impossible for them to have seen anything. He was badly confused on cross-examination. The testimony was very conflicting. The court room has been crowded during the trial.

MONDAY, APRIL 28.

New Mexico Demands Statehood of the 57th Congress.

Of Right and in Justice New Mexico Should Be a State.

A few more great Filipino generals are surrendering. Will this never end?

The estate of Cecil Rhodes figures up $72,000,000. South Africa seems to be almost as good a country to make money in as the United States.

Some European correspondents are busily engaged in arranging for a Japanese-Russian war and that at an early date. They cannot scare this country.

The recent Indiana Republican convention struck the right keynote of this year's Republican campaign. Other state conventions can well afford to follow suit.

Some of the Cubans are already talking about using a rope and telegraph pole for the inauguration of their new president. They are commencing rather early.

President Roosevelt is anxious that congress should pass a bill providing for the construction of an isthmian canal. The people are with the president in this matter.

Senator Hoar of Massachusetts, voted against the Chinese exclusion bill. This is not strange. The senator has been doing all kinds of freakish and strange things during the past few years.

Miss Ellen M. Stone, for whose liberation a ransom of $73,000 was paid, now asserts that she is sure that her liberation, from the hands of the cruel Bulgarian bandits, was due solely to prayer.

Wonders still happen even in this the 20th century. Berry Howard, a Republican accused of complicity with the Goebel murder, has been acquitted by a Kentucky jury; but, then, Judge Canfield did not preside at the trial.

Colonel William Jennings Bryan is commencing to explain that his blooded helpers did not cost $500 apiece, but that they cost a trifle less than $450 per head. The politician, who finds it necessary to explain, is lost.

Some of New Mexico's statesmen are carefully scanning the delegate field in this territory. They should remember, however, that New Mexico, up to date, is entitled to but one delegate to the house of representatives of the United States.

The committee on rules of the house of representatives is not overly enthusiastic concerning the bringing up of the omnibus bill for statehood for New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arizona. Nevertheless and notwithstanding the committee ought to give the measure the right of way.

Under J. P. Morgan's direction the new steamship trust will increase the steamship service between this country and Europe. It is proposed to dispatch a passenger and mail steamship daily from ports on both sides of the Atlantic. Even the most gigantic of trusts may do some good.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad people claim to have a very satisfactory arrangement with the Southern Pacific railroad and say they are not contemplating an extension of their system to the Pacific coast. That is all right as far as it goes, but railroad traffic arrangements do not last forever.

The Fort Marcy reservation in this city should be disposed of by the federal government, and that at an early date. It has been abandoned for eight years and ought to be sold, so that the property might bear its share of taxation like other real estate. This in the long run would serve the best interests of this city and of the territory.

The beef trust is asserting that the increase in the price of beef is a good thing for the people. Its members say that they make more money than ever and that they are part of the people. The argument, however, does not go down with the average citizen, who is compelled to pay from 5 to 10 cents per pound more than he did two or three years ago. The beef trust is high and mighty indeed, but its day is coming.

Western members of the house of representatives are making a determined effort to bring the irrigation bill, passed by the senate and amended by the house committee on irrigation, up for action. The measure is of vast importance to the great west and should receive speedy and favorable consideration by the house of representatives. The Republican party will be the loser if the bill should fall of enactment during the present session.

Attorney General Knox has ordered the United States attorney at Chicago to institute proceedings against the beef trust. It is understood that the government is in possession of evidence whereupon to base such action. At any rate the matter should be carefully and thoroughly investigated. Investigation of trusts by the courts never do harm, but very often are productive of great good.

The bill providing for a system of the leasing of the public domain is not as dead as it ought to be. Hired attorneys are appearing before congressional committees to urge its enactment. The member of congress from a western state who favors the measure, should be defeated for re-election. A vote for the measure means that he is against the interests of the masses, of the homesteader, of the settler, and of the man who owns a small herd of cattle or sheep.

John P. Irish, a California lawyer, for a very handsome fee, appeared before the committee on public lands of the house of representatives and strongly advocated the bill for the leasing of the public domain to the cattle kings and stock barons of Texas and of the Indian Territory. One of his assertions was that the settlers seeking homesteads, would be benefited by the passage of such a law. This statement is upon a par with the other arguments he made. Men of his stamp should receive no consideration and their arguments should be allowed to fall flat.

The government has given its first irrigation order in anticipation of congress passing the irrigation bill. About one million acres have been withdrawn from settlement in northwestern Montana, as that will be the site for the construction of the first large irrigation system under government auspices. New Mexico will probably have to wait a good many years before the government will be building reservoirs in this part of the country. But nevertheless, it is gratifying that the principle that the government should reclaim the arid lands, is being established.

THE MAKING OF GREAT COMMONWEALTHS.

The Philadelphia Press in speaking of Senator Kearns' efforts to have northern Arizona annexed to Utah, expresses the opinion that the plains region of Montana should have been made part of Wyoming, while the mountainous part should have been joined to Idaho. That is now impracticable but the Press thinks that before it is too late, Arizona and New Mexico and Oklahoma and Indian Territory should be made one. To this the Denver Republican replies by saying that the Press exhibits its ignorance of western conditions and the extent and character of the resources of this part of the United States. It could with as near an approach of timeliness have suggested that all the New England states should be thrown into one, that New Jersey should be attached to Pennsylvania, and that Delaware should be made a part of Maryland. Arizona and New Mexico are each able to support a larger population than that of any New England state and as for Wyoming and Montana, they will in time be numbered among the great American commonwealths, great not only in area, but also in population and in wealth. There will always be more states east of the Mississippi than west of that stream, but before the end of the present century the west will in a measure make up for this deficiency in the magnitude and local strength of its great states. When Texas has 20,000,000 inhabitants, Colorado and New Mexico each 5,000,000 and other states are proportionately as powerful according to their resources, they will count for more than the small states of the east which are reaching the limit of their resources and their growth. The states and territories of the west are strong because of the great variety of minerals to be found within their limits and also because of the fertility of their soil. Irrigation can reclaim a large area and the country so reclaimed can be made to support a large population. One needs but consider the history of Egypt to conclude that a state like Colorado or a territory like New Mexico, have within them the elements which make a great and powerful commonwealth.

OF NATIONAL CONCERN.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean demonstrates that it is to the interests of the entire Mississippi and Missouri valleys that the arid lands be reclaimed. The districts which compose the arid lands by reason of their dry heat and through the eastward movement of all atmospheric conditions across the continent, are and always have been a menace to the great agricultural country lying east and northeast, notably Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, South Dakota, Indiana and Ohio. The hot winds which imposed such losses last year upon farmers, stockmen, merchants and common carriers, and which partially blasted the corn and forage crops as far east as Ohio, originated in the arid southwest. Nor was this loss confined to the Mississippi valley. The increased cost of living which has been caused is felt even more severely in the eastern manufacturing centers.

If such calamities as this can be appreciably lessened by the irrigation of the arid lands it would be evidently worth while for the nation to spend all the money necessary to utilize every drop of water in that region. That such utilization of water would materially affect the climate of the arid lands and thus check the generation of winds destructive to agriculture in the regions east of them there can be no doubt. Enough has been learned on a small scale of the effects of irrigation to assume what would be its effect on a national scale. The arid lands therefore are not only useless in themselves but a constant menace to the adjacent districts of normal rainfall. By the work of redeeming them not only would homes for millions be provided, but agriculture in fully two-thirds of the Mississippi valley would be given greater certainty and stability. The interest of the manufacturing and consuming districts in irrigation is that increasing supplies of food for an increasing population may be found. The interest of the great present day agriculture region is that its ability to provide that food may be more certain. Secretary Wilson has well described irrigation as the greatest problem of domestic policy now before the American people. The problem is not merely a local one but of national interest. Hence its solution is a matter of national concern and should not be delayed by concessions to any old theories or traditions.

However, most people residing in the arid region are willing to rest their claims for national assistance upon the fact that the reclamation of the arid lands would justify itself by results, regardless of the effect that it might have upon climatic conditions in the states lying to the east of the arid belt.

THE LARGER HALF.

The Same in Santa Fe as Elsewhere. The bigger half of worldly trouble. The greater part of mankind's suffering.

Can safely be laid to the kidneys. Kidneys filter the blood. Keep the human system healthy. But they can't do this when they're sick.

Easy to tell sick kidneys. Look at the back for the note of warning.

Most backache pains are kidney ills. Twinges, twinges, pains and aches of a bad back. Should be treated promptly. Every day's delay means future trouble.

Urinary complications set in, diabetes, Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills are kidney specialists. Cure every form of kidney ills. Here is proof of this:

Mrs. M. Meyers, midwife, living at 112 South 14th street, St. Louis, says: "Perhaps in following my calling, from lifting, or from some other cause, I may have overstrained the muscles of my back. Be that as it may, I have had attacks of backache for two years and lately almost constant. It hurt more in the morning than in any other period of the day and has on more than one occasion been so severe that I could scarcely turn in bed. I know from the condition of the kidney secretions that my kidneys were at fault but what to do was a mystery. I was continually trying sure-cure medicines to cure kidney complaint, but I met with very little if any success until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. From the benefits I received from the treatment I have not the slightest hesitation in very emphatically endorsing the preparation. I have studied medicine and understand the symptoms of kidney complaint. No one in St. Louis if they try Doan's Kidney Pills for kidney complaint will be disappointed in the results."

Just such, emphatic endorsement can be had right here in Santa Fe. Drop into Ireland's Pharmacy and ask what his customers report. For sale by all dealers; price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

BETTER THAN PILLS.

The question has been asked, "Is that way as Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets superior to pills?" Our answer is: They are easier and more pleasant to take, more mild and gentle in effect and more reliable as they can always be depended upon. Then they cleanse and invigorate the stomach and leave the bowels in a natural condition, while pills are more harsh in effect and their use is often followed by constipation. MISSOURY HELENY

By Juliette M. Babbitt.

(From the Home Journal, New York. Reprinted by Special Permission.)

"MISSOURY HELENY, put that book right down an' run an' pick up some chips to hurry up this plaguey fire—an' put on some taters to cook while I sets th' table. They a man an' woman—mighty stylish-looking folks—'specially 'es' ther way an' 'wants sumpin' 'vest jes' as quick as ever they kin git it. Lucky I baked yiste'day, an' had that hen on a-cookin' 'em. Jump, now, an' take yore min' off'n yore readin' long 'nuff to 'elp me git th' dinner," and a talk, this woman, with scanty gray hair drawn tightly back from a sorrow face, returned to the front room of a small weather-stained, story-and-a-half frame house where she had left one of her guests—a lady in a plain gray traveling dress—standing in the doorway looking out across the broad, level expanse of "bottom" land stretching away from the hills nearby to the Missouri river.

"Take th' rockin' cheer, ma'am, an' rest yoreself," said the hostess, pulling a table to the center of the room, covering it with a coarse but snowy cloth and bringing the dishes from the kitchen as she talked. "Yu mus' be pow'ful hungry if yu got yore brekfast to White's. They do say they hain't never nothin' fit to eat there. Strange how yu missed th' road to Jim Hanion's leas'tways th' place what he runs for some eastern man; his bout five mile from here, up 't'her side th' Maple. Hope th' gentleman hain't havin' no trouble findin' th' feed. They a-plenty out there. Jerry—that's my son—went over to town this mornin' an' hain't got back, an' my ol' man's out a-huntin'. They hain't nothin' Dan Holten loves better'n noopin' 'roun' with his gun, less'n hits a-playin' on his fiddle, or readin' a story book. Missouri Heleny—a-goin' in the kitchen—"Is them taters a-billin'?" That girl—"comin' back to place a dish of sliced cucumbers on the table—"Is jest like her pa readin' 'ev'ry scrap o' print she kin lay her han' on, an' she's crazy to git a education an' learn music. I lets her go to school when they is any, an' she knows 'bout as much now, as th' las' teacher, though she hain't but 16 las' May. Her pa named her fur th' state we come from an' a ilian' wher Bony-part wuz shet up to keep him out'n mischief. Well, I reckon dinner's ready if yu air," and she brought in a platter of stewed chicken which sent up an appetizing odor.

Passing shyly in and out, assisting the talkative woman, was a slender, fair-haired young girl in a faded blue calico dress. She sorely lifted the long dark lashes veiling a pair of deep blue eyes, and slipped away to her interrupted reading the moment the meal was ready.

Hugh Ramsey, a young New York lawyer, and his sister, Mrs. Zachary Morrison, were on their way to Omaha, where Mrs. Morrison purposed spending some time with a former schoolmate before joining her brother in Colorado, where he was going to look after some mining property. At a small town, between Sioux City and Council Bluffs, they left the train, that bright August morning, to visit a farm a dozen miles or so distant, which had been left to Mrs. Morrison by an uncle. After an unsatisfactory breakfast, they hired a pair of horses and an open buggy and, mistaking the direction, wandered about until noon found them very hungry, at the Holten place. They had not expected much from the appearance of the house and its mistress, and enjoyed all the more the excellent meal so soon ready for them, after which they proceeded on their way, taking the right road this time.

"Hugh, do you remember Missouri Heleny, the pretty girl wher we got such a good dinner the day we were lost on our way to my Iowa farm?" asked Mrs. Morrison, the evening after her arrival at Colorado Springs. "I remember the ridiculous name," answered Hugh Ramsey, lying at ease on a lounge in his sister's room, "and the woman, and, best of all, the dinner; but I can't say that I remember much about the girl. A thin, colorless little thing, wasn't she?"

Mrs. Morrison laughed and, drawing her low chair nearer, ran her fingers through his curly locks. "You were hungry, not to notice such a pretty girl! She is rather thin and colorless now, but she will be a beauty one of these days. I promise you, I was hungry, too, but there was something so sweet about her, and what her mother said about her desire to learn haunted me so that I went up there one day and arranged for Lena—'I won't call her by that dreadful name—to enter St. Mary's, at Omaha, for two years. Her mother, who is an old-fashioned Methodist, objected at first. She was afraid 'them Catholics' would 'prosserlize' the child; but Mr. Holten, a gentle, really refined sort of man, was very grateful for the opportunity offered his daughter, and spoke up with, judging by his wife's look of astonishment, unusual firmness, and she gave in. Jerry—a blond giant, a combination of his energetic mother and easy-going father—was on our side, and there Lena is, at St. Mary's, studying like everything, and happy as the day is long. I am only afraid of her working too hard; she is so anxious to improve every moment."

"Dear old Zedach, you are always doing good to someone," murmured her brother, pressing her white hand to his lips. Hugh Ramsey was a tall, exceedingly good-looking young fellow—about 25—with dark hair and mustache and dark eyes, which, oftentimes, did more execution than their possessor realized or intended. His sister, some eight or ten years older, had the same dark eyes and curly dark hair, but was much shorter and inclined to be rather stout. A childless widow with ample means, she was devoted to Hugh, and very fond of doing nice things for others. Hugh was also comfortably well off, and not at all dependent upon the profession he had chosen.

GOOD FOR RHEUMATISM.

Last fall I was taken with a very severe attack of muscular rheumatism which caused me great pain and annoyance. After trying several prescriptions and rheumatic cures, I decided to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm which I had seen advertised in the South Jerseyman. After two applications of this remedy I was much better, and after using one bottle was completely cured.—Sallie Harris, Salem, N. J. For Sale by Fischer Drug Co.

Two years after this conversation, Hugh, on another visit to the west, had stopped to look after his sister's property, and to see how her protegee was getting along. Six months before this, Mrs. Holten had been stricken with paralysis, and Lena had returned home to care for her and the little household, so helpless with the chief worker laid low. The family resources were small, and when Lena had the chance of teaching the neighborhood school for the summer months, she gladly took it. She wrote brightly and hopefully to her friend, but Mrs. Morrison feared that the girl was overdoing, and was greatly worried about her. She had looked forward to taking Lena abroad another year, to cultivate her voice, and was loath to give up her plans, even for a time.

Hugh Ramsey came, saw, and—was conquered. That little bushy-browed, winging an entirely unlooked-for shaft straight at his heart at his first meeting with the girl. She was, as Mrs. Morrison had predicted, a beauty indeed, with her soulful deep-blue eyes, long, dark lashes, finely pencilled dark brows, roseleaf complexion, and hair—of that rare golden shade rarely seen beyond early childhood—coiled on the top of her shapely little head and falling, in soft, feathery rings, on her white forehead. She was as charming in mind and manner as she was in person, and the young man's subjugation was complete.

Hugh had made many visits to the little schoolhouse, and had ridden over one afternoon from his sister's place to plead his cause once more. The little frame schoolhouse stood by the roadside, at the foot of a thinly wooded hillside. From the doorway a charming view was had over a broad, farm-dotted valley, bordered with a fringe of trees and vivified by a winding river.

School was out, and the children had gone their several ways. The day had been very sultry, with sudden dashes of rain and frequent gusts of wind, and Lena—looking a picture in her simple blue muslin gown—said, as she began to put the things in order on her desk: "You should not have come out in this heat, Mr. Ramsey, and you must go back before it storms."

"Never mind about the storm, Lena," he said, earnestly, leaning over the desk, trying to capture one of the busy little hands. "Listen to me. I must go away very soon, and I cannot bear to go until you have promised to be my wife. Can't you care for me a little, when I love you so much? Your school closes to-morrow, and I cannot endure the thought of your taking another and drugging so. If you will marry me you need not worry about your parents. I will be glad to make them comfortable. Jerry told me the other day that he was thinking of marrying Mary Jones, and that she was willing to come home with him and care for the old people. Your mother would approve, if she could speak, and your father has already given his consent. Do say yes, my darling, and let me take you right away. I know that I can make you happy, and Zedach will welcome you with open arms."

"I am afraid, Mr. Ramsey, that you do not fully understand your sister's wishes. I know that she hopes to see you marry your cousin, Miss Powers, and unite your two fortunes. She told me so last summer, and do you think anything would make me go against the wishes of one who has been so good to me? Your cousin is beautiful, accomplished, a woman of the world, able to take her place beside you in society. I am only a poor girl with no knowledge of the great world, and just enough education to realize my shortcomings. I know that Mrs. Morrison is fond of me, but she is not fond enough to welcome me as a sister. Go home, dear friend; marry your cousin and forget your fancy—it can be no more—for me. Say good-by now, and do not come again."

"If you really do not care for me, Lena, I would be a brute to urge you further; but I shall not marry my cousin. We do not care for each other in that way, and you are all wrong about Zedach's objecting to you. I did not tell you what she said in her last letter. I wanted—great Heavens! What is that?"

It had grown very dark, and a terrible roaring sound burst upon their startled ears. Running to the door, they beheld a fearful sight. Coming swiftly up the valley, a huge, funnel-shaped, black cloud, rising and falling, was mowing a wide path, leaving death and destruction in its wake. The air was thick with flying objects; parts of buildings and their contents; fence boards, farming implements, even large animals, all tumbling over and over, torn to shreds, now and then cast off to one side or the other. Only a moment did they stand gazing helplessly at the monster; then it passed, brushing with its outer edge, the little building, lifting it up and tossing it aside like a feather. Hugh lay seemingly dead. Lena, uninjured, bent over him, covering his white face with kisses, crying:

"My dearest, my dearest! Hais dead, and will never know how I worship him! Why did not I die, too?"

"Because, my darling," said Hugh, opening his eyes suddenly, and putting his arms around her, "you are going to live for me!"

Better Not. "Do you live happily with your husband?" "Of course! I'd like to see him try to live unhappily with me."—Das Kiliene Wittblatt.

"A neighbor ran in with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when my son was suffering with severe cramps and was given up as beyond hope by my regular physician who stands high in his profession. After administering three doses of it, my son regained consciousness and recovered entirely within 24 hours," says Mrs. Mary Haller, of Mt. Crawford, Va. This Remedy is for sale by Fischer Drug Co.

Conway, manager of the Bon-Ton restaurant, furnished the repast. After the smoker, the Glee Club quartet serenaded a number of friends. Mr. Pamposh, who had been employed in the pressroom of the New Mexican the past two years, has gone to Denver where he has accepted a position as pressman.

A wedding that will be quite a surprise to the acquaintances of the contracting parties all over northern New Mexico was that which occurred Saturday evening of Charles Givens to Miss Margaret Head, both of Las Vegas. Mr. Givens is the son of a Las Vegas liveryman, and Miss Head is the youngest daughter of Colonel R. G. Head, an old cattleman, who is well known among cattlemen west of the Mississippi and who made his headquarters at Watrous, up to two years ago, when he sold his ranch and moved to Las Vegas. Both young people are quite popular, but no one had any intimation of the marriage.

The engagement is announced of Lieutenant Jacob Schick and Miss Mary Frothingham of Milwaukee. Lieutenant Schick is a Santa Fe boy who has had quite a romantic career since leaving this city several years ago, having sailed before the mast in the Pacific ocean, traveled in Africa, fought in Cuba and served under the late General Lawton in the Philippine Islands.

He was a visitor in Santa Fe during the last legislative session. His father died recently at Albuquerque, where also a sister of his now resides. The Detroit Evening News of Thursday a week ago, says: "A delightful dinner was given last night at the residence of Mrs. Frothingham, 700 Woodward avenue, by Dr. George Frothingham, to announce the engagement of his sister, Miss Mary Frothingham, to Lieutenant Jacob Schick of the 14th infantry, Fort Wayne. Covers were laid for ten. The table was a mass of beautiful pink rosebuds and tulips, with pink shaded candelabra, the laces and bon bon carrying out the same dainty tint. The reception rooms were also charmingly decorated in pink roses by Dreitmeyer. Miss Frothingham, who is one of the prettiest and most popular girls in Detroit society, has been an informal debutante of the season, the family mourning of the past two years preventing a formal presentation. She is a Vassar graduate and highly accomplished. Lieut. Schick is a native of Missouri, and a resident all his life of New Mexico. He served with his regiment in the Philippines, coming to Fort Wayne early last fall. He is a well liked young officer, and has made many friends in social circles in this city. The marriage will not take place until the late summer."

A large consignment of game, fish and oysters was received at the Bon-Ton.
