TOMORROW
IS THE DAY

The Advocates of Statehood Are Confident That the House Will Pass the Omnibus Bill.

TWO DESKS DRAPED BLACK

Representative Peter J. Otey of Virginia Died at Lynchburg Yesterday.—The Senate Adopts the Amendment Postponing the St. Louis Exposition.

Washington, May 5.—Two desks were draped in black and covered with flowers when the house met today. One was the old familiar place occupied by Representative Cummings, whose public funeral was held in the house yesterday, and the other that of Representative Peter J. Otey of Virginia, whose death occurred at Lynchburg yesterday. Dr. Couden, the chaplain, in his invocation, dwelt upon the double affliction that has come upon the house and prayed for the family and friends of Otey. The principal feature of the program in the house this week will be to place three new stars in the American flag. The omnibus bill for the admission of New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma to statehood has been ruled for Tuesday. The friends of the bill do not desire a protracted debate on it and will try to secure a vote on that day. There is much opposition to the bill on the Republican side on the ground that the territories are not yet fitted for statehood, but the friends of the bill entertain no doubts of its passage. The Democrats in caucus agreed to give it united support and at least 60 Republican votes are counted on.

Three important measures of general legislation, the Hill financial bill, terminating the coinage of silver dollars, the Ray anti-anarchy bill, and the Shattuck bill codifying and extending the immigration laws will be taken up whenever opportunity occurs. The urgency resolution, making an additional appropriation of $10,000 for the expenses of the dedication of the statue of Marshal De Rochebeau, was adopted. Jones, Virginia, then announced the death of Otey, and offered the customary resolutions of regret. The speaker appointed a committee to attend the funeral, and at 12:15, as a further mark of respect, the house adjourned.

SENATE.

Washington, May 5.—The senate today passed the bill for the cession of lands on the Rosebud Indian reservation, and resumed consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill. The amendment postponing the St. Louis exposition was adopted. At 2 o'clock, the senate took up the Philippine government bill, and Lodge addressed the senate in favor of it. He dealt mostly with the details of the bill. He said it would be a mistake to change the money standard of the Philippines.

He engaged in business in Onondaga county, New York, and later at Lockport in the same state. He removed to Chicago and established a dry goods store there, which later became Field, Palmer and Leiter. He retired in 1897 and invested his fortune in real estate and his improvement. In 1871 he married Bertha Honore, of Louisville, Kentucky. The fire of 1871 wiped out his income, but he rebuilt the Palmer House and other buildings and accumulated a large fortune again. He gave $200,000 to the Woman's Building of the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, of which his wife was president of the board of lady managers.

A BRILLIANT
FEAT OF ARMS

The American Troops Took by Storm One of the Moro Strongholds in Bayan.

CASUALTIES WERE HEAVY

The Americans Lost in Killed One Officer and Seven Enlisted Men and in Wounded Four Officers and Thirty Enlisted Men.—A Hand to Hand Fight.

Washington, May 5.—The war department received a cablegram from General Chaffee indicating that the campaign against the sultan of Bayan, one of the principal Moro chiefs, was completely successful. The result was accomplished by a gallant assault on the principal Moro fort and its capture, after a number of the leading Moros were killed. Eight-four tribesmen surrendered unconditionally. The assault on the fort is described as one of the most brilliant performances of American arms, and Colonel Frank D. Baldwin and his regiment praised for the hand-to-hand struggle in four lines of ditches under the walls of the fort with the Moros. It is impossible to give the number of Moros killed, as many are lying in the tall grass which surrounds the scene. It was necessary to scale the works with ladders, fighting the way inch by inch. Of the American force one officer and seven enlisted men were killed, and four officers and 30 enlisted men wounded. Dead: Lieutenant Bovars, 27th Infantry. Wounded: Captain Moore, 27th, mortally; Lieutenant Jossman, 27th; Surgeon Porter and Lieutenant Henry S. Wagner, 14th; all seriously.

HON. W. E. MARTIN
He Was Today Named for Assistant Superintendent of the Territorial Penitentiary.

Hon. W. E. Martin, today appointed assistant superintendent of the territorial penitentiary, although a comparatively young man, has seen many years of varied public service. Though often a candidate for political office under adverse circumstances, he has never been defeated. He was born on February 16, 1867, at Fort Selden, Dona Ana county. He is the son of John Martin, who is remembered as having dug the well which saved many a life on the La Jornada del Muerto, or the so-called Journey of Death, desert in Dona Ana, Socorro and Sierra counties. Mr. Martin is one of the best, if not the best, Spanish-English interpreters in the southwest. He has served as court interpreter in nearly every judicial district of the territory. He has been interpreter in the legislative council, chief clerk of the council of the 33rd and 34th legislative assemblies. He has also been a member of the legislative house as well as of the council. For the past three years, Mr. Martin has been a trusted and valuable assistant as private secretary to Hon. H. O. Bursum, superintendent of the territorial penitentiary, and he is well fitted therefore to assume the responsible duty for which he was named today. Mr. Martin is an eloquent orator in Spanish and English, a successful politician, a hustler in whatever he undertakes and counts his friends by the legion who are all convinced that the future still holds many and higher honors in store for him.

The result of the decision will be their deportation to China.

THE WOMEN'S CLUBS.

The Business Session of the Big Convention at Los Angeles Commenced Today.

Los Angeles, Calif., May 5.—The decorative display in the Auditorium building is one of the features of the Convention of Women's Clubs. Today the thousands of pink carnations with which the convention hall was strewn since the sessions opened were replaced by lilies. The first big business session began today, and the reports of committees were in order. There was an air of expectancy when the session commenced of a prospect of the cropping out of the color question. The convention has overwhelmingly accepted what is known as the New York compromise in the color question, which is considered largely a victory for the south, in that it does not explicitly provide for the admission of colored clubs.

NO WOMEN IN WINE ROOMS.

The Supreme Court of Colorado Sustains a Denver City Ordinance.

Denver, May 5.—The supreme court of Colorado today announced a decision sustaining the validity of the city ordinance regulating wine rooms. The court, in its opinion, says that injury to public morality would come if women were permitted, without restriction, to frequent wine rooms, which is so apparent to the average person that argument to establish so plain a proposition is unnecessary.

MEETINGS AT THE CAPITOL.

The capitol custodian board met today at the capitol and transacted routine business. The United States Land Commission met and passed upon locations made by Locating Agent David M. White. The Board of Public Lands of the Territory also met in the office of Land Commissioner A. A. Keen this afternoon. Before the meeting Mr. Keen heard the contest of Martin Barreras vs. Benigno Padilla involving a school section at Puerto de Luna, Guadalupe county. The contestant, Barreras, asked that the lease to Padilla be cancelled and that he be awarded the preference right to lease said section No. 16. The ground taken by Barreras is that the land in question had not been appraised by the Board of Public Lands before the lease was executed; that he was an actual occupant of the ground leased, and that Padilla secured the lease by misrepresentation and a lower rental than Barreras is willing to pay. The contest was before the federal land officials in another form some time ago and had been decided to the contestant.

THE BEAUTIFUL TOWN OF CARLSBAD

It Stands in Need of a Creamery. Plans of the Pecos Valley Irrigation Company to Place More Land Under Irrigation.

A BIG PEACH CROP PROMISED THIS YEAR
HEAVY CATTLE SHIPMENTS BEING MADE

The immediate and crying need of Carlsbad and vicinity, Eddy county, is a creamery with an investment of from $10,000 to $15,000.

Carlsbad itself affords a market, per month for 2,000 pounds of butter, with a tributary creamery radius reaching, on the one hand, to Pecos and on the other hand to Roswell, with a dozen or more intermediate towns—the aggregate sale of butter from a Carlsbad creamery counting at least 6,000 pounds per month, with a year around average of 25 cents per pound.

The dairy stock of the Carlsbad region includes Jerseys, Durham, Polled and Holstein, with alfalfa, Kafir corn, millet, blue grass, timothy, etc., as feed and milk producing factors.

Almost the entire market radius of a Carlsbad creamery is traversed by the Pecos Valley and Northern railroad—thus assuring a daily product distribution. The attached ice plant would command a large local patronage aside from its creamery use, while the refuse milk would return high values in hog fattening.

The Pecos Valley Irrigation Company has about completed its plans for the construction of a $40,000 masonry aqueduct across the Pecos river, two miles above the city of Carlsbad. This aqueduct—replacing the present 12-year-old plank flume—will be 535 feet long, 16 feet wide, 8 feet deep, and 32 feet above the river bed.

The present flume has an irrigating capacity of 20,000 acres, of which 10,000 are now under cultivation. The new aqueduct will add 15,000 acres to the irrigation area of the company, or, in other words, on the completion of the aqueduct, the Pecos Valley Irrigation Company will have all told on the market 25,000 acres of new land with perpetual water rights attached—the aqueduct to be completed this year.

The Pecos Valley Irrigation Company has also in active contemplation the early creation—at an expenditure of $1,000,000—of an immense system of tributary storage reservoirs whose reserve waters will swell the irrigated area of the company to 100,000 acres.

The Carlsbad peach shipment this season will run from 12 to 15 carloads, or from 25 to 30 per cent in excess of any crop heretofore marketed from the region. The Superb, the Elberta and the Alexander, all famous table peaches, will, respectively, be heavily represented in this season's Carlsbad orchard yield.

The Carlsbad experiment of last year in the cultivation of irrigated cotton was a pronounced success, the yield averaging fully one bale per acre. Arrangements with Texas capitalists are now in progress for the pledging next year of 800 acres for cotton croppage—the Texas money men engaging, on their part, to put in a local cotton gin with exhaustive by-product attachments.

It is estimated that the cattle shipments this year from Carlsbad and immediately tributary Pecos Valley railroad points, will reach 30,000 head, the cattle themselves comprising 1, 2, 3 and 4-year-old feeding steers, with an actual net money value of $750,000.

Late developments indicate the early materialization of the $250,000 sanitary to be erected on Hagerman heights overlooking Carlsbad, by a local and Chicago syndicate.

La Huerta, the residence suburb of Carlsbad, is being rapidly covered with elegant homes by eastern moneyed people seeking the health-restoring Carlsbad and Pecos valley climate.

The first of the annual four alfalfa cuttings of the Pecos valley is now in progress—this initial alfalfa growth measuring from 30 to 35 inches.

A notable peculiarity of the Carlsbad region is the native mesquite growing area and its agricultural area and adaptability. The mesquite has a heavy bushy growth and its wide spread and highly buried roots furnish fine fuel for both kitchen and heating purposes. These roots command from $2 to $10 per wagon load delivered in town—this fuel sale always paying for the expense of clearing the land and frequently amounting, in actual cash, to the agricultural market value of the land itself.

The ornamental trees of the region include the catalpa, the North Carolina poplar, the silver leaf, the locust, and the yucca palm, or gigantic Spanish dagger.

The chrysanthemum is as ordinary as ornate; bush and climbing roses are everywhere; while other floral growths are as bewildering in enumeration as they are beautiful in blossom.

The New York and Chicago laundry trusts are not only trying to do up the collars, cuffs and shirts of their customers, but their customers as well. Their latest mode of doing up consists of an increase in price of 25 per cent.

The water cure practiced on some of the Filipino traitors may not be a very delightful affair, but it is certainly a very comfortable proceeding when compared with the hacking to death of American soldiers by the Filipino insurgents.

It is to be hoped that the fight for the United States senatorship from New Mexico will be polite and gentle and that the candidates for the position will refrain from stepping on each other's coat tails and knocking chips off each other's shoulders.

In investigations to be made concerning the operations of the beef trust, the experience and testimony of the retail butchers may prove of much value. Retail butchers generally know little about law, but they do know all about the price of beef.

The American people will stand by their soldiers wherever and whenever they do any fighting for the country. This should be remembered by anti-imperialists and ambitious politicians. There is such a thing as trying the temper of the people too much.

The Honorable Thomas B. Reed, in talking to Speaker Henderson the other day, remarked to the latter, "I told you so." He knows from practical experience that this thing of being czar of the house of representatives is not all that it is cracked up to be.

Honorable Richard Olney, ex-attorney general under the Cleveland administration, is being talked of as candidate for president upon the Democratic ticket in 1904. Should he be nominated, what a lot of flaws and faults the Bryan wing of the Democracy will find in the honorable gentleman!

The prosperity of the town of Roswell, the county seat of Chaves county, rests upon agriculture, horticulture, and stock raising. It is upon a solid foundation and the town is increasing in population, wealth, and in business to a very gratifying degree. After all agriculture is the chief and best resource of any country.

General Joe Wheeler has been heard from again. The old fighter this time had himself interviewed and gave the people of a military district in Luzon which he commanded for six months a good send-off. He was very careful to state that it contained only about 300,000 inhabitants out of the 10,000,000 credited to the Philippine Islands. This is very gratifying as he might just as well have included the entire 10,000,000 as being honest, good and true men. He deserves the thanks of the people for stopping at the figure of 300,000.

The May magazines contain articles describing Miss Stone's captivity among Bulgarian bandits. In addition to this she is going through the country on a lecture tour. There are some things in this country that are hard to bear. Surely after the people of the United States paid $73,000 to have the old lady released they are entitled to a rest.

Should New Mexico attain statehood and should it be admitted into the union during this or the coming year, there will be some strange company found in the New Mexico political morgue. Several self-styled statesmen and politicians will be laid out in the political fight that will follow the formation of a government for the Sunshine state.

Of course, the rich Texas, Indian territory, Nebraska, Montana, and California cattle owners want the public domain all to themselves. They have had such a soft snap of it for the last thirty years that they dislike to give it up without a fight. But then the homesteader and homeseeker and the owner of small herds of cattle and sheep is also entitled to some consideration at the hands of the national congress.

It is evident judging by the results of judicial investigations, jury bribing is a fine art often practiced in the city of Chicago. But then Chicago is a great city and located in the state of Illinois. Should an occasional attempt at jury bribing in New Mexico be reported or investigated, although not found to be fact, still such is immediately sent forth as a reason that the people of the territory are not fit for statehood.

Since ex-United States Senator and ex-Pop vice presidential candidate Charles A. Towne has become a coal oil plutocrat, his horny-handed Pop pals know him no more. He has an office on Wall street, wears a silk tie, a Prince Albert coat, silk stockings and patent leather shoes, employs a few dozen pretty typewriter girls, runs an automobile and owns a yacht. Another good man swallowed up by the octopus.

Governor-General Taft is talking to the eastern college professors on the administration of affairs in the Philippine Islands. He is losing valuable time. When these college professors once make up their minds on a political question, no matter how wrong they may be, they do not change. College professors are not built that way. At any rate the eastern college professors do not control the destinies of the country and it is a mighty good thing that they do not.

There must be something very heating in the atmosphere in the city of Washington. Members of congress seem to be especially affected by it. A few days ago, Senator Money had a racket with a street car conductor, and Congressman J. J. Butler and a waiter at a local hotel managed to get up a rumpus. Are the proceedings of the senate and the house of representatives so dull that excitement must be had elsewhere?

Because charges of intemperance and bad conduct were made against him in the Second Baptist church in Little Rock, Arkansas, of which he is a member, Governor Jefferson Davis has about made up his mind to engage in religious flopping. He may flop, but he may rest assured that the Baptist church will go on just the same. One Arkansas governor as a member of that congregation more or less, cannot be of much consequence to that religious body.

The registration of this territory for the November, 1900, elections ran up to 32,000 names. Deducting errors in the registration lists, it can nevertheless be safely calculated that in November, 1900, the territory had a population of 325,000 people. That this has been increased during the past eighteen months by at least 30,000 is believed by those who have kept informed upon the advance and increase in population in New Mexico. On the score of population alone, therefore, New Mexico need not take a backward step when it comes to statehood. In all other respects she is far ahead of many of the states at present.

Belgian capitalists are to erect smelters in Colorado for the treatment of zinc ores. Heretofore zinc ores of Colorado and New Mexico could not be worked with profit on account of the defective methods for their treatment. The erection of these plants in Colorado will stimulate and develop the mining of zinc ores in this territory and in course of time no doubt smelters will be erected in New Mexico. There are many sections in the territory where zinc ores abound and these will naturally be benefited by the carrying out of the plans of the Belgian capitalists.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad system is branching out. It has just secured a line of its own, and direct entrance into St. Louis. That the system within the coming two years will branch out to some extent in New Mexico is on the books and will come to pass. With the completion of its line from Tucuman to Dawson it will have connection with a section of northern New Mexico rich in natural resources. By the end of this year, via the Santa Fe Central railway, it will reach this city, and by the end of the year 1903 it is believed will have a connection to Roswell from Torrance and one from its line in eastern New Mexico to the central Rio Grande valley. The business is here and the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway will of course come for it.

From one dozen to twenty copies of the New Mexican are sent out daily to enquiries and applicants concerning Santa Fe. This is the very best kind of advertisement and is bearing good fruit, as the large number of tourist and healthseekers in the city abundantly shows.

In looking over reports of strikes that occurred on May 1, there seems to be a great deal of business ahead of Senator Hanna as a strike settler. There is one good thing about the senator, he is not afraid of public opinion and when he has made up his mind concerning any public question, he speaks it freely.

Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this.

Mr. C. S. Keep of 323 E. Caramillo street, Colorado Springs, Associated Press operator, says:

"Long before I came to Colorado Springs I knew all about Doan's Kidney Pills in the state of Massachusetts, where they are considered a household remedy. I used them several years ago for a lame and aching back, and I have seen scores of statements from representative citizens of Worcester and other cities in the east, all emphatically indorsing the claims made for that preparation. My advice to anyone suffering from either weakened or over excited kidneys is to procure Doan's Kidney Pills, take a course of the treatment and the results promised will inevitably follow."

Missouri Code Pleading

By Mr. Everett W. Pattison, (Author of Pattison's Complete Digest.) Nearly 600 Pages. Price, $6. Delivered. This Book is a Very Important One for all Lawyers.

The New Mexico Code is largely modeled on the Missouri Code so that this book and the Form book, are the most practical for use there.

It sets forth, as succinctly as is consistent with clearness, the present condition of the law governing pleading as interpreted by the courts of last resort in Missouri. The decisions are mostly those of the Missouri courts; though in some instances illustrations have been drawn from the decisions of other code states.

The Author Thoroughly Believes in the Advantages of the Code System of Pleading. He further believes that precision and exactness are even of more importance in code pleading than in pleading at common law. For, while it is true that the common law requires the utmost strictness in adherence to forms, yet, if its forms are followed, the practitioner need have little fear of attack upon his pleading, even though that pleading should contain fallacies in its reasoning as to the real points in issue. On the other hand, the very object of the Code is to compel parties to make clear the grounds upon which their right to recover, or their defense, is based. The lawyer who is well grounded in the rules of pleading will surely have the advantage in litigation. The constant study of this valuable work, familiarity with the rules set forth in it, and with the decisions enforcing and interpreting those rules, cannot fail to make one a good pleader.

SPECIAL OFFER.—To those who buy both books at once, we will offer Pattison's Pleading Form Book (Price, $5.00), if ordered within the next 30 days for $4.00 additional, thus offering the two works, giving all there is to be said about Pleading in Missouri.

In one order, Prepaid for $10.00.

WON'T FOLLOW ADVICE AFTER PAYING FOR IT.

In a recent article a prominent physician says, "It is next to impossible for the physician to get his patients to carry out any prescribed course of hygiene or diet to the smallest extent; he has but one resort left, namely, the drug treatment." When medicines are used for chronic constipation, the most mild and gentle obtainable, such as Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, should be employed. Their use is not followed by constipation as they leave the bowels in a natural and healthy condition. For sale by Fischer Drug Co.

WHOOPIING COUGH.

A woman who has had experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says: Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our eldest little girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops—Jessie Pinky Hall, Springfield, Ala. This remedy is for sale by Fischer Drug Co.

WHEN THE GEESE GO FLYING.

When the geese go flying northward where the clear blue waters are. When you hear them, like old ladies blithely gossiping afar. When they pass on dipping, flapping up against the blustering sky. Laughing down defiance at you, as you stop to watch them fly. How the old, wild longing haunts you, how the old scenes rise in view. Where the world was wide and peaceful and the simple friends were true.

When the geese go flying northward where the lakes, kissed by the sun. Laugh in glad anticipation, oh, for freedom and a gun! Oh, to fling away ambition and go journeying afar. From the forges and the markets where the weary people are—To go stumbling through the briars and across the hills again. Caring nothing for the future or the things that worry men.

There is something sweet and luring in the mellow breeze that blows Down among the old gray stubbles where they stand in starting rows. There is something in the murmur of the stream that hurries on Through the rushes like the whisper of a spirit that is gone—Like a whispered invitation to go roaming free and far. When the geese go flying northward where the sky-blue waters are.—S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Times Herald.

TWO IN AN AUTO.

By William Perry Brown.

(Copyright, 1901, by Authors Syndicate.)

VOLTAIRE having gone lame at the hurdles the day before, his master was taking a morning walk instead of a ride, when he met Miss Hearst in an auto. He raised his hat and evinced a disposition to stop, whereupon the lady gave the steering gear such a vigorous twist that the machine seemed determined to chase Eskridge off the sidewalk and over the fence.

"Stop me!" she called, but before he could move she had accomplished the feat herself with a suddenness that nearly sent her over the dashboard and into his ready arms.

"The thing seems tender mouthed," said he. "You're too hard on the bit."

"It's my first trip alone," she explained, turning the auto in a jerky, hesitating way, as the power was nervously applied or shut off, until she drew up beside the curb in orthodox fashion. "Great fun, though, this—this—"

"Motoring," suggested Eskridge, tentatively.

"Motoring!" Helen's glance was pitying, though her accent hinted at scorn. "Does it look like a street car?"

To move is now the correct form, so Mr. Crandall says.

"I suppose she has put you on to this new electric fad," said Eskridge, eyeing the spick and span automobile as if it were a personal enemy.

"Put me on!" Helen's glance as well as tone were harmoniously contemptuous now. "How slangy you grow."

Then in assumed surprise: "You seem to be walking. Where is Voltaire?"

"Where I suppose Rosamond is, in the paddock." Rosamond was Miss Hearst's favorite riding pony. "While you and Crandall 'mobe' in your horseless, I suppose I may be allowed to mope on foot."

Helen looked up and down the avenue, at the vacant seat by her, then at the gloomy young man on the sidewalk.

"Mr. Crandall is in the city," she responded, demurely enough. "He may be 'motoring' there for what I know—George!"

Eskridge, interpreting Helen's manner rather than her words, had seated himself beside her with a civility that nearly took her breath away.

"Hang Crandall," he exclaimed, briskly. "You are not to be trusted in one of these things alone. Start up, Nelly."

But Helen had recovered her dignity as well as composure, and her tone became correspondingly chilly.

"Don't crowd, Mr. Eskridge. One needs room to work these levers satisfactorily, as you ought to know."

"I don't know that I ought to know anything—"

"Yet you presume to advise me, who have been taking lessons two weeks."

"Under Crandall," George could not help interjecting.

"Under Mr. Crandall, whom you seem to wish to see hung."

"I don't want to see him, hung or unhung; or hear of him, hung or unhung," George was about to add, "unless he is hung," but he nipped his underlip just in time.

By this time they were spinning down the avenue and into a road leading to the wide stretch of ocean beach that ribbed the seaward side of Looe Island, not unlike a section of some Broddingnagian race course, with a chorus of summer surges instead of shouting crowds as the natural environment. Helen, reading jealousy under all this anti-Crandall surliness, grew tenderly self-complacent as she endeavored to slow down to a more conventional gait. Then a perturbed look came into her eyes as she tumbled at the levers.

"What can be the matter now?" she began.

"What shapely hands you have, Nelly!" interrupted Eskridge, rather irrelevantly, and seemingly oblivious of the fact that they were tearing along towards the ocean at a runaway pace.

"Oh, dear!" she complained. "Why won't the odious thing turn?"

They were leaving the road and plunging right on over the low sand dunes that lined the beach.

"Such a foot!" continued George, diverting a dreamy eye to where one of Helen's small, strapping driving slippers was vainly pressing at something which she supposed would control the application of the motive power to the wheels.

"Nelly," he suddenly exclaimed, "I love you!" He seized one of her hands and pressed it rapturously. "I can no longer—"

"Mr. Eskridge!" she cried. "Don't you see where we are going?"

"If Crandall wins, I don't care where we go. Ah, Nelly, Nelly, Nelly—"

"Let me go! Are you going stark, staring mad?"

"Then it is Crandall," groaned George, dropping hand and hope apparently together. "Crandall and this infernal auto. I wish he was in it and we were out of it and it was taking him where we seem to be going."

He gazed apathetically at the sea while Miss Hearst, seriously alarmed, watched their progress towards the hissing wavelets crawling up the sands. Right and left the broad beach opened grandly out, with here and there a cottage along the dunes and a distant hotel fronting a long pier outlined against the horizon. There were sundry sail far out at sea; a few bathers and an occasional promenade dotted the sands here and there.

"Why don't you help me?" urged Helen, imploringly.

"What's the use? Call on Crandall."

"If he were here he would help. Something must be wrong."

"Everything is wrong." This gloomily. "If Crandall really were here now—would you—"

"No, I wouldn't. Help me to stop it, please—do!"

The last low sand ridge had been passed and they were gliding over the smooth, hard, wet beach toward the water. Eskridge furiously did something with his foot, unseen by Helen, and the auto stopped.

"Have I really no hope?" he asked, lugubriously, as she sighed in relief. "After all my months of devotion—"

"Months!" Her rosy lips curled incredulously. "Six weeks ago I hardly knew you—oh, George! why don't it turn as well as stop?"

"Perhaps it needs Crandall, being a Crandall machine."

"You're just dreadful to-day!" Helen, indignant, was about to leap out when Eskridge again made a futile move and the auto again started forward like a thing of life.

She was thrown back into his arms and her eyes sparkled angrily; but fear once more became dominant, for the machine sped toward the sea as if determined to drown them both.

"I'm going to jump," she cried, nervously.

"And break your pretty neck? No; let's drown. It's easier."

Eskridge folded his arms as if to await the inevitable. "Crandall will hypnotize another girl, and—"

"I wish he was here to manage this auto."

"I don't. If you won't have me, you shall not have him." The hiss of the incoming tide mingled with his tones. "We will die together."

Miss Hearst shuddered; yet, had she been afoot, clad in her latest love of a bathing gown, she might have enjoyed the liquid swirl that now licked the pneumatic tires. Why she did not boldly leap out she hardly knew. Did fear restrain her—or George?

As the water deepened the mobile moved more slowly, yet it neither stopped nor turned. An incoming wave, curling upward in a greenish, graceful, menacing way, made her breathe quickly and she looked at Eskridge. Ye gods! He was, as seemed to be, preparing to light a cigarette. Was this despair, idiocy or sheer bravado? Handsome he certainly was, though she had hardly considered him so before. Perhaps his indomitable composure at such a crisis forced a sudden admiration upon her and banished the image of Crandall forever.

At any rate, the whitening roarer in front poised itself over the dashboard. Helen uttered a faint shriek and threw her arms around George, scattering his cigarettes.

"Save me!" she implored.

"Then you do love me, even though I don't run an auto?"

"Y-y-es!" The shower bath was descending and she closed her eyes. "Ugh—ow!"

"And you don't care for Crandall?" pursued George, inexorably.

"No—oh! Isn't this horrible?"

"It's blissful, ecstatic. One kiss, dear. Now—open your eyes."

The auto was turning, the wave was receding, and Eskridge, with hand and foot deftly employed, was guiding her back to dry land and safety.

"Why—you do know how?" she screamed, whereat the impudent dog actually grinned; yet she could not again grow angry, try as she might.

George, who seemed better in spite of it all, though they were half-drowned and had doubtless shocked more than one distant onlooker by these proceedings. As they scorched back up the avenue, whom should they see but Crandall himself on his way from the railroad depot. George looked at him inquiringly.

"Don't stop," she whispered. "I know I'm a sight to behold."

"I believe you were expecting him," said Eskridge, as Crandall looked after them dubiously.

She pinched his arm and they laughed like children laugh.

The Maids Were Conspicuous. One of the young women connected with Hull House was recently showing a collection of photographs of classical pictures to a street urchin, and when she came to a copy of the "Sistine Madonna" she asked: "Do you know what that represents?" "Yes," said the boy, "that is Jesus and his mother." "Did you notice," continued the teacher, "how beautiful their faces are? You cannot find such beauty of expression in any other picture." "But it is the rims around their heads, ma'am, that gives them away," interrupted the boy.—Chicago Chronicle.

NO LOSS OF TIME. I have sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for years, and would rather be out of coffee and sugar than it. I sold five bottles of it yesterday to thrashers that could go no farther, and they are at work again this morning.—H. R. Phelps, Plymouth, Oklahoma. As will be seen by the above the thrashers were able to keep on with their work without losing a single day's time. You should keep a bottle of this Remedy in your home. For sale by Fischer Drug Co.

"Pleasant Dreams"

Cries the young maid to her mother, as she retires to rest. The mother smiles, but sighs. She knows that the pains that rack her will not stop for darkness, and that if she sleeps her dreams will only be echoes of the sufferings of the day.

Why not sleep soundly and rise refreshed at morning, with strength and courage for the day's duties?

Weak, nervous women, sufferers from backache, bearing-down pains, and other womanly ailments, have found a perfect cure in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It cures the womanly diseases which cause the pains and nervousness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"I deem it my duty to express my heartfelt gratitude for having been the possessor, under Providence, of restoring me to health," writes Mrs. B. H. Mann, of Springfield, Leon Co., Tex. "For nearly two years I suffered from female weakness so I could not stand on my feet any longer. I had been a sufferer from female weakness for many years, and had been down and out of health for a long time. I had tried many remedies, but none had done me any good. At last I decided to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I had not taken all of two bottles before I was cured. I did not feel a touch of my old complaint. It has been over a year since I took your medicine, and I can truly say that my health has been better for the last year than it had been for four years previously."

"You may publish this as a testimonial."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

LIKE A DROWNING MAN.

"Five years ago a disease the doctors called dyspepsia took such hold of me that I could scarcely go," writes Geo. S. Marsh, well known attorney of No. 300, Tex. "It took quantities of peppin and other medicines but nothing helped me. As a drowning man grabs at a straw I grabbed at Kodol. I felt an improvement at once and after a few bottles am sound and well." Kodol is the only preparation which exactly reproduces the natural digestive juices and consequently is the only one which digests any good food and cures any form of stomach trouble.

NEW MEXICO SOIL.
An Experiment Which Proves That It is Superior to the Soil of California.

R. M. Hardinge, director of the weather bureau station at Santa Fe, received the following account of a comparative experiment in New Mexico soil from A. J. Woodbury, postmaster, of Woodbury in the Cochiti district, Bernalillo county:

"A year ago or more I sent a quantity of soil gathered a stone's throw from this station to my family in Los Angeles. One half of a long box was filled with this soil and the other half with that of the garden which is as good as any in that city; without fertilization. Several varieties of seeds were planted, each receiving the same watering and care. The seeds in the New Mexican soil threw up their shoots from one to three days earlier than the other; some seeds being quicker of action than others; and in the vigor and growth the New Mexican soil was so far in advance that there was no comparison. The soil from here was decomposed lava cliff, of which there are millions of train loads which can never be reached by irrigation.

KITCHEN PLEASURES. MEATS THAT PLEASE.

It's pleasant work. There is nothing difficult or disagreeable in cooking when the material is first class. There is no reason at the present time why you should not have first class material. Pure food is so cheap it scarcely pays to sell inferior stuff. We sell the best groceries and you find it a pleasure to use them.
