VALENCIA CO. ALIVE TO ISSUES OF CAMPAIGN

They Turned Out in Crowds Yesterday to Greet Delegate Andrews and Party at Belen.

BIG RALLY HERE SATURDAY NIGHT

Delegate and Party Went to Gallup Today and Will be at Santa Fe for Mass Meeting Tomorrow Night, Returning to Albuquerque Next Day.

The visit yesterday of Delegate Andrews and party to Valencia county was a succession of ovations. Arriving at Belen in the early morning, the entire day was spent by the members of the campaign party with open air meetings, receptions and hand shaking. After the busy day in Socorro county, Delegate Andrews and party found little trouble in sleeping on the train which took them to the cut-off town.

While the hour of arrival was extremely early, the townspeople were wide awake to the importance of giving the "Man Who Does Things" a hearty welcome. Among those at the depot to meet the visitors were Solomon Luna, of Los Lunas; John Becker, of the large commercial establishment that bears his name; Col. W. M. Berger, editor of the Belen Tribune, and a score of other party leaders of the county who had gathered at Belen to celebrate the occasion. The people of Belen showed that they were alive to the importance of sending Andrews back to Congress to insure statehood.

Carrriages took the party to the new Belen hotel, where breakfast was served. At 10:30 an open air meeting was held in front of the John Becker company store at which every resident, big and little, man and woman, was present. Interpreter Jose D. Sena pleased the large number of native people by interpreting the delegate's speech into their native tongue. Mr. Sena broke all records yesterday by interpreting fourteen speeches. The speakers were interrupted frequently by resounding cheers. Every mention of statehood brought forth an ovation.

After the open air meeting, Delegate Andrews was the guest of honor at a reception given at the Belen Commercial club, where the delegate met and shook hands with more than half the people of Belen. The feeling of friendliness was so evident that steps were made frequently, and Delegate Andrews was so deeply impressed by the sentiment of hospitality of the native people that he pronounced the native vote the bulwark of the Republican party of New Mexico, not only now, but for all time to come.

Following a hurried dinner, the campaign party, accompanied by a number of prominent Belen men, drove to Los Lunas, stopping at Los Chaves en route. They were greeted by parties of voters at every roadside. The feeling of friendliness was so evident that steps were made frequently, and Delegate Andrews was so deeply impressed by the sentiment of hospitality of the native people that he pronounced the native vote the bulwark of the Republican party of New Mexico, not only now, but for all time to come.

"The native people of New Mexico in the majority are engaged in pastoral and agricultural pursuits and are stable citizens in every characteristic," said the delegate.

"They are all tax payers, peaceable and are not susceptible to spasmodic so-called waves of reform. The native vote will rule the destinies of the new state to a large extent."

At Los Lunas, Delegate Andrews, Harry Sims and Jose Sena spoke at an open air meeting held on the plaza at 2:30 o'clock. The crowd which had gathered there covered several acres of ground. People had come in from miles up and down the river to attend the meeting. In the evening, the campaign party dined at the country residence of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Luna. Taking the train there at 10 o'clock, they arrived here forty-five minutes later, tired but satisfied that the day had been a profitable one. Valencia county will give a solid vote for Delegate Andrews.

Delegate Andrews, Mr. Sena and Harry Sims left Albuquerque today on the limited for Gallup, N. M., where a meeting will be held tonight. Boarding a train there early tomorrow morning, the party will pass through this city at 8 a. m. en route to Santa Fe, where a big meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon. Saturday the party will return to Albuquerque, arriving on the limited at noon to prepare for the big meeting which will be held here Saturday night. This meeting will be held in the Elks' opera house and will probably close the campaign.

YOUNG AMERICAN WIDOW MAY MARRY SON OF A PRETENDER

MRS. CHAUNCEY.

It is reported that Prince Miguel of Braganza, son of Don Miguel, the Portuguese pretender, is to marry Mrs. S. Chauncey, the young widow of an American millionaire. Mrs. Chauncey was introduced to Viennese society by the American embassy in the Austrian capital and in that city made the acquaintance of Prince Miguel, who lives with his father near Vienna.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS ARE NOT ORGANIZED FOR POLITICS

Commander in Chief Says That Any Attempt to Use Them Will be Punished.

PURELY NON-PARTISAN STAND HAS BEEN TAKEN

Washington, Oct. 29.—Repudiating any efforts to use the United Spanish war veterans in an organization for political purposes, Commander-in-Chief Charles W. Newton, of that body, in a letter received today by J. Walter Mitchell, the national historian, says that the organization cannot afford to be misrepresented in a matter of such vital importance.

The letter grows out of reports of the organization of the league of veterans to support one of the party candidates. Newton says that the fact that it is generally known that the organization in common with many other prominent veteran organizations is absolutely non-partisan, should refute any statement made by the political managers which is contrary to these principles.

"Any comrades who combine to use the organization for political purposes," he added, "are acting in defiance of our laws and are subject to the severest penalties in our power to inflict."

FRIGHTENED GIRLS LEAP FROM WINDOWS

Office Employees in Big Building Were Panic Stricken When Fire Broke Out.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 29.—A fire panic caused several girl employees of offices in the eleven story Neave building, at the corner of Fourth and Race streets, to leap from the windows at noon today. At least eight of them were hurt, several seriously, while one fireman was also badly injured.

The fire started on the sixth floor and the flames were soon bursting from the windows. Five times the hose burst and this added to the panic of the girls who appeared at windows. As high as the eighth floor many of them could be seen, preparing to leap when the firemen arrived.

The firemen worked heroically to save them. Several of the girls were seriously burned after they had crawled out on window ledges, while one fireman was seriously hurt by falling two stories. Louise Boulet, one of the girls, jumped from a tenth story window to the roof of a building five stories below. Her injuries are not serious.

TAFT AND BRYAN BOTH SPEAK AT SYRACUSE TONIGHT

The Big Figures in National Campaign Are Scheduled to Meet for the Second Time.

SPEECHES CONTINUE WITHOUT CESSATION

Both Democrats and Republicans Are Fighting Hard for Empire State and Other Candidates Are Busy in Indiana and Ohio.

New York, Oct. 29.—The two principal candidates for president, following their busy campaigning up state, will reach Syracuse tonight, where both are scheduled to speak. Taft began the day with a speech at Lyons, then traveled eastward, his itinerary calling for stops at Canandaigua, Geneva, Seneca Falls and Auburn.

Bryan's last day of campaigning in New York state carried him westward and included speeches at Cohoes, Albany, Utica and Rome. Former Judge Alton B. Parker expects to speak with Bryan at the Syracuse meeting.

The running mates of Taft and Bryan continued their campaign work today in their native state, wherein speaking at Albany while Kern's itinerary called for addresses at a variety of meetings in Indiana. Three cabinet members will address the voters in as many states tonight; Cortelyou in New York, Root in Toledo, O., and Meyer in Belmar, Md. Chafin and Watkins, the Prohibitionist candidates, are in Ohio today; Hagen is in New Jersey and DeLoach is traveling through Illinois.

Lyons, N. Y., Oct. 29.—After a strenuous day in New York City yesterday Taft reached this city somewhat fatigued and hoarse but in good spirits and anxious to meet crowds. He was taken to the largest hall in the city where he made an extended welcome address on the issues of the campaign.

National Chairman Mack declared his belief today that an investigation would show that "Taft and the Chandler Business Men's league," which is seeking to secure the election of Taft for president and Chandler for governor, was being financed by the Republican national committee. The league, said Mack, is circulating sample ballots showing how to split the ticket, and is extensively advertising in the local press advising the election of Taft and Chandler. None of the regular Democratic organizations, asserted Mack, are behind the movement, whose promoters carefully concealed their identity. The national chairman declared that the appearance of former Governor Hill with Bryan at the meeting in Albany last night would undoubtedly have a good effect in bringing back many old line democrats into the ranks again.

FOREST FIRES THREATENED MINERS

West Virginia Mine Set on Fire But Workmen Got Out in Time.

Charlestown, W. Va., Oct. 29.—Forest fires around Turkey Knob, near here, threatened death to the miners employed in the mine of the Turkey Knob Coal company today. The fires reached the fan house of the coal company today, destroyed it and then burned to the drift of the mouth and set the mine on fire. Fortunately there was no explosion and the men in the mine escaped through one of the four entries. Two men were overcome by smoke, but they will recover. After six hours of work the fire was brought under control.

CANNOT SELL THE FOAM. Springfield, Ill., Oct. 29.—The supreme court holds that foam is not beer and cannot be measured as such. This point was made in a decision in a case from Mercer county involving the wholesaling law prohibiting the sale of liquor in quantities of less than five gallons.

Old Milan proprietor of a road house, was heavily fined for selling beer in so-called five-gallon cases. He gave tickets calling for the number of bottles, permitting customers to take a bottle or two at a time, punching numbers of the tickets accordingly. This the court declared was violation of law and sustained the lower court which assessed heavy fines.

The contents of the bottles of a case of beer were poured out. It was shown there were only four and one-half gallons in the case. Milan insisted the foam should be measured to make the five gallons. The supreme court decides to the contrary.

KATE WILSON, 27, LADY STAR IN MORSE'S HIGH FINANCE DRAMA

SNAPSHOT OF KATE WILSON, MORSE'S MANAGER AND DAVIDSON BROWN, ONE OF THE MORSE LOAN DUMMIES.

SHOWS FURTHER EVIDENCE OF LARRAZOLO TAX DODGING

Las Vegas, N. M., Oct. 29.—Lacking but $28. O. A. Larrazolo, Democratic candidate for delegate to Congress, owes $2,000 back taxes in San Miguel and Mora counties. In the former he owes $174.91 as shown by a statement compiled from the tax records, and in Mora county he owes $1,825.09.

The non-payment of taxes in Mora county was brought to light today by the investigation of the tax records. It was disclosed that Mr. Larrazolo owns a farm in Mora county and that he has owned it for twelve years. The records show that not one cent of taxes has been paid on the property in all that time.

This non-payment of taxes shows that ever since Larrazolo came into the territory he has owned property which he has enjoyed under the benefits of a wise territorial government, but he has never contributed one cent toward the support of that government under which his property has been protected, and which he now aspires to represent in the halls of the United States Congress.

MINER PRODUCTS ALMOST DOUBLED

Production for 1907 Was Over Two Billion Dollars.

Washington, Oct. 29.—A grand total of $2,069,289,196 worth of mineral products in the United States is announced in the statistical summary for the calendar year 1907, issued today by the geological survey. Of this amount $1,166,166,191 is non-metallic, $903,024,066 metallic and $100,000,000 miscellaneous. Mineral products the previous year aggregated $1,904,007,034.

HUGHES IS THE FAVORITE. New York, Oct. 29.—Chandler money has become scarcer in the financial district in the last few days, although little money has been placed at any time. For the first time holders of Hughes money have been obliged to give odds, the larger sums being placed at 10 to 9, small bets at even money.

What is said to be the first big election bet made between stock exchange men this season was the one made today, $5,000 on Hughes against $4,500 on Chandler.

There was more betting on the curb than at any time since the campaign started. One bet of $1,000 on Hughes to 2000 on Chandler was made, and a holder of Hughes money announced he had $20,000 more to bet on the Republican candidate if he could get even money or better. This Republican money is said by curb men to have been sent from the Republican club.

To make sure of not running foul of the new state betting laws bettors of big amounts are now resorting to various pretexts when the money is paid.

TO MEET AT OMAHA. Denver, Oct. 29.—Omaha was today selected by the executive council of the national W. C. T. U. for the 1909 convention.

RATE MEETING TONIGHT NAMES COMMITTEE FOR WORK

Start Is to be Made in Systematic Campaign for Lower Rates to Eastern Points.

FREIGHT OFFICIALS HERE IN TWO WEEKS

Committee Must be Prepared to Discuss Rate Question at That Time and Have Necessary Data to Do It.

The meeting to be held at the Commercial club tonight for the purpose of organizing a movement to secure lower and more equitable freight rates from eastern points is to be the start of a systematic plan and for this reason shippers, business men and citizens generally who are interested—and everybody is—are urged to be present.

The work planned for tonight is merely the start. It is desired to have business men and shippers present their views and to secure the appointment of a committee to collect and arrange data. A representative for each class of business is to have a place on the committee and in order that the best men for the place can be selected it is urged that the business men turn out in force.

Freight officials of the Santa Fe are to be here in about two weeks and at that time expect to take up with Albuquerque shippers the question of freight rates. That the subject may be handled satisfactorily it will be necessary to have data covering all points at hand so that more equitable freight rates can be discussed conclusively and from Albuquerque's point of view. For this reason shippers are urged to attend the meeting tonight to benefit themselves and the city generally.

TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

RATHER THAN TESTIFY. Richmond, Oct. 29.—Mattew Morton, secretary of the Manchester water department, the city across the river, committed suicide today by stabbing himself. There has been a scandal in the water department and Superintendent Charles H. Sharp is Superintendent for the misapprehension. Morton was to have testified against him today and it is thought that brooding over the exposures he would have to make caused him to take his life.

EAGER TO HEAR CARUSO

Berlin, Oct. 29.—That Caruso is now the greatest drawing card on the operatic stage, even in Germany, is demonstrated by the extraordinary rush of Berlin opera goers to obtain tickets for the three royal opera performances in which he is engaged to appear. The entire house for all three performances was sold out soon after the box office opened. Many were turned away to take their chances with ticket speculators, the regular charge of $6 for the best seats being advanced by the galleries to more than double that figure.

HARRIMAN BUYS BIG RAILWAY SYSTEMS

Meridia, Mexico, Oct. 29.—E. S. Cravath of New York, who is said to represent E. H. Harriman, has acquired a controlling interest in the United Railways of Yucatan and the initial payment of $7,000,000 has been made. The system radiates out of Meridia. It is reported that Harriman now owns the Pan-American railroad, which runs from a point on the National Tehuantepec line to the Guatemalan border, and that the two systems are to be connected by building about 400 miles of new road.

COLLEGE WOMAN TO BE WINDOW WASHER

Boston, Oct. 29.—Mrs. G. Van Dusen Cooke, now residing at 53 Hammond street, Cambridge, a woman of unusual education, a Radcliffe college student and a daughter of the Revolution, has turned Socialist, and gone to work as a window washer at 10 cents a window. In an open letter she explains why.

EDUCATORS WILL ADDRESS FARMERS FROM TRAINS

Sacramento, Oct. 29.—It is announced that the Southern Pacific will shortly arrange to send out trains for educational purposes in connection with the University of California, Stanford university, the United States department of agriculture and the state horticultural commission. Experts in all departments of agriculture will lecture and demonstrate from and on these trains to the farmers of the state, and at the same time these same experts will be made acquainted with the various agricultural communities of the state. While instructing in the latest science they will be instructed. The plan has been successful in other states, it is said.

STATEHOOD FOR NEW MEXICO

We favor the immediate admission of the territories of New Mexico and Arizona as separate states in the Union.—Republican National Platform.

Badly Disorganized

It is significant that with only a few days of the campaign left, the Democratic party in this county is badly split and so badly disorganized and disheartened that it is in no condition to make a fight.

On the other hand the Republicans have gotten together and without doubt, they will give Mr. Andrews and the local ticket, one of the biggest majorities ever cast here. A large per cent of the Democrats who are disgusted at the manner in which their party affairs have been handled, are openly stating that they are going to support the Republican ticket and the Republican delegate is assured of over fifty per cent of the Democratic votes in addition to the Republican majority.

Bernalillo county therefore on the eve of the election, is in excellent shape so far as the Republican party is concerned.

When it is remembered that the Democrats are maintaining their territorial headquarters here and are conducting their campaign from this city, it is safe to believe that the disorganized condition in this county, is but a sample of the Democratic management in other parts of New Mexico.

W. H. Andrews has a record for accomplishments in Bernalillo county, which Larrazolo and his campaigners could not overcome if they devoted all of their energies to that one task.

The people of this county regardless of party are united solidly for the delegate to Congress, who brought to them from one session of Congress, appropriations totaling $160,000.

The people of Bernalillo county, regardless of party, realize that the appropriation of $30,000 secured by Mr. Andrews made it possible to entertain the Sixteenth National Irrigation congress on the grand scale adopted by the board of control.

The people of Bernalillo county know that the handsome federal building now in course of construction here, was secured through the efforts of Mr. Andrews and the influence of his friends in Congress.

The people know that $160,000 was brought to this county during the very driest season of the year and that hundreds of men were thereby given employment.

The people of Bernalillo county know that Mr. Andrews makes his home here, that he is identified with Albuquerque and Bernalillo county in a special manner and while he does not discriminate against any part of the territory out of preference to another, yet he has never neglected his home city and county.

Mr. Larrazolo may be somewhat of an orator but the people of Bernalillo county will not trade congressional appropriations and influence for rhetoric.

What is true of Bernalillo county, is undoubtedly true of a large majority of the counties in New Mexico.

But the one common tie which binds them all together in the Andrews' movement is the universal desire for statehood. The people want statehood above any party consideration and they know that Andrews can secure it. On the other hand they know Larrazolo would be powerless in Congress and that to send him there would be to defeat the admission of New Mexico to the union.

Mr. Andrews will be elected. It only remains for the Republicans to swell his majority to the highest possible figure.

A Costly Object-Lesson

The smoke of forest fires hundreds of miles away again obscured the sky in New York yesterday. Again there has come of late the appalling news of people burned to death in Michigan. The record of destruction in a dozen states and in British Columbia, says the New York World.

The fires have done great good along with great harm. Michigan and Minnesota are not likely to forget that the interest on a very small portion of their loss by fire would have provided an efficient patrol to report the fires before they grew too big to fight. Ten thousand dollars spent in fighting fire in the Adirondacks probably saved millions of loss to New York state in September. The work unhappily is not finished.

It is a great gain too that lumber-owners have been taught by the grim logic of fact to limit their cut to trees of mature size and to pile their brush for burning in wet weather; and that thousands of small proprietors all over the country are seeding and planting trees for future profit. A very considerable portion of the poorer lands even in the east can be put to no better use than to be restored to their original function, the production of wood crops.

The owners of bungalows in Albuquerque will undoubtedly be interested in the following from London's T. P. Weekly: Not everybody knows the origin of the word "bungalow." It is an Anglo-Indian word and comes to us ultimately from the Bengali "bhangla," signifying literally "Bengalese." A "bungalow" is, therefore, nothing but a "Bengalese house"—a thatched or tiled house of one story, with a veranda. In some parts of India, such houses are erected on the highlands at intervals of a dozen or more miles by the government, which charges travelers a rupee a day for the use of each of these "dak-bungalows."

The Andrews statehood bill now pending in Congress gives to New Mexico $3,000,000 for public schools in the new state; ten per cent of the proceeds from all sales of public lands; four sections of public lands in each township; seven hundred and eighty thousand acres of land for public building at the capital; one million seven hundred thousand acres of land for educational and public institutions; two million acres of land for the payment of county debts; $150,000 for a constitutional convention and state election.

Original appropriation for federal building.....$100,000.00
Additional appropriation for federal building..... 20,000.00
Appropriation for irrigation congress..... 30,000.00

Total from one session of Congress.....$150,000.00

The Washington Herald of recent date gives about half a column to an article entitled "Some Thoughts of Death." This would not be bad subject matter for the Democratic handbill, which is given to discussing gloomy topics.

The New York World advances one reason why the women should not be allowed to vote. It declares that they would be bound to chew the ends of the pencils in the election booths.

It seems strange that a man who aspires to represent the Democratic party as delegate to Congress, could not pay a cent of taxes in twelve years.

The Democratic campaigners who are now so busy preaching high morals would be clamoring for jobs if Bryan were accidentally elected.

Larrazolo will center a favor on the voters by explaining how it happens that he does not pay taxes at least once in a while.

Do you want Andrews and statehood or Larrazolo and nothing? Mr. Voter it will soon be up to you.

Vote the straight Republican ticket and you will have nothing to apologize for.

Count Tolstol has written a letter declaring that he is for Bryan. Is the count registered?

Avoid the sort of charity that employs a press agent. There is some of that brand in Albuquerque.

KILL EIGHTY-ONE ELEPHANTS IN ONE HUNT

South African Party in an Exciting Encounter With Big Herd of Tuskers.

London, Oct. 29.—Word has just been received by London friends of W. J. Viljoen, a noted big game hunter of South Rhodesia, that he and his South African party, describing a wonderful elephant hunt, in which he and eight companions participated in the Lamagundi district. Viljoen writes: "Following a proclamation by the administration authorizing the destruction of elephants in the district, owing to the destruction of the beasts wrought among the farms and along the Lamagundi railway, a party of nine Transvaal farmers, including myself, started on what is now known to be the greatest elephant hunt ever recorded."

"Our party killed 81 elephants in all. I shot 53 of the animals and we captured five calves alive. We left home early one morning and pitched camp at Maquandza, in the heart of the elephant country. From the camp we followed the trails. I was the first to meet with success, getting two large tuskers."

"Early in the hunt I narrowly escaped being killed. Our party was divided at the time, and I had just killed an immense bull, when, without warning, from a nearby clump of trees another elephant charged unexpectedly, and only by plunging into the heavy underbrush, through which the enraged animal could not make rapid progress, did I escape."

"I succeeded in gaining about thirty yards upon the elephant and then shot him."

"One tragedy occurred in which a neighbor named Kloff was killed. With three companions Kloff was following a spoor when they came upon two tuskers. Two shots were fired, but the only damage done was to break a tusk of one of the huge beasts. The enraged elephants at once charged. The three men dashed for the brush, but Kloff was caught and was tossed like a rag on the remaining tusk of the animal that had been hit. His back was broken."

"We captured one half-grown elephant after a struggle lasting nearly an hour. We were without natives and there were but four of us in the party. We grabbed the calf by the ears and tail and finally succeeded in throwing it, but not without a fight that will remain long in my memory."

"The best day's shooting resulted in my killing twenty animals and the capture of two calves. We started at daybreak and found a herd in an open place. The capture of the calves was our first thought. Getting as close as we could, I shot two cows, and, taking my time, proceeded to shoot the balance of the herd, one by one. The firing of the rifle did not alarm the animals, which continued to feed until the last one was shot."

"Meanwhile the other members of the party succeeded in capturing the calves, which were sold to a circus. We realized a large sum as the result of our hunt and put a stop to the depredations of the herd."

A pair of our dainty felt Juliettes with fur trimmings will make your feet comfortable for the whole winter. We have them in black, red, brown or green, and they cost only $1.25 and $1.50. C. May's Shoe Store, 314 West Central avenue.

DAILY SHORT STORIES

THE HIGHWAYMAN.

(By Ben Stoll.)

He sat pursuing the evening paper, reading over and over again the summary of hold-ups which had occurred during the week. There was a fascination to the stories that held him in wrapt attention. He dropped the paper and sat musing for a few minutes, and suddenly arousing himself, exclaimed, "Why not! Others do it—why can't I?" The more he thought the better it appealed to him.

"I've been out of work for two months and one lonesome dollar is all I've got. Well, here goes for the attempt," and, snatching the action to the words, he arose, put a shining object in his pocket and went out on the street.

A certain thoroughfare, dimly lighted and little traveled, was his goal. The street was deserted, save for one lone pedestrian coming towards him. "My meat!" he exclaimed to himself, trying to steady his nerves. Nearer and nearer the prey approached. The time for action was at hand. "Your money," he said in a cool voice as a glittering object met the stranger's gaze.

"My God! you won't take my last cent, will you?" the victim wailed. "Got to do it," was the grim answer. "Be quick!"

The stranger reached in his overcoat pocket. "Here," he said in a distressed tone, "is all I've got—a $5 gold piece."

The footpad held out an eager hand. The excitement was intense. Quickly he pocketed the yellow metal.

"Surely you don't intend keeping all, do you? You must know that I have a family dependent upon me, and now I'm penniless," he said pitifully.

"Gosh, this is tough on him—taking every cent he's got," then aloud. "Well, stranger, I'll return a dollar. Four dollars' profit isn't bad, and you can't say I'm no true gent."

Reaching into his pocket, the hold-up man brought forth the lonesome silver dollar, giving it to his victim. With a fervent "thank you" from the unfortunate, they each went their way.

"Four dollars for a minute's work beats $1.65 a day. Guess I'll go and take a drink and knock off for tonight."

Turning a corner the bold highwayman passed up a side street and entered the first saloon.

"Give me some 'poison!'" he said, throwing the fruit of his recent work on the bar.

The dispenser of liquids glanced at the coin and shoved it back. "Put something else down," he said in icy tones.

"Settling" was all the hold-up man could say. Instead of a $5 gold piece there lay a bright, new penny.

WHITEHEADS FAIL TO PENETRATE NETS

Tests Will be Made by the Navy With Davis New Torpedo Gun.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 29.—Recent tests in Narragansett Bay with the latest designed Whitehead torpedoes with firing speeds for forty knots an hour have shown that the steel torpedo nets are invulnerable to ordinary torpedoes, and another series of tests have been arranged in which the Whiteheads will be supplanted by the Davis torpedo guns.

This device is the invention of Lieutenant Commander Cleveland Davis of the navy. It is inserted inside the torpedo so that striking an object, no matter how slightly, ignites the forty pounds of explosive within the projectile.

The Davis gun is in two parts, 45 centimeters in diameter and 5 meters long. In use against ships, its re-

Some Reasons Why

The C

Because The Citizen is a home paper. It is either delivered by carrier at the house or is carried home by the business man when his day's work is done, and it STAYS THERE. A morning paper is usually carried down town by the hand of the family and hurriedly read.

I

The Citizen is not read hurriedly, but thoroughly, so that all advertisements receive their share of attention. It presents the store news a week ahead, giving the prospective purchaser time to plan a shopping tour for the next morning.

T

Wise advertisers patronize The Citizen because they know their advertisements are seen and read at the homes in the evening, and if they are offering something worthy of attention, their ad has accomplished its mission.

I

The Citizen has never given premiums to subscribers, but is subscribed to and paid for on the news merits, showing that its subscribers have money with which to buy what they want from legitimate merchants. These are the people The Citizen invites to your store.

Z

The Citizen employs a man whose business it is to look after your advertising wants. He will write your copy if you wish. If not, he will see that your ads are "set up" to look their best and he will attend to them from day to day.

E

Are you advertising in The Citizen? Your competitors are, and are profiting by it. Do you think conservative business men are spending money where they are not getting results? Get in the swim and watch your business grow.

ELKINS WEDDING IS TALK OF SOCIETY

Developments Tend to Show That Marriage Will Take Place Within Short Time.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—The greatest international romance America has known in a century is about to play the final scene of its drama in the mountains of West Virginia where, according to the latest reliable information, the duke of the Abruzzi, a prince of the royal house of Italy and cousin to Italy's king, is now hesitating to offer, for the third time, his name, fame and fortune to Miss Katherine Elkins, youngest daughter of the millionaire Senator Stephen B. Elkins, and granddaughter of ex-Senator Henry Cassaway Davis.

There are dukes and dukess. Miss Elkins' suitor is of the first rank, already famous in the world of science, the greatest explorer of his age, 37, and an admiral in the Italian navy, which rank he has just achieved.

As one of the four sons of the late Duke d'Aosta of Italy, one time King of Spain, he is the possessor of a large fortune and an ancestral castle at Turin, so that the idea that he seeks an American bride to replenish a failing house is without foundation. His inheritance has been increased rather than diminished, by careful investments in British securities. Prince Luigi is regarded in London as one of the richest as well as otherwise eligible royal bachelors of Europe. He might seek a bride among the royal princesses of any European court. That he has not done so is due entirely to his boyhood determination to marry for love or to die a bachelor.

According to his own frank statement, he fell in love just eight months ago, while on an official visit to the Jamestown exposition, in command of the battleship Regina Elena.

The first meeting with the young American girl who proved to be his ideal took place in this city, at a reception in the paternal home of Mr. and Mrs. Lutz Anderson. Miss Elkins, then in her second season and having no special taste for ceremonious entertaining or visiting royalties, accompanied her parents rather reluctantly and arrived late.

As she entered the tapestry hung salon of the Andersons, which is handsome enough setting for even a royal reception, the duke was engaged in conversation with a member of the Italian embassy staff. He asked at once the name of the arriving guest. An introduction was promptly effected.

Miss Elkins, who is an ideal American girl, met his royal highness with exactly the same well bred composure and simplicity with which she has been greeting agreeable gentlemen from her childhood, extending her hand with a natural smiling word of welcome and dispensing with the courtesy which most of the other maiden guests had favored him in genuine court fashion.

From that May evening the sailor prince of Italy took new interest in his American visit, which lasted three weeks longer.

Later in the summer, when, according to their usual custom, Mrs. Elkins and her daughter passed six weeks at Carlsbad, he joined their party for a two-day visit, and later met them in Paris on the eve of their return to America. On the last named occasion he is credited with having made a bold offer of his hand and title to Miss Elkins, with the entire consent of the king of Italy, if not with the approbation of that monarch.

The opposition to the match which has since become so pronounced is due to the Dowager Queen Margaretta, who views with alarm the breaking down of all tradition by the marriage of prince and commoner, and is still loath to accept the beautiful American as a princess of Savoy.

On his sudden arrival in America last March the duke allowed no one to doubt his wishes or intentions. He came as a suitor for the hand of Miss Elkins.

THE SAME SWEET STORY, NO MATTER WHERE

That no engagement was entered into at that time was due to the will of the lady who, even to the present day, maintains that no engagement exists. She does not say, however, that she has definitely declined to become the Duchess de Abruzzi, and the exalted suitor goes quietly ahead making arrangements to marry her, with the same determination with which he explored the Arctic heights or the interior of Africa.

In her way Miss Elkins is quite as unusual a character as is the duke. From her cradle she has gone exactly as she pleased. She is one of the crack horsewomen of Washington and the south, having won ribbons of every hue from many horse shows.

She is the owner of five splendid hunters which she keeps in condition herself, and never allows any one else to ride. She is distinctly an outdoor beauty, tall and graceful, with fair complexion tanned by sun and rain, for she never carries an umbrella. She is also a ball room belle, dancing and talking well, always surrounded by stiff-legged gentlemen. Until the coming of his grace of Abruzzi she had never been known to show the smallest favor to any of her scores of admirers. She was quoted as saying a year ago she preferred the duke to any man she had ever met. She wished that he were an American.

Accustomed to practically an unlimited allowance, she has bought her own gowns paid her own club dues (and the initiation fee of her hunt club alone was $10,000) and entertained whom she pleased. Yet she never indulges in the many extravagances of the average girl of American society.

She never made a formal debut in society. She remarked that as her friends had been accustomed to seeing her from childhood, she supposed they would be willing to continue her acquaintance without the medium of a tea or a dance.

The wedding—for, notwithstanding all statements to the contrary, every one familiar with the progress of the Duke de Abruzzi courtship believes there will be a wedding—will probably take place in America and in the coming month, with Cardinal Gibbons to officiate, and the ceremony will be attended with as little pomp as possible.

Should the unconventional bride have her way in this the company witnessing her transformation to a princess, who may some day be queen of Italy, will be limited to the members of the Italian embassy, her immediate relatives, and a few special friends.

She may or may not accept the duke's religion. There has been much discussion on whether she would be induced to become a Catholic.

Three Italian battleships will come to American waters when the romantic international courtship is consummated in marriage, and one will carry the new American princess to her new home in Italy.

"OBEY CLAUSE" CURZONS WERE TO BE CALLED INVALID PAUPERS IN INDIA

France Will Make Change in Marriage Law at Suggestion of Women.

Paris, Oct. 29.—While the London suffragettes, as they disappear behind the prison walls, still stoutly declare that they will resume the program of violence as soon as they have served their sentences, their French sisters continue quietly to accomplish fresh stages of their extensive scheme of a peaceful revolution in woman's position. It was due to a tranquil siege of several members of the chamber of deputies by their own wives that a bill was introduced in the chamber Saturday for the purpose of abolishing Article 213 of the Civil Code, which provides that "the husband must protect the wife and the wife must obey the husband."

The promoters of the bill assert that this article is a relic of barbarism constituting an insult to women and having no meaning in these days of the equality of the sexes. It is not the first time a bill of the same intent has been introduced in the French Parliament. A similar attempt was made unsuccessfully in 1848, but this time, it is declared, the chamber no doubt will have the code so modified that "women can look one another in the face without being ashamed of their place in society."

At a meeting of the originators of the bill, Paul Hervieu, the playwright, had the temerity to suggest that the word "love" be added to the clause "married couples owe one another mutual fidelity, succor and assistance," but Camille Pelletan, himself a recently married man, laughed that to scorn, while others tittered at what they called a "ridiculous suggestion."

Another reason why little opposition will be offered to the bill is because the phrase relative to the wife's obedience is generally the cause of ill-suppressed hilarity at civil marriages. One of the authors of the bill says that when he was assistant mayor of Lyons he often observed sarcastic smiles, withering remarks and winks passing among the bride's attendants when the phrase was repeated and he inferred that the pledge was given with a mental reservation, and therefore had no meaning. All of the six supporters of the bill are married and are highly placed in French public life.

When They Returned to London They Were Without Funds to Open Their House.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Amazing revelations showing the actual poverty of Lord and Lady Curzon after they had returned from India, where they had ruled over millions of subjects in a state but little below that of royalty, disclosure to the effect that "Joe" Leiter dropped nine million dollars in his famous plunge in the wheat pit and that because of this his allowance is now a "beggarly" $4,000 a year, while his twin sisters are both drawing more than double that amount, was made public for the first time today through developments in a suit of Hugh Crabbe against the Zeigler Coal company, on trial in Judge Eberhardt's court.

Lady Curzon's poverty followed her to the grave. Whether her desperate financial straits had anything to do with her death is not known. This much has come to light: When she and her lordly husband returned to England in almost royal state, they could not open their magnificent London house, Carlton House Terrace, but had to hide themselves away in a hotel while awaiting funds to arrive from America. In a few months Lady Curzon died, but in a letter which was produced in court but not read, she wrote the plaintiff that until she knew whether she was to receive her full income from her father's estate she could not open her town house.

The financial difficulties of the Curzons were caused by the immense debts made upon Lady Curzon's purse while she and her husband were ruling in regal splendor in India.

At this time, however, it was brought out that Lord Curzon has sufficient money for his and his children's needs. He and his children are receiving $68,000 a year from the Levi Z. Leiter estate, besides the income from $1,700,000 placed in trust. Joseph Leiter receives $1,500 a month from the estate. When he dropped $9,000,000 in the wheat pit his father came to his rescue and assumed $7,000,000 of the burden. When he died, however, he charged each one of the children up with the money they had received from him before his death. Therefore Joe Leiter has to pay interest on $2,000,000 that he dropped in the wheat pit. Lady Suffolk, who was Miss Daisy Leiter, receives an income of $125,000 a year, as also does his sister, Mrs. Colin Campbell, formerly Nancy Leiter.

I never placed much faith in patent medicines, but I can say I have derived more benefit from Doan's Kidney Pills than from any other remedy. Several years ago I began to notice indications of kidney complaint and my condition reached the state where I was an almost constant sufferer from pain in my back and trouble of an alarming nature existed with the kidney secretions. On one occasion the kidney secretions stopped altogether and I had to have a physician draw it from me. At that time I was employed as a locomotive engineer and had to give up this work, as the jar of the engine made the pain in my back beyond endurance. I suffered from pain across my loins and in both sides over my hips that I would have to sit down in a chair and lean my back against something to support it. At night after I would retire I would not sleep any more than an hour before the pain would awaken me. About three months ago I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a supply. In a short time every difficulty was corrected and I have no trouble at all with my back and kidneys now. On occasions without number I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills, and whatever I can say for them will always afford me pleasure."

VALENCIA COUNTY VOTERS ALIVE TO ISSUES OF CAMPAIGN

long drives and midnight trains. Delegate Andrews was up at an early hour this morning, greeting Albuquerque friends and politicians and making speedy preparations for a pilgrimage into McKinley county.

The delegate and party, including Solomon Luna, Harry Sims, Attorney C. W. DeLoach and Jose D. Rana, arrived last night on the 10:45 train from the south and took quarters at the Alvarado. Wearing a very satisfied look, Mr. Andrews said after a hearty breakfast that he was glad to get back to Albuquerque and looked forward to the time a few days away when he would be able to get some much needed rest. He gave evidence of being very much gratified with the political situation. It was plain that he was well satisfied with the results of his visit to eastern and southern New Mexico.

"You can say," he said, "that western New Mexico should get acquainted with the eastern part of the territory. The people over there are good live ones, and greatly interested in the future of the land they have chosen as their home. This people of eastern New Mexico are alive to the importance of statehood. I found a live statehood interest in each of the twenty-three counties we visited and feel that I must say something for the warm hospitality extended to us everywhere. Business men laid aside their business to attend the meeting, and as a rule, Republicans and Democrats are lending their efforts to further the cause. Statehood has ceased to be a party issue. The average voter realizes that we will all have to together this time at least to insure the success of this long sought for boon. I was very much impressed with the prosperous condition of the people of the eastern counties. The stores are all filled with shoppers and the banks report large deposits and active markets. Many new settlers are proving up. This condition of affairs we found both along the Rock Island and the Santa Fe cut-off. I was assured of support at every place we stopped. We propose to wind up the campaign here Saturday night with a big meeting. We have a few things to say that the voters of Bernalillo county should know."

It was evident that Mr. Andrews feels sanguine of success when the votes are counted next Tuesday. The delegate and party left for McKinley county late this afternoon on the limited.

SATURDAY NIGHT WILL BE HALLOWEEN

Spirits Are Abroad and Everybody Is Expected to Be Hilarious.

Throughout the English speaking world Saturday night will be given up to the celebration of the great festival of Pippin, Pumpkin and Nut. This is the night of Halloween. When the witches may be seen; Some of them black, some of them green.

Some of them like a turkey bean. Long before the Christian faith made way among the uninitiated peoples of ancient Britain, the Druids had performed special rites on what is now known as Halloween, Halloween eve, or, as it is sometimes called, "Nut crack night." Fires were lighted, deep in remote forests, upon outlying spurs of hills, even upon the great plains that stretched between dense forests and partially cleared woodlands; mystic rites were performed, the help of the true God was implored, and the machinations of the powers of evil protested against. The earliest records bear witness to a universal belief that on this night the powers of darkness master in great force and that all supernatural beings hold revel within the sphere of humanity. When, later on, All-Hallow eve became a Christian observance, the old customs pertinent to its celebration did not pass into disuse; on the contrary, they became more and more deeply established, here and there accumulating some new superstition, or annexing some old belief that had long lingered without direct association with any special day or locality. Bonfires are still lighted on Halloween eve to drive away the evil spirits. It is said that the observance of "Halloween" is growing among the American people, though from a festival it has popularly come to mean a time when roystering youngsters remove front gates, upturn sidewalks, ring door bells, take wheels off wagons and buggies and hide them, pull the neighbors' cabbage, feed the cat ginger, and to prove that it was all done by "evil spirits," wear grinning masks and make jack-o'-lanterns with candles and pumpkins. But all that "horse play" is a perversion of Halloween. The proper observance of the night is of a gentler sort, and is invested with a tender brood of superstitions and practices. It is the night when fairies dance, witches ride and ghosts walk, strange dreams foretell prosperity or adversity, and when lovers' dreams and divinations are most potent. The hearts of men and women, maid and youths have fixed upon this time for Cupid's workshop, for the divining of what love may have in store.

The first ceremony of Halloween, according to "Bobby" Burns, is that of "kailing" or pulling the cabbage stalks.

The right way is for two young people (in some parts of the country it must be two of one sex, in others each pair must consist of a youth and lass), to go hand in hand, blindfolded, out into the kale or cabbage patch, and there pull the first stalks they come upon, returning at once to the fields, where they are unbandaged and left to read their matrimonial fortunes as foretold in the stalks. According as the stalk is big or little, straight or crooked, so shall be the future wife or husband of the person by whom it is pulled; the quantity of earth sticking to the root denotes the amount of fortune or dowry; and the taste of the plith or custoc indicates the temper. Finally, the stalks are placed, one after another, over the door and the Christian names of the persons who chance thereafter to enter the house are held in the same succession to indicate those of the individuals whom the pullers are to marry.

It is the custom in Ireland "for the children to run into the cabbage yard before the even' fun begins an' to pick out a number of cabbage stalks, an' name them after any seven of the folk they have anything to do with; then, havin' finished w' this choosin', they dance round the place shoutin' out:

If all are white, all go to heaven;
One, two, three, an' up to seven;
If one is black as Murtaugh's evil,
He'll soon be screechin' w' the devil."

On Halloween nuts and apples are and always have been popular means for telling fortunes. In early English days nuts were so much used on October 31 that it was called "Nut-cracker night." The English poet, Gray, in the "Spell" describes this method of divination.

Two hazelnuts I threw into the flame,
And to each nut I gave a sweet-hearts name.
This with the loudest bounce me sore amazed,
That in a flame of brightest color blazed.
As blazed the nut so may thy passion grow.
For 'twas thy nut that did so brightly glow.

Burns also describes the nut test:

The said guildwife's well-hoarded nuts
Are round and round divided,
An' monie lads an' lasses' fates
Are there that night decided.

Some kindle, couthe, side by side,
An' burn together trimly;
Some start awa w' saucy pride
An' jump out ower the chimble,
Fu' high that night.

BLOOD POISON TREACHEROUS-DANGEROUS

Contagious Blood Poison is the most treacherous of all diseases. It has its victims in its power almost before they realize its presence; because its first symptom, which is usually a little sore or pimple, is so insignificant that it does not cause alarm, or even excite suspicion. But notwithstanding the outward symptoms are not manifested in the beginning, this insidious poison is at work on the blood, and in a short time the patients find themselves diseased from head to foot.

The mouth and throat ulcerate, the hair begins to come out, a rash breaks out on the body, copper-colored spots, and even sores and ulcers appear on the flesh. Unless the poison is driven from the blood it affects the bones, and literally eats out the life of the sufferer.

There is scarcely any limit to the evil powers of Contagious Blood Poison. It is often transmitted to others by a friendly handshake or from the use of the toilet articles of an infected person. And if the virus is allowed to remain in the circulation, its blighting influence will be handed down to offspring to ruin their innocent lives.

Contagious Blood Poison is too dangerous to trifle with. No time should be lost in ridding the blood of this insidious poison, and in no disease is it more important that the proper remedy be used. Medicines which merely check the symptoms for a time and leave the real cause smoldering in the system, have brought misery and despair to thousands. Faithfully the sufferers took such treatment, and when all outward signs had disappeared left off its use, only to find that the virus had been shut up in the blood, awaiting a favorable opportunity to break out again.

S. S. S. goes down into the circulation, and removes every particle of the poison from the blood, makes this vital fluid pure and healthy, and does not leave the slightest trace of the poison for future outbreaks.

S. S. S. is made entirely of roots and herbs of the forests and fields. It does not contain the least particle of mineral in any form to injure the delicate parts of the system, impair the digestion or corrode and irritate the membranous tissue or lining of the stomach and bowels.

If you are suffering with Contagious Blood Poison, S. S. S. will cure you, because it will purify your blood, and destroy every vestige of the taint. It will act as the finest of tonics to build up and strengthen your system, assist it in overcoming the effects of the disease, and insure a speedy restoration to perfect health.

We have a Home Treatment book, describing the different stages and symptoms of Contagious Blood Poison, and containing many suggestions that will be helpful to you in curing yourself with S. S. S. We will send this book and any medical advice desired to all who write; no charge for either. S. S. S. is for sale at all drug stores.

The witness said that it was worth from $250 to $300 to handle such a case. Undertakers Frank Strong and Arthur French were other expert witnesses testifying in the case. The action is an appeal from the probate court, the plaintiff alleging that the bills of the administrator were excessive. The case was given to the jury at 4 o'clock.

The jury in the case of R. L. Thompson versus the Albuquerque Traction company, on trial yesterday, returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, who sued to recover damages for a cow killed by the defendant company. The jury gave Thompson $75.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS DEATH OF HURLEY

Evidently Was Drugged and Beaten and Then Taken to His Room, Where He Was Later Found.

The identity of the friendless stranger who died at St. Joseph's hospital early yesterday morning has been solved, but mystery surrounds the cause of death. There seems to be cause for belief that he was drugged and robbed and marks on his body indicate that he was beaten.

A number of trip railroad passes, receipts and letters identify him as A. A. Hurley, a railroad man, whose mother, Mrs. A. B. McGuire, lives at Kaloosa, Kan. He had been working on various railroads of New Mexico and Arizona and that he had been a resident of the two territories for close to five years is evident from papers found in his clothes. He made his home in Santa Fe for several weeks, and according to a letter found among his papers had his mail sent to the Ancient City in the care of J. H. Kerby of that place. He has been around Albuquerque for more than two months. Frank Strong, the undertaker who has charge of the body, said this morning that he remembers that Hurley came into his place of business about two months ago and asked for Harry Strong, his brother. Mr. Strong told the man that his brother was not in the city, and asked him what he wanted. Hurley said that he wanted to borrow a dollar until pay day. He was evidently working on the Santa Fe at that time. Mr. Strong gave him the money and made a notation on his books of the loan.

Mr. Fleming, who with her husband conducts a restaurant on First street and the La Veta rooming house, said that she was sure Hurley came to her for a room during the fair and then again a week or so later. She says that he was sober when he came to the rooming house Saturday night. She talked to him and could not be mistaken regarding whether he was drunk or sober. He went to his room in good spirit, Sunday morning a chambermaid told her that the man in 17 was crazy. She went to the room and found the door wide open. The bed clothing was on the floor, and at first she believed that the man had gone. After entering the room she saw him staring from under the bed quilts. Hurley was lying on his stomach with his legs under the bed. The lower part of the body was bare. She called her husband and the latter endeavored to talk to Hurley.

Mr. Fleming said that it was evident that Hurley was suffering from some drug. His tongue was so badly swollen that he could hardly talk. He said that he had been robbed. His head showed marks of violence. Sunday evening Mr. Fleming notified the police. Chief of Police McMillin said that an officer saw a man in the street and pronounced the man drunk. The officer asked him if he wanted a doctor. The officer interpreted the sick man's garbled talk to say that the doctors had already got all his money. This, however, is believed to be a mistake, unless the party committing the robbery was a doctor. Hurley was suffering great pain and doubtless needed the attention of a doctor. The man laid in his room at the La Veta rooming house, receiving no attention excepting that which Mr. and Mrs. Fleming gave him, until Tuesday, when a man, said to be a friend of Hurley, came. This man called on City Physician Pearce. The latter had the sick man taken to the hospital in an ambulance.

A man sleeping in the La Veta rooming house told Mr. Fleming he heard two persons take Hurley to his room Saturday night. He heard the noise of persons carrying a body and was sure that Hurley was carried in from off the street. Where and by whom the assault was committed will probably never be known. As far as could be learned today Hurley made no statement as to who his assailants were.

A telegram was sent to the mother last night but she was not located until today.

PIPE GAS AND OIL FOR EL PASO'S USE

Dayton Field Will Be Drawn on for Cheap Fuel and Lights.

El Paso business men have received a proposition from the Dayton Gas and Oil company of Dayton, N. M., to have gas piped from the field recently discovered and now being developed, to the Pass City. The El Paso Times tells of the project as follows: To connect El Paso with the gas fields of Dayton, N. M., by a pipeline and furnish a cheap gas to local consumers is a proposition that Joe J. Boyd, secretary and manager of the Dayton Gas and Oil company of Dayton, N. M., is to submit to El Paso business men and gas users.

Mr. Boyd arrived in the city Monday night and is at the Orndorff, where he will remain for ten days, during which time he will place the proposition before the local gas consumers.

He has two propositions to present. First, to interest local capitalists in the construction of a pipe line from the Dayton oil fields to El Paso. Provided the line is built by capitalists other than his company he agrees to furnish gas at the fields to the pipe line owners at 25 cents per thousand feet, second, his company will construct the pipe line and furnish gas to El Pasoans at not more than 7 cents per thousand feet, delivered.

The Dayton Gas and Oil company has been working in the Dayton fields for about a year. They sank one well which has a flow of 2,000,000 feet of gas per day. Another well is now being sunk within 400 yards of the one already in operation. The company is capitalized at $500,000, with $255,000 paid in. J. E. Platt of New Orleans is president of the company and the stock is held by New Mexico and New Orleans capitalists.

In speaking of his two propositions yesterday Mr. Boyd said: "The proposition of piping gas into El Paso from our fields is a big one, the distance being about 160 miles. However, I believe it will be a paying proposition. Gas as I understand it is selling in El Paso at present for $1.25 per 1,000 feet. We can furnish it for at least 75 cents per 1,000 feet. The cost of the pipe line, however, will be great, and from a rough estimate I believe will aggregate over a million dollars.

"It is my intention to interest El Paso people in the enterprise and I possible have the pipe line built by capitalists who reside here. My company dislikes to build the line from the fact that we are to spend a great deal of money in the field. For us to build the line it would be necessary to incorporate for a much larger capital than we now have. However, should El Paso capitalists not care to take up the proposition of building the line, if we are given the right assurances of patronage and assistance, we will build it ourselves.

"In my opinion a city of El Paso's population should use about $25,000 worth of fuel a day. Of course all the fuel used is not all gas, but if we can supply gas as a fuel cheaper than any other fuel can be bought we can get the business."

Mr. Boyd is of the opinion that a twelve-inch pipe laid from the fields to this city would furnish all the gas El Paso would need.

He stated that his company had made application for a franchise to furnish gas to the towns of Carlsbad, Roswell, Hagerman, Lake Arthur, Artesia and Dayton. These towns are in a direct line and a seventy-five-mile pipe line from the field will pass through all of them.

RECOVER A PART OF THE STOLEN FUNDS

One of the Employees of Chihuahua Bank Tells Officers Where Money Is Hidden.

El Paso, Texas, Oct. 29.—Eighty-five thousand dollars of the $285,000 stolen from the Bank of Minero in Chihuahua several months ago has been located. The information was given by one of the three former employees of the bank, who is now serving a term in the penitentiary. Very little of the details of the finding can be learned, as the judge in possession of the facts refuses to disclose any information whatever.

The mystery surrounding the letter written to El Correo, a Mexican newspaper, published in Chihuahua, shortly after the robbery occurred, has also been cleared. The man who disclosed the hiding place of the money confessed to writing the letter containing the statement that the robbery had been committed by certain mentioned parties for the express purpose of directing suspicion away from himself. The letter, however, was found to have been written on the stationery of the Bank of Minero, and on a typewriter also used by the bank. Suspicion was placed on the former employee, who was later arrested and sent to the penitentiary for an indefinite period.

QUICKEL WINS RACE WITH NEISWONGER

Takes First of Second Series at Skating Rink With Whirlwind Finish.

The first race of the new series was pulled off promptly at the rink last night and was won by the local champion, Cortez Quickel, in a whirlwind finish. Neiswonger's start was decidedly good, showing very plainly he has had much experience in racing, and for a few laps he maintained a good lead, but by a terrific burst of speed and superior skill in turning corners Quickel forged to the front, finishing a few feet ahead of Neiswonger.

There was little doubt in the minds of the spectators that the Denver lad was somewhat handicapped by the size of the rink, as he seemed to lose time in making the turns and gain down either side where the course is straight. As he is practicing daily his friends still hope he will be able before the series is ended to overcome this drawback.

The second race will be skated tonight, and as there will be an entire change of moving pictures the rink will undoubtedly be compelled to put out their S. R. O. sign.

There will also be violin solos by Prof. Gibbs tonight.

THIS MAIL CARRIER WEARS SILVER STAR

S. Houghton, of Albuquerque, Probably the Oldest Mail Carrier in Point of Service in the Territory.

A small silver star on either sleeve of the coat of S. Houghton signifies that he has served the government in the capacity of mail carrier for the past twenty-five years.

Mr. Houghton started out in his present capacity when about 23 years old, serving sixteen years in the city of Chicago and nearly ten years in this city. He is now serving in his twenty-sixth year as mail carrier and the star which he now wears on his new garment indicates that twenty-five years of his life have been spent serving the public. So far as known there are no other silver stars being worn by carriers in this territory and Mr. Houghton is thought to be the oldest in point of service in New Mexico.

For serving any length of time in the service of this department the government issues different colored stars which are worn on the sleeves of the carriers and each denotes the number of years the wearer has served in his capacity. For serving five years as mail carrier one black star is given; for ten years, two black stars are worn on either sleeve; for fifteen years, one red star is worn; for twenty years, two red stars; for twenty-five years, one silver star is worn and one gold star represents thirty years of service.

Mr. Houghton resides at 420 West Lead avenue and his route comprises the southeast portion of the city, which he covers by horse and buggy.

GIRL'S ASSAULT BROUGHT TO JAIL HERE

He Was Heavily Guarded to Prevent Summary Justice Being Meted Out.

Santos Martin, the alleged assailant of the 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brown, of Alameda, was brought to the city last night and confined in the county jail in default of $2,000 bonds. Martin was brought here last night under heavy guard, the officers fearing that an attempt might be made by the people of Alameda to wreak speedy justice. No attempt was made, however, and the officers arrived here safely with the prisoner. Martin is between 19 and 20 years old. He has been making his home with an uncle and aunt. He has made no statement regarding the alleged crime.

Mr. Brown and his daughter came here this morning and the girl was placed under the care of a doctor. Her body is badly bruised. Mr. Brown said this morning that he would like to have the statement that the assault was committed in the evening corrected. It was committed between 12 and 1 o'clock.

He said that he sent his daughter after the mail just at noon. She arrived at the postoffice safely. The postmaster said that he found the girl sitting on his doorstep shortly after 12 o'clock. Martin was there also but sitting on the other end of the doorstep, several feet distant. The two were not conversing. They did not know each other. The postmaster said that the girl went into the office with him and was given the mail, consisting of several letters and papers. He returned to the postoffice with the girl and saw her start home. Martin was not on the doorstep when they came out. The girl went off slowly looking at the mail she held in her hand.

There is a short cut across fields that the members of the Brown family use in going to and from the postoffice. The distance is about three-quarters of a mile. About half way, there is an acequia along which grows high weeds. This is where the assault took place. The postmaster said that he saw the figure of a man standing on the acequia bank in the weeds and yelled at the girl to be careful but she was so far away that she did not hear.

The girl says that Martin jumped from behind a clump of weeds as she approached the acequia. He knocked her down and overcame her by main strength. After accomplishing his purpose, he ran toward the railroad track, which was only a short distance away. The girl reached home very much overcome from the terrible experience she had gone through, and told her father. Mr. Brown, though quite an old man, shouldered a shotgun and started on a hunt for the man. He said this morning that the girl told him her assailant was Martin. He went within a short distance of the house where Martin lived, and then decided that it would be better to let the law take its course. He went to Justice of the Peace Rinaldo Montoya, and the latter made out a warrant and a number of constables were sent to the Martin home shortly after sundown. Martin was arrested without difficulty.

MONEYMADMAN IS PATHETIC SAYS JOHN D.

Oil King In Writing His Auto Biography Tells of His Many Friends.

New York, Oct. 29.—"I know of nothing more despicable and pathetic than a man who devotes all the waking hours of the day to making money, for the money's sake," says John D. Rockefeller in the second chapter of his autobiography in the current issue of the World's Work, and in this statement emphasizes his contention that his acquisition of his enormous fortune is justified by the use he has made of it.

Rockefeller has always protested against the popular idea that he was a miser, and the millions of dollars that he has given for philanthropic enterprises, he maintains, has been proof that his life motive is based upon the Christian principle of charity.

His characterization of the money loving man is the principal feature of the second installment of his autobiography. The chapter is full of minor incidents and observations, and for these the author-billionsaire apologizes in the following language: "Since these reminiscences are ready what they profess to be, random and informal, I hope I may be pardoned for setting down so many small things."

It is a fact that Rockefeller dwells much in the past. In his autobiography, he frequently in his conversation, he discusses old friends who were associated with him in business. He maintains that these associates "were a splendid party of American gentlemen, as splendid a lot of men as this country has ever known."

In telling of some of his old friends he describes his first meeting with John D. Archibald. He says: "One day there was a gathering of men somewhere near the old oil region, and when I came to the hotel, which was full of oil men, I saw his name written upon the register. John D. Archibald, $4.00 a barrel. He was a young and enthusiastic fellow, so full of his subject that he added his initials '$4.00 a barrel' after his signature on the register, that no one might misunderstand his convictions."

Of the original sixty-odd men whom Rockefeller claims were with him in the formation and early career of the Standard Oil Co., only four or five remain. Among those of whom he speaks affectionately are Col. Payne, H. M. Flagler, and his brother William. Of S. V. Karkness, an early associate, Rockefeller says that he was a true friend. When he, Rockefeller, sought a source for funds in case he should be a thief, Karkness said, "All right, J. D., I'll give you all I've got."

After several pages of these memories Rockefeller declares his sentiments on friendship as follows: "These old men's tales can hardly be interesting to the present generation, though perhaps they will not be useless if even these stories make young people realize how above all other possessions, is the value of a friend, in every department of life without any exception whatever. How many different kinds of friends there are. They should be held close at any cost; for, though some are better than others, perhaps, a friend of whatever kind is important; and this one learns as one grows older."

In discussing friendship, Rockefeller names particularly that variety, who, when they come to him, say, "I can't endorse your note because I have an agreement with my partner not to," or, "I'd like to oblige you, but I cannot at the moment."

Rockefeller has no use for such friends as these, he says. He tells how he was a great borrower in his early days, and recites how, on many occasions when he needed funds, friends came to his rescue. One of these was Stillman Witt. When Rockefeller approached the bank of which Witt was a director, asking for more money for an enterprise, Witt put his own strength before the other directors, saying: "These young gentlemen are all O. K. If you want no security here it is."

Of Archibald, who is now the practical active head of the Standard Oil Co., Rockefeller says: "I can never cease to wonder at his capacity for hard work. I do not often see him now, for he has great affairs on his hands, while I live like a farmer away from the active happenings in business, playing golf, planting trees; and yet I am so busy that no day is long enough."

Rockefeller also tells how he does landscape gardening on an enormous scale. He declares the process of moving spruce trees 50 feet high and two feet in diameter, and of transplanting them. "This planting for good views must have been an early passion with me," he says.

Ambassador to England Purchases Valuable Property for the Wards.

London, Oct. 29.—Ambassador Reid has bought Chilton Lodge for Mrs. John Ward, paying $500,000. Sir William Pearce, the original owner, spent $500,000 for improvements, and the place seems, to British eyes, in perfect order, yet Mrs. Ward will expend $100,000 on alterations to bring it up to her ideas before she moves in next January. The last three owners could not afford to keep Chilton, so it has been sold three times in as many months.

The magnificent estate is Reid's wedding gift to his daughter. Before her marriage he promised to give her any country estate in England she would choose. After the honeymoon, Mrs. Ward looked over forty-three of the stateliest homes in the kingdom and finally selected Chilton Lodge. Her father often went with her on her tours of inspection, but he never would say a word to influence her choice.

The estate, embracing 2,332 acres, is twenty-five miles from London, on the borders of Wiltshire and Berkshire, a mile and a half from Hungerford station. The park is well timbered with yews, some of which are said to be 300 years old, and with ancient oaks. It is one of the finest sporting properties in Berkshire, being stocked with fish, pheasant and various kinds of game. Chilton has always been a famous rendezvous for hounds and Mrs. Ward will doubtless maintain the traditions of the old place for hospitality in the form of frequent hunt breakfasts. There are twenty-five bedrooms, but Mrs. Ward intends to build more, and she will have the kitchens and domestic offices overhauled.

King Edward has expressed a desire to visit the Wards as soon as they are settled in their new house. It is not improbable he will dine with them before they move from town.

GIBBONS FAVORS LOCAL OPTION IN COUNTY

Churchman Believes Prohibition Will Never be a Success in Larger Cities

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 29.—Cardinal Gibbons, head of the Roman Catholic church in America, great churchman and great American, has arrayed himself upon the side of local option. He has done so in an interview in which directness, emphasis and sincerity fairly shone.

"I have pronounced convictions on the question of local option," he said. "I have given study and thought to it and these are my conclusions: 'First, I do not believe that prohibition in the great cities is practicable. Attempts to prevent the sale of liquors by legislation in the great communities would only invite decoctions and law violations by liquor sellers and consumers. The result would be unfortunate for the city and no good end would be achieved.'"

"For such cities I believe high license laws, strictly enforced, with constant supervision of the saloons to be the best possible solution of the problem."

"Second, I am heartily and absolutely in favor of local option for all other communities. I would have the county as the unit in the elections."

"To my mind, the people of a county should have right and the power to decide for themselves whether or not liquor shall be sold within the county limits."

"I have spoken briefly, but I could not express more fully my belief on this subject if I talked much longer."

The earnestness of the great prince of the church made every word impressive. His kindly face was grave and thoughtful, and his whole manner that of one who realizes the majesty of his mission.

Apparently the cardinal has not been in better health in years. He has recovered completely from the illness that made an uncomfortable episode of his recent European tour. His face was bronzed, his eyes clear, his step firm and light, and his hand clasp that of a vigorous old man.

The interview was given without hesitation. There was no red tape to be unrolled in obtaining access to the cardinal. The interview itself was as clean cut as a razor, as direct as a straight line, as democratic as the character of the great cardinal. As the interview ended the cardinal smiled the kindly, soul warming smile that makes his face a delightful memory, and said, "You will remember exactly what I have said, that I am absolutely and heartily in favor of local option."

Becoming a mother should be a source of joy, but the suffering incident to the ordeal makes its anticipation one of dread. Mother's Friend is the only remedy which relieves women of much of the pain of maternity; this hour, dreaded as woman's severest trial, is not only made less painful, but danger is avoided by its use. Those who use this remedy are no longer despondent or gloomy; nervousness, nausea and other distressing conditions are overcome, and the system is prepared for the coming event. PRESIDENT WILL FACE DANGER IN AFRICA

Fever, Bad Water, the Burning Sun and Pests Will Imperil the Life of Roosevelt.

New York, Oct. 29.—When President Roosevelt announced that he would go to Africa with his son Kermit, in quest of big game, the American people, knowing little of Africa, took it as another phase of the president's many-sided character without considering more than big game chances.

Laron A. B. d'Altomonte, who nearly four years was commandant of the police forces in the Congo Free State and later headed the six months hunting expedition of Prince Elie Zurnikoff in British East Africa, believes that it is folly for a man of President Roosevelt's age to tempt the fevers and miasmas of Africa. He says it is exceedingly dangerous to take a boy of Kermit Roosevelt's years into the jungle.

President's Many Dangers.

"How will President Roosevelt hunt in East Africa?" the Baron asks. "Will he take a train to Mombasa, put himself in an open car in front of the engine and shoot while passing at herds of wild elephants or antelopes? No, surely. He will be forced by his own very daring nature to hunt following the precepts of Nimrod, in the only grand way, with all the trouble and all the dangers of the great battle."

"This will necessitate camping at night in the damp plains, among high grass, full of insects and mosquitoes, or on the border of the muddy and pestilent river—home of the tsetse fly—or in the tenebrous and treacherous forest, full of miasmas and dampness. He will be forced to the long wait lying in ambush for the approach of the elephant; he will have to face the torrid heat of the rock altitudes to hunt for the lion and the antelope; he will have to cross the putrid bottom of the valleys to watch for the rhinoceros, and with a last one some time he will be compelled to find the running strength of his youth."

The President Too Old.

"These are the general and particular dangers of a hunting party in Africa, without mentioning the miseries of the daily life—bad weather, the rainy season, the fly pest, the infestation of the skin caused by perspiration, the nights without sleep on account of the heat and a hundred other things."

"To be short, I come to this conclusion, that whoever suggested or did not dissuade President Roosevelt from going to Africa has erred. He is 50 years old, and at his age he would encounter many dangers in Africa merely as a traveler; but as a hunter he will face the greatest perils of his life. Apart from the African fever and other tropical diseases, President Roosevelt has another great enemy in his constitution, which is far from being perfect, though the average man may believe it is. The African sun is death dealing to highly excitable and full blooded men."

George Washington

UNTIL every generation of Americans George Washington is justly held to be the purest figure in history—a superb example of the perfect citizen—a just and righteous ruler and "a light for after time."

This commanding personality had a magnificent physique. He stood over six feet in his stockings, was remarkable for horsemanship, agility and strength—the finest gentleman and athlete of his day.

His constitution was of iron and he knew how to keep it so. His biographers declare that in eating and in drinking as in all things he was normal; enjoying the juice of the malt all the days of his life. He drank it around campfires, as well as in his own home and upon social and state occasions.

Furthermore, upon his Mount Vernon plantation he had a brew house, as was the regular custom of wealthy Virginians.

Why Colds are Dangerous. Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Everyone knows that pneumonia and chronic catarrh have their origin in a common cold. Consumption is not caused by a cold but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest way to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by all druggists.

THE EUCALYPTUS TREE RETURNS BIG PROFIT

Grown in Southern California With Success—One Acre Worth $4,500 in Seven Years.

Los Angeles, Oct. 29.—No industry in Southern California has a brighter future than the growing of eucalyptus trees. Is it any wonder when an acre of them will yield in seven years a crop worth $4,500? This is their development. Considering the fact that they need but little cultivation, can an acre of ground applied to any other product bring such gratifying results?

Eucalyptus trees have long been valuable for their medicinal and heating properties, but their worth in the commercial world has been known only a few years. Substituting oak, walnut, maple and the better class of finished timber, eucalyptus is certain to have a demand which will warrant the plans now made in this country for increasing its growth.

The eucalyptus tree is originally a product of Australia. From that country many species have been introduced into Southern California, where the soil and climate conditions are favorable to its propagation and growth. The commercial species furnishes a remarkable wood. The wood of the timber eucalyptus is susceptible of a high finish and high polish. Its great resistance to shrinking, checking and splitting makes it unusually desirable for the finest furniture, fixtures and cabinet work.

For all purposes requiring a wood of great strength and density, high finish, proof against rot and decay and the inroads of parasites and insects, the eucalyptus tree is admirably adapted. Eucalyptus will satisfactorily take the place of cedar, pine and cypress for poles and piling; oak, hickory and ash in the manufacture of mahogany and other woods for finest cabinet and furniture use. In fact, the substitute will, in most every instance, prove more desirable than the wood it displaces.

The eucalyptus will satisfactorily solve the hardwood problem in point of quality and desirability, but all of the efforts of the west cannot produce a supply equal to the ultimate demand. Industries representing an investment of perhaps one billion dollars, producing manufactures to the value of one billion dollars annually, are utterly dependent on an adequate supply of hardwood timber. California will ultimately be the hardwood center of America, and it must and will produce millions of feet of eucalyptus timber every year to avert the famine and rescue the hardwood industries of the nation. A timber so remarkable, an industry of such certainty and promise, demands the most careful attention of every American citizen.

Timber eucalyptus, properly handled in the nursery, properly planted and fairly cared for, will make a growth averaging three inches in diameter and fifteen feet in height each year. The trees will be fairly uniform in growth, but not absolutely so. Conditions governing the growing of nursery stock, planting and care, as well as the soil, moisture and climatic conditions, exert a strong influence on the growth. The first essential is to propagate trees true to name. It is as basic in this industry as in fruit or berry culture, and there is as great a difference in eucalyptus nursery stock as in fruit tree nursery stock. The seedlings require expert handling in the nursery, but when properly grown and set to the soil they are the hardest of trees. They never die a natural death. Conditions may be so severe that growth will cease, yet the tree will survive.

These eucalyptus may be cut any time after the fourth or fifth year, and whether cut at four, fourteen or forty years numerous shoots will spring from the stump. The second growth is more rapid than the first, and is in every way equal in quality. Within a few years the one hardest shoot left uncut will have absorbed the old stump. It has been stated that seven cuttings have been taken from the same stump—the same tree cut seven times—and the number of cuttings possible. Time has not yet determined. Land once planted to eucalyptus will continue to produce for many generations, and unless the world races backward in the consumption of timber every year's growth will be more valuable.

At the end of seven years the trees on a timber tract, including taxes and allowing for interest, will have cost about twenty-five cents each.

The timber supply for the United States is fast fading away. Every working day sees the cutting of 100,000 acres of our forests—perhaps 30 million acres per year, and we have less than 700 million acres in all. The future timber supply, particularly hardwood timber, will be the one greatest economic problem the next generation will be called upon to solve.

The forestry bureau has compiled statistics to show that our forests hold perhaps twenty-five years' supply of all kinds of timber, estimating present rate of consumption. The situation with regard to hardwood alone is more perilous. In 1905 the nation consumed 25 billion feet of hardwood—less than sixteen years' supply now remaining. Timber has vastly increased in price and will increase in ever rising proportion as the supply lessens and the demand increases.

While eucalyptus trees will grow without much cultivation, the more attention given them the better will be the results. A striking example has been noted in this city. In Ellysian park a tree was planted sixteen years ago. Its foundation is a huge rock, a hole being dynamited in it to support the tree. This tree is today only one foot in diameter. In Eastlake park a tree was planted fourteen years ago and has had perfect cultivation. Today its diameter is four feet.

The United States is consuming annually nearly five times as much timber as is growing. As a result, it is obvious what the demand will be in the near future. It will be an utter impossibility to grow an overproduction.

TIMES COOK BOOK.

In the third of The Times' popular cook books, a new mark is set. It contains more than two thousand tested recipes in all branches of cookery, and is more than twice the size of its predecessor. Special attention is called to the chapter on Spanish dishes, nearly two hundred of which have been contributed by the best cooks of the southwest, many of them members of the families of the domestic hospitality was notable and from whose kitchens there issued in the past, and still issue, savory dishes of an excellence that has tickled the palates of epicures for ages and which have lost none of their charm for old residents and for newcomers to this land.

In addition to this leading chapter, there is a symposium of hygienic recipes, unique in many ways, with hundreds of other recipes for the preparation of the multifarious dishes that are in demand daily by every housewife. What is more, all these recipes are practical; all have been tested and found right by the contributors, and in nearly every branch will be found variations of a sort to suit many individual tastes.

Many prizes were awarded to the contributors, whose recipes seemed to bear marks of superior excellence or practicability, while hundreds of other housewives whose names appear must have the thanks of countless cooks throughout the land who will benefit by knowledge of the culinary art imparted. On sale at all news stands, agencies, or sent by mail from The Times. Price 25c; postage 5 cents extra.

Would Mortgage the Farm.

A farmer on Rural Route 2, Empire, Ga., W. A. Floyd by name, says: "Buckley's Arnica Salve cured the two worst sores I ever saw; one on my hand and one on my leg. It is worth more than its weight in gold. I would not be without it if I had to mortgage the farm to get it." Only 25c at all dealers.

PREHISTORIC FOOTBALL

NAVY GUNNERS ARE BEST IN WORLD

United States Sailors Have Improved Marksmanship During Past Few Years.

New York, Oct. 29.—To show that the gunnery of the United States did not approach the standard of excellence set for it in the department used by the public even as recently as 1902, as well as to prove that American gunners are now the best in the world, is the apparent aim of an article that is to appear in McClure's Magazine for November. Indeed the declaration is made that in 1901 the United States gunners could not fire an accurate shot.

The present high standard is not only in the marksmanship of the gunners themselves, but in the improved equipment and methods of training the men how to shoot to hit. It is detailed how, in 1902, when the first real target, an old battleship, was fired at in secret off Cape Charles only two shots out of 200 struck the ship at a range of 2300 yards. The result of this test, says McClure's, "has been kept from the public to this day."

After this a test in firing at a canvas target twenty feet long by fifteen high at a range of 1600 yards, showed 15 per cent of hits, "less than one third of the average percentage in the English navy at that time." Then is related the work of Lieutenant Sims, who introduced the system which the Bureau of Ordnance had declared to be physically impossible six months before. By the fall of 1904 the gunners of the United States navy had been so well trained that they equaled the marksmanship of the British gunners, then considered the leaders of the world.

Upon beginning, as Lieutenant Sims did, target practice with full battle charges for the first time in the American navy, there were a few of the things that were discovered: The telescope sights of the guns had crossed wires so large that the target was entirely hidden from them; the battle ranges. The telescopes jarred loose from their fastenings upon the discharge of the guns and they cut the foreheads of the gun pointers when the guns were fired, so that the pointers did not dare to keep them close to their eyes.

The primers and locks of the guns were wrongly made and stuck fast so that the guns were incapacitated for as much as ten minutes at a time. Ammunition dumps could not in many cases supply more than one fourth of the charges that could be fired, and, after repeated charges, guns were even pulled loose from the bolts which held them to the decks.

The defects had been called to the attention of the bureau, but their existence had been strongly denied and efforts to rectify them opposed. It required more than a year after Lieutenant Sims took charge to secure new and proper telescope sights. The cost of this one item was more than $1,000,000 and the installation of the sights required these years.

The American navy now leads the world in accuracy and rapidity of shooting. Six years ago the standard of firing heavy guns—which are now a battleship's sole weapon of consequence in battle—was once in five minutes and the average of hits on the target now in use would not have been once an hour. At present these guns fire an average of one and a half shots a minute and they hit the target once a minute.
