PARKER THE NOMINEE

Chosen the Democratic Standard Bearer on the First Ballot at an Early Hour This Morning.

AN ALL NIGHT SESSION

Candidate for Vice Presidency Will Be Chosen Tonight—The Silent New Yorker Takes a Bath and is Then Informed of His Selection.

St. Louis, July 9—Chief Judge Alton B. Parker of the New York State Court of Appeals, was nominated at fifteen minutes to 6 o'clock this morning for President of the United States by the Democratic national convention. Only one roll call ensued, and so decisive was the result of that one that the contrary states began to call for recognition and the ballot finally resulted in a unanimous vote for the New York man. The scene was dramatic in the extreme. Darkness had witnessed the gathering of the Democratic hosts while broad daylight witnessed the close. The convention was in session from 8 o'clock last night until nearly 6 this morning. In that time, eight names were presented to the convention. Nominating and seconding speeches innumerable were made and as dawn was approaching, it became necessary to limit the seconding speeches to four minutes each.

An exception was made in the case of W. J. Bryan, who in one of the most dramatic situations ever witnessed in a political gathering addressed the convention and concluded by seconding the nomination of Senator Francis M. Cockrell of Missouri.

Mr. Bryan received the third great ovation accorded during the convention. His speech was an impassioned appeal to give a candidate who had voted the Democratic ticket in 1896 and 1900. He spoke on behalf of the Nebraska delegation, which, he said, had no candidate to present or favor to ask, but wanted a candidate whose nomination would not prove a triumph for one faction over the other. He suggested W. R. Hearst, if the convention thought best, then former Governor Pattison of Pennsylvania, and finally created a surprise by declaring for Senator Cockrell.

One feature of the long-drawn-out session was the beautiful tribute paid to Senator Cockrell when placed in nomination by Chairman Champ Clark. The ballot for President gave Parker 658 votes out of the 667 needed to nominate and before the result was announced Idaho, Nevada, Washington and other states made changes to the Parker column. Governor Dockery of Missouri, moved to make the nomination unanimous and it was carried amidst cheers. The results of the ballot were never announced officially. When the nominations were called for last night, Alabama yielded to New York, and Judge Parker's name was presented to the convention by Littleton.

Parker Placed in Nomination. Martin W. Littleton opened his speech in a conciliatory manner and devoted some time to the Republican nominee for presidency. He then read the resolution of the New York state convention instructing for Parker, and said that New York would be the battle field of the election. He then gave a brief sketch of the life of Parker, saying he had always been a Democrat both in fair and foul weather and had never deserted the standard of his party faith. He said he is a man friendly to all factions but with no favorite and afraid of none, a man who would take counsel and courage of both, but who will take bitterness of neither.

"If you ask me why he has been silent," he continued, "I will tell you, it is because he does not claim to be master of the Democratic party, but is content to be its servant. If you ask me why he has not outlined a policy for the convention, I will tell you he does not believe that its policies should be dictated, but that the sovereignty of the party should be in the untrammelled wisdom of its members. If you ask me what his policy will be, if elected, I will tell you it will be the policy which finds expression in the platform of his party."

After that, Hearst, Gray, Cockrell, Wall, Williams, Olney, and General Miles, were named in speeches that took nearly all night. In the end all the claims of the Parker forces proved accurate. Parker had within a few votes of enough to nominate and these were soon forthcoming. Speeches which had been loudly cheered had neither made nor lost a vote. After the nomination, the convention adjourned until 2 o'clock today when the nomination for vice president will be made.

Parker Takes a Bath and is Notified. Esopus, New York, July 9—The news of Judge Parker's nomination was given him at 6:50 o'clock this morning.

KAI CHOU CAPTURED

Japanese Score Important Success—Junction of Kuroki's and Oku's Forces.

St. Petersburg, July 9—The capture of Kai Chou by the Japanese, announced from Tokio today, is not officially confirmed here, but there is no disposition to dispute the probable correctness of the report as the latest reports make it plain that the Japanese were advancing in force along the railroad against the Russian position. The occupation of Kai Chou is important to the Japanese as it brings them within reach of New Chwang, facilitating the junction of Generals Oku and Kuroki. How far the Russians attempted to contest the possession of Kai Chou by the Japanese, will not be revealed until the official reports are in. The evacuation of New Chwang by the Russians would seem a logical sequence of the occupation of Kai Chou.

DECLINES INTERVIEWS.

Cleveland Will Not See Reporters—Says He Knows Nothing of Action of Convention.

Buzzards Bay, July 9—Former President Cleveland declined to see any reporters but sent the following to the Associated Press: "I am in absolute ignorance of the action of the St. Louis convention except in so far as it has nominated Judge Parker. With the result, I am abundantly gratified and I hope that the remainder of the work of the convention will add to the encouraging prospects of Democratic success. This is all I can possibly say at this time. I do not even know when I shall have an opportunity to read the platform adopted or to learn of the entire proceedings of the convention. In any event it is absolutely certain that no further expression from me may be expected at present. I hope to be relieved of all further importunity on this subject."

MAKES REPARATION.

Chinese Government Orders Heavy Punishment for Slaying of Etzel, the Newspaper Correspondent.

Washington, July 9—Minister Conger cabled the state department that the Chinese government, after making an investigation of the incident, has ordered the punishment of the officers and soldiers who fired on Louis Etzel, a newspaper correspondent. In addition it has undertaken to pay the indemnity of $25,000 Mexican money which sum will be turned over by the state department to the widow and mother of Etzel, in Denver, and to the other members of his family according to the decision of the administrator of the dead man.

by the correspondent of the Associated Press, who found him clambering out of the water after his morning swim.

"Well, Judge, you've got it," cried a reporter, as the athletic figure of the Judge appeared over the bow of the barge from which he had been diving. "Is that so?" replied the Judge, his ruddy face breaking into a cheery smile in which the satisfaction was undisguised. He asked for the details of the final vote and displayed the liveliest interest, at the same time refraining from the slightest comment. When asked if he had anything to say, said: "No, I shall say nothing whatever upon the subject until I am formally notified of my nomination."

Choosing Parker's Running Mate. St. Louis, July 9—Senator Hill did not take off his clothes when he reached his hotel this morning, but after refreshing both inner and outer man, he joined William F. Sheehan, Colonel J. M. Guffey of Pennsylvania, Thomas Taggart of Indiana and John P. Hopkins of Illinois, in a conference to determine who shall be the running mate for Parker. Among those whose names were mentioned, prior to the conference and who had emissaries ready to present their claims were Kern of Indiana, Williams of Illinois, Daniels of Virginia, McLean of Ohio, Harmon of Ohio, Dockery of Missouri, and Beckham of Kentucky. The favorite candidate seems to be Harmon.

Will Deal With Financial Question Specifically.

St. Louis, July 9—A Parker man, who declined to allow the use of his name, but who is close to the Democratic candidate, declared today that Parker will, in his letter of acceptance, deal with the financial question in a specific manner, and it will be in accordance to the lines laid down by David B. Hill of New York and John Sharp Williams of Mississippi before the committee on resolutions.

Convention Takes Recess.

St. Louis, July 9—Shortly after reconvening this afternoon a recess was taken until 5:30 this evening. This was done in order to give the leaders a chance to agree upon a candidate for vice president.

GREAT CONTRAST IN MANAGING

The Penitentiary Under Republican and Democratic Administrations—Great Reduction in Expenses During the Last Six Years.

Adverting to the subject of territorial institutions, with reference to the present incomes of which the New Mexican gave some interesting details in a recent issue, it is well worth while for the taxpayers to inform themselves as to the general condition and financial management of these public necessities under the administration of Governor Otero, and such an exposition will be the object of this article.

It has been stated before, and to anyone who resided in New Mexico ten or more years ago, it need not be reiterated, that most of the educational institutions then existed only in the acts by which they were created; public charities were a myth and the two general institutions, the penitentiary and asylum for the insane were run on a third rate basis at a double first class expense. In a short article of this kind it would be impossible to take up each one of these important subjects in detail, but as the penitentiary is a typical institution it will be sufficient to make it the subject of some comparative investigations.

The penitentiary was established about 20 years ago, but as it did not attain any considerable proportions until early in the '90s, a review of its financial history during the past twelve years will be instructive enough.

Beginning, then, with the appropriations made in 1891 which provided for the years 1891 and 1892, and continuing to the legislature of 1901 which provided for the years 1902 and 1903, the following figures are derived from the official records. The amounts are grouped in periods of two years each and particular attention is given to the extraordinary financial condition of the institution as shown in appropriations made by the legislature of 1897 under the then retiring Democratic administration:

Year.	No. Prisoners	Appropriations
1891-92	130	$85,000
1893-94	138	64,800
1895-96	184	$64,660
1897-98	200	72,160
		Light plant, 7,500
		New wing, 10,000
		Land, 1,200
		Deficits, 15,910
1899-00	220	79,540
1901-02	235	81,440

In his report for the two years ending December 31, 1896, the superintendent stated: "The financial condition of the institution is by no means in a condition that can be called satisfactory." And again: "The appropriations were materially and unjustly cut down (note totals above), in spite of the well known fact that the earnings of the prison were falling off." (note increase in population) and "the constant lack of money in the territorial treasury during the past two years, greatly increased the cost of supplies for the maintenance of the prison."

That these statements were not exaggerations can be vouched for by merchants and others in Santa Fe, who, until the change of management early in 1899, were obliged to sell their warrants at a discount varying from 10 cents to 50 cents on the dollar.

Despite an appropriation of $80,440, for running expenses in 1897 and an additional $27,110 for deficiencies, improvements, machinery and a new wing to the penitentiary, the present management found very little to show for all this money in 1899. The walls of the new wing had been raised a few feet above the ground, and a dilapidated mud mill run by horse power represented the brick plant. Contrast that condition with the showing between 1899 and the present date: No deficiencies have been incurred, all warrants have been cashed at par, the new wing has been made ready for the roof, which is on hand, and there has been expended for improvements and a thoroughly up-to-date brick plant the sum of $71,630 secured from convict earnings and savings out of the regular appropriation without an advance of one extra cent from the territorial treasury.

In addition to the territorial appropriation there is available for running the institution the earnings by convict labor which include monies received from the sale of manufactured products as well as payments from the federal government for the care of United States prisoners. Prior to 1900 nearly all of such receipts were derived from the support of United States prisoners but since that time the number of these has been small and the greater part of such income has been derived from bona fide sales of brick and lime.

It is likewise to be noted that prior to 1900 returns of such earnings were very meager and inaccurate so far as reports to the territorial treasurer were concerned, but assuming that the management in its own report credited itself with all that was received, the following figures are deduced:

Convict Earnings.

1895-96	18,536.35
1897-98	13,530.85—Labor on cap.
1899-00	11,393.67—idol building
1901-02	31,708.36 not accounted
1903-04 (18 ms)	25,316.13 ed.

Probably no better contrast of the two administrations can be made than that shown by the commissioners' reports covering the periods in question and giving gross expenditures, earnings and cost per capita for maintenance and management:

1893-94, expenditures	$75,824.13
Earnings	12,583.80
Net cost	$63,240.33
For 138 Men or 63c Per Man Per Day.

1895-96, Expenditures	$81,134.76
Earnings	18,536.35
Net cost	$62,598.41
For 184 Men or 55c Per Man Per Day.

1897-98, Expenditures	$91,120.24
Earnings	13,530.85
Net cost	$77,589.39
For 200 Men or 53c Per Man Per Day.

1899-00, Expenditures	$85,518.30
Earnings	11,393.67
Net cost	$74,124.63
For 220 Men or 38 1/4c Per Man Per Day.

1901-02, Expenditures	$133,534.54
Earnings-improvements	76,093.43
Net cost	$57,441.11
For 235 Men or 29.9c Per Man Per Day.

Such a wonderful change for the better is one which is of vital interest to each and every taxpayer in New Mexico. That there has been a corresponding improvement in the asylum for the insane and other institutions will not be questioned by any one familiar with their past history and present status. Without attempting to make a guess, let alone an explanation, as to what was done with all of the large sums appropriated under Democratic regime, it is sufficient to state that under the present administration the public finances are being handled with the same care and prudence that everyone gives to his private business; more, no reasonable man can ask.

THE BOARD OF TRADE.

Annual Election of Officers and Trustees—Santa Fe-Lamy Train Service.

The annual meeting of the Santa Fe Board of Trade, held last evening at their rooms in the Sena block, brought out an excellent representation of the various business interests of the city, official, mercantile and professional. President Prince presided and Secretary Townsend, was at his desk.

After the usual preliminaries, the treasurer's report was read, which showed a gratifying financial condition, with a comfortable balance in the treasury.

President Prince made the report from the special committee appointed to confer with the railroad authorities as to the reduction of train service between Santa Fe and Lamy. After reporting the correspondence with General Manager Mudge, the postmaster general, and Delegate Rodey, which has already appeared in the New Mexican, he read a letter just received from Mr. Mudge in answer to an official communication recently sent, which was of a most encouraging nature. The committee which consisted of Messrs. Prince, Sparks and Spitz was continued.

The subject of the Presbyterian School was then brought up by a partial report made by Mr. Sparks and this was supplemented by an interesting statement from Mr. Boyle. An animated discussion ensued, participated in by Judge Morrison, Major Muller, B. M. Read, Secretary Townsend and others. As a result, the president was requested to communicate with Davine R. Jones, who is the head of the Home Missionary Society, representing the interest of the people of Santa Fe in the establishment of the school, and the intention of the Board of Trade to aid as far as possible, in providing a suitable site for the institution. It is understood that a considerable tract is needed in order to carry on an industrial education in a practical manner. Incidentally considerable discussion took place as to the outlet of the Palace Avenue sewer and the nuisance it created in the neighborhood.

The annual election then took place, resulting in the selection of the following trustees: Messrs. Prince, Sparks, Muller, Schumann, Boyle, Palen and Kaune. H. T. Gibson was unanimously elected secretary.

At the succeeding meeting of the trustees, officers were elected as follows for the ensuing year: President, L. B. Prince; vice president, I. Sparks; treasurer, S. Spitz.

Tax Levy for 1904 Fixed—Bridge on College Street to Be Built—Stone Wall in Front of Court House.

The board of County Commissioners which has been in session during the entire week, adjourned at noon today. A great deal of important business was transacted. Chairman A. L. Kendall was not present at part of the session yesterday afternoon and this forenoon's session, having returned to his home at Cerrillos. During Chairman Kendall's absence, Commissioner Nicolas Quintana acted as chairman. Yesterday afternoon among other important business it was decided, upon motion of Commissioner Arthur Seligman to make a levy for the construction of a bridge across the Santa Fe River on College Street in accordance with a petition signed by more than 300 taxpayers and property owners. A levy was also ordered made for the construction of a new road between this city and Tesuque upon a petition signed by 100 tax payers and property owners. It was decided to construct a stone wall in front of the court house according to the plans furnished gratis by F. P. Crichton and advertisement for bids for this work will be made at once.

Today the board made the tax levy for the year 1904, which will consist, including the Territory, county, city and school taxes, as well as interest on the new refunding bonds, of six mills and fifty-five hundredths of a mill on the dollar, or six dollars and five and one-half cents on each hundred dollars' worth of taxable property. The plans for the College Street bridge, furnished gratis by Walter Sharp, contractor and builder, were adopted and advertisement for bids for the construction of the bridge will soon be published. ## RECEDING WATERS

Situation Along the Kaw More Satisfactory—Improvement in Conditions at Kansas City.

RAILROADS RECOVERING

Wichita Still Suffering—Rains There Continue and Little River Doing Great Damage.

Kansas City, July 9—The flood waters at Armourdale, Argentine and lower Kansas City, Kansas, on the Kaw River, west to Manhattan, half way across from Kansas, have fallen steadily since late yesterday and today continued to recede. The stage here was two feet lower than yesterday. In Armourdale, however the water still stood six feet deep in the lower places. At the stock yards the fall has been slow and it will not be possible to handle receipts before Monday. The railroads are recovering although not running on schedule time. The property damage will be insignificant as compared to last year. The relief committee of Kansas City, Kansas, is caring for five or six thousand homeless people in the suburbs.

No Change in Flood Situation at Wichita.

Wichita, Kansas, July 9—The flood situation in Wichita today shows little change. The Little River receded somewhat after midnight but early this morning the down pour caused the backwater to go back to the old mark.

THE PECOS COPPER COMPANY.

To Commence Active Development of Its Mining Properties on the Pecos Forest Reserve at Once.

O. W. Alexander, a mining engineer and expert, who has been a resident of this county for 25 years and who has a very pretty ranch home near Cerrillos, was in the city during the week looking after matters connected with mining claims owned by the Pecos Copper Company which for two and a half decades has been working ten claims in the Copper Mining District near Hamilton on the Pecos Forest Reserve. These claims were first located by Alfred Cowles of Cleveland, Ohio, and are ten in number. The Cowles estate sold them to the Pecos Copper Company. The ore runs in gold and copper, on an average from 15 to 18 per cent in copper and $5 in gold to the ton. There are several shafts upon the property, one 150 feet deep and in pay ore. The location of the claims is 22 miles from this city, just over the San Miguel County line and on the survey of the line of the "Scenic Route" Road, which, when completed, will enable the inhabitants of that mining camp to reach Santa Fe in short order and to do their trading in this city. Machinery for the extensive development of the properties has been purchased and shipped. It is expected that this will arrive there in about a month and will be in working order in 60 days. It consists of a dry compressing plant with a capacity for six drills; there will be two hoists and a complete complement of tools has been ordered. As soon as the machinery arrives a force of 20 men will be employed in the camp. The machinery weighs about 80 tons and as time is pressing, 30 wagons and teams will be used in transporting it from Glorieta on the Santa Fe Railway, to the mines. There is sufficient water on the ground for all purposes. A mill site has also been taken up by the company and a water force for 600 horse power will be developed.

Construction on the necessary buildings for the force to be employed, such as boarding house, bunk house, engine shed and the like will commence at an early date. Seven of the claims have been patented and applications for patents for the three remaining claims and a mill site will soon be filed in the U. S. land office here. Mr. Alexander, who is very well and favorably known throughout New Mexico as a competent and efficient mining engineer, will have charge of the management of the plant. He expresses himself as confident that the properties will be worked successfully and to the pecuniary benefit of the company. Some of the development work shows pay ore veins which are from six to 30 feet thick.

"I DO NOT UNDERSTAND YOU NEW MEXICO PEOPLE! NONE OF YOU SHOULD BE WILLING TO ACCEPT JOINT STATEHOOD, AS YOU WILL GET SINGLE STATEHOOD JUST AS SOON AS JOINT STATEHOOD. MAKE YOUR FIGHT ON THE SINGLE STATEHOOD LINE; I WILL HELP YOU HERE AND IN WASHINGTON!" REMARKS OF AN INFLUENTIAL MEMBER OF THE COMMITTEE ON RESOLUTIONS IN THE CHICAGO REPUBLICAN CONVENTION. THIS MAN HOLDS ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT PUBLIC POSITIONS IN HIS STATE AND IS PROMINENT AND STRONG IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL.

THE REPUBLICAN MACHINE AND THE JUDGESHIP OF THE SIXTH DISTRICT.

"The Democrats of Eddy County are early in the field with a full county and district ticket, nominated at a primary election held a few days ago. A detailed statement of the vote cast for the several candidates in the different precincts of the county, fully sustains all the statements made by our Carlsbad correspondent in a former letter regarding the deplorable political conditions brought about in that part of the Territory by the unwarranted and unwise interference of the territorial machine in the late judgeship matter."—Albuquerque Journal.

The esteemed Journal ought to explain what it means. Where was the "unwarranted and unwise interference of the territorial machine" in the matter of the appointment of the new associate justice of the Territorial Supreme Court? Who and what is the machine?

In analyzing the situation ament that matter it is found that there were but three candidates for the appointment to the office named. They were Edward A. Mann, a citizen of Las Cruces, Dona Ana County; Anthony C. Campbell, a citizen of Roswell, Chaves County, temporarily sojourning in Washington holding a federal office, and A. A. Freeman of Carlsbad, Eddy County. As soon as the vacancy occurred, it became known that Judge Freeman was a candidate. It was also absolutely certain that Judge Freeman's name would not be favorably considered under any circumstances no matter by whom supported, by the administration in Washington, Governor Otero, National Committee-man Solomon Luna, the chairman and the great majority of the members of the territorial Republican central committee, many officials and a large number of leading Republicans, lawyers as well as laymen and a number of Democratic attorneys indorsed Judge Mann for appointment. Where is this "unwarranted and unwise interference?" Where is the "machine?" Was it not the absolute and unquestioned right of citizens of New Mexico, in office and out of office, to act as they saw fit and to indorse any applicant whom they considered worthy, competent and entitled to the appointment? Why should they have supported Judge Freeman, if they honestly, conscientiously and patriotically believed that another man would be the wiser and better choice? Why should they not have the right to express their own opinions just as the friends and supporters of Judge Freeman had? No one blames them for supporting the judge. That was their prerogative, their privilege, their right and they exercised it. Why should other citizens of New Mexico be condemned, be called machine politicians and in fact abused for exercising the self same right, privilege and free expression of opinion? The good people of this Territory are tired of this rotten balderdash and canting humbug.

The specious plea is advanced that this office belonged, as a matter of right, to what is called the Pecos Valley section of this Territory. Where are the facts to substantiate such claims? Why should this new office have gone to that section if other sections of the Territory had proper men as candidates? Certainly not on account of the great number of Republican votes that had been cast there in the past or that will, in all human probability, be polled there in the immediate future. At a liberal estimate the New Mexican believes that there are at this time between 700 and 800 Republicans in the Pecos Valley section and at a low estimate about 3,000 Democrats. Therefore from a political standpoint, the stand taken by the New Mexican's esteemed contemporary cannot be successfully defended or properly vindicated. What is sauce for one should be sauce for the other. The new Sixth Judicial District was created for the benefit of the commonwealth at large. The Pecos Valley counties are but a part of this. They gained the court headquarters of their old district and the location of a judge and clerk at Roswell. Upon what is this great kick against "unwarranted and unwise interference of the territorial 'machine' based? Wind! nothing else. The New Mexican has received many communications from the Pecos Valley and upon the whole the Republicans of that section are very well satisfied and there will be few defections from the party and none of these will occur in Chaves and Roosevelt Counties, as far as the New Mexican's information goes. In Eddy County this paper believes more moderate and better councils will also prevail and that the 200 or 250 Republicans there will make as good a fight this year as they ever have before, despite the reports from the Journal's Democratic correspondent in Carlsbad.

FOR SINGLE STATEHOOD—THE ONLY POLICY.

The Democratic national convention has indorsed single statehood for the territories of New Mexico and Arizona and has placed the party on record in favor of speedy admission of the territories. The Republican platform was silent upon the question. Considering the situation, there is nothing for the New Mexico Republicans to do but to go on record in the next territorial convention, which will select a candidate for delegate, as absolutely opposed to joint statehood and as unequivocally and at all times in favor of single statehood for this Territory within present territorial limits. Indeed this is the only policy open for the Republican party. This the New Mexican has advocated ever since the fight to force joint statehood upon New Mexico and Arizona against the will, wishes and desires of the great majority of the citizens of these two territories began. The New Mexican was the only daily paper that made this fight; it persisted in it, believing it to be but just, honest and for the best interests of the two commonwealths. It simply represented the people therein. This fall's Republican platform with a joint statehood plank will invite defeat and court disaster. There is no other way but to fight for single statehood until it is attained. The mirage of "joint statehood or no state for twenty-five years" is dissolved. Several Republican Senators, men of prominence and influence in the Senate, at the Chicago convention promised to aid New Mexico to obtain single statehood and it was given out cold that this Territory would obtain single statehood just as quickly as joint statehood. The situation is much clearer and better. From recent information this paper believes that in the Fifty-ninth Congress, single statehood will be awarded the Territory of New Mexico. Hence the fight must be made over again and from this time to come. The Republican territorial convention cannot afford to ignore this question and the Republican party must place itself squarely and courageously on record for single statehood unless the party wants its friend, the enemy, the Democratic party, to have the advantage of the situation and to hold the strongest position in the coming political fight.

The construction of ten or twelve miles of railroad from San Antonio to the coal fields at Carthage will help that part of Socorro County very much. It will bring prosperity and fair wages to a goodly number of people and will help the advance and progress of that region. Everything helps and the New Mexican is glad to see it. What benefits one part of the Territory in a greater or smaller degree, benefits the whole.

The gold standard Democrats can certainly not find very much to comfort them in the platform adopted yesterday by the St. Louis convention. The Bryanites of course are dissatisfied with the silence of the convention on the money question. In this respect, the platform certainly pleases no one.

Hill and Bryan "lost out" in the St. Louis convention. Bryan was foiled in his advocacy for the adoption of an income tax plank. Hill was defeated in his attempt to insert a gold standard resolution. Both may be well satisfied with the result, but a dollar to a doughnut that they are not.

Although the sheep raisers of this Territory have lost heavily in lambs this season, still they are not as badly off as they might be. The wool clip has been fair and is bringing satisfactory prices. After all every cloud seems to have a silver lining.

At any rate General Nelson A. Miles got some good advertising out of the attempt to nominate him as the Prohibition candidate for the presidency. When one cannot have the thing itself, getting good advertising is the next best thing on the program.

The agony is over! The Democratic St. Louis convention has named the candidates and the people now know that these will be defeated on election day in November next.

The New Mexican prints the news.

ENGAGED.

Marriage is very largely an accident. In few cases do men or women set up a standard of manly or womanly excellence and choose by it. In most cases people become engaged as the result of propinquity rather than because of any deep rooted preference.

And so it often happens that the wife enters upon the obligations of maternity just as thoughtlessly as she entered on the marriage relation, because no one has warned her of the dangers she faces.

Thousands of women become invalids for lack of knowledge of themselves. It is to this large body of women that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes as a priceless boon, because it cures womanly ills.

"Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"After my first child was born," writes Mrs. Jordan Stout, of Fayetteville, Frederick Co., Va., "my health was very poor for a long time, and last winter I was so bad with pain down in back I could hardly move without great suffering. My husband got me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and a vial of his 'Pleasant Pellets,' which I used as directed. In four days I was greatly relieved, and now, after using the medicine three months, I seem to be entirely well. I can't see why it is that there are so many suffering women when there is such an easy way to be cured. I know your medicines are the best in the world."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets the favorite family laxative. One 'Pellet' a laxative, two 'Pellets' a cathartic dose.

The harmony at yesterday's sessions of the St. Louis convention was as marked as it is in a fight between Kentucky moonshiners and special revenue officers.

Although Cleveland stock was at par in this week's Democratic convention, nevertheless there were no takers. Too much ponderosity about it perhaps.

Despite their professed antipathy and opposition to taking a swallow, nevertheless the Prohibitionists took a "swallow" for their candidate for the presidency.

There is more Catarrh in this section of country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only catarrhal cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. It cures one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, etc.

CERTAIN RESULTS.

Many a Santa Fe Citizen Knows How Sure They Are.

Nothing is so certain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Santa Fe. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement:

Mrs. J. C. Hull (J. C. Hull, carpenter and contractor) of Johnson st., says: "Three years ago a physician told me he did not think I would ever recover from an attack of dropsy. I did, but since then I have frequently puffed about the eyes, in the hands, feet and limbs. I suffered from backache so severely and acutely that it was impossible to sit up. It is at least eleven years since I first noticed a tendency toward dropsy and I had given up all hopes of ever being helped, let alone cured. An advertisement about Doan's Kidney Pills induced me to go to Ireland's Pharmacy for a box. If kidney pills had not brought undoubted relief I never would have bought a second nor a third, and if the treatment of three boxes had not driven away the last attack, I would be the last resident to publicly endorse the means employed, namely Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

The Santa Fe announces another series of homeseekers' tickets from points in the middle west to New Mexico and Arizona, the rate for the round trip will be one fare plus $2 and tickets will be good for 21 days from date of sale. They will be sold every first and third Tuesday from May to December.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

In The Land of The Moki

By OLIN D. WHEELER.

Under the burning sun of New Mexico and Arizona exists a race interesting alike to the ethnologist or the ordinary but intelligent observer. Perched high up on the jagged, wind beaten mesas which are so prominent a feature of their country, or snuggling in the baked valleys by the side of sluggish and shallow water courses or near never-falling springs, they live their uneventful, unobtrusive lives. They are born, they live, they die where for countless years before them their ancestors lived and died, and they cling with unyielding pertinacity to these rocks and plains, made ever memorable to them by the traditions of their forefathers. Such are the cliff dwellers, using the word in a descriptive sense only.

There are Indians and Indians, and the mild and peaceful Pueblo of the southwest is a species strongly differentiated from the genus Indian in general. To one familiar with the life, customs and physique of the plains or mountain Indian, the staid, inoffensive, semi-civilized and town dwelling Pueblo, seems a strange interjection among the wild, roving Indian nations.

Among the many Pueblo communities, there are two which stand out for various reasons, as especially conspicuous. These are the Zuni of New Mexico and the Moki of Arizona. The former have always been much easier of access than the latter, and have been pretty thoroughly known for many years through the researches of various individuals, particularly Cushing, who, to all intents and purposes, became one of them and for several years lived with them.

The latter, while much easier to reach since the railroad systems of the southwest have been elaborated, are still rather remote from main traveled routes and are much less known to us than their friends and brothers the Zuni.

In the winter of 1874 and 1875, long before there was a railroad within hundreds of miles of them, with one companion I left the nation's capital bound for the Moki villages. By rail and stage we safely reached Santa Fe. Here we hired a cook and two teamsters and their outfits, and journeyed 200 miles farther west to Fort Wingate. Discharging our teamsters there, the remaining three slowly toiled on the rest of the way, a journey of a week's duration, with two heavily loaded army wagons provided by the government. The object of this trip was trade and barter, we obtaining a fine collection of wares and pottery of all sorts, food, articles of domestic and agricultural use, samples of wearing apparel, etc., for the Centennial Exposition, and giving in return many things that were useful and then, in some cases, almost unknown to the Indians. We lived among these people for three weeks, a very busy set of men. This visit was supplemented by another made some years later, when, with a small party, I revisited the Moki, going in from the south on horseback and with a pack train, and remaining in the neighborhood several days.

The agency of the Mokis was near some springs at the head of a small canon, now known as Keam's Canon, and the nearest Indian towns were fifteen miles distant. We were met on our arrival at the agency by a large deputation of Mokis, who tethered their burros round about and remained for the night. We had little sleep, for the braying of the donkeys made night simply hideous.

In order to accomplish our object in journeying thither it was necessary to place ourselves in immediate contact with the Indians, and that meant to transport our merchandise into the very towns themselves. As will be seen, this was no easy task. It was also important not to lose any time, for at the best delays would come, and so the morning after we reached the agency we hitched in the mules and started for the cliff homes of our dusky friends, escorted by the detachment that had come to welcome us to their domiciles.

As we started from the agency there were seven of us exclusive of the Mokis. Jack and myself from the east, our cook from Santa Fe, the two army teamsters, an assistant who joined us at Fort Defiance, and the trader at the agency, Billy Keam, who went with us as interpreter. The latter spoke the Navaho and Moki languages fluently, and he and his brother at Fort Defiance, 75 miles eastward, both possessed great influence among all the Indians of the region, and he was therefore an invaluable man to us.

Our route for the first few miles followed the devious courses of the canon to the west. While the canon was a shallow one, its walls rose sufficiently high to shut off all outlook except straight ahead, as we wound down its funnel-like length. When we arrived at the mouth an extended view opened before us. The abrupt cliffs of the bed of rock through which the canon had cut its way extended in sinuous profile far to the north and south, bounding a wide and nearly level plain which stretched to the south beyond the ability of the eye to follow, and to the north for more than half a score of miles. Gazing straight ahead to the west across a space of seven or eight miles the view was terminated by another and higher line of cliffs, which in a direction a little north of west ended in a clean cut, commanding salient. The top of this salient and the cliffs for a distance back of it were of an irregular, notched appearance, and these notches, we were informed, indicated the nearest villages of the Moki.

When we had progressed midway into the plain and reached a somewhat broken stretch of ground, we saw the Mokis, who were in advance of us, halt and dismount from their burros. The noon hour had arrived and luncheon was to be served. We likewise halted and the cook set about preparing our dinner.

While it was cooking I had an opportunity of investigating the Moki bill of fare. It was a cold lunch and seemed to consist almost wholly of their corn meal bread, called "wyavi" or "pi-ki". It bore a curious appearance, being made in rolls or sticks twelve to fifteen inches in length and perhaps an inch or more in diameter. Each roll was made of several thin, layers wrapped around each other and was very brittle. Some rolls were yellow, some blue, others white and still others red. I ate some of it, and while it tasted very flat, yet it was not repulsive. It would require a cultivated taste to relish it. I afterwards witnessed the process of making it. The Mokis raise corn of the four—or even more—colors indicated, red, white, blue and yellow, and one can see it hanging from the rafters of their houses in heavy bunches and festoons, and stored in interior store rooms, in large quantities. A famine in this region once upon a time, so tradition runs, taught them to keep on hand a two years' supply of corn and other food, to guard against future failures of crops.

Much of the corn is ground into meal and when "pi-ki" is to be made, the meal is converted into a very thin mush. In the fire place a long, narrow, flat stone is placed upon stone supports at each end, and, with fire underneath, is thoroughly heated. A woman then scoops up with the hand a handful of the mush and smears it lengthwise over the stone and it is cooked in an instant into long, thin, crisp, wafer-like sheets. A number of sheets are then rolled together, as the cooking progresses, and the pi-ki is ready to be eaten.

Our meal ended, we resumed our progress, and in the latter part of the afternoon drew near to the cliffs. They loomed up 600 to 800 feet above the valley, in most places nearly, in many places quite, vertical. The ground over which we advanced grew more sandy and changed to an up grade as well, compelling frequent halts to rest the mules. The three villages before us now stood out plainly in silhouette against the sky and easily revealed the safety afforded their people from their enemies in cases of friction with neighboring tribes. It can hardly be doubted that this fact was the important reason that caused them to be so placed. Their farms and orchards are in the valley below; the springs which form their main supply of water, burst forth at the base of the mesa; the fuel which supplies their fires is ten or fifteen miles away, and after being brought across the valley has to be carried to the top of the precipitous mesa on the backs of donkeys or men.

What argument of convenience or of political economy, even of an Indian, existed for building their habitations on these rocky heights, when, besides the foregoing, constituting good reasons for not doing so, the stone necessary for building purposes lay scattered about, ready to their hands, at the base of the palisades? What reason, indeed, save the all important one to them in the centuries gone by, of practically absolute impregnability against the enemies with whom they might be forced to contend? A small body of determined men fighting for life, families and homes could hold those heights against a large body of besiegers armed with bows and arrows, and inflict great damage upon them.

We soon reached the spot chosen for bivouac, and, unitching the mules, placed them in charge of a Moki herder and saw them go forth to graze until nightfall. The eastern wall of the mesa towered imposingly above us 600 feet or more. Near the end of the mesa the walls fell a sheer precipice for about one-half the distance, the remainder being a more or less abrupt talus of sand plentifully mixed with spawls of rock fallen from the cliff. All along this talus were rudely constructed stone corrals into which the Mokis drove their sheep every night. These corrals were but loosely built stone walls two and three feet high, square or rectangular in shape, of various sizes, conforming to the nature of the ground and with the entrances roughly closed at night.

Built on sloping ground they answered well the purpose of confining sheep. Continued on Page Six.

The feast of the Pueblo of Cochiti, will be held by the Indians of that place on Thursday the 14th. It is one of the most interesting and unique events of the kind and Santa Fe people who are interested in Indian lore and customs should make it a point to attend. Walter Sharp of El Dorado, Kansas, bridge contractor, and who constructed the fine bridge across the Rio Santa Fe on Don Gaspar Avenue, is in town and submitted plans for the construction of the new bridge on College Street to the Board of County Commissioners this forenoon. Many complaints are heard on account of the wretched condition of the ancient cobble stone track on the south side of Don Gaspar Avenue, between San Francisco and Water Streets. A few cobble stones are there pretending to constitute a sidewalk and whatever there is of this is in a wretched condition and very unsatisfactory to pedestrians. The city authorities should compel the owners of the properties there to construct, and that without delay, a suitable brick sidewalk. These property owners get very good rental for these buildings and can afford to make this improvement.

ment which are of great necessity. The common council should lose no time in ordering this sidewalk to be built, and see to it that it is done promptly and properly. The present thing that serves for a sidewalk there is a disgrace.

It pays to buy, once and for all, a dependable wagon. There are plenty of low priced wagons labeled "Just as good" as Studebaker's but in the end they cost twice the buying price in repairs. It pays to buy the old reliable Studebaker wagons for everyone knows that only honest, wood, tires and workmanship go into them. You can buy Studebaker wagons in your own town. For sale by the Santa Fe Hardware and Supply Company. See the advertisement on page eight.

The cry is "Still they come." Fair days follow serenely one after another, and the rains which would be most grateful, refuse to descend. The program for tonight and tomorrow is "generally fair. Stationary temperature." The mercury forges ahead each day over the record of the previous day. Yesterday it climbed as high as 81 degrees at 4:10 p. m., but dropped to 56 degrees at 4:30 a. m. yesterday. The mean temperature for the day was 68 degrees, relative humidity, 17 per cent. At 6 o'clock this morning the thermometer registered 59 degrees.

The city board of education will meet in a call session on Monday evening next, provided a quorum can be obtained. Citizens and property owners are anxious that the advertising for sale of the Fort Marcy donation be taken up and something definite be done in the premises. The question of commencing work on the construction of the new modern school buildings should be attended to and prompt action thereon had. The old buildings that now disfigure the square whereupon the new high school building is to be erected, should be torn down and the debris hauled away as soon as possible.

that had little inclination to jump their walls to roam at large on the sandy wastes below them and possibly fall a prey to prowling coyotes. At other places the cliff wall led down abruptly into huge rounded billows of sand, very difficult to walk over. At many sheltered angles small springs issued forth, and at these points there were numerous peach trees. This fruit the Mokis used both in a green and dried state, and a few pounds of the latter made a welcome addition to our meager bill of fare. At various points trails were visible leading to the villages above. Many of them were used almost exclusively by the people, being very steep and not infrequently having steps cut out of the solid rock, and again, having steps made from loose rocks and built into the trail at such places as were necessary.

Before nightfall Keam and I had ascended to the top of the mesa and completed arrangements to occupy for our trading post a room in the central one of the three towns, that had been used as a Moki school room. Another room across the way on the edge of the cliff was given us for our dining room and kitchen. We sent up our beds and a quantity of food supplies and cooking utensils by the Mokis and left the two teamsters to guard the wagons for the night.

We were up betimes the next morning for there was much to do. Breakfast being eaten, by the aid of the interpreter we selected two or three men to superintend the task of removal of our supplies from the wagons to the mesa. These bargained for us with a sufficient number of Indians to effect a rapid accomplishment of this operation.

Leaving George, the cook, on the mesa, the rest of us hastened below and soon had the satisfaction of seeing many Mokis loaded heavily with impedimenta, climbing the trails like so many goats. Their method of carriage was by means of lariats of buckskin, rawhide, or hair, carried around the forehead, the load being borne across the back. This left the hands free for climbing. The whole force of the strain came upon the forehead, which was usually protected by some softer substance placed underneath the lariat. Among other articles we had a 500 pound bale of cotton, brought from St. Louis, which we turned over to two able-bodied fellows. They cut it in two, and heavy and bulky as it was even then, they managed to transport it to the mesa, but it was a laborious operation. Jack, my companion, had a large amount of photographic apparatus which he would not permit to pass from under his watchful eye. His entire time was personally devoted to seeing that his cameras, glass plates and chemicals—there were no dry plates then—were safely housed on the heights above. As soon as we had the Indians fairly started on the way, leaving one person to attend to the shipment below, Keam and I hastened above to receive and arrange the goods in the trading room. This room was on the ground floor and was rectangular in shape. In one corner of the front end was a fire place and the rear end was lighted by two windows. There was also at this end a dais, or platform, about one foot high extending across the room. At this point we arranged our merchandise, making a counter in front of the platform and shelves against the rear wall, from the packing boxes we had brought along. At the close of a busy day everything was arranged for trading to begin. Our purpose in coming was now well understood by all the people, and the character of our wares also known.

To make our prospective collection of any value it was necessary to have it as thoroughly arranged and classified as time and circumstances would allow. To this end we engaged two or three of the more intelligent Mokis, who had proven themselves to be efficient helpers, as assistants. Two of these, Nah-hi, or Nah-hee, a man of mixed Moki and Navaho extraction, and Louise, as the second one was called in English, were especially serviceable. The latter particularly, a small, bright-eyed, nervous man with three brass rings pendant from his ears, entered into the spirit of the occasion with great vim. His enunciation was very clear and his assistance in getting at the exact pronunciation, accent and inflection of the Indian names of things was invaluable. I became much attached to this little fellow in the days that followed.

It was determined that John should sleep below that night, near the wagons, and on the following day we sent them back to the agency to remain there until needed. John was a source of great wonder to the Mokis. He seemed to be, if not the first negro, among the first that they had ever seen, and he was surrounded by a crowd of sight-seers until it became a nuisance. Upon the first or second day of our arrival, while he and Keam, and I were standing together, several Indians, including a bright, buxom squaw, were gazing at and talking about him. The squaw finally asked if he was black all over, or if only his face and hands were black. Our response evidently did not satisfy her doubts, for, after a few seconds, she calmly suggested that John reduce himself to a state of nudity for her inspection. This was too much for John's modesty and he very emphatically and peremptorily declined to gratify her curiosity.

The Moki Pueblos were known in the early Spanish chronicles as the province of Tusayan and they consisted then, as now, of seven villages, perhaps not, however, those of the present day. On the first mesa there are now the towns of Walpi, occupying the extreme end of the mesa, Sichumnavi, some 200 yards to the north, and Tewa, perhaps 200 yards beyond the latter. The surface of the mesa at this point is of level rock, and, although the three villages are separated by considerable intervals, it is not enough to prevent unrestricted and amicable intercourse between them.

The mesa being wider at the points where Sichumnavi and Tewa are located, these pueblos occupy much more ground than does Walpi, have wider streets and courts, and the houses are, with rare exceptions, only two stories high. Walpi is by far the most picturesque and interesting of the three, or even of the seven, towns, being located at the extreme limit of the salient where the walls are narrowed to a point, and the rocks break away in a confused mass with the upper portion a vertical cliff. The narrowing of the mesa necessitated the building of the town in a more compact manner than were the others, and there are many houses that rise to four stories above the level of the mesa. Massed together as it is, filling the point from cliff to cliff and rising so high in the air, it makes a most effective and impressive picture viewed from whatever point one sees it. The houses are quite well built from stone cemented with mud, or adobe, and the surface of the mesa, being of solid rock, furnished an everlasting foundation. The walls are two feet or more thick and the stone used of many sizes. The exterior of many of the houses is mud plastered and the interiors are all so finished. Most of the houses in Sichumnavi and Tewa have doors on the ground floor, while the larger number in Walpi are entered by ladders leading to porches on the second story. The walls themselves, being very thick are generally terraced into convenient steps and utilized in lieu of ladders. The rafters and joists are of round pine stripped of the bark. In the floors and roofs these are overlaid with cedar boughs, these again by yucca fibre or other straw-like material, and, finally, they are covered by a thick layer of adobe mud. The living rooms have generous fire places with chimneys, the latter being ornamentally topped off with discarded pottery kettles having the bottoms knocked out. In Walpi especially, a great many of the houses are built together in such fashion that the outsider can seldom discern any division lines. Whether this tends to produce disputes I do not know, but the presumption is against it, as there is much of such building in all the pueblos.

The name Moki is not the original Indian name of these people, but, nevertheless, it seems to be a very old name. The story was told me that once upon a time the small pox raged among them with such violence and the deaths were so many and frequent that no attempt at burial was made, but that the dead bodies were simply tumbled over the cliffs to the valley below. From this harvest of death they came to be called by the other tribes, the Moki, or people of death, as it was intended to signify. It is evident that this scourge has visited them more than once, for there were numbers whose faces bore evidences of having passed through the affliction, and their ages gave token that it was of comparatively recent time. The name by which these Indians are known among themselves is Hopi, which seems to be a contraction of a much longer word. Our success in obtaining a collection from these towns was highly gratifying. When the time came to leave and proceed to the second mesa, as the point where the next three Pueblos were located was usually termed, we were loth to go. Jack was not through with his photographic work and so he and the cook remained behind, while Keam and myself, with Jock, our other teamster, and his wagon, went on our way, John being engaged in transporting our collection to the agency and carefully storing it there until our return.

We took with us, to the other towns, Nah-hi and a chief from Tewa named Molasseh and dubbed in English, Molasses. The people of these villages, while entirely friendly, were less visited by whites and were, as a result, more reserved and shy in their intercourse with them than were those of the first mesa. We, therefore, felt it to be a wise measure to take with us two men of standing of their own sort to bespeak for us a friendly welcome. In this we were successful, but were unable to add greatly to our collection.

The appearance of this mesa was very different from the other. Instead of the great extent of vertical, angular palisades, the walls of rock were buttressed by rounded banks of lead-colored clay, washed and ravined by the rains. This clay talus was from 150 to 300 feet high and modified the otherwise lofty and abrupt appearance of the promontory. Gazed at, however, from the south, the appearance of the mesa was striking in the extreme, as the high walls, crowned with the towns rising still higher, struck the beholder with tremendous effect. Some distance back from the culminating point of the mesa was the village of Mishongnavi, while a half mile back of this, upon a bold, vertical cliff rising high above Mishongnavi stood Shipou-lavi. The latter village looked for all the world like an old castellated ruin, and its people might well consider themselves safe from all intrusion in their formidable and rockbound eyrie. Over to the southeast Shimopavi could be plainly seen at a distance of two or three miles. Well out on the edge of the bluff it looked, and was, isolated and forlorn.

Our intercourse here was almost entirely confined to the people of Mishongnavi. We did not visit either Shipanavi or Shimopavi, but some of the dwellers in the former pueblo, however, came down to see us. We found here a number of albinos, their pink eyes and white tow heads contrasting strangely with their more sable neighbors. The head chief, or governor, of Mishongnavi was a one-eyed man who was out on the plain with his sheep and goats when we arrived. At sundown he returned and we made our call upon him soon after. He received us pleasantly, but was decidedly tactful and unimpressed. We stood by while he filled his stomach with Moki viands. His squaw brought out into the court-like porch, a large, dirty, black kettle of pottery fresh from the fire and filled with a soup, or mixture, which had in it quantities of corn, mutton and other ingredients not familiar to us. Quickly squatting down on his hams, the old chief plunged his right hand into the mess and scooped up handful after handful of the stew, and conveying it thus to his mouth, sucked it down. In this primitive manner, unfettered by the annoyances of the so-called conveniences of civilization did this copper-colored old heathen dispatch his meal. By his aid we were enabled to obtain comfortable quarters while we remained for a few days with his people.

The women and children of this mesa were mildly and amusingly fearful of us. There was an entire absence of that feeling of unconcern as to our presence and freedom of movement noticeable among the females of the other mesa. The young girls, especially from eight to ten years of age, were very wary. When not noticed by us they would congregate in groups on the house-tops and furtively watch us, but the instant we turned our eyes upon them away they would scamper, pell mell, as wild as young deer, or drop down behind the parapets completely hidden in an instant. These young damsels are extremely interesting. The average Moki woman is, perhaps invariably, not large nor obese. Short in stature, plump and round of form, of pleasing countenance, with beautiful jet black hair banded at the eyes, when clad in tasteful and colored blankets, she presents a picture fair indeed to see. The unmarried contingent were even, as might be expected, more interesting, and most decidedly picturesque. The manner of wearing the hair distinguishes the married woman from the virgin. The latter wears her black tresses gracefully done up in a large round coil several inches in diameter over each ear and projecting out from the head somewhat. The effect is delightfully novel, and, coupled with the fresh and youthful appearance of the girls, makes them special objects of interest. They were, in those days, termed, in current slang, "sidewheelers," from their mode of dressing the hair.

By the time Jack had finished photographing here, it was necessary to prepare for our homeward trip. It would require at least a month to reach the railway and time was now becoming precious. It was with real regret that we left these interesting people, albeit our faces were turned toward home. We had been warmly received and hospitably treated, in a crude, unconventional way it is true, but we had been given the "freedom of their cities," our barter had been successful, and what more could we ask? Reluctantly we loaded our last wagon, and, with many buenos and lolamias, turned our faces eastward. Packing our collection at the agency as carefully as was possible we left our friends there to the seclusion which their situation granted in the little canon, and began our long return journey.

In my subsequent visit to these people, some years later, they received me again with true hospitality, and I found that they remembered me well and as a friend. Even the young men, youthful lads at my first visit, came to me and shook hands warmly and brought me presents of fruits.

There is much of the milk of human kindness in the breasts of these impulsive Pueblo brethren of ours and I freely confess to a great liking and sympathy for them in the narrow orbit of their lives.
