On Aug. 9, Elmo Alanis Gomez, deputy secretary for the Nuevo Leon state government's foreign trade, investment and tourism department, told reporters that approval for the construction of a high-speed rail service between Texas and northeast Mexico was expected before year-end. The project must be approved by the governors of Tamaulipas, Nuevo Leon, and Texas. The proposed corridor is San Antonio-Laredo-Nuevo Laredo-Monterrey. (Source: El Financiero, 08/10/92)
