ZUNI RIVER RESERVOIR

Construction Work Thereon is Being Rapidly Pushed Under Superintendent Harper.

SHEEP DOING WELL

Many Remains of Prehistoric Animals in Excavations--One Hundred and Fifty Men Now Actively Employed.

James T. Newhall of this city, who is employed as foreman on the construction of the huge Zuni River reservoir and ditch system now going on under the efficient direction of Superintendent John B. Harper, is in town on a short visit to his family. Mr. Newhall stated to a representative of the New Mexican that work was progressing there as rapidly and as favorably, as it was possible with the number of workmen that can be secured. There are about 150 men at work at present. More could be used, but at this time they cannot be secured as the people of that section, including the Indians, have been of late and are very busy now, in the shearing of sheep and their shearing, as well as in looking after their crops. The sheepmen in that part of McKinley County, seem to have done much better than those in other sections of the Territory. During the past month there have been considerable snows in the mountains and frequent rains and the sheepmen have and are saving from 75 to 80 per cent of the lambs. A Navaho Indian trader at Guano, well acquainted with the conditions on the Navaho reservation, stated that the Navahos now own over 100,000 sheep and that the prospects for this industry on the Navaho reservation for the present year are good. The excavations for the great dam which is to cross the Zuni River and form a reservoir wherein sufficient water for the irrigation of about 6,000 acres of land to be cultivated by the Zuni Indians, is to be impounded, are now down in the bed of the river to the depth of 30 feet. This part of the work is called "the puddle trench." It is very hard and difficult as the underground seepage in the bed of the river is very powerful and constant. This work will have to be pushed until the hard clay is reached, as there the foundation and core of the dam will be placed. Modern and up to date steam machinery is on the ground and is used in excavation. More men could be employed, could they be had. Superintendent Harper is a pusher and is on the ground from early in the morning until late at night. He is a hard worker and nothing great or small, important or unimportant escapes his observation. The work is being done in an efficient and thorough manner as it is possible for men and machinery. Intelligently, efficiently and carefully directed to do it.

A new postoffice will soon be established on the scene of these operations to be called Blackrock and Mark Bennett will be appointed postmaster. This will be a great accommodation to the men employed there as they receive considerable mail, which now is carried overland from Guano a station on the Santa Fe Pacific Railway 60 miles distant. The lumber used in the work and for barracks and buildings also comes from the saw mills at Guano which are owned by Major Clark M. Carr, who is well known in this city. In the excavations in the river bed quite a number of well preserved mastodon tusks and bones were found. Some of the latter were ribs four feet in length. These have been put aside and the Smithsonian Institute has been informed of the finds. Three heads of an extinct animal were discovered. They are quite large, about two feet in length and sixteen inches in width. They were those of a flesh eating animal, as the teeth which are very well preserved indicate. The heads have two straight horns from sixteen to twenty inches long. Under the horns are the eyes, which from indications seem to have enabled the animal to look sideways and backwards as the eye sockets are situated on the side and eye holes are situated on the side and quite a distance back on the head. Bones of other prehistoric animals are found. These were not destroyed, but laid by to be sent to the Smithsonian. The working force consists partly of Zuni Indians who are methodical, slow, but careful and good workers. There are two Santa Fe boys employed on the work under Superintendent John B. Harper. They are Walter L. Miller, son of David L. Miller of this city, and John L. Gresham. They are assistant foremen and draw good salaries, although both Miller and Gresham are not yet of age. They have charge of large gangs of workmen and handle things very satisfactorily and efficiently. Indeed they are doing very well. They are sober, industrious and hard workers, studying engineering books at night and are a credit to the old town of Santa Fe.

POPULISTS FOR HEARST.

Should He Be Nominated By Democrats No Man Will Be Named By That Party.

Louisville, Ky., May 21--The Times says today: Chairman Parker of the national executive committee of the Populist party said today in an interview that Hearst would receive the support of the Populists in Kentucky and elsewhere. "I speak for the national leaders of my party when I say I am for him," said Parker. "His views and principles agree with ours. He advocates certain principles for which we have been fighting for years. If the Democrats nominate him, the Populists will put up no ticket." "But does not the Populist party meet in national convention July 4 before the Democratic convention?" "Yes, that is a fact," replied Parker, "but I am now advocating the postponement of this date for two weeks in order that we may know whether the Democrats nominate Hearst or whether they are able to name a man who believes as he does."

AN OFFICIAL JUSTICE OF THE PEACE

The Laguna Pueblos Appeal From His Judgment--A Grievance of the Indians at Sandia.

A. J. Abbott, United States attorney for the Pueblo Indians, has appealed to the District Court for Valencia County, from the decision of Fernin Marquez, justice of the peace at Seboyeta, on behalf of several Laguna Indians. The Indians claim ownership to a spring and surrounding land near Pajuate, not far from Laguna pueblo. Lately several of the settlers have claimed possession of the spring and land. They brought an action for forcible entry and detainer against the Indians before Justice of the Peace Fernin Marquez at Seboyeta. The Indians did not take the matter seriously and did not answer the summons. They were then summoned for contempt of court and in defense stated that they owned the property in question and raised the question of jurisdiction. Nevertheless, the justice of the peace gave judgment against them. When Judge A. J. Abbott was notified of this, he went to Seboyeta to see the justice of the peace, but the latter found it convenient to be absent. Judge A. J. Abbott then sent the farmer at Laguna to Seboyeta with the appeal bond, but the justice of the peace again absented himself, but the appeal bond was left at his house. Marquez later sent word that upon consulting with the attorney of the plaintiffs, he found that his decision had been right and he therefore refused an appeal. Judge Abbott then went before Judge B. S. Baker at Albuquerque, who issued a mandate to the justice of the peace to grant the appeal. The matter will come up at the next session of the District Court of Valencia County. Judge A. J. Abbott has not yet been officially notified of the difficulty of the Pueblos of Sandia with the board of county commissioners of Sandoval County over the Alameda dyke, but expects to be so in a few days when he will decide what legal steps he will take on behalf of the Indians.

RUSSIAN CRUISER BOGATYR IS ON THE ROCKS

The Japanese Rout the Enemy in Two Skirmishes--Corean Garrison Drives Off Cossacks--Rumor of a Big Battle at Liao Tung.

Chefoo, May 21--There is a rumor among the Chinese that a battle has been fought on the Liao Tung Peninsula today. It cannot however, be confirmed.

The Bogatyr on the Rocks. St. Petersburg, May 21--In spite of continued denials from the admiralty here, reports emanating from Russian sources are persistently circulated that the Russian cruiser Bogatyr is on the rocks at Vladivostok. According to these reports Rear Admiral Jensen is making determined efforts to save the ship with what is considered good prospects of success. It may be stated positively that the cruiser has not been blown up by the Russians as such a step is wholly unnecessary at the present time at least.

Russians Routed at Wang Chai Tung. Tokio, May 21--The Japanese forces which landed at Taku Shan on Thursday surrounded and routed a force of Russian cavalry at 7 o'clock on Friday evening in the neighborhood of Wang Chai Tung, seven miles north of Taku Shan. The Russian forces, which consisted of about one squadron, lost many men killed and wounded as well as a captain who was captured. The Japanese sustained no losses.

Corean and Russian Clash. Seoul, May 21--The Japanese consul at Gensan reports that the first collision between the Russian and Corean troops has taken place at Kan Kow. The Cossacks attacked the so-called Caty Castle at 7 o'clock in the evening of May 19 and exchanged shots for two hours, with a Corean garrison of 300 men who lost one man killed. The Russians retired and are reported by the natives to have had several wounded.

Russian Cruiser Bogatyr Stranded. London, May 21--A dispatch to the St. James Gazette from Kobe, Japan, dated today, after confirming the report of the stranding of the Russian protected cruiser Bogatyr on rocks near the entrance to Vladivostok adds that the cruiser was subsequently blown up by the Russians to prevent its falling into the hands of the Japanese.

Japanese Reconnoitering Around Port Arthur.

London, May 21--A dispatch to the Japanese legation from Tokio says that Vice Admiral Togo has reported today as follows: The gunboat squadron and torpedo boat destroyers and torpedo boat flotillas approached Port Arthur yesterday, for the purpose of reconnoitering, which was successfully effected with little damage in spite of the hot cross fire from the forts. There were no casualties on our side.

Delay Favorable to Russians. Mukden, May 21--The main body of the Japanese forces, estimated at 80,000, remains south of the Russian troops who are covering Liao Yang. They apparently have suspended their advances. This inaction gives surprise and some satisfaction to every day's postponement of a decisive engagement is considered favorable for the Russians, who are daily increasing their forces and are enabled by the delay to strengthen their positions.

Japanese Have Captured Kai Chou. Tokio, May 21--Although it is not officially reported, it is said on good authority that the Japanese forces have captured Kai Chou, driving the Russians back to Tashi Chi in the direction of New Chwang, and preventing the advance of the Russian troops at New Chwang in the direction of Kai Chou.

Russian Mines in Neutral Waters. Tokio, May 21--It is absolutely certain that the battleship Hatsuse was sunk by a Russian mine in miles off the coast. The position of these mines makes navigation dangerous for neutral vessels and a protest from foreign vessels is expected.

General Stoessel's Fortie.

St. Petersburg, May 21--The government today received news confirming rumors that General Stoessel had made a successful sortie from Port Arthur, resulting in the defeat of the Japanese with a loss of more than 1,000 killed and wounded. The Russian losses were 115 killed and wounded.

The movement was carried out by a combination with a train bringing in war munitions and supplies and General Stoessel's force, communication being maintained by wireless telegraph. The Japanese barred the route between the train and General Stoessel's force, whereupon the Russians attacked and routed the Japanese after an engagement. General Stoessel's force, together with the train, returned to Port Arthur.

Driving the Russians Before Them.

Washington, May 21--The Japanese legation received the following from Tokio: "On May 20, one company of the enemy appeared six miles north of Taku Shan and were paralleled by our infantry. It fled with many casualties. One Russian prisoner was taken. There were no Japanese casualties."

FLOODS IN COLORADO

Many Lives Lost and Millions of Dollars Worth of Damages Done Last Night.

Sixty Persons Injured by it at Pueblo--A Big Reservoir Near Greeley Breaks.

Greeley, Colorado, May 21--It is reported that reservoir No. 2 containing 400,000,000 cubic feet of water, has gone out and the water is now rushing down upon New Windsor and Greeley. A dispatch from New Windsor says that Robert Stroude was drowned last night and it is reported that ten Russians working in the sugar beet field lost their lives. Others are reported to have been carried away by the floods.

Damage Runs in the Millions.

Fort Collins, May 21--Estimates of the damage caused by the flood in the Cache la Poudre Valley last night run upwards from one million dollars. The headwaters of all the irrigation ditches were washed away and miles of embankments were destroyed. Unless repairs are made in time for irrigation this season, the loss will be nearer two millions than one. One hundred and fifty houses in the Russian settlement at the sugar factory were destroyed but no lives were lost.

Many Injured By Hailstorm.

Pueblo, May 21--Between 50 and 60 cases of injuries as the result of the hailstorm yesterday afternoon, have Memorial Day Proclamation.

Governor Otero today issued the following Memorial Day proclamation:

The beautiful and universal custom inaugurated in this nation more than a generation ago, which as time goes by only increases the reason for such custom, of publicly honoring the memory of those who have given up their lives for the nation, by setting apart a day consecrated to their honor and in memory of their noble deeds, has grown to have the force of unwritten law in the United States.

In accordance with that custom and in order that the dead of the nation may be properly honored in New Mexico, and the living may be reminded of their duty to their country and of their obligation to those who laid down their lives that it might live, and their further duty towards those who still survive from the perils of war:

Now, therefore, I, Miguel A. Otero, Governor of the Territory of New Mexico, do recommend that upon Monday, the thirtieth day of May, A. D. 1904, the people of the Territory refrain from all unnecessary labor, and all public amusements, and join with the Grand Army of the Republic, and other patriotic societies in a due and proper observance of Memorial Day, recalling the memory of the heroic dead and recounting their valiant deeds.

Let us on that day, by song and speech and sweet flowers give expression of our reverence and gratitude to those who gave their lives to perpetuate the republic, to acts of respect and care for those soldiers and sailors who have survived the wars, in which they were engaged and in honor of those who are now serving their country as soldiers and sailors.

Done at the executive office this the 21st day of May, A. D. 1904.

Witness my hand and the great seal of the Territory of New Mexico.

Seal MIGUEL A. OTERO,

By the Governor:

J. W. RAYNOLDS,

Secretary of New Mexico.

SEVENTEEN VICTIMS

To Diphtheria at the Pueblo of Cochiti--Progress of Disease Checked.

Indian Inspector Levi Chubbuck and Superintendent Clinton J. Crandall of the U. S. Industrial Indian School, have returned from a week's visit to the Jemez, Zia, Santo Domingo and Cochiti pueblos. Matters were found in a very satisfactory condition in all these Indian towns, excepting Cochiti where an epidemic of diphtheria has prevailed for the last two months and where during the last five weeks seventeen persons, mostly children have died from the dread disease. It seems that this was brought to the Indian town from the town of Pena Blanca where it has been raging more or less during the entire winter and where there have occurred a number of deaths. Dr. David Knapp of this city was sent to the Cochiti pueblo to attend the diphtheria cases there and has succeeded in checking the progress of the disease.

THE PUEBLO OF PECOS

The Origin of the Name Traced in an Interesting Manner by Ex-Governor L. B. Prince.

THE RIVER AND THE TOWN

At One Time the Largest Settlement in What is Now the United States of America

The following article on the name of the Pecos River was written by Hon. L. Bradford Prince in response to an application of the Historical Society of Texas, asking for information as to the origin of the name.

The name Pecos is not of Spanish origin, and when the word now occurs in Spanish, it is of comparatively recent use, and is undoubtedly derived from the name of the river, or that of the town from which the river itself is named.

Thus, there is a weed which is found on the plains in a number of parts of New Mexico, known as the "Yerba de Peco." It is poisonous to animals, and at times has been very destructive. Among the Mexican people it has a high reputation as a love potion and a woman intent on securing the undying affection of the object of her choice, has only to administer a very small amount of the leaf of this invaluable plant, either in food or drink, to insure his most passionate and enduring love. The effect is said to be instantaneous and overwhelming; so much so, that the man is no longer responsible for his actions, as he is acting under the power of an irresistible spell; and when a man shows a sudden infatuation for a woman, that cannot otherwise be accounted for, the Mexican women, with feminine lack of appreciation of their fortunate sister, say, "She must have given him Yerba de Peco."

The Pecos River is undoubtedly named from the chief town which existed on its headwaters, known to us as the Pueblo de Pecos.

At the time of the expedition of Coronado, this was altogether the most important of the Pueblo Indian villages, and certainly exceeded in its population and the character of its buildings, any other town in the new world, north of the City of Mexico. It seems strange to think that the largest and most important permanent seat of population in what is now the United States, at the time of the discovery of America, was situated in the mountainous region of New Mexico, but such is the fact; and its ruins should be an object of highest interest to all who pass within plain sight of them, when traveling with all the swiftness and convenience of modern invention, on the Santa Fe line.

The first news of its existence that came to any white man, was when Coronado's little army was resting, in July, 1540, at Cibola, the modern Zuni, and awaiting the return of the exploring party under Cardenas, that had been sent by Coronado to visit the Mogul towns, and the wonderful Grand Canon of the Colorado. It was then that a company of strangers from the far east presented themselves, under command of a man of much intelligence and charm of manner, known in history only as Bigotes, because his beard was his noticeable feature. He came as an envoy to welcome the Spaniards and invite them to his city, and in his description of the country to the east, he laid special stress on the vastness of the number of wild cows, (buffaloes), which covered the plains, and from which it is afterward called by the chroniclers "the Buffalo country."

The city was then called Ciclic, and the first mention of the Pecos River is in the following words, "a great and very deep river which flows near Ciclic, and was therefore called the Rio de Ciclic." On the return of Coronado's expedition from Quivira, one detachment of his little army struck the river quite a distance below the town, and was compelled to march up its banks, until they reached Ciclic itself. The vast herds of buffaloes in the vicinity, formed the characteristic feature of the country.

There is now no doubt of the identity of Ciclic with the more modern Pecos; but there has been strange confusion as to its name. The only edition of Castaneda's narration of Coronado's march which was available to Americans, until very recently, was the French translation published by Ternaux Compans, in Paris, in 1838, and in this the name is always printed Cicuye, with an acute accent on the final "e." This was naturally followed by Davis, Simpson, Bandler, Bancroft, etc., and, singularly enough, also by Winship, whose excellent opportunities for accurate information, should have preserved him from the error.

Besides the narration of the Castaneda, there is another history of this expedition, by Captain Juan Jaramillo, which though more brief, was published much earlier than that of the former. (Continued on Page Seven.)

MORE JOINT STATEHOOD HOT AIR

"Arizona will remain a territory until it becomes a state single and alone until a provision is inserted in the bill, giving it independent statehood, so soon as our population will warrant a sovereign state"—Tucson Star.

"If Arizona were willing to compromise on such a proposition as that, it might open a way out of all trouble on the statehood question, for we believe the advocates of joint statehood would agree to it, for two reasons:

"First—Because it would not be unjust to the other states of the union, as would be the admission of the territory with its present meager population; and

"Second—Because everybody knows or is fully convinced that if the two territories should live together as one state till they should become sufficiently populous to warrant their organization as two states, they would have grown together so firmly that it would be impossible to pry them apart."

The above from the Albuquerque Journal is hot air no more and no less. Arizona will not have the requisite population to pry loose from New Mexico within the next 50 years. Take Colorado for an example. It came in to the Union in 1876 with a population of 140,000. The census of 1890 gave the state 412,198 and the census of 1900, 529,700 inhabitants and at a very high estimate today there are within its borders 650,000 people; Colorado has grown more rapidly and constantly than New Mexico or Arizona ever will or ever can. The chances are that in 1920 Arizona will have not over 200,000 people and New Mexico not over 350,000 people. This talk that the joint state of Arizona will have a million inhabitants in 1910 is the purest nonsense and rankest humbug. In addition the joint statehood men may consent to compromise as indicated above, but where will the anti-joint statehood men be? If the esteemed Journal believes that the latter will stand idly by and will allow the joint statehood boomers to have it all their own way, that paper will find itself badly mistaken.

In examining the census returns from 1880 to 1900 it is clearly proven that the new states in the arid region, excepting Colorado, have not been greatly benefited by statehood. Colorado is the only state which has trebled its population since its admission and it took 27 years to do so. Wyoming, Utah, Montana, Idaho, North Dakota and South Dakota have not grown, comparatively speaking, as much as New Mexico has during the decade from 1890 to 1900, although they are sovereign states. Colorado is to be sure has done quite well but it will take another decade and a half before it will reach the million population mark. The claim that New Mexico and Arizona under the name of Arizona as a state will have a million people in 1910 is based upon nothing but imagination and romance; the solid facts as found in the census returns of 1900 in very legible black type on very good paper prove this absolutely. This talk of area without population making a great and powerful state is nonsensical and is a silly argument. New Mexico in 1900 showed 197,000 people. If in 1910 it shall come up to the 300,000 mark it will beat any section of the United States in growth and increase in population. Arizona in this respect cannot and will not compare with what is New Mexico now for many years to come.

The Woman's Board of Trade of this city, an organization of influential, public spirited and good women approves the plan advanced by this paper for years, namely that the tracts in the Fort Marcy donation not absolutely necessary for school purposes, should be promptly sold at the best obtainable terms after due public notice and the proceeds applied towards the construction of the very necessary modern school buildings here. The Woman's Board of Trade collectively and individually has a very level head in this matter and its opinion will surely have weight with the present school authorities. It also represents without a doubt the drift of public sentiment in the matter. The city board of education will please take due notice and govern itself accordingly. It is always good policy to keep on the right side of the women.

ROOSEVELT WILL PROVE A GREAT VOTE GETTER.

Strange things have occurred in American politics during the past dozen years, and more than likely such will take place in this year's campaign. No matter who shall be nominated by the Democratic party at the St. Louis convention, there is every probability that many Democrats will vote for Mr. Roosevelt who will be the Republican candidate for the presidency and that large numbers of Populists will do the same thing. There were many breaks in political lines during the presidential elections in 1896 and 1900 and in both years this condition of affairs aided the Republican national ticket. Similar occurrences will happen this year and these from all indications, will also be beneficial to Republican success. In this connection the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says that some of the Democrats are beginning to be exercised over the suspicion that the Populists in 1904 will support Roosevelt instead of the Democratic candidate. They are pointing to the circumstance that a familiar figure at the White House these days is Marion Butler of North Carolina, a former Senator from that state, and for a long time at the head of the Populist national committee, a position which he still holds. It is said that Butler is an ardent admirer of Roosevelt. He has been talking so strongly in favor of the President that some of his old allies of the Democratic party say he will support Roosevelt this year.

There is a possibility that Butler will be in the Republican line in 1904. Lots of old-time Populists will vote the Republican ticket this year. So will lots of old-time Democrats. The Republican standard bearer of 1904 will draw heavily on the other parties for support. Throughout the west there is a general disintegration of party forces when Roosevelt is the issue. All political shades of voters are in favor of him. He will carry the west by a majority which will look very imposing in figures. He will also carry every state in the east which has been casting Republican ballots in the electoral college in recent presidential years.

The Democrats regret the loss of their Populist allies of 1896 and 1900, but the drift among the Populists is away from the Democrats now. Many men who supported and shouted for Bryan in the two latest presidential canvasses will be in the Roosevelt line in 1904. These are days when party ties in the west, among all the people except the Republicans, sit very lightly. In every state north of the Ohio the Republican vote in 1904 will touch very high figures. This will be true, too, in all the normally Republican states west of the Mississippi. Some of the trans-Mississippi states which have usually been Democratic are likely to be either doubtful or Republican this year. Nevada, which has been going Democratic recently, will be Republican in 1904. So will Colorado, Idaho and Montana. This is going to be a grand year for the Republican party and for the great American nation.

TOO JEALOUS!

"The Santa Fe New Mexican is overly zealous in its advocacy of Attorney E. A. Mann for the judgeship of the new sixth judicial district, and has announced that Judge B. S. Baker of this city has endorsed Mr. Mann, for the office. Judge Baker wishes it to be distinctly understood that he is taking no part whatever in the race for the appointment of a judge for the new judicial district, and has endorsed no particular candidate for the office. Judge Baker believes, holding the office he does, that it would be unwise for him to endorse Mr. Mann or any other candidate for the aforesaid office. He admits giving Mr. Mann a letter of introduction to Hon. Solomon Luna, the Republican national committeeman of New Mexico, and one also to Hon. Frank A. Hubbell, chairman of the territorial Republican central committee, but in neither of these letters, says Judge Baker, did he endorse Attorney Mann, or even suggest an endorsement for the Las Cruces gentleman."—Albuquerque Citizen.

The esteemed Citizen is too zealous in this matter. If Judge Baker and the editor of the Citizen will carefully read the New Mexican's articles in connection with the filling of the office of a new associate justice of the Territorial Supreme Court, they will find that all the New Mexican said was that Judge Baker had made favorable statements as to Mr. Mann's legal ability and fitness to perform the duties of the high judicial office which he seeks. The New Mexican did not state that Judge Baker had endorsed Mr. Mann for the position. The New Mexican, as does Judge Baker, believes it would be improper for a member of the territorial Supreme Court to endorse any applicant for appointment to the bench, and did not state that the Judge had done so.

A Washington dispatch announces that $27,000,000 have been set apart by the secretary of the interior for expenditure in irrigation systems. New Mexico is to come in for a very small fraction for the Hondo reservoir twelve miles from Roswell in Chaves County. What is the matter with taking up the Elephant Butte reservoir project and the White Rock Canon project both on the Rio Grande, which are reported to be very feasible. The reclamation service of the department of the interior should give New Mexico a better chance.

The expected has again happened. Ex-Governor Pattison of Pennsylvania is being mentioned for the Democratic nomination for the presidency.

The New Mexican prints the news.

Sideache, Backache, Headache, etc., are cured also.

And many other aches to which women are peculiarly subject are generally the result of a diseased condition of the womanly organism. When this diseased condition is cured, sideache, backache, headache, etc., are cured also.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. When these diseases are cured the aches they cause are also cured.

"I will drop you a few lines to-day to let you know that I am feeling well now," writes Miss Annie Stephens, of Belleville, Wood Co., West Va. "I feel like a new woman. I took several bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have no headache now, no backache, and no pain in my side any more. No bearing-down pain any more. I think that there is no medicine like Dr. Pierce's medicine. I thank you very much for what you have done for me—your medicine has done me much good."

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book containing 1008 pages, is given away. Send 21 one-cent stamps for expense of mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

A great deal of difficulty was experienced in the Illinois state convention in the nomination of a governor. This is considered by some people a good omen. Generally, difficulties in selecting candidates work the other way. The convention adjourned until May 31 without nominating a state ticket. It is hoped that by that time of reassembling the candidates for governor will have had the size of their heads reduced to natural proportions. This fight over office in Illinois is very likely to do great harm to the Republican party in this election unless it shall be properly and speedily settled at the re-assembling of the convention at Springfield.

Judge Alton Brooks Parker is aping the Grover Cleveland tricks. He has come out with the statement that he believes that Presidents of the United States should serve but one term. That's what Mr. Cleveland said and that very emphatically at his first election. He forgot all about this when he was nominated the second time, ran a third time without thinking of it and now wants to run the fourth time without heeding it.

The Wisconsin Republicans have made fools of themselves. They have placed two gubernatorial candidates in the field. There is too much political ambition among them, and unless one of these candidates withdraws and the differences are settled before the campaign really opens, harm will come to the Republican party of the state in the coming election. This is too plain to be disputed.

Rains have fallen in the central and northern sections of the Territory of late and the situation is somewhat relieved there. More rain fall is necessary, especially in the southern part. At any rate the prospects for stock and for the farmers are better. Even small favors in the shape of rain fall are always thankfully received in New Mexico.

The Russian minister of finance has just published a statement showing why Russia borrowed 150,000,000 rubles recently. He might have saved himself the labor. The money was borrowed because Russia needed it and everybody knew this right along.

MISS IDA M. SNYDER,

Treasurer of the Brooklyn East End Art Club.

MENSTRUAL irregularities are generally the beginning of a woman's troubles. With the vitality at a low ebb, the blood weakened, the digestion disordered, she goes about pale-faced, hollow-eyed and haggard, a piteous contrast to the blooming health of her former self. But over 1,000,000 women have found health again by taking Wine of Cardui. As a regulator of the menstrual periods Wine of Cardui has never been known to fail. It has seldom failed to restore perfect health, even in the most persistent and aggravated case of weakness. Miss Ida M. Snyder, of No. 535 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., has used Wine of Cardui and she says it helped her into a new life. Health to Miss Snyder is worth a great deal. She is an attractive young woman with intellectual attainments and she occupies the position of Treasurer of the Brooklyn East End Art Club. This position marks her as a person of intellect, culture and refinement and it speaks highly of the respect and trust her fellow women have in her. She writes:

Miss Ida M. Snyder.

to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would use more intelligence in the matter of medicines, observing results, they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for.

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

You may secure the same relief as Miss Snyder, if you take Wine of Cardui as she took it. Thedford's Black-Draught is the companion medicine of Wine of Cardui and it is a liver and bowel regulator which assists greatly in effecting a cure. If you take these medicines according to directions, the relief and cure is simple. Some cases are cured quickly and others take longer because the disease has run longer. Remember how Miss Snyder took Wine of Cardui and has health. The same medicines are offered you to-day.

Irrigation Though of Recent Origin Has Made Great Progress in Montana.

GOOD WATER SUPPLY

Over a Million of Acres Under Ditch in the Valley of the Missouri and Its Tributaries.

Washington, May 21, 1904.

The United States census bureau has given out the following preliminary statement concerning irrigation in Montana:

Montana has for many years occupied a prominent position among the grazing states, and immense herds on the plains have fed on the nutritious bunch grass for which the state is famous. It is probably the best watered of the arid states, and its agricultural resources are being rapidly developed by the construction of extensive irrigation works.

In both area and acreage irrigated Montana ranks third among the states, being exceeded in the first by Texas and California and in the second by Colorado and California. Of the 93,881,184 acres within its borders only 1,140,694 acres, or 1.2 per cent, were irrigated in 1902.

Immigration has set in strongly in the last few years and large areas are being devoted to intensive farming. A marked change has taken place in the great plains area, especially near the border of the state. For the past few years the rainfall there has been above the average, and farming without irrigation has proved successful in many sections which heretofore have been regarded as valuable only for grazing.

General Description.

The state may be described as consisting of two divisions, eastern and western Montana, with the Rocky Mountains as the dividing line, the main range extending through the state in the form of a bow with the arc to the east. More than three-fifths of the state is on the eastern side of the mountains, and consists of high plains into which the rivers have cut long, narrow valleys. The plains slope toward the northeast, their lowest elevation being on the northeastern border of the state.

Western Montana is more rugged. The slope from the mountains is abrupt and the valleys are numerous and among the most fertile and productive in the state.

Montana's agricultural lands are of three classes: The bottom lands adjacent to streams, the bench lands, and the mesas, whose elevation precludes irrigation and renders them fit only for grazing purposes.

General Statistics.

The progress made in Montana's agricultural development during the decade 1889-99 has been maintained in the years 1900-02. Since 1889 almost 200,000 acres have been added to the irrigated area which in 1902 aggregated 1,140,694 acres, an increase of 189,540 acres, or 19.3 per cent. Irrigation was reported on 9,496 farms and 4,386 irrigating systems were used. The total construction cost of dams, head-gates, reservoirs, etc., and the 8,765 miles of main canals and ditches was $5,576,975, an average of $4.89 for each acre irrigated. The increase since 1889 in number of farms is 18.1 per cent, and in total cost of construction, 19.1 per cent.

Of the three sources of water supply, streams irrigated 1,131,413 acres belonging to 9,283 farms; springs, 9,050 acres on 190 farms; and wells, 231 acres on 23 farms. The 4,186 stream-systems were constructed at a cost of $5,530,096 for 8,634 miles of main canals and ditches and other irrigation works, an average of $4.96 per irrigated acre; the 177 spring systems, including 131 miles of main canals and ditches, represented a construction outlay of $41,624, an average of $4.60 per irrigated acre, while the 23 well-systems cost $5,255 or $22.75 for each acre irrigated.

Drainage Basins.

While more than three-fifths of Montana is drained by the Missouri and tributaries, this portion of the state is treated as four subdrainage basins, namely, Missouri River and tributaries, except the Jefferson, Yellowstone and Milk Rivers; Jefferson River and tributaries, Yellowstone River and tributaries and Milk River and tributaries. The territory drained by tributaries of the Columbia is divided into two subdrainage basins, first, Missouri River and tributaries; second, Clark Fork and other tributaries and Kootenai River and tributaries. Of these six drainage basins, the basin of the Missouri and tributaries, as defined above, supplied water to more than one-third of the irrigated area of the state.

Missouri River Drainage Basin, Except the Jefferson, Yellowstone and Milk Rivers.

The Missouri is formed by the confluence, at different points in the state, of the Jefferson, Madison and Gallatin Rivers. These streams having their sources in the mountains flow through broad valleys excellently adapted to agriculture. The valleys of the main streams are often from 40 to 50 miles long and several miles wide, and owing to the low elevation are very highly cultivable.

In 1902, this portion of the Missouri and tributaries and the springs and wells within the basin supplied water

Many a Santa Fe Citizen Knows How Sure They Are.

Nothing is more certain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Santa Fe. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement:

Mrs. J. C. Hull (J. C. Hull, carpenter and contractor) of Johnson st., says: "Three years ago a physician told me he did not think I would ever recover from an attack of dropsy. I did, but since then I have frequently puffed about the eyes, in the hands, feet and limbs. I suffered from back-ache so severely and acutely that it was impossible to sit up. It is at least eleven years since I first noticed a tendency toward dropsy and I had given up all hopes of ever being helped, let alone cured. An advertisement about Doan's Kidney Pills induced me to go to Ireland's Pharmacy for a box. I kidney pills had not brought undoubted relief I never would have bought a second nor a third, and if the treatment of three boxes had not driven away the last attack, I would be the last resident to publicly endorse the means employed, namely Doan's Kidney Pills."

to 3,111 farms with an irrigated area of 410,721 acres. The construction cost of the 1,554 systems, including 3,354 miles of main canals and ditches, was $1,924,086, or $4.68 per irrigated acre. Seventy-three farms with 11,330 irrigated acres received water from Missouri River direct. The 19 systems were constructed at a cost of $81,162 for the 66 miles of main canals and ditches and other irrigation works, an average of $7.13 for each acre irrigated.

Water from springs was utilized to irrigate 4,410 acres on 93 farms. The 86 systems with 75 miles of main canals and ditches, cost $16,437, or $3.73 per irrigated acre. Six systems supplied from wells irrigated 108 acres on six farms. The well systems cost $1,753, an average of $16.23 per irrigated acre.

Yellowstone River Drainage Basin.
The largest tributary of the Missouri in Montana is the Yellowstone River which, rising in Yellowstone lake in Wyoming, flows north in a profound canon from which it emerges at Livingston and then flows east and north-east and enters the Missouri at Fort Buford in North Dakota. This stream carries a large volume of water, only a small part of which has yet been utilized for irrigation, owing to the physical obstacles to its diversion. This drainage basin contains much arable land, and many thousands of acres will doubtless be reclaimed by the construction of irrigation works. The reclamation service is considering plans for diverting the Yellowstone in the lower valley upon a large tract of land lying partly in Montana and partly in North Dakota.

In 1902, the 843 systems supplied with water from all sources within the drainage basin irrigated 209,137 acres belonging to 2,308 farms. The irrigation works, including 1,900 miles of main canals and ditches, represented a construction cost of $1,306,838, an average of $6.25 per irrigated acre. There were 389 farms with an irrigated area of 40,015 acres supplied with water from the main stream direct. Forty-four systems, with 211 miles of main canals and ditches, cost $303,888, or $7.59 per irrigated acre. Clark Fork and tributaries supplied water to 715 farms. One hundred and fifty-eight systems, including 503 miles of main canals and ditches, were constructed at a cost of $295,302, an average of $4.57 for each of the 64,628 acres irrigated.

Missoula River Drainage Basin.
Missoula River drains the western slope of the Rocky Mountains in the southwestern part of the state, and also receives numerous tributaries rising in the Bitter Root Mountains on the western boundary. Its course is northwesterly to where it unites with Flathead River to form Clark Fork of the Columbia. In this drainage basin is the Bitter Root Valley, the most highly cultivated section of the state and noted for its fertile soil and fine orchard fruits.

In 1902, water from all sources in this drainage basin was utilized through 909 systems to irrigate 221,043 acres belonging to 2,178 farms. The 1,504 miles of main canals and ditches and other irrigation works represented a construction cost of $1,243,895, or $5.63 per irrigated acre. The main stream was diverted by five systems to 39 farms. The irrigation works and ten miles of main canals and ditches cost initially $27,367, or $23.17 for each of the 1,181 acres irrigated. Bitter Root River and tributaries furnished water to 1,106 farms and irrigated 98,965 acres. The 359 systems with 588 miles of main canals and ditches cost $674,130, an average of $6.81 per irrigated acre. Hellgate River and tributaries supplied 342 systems having 634 miles of main canals and ditches and irrigated 78,139 acres on 676 farms. The systems represented a construction cost of $392,065, an average of $5.02 per irrigated acre. The 107 systems supplied with water from Big Blackfoot River and tributaries were constructed at a cost of $114,450 for the 200 miles of main canals and ditches and other irrigation works. The 209 farms had an irrigated area of 36,622 acres, and the average construction cost per acre was $3.13.

Jefferson River Drainage Basin.
Jefferson River is the largest and most westerly of the three streams that form the Missouri. Its headwater tributaries drain the mountainous area bordered on the south and west by the great bend in the continental divide or watershed. Big Hole, or Wisdom, and Beaverhead Rivers are the principal affluents. In 1902, 811 systems were supplied with water from all sources in this drainage basin and 231,788 acres belonging to 1,289 farms were irrigated. The irrigation works and 1,418 miles of main canals and ditches cost $760,328, or $3.28 per irrigated acre. Twenty-seven systems heading in the main stream supplied 127 farms. Water from Beaverhead River and tributaries was diverted to 431 farms and irrigated 99,014 acres. Big Hole River and tributaries furnished water to 295 farms. The 384 miles of main canals and ditches and other irrigation works cost $135,609, an average of $2.01 per irrigated acre.

Milk River Drainage Basin.
The extreme northern part of Montana belongs in the drainage basin of Milk River. This stream rises in the high plains east of the main divide of the Rocky Mountains, flows northward for a short distance in Montana, and then eastward for many miles in Canada close to the international boundary. It then turns south into Montana, and, continuing in an easterly direction, finally enters the Missouri. Having no mountain sources, the water supply is small and uncertain and irrigation cannot be greatly extended along its valley without the construction of storage reservoirs.

The government engineers are considering the project of establishing a large storage reservoir in St. Mary lakes, diverting the water therefrom through a canal and allowing it to flow down Cut Bank Creek to Marias River, again diverting it through a canal upon the irrigable lands of lower Milk Valley. By this system, water from the drainage basin of the Saskatchewan, now flowing into the Hudson Bay, will be carried into the Missouri basin and ultimately will reach the Gulf of Mexico.

In 1902, 398 farms with an irrigated area of 56,537 acres were supplied with water from all sources in this drainage basin. The 165 systems having 342 miles of main canals and ditches representing a construction cost of $263,628, an average cost of $4.66 per irrigated acre.

Drainage Basins of Columbia River Tributaries, Except Missoula River.
This drainage basin includes the western and lesser division of Montana except Missoula River and tributaries. The Clark Fork of the Columbia for the greater part of its course is in deep canons surrounded by once heavily forested slopes, and its waters are not available for irrigation. Its important tributaries are the Missoula and Flathead Rivers. The Kootenai River drains the extreme northwestern corner of the state. Tobacco River is its most important Montana tributary.

In 1902, water from all sources in this drainage basin was utilized to irrigate 11,408 acres belonging to 211 farms. The 194 systems, including 157 miles of main canals and ditches, cost $78,130, an average of $6.85 per irrigated acre. Of the total area irrigated, 8,718 acres belonging to 142 farms were irrigated by Clark Fork and tributaries other than the Missoula River. The 63 systems, including 111 miles of main canals and ditches cost $63,863, or $7.33 per irrigated acre. Kootenai River and tributaries supplied water to 57 farms having 2,600 irrigated acres. The 29 systems represented a construction cost of $13,539 for 44 miles of main canals and ditches and other irrigation works, being an average of $5.21 per irrigated acre.

RUSSEL SAGE'S ADVICE.

"Young man, Buy Real Estate."

Will soon rank with Horace Greeley's aphorism,

"YOUNG MAN GO WEST!"

"If you are going to do a good thing, do it in the best way," is another maxim of which you will appreciate the force if you will either call on or communicate with N. F. CLARKE BEFORE BUYING TOWN LOTS ELSEWHERE.

BE WISE.

Put your money into land—Own a Town Lot and Home. Do like your fathers did—buy good property in a live town, and your children will rise up and call you blessed.

It is entirely safe to presume that within a very short time the town of ESTANCIA will be one of the liveliest, largest and most substantial towns in this section of the southwest.

Be sure and write for all information desired at once. THE PRICE OF THESE LOTS WILL INTEREST YOU.

THE PUEBLO OF PECOS.

mer. In this, the name of this town is uniformly written Cleuene.

In the "Relacion Postera de Sivila," a letter written by an unknown author, who was one of Coronado's expedition, and probably a Franciscan friar, written in 1541, and probably from Tihux, Pecos is described as a "great pueblo, which is among some mountains," and is called Cleuene.

In the "Relacion del Suceso," which is another anonymous account of Coronado's expedition, the name of the town appears twice, and each time as Cleuene.

We have no information on this point from subsequent travelers, for it is a singular fact that the names of places reported by one expedition seem entirely to have disappeared before its successor. Thus, neither Tihux nor Cleuene is mentioned by Espejo, who came 49 years later, nor by Onate, a quarter of a century after; though the former word is easily identified as the province of the Tihux, whose name is used even until now; but no mention of any name even approaching that of Cleuene is ever afterwards heard, so that we have to rely on the histories of Coronado's march alone.

Among the earliest maps on which the places encountered on that march are placed, is one made by Ortelius in 1579. On this the name is printed Cleuene. A short time ago, I had the privilege of examining the only MS. copy of Castaneda's "Relacion," in America, at the Lenox Library in New York. This was written in 1595, and is presumably a duplicate of that from which the French translation was made. While in some places it is difficult to say whether the last letter of the word is an "e" or a "c," in all of the first portion of the manuscript, where most care was probably observed, it is unmistakably a "c," the name being written Cleuene. Everyone familiar with the Spanish of those days, knows that I and Y were used almost interchangeably, as in Ysabel, Ydefonso, etc. So there seems to be no doubt that the correct name is Cleuene, spelled Cleuene by Castaneda, and Cleuene by Jaramillo; and that the Cleuene of Ternaux-Compans is simply an error arising from mistaking the final "c" for an "e." There is not the slightest foundation in the MS. for the accent which the French edition has placed over the incorrect "e."

The river is always spoken of as the Rio de Cleuene in the accounts of Coronado's famous expedition.

Forty years passed before it was again seen by European eyes. Then Espejo, after his remarkable journey to Zuni and the farther west, and when the greater part of his little band had returned to Mexico, visited the region east of the Rio Grande, as far as the Pecos, and instead of returning to his home by the route which he had taken in coming north, followed the course of the river down its entire length to the point where it unites with the Rio Grande, in what is now Texas. This journey is of importance to all who are interested in the Pecos Valley, because it was the first visit of a white man to that region, and Espejo was the first European who saw the river both in New Mexico and Texas. This was in July, 1583, and the river is uniformly called in the narrative, the "Rio de las Vacas," or Cow Creek, in less elegant American.

This route was found to be so feasible, that when, in July 1590, Gaspar Castano de Sosa set out from Almacen in Nuevo Leon, with an expedition for discovery and conquest, he concluded to follow the same course, and march up the valley of the Pecos. He crossed the Rio Grande on September 9, and proceeded by easy marches, as his party included women and children among the prospective settlers, until on the very last day of the year, he reached the Pueblo, and speaks with admiration of its size and the height of its buildings of four and five stories. In this narrative it is always called the "Rio Salado," as if that was the recognized name at the time.

The final colonization under the leadership of Onate, was in the valley of the Rio Grande, and it was not until the settlement and capital were established at San Gabriel, at the mouth of the Chama that the conqueror and colonizer marched eastward to the most important town in the new kingdom of which he was governor and captain general. He arrived at the Pueblo on July 24, 1598; and now the name used in the history is Pecos, and this without any explanation and as if it were the only name which the place had ever borne.

From that time to the present, the pueblo has always been known as the Pueblo of Pecos; though the river was still the plaything of geographers and map makers as to its name.

On the map of Mexico, etc., published by Bonne, of Paris in 1771, the names on the map being generally in French, the river is called "Rio Salado ou Riviere des Apaches," with a strange mixture of two languages.

A somewhat similar map, published by Bache in Holland, in 1774, and entitled "Kaart Nieuw Mexico," calls it "R. Salado of R. der Apaches."

The Venetian map of Antonio Zatti and Son, in 1785, follows these by calling it by the same names of Salado or Apache, with the same mixture of Spanish and Italian.

Another Parisian map by Bonne of New Mexico alone, published in 1780, gives the same names; which thus seem to have been well established, at least among cartographers.

Passing almost a century, we find in the well known atlas of Black, published at Edinburgh, in 1853, that it is called Rio Puerco; and a map of New Mexico and Texas, published in New York, by C. J. Folsom, in 1842, also gives the name as Rio Puerco.

One might suppose that this was a mere misprint for Pecos, but we find in Kendall's Santa Fe expedition, at page 199, that it is stated that the Texan army reached the Rio Pecos in September, 1841, and the author then adds that it is a beautiful, swift-running stream of fresh water, and "is supposed finally to empty into the Puerco, a tributary of the Rio Grande." From this it would appear that the river then called Pecos at its headwaters in New Mexico, was known as Puerco when near its confluence with the Rio Grande in Texas.

The name as used by the Pueblo Indians, is always pronounced "Peco," one of the last survivors of the little company of Pecos Indians who migrated to Jemez, when they left their old home in 1840, being uniformly called Agustin Peco.

Bandelier, who made a careful examination of the Pueblo, in 1880, tells us that the word belongs to the Queres language, and is first found in Spanish documents of the year 1598, after the meeting of Onate with the representatives of the different Pueblo towns, in the estate of Santo Domingo, which is a Queres town.

Growing Aches and Pains.

Mrs. Josie Sumner, Bremond, Texas, writes, April 15, 1902: "I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment in my family for three years. I would not be without it in my house. I have used it on my little girl for growing pains and aches in her knees. It cured her right away. I have also used it for frost bitten feet with good success. It is the best liniment I ever used." 25c., 50c. and $1.00. Fischer Drug Co.

Marlin 16-Gauge Shotgun

This is the smallest and lightest weight (about 6 1-2 pounds) repeating gun ever manufactured, and opens up many new possibilities to the up-to-date sportsman. It is not a 16 barrel on a 12 action, but a new, well-balanced, properly-proportioned gun that, with modern smokeless powders, enables a shooter to use a powerful load in a small shell and reduce, materially, the weight of shells and gun to be carried. The small, light gun handles fast, results in close holding and increased accuracy. Full description in new Marlin Catalog No. A542, just out. A SURE THING.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B.
Van Metre of Shepherstown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr.
King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed
by Fischer Drug Co., Druggist. Trial bottles free. Reg. size 50c, $1.00.
