LINCOLN COUNTY WARM GREETING TO DELEGATE

Members of Party Are Impressed With Andrews' Personal Following.

CARRIZO MEETING WAS RECORD BREAKER

Throughout Eastern New Mexico The Party Has Been Enthusiastically Welcomed and Received Assurance of Support For Delegate.

Carrizozo, N. M., Oct. 20.—Members of the party accompanying Delegate Andrews in his campaign throughout this part of the territory have been impressed with the personal following the delegate has in Mora, Guadalupe, Union, Eddy, San Miguel, Roosevelt, Chavez and Lincoln counties, and with the excellent campaign the delegate is making. On this trip he has made a number of speeches at various towns in those counties, not oratorical flights of rhetoric, but clear, concise and convincing talks to citizens of the territory.

Monday morning a big mass meeting was held at the court house. The building was packed to the doors and as in the other places visited the crowd was enthusiastic for Andrews and statehood.

From Lincoln the party drove to Captain where R. C. Ely made the principal speech. From Captain the party proceeded to Nogales where several speeches were made to a big crowd.

Both Delegate Andrews and Governor Curry have been overwhelmed by the reception in Lincoln county. Parents brought their entire families for miles to meet the distinguished guests, and in every locality a holiday was observed while the party remained. Governor Curry has been enjoying himself, meeting old comrades and friends of former years. He is easily the most popular governor the territory has ever had.

A record breaking mass meeting was held here last night for the delegate and party and a musical program was arranged by residents in addition to the speeches scheduled. A big chorus of ladies sang national airs and a fine orchestra, one of the best in New Mexico, played a number of selections.

The speeches by Delegate Andrews and R. C. Ely aroused enthusiasm. The crowd was the biggest ever assembled here for a political meeting and was a considerable surprise to leaders of Democracy.

DEMENTED MAN DIES OF EXPOSURE

Body Found This Morning in a Grove Near the River, South of This City.

Canute Arlas, about 48 years old, a demented man living with his brothers at San Jose precinct, Old Town of Bernalillo, was this morning found dead by his brother Francisco about seven miles south of the city in a grove close to the river where the demented man had wandered.

He was missed from the house on Saturday afternoon and immediately a search was instituted, some men being sent up the river and some down. The search was kept up all through Sunday and Monday until his body was found in the grove, where he undoubtedly went to take shelter.

The man had wandered off before several times in the past few years but he was searched for and found in the houses of people living in the villages north of town. He was inoffensive and harmless. The man died from exposure as he was unable to find his way back home and such was the corner's verdict. He will be buried on Wednesday at San Jose cemetery. His mother died about a year and a half ago.

THAW STAYS IN NEW YORK.

Pittsburg, Oct. 20.—In the federal court here today, Judge Young dismissed the writ of habeas corpus proceedings requiring the presence of Thaw in this city. This means that Thaw will not be brought here at present.

MANY GAINS INDICATE UNIVERSAL WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Katherine Reed Balentine Reviews Gains Made in Many Different Countries.

KEEP BEFORE PUBLIC IS METHOD FOLLOWED

Women Have Adopted Advice of Former Premier of Great Britain and Will Keep Themselves in the Limelight.

Buffalo, Oct. 20.—In an address before the National Woman Suffrage association, which is meeting in annual session here, Katherine Reed Balentine gave a review of the progress made by the suffrage movement and of the methods by which it has been accomplished in different countries. She said in part:

"Now that women are voting in Russia, I have the courage to hope that we shall sometime obtain the suffrage in New York, Massachusetts, and Maine.

"In England the last and final argument that women do not themselves want the franchise has become ridiculous. On June 15th 15,000 suffragists paraded through the streets of London. It is said that the woman suffrage meeting of the 21st was the largest public meeting ever held for any cause. The former premier, Mr. Balfour, was taken at his word when he said: 'Agitate, kick up a fuss, keep on kicking. Get into the public eye through the newspapers and stay there. If interest and publicity wane, kick up a new kind of a fuss. And all the time keep knocking at the doors of Parliament.' No one doubts that the women of England want and intend to have votes.

"Between 1869 and 1896 full suffrage was granted to women in four states of this Union—Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Idaho—and in South Australia. West Australia gave full parliamentary suffrage to women in 1900. Two years later full national suffrage was granted to the women of federated Australia, in Tasmania in 1903, and in Queensland in 1905. In 1906 the women of Finland were given full suffrage and nineteen elected to the first Parliament. Twenty-five have been elected to the second. Within the last year women have obtained full suffrage in Norway. In Russia army officers and women who own property may now vote by proxy for members of the Duma.

"It is interesting to note that the most backward countries are not without some form of woman's rights movement. The subject recently came up in the Spanish Cortes, and in Italy a large women's convention has lately been held, in which a day was devoted to woman suffrage. In China, Japan, Persia, India and Turkey there are full fledged feminist movements.

"It is said that history repeats itself, but this particular phenomenon—the world-wide claim of women to political equality with men—has never happened before. It has no historic precedent. Let us consider its possible significance. We know that republics, after rising to great heights of civilization great in proportion to the freedom of their citizens, always decline and fall. Many reasons are given for this seemingly inevitable decay, such as lack of outside enemies, foreign conquest, easy divorce, wealth, etc. All these are contributing factors but they are not the real source of weakness.

"Women compose one-half of the inhabitants of a so-called republic. They undoubtedly possess that which we hear so much about from the anti-'influence.' But does disfranchisement influence, influence unattended by the responsibility of the ballot and the broadening experience of public service, make for the greatest good to the greatest number, the aim of true democracy? Can women and do they, average every-day women, in their present condition as subjects take a very lively interest in the real welfare of the state? Hardly. And are not men and men children affected by this indifference? It could scarcely be otherwise. It may be said that average men, notwithstanding their possession of the ballot, are indifferent to the public weal, but they are not rendered doubly so by continually associating with a class that feels no allegiance and really owes no allegiance to the state?

"I think that in all political reform movements arguments have served but one purpose—that of stimulating the agitators themselves, of keeping them convinced of the justice of their cause. But to exert any power from those who hold the monopoly of it, words have little effect. Actions are all that really count. For sixty years the suffragettes argued, now they are using other tactics, are rewarding their friends and punishing their enemies.

ONCE "ABDUL THE DAMNED" NOW "ABDUL THE BLESSED"

Photograph just arrived from Turkey, showing popular ovation to Sultan Abdul Hamid, who since he recently granted his people a constitution, rides out in public in an open carriage for the first time in 30 years. The photograph was taken about two weeks ago, while the Sultan was on his way to weekly prayers, known as Selamk, at the Hamidie Mosque. A small guard accompanies the carriage, and it is now only necessary to restrain the enthusiasm of the populace.

Alluding to the Balkans, the emperor said that Germany was less interested there than other powers, but that the country worked with the others for a peaceful and satisfactory solution of the present difficulties.

TURKISH WOMEN IN POLITICS

London, Oct. 20.—The telegram sent by King Edward to congratulate the sultan on the anniversary of his accession marks definitely that the constitution is an established fact, and by the women of Turkey no less than the men is the new regime being cordially welcomed.

Pierre Loti's novel, "The Disenchanted," gave vivid descriptions of the discontent prevailing in the harem, but scarcely any one could have believed, when that was written, that a change was so near.

Already Europeans hear of public meetings being held by women and fetes attended by them—500 women at a time, without their veils.

At their principal meeting their president, Labinch-Hanum, the wife of the physician, Rifaat-Pasha, voiced their demand for full equality of the sexes and for full freedom for all.

They demand to be placed on the level of European women, which, in the matter of individual liberty, would be for them an immense advantage.

SUES THE SANTA FE FOR BIG DAMAGES

United States Contractor Blames Road for Inability to Finish Work.

The Santa Fe railroad is the defendant in a big damage suit which has been filed at San Antonio, Texas, according to a dispatch from there, which says:

J. P. Nelson, who secured a contract in November, 1906, from the United States government to construct a dam across the Rio Grande, other structural work and a six-mile canal at Selden, a point near Las Cruces, N. M., for $3,478,95, and who failed to complete the work in a prescribed time, has instituted suit in the 45th district court against Santa Fe railroad for $31,194 damages, the result of alleged delay in the transportation of lumber to the scene of operations.

The plaintiff names as defendants the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroads. He specifically charges that the cause of his failure to complete the work by April 20, 1907, the limit date, is due to the insistence of the defendants to transport the lumber contracted for between the plaintiff and the Spencer Lumber company over their own lines entirely, rather than partly over the road of the Southern Pacific railroad, as desired by the lumber concern.

In closing a contract for lumber the plaintiff avers that he urged the necessity of immediate transportation owing to the damage of high water in the Rio Grande. The lumber was to be hauled from Siles and points in that vicinity to Selden, N. M. He avers that the lumber concern took the shipment of the material with the defendants and that the high water precaution was duly administered to the defendants by the lumber company. The lumber company desired the defendants to haul a part of the distance over the Southern Pacific tracks, thus cutting short the route, but that on the contrary, the defendants insisted on transporting entirely over their own lines or a distance 1200 miles greater than the route suggested by the lumber company.

Nelson agrees that he had to employ a man to go along the route of the defendant railroads and urge the immediate delivery of shipments that were sidetracked on the way to the scene of operations, causing extra expense; that the five months in which he was to have finished the work named with the job incomplete; that the Rio Grande rose and, because of high water, about which the defendants had been previously warned, the plaintiff's expensive plant had to lie idle for eight months.

The plaintiff shows in his petition that the actual loss on the contract with the government to him was $64,578.95; that damages for the idleness of his plant eight months is 8 per cent on $35,000, the approximate cost of his plant; or $31,440; that plaintiff's personal time during those eight months was worth $500 a month, or $4000; the cost of his special messenger to stir up the different lumber consignments was $225, etc., all aggregating $91,194.

This is the heaviest single damage suit filed in a district court of Texas county in six months.

NIGHT RIDERS KILL PROMINENT LAWYERS

Their Bodies Were Found, Riddled With Bullets, on Lake in Tennessee.

Union City, Tenn., Oct. 20.—Word comes from Reel Foot Lake that Hon. R. Z. Taylor and Captain Quinten Rankin, both prominent lawyers of Trenton, Tenn., who were fishing on the lake for a few days, were assassinated by night riders some time during the night. Taylor's body was found hanging to a tree, literally riddled with bullets. Rankin when found was not dead, and it is not known here whether he still lives. Rankin was one of the counsel who instituted suits against parties fishing at the lake and held stock in the former organization which controlled the lake. It is reported that Taylor also held stock in the company.

LEAVES PROPERTY TO HIS ONLY SON

Widow of John D. Torlina Has Three Courses From Which to Choose.

The last will and testament of John D. Torlina, whose death occurred last night, was filed in the probate clerk's office this morning. The bulk of the property, which includes considerable real estate, was left by the late merchant to his only son, George E. Torlina, of St. Louis. The widow is given her choice of three propositions. The first is that she may occupy a building at 110 South Third street and receive an annuity of $500 providing that she does not marry again. The second is that she may occupy the building at 820 South Third street and receive a monthly income of $35 a month. She is also provided for by other provisions during her natural life time, providing she does not marry again. The several grand children of the deceased are remembered quite liberally.

The will was made September 25, 1906 and witnessed by A. W. Harris and E. H. Dunbar. The deceased appointed Frank McKee, E. H. Dunbar and his son as the executors of his estate, and expressed a desire that his body be taken to St. Louis and buried in Belle Fontaine cemetery in the family burial lot.

The will suggests that the unimproved property belonging to the estate be disposed and the improved be retained intact. Mr. Torlina was a member of St. Louis lodge No. 20 of the Masonic Order and Royal Arch Chapter No. 8. He was also a member of Red Cross lodge No. 54 Knights of Pythias. He held a $2,000 life insurance policy in the Mutual Life Insurance company of New England.

Only freight trains, with a coach for men, will be operated over the branch.

THE JAPANESE EMPEROR KING EMMANUEL TO GIVE GRANTS AUDIENCE TO OFFICERS TO OFFICERS

Admiral Sperry and Subordinates Are Received in Palace by the Mikado.

THOUSANDS CHEER AMERICAN SAILORS

Japanese Lined Streets Through Which Officers Passed and Waved Flags, Shouting a Welcome to the Foreigners.

Tokio, Oct. 20.—The emperor of Japan today received in audience Rear Admiral Sperry, commander in chief of the American battleship fleet, three rear admirals of commanding divisions, a score of captains and chiefs of staff and flag lieutenants.

The ceremony was one of the most brilliant features of the week's celebration. Sperry presented to the emperor a message from President Roosevelt, assuring the mikado of the friendship entertained by the American people for Japan and the emperor replied in the most cordial terms.

The procession of carriages conveying the officers of the fleet to the palace, through the streets lined with cheering multitudes, was most imposing. When the spacious grounds opposite the approach of the palace, known as "Double Bridge," was reached, enthusiasm reached its height. A thousand children massed there cheered continuously and waved flags.

Arriving at the palace the visitors were ushered into the great audience hall, where the admirals were introduced by the American ambassador, Thomas J. O'Brien.

ARE FELT AT MANILA

Manila, Oct. 20.—Commencing at 1:40 yesterday morning a series of slight earthquakes were felt in Manila at irregular intervals until 5:30 in the afternoon. Only four shocks were pronounced, the others, numbering about a dozen, being merely recorded by the seismograph instruments, which continued to vibrate several hours. Two shocks were especially sharp but no damage was done in the city and none was reported in other places. Many persons fled from buildings during the more severe shocks, but the populace was generally calm.

FASTERN MAIL TOMORROW NIGHT

Delayed Trains Are Due to Reach This City Sometime Before Noon.

The washout at Lamar, Colo., which occurred Sunday night and temporarily stagnated traffic on the La Junta division of the Santa Fe, will not be replaced before Wednesday, according to advices received at the local station, but Albuquerque will be given eastern mail tomorrow morning. Passenger trains Nos. 1, 7 and 3, of today will arrive tomorrow morning between 3 and 7 o'clock, having been routed over the Missouri Pacific road from east of Lamar to Pueblo and back to the Santa Fe at La Junta. Trains No. 1, 7 and 3 yesterday, have been backed up and routed the same way, but will not reach Albuquerque until some time tomorrow forenoon.

A stub No. 1, started at La Junta yesterday morning, reached the city last night, bringing Denver mail and Denver passengers. A stub No. 3 started at La Junta, reached the city today on No. 3's time, carrying a mail car, a smoker and a sleeper. Last night's No. 1 and the No. 3 of today, were stopped here, however, and the passengers and mail brought on them, destined for points further south and west, will be sent out tonight on a second stub No. 1 started at La Junta early this morning and due here this evening on No. 1's time.

The exact damage done by the storm to the Santa Fe has not been learned here. The trouble is in the Arkansas river valley. A heavy rain fell there Sunday afternoon and night. Snow fell in northern Colorado. Wires were broken all over the state of Colorado, and rain and snow spread over the state of Kansas. There was snow in northern New Mexico west of the central part.

The Military Foot

It is hard these days to forecast where science is really going to land us if the large number of discoveries in scientific lines continue as in the past.

For instance an army officer now comes to the front with the statement that there is a "military foot" which is peculiar to Uncle Sam's army and which requires a certain kind of shoe, etc. The idea sounds preposterous but the Washington Herald treats it seriously and enters into the following explanation of the new pedal extremity:

The interesting discovery has been made of the existence of a "military foot." An officer of the army medical corps, Major Edward L. Munson, one of the most discerning and progressive officers of his branch of the army, on duty at Fort Sheridan, Ill., has submitted to the war department a report which gives the result of his personal observation of the foot of the soldier. Major Munson is the author of a recognized work on military hygiene and is qualified to address himself to a subject which bears so intimate a relation to the efficiency of the fighting force, especially in the case of the infantrymen, the mobility of which arm depends upon the endurance of the marcher. Consequently, it is important to consider the means which shall preserve the comfort of the foot of the man who may be obliged to march long distances, hardly any of it, at least in time of war, over ground which may be described as "good roads."

Major Munson points out in his report that the foot of the soldier, by virtue of his duties, has assumed a shape which is distinctive and may properly be identified as "military." The report has led to an important test, conducted at Fort Sheridan, with some one thousand pairs of shoes, actually tried on by soldiers in the presence of a board of experts which included the army surgeon. The report of the board is now in the possession of the war department, and recommends an additional type of shoe for the army, making three sets of shoes for each soldier. One pair will be in black leather of what might be called commercial shape; another will be a russet shoe built on the so-called orthopedic last. These shoes have been used in the service, the latter being the heavy marching shoe designed for comfort and durability. The third pair, the new shoe, will be a russet shoe, fashioned like the black shoe, and capable of taking polish. This will afford two pairs of shoes, one black and the other russet, of comely shape, to be worn in garrison and when the soldier is dressed up. The other shoe will be used for the harder usage of the field.

The sequel of Major Munson's identification of the military foot is an illustration of the care which is exercised in these days, not only in the matter of apparel, but in that of shelter, provisioning, and protection of health for the benefit of the man in the ranks. These elements, which contribute to comfort and create satisfaction, must have direct influence upon the fighting power of an army.

Dirty Work Now

Having failed to win the confidence of the people by posing Larrazolo as a sort of a political martyr, robbed of his just dues by the Republican party two years ago, the Democrats are desperately resorting to dirty work of all kinds in an effort to save the day.

Were the election to be held tomorrow, Larrazolo would stand defeated by a big vote which is growing daily bigger. In other words Larrazolo has been steadily losing ground and will continue to lose it.

The Democratic campaigners realize Larrazolo's weakness and they are resorting to all sorts of tactics to try and bolster up his vote and keep up a pretense of campaigning.

They have begun to resort to their old mud slinging tricks and much literature is being circulated, belittling and demeaning Mr. Andrews.

They have dragged out the Pittsburgh bank failure once more, despite the fact that it has been shown again and again that Mr. Andrews was in no manner connected with that affair; that the alleged cashier's letter was shown by the bank examiners to be a lie and an effort to shift responsibility for the bank's failure to the shoulders of Mr. Andrews, who was entirely innocent.

They have accused Mr. Andrews of being connected with corrupt interests in legislative affairs, despite the fact that his Washington friends in politics and in private life, are well known and are among the most powerful statesmen of the day.

A dozen other canards are being rehearsed by these campaigners in an effort to harm Mr. Andrews. However it is not likely that the results will be exactly what the Democrats expect.

Two years ago the same means were resorted to and while they layed Mr. Andrews to a great extent at that time, they failed to defeat him.

Two years ago these fake stories and charges were new in this territory. Today they are old—very old—and very tiresome to the bargain. They have been hashed and rehearsed until they have been disproven one by one.

As a result they will carry little weight and instead of doing harm to the Republican nominee, they will react upon Larrazolo and his supporters. Mr. Andrews has one claim upon the people of New Mexico which can not be overlooked. It is his record since he has been representing them in Congress. Larrazolo has no such claim nor would he have, were he sent to Congress from this territory for the next thirty years.

"Andrews and statehood" are what the people want.

Japan and the Fleet

The hearty reception given to the American fleet by the Japanese government is indicative of the friendliest feeling between this country and the land of the rising sun.

As an educational feature, the visit of the fleet to Japan is one of considerable importance. The American sailors will secure an insight into the wonderful development which Japan has been undergoing in recent years and the people of Japan will see the flower of the American navy and have a much greater respect for the sea power of this country.

If there ever was a disposition on the part of Japan to break off friendly relations with this country the sight of the big fleet will probably change the Mikado's point of view. However, appearances indicate that only the most friendly relations exist at present and it is to be hoped the visit of the big war ships will tend to cement the friendship.

Right about now is a good time, we think, for King Peter of Serbia and the Prince of Montenegro to retire to the woodshed with their respective heirs and administer a little old-fashioned corrective.

This remark is credited to Senator Gore: "The Democratic party is a party of statesmen without statesmanship, patriots without patriotism, freemen without freedom."

Just to show that he was not afraid to be seen in company with wealthy magnates, Mr. Taft a few days ago, shook hands with several plumbers.

Anyhow Larrazolo has had plenty of practice in speech making, which may assist him should he be called upon to handle a legal case again.

As the fleet enters Japanese harbors, it is about time for Hobson to again break loose with his war scares.

Mr. John Temple Graves is down in Georgia trying to save the Independence party.

There is about as much enthusiasm in the Democratic camp as there is in a cemetery.

To Hear From Cooper

L. T. COOPER.

¶ We wish to call the attention of the public to a series of "short talks" by L. T. Cooper that are to be published in this paper.

¶ The Cooper medicines have made a remarkable record in the leading cities of the United States during the past two years and young Mr. Cooper has been the subject of much newspaper comment.

¶ Mr. Cooper has met and talked with thousands of sick people in his visits to almost every large city in the country.

¶ He is noted as a man of very few words and tells briefly in these articles what his preparations are doing for sick people and why they have been successful wherever introduced.

¶ Mr. Cooper's theory is that one half of all human ills is caused by stomach trouble, and the wonderful success of his preparations in the treatment of stomach disorders, kidney and liver complaints, rheumatism, etc., seems to have proven this claim.

¶ Some time ago we secured the agency for these celebrated medicines. We have been gratified by the extreme satisfaction of those who have purchased them from us and advise every one to read these "short talks" as they are full of terse, common sense.

DAILY SHORT STORIES

THE ASHES IN THE URN.

(By Harold Carter.)

It was on the third day out from Queenstown that the rumor began to spread through the first cabin passengers. Mrs. Treherne gave vent to it at dinner in excited gasps.

"Yes, that's the young woman, dressed in black, at the far table. Such a melancholy duty! No wonder she keeps to herself and never smiles."

"Her father's ashes, did you say?" "Her father's ashes, my dear. He died in Paris, you know, and was cremated there; and, being a patriotic American, he instructed that they should be brought back for burial. They tell me it looks like a large tobacco jar, and she keeps it in her stateroom and scarcely stirs from there."

The young girl speedily became the center of interest upon the ship. Many were the attempts made to get into communication with her, but all failed to elicit more than monosyllabic replies. All, that is, except Monsieur Delagrang. With the pertinacity of a Frenchman and a singular obtuseness to the girl's evident distaste for his society he gradually succeeded in striking up an acquaintance. Sometimes the two would promenade the decks together. The inmates of the smoking room submitted him to some good-natured shaft, which he received with a characteristic shrug.

One day, finding himself alone with Mr. Rose, a tall, taciturn American, he went over toward him and sat down confidentially at his side. With easy nonchalance he led the conversation to smuggling.

"You cannot conceive the losses which your country suffers through these women who carry in dutiable goods in trunks with false bottoms or wrapped round their inner garments," he said.

Mr. Rose smiled incredulously. "A trifling loss, perhaps," he said. "But the customs people quickly learn through their agents on the other side when any jewels or other articles of value are being brought over. Notorious suspects are even shadowed during the voyage. On their arrival they are searched."

American customs service," said the Frenchman.

"It is possible," the American replied.

"Then let me inform you, sir, that you are here for the purpose of shadowing that young woman with the urn, in which you have reason to believe there are concealed jewels of great value. This woman is supposed to be the notorious Sophie Larousse, and, fearing to trust to the ordinary methods of concealment, she has adopted this brazen method of getting these jewels past the customs, trusting to the chivalry of the customs officers."

"May I ask your name?" demanded the American.

The Frenchman produced his card, "M. Charles Delorme, of the Paris Detective Bureau," it read.

"I was to have met you at Liverpool," he said. "But, not finding you aboard, I resolved to make the passage and inform the customs people in New York. The matter was too valuable to be entrusted to a telegraphic description."

"Yes, I missed the steamer and had to make the connection at Queenstown," Mr. Rose answered.

"Then, my dear colleague, I hand Mademoiselle Sophie Larousse over to you, keeping," the Frenchman answered with a bow.

But if Delorme, or Delagrang, as he called himself, had succeeded in winning the girl's confidence Rose failed signally, and baffled in all attempts, he had to content himself with keeping her under surveillance from the moment Sandy Hook was sighted. He followed close behind her as she passed down the gangway, carrying the urn, and about the inspector of customs was busy with her baggage. He found but little dutiable.

"And now, madam, permit me to open your urn," he said finally.

"The girl dashed round on him indignantly.

"Sir, this urn contains the ashes of my father," she cried indignantly.

There was a scene upon the pier, amid indignant fellow passengers. Finally, with great reluctance and copious tears, the girl was induced to submit the iron urn for examination.

"The seals were broken. Inside was a quantity of gray powder and nothing more. The inspector's confusion was pitiable. Amid profuse apologies the girl swept out of the room disdainfully and a cap rattled her away."

It was some months until Rose met the lady again in the foyer of the Metropolitan theater. She was in evening dress and wearing a pearl necklace of fabulous value. Beside her stood a well-dressed Parisian. The girl knew the inspector at once.

"My husband," she said, introducing her companion.

"Welcome, my dear colleague," said Delagrang.

Why Colds are Dangerous.

Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Everyone knows that pneumonia and chronic catarrh have their origin in a common cold. Consumption is not caused by a cold but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold.

You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest way to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by all druggists.

"A COWBOY'S GIRL" HERE NEXT THURSDAY

It is a Story Dramatically Told and One That Can Never Be Forgotten.

"A Cowboy's Girl," which is to be the attraction at the Elks' theater October 22, has proved to be one of the strongest attractions on the road and one of the most universal satisfaction givers. The play has a beautiful story of heart interest that runs throughout, is abundantly supplied with comedy and the climaxes are of great strength and intense interest.

Every endeavor has been used to give it the most careful production and as elaborate stage settings as possible without detracting from the atmosphere of the play. The scenes are all laid on the border line of Old Mexico and Texas before the advent of the "iron horse." Its wire fences and civilizing influences, when the nearest neighbor was a day's ride and going to town was a matter of a week or more. The first act shows a street in a typical cattle town with its saloons, corral and the one hotel, in whose bar room the next act takes place. The third act is in the round-up camp with its broad expanse of prairie, unbroken save for the chuck wagon and camp fire of the cowboys, while the last act is a duplicate of an old time ranch house, battered by many rains and burned by countless suns, whose hospitable doors are always open to the weary traveler, no matter how rich or poor.

"A Cowboy's Girl" is one of the greatest plays of modern times, a play designed to meet the popular taste for pure unalloyed pleasure. A new story of the plains. A play that goes right down into the heart of all; a play that you take home with you; a play that lasts forever; that you never forget; a play that causes real genuine pleasure to all.

TAFT AND BRYAN DISCUSS THE ISLANDS

Both Contribute Articles Dealing With Philippines to Everybody's Magazine.

New York, Oct. 20.—The two presidential candidates, William H. Taft and William J. Bryan, appear as joint contributors in the issue of Everybody's Magazine, to be published tomorrow is articles dealing with the Philippines. Mr. Taft has for his text
"What the United States Has Done for the Philippines," and Mr. Bryan discusses "Why the Philippines Should Be Independent." Eleanor Franklin Egan also contributes an article on "America's Record in the Philippines."

In opening his discussion of the subject Mr. Taft declares that after the treaty of Paris was ratified the question as to the wisdom of the acquisition of the islands no longer was an open one. There could be no difference thereafter, he argues, as to the extent of our obligations to the Philippine people.

"Party lines were not drawn in the Senate when the vote was taken on the question of the ratification of the treaty," adds Mr. Taft. "The senators voting evidently dealt with the subject from a purely non-partisan standpoint and as involving a great question of national policy, as they should have done. Democrats were found voting for the treaty and Republicans against it, and vice versa.
Mr. Bryan appeared at the capital and was in conference with doubting and opposing Democratic senators, urging them to vote for the ratification of the treaty; and it does not seem of doubt that but for his efforts and influence the treaty would have been rejected."

That those circumstances led Mr.
McKinley to make the commission which was to establish civil government in the islands non-partisan is Mr. Taft's conclusion and he goes on to say that "no consideration of partisan politics at any time entered into the question of appointing the numerous officials and employees of the government. There were perhaps a few Democrats as Republicans there were not. The policy has never been departed from, and today the governor general of the Philippine islands is a lifelong Democrat. The underlying policy of the commission, however, has been, as far as vacancies occurred which could be filled by Filipinos as well as by Americans to give the former the preference. As a result of this policy today three members of the supreme court of the islands are Filipinos. Fully half of the judges of the courts of first instance are Filipinos. The governors of provinces and a majority of the provincial boards are Filipinos. All of the municipal officials and at least 85 per cent of the officials and employees of the insular government are Filipinos."

Then the establishment of the Filipino government to take the place of the commission created by the president and the inauguration of the popular assembly a year ago are described.

"In the light of these disputed facts," declares Mr. Taft, "it is difficult to understand how the action of the chief executive, the Congress of the United States and the commission as above set forth can be denominated a disastrous experiment in imperialism. So far from its being an experiment in imperialism, it is an experiment, and a novel one, in preparing for self government an undeveloped people who had for nearly 400 years been under the domination of a medieval monarchy."

Mr. Taft points out that the great majority of Filipinos appreciate that independence would not be a blessing to them in the absence of a protectorate.

"I think it may be truthfully stated," he says, "that the Filipinos generally feel that what we are doing there is not a brake upon their legiti-mate aspirations, but an impulse given to their growth and development along safe and sensible lines."

Mr. Bryan thus begins his article:
"Honesty requires that our policy regarding the Philippine islands be announced. The Filipinos have a right to know; other nations are entitled to the information; and our own position would be strengthened by a declaration of the nation's purpose. So long as there is doubt there will be discussion; so long as there is uncertainty the Filipinos will suspect the worst, other nations will accuse us of insincerity and our own people will be embarrassed in the advocacy of the principles of government which we apply here and refuse to apply in the Philippines. A republic cannot hold colonies, for a re-publical government rests upon freedom, while in a republic the government rests upon the consent of the government. To say that the Filipinos have no right to a voice in their own government and in the shaping of their own destiny raises a question as to man's inalienable rights, and the citizens of a free country cannot afford to raise such a question."

Mr. Bryan tersely says then that improvement in the islands does not mean that a better policy might not have brought greater improvement.
He declares the experiment in imperialism to have been an expensive one and he charges the increase in army and navy expenditures to nothing that has happened in the United States to make them necessary, but to the foreign dangers connected with the possession of the Philippines.

"Suppose," he says, "that Japan wants the Philippine islands—although there is no reason to believe that she does—would we not be in a better position to defend the islands if they were independent? If the Filipinos were in charge of their own government they could have an army and arms and ammunition. We, as a protector, could supply what they needed, and train the soldiers. The Filipinos would be willing to fight for independence, and when we remember how stubbornly they resisted us we can appreciate the aid they would render us if any other nation should attempt to enforce sovereignty over them. By reserving coaling stations and naval bases we would have all the advantages that we have now, without the disadvantages of our present position. And then, too, there is the likelihood, if not the certainty, that we could secure the neutralization of the islands by agreement, and thus relieve ourselves from all expense or care."

Mr. Bryan protests that the "Democratic policy does not contemplate immediate withdrawal from the islands but an immediate announcement of the nation's policy."

Mrs. Egan enumerates the achievements of America in the islands.
Roads, lighthouse service, sanitation, hospitals, a medical college for Filipino students and schools for all grades of pupils are detailed.

"Material prosperity in the Philippines," adds Mrs. Egan, "has kept pace with progress along other lines.
The most important problem which confronted the pioneers of development, as it did the teachers in the agricultural and trade schools, was the difficulty of impressing upon the heart and mind of the Filipino a sense of the dignity of labor; for the better class Filipino has always considered any kind of physical effort degrading.

But, in spite of this, there is to the credit of American capital and enterprise the making of deep water harbors where no harbors were before; the perfecting of the coast survey and the lighthouse service, which renders navigation comparatively safe in all parts of the archipelago; the development of inter-island transportation, which gives the producer in all the islands regular opportunity to market his produce; the building and maintenance of roads and bridges; the beginnings of the development of the country's splendid mineral resources; the construction and extension of railways and the survey of new lines in various parts of the islands; and, finally, the furthering of agriculture."

Mrs. Egan concludes as follows:
"The results we have already attained justify us, as a people, in believing with Mr. Taft that there is no reason why the success of our national policy of fitting the entire Filipino people for popular government should not eventually be realized."

GOVERNMENT BUILDS ARIZONA COTTON GIN

Phoenix, Oct. 20.—Plans and specifications for a $25,000 cotton gin and cotton storage plant to be erected by the government at Sacaton are now in the hands of Architect J. M. Creighton, having been approved by government experts at Yuma, and will be finished within the next week.

This is one of the latest and most important steps taken by the agricultural department of this country for the fostering of an industry of this nature. It is understood that the plans of the government are to take custom work at this plant, thus giving the ranchers of the Arlington and Buckeye sections an opportunity to market their product. The erection of this plant, which will be begun as soon as possible, is along the line pursued by the government in its experiments with Egyptian cotton in the west.

The building at Sacaton will be constructed with concrete and foundation, and two stories of lumber, similar to cotton gins in the south. All the floors will be 20 by 70 feet in size. In the basement the seed ginned will be stored and also some of the baled cotton. Another part of the basement will be occupied by the boilers and other machinery for developing the power.

The first floor will be entered from an incline into the seed cotton storage room, which will be 20x20 feet.
Next to this will be a 16x20 room for the gins, three in number. It is stated that only one gin will be installed at present. Beyond this will be the cotton press room, 12x12, occupied by three presses. Adjoining this will be the room for the storage of baled cotton, in size 12x20. An elevator will connect this room with the one in the basement also used for the storage of the baled cotton.

The gin to be installed is the Munger pneumatic system with Munger vacuum box and belt distributor. This system is said to require less power than any other as it has continuous suction. The cotton in passing through the vacuum box if wet is dried out and thoroughly cleaned. The operation of a gin will be considerable of a curiosity in this part of the United States and the plant at Sacaton will attract much attention. Upon the success of this experiment of the government depends the future of the cotton industry in Arizona. The experts are thoroughly convinced, however, that this section will grow Egyptian cotton approximating in quality that in the valley of the Nile.
The entire country will profit by the ultimate success of this new industry.

ECONOMY USED IN PREPARING FOR FAIR

Seattle Saves Great Waste in Building for the 1909
Exposition.

Seattle, Oct. 20.—The manner of doing things in this part of the country is exciting interest all over the United States. Expositions are rather old but the plan and the results of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition to be held here next year are new and the fact is being widely noted.
Recently the Grand Rapids, Mich., Press carried the following editorial which speaks for itself:

"How Seattle Does It."

"The people of the far west seem able to adopt and put into practice new ideas much quicker than do the rest of us. Out in Seattle they are preparing for the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition which is to attract attention and business to their city.
But at the same time they are going to make the greatest possible permanent use of the $800,000 which they have subscribed. The people of Seattle are building Seattle at a tremendous rate. They intend to make a great city of it in the least possible time; so they propose to eliminate all the waste of duplication, even if so doing does mean a little extra expense."

"All preceding expositions have involved a great waste. To save on the initial cost buildings have been put where they were of no permanent value and constructed of flimsy materials. Some expositions have had one or two permanent buildings.
Buffalo has a reminder of the Pan-American in its art gallery. But all the other buildings though designed by great architects, erected by the labor of thousands of workmen have vanished with the close of the show they were designed to house. All this has meant tremendous waste, waste of genius, waste of labor, waste of money for with just a little more labor and money that which delighted a holiday crowd for a summer would have remained a permanent asset to the city."

"Seattle is the first to realize this.
Her exposition is to be held on the grounds of the state university. The grounds, the water system, the sewer system, the park embellishments and most of the buildings are designed and built for the permanent use of the university. They will not be the less beautiful, the less well arranged for that, but they will give the university such housing as otherwise it could not hope to get for decades, if ever. This shows intelligence of a kind rather rare in America. It is a true economy which accomplishes two great results for only a little more than the expenditure. The lesson is worth studying by eastern cities."

International Boundary Survey.

The surveyors of the United States and Canadian governments have completed the survey of the boundary between the two countries from the extreme southeastern end of Alaska to Mt. St. Elias. It took over three years to do this work. Stone monuments were set to mark the boundary and trees along the line were cleared away. Maps and pictures showing scenes along the boundary will be displayed at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition in Seattle next summer. The survey of the boundary north of Mt. St. Elias to the Arctic

Republican Convention
Were Harmonious.The Republican primaries to elect delegates to the county convention, at which will be nominated legislative and county candidates, were held yesterday.In the county precincts, it is said, opposition developed in some instances, but for the most part the primaries were harmonious. In the city precincts there was no opposition and the organization ticket was elected.The polls in the city were kept open from 4 until 8 p. m., and there was a good sized vote cast.
The county convention will be held Wednesday morning at ten o'clock in the Elks' opera house and much interest is manifested today in the probable action of the convention, since upon the ticket nominated undoubtedly depends whether harmony will prevail in the party.The delegates elected in the two city precincts are as follows:Precinct No. 12.

CHURCHGOERS TO HEAR

SERMONS ON HEALTH
Chicago, Oct. 26.—All churchgoers in West Pullman probably will hear the same sermon and it will be on health. To utilize the pulpit for this purpose in an emergency is the idea of the Chicago authorities.An appeal for assistance in stopping the rapid spread of typhoid fever, which is assuming the magnitude of an epidemic in this southern section of the city, was sent yesterday to 600 clergymen, doctors, druggists and citizens by Dr. W. A.
Evans, commissioner of health.The clergy is urged to speak before their respective congregations Sunday for the purpose of arousing the people to the danger which they face and persuading them to take precautions. With such assistance it is believed the disease can be prevented from spreading.

CAMEL'S MEAT NEW DELICACY.

Paris, Oct. 26.—Camel meat is to be the fashionable delicacy this fall as a result of the opening up of Morocco. A large wholesale butcher in Paris has signed contracts for the supply in a month's time of a large consignment of humps and heads.
Camel meat, experts say, is very much like prime beef, only it is more juicy and camel's fat is much more fascinated by garrets than veal. The hump is the delectable morsel, but the head also is a delicacy, eaten pickled.DECIDE YOURSELF.

Here is one case of it:
J. M. Parker, living at 317 South Fourth street, Albuquerque, N. M., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are entitled to the strongest praise I can give them. I never placed much faith in patent medicines, but I can say I have derived more benefit from Doan's Kidney Pills than from any other remedy. Several years ago I suffered from indications of kidney complaint and my condition reached the state where I was an almost constant sufferer from pain in my back and trouble of an alarming nature existed with the kidney secretions. On one occasion the kidney secretions stopped altogether and I had to have a physician draw it from me. At that time I was employed as a locomotive engineer and had to give up this work, as the jar of the engine made the pain in my back beyond endurance. I suffered from pain across my loins and in both sides over my hips that I would have to sit down in a chair and lean my back against something to support it. At night after I would retire I would not sleep any more than an hour before the pain would awaken me. About three months ago I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a supply. In a short time every difficulty was corrected and I have no trouble at all with my back and kidneys now. On occasions without number I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills, and whatever I can say for them will always afford me pleasure."For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 emies, and keeping themselves before the public, day and night, as Mr. Balfour advised. It was said when they first adopted those methods that they had set back the cause hundreds of years, but the contrary is proving true, and for the first time in England woman suffrage has become a living issue, a part of practical politics. English women will have votes long before we do. It is true that they have a much easier task. They have merely to get a majority vote in Parliament, while we shall have to change the constitutions of forty-five states and territories. But political methods can win here as easily as in England."Political work is needed in each state and in Washington. I do not think that it would be wise to employ all the devices of the suffragettes for the simple reason that English and American campaign methods have always differed greatly and due allowance must be made for those differences.""In striving to obtain the franchise for women in America we are not working to obtain woman's rights alone, but to preserve man's rights as well."

THROW LIGHT ON CANDIDACY OF TAFT

Letters Between President and Secretary of War Affair of Unusual Interest.

New York, Oct. 26.—Letters which passed between President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft prior to the Chicago convention which nominated the secretary of war for the presidency and which throw a new light on the Taft candidacy are published in Hampton's Broadway Magazine for November. As a piece of campaign literature these letters are significant and of unusual interest. The magazine also announces editorially that these letters were never intended for publication, though they were gathered from the private correspondence of the respective authors and their publication at this time are fully authorized. The letters follow:

FROM THEODORE ROOSEVELT TO WM. H. TAFT.
[Confidential]
The White House, Washington, March 15, 1906.

Dear Will:
I think I have been in error as to your feelings. You say that it is your preference to continue your present work. This I had not understood. On the contrary I gathered that what you really wanted to do was to go on the bench, and that my urging was in the line of your inclination, but in a matter in which you were in doubt as to your duty.

My dear Will, it is pre-eminently a matter in which no other man can take the responsibility of deciding for you what is right and best for you to do. Nobody could decide for me whether I should go to the war or stay as assistant secretary of the navy. Nobody could decide for me whether I should accept the vice-presidency or try to continue as governor. In each case it is the man himself who is to lead his life after having decided one way or the other. No one can lead that life for him; and neither he nor any one else can afford to have any one else make the decision for him, because the vital factor in the decision must be the equation of the man himself.

As far as I am personally concerned I could not put myself in your place because I am not a lawyer, and would under no circumstances, even if I had been trained for a lawyer, have any leaning toward the bench; so in your case I should as a matter of course accept the three years of service in the war department, dealing with the Panama and Philippine questions, and then abide the event as to whether I became president, or continued in public life in some less conspicuous position, or went back to the practice of the law.

Yours, Good, and Arrogance of Very Rich Men.

But I appreciate, as every thoughtful man must, the importance of the part to be played by the supreme court in the next twenty-five years. I do not at all like the social conditions at present. The dull, purblind folly of the very rich men; their greed and arrogance, and the way in which they have unduly prospered by the help of the ablest lawyers, and too often through the weakness of the judges or by their unfortunate possession of meticulous minds; these facts, and the corruption in business and politics, have tended to produce a very unhealthy condition of excitement and irritation in the popular mind, which shows itself in part in the enormous increase in the socialistic propaganda.

Nothing effective, because nothing at once honest and intelligent, is being done to combat the great amount of evil, which, mixed with a little good, a little truth, is contained in the outpourings of ———— (Publishers and orators whose names are omitted by request). Some of these are Socialists; some of them are merely lurid sensationalists; but they are all building up a revolutionary feeling which will, most probably, take the form of a political campaign. Then we may have to do, too late, or almost too late, what had to be done in the silver campaign, when, in one summer, we had to convince a great many good people that what they had been laboriously taught for several years previous was untrue.

Under such circumstances you would be the best possible leader, and with your leadership we could rest assured that only good methods would prevail. In such a contest you could do very much if you were on the bench; you could do very much if you were in active political life outside. I think you could do most as president; but you could do very much as chief justice; and you could do less, but still very much, as associate justice. Where you can fight best I cannot say, for you know what your soul turns to better than I can. The Shadow of the Presidency Falls On No Man Twice.

As I see the situation it is this. There are strong arguments against your taking this justiceship. In the first place my belief is that of all the men that have appeared so far you are the man who is most likely to receive the Republican presidential nomination, and who is, I think, the least man to receive it. It is not a light thing to cast aside the chance of the presidency, even though, of course, it is a chance, however good a one. It would be a very foolish thing for you to get it into your thoughts, so that your sweet and fine nature would be warped, and you would become bitter and sour, as Henry Clay became; and thank Heaven this is absolutely impossible. But it is well to remember that the shadow of the presidency falls on no man twice, save in the most exceptional circumstances. . . . Will, there is the situation as I see it. It is a hard choice to make, and you yourself have to make it. You have two alternatives before you, each with uncertain possibilities, and you cannot be sure that whichever you take you will not afterward feel that it would have been better if you had taken the other. But whichever you take I know that you will render great and durable service to the nation for many years to come, and I feel that you should decide in accordance with the promptings of your own liking, of your own belief as to where you can render the service which most appeals to you, as well as that which you feel is most beneficial to the nation. No one can with wisdom advise you.

Sincerely yours,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
MR. TAFT'S ANSWER TO MR. ROOSEVELT.

Secretary Taft took a long time to consider the matter, says the magazine. At intervals there was further discussion of it with President Roosevelt, and occasionally the subject was mentioned in the correspondence that went on continually between the two men. Finally Mr. Taft wrote:

Point au Pic, Province of Quebec, Canada, July 30, 1906.

Mr. Dear Mr. President:

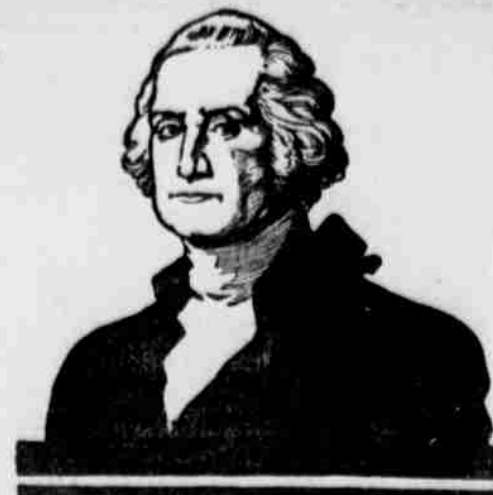

You have been good enough to offer to appoint me to the supreme bench to succeed Justice Brown, and I have not hesitated to express to you, a number of times, the pleasure I would have in accepting the appointment if I could do so. The chief reason for my hesitation was the condition of matters in the war department, including the Philippine and Panama Canal bureaus. With respect to Panama matters, I have no doubt that Mr. Root, to whom you proposed to transfer supervision of the canal commission, would do the work better than I have done it or could do it. Of course we shall still be the subject of attack for what has been done, and I could perhaps meet the attack better than any one because of my familiarity with what has been done; but that consideration would not be great enough to require me to sacrifice my ambition to go on the bench or to risk the chance for doing so.

Responsibility for Philippine Matters. I have been connected with the administration of civil government in the Philippine Islands since February, 1900. Much of what has been done in working out the problem and carrying the burden thrust upon the United States, I am more or less responsible for. Rightly or wrongly, the people of the islands, and especially those who have been most anxious to make our government a success there, have confidence in my earnest desire to help the Philippine people and my willingness to do everything I can to secure them prosperity, peace, and a gradual extension of self-government.

Partisan Politics Irksome. It is the necessity one is under in carrying on such public business, of securing witnesses and establishing evidence in respect to each thing done that one is not a thief and has not a corrupt motive which makes administrative work under conditions of partisan politics so irksome to me. But, of course, it is part of the burden one assumes, and it is cowardly to run away from it when one is in it.

Mr. Taft's Personal Preference for Supreme Bench.

I know that few, if any, even among my friends, will credit me with anything but a desire, unconscious perhaps, to run for the presidency, and that I must face and hear this misconception of what I do. But I am confident that you credit my reasons as I give them to you, and will believe me when I say that I would much prefer to go on the su-

George Washington

UNTO every generation of Americans George Washington is justly held to be the purest figure in history—a superb example of the perfect citizen—a just and righteous ruler and “a light for after time.”

This commanding personality had a magnificent physique. He stood over six feet in his stockings, was remarkable for horsemanship, agility and strength—the finest gentleman and athlete of his day.

His constitution was of iron and he knew how to keep it so. His biographers declare that in eating and in drinking as in all things he was normal; enjoying the juice of the malt all the days of his life. He drank it around campfires, as well as in his own home and upon social and state occasions.

Furthermore, upon his Mount Vernon plantation he had a brew house, as was the regular custom of wealthy Virginians.

preme bench for life than to run for the presidency, and that in twenty years of judicial service I could make myself more useful to the country than as president, even if my election should come about.

Please do not misunderstand me to think that I am indispensable, or that the world could not run on much the same if I were to disappear in the St. Lawrence river. But circumstances seem to me to have imposed something in the nature of a trust on me personally that I should not discharge by now succeeding Justice Brown. In the nature of things the trust must end with this administration, and one or two years is short to do much. Yet the next session of Congress may result in much for the benefit of the Filipino, and it seems to me it is my duty to be in the fight.

Sincerely yours,
WM. H. TAFT.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known for the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by all Druggists. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

For Chapped Skin. Chapped skin whether on the hands or face may be cured in one night by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It is also unequalled for sore nipples, burns and scalds. For sale by all druggists.

GEN. BUCKNER SEES TAFT ELECTED

Bryan Is Too Dangerous to the Country to Receive Much Consideration, He Says.

Washington, Oct. 26.—“Yes, Taft will be elected. If the Democratic party, at its convention at Denver, had nominated a Democrat, I should have been only too glad to work for his election and cast my ballot for him,” said Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, vice presidential candidate on the Gold Democrat ticket, headed by Gen. Palmer of Illinois; veteran of the Mexican war, one of the greatest generals in the Confederate army and former governor of Kentucky, in this city today. Gen. Buckner has been in Baltimore, where he attended a banquet given by the Astor Society. “Bryan is not a Democrat,” said the old war horse. “He is a Socialist. Personally I have nothing against Bryan, but politically he is a menace to the country. You can't down him. If he is defeated this time he'll come back again four years hence. There are many thousands of Democrats of the old school who entertain the same ideas as I do about Bryan, and they will either stay away from the polls or vote for Taft.”

“It is beyond my comprehension how men like Senator Daniel can work and vote for Bryan, when they don't endorse his views. It is generally accepted as a fact that Senator Daniel is not at all in accord with Bryan on his policies. It shows a lack of moral courage and patriotism not to take a stand for one's political principles.”

Gen. Buckner said he would call on President Roosevelt today, that he knew him well, having met him before and having entertained him. “President Roosevelt is a fine type of American citizenship and his offering advice and help in the present campaign will help Taft. The veteran said he believed Taft would be elected, but his majority would not be as large as that of Roosevelt, and he thought that Kentucky would be close.”

The New York Sun, which is supporting Taft in its editorial way, gives these remarkable reasons for doing so:

“Taft, despite the sinister origin of his candidacy.
“Taft, despite his painful and almost shameful self-subordination.
“Taft, notwithstanding his repeated pledge to carry out what are known as the Roosevelt policies.”

“Taft, because the only alternative is Bryan, at whose approach the ghosts of ninety-six arise and shriek in concert their warning.”

“Taft, because when elected, he can no more repeat and perpetuate Roosevelt than Roosevelt could have repeated and perpetuated McKinley.”

“Taft, because the very echoes of his royal protestations laugh back at him whenever he promises to take up the role of scourge of God while Roosevelt is in the jungle. The excellent man may swear, and swear in good faith, but he can never swear himself into the semblance of a Hun.”

“Taft, because the election of Bryan will most surely invite the immense calamity of the return of Roosevelt to active agitation—not in the indefinite future, after the country has partly recovered from the first attack of him, but immediately; that is during the next four years.”

“Before the Republicans patched up their differences,” said Judge S. M. Howard of Gettysburg, of South Dakota, “the Democrats made every effort to carry the state. Their chances of doing so now are wiped out. Gov. Crawford will be the successor of Senator Kittredge in the United States Senate. Crops are excellent and prices are good. South Dakota produces more wealth per capita than any other state in the Union. Crops, stock and mining are our main industries, and the Homestead mine in the Black Hills, which is owned to a large extent by Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, is the best paying gold mine in the world. That mine has been worked for many years, and according to the examination of experts it will continue to yield the yellow metal for many, many years to come.”

NOTICE!
Delegates to the Democratic convention are requested to meet at the Young Men's Democratic club headquarters Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock sharp. Business of very great importance to the party will be taken up at this meeting, and a full attendance is desired.

E. V. CHAVEZ,

CAMPAIGN RAGE UNNECESSARY THROUGHOUT CANADA MISERY FROM STOMACH

Bitter Fights Are Being Made In Many Provinces for Control of Parliament.

Five Minutes After Taking Diapiesin All Indigestion and Stomach Trouble Is Ended.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 20.—A campaign that is almost without precedent in the annals of Canadian politics for bitterness and intensity is now raging with full force from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Nominations for Parliament were made Monday and the general election will take place one week later.

The issues of the campaign are federal rather than provincial. The Conservative party seeks power on a broad platform, which briefly includes honest appropriation and expenditure of public money, appointment of public officials by merit only, more effective provisions to punish bribery and fraud in elections, the publication of expenditures by political organizations, civil service reform or the appointment of civil servants by an independent commission, Senate reform, more rigid inspection of immigrants, non-partisan management of the public railways, the establishment of a thorough system of cold storage, a public utilities commission to control corporations operating public franchises, national telegraphs and telephones, better postal facilities, a protective tariff, imperial preference, the maintenance of provincial rights and free rural mail delivery.

Along with this is a vigorous attack upon the government on account of alleged timber limit scandals and timber deals in western Canada, by which friends of the government are said to have made huge profits.

The government meets these charges with the statement that western lands, some $3,000,000 acres, have been opened for settlement; that immigration has increased from 25,000 in 1936, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier first became premier, to 262,038 in 1937; that Canadian manufactures have been enormously developed, and that the public interests have been conserved. As an offset to other charges of the Conservatives the government recently announced a free rural mail delivery to 50 per cent of the farmers of Canada, and the appointment of an independent civil service commission which will have control of all appointments and promotions in the service.

The Tenth Canadian Parliament, elected to office four years ago, and dissolved last month, was composed of 214 members, 140 Liberals and 74 Conservatives. The new Parliament will consist of 221 members. Strange as it may seem, when it is considered that Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the Parliament just dissolved had a majority of nearly seventy members, a change of heart of 6 per cent of the people of Canada, equally distributed, would mean the defeat of the existing government.

The principal battlegrounds are Quebec and Ontario. In Ontario the Conservatives are hopeful of repeating their success in the local elections last June. As for western Canada the prediction is made that instead of having six representatives in the next Parliament the Conservatives of that section will have fifteen—four each from the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, and probably two from Alberta and one from the Yukon.

In the maritime provinces the pivotal points are Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. It is generally admitted that the Conservatives must make heavy gains in that section if they are to end the present Liberal regime in Ottawa. In the election four years ago the Liberals carried all eighteen seats in Nova Scotia. One was lost at a special election last November. The Conservatives of the province declare that they will retain this gain and are sanguine that they can carry six other seats.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the leader of the Liberal forces, will be 67 years old next month. His personality has dominated the Liberal party during its most potent period of ascendancy. He became leader of the Liberal opposition and on the defeat of Sir Charles Tupper's government he was called upon to form a cabinet. His government has since been twice sustained, in 1900 and 1904, each time with increased majorities.

Leading the Conservative opposition is Robert L. Borden, M. P., of Halifax. He is a native of Nova Scotia, and of Scotch descent. He became leader of his party in 1901, on the retirement of Sir Charles Tupper.

Why not start now—today, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion? A distended stomach gets the blues and grumpiness. Give it a good cat, then take Pape's Diapiesin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headaches and Dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapiesin costs only 25 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take Gas from Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and besides, one triangle will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diapiesin works, your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to begin taking Diapiesin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapiesin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of Indigestion.

A COMMUNICATION.
Editor Citizen:
In this day of stump speaking if one would follow the oratorical flood he would conclude that a lot of dogs are scanning their limbs to save their tails to wag at the public fountain. Yet it is not so. Politics is either good or bad. Good politics is to elevate the people to a standard of civilization; bad politics is to create heresy and plunder, destroying the march of progress.

New Mexico in national politics has only one object in view—is gain statehood, in order to have sovereign rule; the goal of every lover of liberty. The territorial parties have no platforms of their own; the issue hangs on the platform of their respective national parties.

The people of New Mexico have no reason at this time to premeditate. The merits of the different nominees, the likes or dislikes are a sectional disease of rule or ruin, which gives the handle of the weapon into the hands of the plutocracy, mother of that paternalism which prefers dark to light.

But the people have one right and thousands of reasons to inquire into the homogeneous form of different political parties, their actions of the past, rather than the worded platforms of the present, and which is most likely to grant what is just and right.

Fair minded people know that the representative in Washington is a moral obligation, not only before the people, but before his gods, a duty of upholding the constitution of this country. And the constitution demands from the citizen loyalty to the grandest republic of ancient or modern times.

Statehood does not rest in the federal government, but in reality in the people seeking admission to the Union. The congressional committee in charge of the New Mexico report to be made at the next session of Congress, which will tell of conditions in the territory, will have more influence at Washington than all the sons of praise the siren may sing at mass meetings.

It is customary for every respectable family to wash its linen at home. New Mexico is but a large family and the loud accusation of political fraud, the inability of the average citizen to cast his vote brands us as a lot of sheep. These do more damage against statehood than all the wealth of the territory could do in its favor.

The Democratic party, which makes these accusations, shows itself to be the greatest enemy of the territory and against statehood, and a vote for Mr. Andrews, the Republican candidate for delegate to Congress, is a vote for progress.
