Problems to Be Solved.

Philadelphia, Oct. 21.—Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson urged the necessity for a widening of the scope of the modern labor union into a vast educational institution, here tonight in a most important of the annual meeting of the United Textile Workers of America.

"The problem of the equitable distribution of the things you produce, the wealth of the country," said the secretary, "is one of the biggest problems of the day and to meet it labor unions must study the problems of modern commerce."

"Title to property, like title to everything else, is made law. It is a privilege created by society, and it should be held in a way that it should be used to benefit the community as a whole. Such organizations as yours are needed to retain the balance."

MEAT CAUSE OF
KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if
Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weak, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is hot you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

TRANSCONTINENTAL
SOUTHERN AUTO
ROAD MAPPED

Fifth and One of Most Important of Cross-Country Motor Car Routes, Logged By National Association.

Special Correspondence to Morning Journal. New York, Oct. 21.—The arrival in New York, October 19, of W. O. L. Westward, field representative of the American Automobile association, completed the interval and in some respects the most important of the five cross-country routes as far as the national organization. Starting from Los Angeles after the completion of the Indian summer trail, the "Trail to Mexico" was followed through San Diego and Yuma to Phoenix, Ariz., where, leaving for Santa Fe trail, a southern detour was made along the line of the Borderland route through Tucson, Idaho, and Douglas to Lordsburg, N. M. On account of the equal importance of the two routes across southern Arizona, it was decided to use both, which required a loop back to Phoenix by Clifton, Globe, and the Roosevelt dam, and thence west again to Lordsburg, making three trips between Phoenix and Lordsburg.

After crossing the Rio Grande river, a southerly course was followed to El Paso, thence northwesterly to Alamogordo, and through Roswell, Santa Fe, and Santa Rita, to Santa Fe, N. M. Leaving Santa Fe, the route led to Texas, where the trail crossed the Red river, which state the lowest average line of the route trip was made somewhat at the time the pathfinding party went through. However, Arkansas was only traversed, and from Memphis, Tenn., the route of the proposed Memphis-Indianapolis highway was followed to Nashville. After careful investigation, it was concluded best to take the longer way from Nashville to Knoxville via Chattanooga, which constituted the only decision on the trip from the route of the Southern National Transcontinental highway.

From Knoxville, the short line was taken across the mountains to Asheville, N. C., which proved to be a wonderfully scenic route, materially better than the preliminary reports seemed to indicate. Leaving Asheville, the route led through Statesville, Salisbury, and Greensboro to Durham, N. C., where the line of the quick-Main Transcontinental highway was met and followed north through Charlotte, Raleigh, Durham and Petersburg to Richmond, Va. After crossing the "Roanoke River" between North and Virginia, which though not yet completed will be finished next year, the standard route was followed from the national capital through Baltimore, Wilmington and Philadelphia to New York.

New York, Oct. 21.—It is believed that six mariners were brought to port by the lifeboats tonight. Walker of the schooner had his crew of five with him in a small boat he had built to the sailing craft's stern as the liner approached. The schooner sank within minutes after the lifeboats were picked up. The schooner was a coast trader of 1,211 tons, registered and was bound from New York to Alaska.
