The Albuquerque Journal comments on the fact that not less than from one million to a million and a half dollars are taken every year to Europe by musical students, and adds that this sum is all lost to America. Yet the Journal smiles approval when many times that sum is taken from the people of New Mexico every year to enrich the brewers and distillers of the east, and to make poorer and poorer the wage earners of New Mexico. It is possible that the music students who go to Europe may re turn to make enjoyable many hours for their friends, but the men who pay their hard-earned dollars to the brewers and distillers can hardly be said to make enjoyable the hours of their friends and neighbors.

ROCKHILL AS A TIBETAN.

neident in the Gareer of the New Am-

Take it from William Woodville Rockhill-doesn't that sound like a name in a play?—that exploring Tibet is like sauntering down a shady lane. The new ambassador to Russia is distinctly skeptical of those gentlemen who go to Tibet and get themselves hung up by the lobe of the ear and have repousse designs in powder burns worked all over them in the buttonhole stitch. They make him think, he says, of a certain famous attempt to find the north pole, in which the relief party got so much farther north than the explorer did that the unfortunate scientist had to burry like thunder to catch up with it. That farthest south arctic expedition has been equaled, he says, by some of the Tibetan explorers.

And Mr. Rockhill ought to know, for he wandered all over Tibet, protected by a cold American nerve and his looks-not that he is proud of his looks. When he planned that Tibetan ured a boarding place near depot for trip he was second secretary of the American legation at Pekin, and his servant was a narive Tibetan. "Am I too handsome to pass for a Tibetan?" asked Mr. Rockhill of the menial. Mr. Rockhill was slyly facetious. The Tibetan was as solemn and matter of fact as the death record in the family Bible. He said he fenred the displeasure of the noble lord if he were to answer truthfully. Mr. Rockbill began to lose the savor of that jest, but he insisted. "But the noble lord will hereafter hate his faithful servant," protested the Tibetan.

"Darn it." said Mr. Rockhill in excellent Tibetan, "you tell me what's the matter with my looks!"

"All is wrong," said the Tibetaneverything is wrong with the excellency's looks save and except his magulficent big nose. Because of that most spectacular and ornate organ he may pass as a Tibetan of the second class, and by further disguise he may be accepted as one of the nobility. But the nobility are very handsome men.'

Just the same, Mr. Rockhill traveled unmolested all over Tibet and didn't have to raise his voice during his stay in the Forbidden Land. Even if he isn't a good looking Tibetan he is ordinarily considered a very classy American. Tall, portly, of distinguished presence, he is an ardent scholar.- New York Globe.

GREAT AFRICAN REGATTA.

Zambezi River to Be Scene of Gath ering of World's Crews.

The Zambezi river above the Victoria falls, in Africa, is to be the scene of a great international regatta, managed by the British South Africa company, in June, 1910. It is expected that crews from all the rowing centers of the world will participate, and there will be races for fours, pairs and scullers as well as for eight oared crews. The company has arranged that the famous oarsman Guy Nickalls take charge of the affair. In a recent conversation at London Mr. Nickalls said: "Owing to the date falling just be-one crew, if not two or three crews. from the United States as well as entries from Belgian and possibly French and Italian clubs. I think I can coun the course and watch South African rowing. I shall get there in time for their annual Whitsuntide regatta and shall be able to judge if their form will enable them to compete with the rest of the world's oarsmen or whether it will be necessary to have an inter-African challenge cup. I shall get back just in time for Henley, where I hope to meet French, Italian and Belgian crews and get them interested in the matter."

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman
need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays
proper attention to her health.
Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves aconer
or later on the surface. Headache, dark angs around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help.
They work in nature's own way. They do not neerly flush the bowels but tone up the liver and
