AMERICANS VICTORIOUS

Alaskan Boundary Commission Decides For United States

CANADA GETS ISLAND

Small Concession Made in Favor of the Dominion—How Washington Views It.

London, Oct. 17.—The Alaskan boundary commission today reached an agreement whereby all the American contentions are sustained with the exception of those relating to the Portland Canal, which Canada wins. All that now remains to be done is for the commissioners to affix their signatures on a map on which will be marked the boundary line, definitely fixing the division of American and British territory. On such a basis no American citizen will lose a foot of land already believed to be held, and the United States will get all the waterways to the rich Alaskan territory, with the exception of the Portland Canal which gives Canada the one outlet she so much needed.

What Washington Thinks.
Washington, Oct. 17.—The Associated Press bulletin from London, announcing the decision of the Alaskan boundary commission was the first intimation received by the state department that the commission had reached an agreement. Although the bulletin from London is exceedingly brief the state department officials say it shows a distinct victory for the United States.

It is their opinion that the effect of the decision regarding the Portland canal, merely gives to Canada possession of Tease Island, a small island in Portland canal and of no special importance. This detail of the controversy is admitted by the state department officials, to have been open to argument on both sides.

FIFTEEN DEAD— FORTY INJURED

Two Work Trains on Pennsylvania Road Collide With Awful Results.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 17.—Fifteen persons were killed and about forty injured in a collision which occurred today on the Pennsylvania road near the Washington crossing. The persons killed and injured were laborers who were on a work train and on their way to work at the Washington crossing to repair some washouts along the road. Fourteen bodies were taken from the wreckage and one more is known to be under the debris. Only two or three of those injured will be permanently maimed. The train bearing the men who were killed and injured, was made up of four cars. It had stopped at Washington crossing to receive orders when it was run into by the gravel train. There were 180 men on two flat cars which telescoped with the gravel train. As soon as the accident happened the Italians became frantic and made an attempt to do bodily harm to the crew of the gravel train. They were finally quieted by the foremen.

NEW MEXICO AND DE VARGAS IN 1694

The Storming and Taking of the Potrero Viejo the Stronghold of the Queres Pueblos on the Night of April the 21st.

(WRITTEN BY MAX. FROST, FROM NOTES FURNISHED BY PROFESSOR A. F. BANDELIER.)

The bloody events which the year 1693 closed on the site of Santa Fe had become the signal of a partial, but still very formidable uprising of the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico. The storming of the Indian village which the Tanos had constructed on the ruins of the old palace and over the "Plaza" of the capital of New Mexico, the city of Santa Fe, had been a military necessity. Captain General De Vargas, in celaying compulsory measures against the treacherous Tanos, only made matters worse. His leniency towards the Pueblos, while being fully aware of their hostile intentions and warlike preparations, proved to be a great mistake.

The Tehuas, in the several villages north of Santa Fe, had been repulsed in their attempts to relieve their kindred from the pressure which the Spaniards brought to bear upon them during the last days of December, 1693. They had tried in vain to raise the siege. Now that the Tanos were not only subdued, but nearly obliterated as a tribe, the Tehuas abandoned the village of Tesuque, as well as the Pueblos of Nambé, Pojuaque, Jacona, Cuyamungue, San Ildefonso, and the Tanos settled near Santa Cruz, twenty-five miles north of Santa Fe, followed their example. All these Indians congregated on the summit of the Tuyo, or what is known to many inhabitants of New Mexico as the "Black Mesa of San Ildefonso" on the Rio Grande. There a remarkable resistance was offered to the Spanish forces in the course of the year 1694.

The Tehuas of the Pueblos of San Juan and Santa Clara partly joined the occupants of the Black Mesa. Partly they withdrew to the Jemez region. Of the Queres Pueblos those of Cochiti, Santo Domingo, and the remnants of the same stock south of Santa Fe from San Marcos and the Cienega (where they had lived together with the Tanos) scattered also. The Indians from the Cochiti retired to the summit of the "Potrero Viejo," seven miles northwest of their pueblo, the Pueblos of Santo Domingo joined the Jemez, the Pueblos of Taos and Picuries remained inactive in so far as they sent but few reinforcements to the tribes near Santa Fe. But they dispatched runners to the Pecos Pueblos with messages to rise in arms against the Spaniards. These runners were unsuccessful in their mission. Of the distant western pueblos like Acoma, Zuni, and the Moguis, a few young men may have joined the hostiles, but the tribes as such remained neutral or at least preserved a quiet attitude. Captain General De Vargas had therefore against him properly the Tehuas, Taos, Picuries, Jemez and a portion of the Queres. Had those pueblos united, they could have opposed to the Spanish commander and his small forces, at least one thousand warriors in one body. But of concerted action there was no thought. Each group acted independently, and thus exposed itself to the danger of defeat in detail.

Still it must be acknowledged that the strategy of the Indians, which consisted in occupying several formidable defensive positions by small bodies which could always retreat to the cover of natural fortresses, was by no means ill-devised. Had Captain General De Vargas not possessed auxiliaries of the same kind as his opponents, it is not impossible that he would have been driven out of New Mexico or crushed. His soldiery consisted of not over one hundred and fifty men, and he could place in the field besides, about a hundred armed settlers. Had the hostile Pueblos presented themselves in one body they would have stood but a slight chance against so many European warriors who, in addition to their superiority in fire arms of small size, could bring to bear upon them six small pieces of artillery. In the open field, the Indians undoubtedly would have been routed and correspondingly weakened at the outset. By compelling De Vargas to take the offensive against several positions distant from each other, the Indians compensated to a certain extent for their own weakness by compelling the Spanish commander to divide his small forces. They knew that De Vargas could not afford to wait, and patient waiting, in order to gradually extenuate the foe, is one of the most dangerous tactics to which the Indian was wont to resort.

The Pueblo rebels knew that the Spaniards lacked food. As for themselves they had provided abundantly

ALL ARE TIED FOR THE LEAD

Albuquerque, Oct. 17.—El Paso won from Santa Fe by a score of 8 to 6, after Santa Fe had practically captured the game. All teams are now tied for first place.

In the first Barley hit for two bases, Shirk for three and Nichols for a round trip, scoring four men in all. El Paso scored two men on a fumble. In the fifth Santa Fe added another and also one in the seventh. In the eighth, by good stick-work El Paso tied the score and put two more on her side of the tally in the ninth.

COMRADE KILLED HIM.

Accidental Discharge of Gun Costs the Life of Zoller.

Evergreen, Colo., Oct. 17.—Bert Zoller, aged 23 years, was accidentally shot and killed last evening by his friend and comrade Fred Herin, who is about the same age. They were shooting at a mark and one cartridge in Herin's gun failed to explode but exploded later while Herin was examining the gun which was pointed toward Zoller. The ball went through Zoller's head killing him almost instantly. Herin was arrested and taken to Golden for examination. The men were employed in Welsh's saw mill.

TRAGIC SUICIDE OF A GIRL STUDENT.

PEACE TALK— TROUBLE ON

Negotiations Between Russia and Japan Are Very Slow.

NEITHER WILL YIELD

Representatives of the Mikado Want a Treaty That Will Prove Binding on All Concerned.

Paris, Oct. 17.—Although officials do not take an alarmist view of the Russo-Japanese situation, their latest advices indicate a renewal of its somewhat serious aspect. The Russian admiralty has prepared for a concentration of warships on the Mediterranean station and at other European ports. The reason for this is understood to be the presence of Japanese warships in European ports, including two ships which are about completed in the British ship yards.

War Clouds Threaten.

Berlin, Oct. 17.—Negotiations between Japan and Russia according to the view of the situation taken here, are not making progress. Each side, it appears from official information, will not yield on the essential propositions. Japan persists in requiring an agreement that shall not delimit their respective spheres of supremacy and declines to consent to a general policy of drift under which Russian influence will, the Japanese say steadily bear upon Korea and edge forward until the time is ripe for acquiring a part or the whole of the country. Japan is determined to have a settlement with Russia by a treaty where to they both must abide or else—and threat is ever in the near background—hostilities will begin.

Negotiations Simplified.

Yokohama, Oct. 17.—A cabinet minister says that Japan while stipulating integrity in Korea and Chinese sovereignty makes no point of the military evacuation of Manchuria thus simplifying the negotiations. Bell case rumors continue but the reports of Russian aggression in Korea are proving exaggerated.

THE EXTORTIONS OF WALKING DELEGATES

How Labor Unions Have Fallen Into the Hands of Corrupt Extortionists—Farley Makes Confession and Tells of Blackmailing Methods.

New York, Oct. 17.—Henry Farley, the walking delegate, who is awaiting trial on an indictment for perjury alleged to have been committed in the testimony he gave during the trial of Sam Parks, has made a confession. Many cases are enumerated in his statement of walking delegates in this city and surrounding towns, having successfully conspired to extort money from contractors and builders, to avoid strikes or to have them called off. The cases are related in minute details. Farley states that in one instance $50,000 was procured from W. E. D. Stokes, to stop interference with the building of the Ansonia Hotel at Seventy-third street and Broadway.

over the decision in the Alaskan boundary case.

"I would not like to criticize Lord Alverstone's decision until I have read the text, but the result is a very great disappointment to me." This was the view of Thomas Hodgkins, K. C., master in ordinary, who has made a special study of the boundary dispute and it conveys the feeling of Canadians generally.

DEAD AT ONE HUNDRED AND SEVEN

Jesus Montoya of Agua Fria, Died Yesterday From Infirmities of Old Age.

Jesus Montoya, one of the oldest inhabitants of New Mexico died yesterday at his home in the village of Agua Fria, a few miles south of this city. Deceased was one hundred and seven years old and had retained many of his faculties until late years, but had elapsed into senility and childhood of late. He leaves a numerous progeny. The remains were taken to Pena Blanca, where they were buried in the parish cemetery at that place. Montoya was a native of Agua Fria, in which village he had lived the major portion of his life, only leaving it for a residence of about twenty years in the village of Cienega, twelve miles south of here.

SHE LOST HER MONEY THEN ATTEMPTED HER LIFE.

Denver, Oct. 17.—Mrs. Maud B. Webster, who came here six months ago from Ft. Worth, Texas, and started a boarding house at 1271 Downing avenue, attempted suicide this morning by taking strychnine. She was discovered in time and will probably recover. Financial reverses are given as the cause.

THE OLD STORY.

Stole Other People's Money to Cover Gambling Losses.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Albert Joerndt, letter carrier, is in jail awaiting arraignment on the charge of stealing letters and the checks and money that they contained. He has confessed that his money was lost at the races and he robbed the letters to make good his losses. The total amount may run into the thousands. Joerndt was an officer of the National Association of Letter Carriers, and has been a delegate twice to the convention of that organization.

Washington, Oct. 17.—Secretary Moody has approved the estimates for the support of the navy for the next fiscal year, as recommended by the chiefs of the bureaus, amounting to nearly one hundred and three millions as against eighty millions appropriated the last fiscal year.

SORROWING FRIENDS PAY LAST SAD TRIBUTE

The Remains of Mrs. Cora L. Bartlett, Who Died Thursday, Interred This Morning In Family Plot at Fairview Cemetery.

All that was earthly of the late Mrs. Cora L. Bartlett was laid to rest this forenoon in the Bartlett family plot in the Fairview cemetery. The last summons overtook the deceased Thursday morning. She had been a great sufferer for several years and death was not unexpected. Mrs. Bartlett was about forty-five years of age; she was a woman of great intellectual powers, fine and thorough education, a skilled musician, bright, charming and entertaining up to the time this last illness overtook her. She was a native of Iowa, but moved, in her early youth to Kansas, in which state she attended a seminary and finished her education in Boston.

She was married to Solicitor General Edward L. Bartlett, who was then a practicing attorney in Kansas City, at the age of 20 and in 1880 came with him to this city, which place she has made her home ever since. She has been a true helpmate, a loving and faithful wife in the most correct and fullest sense of these words. She served as one of the lady managers of the 1893 Chicago world's fair from New Mexico and as such rendered successful and valuable services to the people of the Territory; she was one of the principal organizers and the first president of the Woman's Board of Trade of this city, an organization which has been found of the greatest use and has done untold good for the interests of the city and of the poor and needy here. Santa Fe's beautiful plaza with a handsome stone wall about it, will be a lasting monument to Mrs. Bartlett's public spirit, her untiring energy, her great executive ability and her self-sacrificing character. The present very satisfactory condition of the plaza is due principally to her efforts and work as president of the Woman's Board of Trade. The deceased was one of the best known, most highly respected and most popular women in New Mexico and numbered her friends in the Sunshine Territory and at her former home in Kansas City, Kansas, by the hundreds. All who had the good fortune to know her and who have felt the influence of her charming personality and fine intellect and many social graces will sincerely deplore that the end had to come to her while she was still in the prime of life and while many years of usefulness in the ordinary course of human life might have been hers. "Providence," however, decreed otherwise. During the last few years, she was a confirmed invalid, but she bore her sufferings with great courage and a true womanly spirit, bearing up heroically and keeping up the struggle for life as long as it was possible. In this, as well as in everything that came to her in life, she did her full duty. She has gone to that land from whence no traveler returns. All is well with her now.

She is survived by her husband, Solicitor General E. L. Bartlett, but leaves no children. The funeral services were held this forenoon at the church of the Holy Faith, by the Rev. W. R. Dye, and thence the body was taken to Fairview cemetery for interment. A large concourse of friends of the family was present, both at the church and at the grave. The floral offerings were many, very beautiful and emblematic of the high character and great worth of the dead. And thus ends the last chapter of the life of Mrs. Cora L. Bartlett.

The New Mexico irrigation convention at Albuquerque, before adjourning, passed the following resolution in memory of Mrs. Cora L. Bartlett:

"Resolved, That we tender to our colleague, General Edward L. Bartlett, our most profound sympathy on the sudden death of his wife, the news of which shocked the convention this morning; and at the same time express our appreciation of the important services rendered in times past by Mrs. Bartlett to the city of Santa Fe and the Territory of New Mexico."

The pall bearers were Judge A. L. Morrison, Colonel J. Franco Chaves, Major R. J. Palen, Dr. W. S. Harroun, Grant Rivenburg and Levi A. Hughes. The Woman's Board of Trade of this city attended the funeral in a body as a last mark of its esteem and respect for the dead. The floral offerings were so great in quantity that they entirely filled a carriage and covered the coffin which contained the remains, completely.

"Her good works will live behind her."

A CALL TO GOOD CITIZENSHIP.

Within twenty hours of each other two remarkable addresses were made this week, one by the President of the United States, the other by the only living ex-President of the nation; one was delivered at Washington, the other at Chicago. Neither of the two speakers had seen each other's address before, and yet, both were remarkably alike in their trend. Both were a call to good citizenship, an old call, but emphasized as never before by these two men. Both addresses made the point that the present prosperity and greatness of this nation are not a guarantee of the permanence of this nation, in fact, that in them are the seeds of decay unless the nation is aroused to the demands of good citizenship. Both addresses sounded a warning that, perhaps, this nation is on the eve of a crucial test and one of the speakers pointed to the present attitude of union labor as a threat to the nation's free institutions, while both deplored corruption in public life.

Says Grover Cleveland: "A new meaning has been given to national prosperity. With a hardihood that savors of insolence, an old pretext which has preceded the doom of ancient empires in popular rule, is daily and hourly dinned in our ears. We are told that the national splendor we have built upon the showy ventures of speculative wealth, is a badge of our success. Unsharpened contentment is enjoined upon the masses of our people; and they are invited in the bare subsistence of their scanty homes, to rejoice in their country's prosperity. This is too unsubstantial an enjoyment of benefits to satisfy those who have been taught American equality; and thus has arisen by perfectly natural process, a dissatisfied insistence upon a better distribution of the results of our vaunted prosperity." In this Grover Cleveland gets down to the root of the trouble between labor and capital. Then he points out how prevailing political corruption, together with the dissatisfaction among labor, threaten the very existence of the nation's free institutions.

Good citizenship is the remedy for it and President Roosevelt sounds a clarion call to Americans to assume the duties of good citizenship even at the cost of present comfort and the sneers of politicians and office holders. He said:

"But it is shameful for a nation, if these memories stir it only to empty boasts, to a pride that does not shrink from present abasement, to that self satisfaction which accepts the high resolve and unbending effort of the father as an excuse for effortless ease or wrongly directed effort in the son. The life of duty, not the mere life of mere ease or mere pleasure, that is the kind of life which makes the great man as it makes the great nation."

"WE CAN AS LITTLE AFFORD TO TOLERATE A DISHONEST MAN IN THE PUBLIC SERVICE AS A COWARD IN THE ARMY. The murderer takes a single life; the corruptionist in public life, whether he be bribe giver or bribe taker, strikes at the heart of the commonwealth. As soon as discovered, the wrong doing must be stopped and the wrong doer punished."

Statehood or no statehood, New Mexico Republicans are solid for Roosevelt in 1904 anyway.

Mayor Harrison of the Windy City is a great reformer. The city boodlers of that town have been informed that they will have to be more careful hereafter in their grafting operations or they will be bounced and punished. The mayor evidently believes in giving a man a chance.

Judging by the indictments against ex-officials of the postoffice department reported by the Washington grand juries, these worthies seem to have had quite a nice time at making "a little extra" out of the positions they held. The chances are that in the near future, they will work out "time" at some federal penitentiary.

Mr. Cleveland's fourth nomination and third term presidential boom is flying about the country with the ease and swiftness of Professor Langley's air ship.

One item of food which has escaped the trusts this year is that of codfish. These latter have formed their own trust and have made themselves quite scarce.

Abdul Hamid, still insists that he wants nothing but peace in Macedonia. He will have it if his troops have to kill every man, woman and child in that unhappy country. In the meantime, their most Christian majesties of Austria, Germany, Russia, England and Italy look quietly on.

District Attorney Frank W. Clancy has the support of President Theodore Roosevelt in his effort to hunt down dishonesty in Bernalillo county. The President has gone so far as to promise federal aid to Joseph W. Folk of St. Louis in hunting down the corruptionists of Missouri, and he will do as much in New Mexico for New Mexico is still a ward of the nation. No high political alliances will help the evil doers in Bernalillo county, in fact, those who ally themselves with corruption must with corruption go down. Said President Roosevelt in his fine address this week at the unveiling of the Sherman statue at Washington: "We can as little afford to tolerate a dishonest man in the public service as a coward in the army. The murderer takes a single life; the corruptionist in public life strikes at the heart of the commonwealth. AS SOON AS DISCOVERED, THE WRONGDOING MUST BE STOPPED AND THE WRONGDOERS PUNISHED."

THE POSTOFFICE SCANDALS PROBED TO THE BOTTOM.

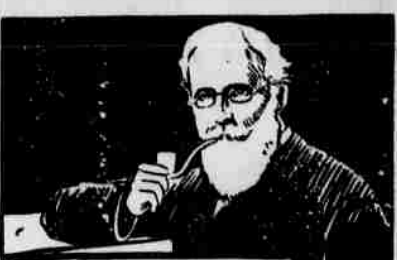

"Let no guilty man escape." When Grant laid down this maxim he voiced the sentiments of every honest citizen then, now, and in the future. The law should be enforced on all criminals alike without respect to persons. While there may be occasions when poor men may be driven by poverty to steal to keep body and soul together, there is no excuse for rich men or men in office violating the laws of the republic. An official is not only bound by common honesty to be honest but he takes a solemn oath of office to perform the duties of the office which he himself has sought, "well and faithfully," and if he is derelict in this duty he is not only a thief but a perjurer as well and deserves no leniency, and should receive none. The fearless exposure of the frauds which have prevailed in the postoffice department is worthy of the Roosevelt administration and should be followed up until every dishonest official is immured in the penitentiary. This doom of the official thief will not only be a just punishment to these unworthy officials but will be a warning to all others who may be similarly inclined throughout the country. In this connection the New Mexican thinks that the Territory is fortunate in having such a fearless and honest official as Frank W. Clancy. If the people had such men in office in every county, boodling in public funds would be brought to a speedy end. The New Mexican is gratified especially that the Republican party is investigating the wrong doing of its own officials and hopes this good example will be followed by the Democratic party as well and we recognize it as a good sign for the purity of the public service that the Missouri boodlers are being brought to punishment by an honest Democratic official of that too long plundered state. Let the good work go on—"Let no guilty man escape."

A CORRECT VIEW OF THE EXISTING LABOR TROUBLES.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean has the correct idea concerning the present labor troubles in several of the large cities of the country. In a recent editorial that paper gives its opinion on the subject clearly saying that some of the pessimism and some of the real depression is due to the labor element, which went equally as wild in its attempt to control the country as the speculators of Wall street went in their attempt to turn water into gold. The arbitrary and unjust demands of labor halted the business development delayed building operations, and made it impossible for vast building plans to be carried out. This has had a marked effect upon the iron and steel interests, and until this is righted the building activity of the country will not return to normal conditions.

"As the stock market is going through a readjustment from the wild economic debauch of the last few years, so the labor conditions of the country must be readjusted from the craze which has taken possession of the more radical element.

"These general conditions in the stock market, in iron and steel and in labor, must not, however, be regarded altogether from the pessimistic side. The country is righting itself and will soon resume its normal condition of business. During the last two years the iron and steel trade has been in an Old Age IS MADE Vigorous BY THE USE OF DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

"I suffered for six years with constipation and indigestion, during which time I employed several physicians, but they could not reach my case," writes Mr. G. Popplewell, of Eureka Springs, Carroll Co., Ark. "I felt that there was no help for me, could not retain food on my stomach; had vertigo and would fall helpless to the floor. Two years ago I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and little 'Pellets,' and improved from the start. After taking twelve bottles of the 'Discovery' I was able to do light work, and have been improving ever since. I am now in good health for one of my age—60 years. I owe it all to Doctor Pierce's medicines."

abnormal state. Prior to that condition the United States had for several years been a very heavy exporter of iron and steel, our shipments for one or two years having exceeded 1,000,000 tons a year. Alabama alone having exported in one year nearly 300,000 tons of pig iron. Instead of being an exporter we became an importer. Under the rush of business we hunted the world for iron and steel, bringing in last year about 1,000,000 tons or more.

"During the time we were exporting iron it might almost have been said that there was not an important iron bridge or a railroad built anywhere in the world upon which we had not set the price for the material in it. We were getting the world's trade when suddenly there came a boom in our own country, and we for the time had to abandon this position. We are now getting back to a condition in which we can once more enter the world's markets as an exporter of iron and steel and finished goods.

"We cannot always run at the terrific pressure which for a year or more made it impossible for a plant to stop long enough for its machinery to be overhauled, but a brief halt will prove to be but a breathing spell, a time in which to get ready for a still greater advance. It must be remembered that this country now has a population of about 80,000,000 people, the most active, virile, vigorous on the face of the earth; that this population will increase at the rate of about 20,000,000 in the next ten years, and that the solid advancement of the country goes forward despite the fact that Wall street may have a sudden and severe chill.

"These 80,000,000 people, to be 100,000,000 people ten years hence, by virtue of productive power of machinery are capable of producing and consuming per capita probably twice as much as in 1880. In other words, the 100,000,000 people ten years hence will be in productive power equal to what 200,000,000 would have been in 1880. In that year our production of bituminous coal was three-quarters of a ton per capita; last year it was three and three-quarters."

THOUGHTS ON THINGS

The palmists say President Roosevelt has a spatulate hand. The way he has spatulated numerous impetuous office seekers verifies the assertion.

Eastern papers announce that George Gould is still wearing his straw hat. The arrogance of these rich men is getting to be something frightful.

"Newspaperliery" is a newly coined word. It expresses the idea so nicely that it is rapidly gaining in public favor. It is the result of a slip of the tongue of a New York orator who meant to say "newspaper notoriety."

La Voz Publica is getting fastidious. It deplores the fact that a couple of English school teachers in Santa Rosa cannot pronounce "como le va" correctly. Better send them up to our Cervantes club and we'll show 'em.

San Marcial women have formed an organization to be known as the "street cleaning society." Its principles are rather sweeping and the male population will be supposed to wipe off the boots before venturing on the streets.

Mary McLane, authoress, says that Denver is a "sun-kissed jewel set in the snow-plumed Rockies." A reader of the Denver papers, however, during the recent charter election, would be more inclined to think that Denver is a bum-rubbed berg set among low-browed knucklers.

MISS SARAH FINLEY,

Vice-President of the Palmetto Club, Memphis, Tenn.

WINE OF CARDUI is a thoroughly scientific and modern remedy, meeting the needs of the modern woman in the modern way—without the torture of an operation. Wine of Cardui has cured them in the privacy of their homes and it has found a place in the hearts of American women that no other medicine has found. In their gratitude over 10,000 American women have written letters commending Wine of Cardui. Wine of Cardui meets their wants as no other medicine does. It sustains the young girl at the shock of her entrance to womanhood. Women who take Wine of Cardui have little discomfort during pregnancy and little pain at childbirth. When the change of life appears they enter a happy, healthy old age. Every month it comes to the rescue to assist Nature in throwing the impurities from the body.

Miss Sarah Finley

following praise on Wine of Cardui:

"Among the numerous medicines placed before suffering women for their relief none can touch McElree's Wine of Cardui. It towers above them all as a reliable female remedy. It simply drives pain and disease away and restores health in an incredibly short period. I have taken great interest in this medicine for the past two years, since it brought health and strength to me. I have also recommended it to a number of my friends and they who have used it speak of it in the highest terms and I feel that it is praise well bestowed."

If you are suffering from female weakness Wine of Cardui is the medicine you need.

You can have health the same as Miss Finley if you will take the Wine of Cardui treatment. If you need advice further than the complete directions given on the bottle, address The Ladies Advisory Department, Chattanooga Med. Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

THE MINERAL HILL DISTRICT

The Albatross Mine Accidentally Discovered Is Being Developed Into Good Property.

MINING IN FLORIDAS

The Sierra Florida Mining Company Is Putting Up a Concentrator—The Tres Hermanos District.

The Joseph Matt copper mill near Las Vegas was started on Tuesday afternoon. The process installed promises success and it is expected that the mill will be kept steadily at work.

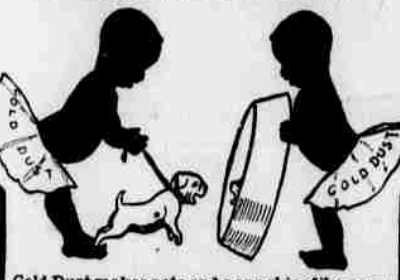

The Las Vegas Optic says that "some exceedingly fine looking specimens of gold and copper rock are being brought into Las Vegas, some of them coming from as far as fifty miles away." The Optic takes this as an indication that Las Vegas is destined to be a mining center.

J. B. Stout, the expert copper leacher, who recently arrived at Las Vegas from Denver, has been employed to erect and place in running order the copper mill which is being erected upon the Archibald Pettet's property in the Tecolote district.

The greatest amount of work that is being done in the Mineral Hill mining district in San Miguel county is being done on the Albatross owned by several Las Vegas parties. The property was discovered accidentally last winter by A. D. Bell. He followed the float from the valley up the hillside for several hundred feet until he discovered the ledge from which the float came which was within 200 feet of the summit of the range. The attention of J. A. Baker, an experienced miner was called to it and he immediately recognized the fact that the indications were very promising. The first shot showed up rock coated with copper in its native state, and the first assays warranted further development. The first shaft was sunk to a depth of forty feet when it was discovered that the air became so foul and was so difficult to dispose of that it was almost impossible for the miners to work without becoming seriously ill. So a tunnel was started to intersect the shaft, the work being completed last week. The object of the tunnel is to follow the ore shoot wherever it leads. It is hoped however that within the next 100 feet it will lead into a large phonolite dyke. At present the ore is continually changing and is heavy with sulphides, both copper and iron. All the water for the camp is packed from a spring in Blue canon.

The Deming Graphic says that J. J. Smith, manager of the Sierra Florida Mining company, is pushing the work on its concentrator and will soon have it ready for a test run. The entire mill has been overhauled and the machinery changed in the main part of the mill. Many changes have been made which will greatly reduce the cost of operating while the system of tables and slimes with a return pump for using the water a second time will insure the saving of practically all the values. The machinery is especially designed for treating copper ore from the company's ore mine in the Floridas although the company will also handle custom ores. The arrangement of the mill is such as to facilitate the treatment of the ore with as little handling as possible and after sampling, it is never touched until it comes out in the bins for shipment. In the basement near the engine room is a large crusher where the ore is dumped when it enters the mill. From this it is carried by an elevator to the sampler. After careful sampling the crushed ore goes to a five foot Huntington mill where it is pulverized and run to a long Wilfly table. The product from this table passes over two other tables while from these the tailings are run over a sliming table thus repeating the concentration as long as in housework is to do things in the longest, most round about way. If your time, temper and comfort are worth anything, save them by using Gold Dust.

there is any appreciable value left. In connection with the mill is a fine assaying outfit which insures careful and accurate testing of all ore brought in. The completion of the works is looked forward to with much interest as they will do much toward developing the mineral wealth of the Floridas in Luna county and will encourage the construction of other larger reduction works.

The company is developing some good copper properties. J. F. Allard is working on several promising claims in the Floridas, also copper prospects.

J. A. McCoy, superintendent of the Golden Cross and Eagle Mining company has returned to Deming from the east. He went out to the company's mine in the Tres Hermanos district and will push development work on the property until the 500-foot level is reached.

Saves Two From Death.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N. Y., "but when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had Consumption in an advanced stage also used this wonderful medicine and today she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Coughs and Colds. 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by Fischer Drug Co. J. E. Gover 101 N. Main St., Ottawa, Kan., writes: "Every fall it has been my wife's trouble to catch a severe cold, and therefore to cough all winter long. The festa at Santa Cruz was one of the most successful that has ever been held in that town and it is estimated that more than 3,000 people from the country round about the town were there to participate in the festivities. There were many people from Santa Fe who attended and a contingent of the Capital City band was there to help and aided materially in making the affair the success that it proved.

George E. Ellis, proprietor of the Claire, had quite an experience when in Albuquerque last night. As he was entering Sturges' European hotel, when a man stepped from the dark doorway and attempted to black-jack him. The blow however, was a glancing one and Mr. Ellis was not in any way injured. He at once closed on the man and grappled with him. In the struggle he managed to get the murderous looking weapon which he keeps as a souvenir of his visit to Albuquerque and of the Territorial fair of 1903.

The land contains many hundreds of young trees of the finest and most valuable varieties of apples, peaches, pears, plums, apricots, cherries and other fruits, the greater part of which already bear; a young bearing vineyard, thousands of bushes of currants and other small fruits; extensive beds of asparagus, rhubarb, and other fine vegetables. To be sold on easy terms, and for much less than it cost, owing to ill health of the owner.

It has taken him years to prepare the code which will now be submitted to the Philippine commission and after examination and such revision as may be found necessary by that body, will be sent to the secretary of war who will submit it to Congress for final approval. The engagement is announced of Miss Martha Louise Blackwell, daughter of A. M. Blackwell, and niece of C. N. Blackwell of Raton, to the son of United States Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island. Miss Blackwell is a New Mexico girl. The News, published at Providence, R. I., says a romance in high social circles which will be of interest not only in that city but in political and social circles far and wide, came to light in the announcement in St. Louis, of the engagement of Miss Martha Louise Blackwell of Las Vegas, to Stuart Nelson Aldrich, son of Senator and Mrs. Aldrich. Mr. Aldrich first met Miss Blackwell while she was the guest of a school friend in Providence, and from the moment of meeting the attraction was mutual, and during Miss Blackwell's stay in Providence the young people were often seen together, hence the engagement will not come as a complete surprise to Mr. Aldrich's friends.

Ex-Governor W. T. Thornton has now established himself at Guadalajara, Mexico, as the head of the International Real Estate and Mining agency. His office is at No. 5 Aranzazu street, Hotel Cosmopolita block.

Thornton, ex-governor of New Mexico, is an attorney of national repute in the States, and has for a number of years successfully conducted a large business in mining property and real estate in this city, having engineered many notable deals. Associated with him are E. B. Light, United States consul at Guadalajara, and I. P. Martin, a mining expert." Governor Thornton was for twenty years a resident of this city, he is a lawyer of great ability, genial, shrewd and keen in business, and well versed in mineralogy and geology. For several years while a citizen of New Mexico, he had active charge of important mining operations in various parts of the Territory; he was appointed Governor of New Mexico by President Cleveland in 1893 and served acceptably the full term of four years and more, thereafter going to New York and from there to Guadalajara. Mrs. Thornton is with the former governor in the big Mexican mining town. Both Governor and Mrs. Thornton were very popular and well liked while living in this capital city and their many friends here and throughout the Territory wish them the best of success, prosperity and health in their new home.

THE HICKORY FARM.

The greatest rural attraction on the road today will appear at the opera house on the evening of Thursday, October 22. Mr. White, the advance agent for the company, was in town on Friday and made arrangements for the accommodation of his company. He says: "The Hickory Farm Co." is now touring on its fourth season on the road, and has this year come to the far West. Our previous three seasons have been spent in the East, and the reputation we have earned has secured for us dates throughout California and the Northwest circuit. That our show is far above the average road show is demonstrated by the fact that managers in California, Oregon, Washington and Montana have offered us such inducements that we have decided to spend the winter on the Pacific coast. We come to Santa Fe because we believe the carnival will bring crowds to this town, who will be pleased to see a show far above that which usually visits cities of the size of Santa Fe.

ing reinforcements and supplies from Mexico, but while the caravan of seventy-six families, which Fray Francisco Farran was guiding up from Zaca-easy prey to an offensive movement on a larger scale. Vargas was expected, it had not yet reached El Paso del Norte. In fact, it was only on the twenty-third of June that this anxiously looked for relief entered the town of Santa Fe.

Towards the west, matters appeared more and more threatening also. Cia was in imminent danger, San Felipe and Santa Ana in constant fear both from the Jemez and from the rebellious branches of the Queres. Ojeda, who was the soul of the loyal Queres Pueblos, clamored for assistance, otherwise, his people might lose heart and finally join the rebels. It was impossible to resist any longer his fervent appeals, so Vargas determined to strike a blow at the western insurgents, by boldly marching against those of their number who thought themselves safely entrenched on the summit of the Potrero Viejo, above what today is called the "Canada de Cochiti."

It is a bold and picturesque rock, this Potrero Viejo, jutting out like a narrow blade above the bleak, but not unfertile vale "Canada de Cochiti." The vertical height of the cliff above the little hamlet is seven hundred feet, and as seen from the village, or from the bed of the Canada itself, it appears like a gigantic pillar with sloping sides to the north and south, and of a light yellow color. On the north it abruptly descends into a narrow gorge terminating westward in the picturesque "Canon de las Casas, through which one may descend into the high Sierra and cross it to the southern portion of the "Valles." On the south the country is more level, still the low Canadas soon end, abutting against rugged mountains of the "Sierra de la Pallsada." At the eastern foot of the rock lies the "Canada de Cochiti" with its settlement.

In the west the surface of the Potrero leans against a still higher mesa. Thus the Potrero appears as an advance post in the western chain, boldly projecting, overlooking a wide range of view towards the east, northeast and south, and of difficult access from every side. The rock is friable pumice-stone, and along the base of the cliff the enormous detached masses that have fallen crowd over each other in a manner suggesting forcibly the moraines and terminal masses of ice of a wide glacier.

To ascend the Potrero, three trails are available. One creeps up on the eastern front; it is narrow, steep, and its upper end demands careful climbing. Another ascends from the north, and is still steeper than the one first mentioned. A long trail rises on a gentler grade from the south, and on this trail horses and cattle can reach the summit though with some trouble, by making a detour of several miles in length. The upper rim of the naked cliffs is vertical for a height of from five to twenty feet, and only through fissures in this mural rim do the two trails first named reach the top. The total length of the mesa from west to east is about two miles. Its width varies from a few hundred feet in the east to half a mile in the middle. Scrubby timber, the usual shrubbery, and cacti, cover the summit. There is no living water, but natural tanks like at Acoma supply a limited number of occupants all the year through, if they are properly attended to in the rainy season and during the period of snowfall. The soil is fertile in places, and as the rainfall is usually greater in the mountains as at some distance from their base, Indian corn can grow there without irrigation. The Potrero Viejo could therefore support a small tribe of Indians for several years, if necessary, and it is furthermore such an excellent defensive position, that we cannot but admire the selection which the Queres had made of it, as a stronghold which they were quite justified in considering as impregnable. At this day, of course, with improved firearms, and their enormous range, it would be a very easy matter to dislodge any force that might take refuge on the towering cliff. The Potrero Largo lies near to it on the north, and from its extensive surface even musketry-fire would prove very telling. But in 1694 the clumsy weapons admitted of but two ways of overcoming the occupants of the rock: a long blockade, or direct assault. The former might have been unavailing during a whole year, the latter was extremely dangerous and its result doubtful to say the least.

I have already alluded to the extensive view enjoyed from the top of the Potrero Viejo. It is therefore also an excellent post of observation. Not a crow can flutter in the valley beneath without being noticed by videttes stationed along the edge of the mesa. During the dangerous period of the last hostilities of the Navahos, these prowlers used the Potrero often as a lookout. The valley (or Canada) beneath, was formerly a modestly thriving spot. Several hundreds of Mexican families dwelt in adobe and stone buildings along the banks of the arroyo. Now the ruins of their homes only testify their former existence as well as of the frightful depredations committed by hostile roaming Indians. The hamlet of today is but a shadow of what it was ninety years ago. The Canada is also, archaeologically, an interesting place. A short distance below the settlement lie the ruins of the ancient Pueblo of Cuapa, one of the prehistoric villages of the Queres tribe; rubbish-mounds and the usual remnants of pottery and implements designate its location, together with a number of circular depressions indicating former estufas. Cuapa was abandoned and decaying long before the sixteenth century. Folklore has it that those portions of the Queres stock which afterwards became the tribes of San Felipe, Cochiti, and possibly, Santo Domingo, dwelt here together many centuries ago. A savage tribe, the name of which is variously stated, surprised its inhabitants at one time and drove them from their abodes. Those of them that afterwards became the Cochiti Indians re-occupied Cuapa, but the remainder of the survivors fled down the Rio Grande and became the Indians of San Felipe. Cuapa was assailed a second time by the Tehuas of San Ildefonso and its inhabitants retreated to the Potrero Viejo where they successfully held their own. In the course of time, however, finding residence on the mesa too uncomfortable, they moved to the banks of the Rio Grande and built Cochiti near where it today stands. The summit of the Potrero Viejo shows therefore ruins from two distinct periods. The older ones are well nigh obliterated, but the more recent pueblo, the one constructed after 1681 and abandoned in 1694, is still in a fair state of preservation. It is commonly called the old pueblo of Cochiti, and its walls of friatic blocks of pumice stone reach in places the height of two stories. It lies nearly in the middle of the surface of the mesa, and is so sheltered as not to be visible from below. This pueblo, it was which the hostile Queres of Cochiti and San Marcos, as well as some from the Cienega, occupied and held at the time of this sketch.

From this inaccessible point, the Queres were a constant threat to their loyal kindred of San Felipe and Cia. They ran off their stock and ambushed the people in the fields. They also sent occasional war parties over to the Tehuas and now and then there seemed to be traces of their lurking in the vicinity of Santa Fe. De Vargas, finding himself powerless to assuage the more numerous Tehua garrison of the mesa of San Ildefonso and impurated by his allies of San Felipe and Cia for relief, determined in April, to march against the Potrero Viejo, although with doubtful prospects of success.

On the thirteenth of April he left Santa Fe with seventy soldiers and twenty armed settlers, militia, as we 20 armed settlers, and too, the road towards San Felipe. That pueblo stood then on the long and broad mesa above the present village, and its ruins are visible now from below, standing out boldly, like a "castle on the Rhine." On the fifteenth he reached the village, where he was received with open arms, and where one hundred warriors from San Felipe, Santa Ana and Cia, ostensibly under the command of Bartolome de Ojeda joined his small force. "Ostensibly," for Ojeda was only the war captain of Cia, and while he took an active part in subsequent operations, he commanded in reality but the men of his own village. Still he was the chief adviser of De Vargas in what followed, although a part of his role was that of an interpreter rather than of a leader. The distance, in a direct line, that separates San Felipe from the Potrero is about twenty miles, and since the Spaniards were all mounted, the transit was quite rapid. About midnight on the sixteenth of April, the combined forces reached the Canada and halted on the banks of the arroyo out of sight of the Potrero. Before arriving however, the rock had burst into view and it was noticed that the Indians had posted sentinels along its upper rim. Numerous camp fires indicated the presence and positions of these guards. The approach of the enemy had evidently been noticed by the Queres, and they had taken precautions. An immediate advance upon the formidable cliff was therefore a difficult undertaking, a surprise impossible.

De Vargas nevertheless resolved upon attempting a night attack, as it was clear to him that nothing could be effected in the day time. He summoned a council of war of both his officers and the Indian leaders, and the latter, well acquainted with the locality, suggested, through the medium of Ojeda, a plan of attack which seemed to present some chances of success. They knew that, in addition to the natural defenses, the Queres had raised stone parapets along the brink of the mesa, where the eastern and northern trails reach the summit. That these places were guarded was plain from the watch fires seen from below. But they also knew of the third trail, the longest but least steep one, which creeps up to the mesa from the south. On the existence of that trail they based their plan of attack. Ojeda suggested therefore that he, with the hundred Indian warriors and forty Spanish soldiers, should follow the trail in order to reach the rear of the pueblo on the top. While this was being executed, the captain, Roque Madrid, with about twenty men, was to make a strong demonstration to climb the eastern ascent, and the adjutant, Diego Barera, with ten men should do the same from the north. Both of these feints were to be made with as much noise of musketry fire as possible, so as to divert the attention of the enemy from the principal movement in their rear. De Vargas, himself, with the remainder of the Spanish force, was to occupy a position at the foot of the Potrero, intermediate between the settlement and the Canada.

GAINED FORTY POUNDS IN THIRTY DAYS.
For several months our younger brother had been troubled with indigestion. He tried several remedies but got no benefit from them. We purchased some of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and he commenced taking them. Inside of thirty days he had gained forty pounds in flesh. He is now fully recovered. We have a good trade on the Tablets.—HOLLEY BROS., Merchants Long Branch, Mo. For sale by all druggists.

HE LEARNED A GREAT TRUTH.
It is said of John Wesley that he once said to Mistress Wesley: "Why do you tell that child the same thing over and over again?" "John Wesley, because once telling is not enough." It is for this same reason that you are told again and again that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cures colds and grip; that it counteracts any tendency of these diseases to result in pneumonia, and that it is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggists.

SAVED HIS LIFE.
J. W. Davenport, Wingo, Ky., writes June 14, 1902: "I want to tell you I believe Ballard's Snow Liniment saved my life. I was under the treatment of two doctors, and they told me one of my lungs was entirely gone, and the other badly affected. I also had a lump in my side. I don't think that I could have lived two months longer. I was induced by a friend to try Ballard's Snow Liniment. The first application gave me great relief; two fifty cent bottles cured me sound and well. It is a wonderful medicine and I recommend it to suffering humanity." 25c, 50c, $1.00.
