RED CROSS FOOD IN SERBIA TAKEN BY BULGARIANS

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE)

London, Dec. 21.—In extension of their conduct involving a large quantity of food in the American Red Cross hospital at Monastir, which was being used to feed the civilian population of Monastir, the Bulgarian officers responsible for the alleged outrage say that the step was taken because of their arrival in Monastir.

The correspondent adds that the British of the Red Cross and Mrs. Walter Farwell, wife of an American newspaperman, were refused permission to leave Monastir for Greece after the attack on the hospital, and that the matter has been referred to the American government.

The following statement of Boston, a member of the American Red Cross, which has been working in Serbia, according to the correspondent, confirms the American statement in substance of the attack, which is dated December 8. The Bulgarian military authorities demanded that permission be granted to leave the American Red Cross food to be distributed to civilians, should be given to them and when the American delegation refused, they threatened to move the food facilities, which they afterwards did, thus making the American Red Cross food the building and supplies were set to guard it.

PLAN FOR USING ARMY AS SCHOOL NOW ADVANCED

Fundamental Change in Present Military System Is Suggested by Chicago Man; Gives Details of Scheme.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE)

Chicago, Dec. 20.—A novel plan for making of the United States army one school for the better training of the soldier, and involving a fundamental change in the present military system of the country, has been advanced by E. T. Gundlach, of this city. The details of the plan are as follows:

Let the soldier get his military training exactly as now during the forenoon, then in the afternoon teach him English, arithmetic, science, civics, history, civics, philosophy. Classes can be arranged in all subjects ranging from grammar school requirements to advanced college work, all courses primarily effective.

For class rooms the present barracks now used semi-occasionally for military instruction can be engaged, be quarters collected as our army is increased.

As teachers. The present corps of officers, supplemented preferably by teachers from civil life, would afford sufficient instruction.

Time for Teaching.

The time for instruction might be 1:30 to 4 p. m. As a soldier's duties usually end at 11:30 a. m., these afternoon hours are now usually spent in idleness or pseudo-occupation. When the entire day is required for the soldier's work, such as for parades, maneuvers or marches, classes could be omitted, and, considering the long vacations of a school year, there would still remain more than enough instruction in the course of fifty-two weeks. Hence there need be no interference whatever with the time and thought at present put on the state's part of military training.

At present, trades are being taught to men in the navy. Excellent—a step in the right direction.

Appeals to the Ambitions.

But, after all, the plan means only that the government pays to the man who has learned nothing, "Come and learn something."

The school plan for the army, however, appeals to the man who has learned something, and says, "Come and learn more."

To start the plan on elaborate preparations are required. Assign the army officers as teachers and the school plan is operative.

No appropriation would be absolutely required. A few new seats in the barracks, and new and better blackboards would be advisable. And if a few hundred thousand dollars were set aside for this educational purpose along with the millions for military plans that could then be accomplished.

What the Results Would Be.

The young men in the army, instead of learning the art of being occupied without occupation, will be mentally stimulated; the moral no less than the mental fiber of the better type of private will be strengthened. Thanks, too, to the afternoon studies, the military drill in the forenoon should become keener, sharper, more intelligently conducted by those in charge, more intelligently followed by those in the ranks.

Talents. The worst of all possibilities, that training that a man's time and his mind is his is of no real value, will meet a successful antidote.

Give a man a definite goal, something to work with, to strive for, be a record as a teacher, or a merit mark as a student, and his thoughts will turn upon to the inner merit of things, less to their outward show.

Today, with young officers and privates engaged in only military training, yet without war pending, the outward show, the pomp and circumstance of martial life are made unduly predominant. Adopt the school plan, giving teachers and students a serious goal—and the work in the military branch, on the show part, but the serious purpose of the army, will take a more prominent place in the perspective.

The man will improve as men they will improve directly as soldiers.

Would Insure Enlistments.

Still more important, if the man now enlisted will benefit by the school plan, how will this plan react on the personnel of future enlistments?

Today the recruits, when once secured, are started up for a long time of "boot camp." Why? For their own mental training? Or because it is so difficult to get and to hold men that a sort of long-time sentence is necessary?

The soldier is that the recruiting office in recent years has been in the habit of securing an implied class of recruits, thanks to judicious selection and ruthless elimination. Yet, with here and there an exception, the average recruit is a man who has been shown by the military authorities to be a man who is not a man.

And quite naturally—for what is there about the army today in our prosperous country to attract a shifted, ambitious, eager young man who wants to utilize his formative years?

We talk about now of having an army of 250,000 men. But where are we going to get them in times of peace? What kind of men are we going to get?

Appeal to Young Men.

After the school plan—and you can apply to himself—of thousands of young men in 25 years old working in office and in factories, some hindering for a year or two more of ordinary schooling in English and arithmetic, others wishing they could learn bookkeeping and typewriting, still others with their hearts set on a college education.

tion. Lack of funds keeps these men from their opportunities. It is the heartache, the tragedy of many a young life.

Now offer these men their minds and bodies and clothing free and a little money for home-bodies, together with an opportunity of learning in six or seven years what otherwise they might acquire in four—and see how this will appeal! If we offer any kind of a substitute for high school or college, even the poorest substitute, it will be welcomed by many, and if the school plan is earnestly worked out, if good results are shown, the recruiting office will be besieged with applicants, applicants who would be glad to enlist from year to year, each year voluntarily.

And these new recruits will be of the better type of young American—the ambitious men, the self-disciplined men, the men with the foresight and character to sacrifice their present comforts for a future reward.

Would Improve Personnel.

Even in a directly military way the personnel of the army may be improved. The recruiting office will see that the physical requirements of the applicants are as heretofore. And remember that in all our wars the colleges and academies have furnished soldiers far beyond their proportion. Students have always proven especially eager to join the colors when war actually came, but have been very slow to enlist on the mere prospect that some day they may be needed.

Fighting is a moral quality rather than a physical quality; the type of man who fights when he has to, and only then, is the moral type. This type is found especially among eager, serious-minded men, be they college students or grammar school graduates.

The American recruit today is chosen for unflinching bravery. But the school plan would give us a still better soldier, more intelligent, more earnest, and, veritable no less brave.

Aid to Civil Life.

Conversely, while the school plan will not injure military standards, the civil education can be much more nearly complete than might appear at first thought. We cannot claim that the school course in the army would be as fully rounded out as in a high school or a college. Yet, if the plan is seriously and earnestly carried out, the ambitious, earnest student will, indeed, get a real education.

For the number of hours of military work at present required of an enlisted man in the United States army will be little more than the hours spent today on outside work by many a young man who is paying his way through college. And the military work will do him far more good than working on a farm or working in the fields of a factory.

Getting an education does not consist in the number of hours a student pores over his books. Education is a growth, brought out by a stimulus of the mind. The quantity of the education is incidental. Let a boy have classes from 1:30 to 4 o'clock, and he will get more than half the number of hours of regular high school classes. The hours of study for my mind are necessarily limited, for the mind fatigues and the number of hours any man can diligently apply himself daily to hard thinking barely exceeds the number of free hours a soldier now has.

Doesn't Force Drill.

This school plan is the antithesis of all schemes to introduce military instruction into our public schools. It does not force military life upon a single boy in the nation. Rather, it says:

"Prepare yourself for war, if you are willing, and we the government, will prepare you for civil life."

At the same time this school plan does not conflict with plans for summer camps, nor with any other plans that limit enlistments to volunteers.

The school plan conflicts with nothing that we have now—nothing except the one idea of having men study that they may be used to fight.

The plan is American in its ideals. While we are building up a machine of the best class of soldiers, we shall not men who have in their minds the idea of fighting only in case of need.

The real object before the new type of soldier will be education for civil life—the type of soldier which I hope every American wants, a soldier ready to fight, glad to fight if war comes, but by preference a civilian.

How different must be the thoughts of a man who enters the army in such a spirit as against the ideal of one who takes up "soldiering" either because he does not know what else to do with his time or because he expects a salary for his efforts that he will find an outlet for his activities in actual war.

Everybody Could Win.

The American military school would come the school plan for he must know that in this country we will never have a large standing army. We will never have militarism—at least, let us hope, never—and certainly not for many years. Any plans for a vast army, for huge machinery of national military instruction, must fall flat, or amount of the opposition. So the most the military can hope for is a small army, perhaps 250,000 men. The military knows that this is not sufficient. He dreams the thought of the millions that can swarm over this country against whom 250,000 trained men are as nothing.

But let us have the right quality within the army, men of superior intelligence, men of superior mental and moral fiber, men who have entered the army because they had a definite, serious purpose in life, men who have shown by entering the army that they are willing to sacrifice the present for the future—give us this type of trained soldier and we shall have the skeleton of the most remarkable army ever seen in the world's history.

These young men, after a year or two of military training, would be incomparably better prepared to become officers than the recruits from Plattsburg and Fort Sheridan. We recruit would be the private—serving under the right kind of officers, instead of attempting to take commands ourselves.

The only possible reason for considering men for commissions, who have had only a month or two in such camps as Plattsburg is because we recognize that the average private to day, even after all his training, is not fit for the commander's position.

SCHMIDT MEANT TO KILL OTIS, DETECTIVE SAYS

First Testimony Is Introduced to Show Conspirators, Who Blew Up Times Building, Sought Human Life.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE)

Los Angeles, Dec. 20.—That Matthew A. Schmidt, charged with murder as a result of the Los Angeles Times explosion, October 4, 1915, admitted at a hearing that he and his alleged conspirators intended to kill Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, owner of the Times, was the testimony today of Donald Voss Meeserve, a detective. The witness said he made friends with Schmidt in New York City and invited his confidence after he had been employed by a detective agency to hunt him down.

This was the first direct testimony tending to show that the plotters premeditated the taking of human life, as well as the destruction of property where they were alleged to have purchased 200 pounds of dynamite at Giant, Calif., a few days before the Times building was destroyed.

Wanted to Kill Otis.

"He said they intended to kill Otis and get him out of the way," said Meeserve in testimony to a conspiracy he declared he had with Schmidt in New York City, January 23, 1914, about the Times explosion.

Meeserve has been kept in seclusion by the prosecution near Los Angeles for several months.

Testimony of Meeserve.

William J. Burns is expected to be in Los Angeles tomorrow to testify as to the search that was made for Schmidt throughout the country.

Meeserve in Court.

"Schmidt told me of the Times job on the night of September 25, 1914. I was introduced to him that night. He was known as Joe Hoffman. A man named Carlin and I and Schmidt sat together on a couch and we talked about a time running about the country to keep away from the police. He had to get a new plan every four or five days would be recognized, and he changed his laundry mark. He said he had intended to go to London but the war prevented."

"What was said about the Los Angeles Times?" Meeserve was asked.

"Schmidt said he was sorry that he had anybody working with him on that job," the witness replied. "He said that if he had done the job alone he would have been all right. He said there were about four hundred in San Francisco who knew about it before it happened and that Johannesen got scared and called a meeting of hundreds to talk it over."

Men Mentioned by Schmidt.

"Who did Schmidt say was there?" He mentioned Treutman, referring to him as the old man, Johannesen, E. B. Morton and others. Schmidt said Johannesen told him he ought to call the job off but that he said he would let the job go whether Johannesen liked it or not."

Detailing his intercourse with Schmidt, Meeserve indicated that he saw the confidence of his quarry by telling that Carlin at Home Colony was eager to hear from him.

Schmidt's arrest, the witness asserted, prevented the alleged dynamite conspirator from going to work on the Pacific estate of John D. Rockefeller at Tarrytown, N. Y.

Was Going to Potomac.

"Schmidt told me on January 23, 1914," said the witness, "that he had been experimenting with a new explosive on a Connecticut farm and that he had obtained a position on the Rockefeller estate."

Referring to the Times explosion, Meeserve declared Schmidt told him that the destruction of the Times building had done little good since Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, the owner, had escaped.

"Schmidt said the only good thing about it," Meeserve added, "was the killing of twenty men. He said it would be a good thing if more like them were put out of the way."

Lloyd-George Declares War Can Be Ended Successfully if Handicaps on Munition Plants Are Removed.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE)

London, Dec. 20 (5:35 p. m.).—David Lloyd-George, minister of munitions, gave an account of his stewardship in the house of commons tonight. Beginning with the off-repeated story of the insufficiency of munitions in the early days of the war and the history of the establishment of his department to remedy this situation, the minister gradually warmed to his subject and reached the climax with the declaration that the success of the allies in the war depends on the attitude of organized labor—whether it will allow the government to recruit a sufficient number of skilled men for the factories which the munitions department has brought into being.

Depends Upon Labor.

"We want 50,000 skilled men and from two to three hundred thousand unskilled men for these new factories," he said. "We must reduce the proportion of our orders which go abroad and develop our home resources. Upon the supply of labor depends, I think, our success in this war. Upon this depends whether we can reduce the cost of the war by scores of millions of pounds. Upon this depends whether we can supply our troops with the right sort of guns and enable them to make next year's campaign a success."

"Here only organized labor can help us. We have done our best to get skilled labor by the system of munitions volunteers. There is no use of my going into the question of why we get only five or six thousand men, although that story may have to be told later."

Now Up to Unions.

"The whole question depends on organized labor. Unless it allows us to put unskilled workers on the work which hitherto has been the monopoly of skilled labor, we cannot perform this task. There can be only one appeal, namely, to patriotism. Victory depends on this. Hundreds of thousands of precious lives depend upon labor."

"It is a question whether we are going to bring the war to an end in a year or longer along in the blood-stained path. Labor has the answer."

Earlier in the speech Mr. Lloyd-George admitted there was a bad shortage in the British munitions supply in the first year of the war, but declared that the present situation was quite different.

Last May the British were turning out only 2,500 high explosive shells daily, against the Germans' output of a million.

What September Showed.

"There is the situation now," he said. "The quantity of shells fired in the recent September operations was enormous. The battle lasted days, even weeks, yet there was no shortage of shells. This was the result of four months' careful husbanding. Yet we replaced the whole amount in a month and hope soon to be in a position to replace a like quantity in a week."

"There have been other developments of our work, which I dare not mention. There have been valuable experimental work of a kind better

"As to economy, I may cite an example new contracts for gun ammunition, which is the principal item of expenditure. The cost of sixteen-pound shells has been reduced 40 per cent and of 4.5-inch howitzer shells, 30 per cent."

Shortage Prevented Victory.

"It is too early to talk of the danger of overproduction. In the last great battle, although there was a tremendous accumulation of ammunition, the general staffs with their three times the quantity of ammunition they would have achieved twenty times the result. Two hundred million pounds, or the cost of only forty days of war, could produce an enormous quantity of munitions. If we had that quantity at the right moment the war might be won in forty days; whereas, without it the war might be prolonged perhaps 400 days."

"With regard to munitions, what is spared in money is spilled in blood. If there are risks to be taken, let them be risks to the pockets of the taxpayers and not to the lives of men."

What Labor Demands.

James Henry Thomas, labor member for Derby and assistant general secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, speaking for the labor party after Mr. Lloyd-George had concluded, said that organized labor would be found willing to follow wherever the minister of munitions led, if their rights were properly guarded.

MEXICO CLAIMS ATTENTION FROM STOCK EXCHANGE

Shares of Companies Operating in Southern Republic Prominent Feature in Trading of the Day.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE.)
New York, Dec. 20.—Interest in today's market was transferred from European affairs to Mexican shares of companies operating in that country, notably American Smelting and Mexican Petroleum being the most prominent features. Smelting rose 3 1/2 points to 104 1/2, and Mexican Petroleum 2 1/2 to 99 1/2.

Incidentally another advance in oil prices by the leading producers accounted for the strength of the oil stocks. Texas Company rising 6 1/2 to 237 with an extensive demand for California Petroleum, common and preferred, as well as kindred issues on the "barb".

Other metal shares followed Smelting's lead in smaller degree and war stocks like Studebaker, Baldwin Locomotive, American Locomotive, Crucible Steel, New York Air Brake, and American Can were intermittently higher by one to three points.

The feature of the bond market which was otherwise rather irregular was the demand for Anglo-French 5's at quotations ranging between 24 1/2 and 25. Total sales of bonds, per value, aggregated $4,240,000.

United States bonds were unchanged on call.

CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—Wheat today mounted to the highest price so far on the 1915 crop. An immense export trade was in progress and the market closed strong, 1 1/2 to 3 1/2 net higher, with December at $1.21 and May at $1.22 1/2. Corn finished unchanged to 1/4 higher, with up to 1/4 to 3/4, and provisions varying from 1/2 to 1/4 decline to a rise of 1/4.

Estimates of the export sales of wheat today made the total as much as 1,750,000 bushels. Stocks were said to be decreasing to a serious extent at Liverpool, and prospects were less favorable for an early movement from Australia.

Assertions that a sharp falling off in receipts from the Dakotas and Minnesota might be looked for tended also to give confidence to the bulls. Corn was upheld by the strength of wheat. Otherwise, the market was inclined to sag, owing to the cold weather and to the outlook for more liberal receipts.

Data swayed with corn. Firmness showed itself in most of the provision options. A moderate amount of investment buying appeared to be the chief cause. Offerings were light.

CHIEF KLEIN TO HAVE HEARING ON MAYOR'S CHARGES

Council Disapproves Executive's Action and Votes for Trial; Boatright Doesn't Object to Probe.

The council last night voted to give Chief Klein the right of trial on charges made against him by Mayor Boatright. Before the vote was taken Mr. Boatright, answering a question put by one of the aldermen, said he had no objection to the hearing but insisted that the investigation be thorough-going. The motion providing for the trial, specifically states that the council disapproves of the action of the mayor.

Mr. Boatright's communication, officially informing the council that he had removed Chief Klein and appointed Chief A. C. Hartman, brought the matter up. When City Clerk Tom Hughes finished reading the mayor's statement, Alderman George D. Hammond was first to speak.

No second to Hammond.

Mr. Hammond made a motion that the action of the mayor be approved. Mr. Hammond is chairman of the finance committee, which at the last meeting after two hearings, recommended only that Driver W. J. Reed be dismissed. Silence followed Mr. Hammond's motion. There was no second.

De. L. H. Hest, first stating that he was not influenced by any personal interest either as Chief Klein or Chief Hartman, asked the city clerk to read two sections of the city ordinance. One was section 224. It is:

"The chief of the fire department shall be appointed by the mayor by and with the advice and consent of the city council, and shall hold his office for two years, or until his successor is duly appointed and qualified, unless suspended or removed by action of the mayor and city council."

Section No. 635 is read.

The other section that Dr. Hest wanted read is No. 625. It follows:

"Whenever any officer of the city may be charged with a violation of the duties of his office, it shall be in the power of the mayor of said city to immediately suspend said officer until his trial upon such charge, of which trial two days' notice shall be given to said officer by serving him with a copy of said charge, with notice of the time and place of trial; provided, also, that when a police officer is charged by the mayor of said city, said marshal may immediately suspend him, and like proceeds may be had as in other cases herein."

Dr. Hest, saying that he had no error to make, stated his belief that Chief Klein, or any other man was entitled to a fair trial. It seemed to him, he said, without the mayor's authority to remove an officer. He characterized it as "arbitrary and despotic."

Time of Hearing Set.

Dr. Hest made the motion, disapproving the action of the executive and providing for a hearing for Chief Klein.

Then the question arising as to whether he had the right to remove Chief Klein, Mr. Boatright pointed out that Chief Klein had not been appointed by the mayor but had been appointed by the council.

He was asked by Dr. Hest whether he would object to giving Chief Klein a trial and he said that he would not. He stated, however, that it must be a thorough investigation. It was to be a complete investigation, stated in the motion. Dr. Hest and Alderman George C. Scherer, who seconded the motion, consented to the insertion.

The time for the hearing was set. It is to follow the next regular meeting, the night of January 3.

Alderman Frank Grunfeld, asked whether the communication to the council contained the charges upon which Chief Klein was to be heard. Those and any other charges that may be brought, said the mayor.

Mr. Scherer asked the mayor whether he considered Chief Klein was notified by the executive communication. The mayor did not.

Mr. Grunfeld asked City Attorney Thomas Wilkerson whether the mayor had the right to remove the fire chief. Mr. Wilkerson believed he had, but that the action was subject to the approval of the council.

Just before the vote upon Dr. Hest's motion was taken Mr. Hammond said in an inquiring tone that he understood Mr. Boatright to say that he was in favor of it. The mayor said he did not object to an investigation. The seven councilmen present voted "aye." Alderman Olson was absent.

Toward the end of the session Alderman J. A. Skinner asked for an expression of opinion upon changing the mayor's salary ordinance. He suggested raising the mayor $5 a meeting night, just as the councilmen are to be paid at the opening of the next administration. He said this was not intended as a slap at the mayor. The council adjourned without going on record.

RUSH AT POSTOFFICE
BREAKS ALL RECORDS

All records have been broken by the Christmas rush at the Albuquerque postoffice this year. More letters and packages have been sent and received than at any corresponding period in the history of the local office, and the holiday season has only just begun.

Postmaster is about the busiest man in Albuquerque this week. He has taken it upon himself to see that the patrons of the office, especially the ladies, receive every attention possible. Books and tables have been placed out in the lobby to enable those desiring to mail Christmas packages to address them at the office, and Mr. Ruddy himself is to be found at all times in the lobby ready to give aid in his power to those who need it. The extraordinary business of the office is being handled without extra help, and the smoothness with which the rush is being disposed of is due primarily to the personal efforts of the postmaster.

'WATCH YOUR STEP'
NEXT OFFERING OF
LEE COMEDY COMPANY

"Watch Your Step" is the name of the skit that will be presented today by the James P. Lee Musical Comedy company at the Crystal theater, and the company has to do some stepping in the course of a most amusing comedy act. The local funny scene will be enacted with Jimmy Lee, Frank Yack and Tommy Burns, while Bart Landley, who has shown that he possesses one of the best legs ever heard of in Albuquerque, will be heard in a number of his best selections. Madeline Lee and Miss Ellis, two of the prettiest and most graceful women ever seen on the stage in this city, will have a program of unusual excellence. A Spanish dance by Miss Lee will be a distinct feature of the program.

"Watch Your Step" will be presented tonight and tomorrow night only. With every chance of a bill to the company there is also a complete change of wardrobe and scenic effects.

RUSH AT POSTOFFICE
BREAKS ALL RECORDS

All records have been broken by the Christmas rush at the Albuquerque postoffice this year. More letters and packages have been sent and received than at any corresponding period in the history of the local office, and the holiday season has only just begun.

Postmaster is about the busiest man in Albuquerque this week. He has taken it upon himself to see that the patrons of the office, especially the ladies, receive every attention possible. Books and tables have been placed out in the lobby to enable those desiring to mail Christmas packages to address them at the office, and Mr. Ruddy himself is to be found at all times in the lobby ready to give aid in his power to those who need it. The extraordinary business of the office is being handled without extra help, and the smoothness with which the rush is being disposed of is due primarily to the personal efforts of the postmaster.

FREE AUTO RIDE FOR KIDS ON CHRISTMAS

The Service garage, located at 215 West Silver avenue, has decided to give a children's auto ride on Christmas day. Every person in Albuquerque owning an auto is requested to help out in giving the children a joy ride. The parade will start at noon after 2 o'clock from the garage as the children can be loaded.

This ride is largely for those whose parents have no auto and those wishing to go are requested to phone 329, stating how many will attend. The destination has not been decided but probably a run to the San Diego or Isleta will be the limit.
