Texas Invites 1916 National Democratic Convention to Dallas

Texas Claims That Dallas Is More Accessible Than Denver, Where the Convention Met in 1908, and That Dallas Is Better Able to Handle the Convention Than Kansas City Was.

Untouched Photograph of Dallas Sky Line—No Longer Cowboy Land

HENRY D. LINDSLEY, chairman of the Texas national Democratic convention committee, which proposes to bring the 1916 national Democratic convention to Dallas, has had a varied experience in climbing life's ladder. Beginning as a cashboy in a Dallas department store and being by advancing degrees stenographer, schoolteacher, farmer and banker, he has accumulated a large fortune and has, although still a young man, retired from active business life and is devoting his energies to the study of and participation in municipal development.

Governor James E. Ferguson, or "Farmer Jim," as his intimates call him, held his first public office when elected to the office he now holds. He is a stockman and banker and a strong advocate of labor unions.

Waging a Mighty Battle.
Texas is waging a mighty battle for the convention. The banner Democratic state claims recognition for the southwest. The committee is heralding broadcast the statements that "Texas has elected more Democratic presidential electors than any other state; let the next Democratic nominee be given that honor in Texas." "Texas constantly Democratic" and "Texas majorities are twice as large as other states."

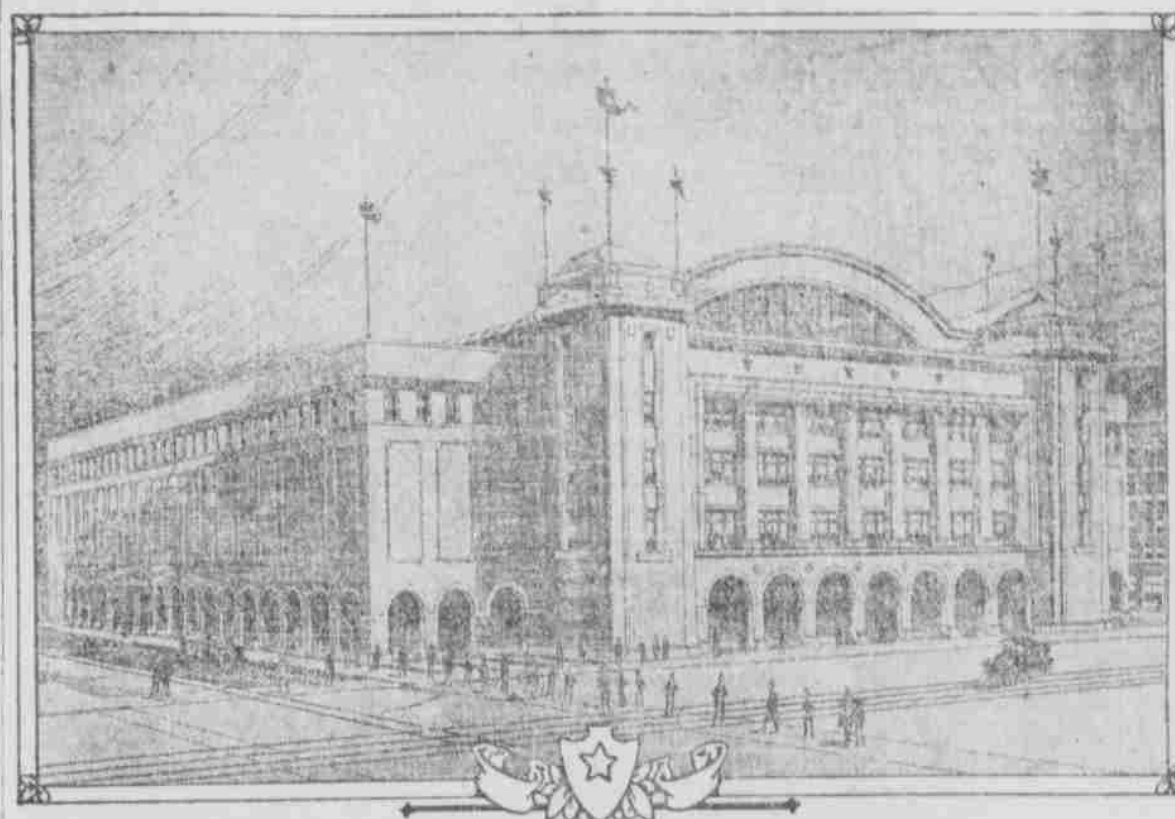

Aside from the claims that Dallas has adequately and satisfactorily accommodated larger conventions, the Texas committee is advancing the fact that Dallas is the fifth city in the country in point of telegraph and telephone facilities and is on the direct main line of travel between the eastern and western coasts. Texas claims that Dallas is more accessible than Denver, where the convention met in 1908, and that Dallas is better able to handle the convention than Kansas City was.

South Solid For Texas.
The national Democratic committee is composed of one man from each state and territory. Twelve of these committeemen declared themselves for Dallas upon receiving that city's invitation, which the Texans regard as a happy beginning. A total of thirty-two have indicated that they will vote for Dallas, according to the Texas committee.

Texas believes that their state is more nearly representative of the entire country than any state in the Union. They claim that the population of their state being homogeneous the Democratic party in meeting in Texas will not only accord recognition to the banner Democratic state and the ever faithful solid south, but will meet in the most truly American section of the United States. In support of this Texas is pointing to the cordial reception which the north, east and west have given the thought of meeting in Dallas. The national committeeman from Massachusetts has stated, "Nothing but good could come from such a meeting in Dallas," and this sums up typical of the comment from other sections. The south is lining up solidly for Texas and seems to consider that when this gathering meets in Texas it will plainly show the rest of the world at war that every remnant of sectional feeling has disappeared in this country.

Weather.
Of course, one of the greatest dif-

BUILDING IN WHICH CONVENTION IS INVITED TO HOLD ITS SESSION

culties of Texas will be to correct the impressions from men of prominence who are in favor of Dallas largely because of the easier circulation which the air gets in Dallas and also the lack of humidity. The Texas committee will have secured a great number of ex-

Texas Says Dallas Has Handled Larger Conventions and Can Easily Satisfy the Democrats

Democratic committee, secured from the United States weather bureau at Washington, which show that the average humidity in Dallas in July is from five to fifteen degrees less than it is in previous convention cities and that the breeze velocity is from two to five miles an hour greater. As the greatest factors affecting summer comfort are humidity and breezes, they expect these weather bureau statistics to correct the more or less general impression that Dallas has unusually warm weather in July. The explanation of the superior bodily comfort probably lies in the steady breeze from the Gulf stream, which averages twelve miles an hour in Dallas during the summer.

Big Conventions Well Cared For.

It is believed by the well informed that Dallas can take care of the Democratic convention. Dallas has a jagged sky line, plenty of hotels and has successfully entertained many large national conventions. The Shriners have met twice in Dallas, and the Texas committee has a certificate signed by all the past imperial potentates of the Shriners, who are from all parts of the country, which states that these men believe Dallas can easily measure up to the occasion. Statistics which the committee has indicate that the last Shriners' convention had as large an attendance as past Democratic national gatherings. A certificate that the Elks were satisfactorily accommodated and were comfortable when their national convention met in Dallas in July, 1908, has been sent to the Dallas delegation by past grand exalted rulers of that order.

Another evidence of Dallas' ability to handle large crowds to which the Texans are pointing is the state fair of Texas, which is located in practically the heart of the city. This fair, which is the largest permanent show place of its kind in the country, each year brings a floating population of 25,000 to 125,000 people in daily attendance at Dallas and explains how that city was able to satisfactorily handle the national meetings of the Elks, the Shriners, the Associated Advertising Clubs of America and other organizations. The coliseum, in which these conventions met, seats 10,000 people and can be enlarged to accommodate 25,000. As a matter of fact, the railroad and the street railway facilities of the Texas city are probably unequalled by a city of its population (120,000) in the country.

"Texas Always Wins."

Slogans which the Texans have adopted are: "The 1916 National Democratic Convention Shall Meet in Texas," "Texas Always Wins" and "Behind Dallas Stands Texas." The Democrats of the country are being told that "if the convention is to be a love feast it should be held in the heart of Democracy," and "if it is to be a family quarrel, as national conventions usually are, let us hold it around the hearthstone of rock ribbed Democracy and not write our platform by the light of an enemy's campfire." The Texas spirit is also seen in the promise made that "The Democrats will receive a more genuine and cordial welcome and more beautiful hospitality when they meet in Texas than they have experienced before in the history of the party."

CONVENTION SONG OF THE TEXANS

From the beginning of time battle songs and battle cries have been a part of political campaigns and political conventions. In the fight which Dallas is making for next year's national gathering of the Democrats the Texans have adopted as their battle song a rollicking tune which has been called, "At the Dallas Democratic Jubilee."

The chorus of the song is shown on this page. The song has aroused a great deal of enthusiasm over Texas and is being sung this fall at the fairs over the state. Very much the same spirited adoption of this song has occurred as witnessed the "taking up" by the Texans of "Come to Texas!" which proved tremendously popular some ten years ago.

SOME EARLY RESULTS OF THE CAMPAIGN TO BRING THE 1916 NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION TO DALLAS.

Chairman William F. McCombs of the national Democratic committee has announced from New York that Dallas is the leading candidate for the convention.

The votes of fifty-three national committeemen decide the location of the convention.

Thirty-two of the fifty-three have indicated that they are inclined toward Dallas.

Twelve have stated that they will vote for Dallas.

One has declared for either Chicago or St. Louis.

There are twenty-eight Democratic governors of the United States.

Fifteen have declared themselves unequivocally for Dallas and are writing to the advisory committee to further the success of Dallas.

Eleven United States senators are on record for Dallas.

Twelve chairmen of state Democratic committees are for Dallas.

Six justices of state supreme courts are for Dallas.

An honorary committee of 1,000 Texans from every section of the state is working for Dallas.

side of Texas in endorsing Dallas for the convention, and this lead is being followed in other cities.

The traveling men and tourists from Texas are registering "Dallas, 1916" in hotels all over the country, thus advertising its ambition by word of mouth.

All past imperial potentates of the Shriners, as individuals, have stated that Dallas can satisfactorily accommodate the convention.

Common sense and United States weather bureau statistics prove that Dallas is vastly more comfortable in July than previous convention cities.

Past and present grand exalted rulers of the Elks, in aiding Dallas candidacy, have sent in a certificate stating that the 1908 national convention of Elks, which met in Dallas in July, was splendidly entertained and that the attendants were comfortable.

The country's big and influential Democratic papers, such as the Baltimore Sun, the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the Washington Star, the Memphis Commercial Appeal and others are declaring for Dallas or commenting favorably.

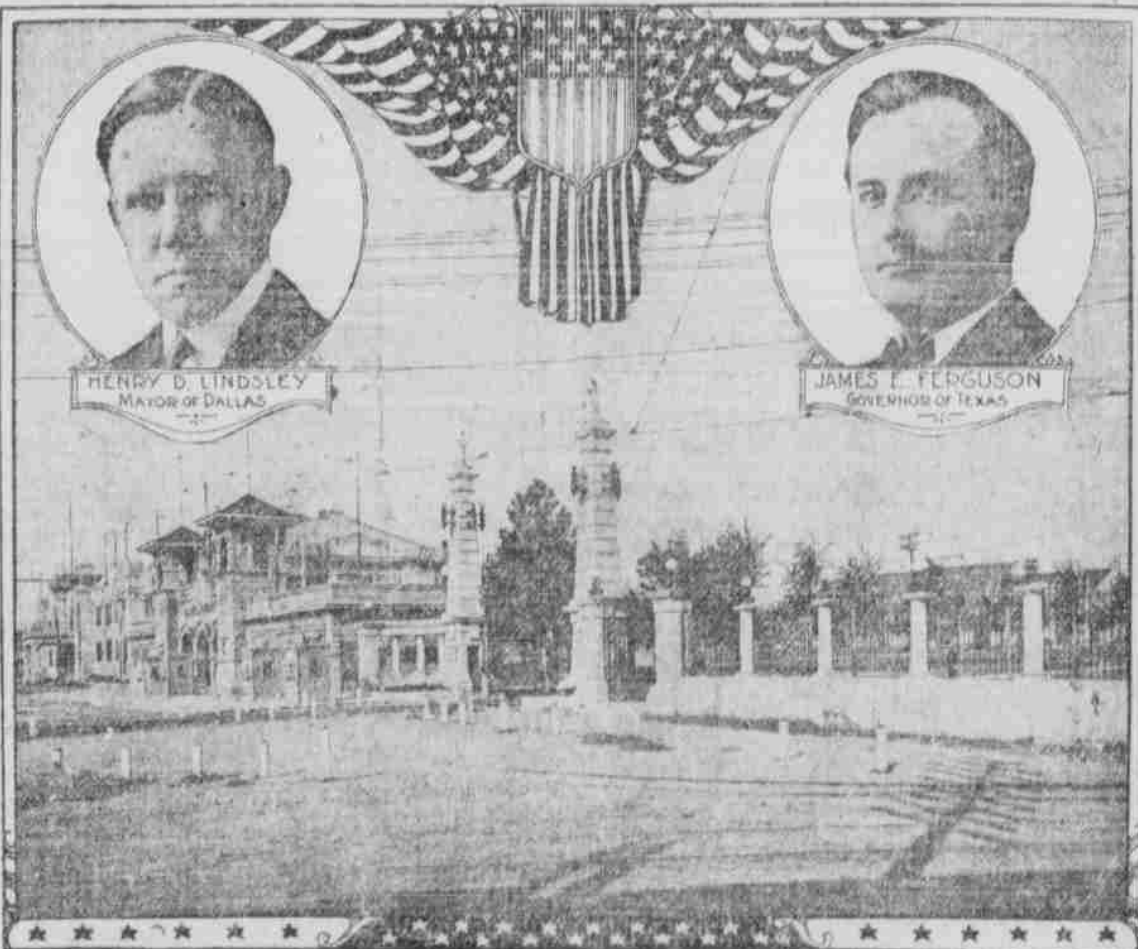

Every editorial comment thus far has been favorable, with one insignificant exception.

The Associated Press has written the Texas committee for information regarding the fight.

Dallas and Texas never have and likely never will receive such widespread and favorable discussion.

In this great undertaking of a national character, unless all signs fail,

DALLAS WINS!

1916 . . Dallas?

DALLAS FIRST IN THE FIELD

Dallas, Tex., was the first city to invite the 1916 national Democratic convention to meet within its confines and is waging a lively fight for that honor. An active organization composed of 150 bankers, business, professional and public men, with Henry D. Lindsley, mayor of Dallas, as chairman, and Governor James E. Ferguson as one of its hardest workers, is carrying on the fight.

Texas loves a scrap, and its senators, congressmen, its commercial organizations totaling 100,000 members, every mayor, every city, town and hamlet, are intensely interested in the success of Dallas and have constituted themselves a determined army in the campaign being waged. This, it may be, to be the biggest state, it is characteristic of Texas people that they usually go whole souled and in a big way into a proposition of this kind or not at all. A committee of 150, which is directing the campaign, is assisted by an honorary committee composed entirely of Texans, the membership of which totals 1,000. Supplementing this fighting force is an advisory committee of 10,000 members from all sections of the country. This latter list includes twelve United States senators, fifteen governors and a great number of national representatives and men of prominence both in private and public life.

The business and public men of Dallas and of Texas have pledged $100,000 as a cash contribution to the funds of the national Democratic committee should the convention meet in Dallas and have pledged a colossal seating of 25,000 people and answering every convention requirement.

Bringing Up Father

REFUGEES LINE WARSAW ROADS AS THE TEUTON ARMY OCCUPIES CITY

When they saw the headlights of a German military auto bearing down on them from the drivers of the wagons would leap from their seats and yank the horses from the middle of the road and sometimes they would have to throw their overcoats or a quilt over the horse's heads because the headlights were so bright. One night I was so lucky as to have our automobile break down just as we were passing a wagon. At one side of the third wagon a woman was walking. Her husband was doing the driving, walked on the other side. Both were pushed to the waist with mud. On top of the wagon were the children, snow faces and wide-eyed and stared in the glare of our lights, and a couple of young girls who kept the children from falling off.

The husband had his hands full in controlling the frantic horse, so he had little to say, but his wife, ready for a good cry, and neither her husband could dampen her buoyancy. She spoke a kind of German that was so uninteresting and so free from complexities that it fitted in very nicely with the kind of German I speak, and I could understand most of her story. Besides, it was the usual story.

Months ago from home and living on the few kopeks a day allowed by the Polish society in Warsaw, and now the news that home was standing and the Russian had been driven so far east and north that it was safe to go back. Yes, the children had been well through it all. There were two of them up there on the wagon, and the other two had been sent to their uncle at Kalisz just before the invasion.

So Plochy as to be Droll. When we asked her whether she had food enough in the wagon she shrugged and bade us consider whether in those days there was ever enough of anything, but she seemed to make the question more a matter of jest than of fact. In fact, throughout her narrative there was no resentment, no rancor, and she seemed to me one of the bravest, best-hearted creatures I had ever met in any country.

She was enjoying herself, too, for by this time some of the other autos had come up and she had men from half a dozen nations standing around her and listening to her story and chaffing with her and laughing at her droll sallies. I suppose you might say that for the first time in her life she was an important person, and I think she liked it. Finally she settled herself on the hub of a wheel, resting on her hips and began to question us. And the burden of all her inquiry was this:

"When will the dear God bring the end of the war?"

"General don't know that, mother," said we.

That was true, she agreed, but at least we might have a notion as to whether the Russians would be coming back and whether this "horrible" fighting would be likely to be over all over again.

We pointed to the far north where the sky at that instant was slowly overcast with the beautiful crimson glow of the fire bombs, and we said we thought not, and that our information was that the Russian lines were breaking at all points.

By this time the storm had abated a little, though the rain and the wind were still slashing in the bushes that grew close up to both sides of the road, and the children on the top of the wagon poked their heads out from the shawl with which the girls had been trying to keep them covered.

"Mothers Much the Same. 'Schokolate, kinder' said I, and broke up the last of the obnoxious chocolate that had served me for ration since breakfast. It wasn't generosity, though, for I was a good deal nearer home than the children were, and certainly surer of finding home standing when I got there.

"To the pretty gentleman!" said the mother and swung herself up on the wheel to pass the chocolate to the children. They stretched themselves for it the way young birds stretch their necks out of a nest when their mother comes with food, and this mother said, "Thank the pretty gentleman," just as I used to thank Uncle Owen long ago. I guess mothers are pretty much the same all over the world, and this poor peasant woman, balancing herself on the wheel and reaching up the chocolate to her children was of the ancient unchanging type.

It was the first time I had ever been called a "pretty gentleman." I gave her the rest of the bits of chocolate for herself, but she passed them on to the children. One of the other fellows came up at that moment and said, "Do the kids want some more chocolate?" The mother said that she kind of liked to offer more and she added with a wistfulness that sent a pang to the heart: "But perhaps the grandfather here has a bit of bread he can spare?" But none of us had any bread.

A little while after that we said

J. J. Hooper has just returned from a business trip to Chicago.

Julius Hamilton, of Denver, was here yesterday on the way to Portland.

J. L. Drexel, of Philadelphia, was a passenger on the southbound California Limited last night.

Thomas Ford, Santa Fe agent at Gallup, arrived here yesterday morning. He will return today.

Mrs. Jack Jones departed yesterday afternoon for Kansas City, St. Louis and Philadelphia for several months' visit.

Barney Gifford, the automobile racer, and his family passed through here yesterday morning on the way to San Francisco on train No. 2.

Special Agent George H. Thomas, of the Santa Fe railway, and Mrs. Thomas left yesterday afternoon for Sedalia, Mo., for two weeks' stay.

Mrs. E. J. Stevens, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. L. D. Johnson, for the last year, left last night for Berkeley, Calif., where she will visit another daughter.

H. C. Burman, of Sedalia, and Miss Burman, H. D. Hark of Las Cruces, who were here on the state car, will leave this morning for Santa Fe to attend the state meeting.

A regular meeting of the fraternal Brotherhood will be held tonight at 10 o'clock at the hall. All members are requested to attend. The program will include a musical number, and Mrs. Brown.

Elmer Beck, who has been here for the state fair, will leave this week for Sedalia. He is attending to a matter that is to come up in the district court there. From Sedalia he will go to the Elgin hotel near St. Louis.

Mrs. C. H. Ellis and Mrs. The Singer both daughters of Judge and Mrs. W. C. Hooper, left yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Ellis is returning to her home in Kansas City and Mrs. Singer to visit in Kansas City and Omaha, Neb.

W. H. Wilson, proprietor of the Los Angeles Fireworks company, who furnished the fireworks display at the state fair, accompanied by his two helpers, Peter Higgins and Joseph Larkin, left last night for Los Angeles, where he will set up some fireworks for the occasion. He is also taking with him some fireworks for the state fair.

BANKERS MOURN
DEATH OF MCKEE
AND FLOURNOYResolutions of Regret and Condolence Passed at Recent Roswell Convention
Are Made Public.

Former President J. R. Hurdman, of the New Mexico Bankers' association, yesterday made public the resolutions of regret and condolence passed at the recent convention in Roswell on the death of Frank McKee and M. W. Flournoy, of the First National bank of Albuquerque. Both sets of resolutions were signed by the special committee appointed by the association to draft resolutions to be presented at the convention, consisting of State Treasurer O. N. Marmon, H. H. Kelly and E. W. Kayer.

The resolutions on the death of Mr. McKee are as follows:

"This association and the members thereof deeply regret the untimely death of Frank McKee, which occurred at Albuquerque, N. M., on the 12th day of April, 1915. He was one of the charter members of the New Mexico Bankers' association and one of its most active and influential members."

"Mr. McKee for a number of years was identified with the First National bank of Albuquerque in various offices and advancing rapidly, was at the time of his death its cashier."

"Mr. McKee took a very active interest in everything that pertained to the good of this association and to the advancement of the banking interests of the state. For several years he was one of the members of the legislative committee of this association and his active, intelligent labor on this committee was a great factor in accomplishing the legislation governing the statute books for the regulation of banking. The banking business and banking fraternity have suffered a great loss."

"It is regretted that the condolence of this association and the members thereof, be fittingly expressed to the family of Mr. McKee."

The resolutions on the death of Mr. Flournoy are as follows:

"With profound regret the members of this association learned of the death of Matthew Wells Flournoy, one of the active members of the New Mexico Bankers' association."

"Mr. Flournoy was engaged in the banking business in New Mexico, since 1881 and at the time of his death, and for many years prior thereto, was the active vice president and managing officer of the First National bank of Albuquerque."

"Mr. Flournoy was a leader among men; a builder and dominant force in everything that pertained to betterment, not only in the community in which he lived, but in the state of New Mexico as well."

"He was an ideal banker; his judgment of men was unerring and when ever credit was deserved, it was granted. He contributed in a large part to the upbuilding of the institution of which he was a part, and his position of commanding influence in the business and financial affairs of the state of New Mexico."

"It is regretted that the condolence of this association and the members thereof be extended to the family of Mr. Flournoy, and also to the officers of the First National bank of Albuquerque, with whom he was associated for a good many years."

OPERA TALK MAN WILL APPEAR IN CITY TUESDAY NIGHT

Havrah Hubbard, who has become known as "The Opera Talk Man" and who comes with the Boston pianist, Wells Weston, for a Hubbard Opera Talk in the Presbyterian church Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, was for many years musical editor of the Chicago Tribune and as such won a place for himself as the most eminent music critic in the west and one of the ablest in the entire country. He is also editor-in-chief of the American History and Encyclopedia of Music—the most valuable work on musical history and art that has been produced since Grove's Dictionary of Musicians appeared. Mr. Hubbard enters, therefore, as one who speaks of that which he knows, and the Opera Talk which he offers are wholly unique in character. They are not a lecture or a lecture recital on music. Not a long encyclopedic dissertation on music and "art" and other high-sounding subjects. They are a complete presentation of grand opera. Mr. Hubbard recites and enacts all of the text of the opera representing all the different characters. Mr. Weston plays the music of all the important parts of the opera upon this piano and Mr. Hubbard recites the words to the musical numbers just as though he was singing them. The result is a complete entertainment—one which everyone can enjoy in the musical or not, and one which is absolutely unique and thoroughly delightful.

'WELCOME' SIGN SHOULD STAY, SAYS JUDGE BURG

Judge John Brown Burg believes that the "Welcome" sign, standing across West Central avenue for the fair, should be kept up. He will speak to the council about it tonight. Denver, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City and many of the smaller cities of California have similar signs, he said.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS.

Funeral of James Millen. The body of James Millen will be in state from noon until 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at 777 Franklin chapel. The body will be shipped tonight to Chicago, Ill., accompanied by the widow, mother and brother.

Harry E. Lightner. Harry E. Lightner, 22 years old, died at his home in the highlands at 11:20 o'clock yesterday morning. He came here two months ago from Kansas City for his health. He was born in Atchison, Kas. His mother, Mrs. Emma L. Lightner, was with him. Strong brothers will ship the body on Santa Fe train No. 2 today. Burial will be in Kansas City.

MORE IN STATE

Railway Magazine for October Lists Appropriations Authorized on Divisions in New Mexico.

The Albuquerque division ranges prominently in the list of appropriations for the Santa Fe railway, as published in the October issue of the Magazine.

These are the items: Bridge No. 112, renewal, $1,100; Bridge No. 212, extension, $1,200; construction of steel water tank at Angel, $1,700; protection work at division, $11,600; grading work in connection with new mechanical facilities at Gallup, $1,600.

On the New Mexico division $2,200 is appropriated for protection work at Bridge No. 625-B, and $11,000 for car wheel lathe for wheel shop at Albuquerque.

On the Texas division $2,200 is appropriated for additional dining room facilities at Vaughn.

On the Rio Grande division $1,600 is given for increased weight of rail at Belen, the total for the state for the month being $103,208. In addition to many articles and pictures on the San Diego expedition and other items of interest to New Mexico, the magazine prints a half-tones cut of "The oldest bridge in use on the Santa Fe track," showing the crude bridge as located in Spanish canyon, New Mexico, and over it for many years the traffic of the southwest passed and repassed. It was built about 1835.
