NEXT PRESIDENT!

McKinley Nominated by Acclamation.

Theodore Roosevelt for Vice President.

Senator Foraker Presents Name of McKinley Amid Cheers.

SURE WINNERS IN NOVEMBER.

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 21.—Long before 10 o'clock, the hour set for the re-assembling of the convention, the hall was surrounded by an immense army of people clamoring for admission. When the doors were opened they surged in like a flood. The heat gave promise of being oppressive. The Kansas delegation, headed by Colonel Burton, with bright silk sunflowers pinned on their lapels, aroused the first enthusiasm as they marched down the main aisle, bearing a white banner inscribed "Kansas is for Roosevelt." The almost good nature was manifested. The contest was over. It was to be a love feast and jubilee and not a contest, which the day was to witness. Governor Roosevelt entered at 10 o'clock and the audience set up a cheer. Roosevelt was surrounded by delegates and showered with congratulations. All the states were represented in the welcome with Kansas to the indomitable Roosevelt. Another outburst greeted the entrance of Senator Hanna. His progress was impeded as he was surrounded by delegates who insisted upon shaking his hand. He pushed through the throng and greeted Rough Rider Roosevelt warmly. With his hand upon Roosevelt's shoulder he whispered in his ear. For two minutes they remained thus in close communication.

Henry Cabot Lodge, permanent chairman, reached the main hall at 10:15 and there was an interesting conference of the leaders in full view of the vast audience.

At 10:20 a. m. a band from Canton, Ohio, the president's home, entered the hall and broke out with pealing strains of the national anthem.

The audience rose and stood until it was concluded. The band then retired and here on the day of the nomination of McKinley at the president's own request. He regarded the band as his "muscle."

Through the pit a squad of men were distributing great strands of red, white and blue pampas plumes which later were to cut a big figure in the demonstration.

Among the early arrivals was Mrs. Roosevelt. She was the cynosure of thousands of eyes.

At 10:25 Chairman Lodge with three rays of the gavel stilled the tumult, while the band played the national anthem. As the anthem closed, the chairman announced the opening invocation by Archbishop Ryan. The distinguished prelate wore the superb purple robe of his high station. He paused until the assemblage had risen and bowed their heads in prayer, filled with the sentiment of the deep responsibility resting upon the party here assembled.

The chair laid the amendment of the rules offered yesterday by Mr. Quay as unfinished business before the convention. As the cheers died away, Quay announced the withdrawal of the amendment proposing a change of rules one and twelve, referring to representation in the national convention. It was accepted by the southern delegates as a concession to them and they cheered wildly.

A thrill went through the vast audience as Lodge announced: "Under the rules nominations for the office of president of the United States are now in order." There was a momentary hush which the chairman punctured.

"The state of Alabama is recognized." A swarthy brawny man stood on his chair and answered: "Alabama yields to Ohio."

This was the signal for the recognition of Senator Foraker to make a speech commending McKinley as the republican candidate for president. Amidst a tumult of applause Foraker went to the platform, and when quiet was restored he began to speak. As he continued he was repeatedly interrupted with cheers. His announcement that the nomination of McKinley was equal to his election in November brought vociferous cheers. "In war and in peace," said the speaker, "the delegates and spectators echoed the refrain of the sentiment expressed, 'he has been found equal to all extraordinary requirements. In all American history there has been no man more brilliant than that written by the United States with him as its chief.'"

During the reference to the great leader of the party and the successful statesman, the delegates and spectators' responsibilities now being carried forward by him, the applause was frequent and long continued. But it remained for his closing sentence, for the first time, McKinley by name as the nominee, to electrify the great multitude. Pandemonium broke loose. Former tempera of enthusiasm died before this cyclone of sound and movement. Everybody stood, waved flags and yelled. State standards were wrenched from their places and borne aloft with umbrellas, great plumes of red, white and blue—a perfect tempestuous sea of color.

A senator Hanna sprang to the front of the stage, a flag in one hand and a plume in the other, and led the throng in a shout of approval. After it had lasted five minutes the delegates marched in solid ranks upon the platform with standards and plumes, banners and flags.

When the demonstration had continued seven minutes the Ohio delegates, who centered the wave of sound, moved up the aisle, while all the other state delegations, bearing aloft their standards, followed in a grand procession about the hall. The demonstration lasted just ten minutes. The Indiana delegation started the rush to the platform. Governor Mount bearing the state standard, leading the delegation down the aisle. The plume demonstration was followed by singing "John Brown's Body."

When the speaker finished, Roosevelt rose with the rest, but stood silent with both hands in his pockets. But when Foraker came down the aisle he grasped him by the hand and slapped him on the shoulder, laughing and shouting: "It was exactly fifteen minutes when order was restored and Lodge announced: 'The chair recognizes Governor Roosevelt, of New York.' Again the magic of the name sent the multitude into convulsions of enthusiasm. Roosevelt strode up to the platform. He made no acknowledgments. Like a hero receiving his due, he calmly awaited the subsidence of the tumult. At last he raised his hand and the demonstration came to an end.

He wore a black cutaway coat, dark striped trousers, turn down collar and blue necktie. At 10:35 Roosevelt, who had been on the platform a man with a camera planted an instrument directly in front of him. As Roosevelt saw it he said sharply: "Take that away; take it away!" A sergeant-at-arms rushed the man and his apparatus out of the aisle. Then Governor Roosevelt began his speech, speaking in a clear, full voice.

His sentences were delivered in a manner that denoted careful study of each word. His argumentative style kept the audience enraptured with him, for he was given the closest attention by the vast audience, in fact very much more attention than had any other speaker.

"We have done so well that our opponents are using it as an argument for turning us out," he said, smiling and showing his teeth. The audience responded with cheers and laughter. His allusions to the war trust called forth the heartiest applause, with cries from the galleries: "Hit 'em again!" "That's right, Teddy!" "I pity the democratic orator of New York who mentions trusts," he declared with uplifted hands, and the audience howled with laughter and shook the floor with applause.

"I pity the democratic orator of New York who mentions trusts," he declared with uplifted hands, and the audience howled with laughter and shook the floor with applause.

"The insurrection in the Philippines goes on because the insurrectionary forces of the Tagalog in distant Luzon," he continued, "have given the insurrectionist their moral, if not physical support." When he declared with brilliant emphasis that the success of the republican party in November meant peace in the Philippines, while the success of the opposition meant a prolongation of the struggle, the delegates and spectators rose almost as one man and cheered. After recounting the achievements in foreign lands and presenting in a sentence the claim of this country upon the archipelago, Governor Roosevelt demanded amid thunderous applause: "Is America breaking that she would shrink from the work of a great world power? The giant of the west, like a gladiator of old, looks into the future with hope, with expectancy, which the love of all its institutions have made dear to us." (Tremendous applause.)

In conclusion Roosevelt declared that the republican party and the American people challenge the future and were eager for the labor laid out for them, as if by Providence.

The closing words of Governor Roosevelt brought another demonstration, and for a minute it seemed that the convention would go mad and then and there make two nominations instead of one. Plumes went up and standards again left their sockets to be waved on high. As the governor left the platform he waved a salutation to the moving throng and one in particular toward the radiant face of his wife, sitting just outside the area of delegates.

John W. Yerkes, of Kentucky, seconded the nomination on behalf of the south. He asserted that no convention ever had been so unanimous for man as this for McKinley. His state was the only one to have elected him, he said, and the audience cheered.

Disregarding calls for a vote, Lodge recognized George Knight, head of the California delegation. His humorous pungent arraignment of the democratic party for its attitude upon the national questions provoked frequent laughter.

Next, Governor Mount, of Indiana, seconded the nomination of McKinley in a glowing eulogium of the man-soldier-president. As he closed, the chair announced that the roll of the states would be called for a vote on the nomination of president.

At 12:17 the vote began. There was no unusual demonstration among the delegates until New York's vote was announced by Chairman Odell. This brought out a round of applause. When Pennsylvania's vote was announced by Senator Quay, many delegations cheered. Some of the states were not content with casting their votes for McKinley, but the chairman announced the vote the candidate would receive in November. When Hawaii was called the delegates cheered the announcement of its vote for McKinley. The secretary hurriedly made a summary and handed it to the chairman. Senator Lodge, advancing to the front of the stage, said: The total vote cast is 930. William McKinley received 809 votes. It is a unanimous vote and the chairman announced William McKinley your candidate for president for the term beginning March 4, 1901.

Pandemonium broke loose in one swelling cheer of enthusiasm as the chairman, Colonel Dick, was elected temporary secretary. Chairman Hanna was authorized to select from the members of the national committee an executive campaign committee. The committee then adjourned subject to the call of the chairman. Headquarters of the national committee will be established in Chicago and New York.

Chairman Lodge then recognized Col. Lafe Young, editor of the Des Moines Iowa, Capital, who withdrew Dilliver as a candidate for vice president and nominated Roosevelt.

Colonel Young was in Cuba at the time Roosevelt led the gallant "Rough Riders" up San Juan hill and his reference to the governor's campaign was eloquent and convincing. The demonstration which followed this announcement by Colonel Young of Governor Roosevelt as the candidate of the young men of the country, who represented their desire and ambitions, embodied in their patriotism and Americanism, was not second to that accorded the president's name. The vast assemblage sprang to their feet. State emblems, pampas plumes, handkerchiefs and hats fairly filled the air. The band played "There will be a Hot Time in Old Town to-night," and the delegates began marching around the hall. Ringing past Governor Roosevelt, extending him congratulations. A woman in the Utah delegation presented him with a bunch of roses, for which Roosevelt returned a profound bow. Several Kansas delegates threw their beautiful silk sunflowers and badges at Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt looked down from her position of vantage in a side gallery, pale but happy. The demonstration continued six minutes and forty seconds, during which Roosevelt received the congratulations of friends, looking the while like a bronze statue.

Butler Murray, of Massachusetts, made a speech seconding the nomination. His vigorous sentences elicited another demonstration for the Rough Rider candidate.

After the speech of Murray, General James M. Ashton, of Washington, also seconded the nomination.

"Depew, Depew!" demanded the delegates, and the New York senator emerged from the delegation, Governor Roosevelt himself taking him by the arm and urging him forward to the platform. He paid a magnificent impromptu tribute to the hero of the hour. He was in good humor as well as good voice, and his laugh of joy in referring to "Teddy" and the "get there" qualities of the young American, brought out a storm of mingled laughter and applause. He pictured "Teddy" as a child, the glorious record of the party. His sarcastic references to the Kansas City convention and the George Washington Aguirre brought round after round of applause. He spoke of the "trust" orators, sure to be heard from the Bryan cohorts at Kansas City and declared that when the hurrahs for the trust orators died away, many hard-fought fields, as a statesman in the halls of congress, had broken through the force of the trust ingredients within them.

Depew told a story, a new one, he said, which had its moral. The fact that Bryan had been "body snatching," reviving the corpse of free silver.

Turning from the humorous to the serious themes the orator recounted the glories of the administration already achieved, and the glorious union of two such incomparable leaders as McKinley and Roosevelt.

His closing period, declaring that the choice of Roosevelt was the unanimous, touched off a whirl of enthusiasm. "Roosevelt!" "Teddy!" "Roosevelt!" came from all quarters of the hall. The governor sat unmoved, fanning himself desperately, shaking his head. It took some minutes to restore order. During the roll call the delegates and spectators, realizing that the convention's action would be unanimous, chanted and laughed until the noise was like the roar of the sea on a rocky coast.

Chairman Lodge announced that Roosevelt had received 925 votes, one delegate not voting. This was Governor Roosevelt himself. The announcement evoked applause that fairly shook the building to its foundations. Roosevelt was surrounded by delegates showering congratulations upon him.

On motion of Colonel Dick, Senator Lodge was placed at the head of the committee to notify the president of the secretary hurriedly made a summary and handed it to the chairman. Senator Lodge, advancing to the front of the stage, said: The total vote cast is 930. William McKinley received 809 votes. It is a unanimous vote and the chairman announced William McKinley your candidate for president for the term beginning March 4, 1901.

CHINESE TROUBLE

Serious Situation May Cause War.

Japan is Arming Troops for Active Work.

Many Armed Boers Surrender to Gen. Buller's Forces.

SENATOR PLATT'S BROKEN RIB.

Philadelphia, June 21.—In the opinion of Senator Davis, chairman of the senate committee on foreign affairs, the situation in China is even more grave than the published dispatches would indicate, and may develop into an international problem such as the powers have not had to deal with in many years.

Japan Evicted.
Yokohama, June 21.—Reports of the murder of foreign ministers at Peking and of the death of Admiral Seymour, although viewed with suspicion, created a profound sensation. The press expressed the opinion that Japan must, with or without the consent of the powers, adopt active measures. Naval and military officers were very busy.

Boers Surrendered.
Vooruit, June 21.—General Buller has arrived at Sandispruit station and camped two miles further on the west end of the railroad. Many Boers met General Buller on the road and surrendered their arms and horses.

No News of Seymour.
Shanghai, June 21.—The British destroyer Whiting, at Che Foo, reports nothing heard from Admiral Seymour's force the past six days. The French consul wires that the British mission at Yang Chow has been looted and the missionaries conveyed to an unknown place by the Chinese general.

Platt's Broken Rib.
New York, June 21.—Senator Platt is still sick owing to his broken rib, but his condition is not alarming.

WAR IN CHINA.
Proclamation issued by the Allied Forces to the Chinese.

London, June 21.—The admiralty has received the following dispatch from Rear Admiral Bruce:

"Taku, via Che Foo, June 21.—No communication from the commander-in-chief in seven days, or from Tien Tsin in five days. The allies hold the Taku forts and Tientsin. We are waiting for the relief of Tien Tsin when in sufficient strength. Troops are expected from Hong Kong tomorrow and 200 from Wei Hsi Wei the following day. It is believed that fighting is constantly proceeding around Tien Tsin. Our garrison there should be about 1000 men. The following proclamation was agreed to this morning to be issued forthwith: 'The admirals and senior naval officers of the allied powers in China desire to make known to all viceroys and authorities along the coast and rivers and in the cities and provinces of China that they intend to use armed force only against the boxers and people who oppose them on their march to Peking for the rescue of their fellow countrymen.'"

ALBUQUERQUE — JUNE 21, 1910

In the case of Roosevelt and the vice presidency, the office is certainly seeking the main.

Takes will become delinquent on July 1, and the people can save heavy costs by making payment before that date.

The republican platform is a patriotic declaration, and gives assurance that this nation will not pull down the flag at home or abroad.

President McKinley was nominated for re-election to the presidency to-day, and he will succeed himself with an increased majority.

The territories of New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma will be admitted to statehood. The republican platform demands their admission.

The republican convention is remarkably harmonious, and the work done will meet with the approval of the people of the United States.

Never has the republican party entered upon a campaign with a more harmonious and enthusiastic purpose to elect its candidate than it will this year.

It was a happy thought on the part of the republicans to invite to the yearly national convention the survivors of the first republican convention, held in Philadelphia in 1856.

Vice President Roosevelt will be in position to help New Mexico secure statehood, and four years hence he will get the delegation from this state for president of the United States.

The United States never joined gold pieces of a higher denomination than $20. Some years ago a jeweler at San Francisco struck gold pieces of the value of $50, but that was on private account.

The platform of principles adopted by the national republican convention is a clear statement of what the party has done and what it intends to do.
The document is printed in full in today's Citizen.

Two hundred and ninety millions of dollars for poultry, the proceeds of one year, compared with $136,000,000 for hogs for the same time, tells with emphasis the enormous magnitude of the poultry business.

Following the example set by the United States, the Dominion of Canada is beginning to establish forest reserves. One comprising 2,000 square miles of virgin white-pine forest has just been formed in Ontario.

There was a decrease of $2,195,574 in the public debt during May, due to the redemption of bonds. The amount of bonds so far exchanged at the treasury for the new 2 per cent bonds of 1900, is $28,950,850. The total circulation of national bank notes, June 1, was $20, 488,885, an increase this year of $54,421, 335.

The organization of labor in the United States has grown equally as fast as the organization of trusts. With a membership of 1,000,000 on January 1, 1909, the American Federation of Labor has since increased its membership to 1,500,000, besides issuing 1,500 local charters this year. The past three years have been those of greatest success for the consolidation of labor interests.

The national convention of the republican party now in session in Philadelphia is notable for one thing above all others, and it is that one thing that makes it close to the American people.
It is a property convention. It is a convention in accord with the grand policies of the government of the United States that have been so nobly carried out by the present administration.

The city of St. Joseph, Mo., gained municipal ownership of its water-works plant four years ago, and comparison of the results in this period with those of the preceding four years shows a saving of $23,146.90, or an average of more than $5,800 a year. The average cost per lamp during the first four years was $81.95, and during the last four years $61.72, an average saving of $20.22 per lamp.

It is twenty-eight years since the last republican national convention was held in Philadelphia. The convention met that year on May 1. General Grant was renominated for the presidency by unanimous vote. The names of Schuyler Colfax, of Indiana, the vice president, and Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts, were presented to the convention as candidates for second place on the ticket. Wilson was nominated on the second ballot. The ticket then placed in the field received 2,567,670 popular votes, against 2,434,075 for Grover Cleveland, and 22,408 for Charles O'Connor, straight democratic candidate.

CROP CONDITIONS.

R. M. Harding, New Mexico director of the weather and crop bureau, United States department of agriculture, has issued his weekly crop bulletin for this week ending June 19, and summarizes the situation in the following taken from his report:

"The weather for the past week has been slightly warmer than the normal, with clear mornings and cloudy afternoons, and an unusual amount of wind for this season of the year. In the vicinity of Albuquerque a high wind on the afternoon of the 11th caused considerable damage to property, as well as knocking much fruit from the trees.
In Mora county and vicinity a thunder storm on the afternoon of the 12th, accompanied by heavy rain and damage to fruit, stripped a great deal of fruit off the trees, and greatly damaged the alfalfa and clover crops. In the southwest reports of loss in the sheep camps have not yet come in, but as one herd lost sixty-four of its number the total damage to the flocks is probably quite extensive. While the alfalfa crops have been badly distributed, still there is plenty of water for irrigation purposes, and all growing crops have made rapid progress. In northern sections the first cutting of alfalfa is about finished, and winter wheat is turning. The first cutting of alfalfa in northern sections is well along, and all reports agree that it is the best crop in years. Early corn, strawberries, green peas and new potatoes are coming into the markets of the most northern counties, and in southern counties large shipments of apricots have been made. Fruits have suffered from the wind and hail, but the crop in general remains most promising. Grapes on the ranges grow rapidly. Outside water holes are well-filled, and stock is reported in the best condition.

The western farmer is looking forward to a bountiful harvest of wheat and corn. The southern farmer is getting good prices for his garden truck and is assured of good prices for his growing crops. The mills and factories are running full time, with a good demand for their products. Republican prosperity has come to stay another four years.

History making has been progressing at a rapid rate during the past two years, and the future gives promise of even greater progress. The economic makers of the world are compelled to keep their eyes open those days to keep up with the changes that are occurring.

Queen Victoria has completed the sixty-third year of her reign, and she is in good health and may survive many years.

The situation in Rio Arriba county has recently been shocked with several thousand young trout.

Colonel Roosevelt will attend the rough rider reunion at Oklahoma City on July 4.

Life Gradually Lengthening.

Recent statistics prove that the average health and length of life of human beings have grown stronger and longer with the years. In the fifteenth century there was not to be found a man or woman over sixty years of age.
It is clearly demonstrated that the change for the better has been brought about by modern ideas and methods.
One of the agents which has been most instrumental in preserving life is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Thousands have died from stomach and digestive disorders, who might have survived had they resorted to the Bitters.
It is the greatest of known tonics for the stomach and digestive organs. It cures dyspepsia, indigestion and constipation, and has done so for the past fifty years. There is nothing to equal it.

New Mexico Teachers for New Mexico.

Colorado teachers for Colorado schools is the cry raised by the newspapers of Colorado at present, says the Santa Fe New Mexican. New Mexico teachers, who are now in the state for New Mexico schools. This territory has two normal universities at present which annually graduate large classes.
Employment should be found readily for these graduates in teaching schools within the territory. If this is not done what is the use of supporting normal schools? The university at Albuquerque has a normal department from which annually a large number of teachers graduate. Several of the high schools in the territory have attained a rank of scholarship that should enable them to graduate in teaching.
Unfortunately the salaries paid and the shortness of the school year in many districts make teaching in New Mexico very remunerative for a college or a normal school graduate, but as far as possible the teachers of New Mexico schools should be graduates of New Mexico institutions.

Mr. W. A. Hines, of Manchester, Ia., writing of his experience with the architect, says: "Exposure after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in consumption.
I had frequent hemorrhages and coughed night and day. All my doctors said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me. I was able to walk and even if it cost $500 a bottle. Hundreds have used it on my recommendation, and all say it never fails to cure throat, chest and lung troubles." Regular use of Dr. King's New Discovery will keep you free from all lung troubles.

SANTA FE SIFTINGS.

The Murphy Divorce Suit. Firmness of Conviction. Visitors to the Capital.

From the New Mexican.

A new turntable for use in the Santa Fe yards in this city has been received, and will be placed in position in a few days.

Santa Fe will send a delegation of probably 500 people to the Indian feast at San Juan on Sunday. A special expression train will leave the Denver & Rio Grande station at 8 o'clock in the morning and will return about 6 o'clock in the evening.

Every passing day adds some fresh and gratifying assurance that the annual territorial farmers' tournament to be held in Santa Fe on July 2, 4 and 5, will be a grand success. The local farmers are working zealously to this end and they never labor in vain.

The programs for the autumn quarter of the Fifteen Club are just out.
"Our New Possessions," including Porto Rico, the Philippines and the Hawaiian Islands, will be one of the principal topics of discussion in the club during the next quarter.

Miss M. M. Manderfield, of Philadelphia, a favorite sister of Anna Judge W. H. Manderfield, is visiting at the hospitable home of Mrs. Manderfield on College street. The talented sister has traveled in all parts of the world, but admits that she has never found a more restful and refreshing abiding place than the Santa Fe home in which she is now happily located.

One of the features of a large company of particularly favored guests, a massive and mysteriously opened its waxed envelopes at the home of Mrs. W. H. Man-derfield on College street last night. The house with rare fragrance and delighting the eye of all observers. It began opening about 7 o'clock in the evening and was fully open about an hour later.

Mr. and Mrs. V. V. Clark, of Bland, are visitors in the historic capital, and will attend the commencement exercises of the Loretto academy to-morrow evening. Mr. Clark was formerly superintendent of the Lone Star mine in the Cochiti mining district and deservedly ranks high in mining circles.
Mrs. Clark, nee Laura May, graduated with honors at the Loretto academy two or three years ago.

Attorney T. E. Curtin has filed a suit in the district court against Anna Murphy vs. James Murphy, wherein the plaintiff asks for an absolute divorce from the defendant and the custody of four minor children. The complaint sets up drunkenness, cruelty and abandonment as causes of the action. The plaintiff resides in Santa Fe and the defendant is supposed to be at El Capitan, Lincoln county.

Would Not Suffer So Again for Fifty Times its Price.

I awoke last night with severe pains in my stomach. I never felt so bad in all my life. When I came down to work this morning I felt so weak I could hardly work. I went to Miller & McCurdy's drug store and they recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It worked like magic and one dose fixed me all right.
It certainly is the finest thing I ever used for stomach trouble. I shall not be without it in my home hereafter. I should not care to endure the sufferings of last night again for fifty times its price.—G. H. Wilson, Liverman, Burglars' town, Washington, Co., Pa. This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

Sailed Wanted.

Sailed proposals will be received at the office of Edward B. Cristy, architect, room 27, Armijo building, until 4 o'clock p. m., Saturday, June 23, 1910, for all labor and materials required in the reconstruction of the building of the Co-Operative Building and Loan association, located at the corner of Hill avenue and First street, Albuquerque, N. M. Copies of drawings and specifications may be seen at the office of the architect. Owners reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

A Card of Thanks.

I wish to say that I feel under obligations for what Chamberlain's Colic Remedy has done for our family. We have used it in so many cases of colic, lung trouble, and whooping cough, and it has always given me the most perfect satisfaction. We feel greatly indebted to the manufacturers of this remedy and to them to please accept our hearty thanks.
Respectfully, Mrs. S. Doty, Des Moines, Iowa. For sale by all druggists.

Miss Edith Edgington Drowned.

Samuel Brown received a letter a few days ago from Rev. C. C. Edgington, formerly presiding elder of the El Paso conference, who at Houston, Tex., accidentally lost his life. He was a kind and gentle man, and his death was a great loss to the church. He was drowned while bathing in the surf at Key West, Fla., where he was on a number of other visits. He was killed and injured shore, while Dr. W.
& Rutherford are reported to have lost 60 or 70 head. J. A. Gehweiler had a number of chickens killed, window glass broken, and the young trees in his orchard damaged somewhat. A few Stockard suffered the loss of a number of chickens and a lot of glass broken in the windows of his incinerator house on his chicken and Belgian hare farm.
The storm was unprecedented in the amount of damage done, but fortunately covered only a narrow strip of country.—Hawley Register.

Horrible Death of Mine Engineer W. L. Keys.

ACCIDENT ON BARR'S HILL.

William Luther Keys, evidently a mine engineer, was dead at St. John's hospital, his skull crushed in and the skull partially laid open, and his left leg broken and bruised in several places between the knee and foot.

Last night, as the west-bound passenger, No. 1, under Conductor Heady with Engineer A. H. Dixon at the throttle, struck the top of Barr's hill, a few miles south of the city, the quick eye of the engineer perceived a black object partially lying alongside the track. As the train, going down grade at a rapid speed, neared the object the engineer promptly saw that it was a man. The air brakes were applied, but too late—the speed of the train was checked but not until the cruel wheels had done their work of death.

The body was brought to this city on freight train No. 34 early this morning, and turned over to Undertaker Strong.

Papers and letters found in the blood-stained clothes worn by the dead man proved that his name is William Luther Keys, and that relatives reside somewhere in Indianapolis, Ind. It is evident that he has been moving to and fro in this territory and in Mexico for several years. In 1897 he located a mine in Taos county with Herman Geck and Silva Garcia and named it the Leadville lode. Letters indicate that he was a mining engineer at Paria, Mexico, in the later was in the employ of the Madero Mining company of the Orizaba district. Among his papers is a receipted bill, under date of June 1, 1900, from the Mining Supply company of Los Cruces, for $250, which had been loaned to "Keys, Modoc engineer." Quite a number of letters were found from Ethel Radcliffe, of Socorro, and the carried a big assortment of children's pique ruffs and ready-made aprons, at the Economist.
